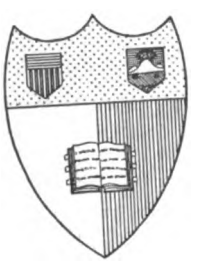
This is a reproduction of a library book that was digitized by Google as part of an ongoing effort to preserve the information in books and make it universally accessible.

Google™ books

https://books.google.com

asoh
15501+
-84



Cornell University Library
Ithaca, New York

CHARLES WILLIAM WASON
COLLECTION
CHINA AND THE CHINESE

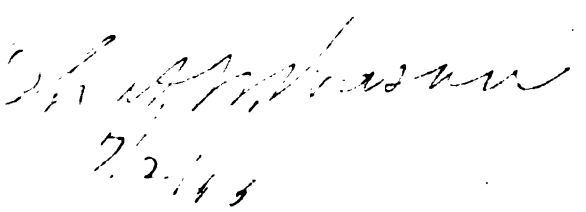
THE GIFT OF
CHARLES WILLIAM WASON
CLASS OF 1876
1918

Digitized by Google

CORNELL UNIVERSITY LIBRARY
3 1924 079 493 148

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google



Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

Wason
DS501+
L84:12
W5220

The London and China 新聞紙 Telegraph.

JAPAN HERALD, AND JOURNAL OF THE EASTERN ARCHIPELAGO.

PUBLISHED ON THE ARRIVAL OF THE FORTNIGHTLY ENGLISH, AND MONTHLY FRENCH MAILS FROM CHINA JAPAN &c.

IN CONNECTION WITH THE "LONDON AND CHINA EXPRESS." A SUMMARY OF NEWS FOR THE OUTWARD MAILS.

VOL. XII.—No. 338.] LONDON, MONDAY, JAN. 10, 1870. [Price 9d., with Sup. 1s. 3d.—Sub. 30s. per ann., postage included. Sup. 12s. extra.

Latest Advices.

PORTS.		OUTWARD. From London	OUTWARD. Arrived out.	HOMEWARD. Received this day.
JAPAN —	Yokohama	Sept. 24	Nov. 15	Nov. 20
	Yedo	—	—	Nov. 20
	Osaka and Hiogo	—	—	Nov. 17
	Hakodadi
	Nagasaki	—	—	Nov. 18
CHINA —	Peking
	Tien-tsin	—	—	Nov. 17
	Chefoo	—	—	Nov. 15
	New-chwang	—	—	Nov. 12
	Hankow	Sept. 24	Nov. 17	Nov 18
	Kiu-kiang	Sept. 24	Nov. 16	Nov. 19
	Chin-kiang
	Shanghai	Sept. 30	Nov. 19	Nov. 23
	Ningpo	—	—	Nov. 21
	Foochow	Sept. 30	Nov. 23	Nov. 24
	Formosa
	Amoy	—	—	Nov. 27
	Swatow	—	—	Nov. 28
	Hong Kong	Oct. 8	Nov. 22	Nov. 30
	Canton	—	—	Nov. 29
	Macao	—	—	Nov. 29
PHILIPPINES —	Manilla	Sept. 30	Nov. 18	Nov. 28
COCHIN-CHINA —	Saigon	—
SIAM —	Bangkok
BORNEO —	Labuan
	Sarawak
JAVA —	Batavia	—	—	Nov. 30
	Samarang	—	—	Nov. 28
	Sourabaya	—	—	Nov. 27
MALACCA STRAITS —	Singapore	Oct. 28	Dec 1	Dec. 7
	Penang	—	—	Dec. 9
CEYLON —	Galle	Nov. 19	Dec. 14	Dec. 15
	Colombo	—	—	Dec. 14

THE MAILS, &c.

The Delta, with the Southampton portion of the above mails, having broken down, they were transferred, at Gibraltar, to the Tanjore, which vessel reached Southampton on the 7th instant.

The next inward mail will be the French, due here on Monday next (Jan. 17), with the following dates:—Yokohama, Nov. 28; Shanghai, Dec. 1; Hong Kong, Dec. 7; Singapore, Dec. 15; Galle, Dec. 23.

Telegrams from China in advance of the succeeding (P. and O.) Mail, leaving Hong Kong Dec. 14, were received, via Galle, on the 30th ult. These will be found in the usual place.

By the Pacific mail we have advices from Yokohama to Dec. 2; telegrams in advance of this appeared in our last issue.

List of Passengers.

PASSENGERS INWARD.

By this mail to Marseilles, per P. and O. steamer Bangalore, arrived Jan. 8.—From Yokohama: Mr. Pasquale, Mr. Paingatti. From Shanghai: Mr Morewood, Mr. R. M. Bird, Capt. E. Smith. From Hong Kong: Mr. F. Steele. From Singapore: Mr. W. G. Gulland, Mr. Meldrum, and one second-class passenger. From Galle: Mr. and Mrs J. R. Bell, five children, and servant. Mr. D. H. Skrine.

To Southampton, per P. and O. steamer Massilia, expected to arrive Jan. 15.—From Hong Hong: Major T. Kinnan and two second-class passengers. From Galle: Mr. E. Ripner.

By last Bombay mail to Marseilles, per P. and O. steamer Ceylon, arrived Dec. 31.—From Hong Kong: Mr. Kinz. From Galle: Mr. Kennedy.

Per Pacific Mail Company's steamer China, at San Francisco, Dec. 26.—For San Francisco: General Van Valkenburgh (late United States Minister to Japan) and suite, C. W. Cushing, W. F. Thomas, L. Russell, T. J. Hanschie, W. S. Arthur, and forty others, also 520 Chinese and Japanese. For New York: Mrs. M. G. Holmes and two children, H. Glipike B. Weigner Rev. J. B. Morrera. For Europe: Baron Van Bunsen, E. Witherbab John Paul

PASSENGERS OUTWARD.

Per steamer Ajax (Holt's line), from Liverpool, Jan. 1.—To Singapore: Mrs. and Miss Kirby, the Misses D'Almeidas, Mr. B. H Woodward. To Shanghai: Mr. and Mrs Campbell, Mrs. Moorhead and two children, Rev. H. and Mrs. Burnside, Rev. R. and Mrs. Palmer.

Per P. and O. steamer Nyanza from Southampton, Jan. 8.—To Ceylon: Mr. G. A. Talbot, Mr. and Mrs. Folkard, Mr. Hill

Per P. and O. steamer Bangalore, from Marseilles, Jan. 16.—To Ceylon: Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Elliott.

Per P. and O. steamer from Suez, Jan. 23.—To Hong Kong: Mr. C. Schlesicke, Mr. A. Strack. To Singapore: Mr and Mrs. G. A. Remé. To Galle (en route for Melbourne): Mr. Jas. Macfarlane, Mr. John.

OUR MAIL TIME-TABLE.

WITH the present number of the LONDON AND CHINA TELEGRAPH we present our subscribers with a Time-table showing the arrivals and departures of the mail steamers at the principal ports, for the year 1870. It will be observed that the fortnightly service of the Messageries is to commence in July. The French Company, however, still retain Saturday as the day of departure from Marseilles, so the French mails will continue to be made up in London on Thursday evening. It is a pity they do not conform to the system of the P. and O. Company, and despatch their vessels from Marseilles on Sunday, so as to leave an interval of exactly a week between the departures. Non-subscribers, or subscribers who wish for extra copies of the Time-table, can procure them at our office, price 9d.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

The present mail brings advices a fortnight later, viz., to Nov. 20. The outward mail with London letters to Sept. 24, arrived at Yokohama on the 15th Nov. with telegrams to Oct. 11. The following items are chiefly from the Japan Times:—

The Austrian Embassy has taken its departure, the Donau and Erzherzog Freidrich having sailed on the 14th inst. for Guatemala. No mission to Japan from a European Power has ever been better received or achieved greater success.

It is not a little curious that, immediately after writing as we did, in our last, on the subject of merchant Consuls, documents should be placed in our hands which prove how absolutely necessary were the remarks that we then made. We have since been challenged for our authority, the extracts we quoted being hardly credited as genuine, so unblushingly and with such evident ignorance of a Consul's duty was the statement made that "official position" would be made use of to push business. We reprint, therefore, in its entirety, the whole of the first circular transmitted to us and as much of the second as is not mere repetition of the first, or copy of the tariff, &c. There is no necessity for us to name the Government which sends out such a Consul; we have nothing to do with individuals; it is a system which we attack.

Our own trade remains in the same unsatisfactory, unsettled state as ever; and we see no possibility of its return to a healthy condition until the currency is established on a sound basis. The final determination of the directors of the Oriental Bank and the arrival of Mint officers are anxiously looked for; but it seems to us impossible that the trade should escape without great loss.

We regret to have to record the death of one of our oldest residents, Mr. John Hughes. His partner, Mr. Willgoss, died two years ago, and thus is extinguished one of the original houses of the Japan trade. We are to lose by this mail, too—fortunately the loss is ours only—Mr. H. B. Lemann. The qualities which have made this gentleman so many friends in China have so endeared him to this community that the unprecedented honour of an almost public dinner at the German Club was paid to him, at which upwards of eighty sat down.

We have no political news to give, which speaks well for the Government; unless under this head may be classed a warning letter received from a Japanese by an American missionary, Mr. J. Goble, and by him transmitted to the English Minister. The writer claims to be cognisant of a plot to assassinate the chief officers of the Government, organised by Tokugawa ronins, who have provided themselves with photographic portraits of their intended victims. In their fatal album they have also inserted, it appears, a carte de visite of Sir Harry Parkes, whose head they threaten to "take off" in another way, and this enlightened patriot, perhaps the photographer, forthwith sends information to the intended sacrifice to pseudo-patriotism by this circuitous route. In a postscript he "adjures" Mr. Goble "not to let any other person than this man (Sir H. P.) see this letter, certainly not any Japanese officer"—whereupon his friend immediately forwards a copy to the Herald.

Digitized by Google

We have not treated the matter seriously, because we know it is not so regarded by those more deeply interested in it; but the attack, in Yedo, on native friends of foreigners, which we lately reported, should be taken into consideration in connection with it.

The new American Minister, Mr. De Long, who arrived here by the last P.M.S.S. Co.'s mail from San Francisco, was greeted in a fashion we have not witnessed before in this country—by a serenade at an hotel, on the night of the 5th inst., after we had gone to press with our last issue.

We have again to report maritime disaster. Captain Batchelder, the builder of the Yangtsze, had bought the Peiho, late Takiang—the vessel which carried the American flag in the Shimonoseki affair—and was bringing her down hither from Hakodadi, when he met with bad weather, and ultimately had to abandon his ship at Cape Inaboye. He sent overland for assistance from Yokohama, but had left and commenced his progress hither by the same route before the Courier, which was sent out to help him, could reach Inaboye, where she found nothing but floating wreck. Fears were for some days entertained for the safety of himself and crew, which were fortunately dissipated by their safe arrival in Yedo on the night of the 12th inst., which they reached after walking over 200 miles across the country. We regret to have to record another accident at sea, attended, too, with loss of life. By special courier from Neegata information has been received of the deaths by drowning of Capts. Carnes, of the C. J. Textor, and Peterson, of the Runnymede. It appears that Capt. Carnes, accompanied by Captain Peterson, left the C. J. Textor, together with a boat's crew of five Malays and one Japanese, and that, on approaching the bar, the boat was capsized by a heavy sea, and all, with exception of one Malay, who saved himself by swimming to the shore, were drowned.

The new Government are doing their duty in protecting shipping from the dangers on their coast. Mr. Brunton, their engineer, has announced that until the completion of the permanent light-house, a temporary light will be exhibited on Rock Island. We have pleasure in recording so clear an illustration of the progress making by the Japanese in everything tending to improve and advance commerce. The lighting of the harbour and its approaches cannot fail to prove of the utmost value to the owners and masters of the numerous steamers that now enter and trade with this port.

Intelligence has reached town of an attempt on the life of the late Shiogoon; it failed, and he forgave the men, refusing even to inquire who and what they were. A contemporary adds that they refused clemency, saying that they had sworn to take his life, and would do so on the first opportunity. He still refused to punish them, and they were so dumbfoundered by his magnanimity that they asked to be his servants, to live and, if needs be, to die for him. If not true, it is well invented.

H.M.S. Cormorant has returned from the North, having gone completely around the Island of Saghalien, whither she went to ascertain the position of the Russians on the island, and whether they had actually menaced Yezo itself. Owing to the extreme wintry weather and dangerous seas it was impossible to land, except at one Russian post, where the Russians were encamped, and treated the English with great respect and cordiality. They are understood to have stated that they had taken possession of Saghalien long ago.

The following are the translations of circulars above alluded to, and published in the Japan Times:—

January, 1869.

SIR,—I have the honour to inform you that the ———— Government has appointed me Consul at Yedo, the capital and principal place of trade in Japan. I intend establishing in that city a house which will do business on commission, receive consignments of goods and orders for produce, do banking, insurance, and shipping business. I am endeavouring besides to secure the representation of certain European firms, and shall gladly accept your agency, should you wish to establish one in this Empire of the Far East, in which foreign commerce, already so important, cannot fail still to go on developing itself year by year.

As I am also desirous to promote the extension of intercourse between the nations of the West and those of the Far East, I purpose establishing in Yedo a musem of industrial products and an international library. The object of the museum will be to make the Japanese acquainted with the products of our industry; it will assist in introducing among this immovable people our ideas and our habits, which will one day drag it from its ancient immobility; and this so much the more easily because the civilisation of the East has made its peoples very sensible of the enjoyments of well-being and comfort.

The museum will be a sort of permanent exhibition; those articles exhibited which may possess a comparatively high value can be sold if the exhibitor wishes it, and for his benefit. Should orders be given on an exhibited sample, I shall immediately transmit them to the exhibitor of the said sample.*

For the success of my project, which cannot fail to have excellent results, the assistance of the manufacturers and commercial men of Europe is necessary. I venture to hope that they will not fail me, and it is in this hope, Sir, that I ask you to be so good as to contribute towards the foundation of this museum by sending me samples and prices current of your manufactures, and (or) by a contribution in money, sufficient at least to cover the cost of transport of these articles to Japan and of their display in Yedo.

I have much pleasure in undertaking to keep exhibitors informed as to any changes that may be necessary in the patterns and dimensions of exhibited articles, and to watch carefully over their interests in Japan. Whatever goods they are willing to consign to me will always be sold with the least possible delay and at the most advantageous prices.

Awaiting your reply, &c.,

(Signed) ————————

This document was dated from a commercial town in Europe, where the writer was established in business; and replies, consignments and contributions to the "Museum" were requested to be addressed thither. In May another circular was issued, still from the European address, from which the following are extracts. We omit nothing of any importance. The writer commences by confirming his former manifesto, and recapitulating his intentions, and then proceeds thus:—

Japan presents to European industry a new market of more than sixty millions of inhabitants, (!) not including neighbouring tributary countries. To make proper use of this opening, we must begin by introducing our products and getting the population to take them; with some articles this has already been successfully done; others have not yet been tried, or insufficiently so. It is to achieve a favourable result that I shall establish the Industrial Museum, and manufacturers and merchants can send me their samples or trial consignments.

And, as I informed you in my circular of last January, I also accept, in Japan, the representation of certain important European and American manufacturing and trading firms, and I will willingly accept yours, if you wish to establish an agency in Japan, where thanks to my official position, I shall be, so to speak, constantly in relations with the Princes or Daimios who reside in Yedo (a town of two or three millions of inhabitants), and of whom several have the monopoly of the foreign trade of certain provinces. In addition to this, several young gentlemen who are to accompany me and who have finished their studies at the ———— ————, will be placed in charge of sub-agencies which I shall establish at the principal ports of Japan.

Here follow the writer's terms and conditions of doing business, rates of commissions, &c., &c., and attached to the circular is a note of such charges as shipping, freight, marine insurance, godown rent and fire insurance and an extract from the Tariff of duties.

As, in his second circular, our consular-mercantile-international-librarian, and museum-custodian informs his correspondents that he will be ready to start in June, we must look out for his arrival shortly, and take tickets for his museum. When anything is seen of an International Library and Industrial Exhibition in Yedo we shall be glad if some correspondent there will describe it to us. On the occasion of our last visiting that emporium of foreign commerce in Japan the only "museum" open was a very small one, and the objects on view were various brands of spirits, with beautiful labels, children's toys, and machine-made boots.

* We have more than one of these "permanent Exhibitions" in Yokohama. They are vulgarly called "General Stores."

LATER BY THE PACIFIC MAIL.

The Pacific mail steamer China arrived at San Francisco on the 26th ult., with advices from Yokohama to Dec. 2 (twelve days later than those received this day by P. and O. mail). She brought a heavy freight and a large number of passengers, including 520 Chinese and Japanese. General Van Valkenburgh, late United States Minister to Japan, and his suite, also came on the China (a list of passengers will be found in the usual place). The China brought seventeen packages of silk, and 1242 boxes of tea to go overland to New York, and 507 packages of tea for Chicago. She brought no political or general news of any importance, but the following commercial items may be interesting:—

The markets at Yokohama were quiet and prices weak; but little was doing in exports of silks; the total settlements were 5,700 bales; stock, 2,000 bales; holders of silk were anxious to realise, but prices were unchanged. Teas: The crop this year will be considerably short of that of last year; the demand was good at full rates; a large quantity had arrived, but it was generally of an inferior quality; the stock on hand was 8,600 piculs. The ships Rifleman, for Boston, and Grenadier and Hobart Graham, for New York, were loading with tea. Common to good common was quoted $20 to 25 per picul; medium to good medium, $27 to 31; fine to finest, $34 to 40.

Exchange on London, 4s. 5¾d.; on Paris, 565*f*.

HIOGO.

We find the following extraordinary announcement in the Hiogo News:—

"We are sorry to have to record a gross act of sacrilege on the part of some party or parties unknown. The remains of Mr. Alfred Singleton, whose decease was recorded in our last, and who was buried on Tuesday, were, during the course of yesterday, found to have been exhumed." In a subsequent issue the same paper gives some further details. It says, "Unfortunately, the perpetrators of this outrage have not yet been discovered. It is supposed that some Japanese coolies, who were lookers on, must have seen money in the hands of the parties concerned in the burial, and seeing the cup which contained them placed in the coffin (Mr. S was buried with Hebrew rites), supposed the money was also enclosed. The lid was lifted off the coffin, the corpse hauled out, and the grave-cloths opened over the face as by some one searching, and left half in and half out of the coffin. H.B.M.'s Consul has taken the usual measures in demanding the aid of the authorities to discover the culprits, but we fear this will be numbered with many other offences which would be discovered in any country but this. Remembering the active measures taken by the Japanese to discover and punish the offenders when the skulls of the Ainos were disturbed a few years ago, it is to be hoped some measures will be taken to trace the wrong-doers in this instance. It is high time some measures were adopted for the protection of our goods when alive, and our bodies when dead."

Digitized by Google

CHINA.

PEKING.

Conflicting opinions are entertained as to the probable time of the young Emperor's accession to power. It is generally thought that Tung Shi will assume the reins of government next year Mr. McLeavy Brown's unexpected appearance in Peking has led to much conjecture; some attribute the visit in connection with the ratification of the treaty made by Mr. Burlingame at Washington, others in regard to the non-forthcoming funds for the Mission, &c.

The new English treaty has been signed, and will probably be taken home by Sir Rutherford Alcock. Rumour has it that the American treaty has been ratified through the agency of Mr. Brown.

It is currently rumoured that a further cession of territory has been made by China to Russia.

SHANGHAI.

THE NEW TREATY.

The most important item of news received by the present mail is the announcement of the alterations in the Treaty of Tientsin which have been agreed on between the Chinese Government and H.B.M. Minister. The amended treaty, it is stated, will not take effect until agreed to by the other Powers having treaties with China. A deputation from the Chamber of Commerce waited on H.E. Sir Rutherford Alcock on his arrival in Shanghai, and learned the particulars, of which the following (reprinted from the N. C. Daily News) is a correct summary.

"We learn, then, that two new ports, Wu-hu, in the province of Anhwey, on the south bank of the Yangtsze, and Wanchow in the province of Chekeang, about 150 miles south of Ningpo, are to be opened to foreign trade—both likely to be important as outlets for tea and inlets for foreign manufactures; the working of coal mines with foreign machinery is to be allowed, at two ports, south of Tientsin [not yet determined on]. The Chinese also promise to improve the roads giving access to them, without which no development would be of much use. They also agree to reduce the tax on native coal, from the present prohibitive rate to one which will permit it to take a fair place in the market, while the duty on foreign coal is to be taken off altogether. Duties are also to be reduced, on all articles as desired by merchants in their memorials, except Tea Dust; Dock stores and all articles of personal consumption are to be admitted free of import duty; and Bonded Warehouses are to be permitted, where desired. The just and important concession is made, that drawbacks shall be repaid in cash within the current quarter; and the term within which drawbacks generally may be recovered, is extended from one to three years. Foreign goods are to be exempt from transit dues without regard to ownership, transit passes being required only in the nine provinces which do not possess treaty ports. But the 2½ per cent. now charged under Art. XXVIII. of the old treaty is to be added to the five per cent. import duty, and payment of 7½ per cent. to be thus made compulsory on all foreign imports, whether intended for transmission to the interior or not. Should any illegal squeezes be subsequently levied, the remedy will be an appeal to the nearest Maritime Customs office, which will refund the amount so exacted on production of satisfactory proof.* The abolition of the transit pass system involves also a modification of the arrangements in regard to produce. This is in future to be taxed at local rates while in transit in native hands; the rates and amounts are to be inserted in a memorandum which will be produced at the port of shipment, in the event of sale to a foreigner, when any payment in excess of 2½ per cent. will be refunded by the Maritime Customs; but any deficiency below this amount will have to be made good The export duty on Silk, on the other hand, is to be raised 1 1/7 per cent.; and the import duty on opium from Tls. 30 to Tls. 50 per chest. Inland navigation by foreign-owned vessels other than steamers, and temporary residence and storage of goods by foreigners, in the interior, will be permitted. The very desirable stipulation is also made, that the manner in which tonnage dues have been appropriated shall be published in the Customs Returns. Another important measure to which the Chinese have given their assent, is to the formation of a commercial code which, while embodying the commercial law of Western nations, would supersede the multiplicity of Courts to which reference is now necessary, according to the nationality of the disputants."

* The intelligence of this new impost, without any substantial guarantee for counterbalancing advantages, has naturally been received with great disfavour by merchants here in the China trade, who express surprise and indignation that our Minister should have allowed himself to be duped by so transparent an artifice. We believe a meeting will be held immediately to decide on some method of protesting against this, and the result will probably be a deputation to Lord Clarendon

A telegram recently published in The Times, said to be from Sir R. Alcock, which was received in a very mutilated condition, gives (as far as it can be deciphered) the names of Ke-lung and Che-yong as those of the coal-mines to be opened, and mentions a port in Hai-nan to be opened, in addition to the two above mentioned.

Advices by the Pacific mail give the following version:—"The revised treaty between England and China had been signed by the proper officials of the Government but had yet to be ratified and accepted by the other foreign governments before it would go into operation. The following are the important changes: A modification of the transit dues; the opening of two new ports to trade and commerce; the working of coal mines by foreign appliances as an experiment, in two places yet to be selected; a reduction of the duty on native coal and other articles; the establishment of bonded warehouses; the navigation of the inland waters by vessels not steamers, and a temporary residence in any part of the empire by foreigners. The ports to be opened by the treaty are Wuhu, on the lower Yang-tsze, and Wanchow, on the coast between Ningpo and Fuhchau, both of which ports had been strongly recommended in all the memorials on the subject. The Chinese Government had also agreed to employ an English barrister to frame a code of mercantile laws, in conjunction with the judge appointed by the Queen of England. The Supreme Court will govern all international civil suits."

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SHANGHAI, Nov. 23, 1869.

My last letter was by the Ottawa, sailing at daylight of the 10th inst. The Aden, due on the 9th, did not arrive until the evening of the 12th; she brought London telegrams to Oct. 11. The Messageries Imperiales steamer Thase arrived on the 19th, with telegraphic advices to 19th ultimo. By Kiachta we have London market telegrams to 2nd inst.

I have to record another outrage on missionaries at Nganking including both Protestants and Roman Catholics. The French priest escaped to Shanghai. The Protestants were Mr. and Mrs Meadows and Mr. Williamson, who were brutally attacked while in their chairs, and escaped with their lives to the Yamun of the Taoutai. They subsequently escaped to Kiukiang in a boat.*

Sir Rutherford Alcock, in bidding adieu to Prince Kung, is said to have been addressed by that functionary in these words: "Now you are going home, I wish you would take away with you your opium and missionaries."

The other items of interest occurring since my last, are, the arrival of H.E. Sir Rutherford Alcock, K.C.B., H. M.'s minister at Peking, in the Adventurer, on the 13th inst. H.E. left on the 17th inst. for Hankow in the Plymouth Rock, accompanied by the Mandarin, Chen, who presides over the Mixed Court at this port. H.E., after the opening of Wu-hu, intends to institute inquiries into the N'ganking outrage, to assist him in which Chen went with him. The Adventurer goes up the Yangtsze some distance, to Hankow, if possible; it is doubtful if Sir Rutherford will call at Shanghai on his way down. An attempt is being made to get up an address to him.

Mr. Wade has left for Peking. Le Comte de Mejeau, H.I.M.'s Consul General at this port, has arrived, and taken up the duties of his office. Ex-Governor Low, of California, is looked for by next Pacific mail steamer, to take up the duties of U. S. minister at Peking. Dr. Wells Williams is still at Shanghai.

The Municipal Council had a meeting since my last; the chief features gleaned from their minutes are the purchase from Mr. A. Thorne of a plot of ground for £5,000, next to the Central Police-station, for the purposes of building offices, &c., upon; the jurisdiction of the Fire Department to extend to the French Settlement, the substitution of iron for wooden bridges in future, the laying of additional main sewers, and a general reassessment of land situated within the municipal limits.

The new Land Regulations have been assented to by the Minister; they will not come into operation until April next. A new Marine Insurance Company is in process of formation with strong supporters; it will be on somewhat different principles to the existing companies.

Baron Richthofen has returned to Shanghai from a geological tour in the Northern and Central Provinces. Mr. J. Barr Robertson, a constant writer to the Daily News, has taken up the vindication of Mr Hart and his policy generally, and his supposed connivance at the much complained of faulty wording of Mr. Burlingame's credentials. The vindication is feeble in the extreme, and may cause Mr. Hart to pray to be "saved from his friends."

The Asiatic Society held a meeting on the 19th inst.; papers on "Banking Institutions in China," by M. Sunon, and on the "Fabulous Source of the Yellow River," by the Rev. Mr. Eitel, were read.

The shareholders of the Club have appointed a committee to dispose of the building, and the subscribers to the Recreation Fund have likewise deputed a committee to act for them in regard to their loan on the Club.

The local press teems with correspondence from the medical men of the place, as to whether sick men convalesce sooner in hospital or in their homes. The correspondence has but little other than local interest from the way it has been taken up.

* We have a long and interesting account of this affair, which we will publish in our next.

Digitized by Google

The sentences awarded by the new mandarin now presiding at the Mixed Court upon Chinese convicted of offences against foreigners are so extremely mild that they give rise to much dissatisfaction.

A serious fire occurred on the morning of the 18th at Tunkadoo, which resulted in the destruction of about 120 Chinese houses. The Fire Department rendered signal service on the occasion.

Mr. Hart is daily expected from Peking. The harbour-master has erected a signal tower on the Customs' newly-acquired property on the Pootung shore.

The new northern channel of the Yangtsze has been surveyed, and will shortly be opened for all vessels taking Shaweishaw Island on their course to and from Shanghai. It is stated by the Marine Surveyors that this channel offers the best entrance to Shanghai for vessels coming from the North.

No 3 gunboat has been launched from the Kiangnan Arsenal by Mr. Falls (who, by the way, intends shortly returning to America). She has made a trial trip, and proved herself satisfactory in all respects. There is now on the stocks and building at this dockyard a ship of over 1,000 tons capacity, intended as a steam transport for the conveyance of Government stores and troops.

H.M.S. Adventure has left for Hankow. H.M.'s gunboat Dove has arrived from Chefoo.

Mr. Burlingame's credentials continue to supply food for our local press. The North China Daily News, since I last wrote you, has published no less than seven translations, as well as the Chinese version of the Burlingame credentials. I append the last literal and free translations, and upon which, the Daily News says, "we take our own stand, as an accurate and carefully weighed rendering."

"MR. BURLINGAME'S CREDENTIALS.

"We subjoin another translation of the Chinese text of Mr. Burlingame's credentials, which we published some days ago—one on which we especially rely as literally and accurately rendered. The freer translation (by the same hand) which follows exhibits the spirit of the original less clearly than the first. The distinction between 'central' and 'outer' nations, for example, disappears under cover of the 'people of China and of other nations.'"

Literal Translation.

We, the Great Emperor of the Great Pure Dynasty, ask after the welfare of the Great Queen of the Great English nation.

We have received the Divine Commission. Central and outside people are but one family. We regard with affection friendly States, and the promotion of lasting amity therewith. We have specially selected the virtuous, able, and sage Anson Burlingame, late resident Minister for the U.S. in Peking, who, being thoroughly versed with Central and outer affairs, may be depended upon to convey on our behalf our most cherished desires in the conduct of matters affecting the intercourse of the two nations. We have likewise deputed Chih-kang and Sun-cheà-ku, officers of the second grade, to accompany him to the Great English nation. These, severally, have received special nomination to the grave responsibility of high Ministers, as an evidence of the sincerity of our goodwill. We feel assured that these three Ministers are all loyal, assiduous, careful, and conscientious men, and that they will certainly be able to arrange matters satisfactorily; and we trust every confidence may be extended towards them; so that friendly feeling may be eternally secured, and peace be equally enjoyed by both sides. This must be, we believe, a source of deep delight.

Free Translation.

The Emperor of China to the Queen of England, greeting.

As the recipient of the Divine Commission, and looking upon the people of China and of other nations as members of but one family, we regard friendly states with affectionate interest, and attach importance to the maintenance of amicable relations with them. We have therefore especially selected for employment Anson Burlingame, lately United States minister to China and a man of virtue, ability, and sagacity, who being thoroughly conversant with the affairs of this and other countries may be safely relied on for representing our most cherished intentions in matters affecting the intercourse of China with great Britain. We have likewise deputed Chih-kang and Shun-chia-ku, officers of the second grade, to accompany Mr. Burlingame to England; and as an evidence of the sincerity of our good will, each of these functionaries has received from us a nomination to the important trust of high minister. Knowing as we do that these three ministers are all loyal, assiduous, careful, and conscientious men, we feel certain that they must succeed in arranging matters satisfactorily, and we trust that equal confidence may be extended to them on the other side. Thus may friendly feeling be eternally secured, and both nations enjoy the blessings of universal peace, a consummation which we doubt not will occasion intense gratification.

(FROM ANOTHER CORRESPONDENT.)

Sir Rutherford Alcock has been accompanied up the river by "Chen," the magistrate of the Mixed Court, specially deputed by the Taoutai to visit Woohu with our Minister, who intends visiting all the Treaty Ports before he leaves China for home. The opening of the coal mines, if worked on the European system, will be of immense importance in increasing the supply and lessening the cost of that now indispensable article. This port is now well supplied with coal, but the price is of course much higher than the native coal could be laid down at. The abolition of duty on foreign coal and reduction on native is a decided boon.

If our Minister is to have any weight with the Chinese Government at Peking he must have a material force at some neighbouring station, so as to impress the Chinese with a sense of our power in those seas. I say, therefore, concentrate our fleet instead of frittering away our strength in keeping single vessels at the Ports. The danger of attacks at the Treaty Ports is nil, while obstructions of all kinds are the work of the mandarins. The people are eager for trade and commerce, while the steady policy of the mandarins is to exclude us from the country as much as possible.

The theory that we have no moral right to coerce the Chinese to trade is one of the fallacies of the day. Carry out the doctrine and we ought to leave China and return home; but the fact is that the Chinese people are anxious to trade, and do not want coercing; but the rulers are averse to intercourse with foreigners, as they see danger to their interests in the presence of Europeans as the embodiment of new ideas.

CHEFOO.

Sir Rutherford Alcock called at this port en route to Shanghai. The prospectus is out for building, under the auspices of a company, another hotel.

NEWCHWANG.

This port will be shortly closed by the ice. The Foreign community have presented Mr. Alexander Mc Pherson with a testimonial upon the occasion of his leaving for England.

HONG KONG.

Our advices from this port are to the 30th November. The outward mail of Oct. 8 was received Nov. 22. The local news is of little importance; the following items are from the China Mail:—

We are glad to be able to announce that in the Revision of the Treaty Sir Rutherford Alcock obtained for Hong Kong the right of Transhipment, a boon which will, we doubt not, be acceptable to our mercantile friends. A clause has also been introduced empowering the Chinese to appoint Consuls in British territory. If other countries follow the example, our proposition as regards Consuls for the protection of coolie labourers may stand some chance of being carried into effect.

We learn on good authority that another of the pet schemes of Mr Hart, the Inspector General of Chinese Customs, has been defeated. About a year ago, it appears, a ukase was issued from the Customs' headquarters, requiring that all German, Danish, and other vessels whose capacity is not stated in tons, should be remeasured by the harbour masters and have new tonnage certificates granted to them for the Chinese ports. This rule has now been withdrawn in consequence of the refusal of the Prussian Government to sanction it; and a new system for calculating tonnage has been introduced in accordance with the wishes of Count Bismark, who appears to think that European Governments have some right to be consulted where the interests of their subjects are concerned, and who does not take the Chinese view of every question as a matter of course.

On the 17th November the Duke of Edinburgh laid the foundation-stone of the new Cathedral chancel, with the usual ceremonies. It bears an inscription stating that "This stone was laid by H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh, on the 16th of November, 1869," and will form the centre plinth of the eastern end of the new chancel. The coins of the colony, furnished by the Hong Kong Bank, and a copy of the Overland China Mail, were deposited underneath. At three o'clock the same afternoon the Duke embarked, and shortly afterwards the Galatea sailed for Manila, amid hearty cheers and a salute from all the ships in harbour.

The Overland China Mail gives the following

PRECIS OF THE REVISED TREATY.

Art. 1.—Preamble.

Art. 2.—British Consuls may be appointed to reside at any of the Treaty Ports. China may appoint Consuls to Great Britain or her Colonies.

Art. 3.—Cotton and woollen piece goods, &c., will pay import duty and transit dues on entry. They may then be conveyed throughout any of the Treaty Port provinces, free of further charges.

Art. 4.—Inland charges on native produce intended for a foreign market, exceeding 2½ per cent., to be returned to the merchant; when below that figure, the merchant to make good the difference.

Art. 5.—China produce shipped from Hong Kong will be treated as native goods, and when sent there will receive the benefit of exemption certificate.

Art. 6.—The port of Wen-chow to be opened to foreig trade instead of Keung-chow (Hainan).

Art. 7.—Vessels of every description, hulks, &c., to pay tonnage dues once in our months.

Art. 8.—Vessels to declare destination on clearing. False declarations of goods liable to a fine not exceeding Tls. 500.

Art. 9. Joint investigation in cases of seizure. Commercial code to be framed.

Art. 10.—Compulsory for all pilots to have licenses.

Art. 11.—Foreign goods re-exported to a foreign port within three months to get return of duty in cash. If re-exported to a foreign country after three years to forfeit claim to drawback.

Art. 12.—Opium duty raised. British subjects may trade in the interior in vessels propelled by sail. Bonded warehouses will be established where found necessary. Superintendent of Customs at Kiukiang will keep a tug-boat at the Poyang Lake to tow foreign-owned vessels of native style on the waters of the lake. Tea bonds to be done away with if feasible. Coal mines to be worked in the Southern Superintendent's division, and the duty reduced.

Art. 13.—Duty on silk raised. Wu-hoo to be opened to trade. Foreign grain may be re-exported to a foreign port free of duty. Dock stores to be free. Household stores (as per list to be furnished) also free. Foreign coal and guano free. Duty on watches, pepper, and tin reduced. Native coal, 5 cash a picul (except at three northern ports).

Digitized by Google

Art. 14.—Rules to be framed at each port relative to sycee payment.

Art. 15.—Articles of old Treaty unaffected by new ones, to remain in full force.

PHILIPPINES.

—o—

MANILA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ARRIVAL OF THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.

MANILA, Nov. 22.

On the 19th inst. was telegraphed from Corregidor—"5 40 P.M., the steamer signalised is a British frigate, no distinguishing flag, the Vad Ras (stationed at Mariveles to pilot the Galatea up the Bay) speaking her." Our telegraph being on the old semaphore system, and night coming on, the greater part of the population were left in uncertainty whether the Duke had arrived until morning dawned, and showed the Galatea lying at anchor. Ships in the harbour and all the native craft in the river were decorated, those who had it, flying the British flag at the fore. Great excitement existed to find at what hour H.R.H. would land, and from early dawn the sides of the river were crowded with people anxious for a chance of beholding him The morning unfortunately was cloudy and wet, which detracted a good deal from the effect of these decorations.

Twelve o'clock had been named as the hour for landing, at which time the Galatea's steam launch was seen coming up the river Pasig with H.R.H., an aide-de-camp of the Governor-general, and some officers of the Galatea. On landing at the kiosque erected for the occasion, his Excellency the Governor-general with suite, Civil-governor, and other high officials, received the Duke with great warmth, and "God Save the Queen" was struck up by the several bands, the populace in their way giving continued hearty shouts of welcome. The Royal party entered the state carriage drawn by six fine horses, and drove off under the first triumphal arch, preceded and followed by carriages of those in authority; a mounted guard of Lancers, with their officers at the door of the carriage, accompanying them. The procession, on account of the crowds of people, had to move slowly over the bridge of boats along the Escotta to the residence prepared for the Duke, the line being through a file of soldiers on each side all the way, and through triumphal arches at distances of about every hundred yards.

All the houses on the road were fantastically arranged, and the belles of Manila were conspicuous in the windows, out of one of which came showered by fair hands on the royal carriage a profusion of flowers. On arriving at the residence a numerous assembly greeted him with prolonged and hearty "vivas," and the troops filed past. At one the Duke gave audience to the high officials and Foreign Consuls; at three received an address from the British residents (few of whom knew its contents), and then rested. Heavy rain soon began, and continued until Monday evening (24th), spoiling entirely the illumination of triumphal arches, &c., Sunday being the birthday of the Princess Royal, H.R.H. gave an official banquet, at which the principal head authorities, three British merchants and Consuls were present. Yesterday (Monday) evening the state ball took place, at which the elite of the Spanish ladies were present, numerous Spaniards of all classes, and to the surprise of many only twelve foreigners (English, French, American, &c.). H.R.H. danced but twice, preferring a quiet lounge with his officers to the constraint of the ball-room; but nevertheless, the ball went off with great eclat. To-morrow (Wednesday) the English residents give in honour of the Sailor Prince a grand ball—"Au cotume du pays"—that is, the ladies to be dressed in the dress used here by creole ladies, gentlemen as they choose: next mail you shall have some account of this ball, with other festivities that may be gone through in honour of the illustrious visitor. I am sorry to have to record any drawback, but as a faithful chronicler, I cannot pass over the conduct of H.B.M. Consul, which has drawn upon him the wrath, not only of the Spaniards, but of all the foreign community. Notwithstanding that he received a communication that H.R.H. would leave Hong Kong for this about the 15th or 16th, he deliberately gave out that such departure would not take place till the 18th, and naturally both the Spanish authorities and the English residents did not expect him till about the 21st, when suddenly, on the evening of the 18th, he (the Consul) writes to the Governor-General that he expects his Royal Highness the next day. Great annoyance and confusion was the result; and the poor captains of villages with their men were roused up at two o'clock in the morning, to continue with all haste the decorations, and other preparations. Only two Consuls were presented to his Royal Highness, the others not being advised by H.B.M.'s Consul in time to be on the spot; and he forgot until a quarter past two that his Royal Highness had named three o'clock for receiving the address of the English residents, causing the same to be presented by a gentleman who it was not intended should present it. Upon being asked for the names of Foreign residents that should be invited to the ball, he "black-balled" all but five, depreciating the whole of the commercial community except these favoured ones. More by next mail.

JAVA.

—o—

BATAVIA.

The Handelsblad gives the following:—"The preparatory labours towards constructing the Batavia Buitenzorg Railway are being carried on with speed. The materiel has been partly ordered from Europe, partly procured here by tender. The rails will be supplied by an English firm. The purchase of land from private persons gives rise to some difficulties. A general meeting of the Chamber of Commerce and Industry was held at the Handelsvereeniging, to discuss the modifications which the existing tariff of import and export duties ought to undergo. It appeared to the meeting to be desirable that the import duties on linens, cottons, &c. (piece goods), should not be higher than a uniform one of 10 per cent.; that the import of articles intended for industry in general, and agriculture, should be free; that wheat and flour should be free from import, and produce from export duties; further, that ad valorem duties on goods should be replaced by fixed duties. The drawing up of resolutions to this effect has been entrusted to a Commission.

A new iron dock was taken to Onrust. The construction of it was begun in 1863, and in 1866 the last portion of it required was despatched from Holland. It was put together at Sourabaya, and was conveyed to Onrust by two steamers. It is complained that the length of it is greater than that of the largest Dutch man-of-war. It, however, appears not at all unlikely that foreign vessels may require it occasionally. In this age of big ship building it is requisite to look somewhat beyond the mere requirements of the moment. It cost the Government about 1,000,000f.

Lighthouses have been completed on the North Watche Island, and a lighthouse vessel in the Lucipara Passage, entrance of Banca Straits.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

The P. and O. mail of 22nd Oct. arrived on the 25th Nov., and the French mail of 28th Oct. on the 1st Dec. Telegrams are only up to the 4th Nov., owing to the continued interruptions on the lines. Dates are now down to the 7th.

The chief item is the arrival of the Duke of Edinburgh from Hong Kong, via Manila, on the 2nd inst. The ceremony of landing took place on the 3rd, and was a very interesting scene. The Straits Times says:—

The decorations made by the public for his reception, if not costly, had at least the recommendation of being elegant, and as H.R.H. neared the shore in his barge on that day he must have been struck with the very handsome appearance of the imposing buildings that line the Quay in the business section of the town. At noon of the day of landing a levee was held at the Town Hall, at which most of the residents were presented to his Royal Highness; and on the same evening an Official Dinner was given at Government House. On Saturday evening Lady Ord gave an "at Home" at Government House, at which the ladies invited were presented to H.R. Highness. On Monday the Maharajah entertained the Duke and half of Singapore at a luncheon at Johore, which was followed by all kinds of native sports. The Duke slept at Johore last night and returns to-day. To-night was to have witnessed the chief entertainment of the visit—consisting of a public ball and supper in the Town-hall; but the unexpected and much to be deplored death yesterday of Colonel Macpherson, Lieutenant-Governor of the Colony, will put an end to all further public festivity here for some time. The Duke was to leave for Penang on the 8th or 9th, en route to Calcutta.

The autumn races have been held, the first day's sport occurring on the day of the departure of the last mail. The meeting was a decided success, and a new interest in turf matters seems to have sprung up in the community which bids fair to make the next meeting of the Sporting Club more of an attraction than for some time past. Time was when our races were eagerly looked forward to and long remembered; and, if we may judge from the signs of the times, there is hope that the spirit which has for a time remained dormant among our sporting men will awake to new life.

We much regret to record the death of Colonel Macpherson, the Lieutenant-Governor, on the 6th Dec. The event is the more distressing as he had but recently married a daughter of Mr. Napier.

In matters political there is absolutely nothing to report. The consideration of the Indian penal code has been postponed for the present session, but will be brought forward again early next year. The Secret Societies Bill was passed at the meeting of the Council on the 24th inst., under the title of the "Dangerous Societies Ordinance;" but not having yet seen it in it samended form, we are unable to venture any opinion upon its merits. The Council has also had laid before it a despatch from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, relative to an armed police force, to supply the place of the native infantry—and this project is to be brought before the Council.

The British ship Caermarthenshire, 812 tons, Captain Davies, from Foochow 13th Nov., bound to London, arrived at Singapore on the 24th Nov., dismasted.

Digitized by Google

Commercial Report.

—o—

(For dates see First Page.)

CEYLON, STRAITS, JAVA, CHINA, AND JAPAN IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—The business done had been on a limited scale, and the demand was confined to Yarn, Grey Shirtings, Turkey Red, and Velvets, the latter being in slight demand at reduced rates. Cotton Yarn, 16-24, small inquiry; 28-32, weak; 38-42, owing to the scarcity of the grade, commands extreme rates. Woollens much depressed, with scarcely any business to report; deliveries satisfactory and on a fair scale. Holders were firm, and the prospect of business was encouraging. Stocks estimated at—Grey Shirtings, 49,500 pieces; Cotton Yarn, 8 800 piculs; Taffachelass, 83,000 pieces; Blankets, 42,000 pairs; Sugar, 15,000 piculs; Coal, 5,220 tons. Quotations:—Cotton Yarn, 16 to 24, $52.50 to $53 per picul; 28 to 32, $53.50 to $54 per picul; 38 to 42, $60 to $64 per picul; Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., $2.60 to $2.65 per piece; 8 lbs., 4-6, $3.02½ to $3.07½ per piece; Black Velvets, $9 to $9.50; T. R. Cambrics, $0.95 to $1 per lb.; Taffachelass, $3.25 to $3.50, single weft, $2.50 to $2.90; Blankets, $0.38 to $0.48 per lb. Metals: Nail Rod Iron, $3 to $3.50 per picul; Lead, $6.25 to $6.75 per picul; Tin Plates, $6.25 to $8 per box. Coal, $9 to $11 per ton.

SHANGHAI.—Until a few days before the mail's departure there had been a very limited inquiry for all classes of Grey goods, but the subsequent receipt of better news from the North had induced more demand, which had been fairly responded to by some foreign holders. Grey Shirtings: Sales from first hands estimated at 100,000 pieces for the fortnight, rates for 8.4 lbs. about one candareen higher, 7 lbs. 2 to 8 candareens lower, the commoner kinds having specially depreciated in value. Heavy goods also lower, with only a limited demand. Re-exports unusually small for the season. Stock estimated at 1,000,000 pieces. Quotations: 7 lbs., Tls. 1 95 to Tls. 2.02 per piece; 8.4 lbs., Tls. 2 16 to Tls. 2.23; and 9 lbs. to 9.12 lbs., Tls. 2.50 to Tls. 2.70 per piece. T-Cloths: A very small trade had been done, and prices were far from satisfactory. Sales from first hands stated at 13,000 to 14,000 pieces. Quotations: 6 lbs., Tls. 1.45 to Tls. 1.65; 7 lbs. Tls. 1.65 to Tls. 1.85: 8 lbs. to 8.4 lbs. 36 inches, Tls. 1 90 to Tls. 2.15 per piece; Tls. 2.40 being the value for XX. White Shirtings: Transactions to the extent of about 5,000 pieces, chiefly in small lots, prices showed little variation. Quotations: 56 reed, Tls. 2.05 to Tls. 2.15; 60 reed, Tls. 2.20 to Tls. 2.27; 64 reed, Tls. 2.35 to Tls. 2.40; 66 reed, Tls. 2.45 to Tls. 2.50 per piece. Drills, Jeans, and Sheetings: All kinds most difficult to place, quotations lower. Auction sales of American damaged goods had tended to keep down the value of sound cargo. Fancy Goods: Transactions moderate; little change in prices. Woollens: A few retail sales of Camlets and Figured Orleans reported at last prices; general inquiry limited; no special alteration in value. Barter transactions in Spanish Stripes against produce had transpired, and these goods had found legitimate buyers at very low rates. Metals—The business had been of a most limited description, only 3,000 bundles of Nail Rod Iron having changed hands at previous currencies. No arrivals; holders very firm. Lead: Common chops in good inquiry at better rates. Coals: Business quiet; prices without variation. Quotations (duty paid):—American Drills, 40 yards, Tls. 3.7.5 to Tls. 3.8 5; American Jeans, 30 yards, Tls. 2.9.0 to Tls. 2.9.5; American Sheetings, 40 yards, Tls. 3.6.0 to Tls. 3.7.5; English Drills, 40 yards, Tls. 3.6.5 to Tls. 3 7.5; Dutch Drills, 40 yards, Tls. 3.5.0 to Tls. 3.6.0; Camlets, English, SS, Tls. 11.5.0 to Tls. 12.5.0 per piece; Spanish Stripes, Tls. 0.5.4 to Tls. 0.8 0; Medium Broad and Habit Cloth, Tls. 0.9.5 to Tls. 1.6.0 per yard; Long Ells, Scarlet, HH, Tls. 6.1 5; Assorted, HH, Tls. 6.2 5 per piece; Iron, Nail Rod, Tls. 2.1.0 to Tls. 2.1.5 per picul; Coals (cargo quotations afloat)—Cardiff, Tls. 8.5; North Wales, Tls. 7.7 5; English, Tls. 7; Anthracite, Tls. 10.0 per ton.

HANKOW.—Grey Shirtings 8¼ lbs., have been taken in fair quantity, but at unremunerative rates. 7 lb. Cloth had been saleable to some extent. The market closed quiet, at Tls. 1.96 for Tls. 1.99 per piece for 7 lbs., and Tls. 2.15 to Tls. 2.20 per piece for 8¼ lbs. White Shirtings not in inquiry, prices weaker. T Cloths: Rather more demand for good makes of both 7 lbs. and 8 lbs. cloth, but without change in prices. Drills dull, few transactions reported. Fancy Cottons: Dyed Spots and Brocades, Dyed Damasks, Chintz and Handkerchiefs saleable in retail lots. Black Velvets of favourite chops asked for. White Goods met with no inquiry. Woollens and Worsteds—Camlets in poor demand, sales to a small extent only. Lastings not much inquired for. Long Ells: Scarlet in moderate demand, prices firm. Assortments declined 5 candareens per piece. In Spanish Stripes and Medium Cloth little business had been done. Figured Orleans—Inquiry directed chiefly to common chops, several parcels of which had been taken at low rates. China Crapes not saleable.

FOOCHOW.—The sales during the interval had been 500 pieces 6 lb. T-Cloths, at $2; Lead, 250 pigs, at $7 for cash; 300 pigs, at $7.50, against Tea.

HONG KONG.—We extract the following from Messrs. Olyphant and Co.'s Report, dated 29th November:—Cotton Yarn: The settlements reported of Nos. 16 to 24 and Nos. 28 to 32 have been made entirely at public sale, as no demand has existed at private. Offers are obtained with difficulty, and when made are so much below holders' ideas that no business results. Rates have not been sustained, and both these counts are quoted $2.50 per bale lower. Nos. 38 to 42 have continued in active request, and the small lots that have come to hand have been firmly held for advanced rates; the quotation shows a rise of $2.50 per bale, though a sale has been made at a somewhat dearer figure, and the present stock is held for still higher rates. Piece Goods: The position of the market is again most unsatisfactory. All the staple manufactures have declined, and at the close rates are weak, with no apparent prospect of an early recovery Large arrivals from Bombay of 7lb. Grey Shirtings have forced down prices, and this weight has given way in value 2c. to 5c., whilst 8 4 lb. is difficult to place, and anxiously offered at a like decline. 9 lb. to 10 lb. goods are heavy of sale at a reduction of fully 5c. per piece. Common White Shirtings have gone no lower, but fine makes have suffered a further fall. T-Cloths have been considerably dealt in, but nearly one half of the parcels placed have been disposed of at public auction. Common 6 lb. goods have fallen, though the demand continues steady. 6 lb. Mexicans are difficult to move at a reduction of 2½c. per piece. 7lb. goods have likewise given way, though a fair enquiry keeps up for Mexicans. 8.4 lb. to 10 lb. are all 5c. per piece lower. Turkey Reds are in full supply and have experienced a like drop The demand for Drills is very trifling, and all kinds are quoted down 5c. The enquiry for the North has altogether ceased, and dealers are fairly well supplied to meet their limited wants. Woollens: The business of the fortnight has been upon an increased scale, but a major portion of the settlements of Long Ells, Spanish Stripes and Blankets have been made at public auction at reduced rates. Long Ells are 5 to 10 cents lower, while Scarlet Spanish Stripes have declined 1 cent per yard. Blankets are in over supply, and public sale continues to be the only method by which holders are enabled to work off their stocks. Superior Lastings easily command former values. Orange Camlets meet with some demand at unchanged rates, whilst the inquiry for Scarlet has improved. Metals: Large parcels of Nail Rod and Bar Iron have been placed upon former terms; Hoop has been fairly taken "to arrive" at a slight advance. The supply of lead is very full, whilst the market continues excessively dull. An active demand for Tin has again sprung up for shipment to the Northern markets, and prices have risen $1.50 to $2 per picul. Last rates are maintained for Quicksilver, though the supplies offering are large. Coal: Arrivals have been 1,420 tons Cardiff and 700 tons Sydney; sales have been 800 tons Sydney at $6.25 per ton, of which, however, 600 tons were ex Godown. Ginsen: No settlements reported, and the market is in the same quiet state as last advised. The following were the current quotations:—Cotton Yarn, Nos. 16 to 24, $140 to 147.50; 28 to 32, $147 to 153; 38 to 42, $170 to 185 per bale; Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., $2.45 to 2.50; 8 4 lbs., $2.75 to 2 80; 9.12 to 10 lbs., $3.70 to 3.80; White Shirtings, $2.40 to 3.10; fine, $3.70 to 6; T-Cloths, 6 lbs., $1.90 to 2.10; 7 lbs., $2 15 to 2.55; 8 to 8.4 oz., $2.65 to 2.90; Spotted Shirtings, $2.70 to 2.90; Turkey Red Shirtings, $2.65 to 2.75; American Drills, 40 yards, 15 lbs., $5.15 to 5.25; Dutch Drills, 40 yards, 14 lbs., $4.75 to 4.80 per piece; Spanish Stripes, $0.70 to 0.92; Medium Ladies and Habit Cloths, $1.40 to 3 per yard; Long Ells, $7.65 to 7.80; Camlets, SS, $15.40 to 17 per piece: Blankets, $0.40 to 0.55 per lb.; Iron, Nail $2.45 Rod, 2.45 to 2.50 per picul; Lead, $6.40 to 6.70; Tin Plates, $6.25 to 6.50 per box; Quicksilver, $62 to 62.50 per picul; Coals, English, $7; Welsh, $8 per ton.

BATAVIA.—Madapollams: Dutch White and Unbleached, 5s. 4d.; white inquired for; other qualities not in request; English White and Unbleached, no demand. Shirtings: Dutch White, trifling transactions, 6.4 saleable; Unbleached, stocks not large, saleable in small lots; English White, some qualities inquired for; Unbleached, no demand. Cambrics: Value of fine qualities declining, only No. 24 saleable. Drills: Dutch, moderate stocks, but values rather low; English, still saleable; Blue, without transactions. Jaconets: Plain, unsaleable; Printed, fine assortments find buyers. T. R. Cloth: Prices low, slow of sale. Dyed Cloth, nothing doing. Prints: Value for fast colours difficult to obtain; Fugitives, saleable. Mule Twist: Holders firm; dealers supplied by auction sales of damaged; Turkey Red, in inquiry at former rates; Green and Orange, dull.

SINGAPORE.—A moderate business in Manchester goods had been done in the earlier part of the fortnight; but during the last week busines had been completely interrupted, owing to the arrival of the Duke of Edinburgh, the Chinese and other classes having determined to keep holiday during his stay. Grey Shirtings maintained previous quotations, sales at $2.90 to $2.92½ per piece. T-Cloths not enquired for, no change in price. There had been one sale of Long Cloths, the first reported for some time back. Madapollams sold in small parcels at previous quotations. White Shirtings: demand confined to the commoner descriptions, of which the market was bare, and fair prices had been obtained for the goods disposed of; only favourite chops of fine goods enquired for. Cambrics of low quality in demand and scarce, market nearly cleared; fine goods dull, prices weak. Dyed Cottons overstocked, and in no demand. Turkey Red Cambrics, notwithstanding considerable consumption for the decoration of the town, showed no improvement. Prints unsaleable; demand for Sarongs abated, but sales of Battick Handkerchiefs to some extent. Grey Yarn in small supply; the limited sales reported showed no alteration. Turkey Red Yarn in less demand; sales trifling. Coloured Yarn less inquired for, prices declined. Metals dull. Iron in no demand—stocks in excess of requirements; only trifling sales effected, prices unaltered. Copper Sheathing and Yellow Metal in full supply; purchases made for immediate requirements only. Small sales reported of Spelter, Brasswire, and Tinplates. Gunpowder without improvement. Coals showed no animation; the only only sale reported was a small lot of Brimbo (North Wales) at $5½ per ton ex ship. Closing rates: Gambier, $2.97½ to $3; Coffee, $12; Pearl Sago, $3.10; Sago Flour, $2.42½; Tin, $29⅞; Grey Shirtings, 8¼ lbs., $2.90 to $2.92½; 7 lbs., $2.50 to $2.52½; T-Cloths, 6 lbs., $1.85 to $1.87½; Cambrics, Nos. 15 to 16, $32 to $33; Grey Yarn, No. 40s, $151; Nos. 16 to 24, $135.

PENANG.—Business had been very slack during the fortnight, and no sales of any importance had taken place. Grey Shirtings: Quiet; in 6 lbs. no transactions have been reported; 7 lbs., some sales registered at $51¼ to $51½, usual credit, and $49 cash; 8¼ lbs. scarcely moved at $59 per corge; in 45 inch no operation to report. Grey Long Cloths: Very inactive; only one sale of 10 lbs. goods at $70 per corge; in other weights nothing done. Grey Madapollams: Saleable, but market bare. Grey T-Cloths: Stock far from excessive, and only in few hands; demand very light; sales reported of 7 lbs. at $48½ to $48 per corge. White Shirtings: Not improved; fine quality alone had buyers at $88½ to $115 per corge. White Cambrics: Very weak; sales of Medium reported at $27, and of Nos. 15-15 at $32.75 per corge. Grey Sheetings dull, only a few corges disposed of at $90. Dyed goods very dull, with no improvement in price; sales recorded of Prints, Pink Ground, at $56; White Ground at $48 per corge; Turkey Red Cambrics, 2¼ lbs., at $49; Siam Chowls at $11½ to $13; Ginghams at $46½; and Kling Dresses at $12 per corge. Grey Mule Twist in very weak stock; a small parcel from Singapore secured; No. 30, $145 to $148; No. 40, $155 per bale of 400 lbs. Turkey Red Twist moderate sales of No. 44 at $145; Nos. 16-20 (5 lbs.), at $125 cash per bale of 200 lbs. A few bales of Imperial Red disposed of at $80; Green, at $83 per bale of 200 lbs. In other Yarns no transactions. Gold thread no enquiry; the only sale reported at $48 per catty of $36 weight. Iron without movement; full stocks. No sales of Pig Lead; but Sheet Lead sold at $7½ per picul.

Digitized by Google

COLOMBO.—Messrs. George Wall and Co.'s report, dated 14th Dec., is as follows:—There has been little change during the fortnight in the value of any class of goods, but there has been decidedly more doing. Importers fearing to lose the Christmas demand have, to a considerable extent, met dealers on the terms on which they were willing to operate. Grey Shirtings have changed hands freely at our quotations, 9 lbs. being the leading quality. Grey Long Cloths have not been inquired for. Grey Drills have been in moderate demand. Grey Jacconets have found buyers to a fair extent at our figures, several small parcels of 45-inch goods having also been placed at fair prices. Mule Twist is not asked for. Regatta Prints have been in favour, especially small striped patterns. White gro. Prints have been neglected. Pink Prints of small pattern in a fine cloth are in good demand. Quotations:—Grey Shirtings, 39 inches, 7lbs., 11s. to 11s. 1½d.; 8¼ lbs. 13s. 6d.; 45 inches, 8 lbs., 13s. 6d. to 13s. 9d.; 9 lbs., 15s. 3d. to 15s. 6d.; 10 lbs., 17s. 6d.; 11 lbs., 20s. to 20s. 6d.; 50 inches, 10 lbs., 17s. to 17s. 3d.; 11 lbs., 18s. to 18s. 6d. Grey Drills: 29 by 30 yards, 14s. 6d. to 15s. Grey Jacconets: 50 by 20 yards, 7s. 6d. to 7s. 9d.

CEYLON, STRAITS, JAVA, CHINA, AND JAPAN EXPORTS.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—A moderate business had been done during the fortnight, and settlements for the San Francisco and New York markets amounted to about 2,500 piculs, chiefly of medium grades; these settlements had been made at prices now quoted, but reports were current that this season's crop will be a short one, and although supplies had come in freely, dealers were asking from $2 to $3 advance, and the market closed very firm. Stocks were increased and were of fair quality. The Phaeton, with 377,083 lbs., the Janet Ferguson, with 665,824 lbs. for New York, the Crown, with 74,573 lbs. for London, and the Miako, with 15,079 lbs. for San Francisco, had sailed. The Rifleman, for Boston, and the Grenadier and Herbert Graham, for New York, were loading. The Southern Belle was also on the berth for New York. Quotations:—Common, $20 to $21; good common, $22 to $28; medium, $25 to $27; good medium, $28 to $31; fine, $33 to $36; finest, and choice, nominal.

SHANGHAI.—Black: A steady business had been transacted. Prices of commonest descriptions showed no alteration, but rather better value had been obtained in Teas, ranging from Tls. 18 to Tls. 19, and perhaps in those at Tls. 20, and rather over. Supplies had been on a full scale for the time of year. The stock on offer was somewhat reduced, and the great bulk of it consisted of very common Tea. Settlements for the fortnight, 20,400 chests; reshipments on owners' account, 1,500 chests; stock, 78 chops, or 21,000 chests. Quotations, duty paid, Hohow, common to fair, 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 1½d.; Oonam, common, 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 1½d.; Ningchow, common, 1s. 1d. to 1s. 1¾d.; Oopack, common, 1s. 0¾d. to 1s. 2d. Green: An important business had again been transacted, the greater portion of the Tea purchased being for shipment to New York. Common and medium descriptions, having been in large supply, had sustained a decline of fully one tael per picul, without attracting much attention. A few settlements of good to fine Teas had been made, showing a small decline on previous prices. The following were the quotations:—Moyune and Teenkai, Tls. 33½ to Tls. 43½; Fychow, Tls. 29½ to Tls. 34½; Pingsuey, Tls. 32 to Tls. 36; Shanghai-packed, Tls. 25 to Tls. 26. Settlements for the fortnight, 29,400 half-chests; stock—170 chops, or 88,000 half-chests.

HANKOW.—There was no change to advise. Settlements amounted to 1,700 chests only. Shipments to Shanghai on native account had been to the extent of 6,200 chests. Oopacks, common were quoted Tls. 15.2.5; Oonams, common, Tls. 13 to 15.

KIUKIANG.—Black Teas: A chop of Hohow, at Tls. 13.2.5, was the only settlement. Arrivals had continued steady, but had all been forwarded to Shanghai, together with about 1,100 chests packed at this port. Quotations were—Ningchows, nominal. Hohows, common, Tls. 13.2.5. Green Teas: Arrivals had come to hand very freely, and though Teamen had generally held for extreme rates, the few settlements effected had been at somewhat easier prices.

FOOCHOW.—The following is from Messrs. Odell and Co.'s Report:—Congous in the early part of the interval were about half a tael per picul cheaper, but latterly the demand has become more general, and with large settlements the decline has been recovered, the market closing very firm at our previous quotations; arrivals from the country have not been large, and as regards quality show a considerable falling off. Souchongs are not in demand. Oolongs: Owing to the same cause as noticed in our last, viz., the extreme firmness of holders, business has been much restricted. Scented Teas have continued in moderate inquiry at previous currencies. Settlements during the fortnight have been:—Congou, 28,480 chests, at Tls. 9.3 to Tls 21.8 per picul, ship off; Souchong, 1,296 chests, at Tls. 18.8 to Tls. 24.8; Oolong, 1,227 ½ chests, at Tls. 21 5.5 to Tls. 21.8; Scented Teas, 6,227 boxes, at Tls. 9.3 to Tls. 22.8; Flowery Pekoe, 120 chests, at Tls. 27.8 to Tls. 33.5.5.

AMOY.—Congou: During the interval 5,213 packages of low quality had been taken at $11 to $13. Oolongs: Settlements reported of 8,698 packages, at $16 to $19¼ for inferior and common cargo; $21 to $22 for fair; $28 to $26 for good to superior, and $27 to $31 for fine grades. The market closed weak, and prices showed a downward tendency. Supplies were 47,343 packages less than at the same date last season.

CANTON.—Settlements of Scented Teas had been at irregular, at the same time generally lower prices; medium grades of Orange Pekoe, in many cases, showing a decline of two taels, and holders were rather anxious to realise at this reduction. Canton made Green Teas also cheaper. Country Congous: No sale and no stock. Canton settlements from Nov. 12 to Nov. 25:—Canton district congou, 550 boxes, at Tls. 18; scented orange pekoe, 6,000 boxes, at Tls. 14 to Tls. 29; scented caper, 4,000 boxes at Tls. 14 to Tls. 18; Canton greens, gunpowder, 6,700 boxes, at Tls. 18 to Tls. 22; imperial, 1,500 boxes, at Tls. 14 to Tls. 20; young hyson, 200 half-chests, at Tls. 18.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—Purchases of Silk, although not extensive, had been sufficient to keep prices very firm; and, indeed, considering the ample supplies and increasing stock, silkmen were surprisingly stiff. As before, excepting a small proportion, the stock was mainly composed of Medium and Common Hanks. Silkworms' Eggs: Bivoltini were arriving on a small scale, and still found purchasers at prices, quality considered, fully up to previous rates. The current quotations for Silk (laid down in London at exchange 4s. 6½d.) were as follows:—Mybash and Sinchu: Best, 31s. 6d. to 33s. 5d.; Medium, 28s. 2d. to 30s. 6d.; Inferior, 24s. 9d. to 27s. 6d. Oshu: Extra, 34s. 4d.; Best, 31s. 3d. to 33s. 3d.; Medium, 28s. 8d. to 30s. 11d.; Inferior, 22s. 10d. to 26s. 8d. Coshu: Best, 27s. 1d. to 28s. 8d.; Medium, 24s. 9d. to 26s. 8d.

SHANGHAI.—The following is from Messrs. Skeggs and Co.'s Circular dated 23rd November:—Telegrams via Kiachta to the 2nd instant are to hand reporting "Silk very quiet. Red Peacocks 22s. 9d. No. 3 Tsatlee 27s. 6d." As buyers generally anticipated lowering advices, a very small business transpired until the dealers showed some anxiety to sell at declining rates, principally induced by the lower price of dollars. Settlements now reach about 1,000 bales at prices ranging from Tls. 10 to Tls. 20 under those of last mail. In Tsatlees, chops are Tls. 10 lower, chopings having been realised at Tls. 560. "Worm and leaf" Tls. 550. Blue Flag Tls. 500, and Red Peacocks Tls. 460. Good medium and ordinary kinds show the greatest decline, and can be had at Tls. 20 lower (having no well-known paper inside), whilst the commoner sorts are taken irregularly at barely Tls. 10 in favour of buyers. Hainins have at last given way, No. 2 "Fatmow" having been placed at Tls. 465, equal to a fall of Tls. 10 to Tls. 15. Taysaams being scarce maintain their position, although Kahings are perhaps a shade easier; Chincum sorts on the other hand are still firmly held, and a few good Skeins have fetched Tls. 390, equal 20s. 4d. laid down.

JAVA, STRAITS, AND CEYLON PRODUCE.

BATAVIA.—Arrack: f.120 to f.112 per leaguer; sales, and in good demand. Cloves: f.27.49 per picul, average price of 400 piculs sold by Government. Coffee, Java: f.31 to f.32.50 per picul; sales, according to quality. Cubebs: f.16 to f.17 per picul. Gutta Percha: f.60 to f.120 per picul, according to quality; small supplies. Gum Dammar: f.45 to f.48 per picul, sales; supplies. Hides, Cow: f.35 to f.40; Buffalo, f.23 to f.28 per pound, according to quality. India Rubber: f.90 to f.100 per picul; sales and scarce. Indigo: Sales at Samarang f.5.30 to f.5.40 per lb. for first quality. Mace: f.120 per picul; wanted. Nutmegs: f.115 per picul; sales. Pepper, Black: f.17 to f.18, small supplies. White: f.30 per picul; no stocks. Rice, first quality, f.165 to f.175 per Coyang; second, f.125 to f.130 per Coyang; cargo, f.100 to f.115 per Coyang. Rattans, Borneo: f.10.50 to f.13 per picul; and Padang, f.8 to f.9 per picul; sales. Sugar: No. 14 and lower, f.16.50 to f.16.75 per picul, sales; No. 15 to 20, f.15.50 to f.15.75 per picul. Tin, Billiton: An auction of 5,000 piculs advertised for the 6th December.

SINGAPORE.—The Produce Market had been exceedingly quiet. Gambier: Dealers disinclined to sell, though at higher rates, $2.97½ having been offered and refused; the only purchase reported was of 50 tons at $2.95. Bontyne Coffee taken to some extent at $12 to $12¼ per picul; Campar at $6¾ per picul. No contracts made for Pepper, but the season would open shortly, and $7 per picul had been offered for Black. Sago Flour was unchanged, at $2.42½ for Singapore and Sarawak. Pearl Sago was a shade lower; purchases at $3.07 per picul. Hides neglected. Gutta Percha in small supply; $76 per picul paid for No. 1. Tin had fluctuated between $28¼ and $29⅛ per picul, the latter being the closing price; the business limited.

PENANG.—Tin had been purchased almost exclusively for the China market. The little offering could be got at $27 per picul. This was, however, quite a nominal quotation, as there were no buyers on the market even at this decline. In Pepper no important transactions, the season being over. Some West Coast, held in store by a Chinese trader, sold at $7.55 per picul, and a small arrival, to Chinese hands, was bought at $7.75 per picul. A small lot of White offering, rather inferior quality, but no report of its purchase. Sugar: Penang, Nos. 1-3, in good inquiry, at former prices. That of Chinese manufacture, Nos. 1-3, brown, contracted for (future delivery), at $3.30 to $3.10 per picul. The Tapioca crop had been pretty well taken up until the end of February, the last contracts having been made at $4.15 per picul. A lot of Mace, No. 1 picked, secured at $76 per picul; beyond this no transactions. Hides: Purchases made of Cow at $13¼ to $14, Buffalo at $9¾ to $10 per picul. Horns scarce—$9⅛ to $9¾ paid for what was offered.

COLOMBO.—The weather had been, on the whole, favourable, and three vessels had cleared for London with general cargoes, including 28,154 cwts. of Plantation Coffee, and 2,321 cwts. of Native, bringing up the total exports since October 1 to 95,586 cwts., as compared with 162,626 cwts. at the same period last year. There was still a good deal of Parchment Coffee on offer; but the business done had not been large, and prices had a downward tendency, as holders found it difficult to obtain buyers at previous quotations. Low quality was quoted 9s. 6d. to 10s. 6d., and fine mountain grown 11s. 6d. to 12s. 6d., the latter prices having been paid in one instance for a parcel of exceptionally good parchment. The dealers in Native did not seem inclined to lower their pretensions, and merchants generally showed but little disposition to operate at present prices. There had been one or two contracts made for orders at 38s. 6d. to 40s. for "picked and dried," and business had been done in Kandy at about equivalent rates for unpicked. Cocoanut Oil: There was a steady demand, and as supplies were moderate the value remained unchanged. Cotton: There had been several small parcels on offer in Tuticorin, which had found purchasers at Rs. 152 to Rs. 153. The quantity obtainable was very limited, and the quality of that coming forward is said to be inferior.

NEW YORK MARKETS.

TEA.

The following is from Messrs. Boddé's Circular, dated the 17th Dec.:—Since the 3rd inst. a fair business has been done in Green Tea, the demand falling chiefly on the new crop goods just to hand via Pacific Mail Steamship Company's route. These have realised extreme prices, as compared with old; the absence of fine grades in the remaining stock of the latter making the new especially desirable at the moment to the trade. In other descriptions transactions are scarcely worth reporting. Sales from first hands during the past fortnight include 8 700 half-chests Green, 650 half-chests Japan, and 800 half-chests Oolong. We revise quotations for this mail mainly to show prices realised for the New Greens, and to indicate the tendency of the market for common grades of old. For Oolongs and Japans the market for old remains unchanged, and the arrivals of new are too small as yet to establish quotable values.

Digitized by Google

The following are the current quotations:—Greens (Moyune, Twankai, and Fychow), old crop, Gunpowder, 70c. to 100c. . Imperial. 57c. to 80c.; Young Hyson 50c. to 85c.; Hyson, 55c. to 80c.; Hyson Skin, 45c to 50c. New crop: Gunpowder, 100c. to 125c.; Imperial, 70c. to 110c.; Young Hyson, 54c. to 116c.; Hyson, 62c. to 100c; Hyson Skin, 50c. to 55c.; Oolongs, old crop; Foochow, common to good cargo, 46c. to 53c.; superior to fine, 56c. to 70c.; finest, 75c. to 100c; Amoy, common to good cargo, 45c. to 52c.; superior to fine, 54c. to 63c.; finest, 60c. to 75c.; Souchong and Congou, old crop common to good cargo, 46c. to 53c.; superior to fine. 55c. to 62c.; finest, 65c. to 85c.; Japans, old crop, common. 50c. to 52c.; medium to good, 55c. to 58c.; fine and finest, 60c. to 65c.; choice, 70c. to 75c.

The total receipts of Tea from China and Japan in the United States from Jan. 1 to Dec. 15, 1869, were as follows:—Greens, 19,585,792 lbs.; Japans, 9,993,098 lbs.; Souchongs, 1,846,002 lbs.; Oolongs, 10,019,681 lbs.; other sorts, 263,748 lbs.; total, 41,708,321 lbs. The stock on Jan. 1 was 9,577,014 lbs., which, added to the above total, gives a result of 51 285,335 lbs. Subtracting from this total the exports from Jan. 1 to Dec. 15, 4,998,200 lbs., and the withdrawals for home consumption during that period, 37,242,361 lbs., there remains a total of 9,044,774 lbs., representing the stock on the last named date. The receipts from Dec. 1 to Dec. 15 amounted to 443,500 lbs.; the withdrawals for home consumption to 1,817,688 lbs., and the exports to 26,353 lbs.

COFFEE.—The tone of the market is still without alteration; there is a fair enquiry for Brazil, while all descriptions of East India continue out of demand; sales of the last named are reported to the extent of 10,125 bags Java on private terms. The current quotations—which must be regarded as nominal—are, Java (mats), 22c. to 22½c.; do. (Government bags), 21½c. to 22c.; Manila, 16c. to 18c.; Singapore, 19c. to 20c.; Native Ceylon, 17½c. to 19½c. gold (duty paid). The stock of Manila on the 1st Dec. was estimated at 2,627 bags, against 4,867 bags on Nov. 1, 1868; of Java (Government) at 560 bags, against 1,336 bags; of Java (mats) 14,245 mats, against 13,000 bags; of Ceylon nil, against 8,500 bags; of Singapore nil, against 3,190 mats.

CORDAGE.—The market for Manila continues dull, and only small sales have been effected at former prices.

CAMPHOR.—China is quoted 18c. gold (in bond).

GAMBIER.—The current quotation is 4c. gold; stock, 7,500 bales.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is quoted $2.6 to $2.10; Cassia, $1.25 gold (in bond).

HEMP.—Holders of Manila are firm at the rates previously current, viz., 14¼c. to 14½c. gold; but there is little or no disposition to buy. The only sale reported is of 2.000 bales. per Sonora, on what terms is not stated, but it is believed at 14½c. gold (60 days). The stock of Manila on the 1st Dec. was estimated at 15,034 bales, against 13,508 bales at the corresponding date of 1868, and 16,560 bales in 1867.

INDIGO.—Business in Manila is very quiet, and prices have slightly given way; 36 cases have been sold at $1.35 to $1.40 currency, showing a decline of about 5c. Stock estimated at 1,500 chests.

PRESERVED GINGER.—China is quoted $10.50 to $11 currency (duty paid).

RHUBARB.—The quotation for China is $1.50 to $2 gold (duty paid).

RICE.—The market for all kinds is extremely dull; the only sale has been of 520 bags Rangoon for export at $3.25 gold (in bond). The stock of East India on the 1st Dec. was 8,507 bags, against 7,590 bags at the corresponding date last year, and 4,742 bags in 1867. We find the following remarks in Messrs. Talmage's Circular:—The agitation of the tariff by Congress inclines many to the belief that the duties on foreign Rice will be largely reduced, or entirely removed. It is urged that a large reduction of the tariff would bring Rice into such general consumption again, that the present domestic crop would prove insufficient, and necessitate the importation of foreign, bringing revenue to the Government where none is now realised. It is proposed to cut the tariff down to the same rates (½c. per lb.) as before the war. If this be done (which we doubt), prime Rangoon could be laid down and profitably sold at less than four cents per pound currency.

SAPANWOOD.—Quotation, $40 currency; stock, 200 tons.

SUGAR.—There is an almost entire absence of demand for all descriptions, and the business has been extremely limited; no transactions in East India to report. The current quotations rule as follows:—Java, Nos. 10 and 12, 10½c. to 11½c.; Manila, current clayed, and superior, 10c. to 10⅝c. per lb. gold. The stock of Java on the 1st Dec. was 310 baskets, against 310 baskets at the corresponding date last year; of Manila 186,538 bags, against 37,866 bags.

TIN.—The market is perfectly stagnant, and there has been an entire absence of business. The nominal quotations are—Straits, 33c.; Banca, 35c. to 35½c. per lb., gold.; the stock is estimated at 6,813 slabs Straits, and 1,500 slabs Banca.

SAN FRANCISCO MARKETS.

TEA.—Imports from Jan. 1st to Dec 16th: China, 678,681 lbs., 2,256 packages; Japan, 884,999 lbs., 6,137 packages. The market is slack for all descriptions. Importers now demand 70c. to 75c. for Japans, including large jars, in bulk. At auction, 60 chests Japan, in bulk, sold at 59½c.; 20 cases, ditto, small jars ditto. 81½c.

COFFEE.—Imports from Jan. 1st to Dec. 16th: Java, 1,010,532 lbs., 1,906 packages; Central America, 5,200 708 lbs., 1,800 packages; Hawaiian, 111,286 lbs., 920 sacks; Manila, 359,255 lbs., 2 593 packages; Rio, 591,869 lbs.; Peruvian, 1,655 lbs.; Ceylon, 3,650 sacks. The market is over-supplied, with but a limited inquiry. Sales trifling, and prices more or less nominal. Importers are, however, strong in their views; not inclined to press sales. Prices are more or less nominal. Quotations: Ceylon, 19c. to 20c.; Java O.G., 22c. to 23c.; Manila, 17½c. to 18c.

CHINA MATTING.—Imports from Jan. 1 to Dec. 16: 153 bales. 8,807 rolls. We have sales to record of 900 rolls at prices within range of our quotations, viz.—China, 4-4 cargo, $4.50 to $5; 5 4 cargo, $5.50 to $6; 6-4 cargo, $6 50 to $7; 4-4 contract, $8 to $12; 5-4 contract, $9 to $14; 6-4 contract, $11 to $16.

RICE.—Imports from Jan. 1st to Dec. 16th: China, 22,326 695 lbs., 29,059 packages; Siam, 3,637.783 lbs.; Batavia, 110.271 lbs., 660 packages. There is a steady but moderate demand for China, with sales in lots of 3,500 mats at 5¼c. to 5¾c. Public offerings are continued, but without sales of any magnitude. The Chinese merchants now largely control this branch of trade, keeping details to themselves

SUGAR.—Imports from Jan. 1st to Dec. 16th: Manila, 15 383,622 lbs., 35,715 packages. China, 1,633,400 lbs., 2,837 packages. Batavia, 1,659,457 lbs., 731 packages. Siam, 40,133 lbs., 5,428 packages. No sales of East India reported.

TIN.—Small sales of Banca are reported at 40c.

SHIPPING.

ARRIVALS.—Dec. 13, at San Francisco, from Yokohama, Miako; 17, at New York, from Manila, Minden; 20, from Yokohama, Doon; 22, from Padang, Marie; 26, from Hong Kong, Gamecock; 30, at San Francisco, from Yokohama, Malacca.

DEPARTURES.—Dec. 1, from San Francisco, for Yokohama and Hong Kong, Japan (s.); 2, for Manila, Voyager; 12, for Hong Kong, Panther.

LOADING.—At New York, for Hong Kong, Endeavour; for Batavia, W. A. Farnsworth; at San Francisco, for Hong Kong, Charger.

EXPORT OF TEA AND SILK, SEASON 1869-70.

TO GREAT BRITAIN.

Date.	From Yokohama & Nagasaki.	From Shanghai and Hankow	From Foochow.	From Amoy.	From Canton, Macao, &c.	Total lbs.	SILK Total Bales & Cses
From June 1 to Oct. 31, 1869	...	57447730	37438984	1349918	10867018	107103650	3 877
Corresponding period last season.....	605753	58863294	47184771	...	10523967	117177785	47491

Shipments Since:

Nov.	3 per Polar Star	From Foochow	...	105,200
—	4 ... Taunton	... Shanghai	...	954,809
—	4 ... Crown	... Yokohama	...	74,573
—	5 ... China (ml. str.)	... Shanghai, &c.	...	—	906
—	5 ... England's Glory	... Foochow	...	1,094,200
—	8 ... Albert Victor	... Do.	...	1,189,760
—	9 ... Tigre (French ml. str.)	... Shanghai, &c.	...	—	726
—	11 ... Carmarthenshire	... Foochow	...	1,062,500
—	13 ... Pakwan	... Canton	...	676,335
—	15 ... Ceylon	... Foochow	...	760,000
—	16 ... Rangoon (ml. str.)	... Shanghai, &c.	...	—	766
—	20 ... John Lidgett	... Do.	...	1,043,904
—	20 ... Annesley	... Do.	...	1,171 178
—	20 ... Fluellin	... Do.	...	673,626
—	30 ... Orissa (ml. str.)	... Do., &c.	...	—	1,702

TO UNITED STATES.

		Pcls.
From June 1 to Oct. 31, 1869	14244445	576
Corresponding period last season.....	11110487	746

Shipments Since;

Nov.	4 per Phaeton	From Yokohama	...	377,083
—	4 ... Craigie Lea	... Amoy,	...	662 980
—	9 ... Janet Ferguson	... Yokohama	...	665 324
—	16 ... Dilpussund	... Shanghai	...	778,442
—	20 ... Raleigh	... Amoy	...	623,641

TO THE CONTINENT.

		Bales.
From June 1 to Oct. 31, 1869	739840	—
Corresponding period last season.....	2820610	—

Shipments Since;

Nov.	4 per River Eden	From Hong Kong	...	118,850
—	16 ... Panuco	... Foochow	...	379.600
—	24 ... Kali Maas	... Do.	...	345,300

TO AUSTRALIA.

From June 1 to Oct. 31, 1869	... 10,121,013 lbs.
Corresponding period last year	... 14,068,680

Shipments Since;

Nov.	14 per Rose	From Foochow	...	32,200
—	16 ... Lass of Gawler	... Do.	...	257,900

TO GREAT BRITAIN.

	Tea—lbs.	Silk bales China & Japan.
From 1843 to 1844.....	51,022,600	...
„ 1845 to 1846.....	57,334,200	18.604
„ 1850 to 1851.....	63 972.000	2.,143
„ 1853 to 1854.....	77,327.800	61.280
„ 1855 to 1856.....	92,240 300	50 481
„ 1857 to 1858.....	76,990.255	68,815
„ 1858 to 1859.....	65.789,792	83,134
„ 1859 to 1860.....	85,560,452	64.169
„ 1860 to 1861.....	90,066,160	76,644
„ 1861 to 1862.....	109,854,040	79,190
„ 1862 to 1863.....	121.273,580	72.887
„ 1863 to 1864.....	117,463,586	46,603
„ 1864 to 1865.....	121,236 870	32 313
„ 1865 to 1866	118,333 042	67,890
„ 1866 to 1867.....	118.4 3,290	50 052
„ 1867 to 1868.....	116 890,430	57,449
„ 1868 to 1869.....	142,789,804	70,917

Digitized by Google

EXCHANGES, &c.

[For dates, see first page.]

ON LONDON.

At	Bank Bills.	Credits.	Documentary.
Yokohama, 6 m. s. ...	4s. 5½d.	4s. 6¼d.	4s. 6¼d.
Hiogo & Osaka ,, ...	—	—	—
Shanghai ,, ,, ...	5s. 11¾d.	5s 11¾d.	5s. 11¾d.
Canton ,, ,,	4s. 5¾d.	4s. 6¼d.	4s. 6¼d.
Hong Kong ,, ,,
Macao ,, ,,
Singapore ,, ,, ...	4s. 6¼d.	4s. 6¾d.	4s. 7d.
Manila ,, ,, ...	4s. 5d.	4s. 5¼d.	4s. 5¼d.
Colombo ,, ,, ...	½ to ¾ dis.	—	2 to 2½ dis.

MISCELLANEOUS.

—	At Shanghai.	At Hong Kong.
Bills on India	300	225½
,, Hong Kong	25 to 25½ dis.	—
Bar silver	111.5.0	8 prem.
Mexican dollars	74.4.0	½ prem.

Bons, at Yokohama, 338 to 348 per 100 dols.

SHARES AT HONG KONG.

Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank, New, 14 to 14½; Old, 23 to 24 per cent. premium.
Hong Kong Gas Company, 45 dols. per share.
Hong Kong and Whampoa Dock, 5 per cent. discount.
Union Dock Company, 50 per cent. discount.
China Traders' Insurance, 1,600 to 1,800 dols. premium.
Hotel shares, 50 to 60 per cent. discount.
Hong Kong and Macao Steamboat Company, 22 to 23 per cent. premium.

LATEST TELEGRAMS.

—o—

CHINA.

(PRIVATE TELEGRAM, RECEIVED DEC. 30.)

SHANGHAI, DEC. 7.—Tea: Black, fair business. Green, large business; prices unchanged. Export from north equal to last; from south deficient. Total for season estimated 135,000,000lbs Exchange, 5s. 11¼d.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS, RECEIVED VIA GALLE JAN. 3.)

HONG KONG, DEC. 14.—Sir Rutherford Alcock has been very insolently received by the Governor of Nanking. An apology was demanded and tardily made.

COMMERCIAL.

SHANGHAI, DEC. 7.—Grey Shirtings, 6½ catties, 8¼ lb., $2.20. Cotton: Shanghai, $19. Silk rather weaker; settlements since the departure of last mail 1,300 bales. Export to date (China and Japan), from commencement of season, 38,250 bales. Exchange on London, Bank bills, six months, 5s. 11¾d. Freights: Tea, 40s.

HONG KONG, DEC. 13.—Grey Shirtings, 6½ catties, 8¼ lb., $2.75. Water-twist, 16-24, $1.45. Cotton, Bengal, fair medium, $18½. Tea quiet. Total export (China and Japan), 119,000,000 lbs. Exchange on London, Bank bills, six months, 4s. 5d.

JAVA.

(RECEIVED AT ROTTERDAM, JAN. 3.)

BATAVIA, DEC. 14.—50,000 piculs Java Coffee were sold at f.32.25; and 100,000 piculs Java sugar at f.15.50. Rice: 1st qual., f.165 to f.185; 2nd qual., f.130 to f.145. Gum Damar, f.48.25. Freight to Holland, f. 45 to f.50. Exchange on Holland, f.104 to f.104.75.

ARRIVALS.—Anna Maria Wilhelmina, Rotterdam, Zaanstroom.

DEPARTURES.—Alblasserdam, Copernicus.

Shipping Intelligence.

—o—

ARRIVALS.

At YOKOHAMA.—From London, Nov. 13, Crest of the Wave; 18. Ta Lee; from Cardiff, 14, San Roman.

At SHANGHAI.—From London, Nov. 10, Oberon (str.); from Cardiff, 21, John Peacock; from Marseilles, Amitie; previous to Dec. 7, from London, Laurel, Sarah Nicholson; from Liverpool, City of Agra (reported by telegram).

At HONG KONG and CANTON.—From Cardiff, Nov. 16, Serafin; from Liverpool, 19, Florence Nightingale; from New York, 28, Kjobenhaven.

At MANILA.—From Cardiff, Nov. 16, Gloria; from Newcastle, Cloughs; from Hamburgh, Lola.

At SINGAPORE.—From Liverpool, Nov. 25, Huddersfield; from Swansea, 23, Lennatar; from Cardiff, Germania; 24, Polly Lewis; 29, Cyclone, Staffa, ; from Hamburg, 30, Alma, Elizabeth; from Shields, British Crown (reported by telegram).

At PENANG.—None.

At BATAVIA.—From Glasgow, Nov. 26, County of Elgin; from Rotterdam; 18, Gravenhage; from Amsterdam, 20, Anna Digna; 26, Gebr van der Beck.

At COLOMBO.—None.

At GALLE.—From Shields, Dec. 8, Peru; from Marseilles, Splendide.

DEPARTURES.

From YOKOHAMA.—For New York, Janet Ferguson.

From SHANGHAI.—For London, Nov. 20, Annesley; 22, Fluellin; for New York, Dilpussund.

From FOOCHOW.—For London, Nov. 11, Carmarthenshire (put into Singapore); 15, Ceylon; for Cowes, for orders; 16, Panuco; for Falmouth, Kali Maas.

From HONG KONG and CANTON.—For London, Nov. 14, Pakwan; [illegible]e; for Channel, 23, Daylight.

From MANILA.—For London, Nov. 15, Hindostan; for New York, 17 Franklin, do. via Ilo Ilo. Oliva Davis.

From SINGAPORE.—For London, Dec. 1, River Clyde *; Chusan; Roxburgh Castle; for Boston, via Penang; Rocket.

From BATAVIA.—For Channel, Nov. 30, Heimath; for Holland, 16, Koning Willem II.; 18 Maria; 19, Professor v. d. B Mesch; 20, Minister Fran. v d. Putte, Kennilworth, Burg Hoffman, Bali; 21, Hilja; 22, Weljekset; 24, Wilhelmina Clara, Europa; 25, Kinderdyk.

From COLOMBO.—For London, Belvidera, Elizaabeth Graham, Albert Victor, Rockwood, Palestine.

From GALLE.—For London, Dec. 8, Percy Douglas.

VESSELS LOADING.

At YOKOHAMA.—For New York, Janet Ferguson, Grenadier, Herbert Graham. Southern Belle; for Boston, Rifleman.

At SHANGHAI.—For London, Barbadian, Dundonald, Fontenaye, Arracan. Nyassa, Corea, Araby Maid; for New York, Elizabeth Dougal, Etha Rickmers, Horatio, Elizabeth Nicholson, N. B. Palmer (full), Tynedale (full).

At FOOCHOW.—For London, Beemah, Tyburnia, Earl Dalhousie, Balkyrian, Glamorganshire; for New York, Resolute, Springfield; for Boston, Parmenio, W. E. Gladstone.

At AMOY.—For New York, Golconda.

At HONG KONG and CANTON.—For London, Petchelee, James Shepherd; for New York, Oliver Cromwell.

At MANILA.—For New York, Western Chief, Tabor; for Boston, Bunker Hill; for Cadiz, Cervantes.

At SINGAPORE.—For London, Kate Carnie, Maria Rickmers; for Liverpool. Huddersfield, Panic; for Glasgow, Naworth; for Hamburg, Europe, Johanna Auguste; for Boston, Polly Lewis, Siam.

At PENANG.—For London, John Paul, Pelham; for Boston, Rocket.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS.

At SHANGHAI.—To London the rate is £2 per ton; to New York, £2 10s.

At FOOCHOW.—To London, £2; to New York, £2 10s.; to Boston, £2 15s.

At HONG KONG and CANTON.—To London, £2; to New York, £1 12s. 6d. to £1 15s.

At MANILA.—There is no alteration.

At SINGAPORE.—Tonnage is plentiful, and freights have a downward tendency - rates are £2 7s. 6d. to £2 12s. 6d.

At BATAVIA.—To Holland, f.35 to f.37.10, equal to £1 12s. to £1 15s.

At COLOMBO.—To London, coffee in casks, 60s.

At GALLE.—To London, oil, 60s., dead weight, 45t.

CASUALTIES.

The steamer Peiho was lost on her passage from Shanghai to Yokohama.

The Heather Bell, Athena, and La Serana, Hong Kong to Yokohama, encountered heavy weather and suffered slight damage, the cargo shifting, &c.

A typhoon raged on the China coast between the 13th and 15th, and several vessels suffered in spars, &c., including the Benvenue, West Indian, &c. The Star of the East, lost on the coast of Korea, about the same place as the Hamilla Mitchell. The crew all reached Passiette Bay.

The Florence Nightingale, from London to Hong Kong, 128 days out, had severe gale on 13 Nov. Swept decks, boats, &c.

The steamer Oberon, from London to Shanghai, had severe gales, lost spars, &c.; 100 days out.

The Benefactress (Amer.), for Yokohama, put back to Hong Kong with damage to rigging, &c.

The Dilbhur, Zebu to London, put into Batavia leaky, and has been towed to Singapore for repairs. (Reported by telegram.)

At BATAVIA.—For Channel, Luctor and Emergo, Eliza Thornton, G. K. G. v. Hogendorp, Cornelia Humboldt, Heimath, Scharnhorst; for Rotterdam, Jannetje Ada, Ary Scheffer, Roberius Hendrikus, Dageraad, Doelwyk, Landbour, Pres van Ryckevorsel; for Amsterdam, Nederland and Oranje, Albion, Batavia, Imatra, Vertrouwen, Vier Gebroeders; for Holland, Golden City, Mystic Belle, Courser, Hellevoetsluis, Australia; for Bordeaux, Louisa; for America, Aberdeen.

At COLOMBO.—Ocean Beauty, Lincelles, Lady Melville, Mirella, Thomas Bell, Glenrosa, Peter Denny, Jane Rowland, Fleetwing.

At GALLE.—For London, Josephine, Cheviot, Peru.

VESSELS PASSED STRAITS OF SUNDA.

Date.	Ship.	From	To.
Nov. 13	Emma	... Bourbon	... Saigon
,, —	Albert Jurss	... Formosa	... Gibraltar
,, —	Sebastian	... Bangkok	... Falmouth
,, —	Competitor	... Ilo Ilo	... New York
,, —	Lizzie Iredale	... Shanghai	... London
,, 15	Diane	... Bordeaux	... Bangkok
,, —	Jeanie	... Foochow	... Boston
,, —	Affghan	... Singapore	... Liverpool
,, 16	J. S. Stone	... Shanghai	... New York
,, 17	Drusus	... Foochow	... England
,, 18	Gemsbok	... Singapore	... New York
,, —	Annie Fleming	... Samarang	... London
,, —	Elizabeth	... Batavia	... Amsterdam
,, —	Anna Digna	... Amsterdam	... Batavia
,, —	's Gravenhage	... Rotterdam	... Batavia
,, 19	Taffarette	... Hong Kong	... Havre
,, 21	Polar Star	... Foochow	... London
,, —	M. Fr. v. d. Putte	... Batavia	... Rotterdam
,, 22	Bali	... Batavia	... Rotterdam
,, 23	B. Hoffman	... Batavia	... Rotterdam

*After repairing damages sustained from collision with the Joseph Sprot.

Digitized by Google

SHIPPING POSTSCRIPT.

—o—

ARRIVALS NOT IN THE TABLES.—Jan. 6, at Brouershaven, from Batavia, Maasluis; —, at Belle Isle, from Java, Asie Mineure; 3, at Cadiz, from Manila, Conchita; 9, at London, from Penang, Aibion; in the Downs, from Manila Carin; from Singapore, Flora; 10, at London, from Colombo, Skimmer of the Waves.

DEPARTURES.—Jan. 8, from London, for Shanghai, Wild Deer; from Rotterdam, for Batavia, Utrecht, s.s.

SPOKEN.—Aquilina, Sunderland to Galle, Dec. 7, on the line, 28 W.; Royal Sovereign, Batavia to Rotterdam, Oct. 17, 34 S., 27 E.; Helena, Batavia to Rotterdam, Oct. 31, 35 S, 23 E.; English ship, 2nd. pdt. 0456. Plymouth to Galle, Nov. 14, 3 N., 25 W.; Lotus (s.). Plymouth to Bangkok, Nov. 14, 3 N., 25 W.; Banda, Tarragona to Singapore, Nov. 14, 15 S., 27 W.; Gladiator, London to Batavia, Nov. 15, 14 S., 28 W.; Star of the South, Colombo to London, Dec. 13, 15 N., 29 W.; Derwent, London to Shanghai, Nov. 27, 17 S., 31 W.; Titania, London to Shanghai.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, AND DEATHS.

—o—

BIRTHS.

ALLEN—On the 9th Nov., the wife of the Rev. Young J. Allen, of a son.

BOURNE—On the 15th Nov., at Yokohama, the wife of William Bourne, Esq., of a son.

DUNCAN—On the 15th Nov., at Aberdeen Docks, Hong Kong, the wife of Mr. Robert Duncan, of a son

EVANS—On the 13th Nov., at Hankow, the wife of J. H. Evans, Esq., of a son.

FOSTER—On the — Nov., at Hong Kong, the wife of W. H. Foster, Jun., Esq., of a son.

PRICE—On the 14th Nov., at Foochow, the wife of W. G. Price, of a son.

MARRIAGES.

CHURTON—HART.—On the 4th Nov., at Trinity Church, Shanghai, Charles Stanley Churton, son of Edward George Churton, Esq., of 51, Ventnor-villas, Brighton, to Emilie, daughter of the late Charles Hart, Esq., of Liverpool.

D'OLIVEIRO—COULSON.—On the 27th Nov., at Singapore, by the Rev. L. A. Dagnin, Mr. N. N. D'Oliveiro to Mrs. T. Coulson, widow of the late Mr. T. Coulson.

KORTHALS—ADAMS.—On the 16th Nov., at Shanghai, before T. Kroes, Esq., Nether lands Vice Consul, and subsequently at St. Saviour's Church, by the Rev. Mr. R. Nelson, Willem Conrad Korthals, of the Netherlands Trading Society, to Emily R., daughter of Isaac Adams, Esq., of Auburn, State of New York, U.S.A.

LEFFLER—HAMMARBERG.—On the 14th Dec., at Gothenburg, Sweden, at the residence of the bride's father, by the Very Rev. the Dean of Gothenburg Dr. Wieselgren, James Bernard, second and only surviving son of the late Johannes Leffler, formerly of Singapore, to Mary Charlotte Elizabeth, only daughter of P. Hammarberg, Esq., of Gothenburg. No cards.

MACPHERSON—NAPIER.—On the 27th Nov., at Singapore, by the Rev. J. A. Beckles, Ronald Macpherson, Colonel R.A., and Lieutenant-General Straits Settlements, to Minnie, daughter of William Napier, Esq., of Spring Grove, Middlesex, and granddaughter of the late Professor Napier of Edinburgh.

MOORE—GREIG.—On the 5th Jan. at Durrington, Wilts, by the Rev. Richard Parson, Alice Mary, second daughter of G. P. Moore, of Durrington House, Esq., to Magens William Greig, of Foochow, China, Esq., third son of J. R. Greig, of Manor House Durrington, Esq.

OWEN—PAYNE.—On the 24th Nov., at Penang, by the Rev. Julian Moreton Colonial Chaplain, Charles Owen, of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-law, Senior Magistrate of the Straits Settlements, to Amelia Maria, eldest daughter of the Rev. Richard Payne Vicar of Downton, Wilts.

SHAW—SCOTT.—On the 1st. Dec., at Penang, by the Rev. Julian Moreton, Frank Shaw, Esq. Golden Grove, Province Wellesley, to Patricia Elizabeth, daughter of George Scott, Esq., of Ayer Rajah.

DEATHS.

CHRISTIAN—On the 30th Nov., at Singapore, John Christian, native doctor.

COMPTON—On the 31st Dec., at his residence, Holly Lodge, Walton-on-Thames, Charles Spencer Compton, late of China, aged 70. Friends will please accept this intimation.

DALY—On the 3rd Jan., Robert Daly, Esq., of Sandwell-villa, New Wandsworth, and late of Shanghai, China, after a long and painful illness, aged 30

HOLT—On Sunday, the 26th Dec., at Holly-road, Fairfield, Liverpool, Catherine, the wife of Alfred Holt, Esq., aged 27

KEPPEL—On the 5th Jan., at 48 Westbourne-terrace, Elizabeth Frances Lily Keppel, aged three years and eight months, youngest and much loved child of Commander Leicester C. Keppel, R.N., H.M.S. Grasshopper, China.

LANE—On the 17th Nov., at Yokohama, Mary, wife of George Lane, of remittent fever, aged 53.

MACPHERSON—On the 6th December, at Barganny House, Singapore, the Hon. Ronald Macpherson, Lieut.-Col. R.A., and Lieut.-Governor Straits Settlements, aged 52.

MCCARTY—On the 18th Nov., at Shanghai, Johanna McCarty, late of San Francisco, aged 29.

MILSOM—On the 19th Dec., at Lyons, E. Milsom, Esq., in his 58th year, after a short illness of five days.

POOK—On the 22nd Dec., at Leinster-street, Dublin, in her 87th year, Maria M. Pook, relict of Commander Henry Pook, R.N.

PRICE—On the 13th Nov., at Ningpo, Helen Jessie, the wife of J. F. Price, Esq., aged 27.

STEWART—On the 20th Dec., at his residence, 3, Delamere-terrace, London, W., Mr. James Calder Stewart, for many years Secretary to the Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China.

THE U. S. MISSION TO CHINA.

Mr. Ross Browne, the late United States Minister to China, recently delivered a lecture in San Francisco on "The Chinese Puzzle and the Tartar Court." The lecturer, after satirising the Burlingame embassy, and describing his own experiences in China, wound up as follows:—"The wall of exclusiveness which encloses China will never be voluntarily torn down, and the interests of commerce, of civilisation, and of Christianity require its removal by force. Our Government should assume a position—an aggressive position—and compel the Chinese Government to place itself in harmony with the general interests of the world." It is said that F. F. Low, ex-governor of California, who was, without solicitation on his part, nominated by President Grant as the new Minister for China, will not accept the appointment unless it is raised to the rank of a first-class mission."

THE Admiralty appointment has been published of Captain John A. P. Price to the Princess Charlotte, to hoist his pendant of Commodore of the 2nd class as naval officer in charge of naval establishments at Hong Kong, v. Captain Oliver J. Jones, whose period of service has expired.

THE QUEEN has been pleased to appoint William Ramsay Scott, William Adamson, and Hoo ah Kay (Whampoa), Esqrs., to be Members of the Legislative Council of the Straits Settlements.

"THE TIMES" ON CHINA.

THE Times has thrown Mr. BURLINGAME overboard, and formally recanted the doctrines concerning China affairs that it has clung to, with wonderful tenacity, for several whole months. The BURLINGAME Mission is now acknowledged to be a sham, and Mr. BURLINGAME a dupe, if nothing worse; and it is further admitted that an adherence to the "impracticable rules" laid down by Lord CLARENDON would endanger an important trade, and are not likely to be rigidly adhered to. The following is the passage, which occurs in a long review of the events of the expiring year published in The Times of Jan. 1:—

In China it happens that all the European and American residents cultivate the most friendly understanding between themselves, under the influence, not of a common enmity, but of habitual liability to the same kind of vexations. The public opinion of the commercial republic which has organised itself at Shanghai is highly favourable to summary modes of redress for affronts or injuries offered by local functionaries. In the island of Formosa and at various points on the mainland, English Vice-Consuls and naval officers have taken towns or forts, or have exacted pecuniary compensation, in consequence of wrongs inflicted on their countrymen by Chinese officials or mobs. Lord Clarendon has issued stringent orders that all complaints shall, in accordance with the stipulations of the Treaty, be referred directly to the Ambassador at Peking for presentation to the Imperial Government. There is do doubt that it was proper to check the activity of zealous subordinates; but Sir Rutherford Alcock seems to share the distrust felt by the mercantile community of the efficacy of diplomatic remonstrances. It has now become evident that the mission of Mr. Burlingame to Washington and to the European Courts was despatched by the Chinese Government for the purpose of procuring a relaxation of its engagements to facilitate intercourse with foreigners. Mr. Burlingame himself was probably the dupe of instructions which were drawn up in two different versions for domestic and foreign use. Mr. Ross Browne, lately American Minister at Peking, having been recalled by his Government on account of his disapproval of Mr. Burlingame's Treaty, received an address of unanimous assent to his policy from all the English and American merchants. In his reply, Mr. Ross Browne insisted on the necessity of dealing on the spot with provincial aggression on the rights of foreign traders. It is improbable that eventually any rigid adherence to impracticable rules will be allowed to endanger trade with an empire which contains hundreds of millions of possible customers for Western manufactures.

THE STRAITS GOVERNMENT.

The following letter, signed "A Singapore Merchant," has appeared in the Daily News:—"Sir,—Some months since I attempted a general sketch of that system of government which England provides for her Crown colonies. Our Governor might sum it up in a parody of Louis 14th's saying, 'La Colonie, c'est moi.' Selfish expenditure of public money, arbitrary and mischievous enactments directed against the natives, fretting interference with the hitherto unfettered trade of the colony, are the main items of our history for the past two years; and to these must now be added the contempt into which the judicial office is being brought by its enforced subjection to the executive. While the Governor-General of India can dispense with accustomed ceremonies for the sake of relieving the exchequer, our Governor, ordered as he was some time since on a political mission to Java, must involve the colony in an expenditure of £1,000 when the journey might have been made free of charge, in H.M.'s ship Rinaldo, placed at his disposal for the purpose. To impress the Dutchmen, it was necessary that the colonial steamer should convey his Excellency, and that the Rinaldo should dance attendance. The commander of the latter vessel, however, declined the honour. Another piece of extravagance exists in the practice of sending the colonial steamer, when the Governor is at Penang, not for the purpose of carrying the Colonial-office bag, that goes by the Peninsular and Oriental steamer, but to collect any stray newspapers, &c., for his Excellency that may not have found their way into the bag. Each such mark of attention to him costs us £150. Government House advances towards completion, and it is evident that, spite of official reports, the money voted for it will not suffice, or nearly so. If more be not asked for it will be owing to the strength of public opinion here and the orders received from Downing-street. But the money will be obtained notwithstanding, not by that magic process the wave of a wand, but by the more prosaic legerdemain of accounts. You have had enough of this in London lately, and the exhibition of it here by Government is not calculated to set a desirable example to our young men beginning business life. The sleight of hand required is not so difficult as it seems. There was a farmer who used to boast that he made mutton pies for next to nothing; for was not the mutton, and the flour, and the butter the produce of his own farm? He paid only for the pepper and the salt. By the same reasoning a vote of £30,000 may be made to go a long way in building a palace. Bricks cost nothing; are they not made by our convicts? Timber felled and fashioned by convicts is equally inexpensive, and so are convict masons, bricklayers, and carpenters. If it be rumoured that 'blinds' are not charged against the house, but blush unseen under some vote for the convict department, that various articles of household furniture are judiciously distributed under other heading—let us be just—are not all these made of wood and paint manufactured in the gaol? So, too, are the doors and window sashes. Our financial management is ingenious enough, I doubt not, to cover the further cost of approaches, landscape gardening, and guard-houses, without the Colonial-office being one whit the wiser. But while an additional £1,000 a-year may be gained by such processes as these, the result is an utter loss of public confidence in the accounts. It will be said that there are responsible officers to check these, and a Legislative Council to discuss the votes. The former have shown us that subordinates are not disposed to accept the ruin promised them if they so much as meditate disobedience or dream of questioning the acts of their superior. As to the Council, any one acquainted with Crown colonies will not need to be told what it is worth. Packed with officials, it is useful for voting money away, for shielding the Governor from all responsibility in regard of measures he may devise and pass, and for proving the humiliating position of the unofficial members who may vote and protest as freely as it pleases them.

Digitized by Google

"The Auditor-General presents a glowing balance-sheet, and ignores a contingent liability of half a million dollars. We require therefore a searching audit of the public accounts, conducted not by the Attorney-General or the Governor's secretary, but by persons in whom the community have confidence. We are paying £60,000 per annum for the inefficient services of less than 900 troops. As a colony we do not tax the English people one farthing, and we claim therefore a voice in the appropriation of our public money, and a share in the control of our public affairs. The plan suggested for our obtaining this is already before the Colonial-office. Equalise the numbers of official and unofficial members in the Legislative Council and restore the dignity and prestige of the judges."

THE CHINESE IN CALIFORNIA.

An American paper says, "The extra deluge of Chinese immigrants to California, which was prophesied for this year, has not come about yet. About a thousand per month have been added to our population this season. The arrival of the monthly steamer from China makes a busy time for the Custom-house officials, as the Chinese immigrants, almost to a man, endeavour to smuggle in opium. On examining the contents of eight baskets which were entered at the Custom house recently as 'Chinese drugs and medicinal roots,' four of them were found to contain opium, valued at £1,400. The opium had been manufactured and coloured to look like the pretended roots."

The San Francisco Bulletin thus describes the arrival of a steamer:—"An exciting scene opened when the inspectors of customs commenced operations on the luggage, looking for contraband opium, silk, &c. Each man's property was gone through by them, and with a rapidity and recklessness which evidently bewildered the Chinamen. Much of the baggage was broken needlessly. Valuable camphor wood chests were kicked open even while the owners were reaching for the keys. Carpet bags were torn open and their contents scattered on the ground, frequently when there was no opium in them. Some of the people, also, were roughly handled, particularly when traces of opium were discovered. One man made his appearance, and was walking very coolly away; an officer thought his clothing was too heavy, and that he had on too many coats, he therefore stopped him, took out his knife and slashed into the garments, much to the astonishment of the celestials. He had five or six coats on, and in one of them was quilted several large packages of opium. The inspector cut away with his knife until the fellow was nearly disrobed, and he had obtained for his labour about four pounds of the drug. Others bored into shoes, and in many instances the bit brought from the centre of the soles the flavour of the hidden soporific. One man had a long, richly embroidered pillow under his arm. He carried no other bedding, and his evident solicitude for the safety of the pillow drew attention and excited suspicion. An inspector went for it; the Chinaman gave a grunt of despair as the relentless knife ripped open the pillow and revealed a large quantity of opium. It was also found in trunk panels and false bottoms of boxes, in bits of confectionery and cakes. Blocks of granite, apparently perfectly solid, attracted attention, and several of them, after being subjected to the closest scrutiny, were passed, and finally only five or six were left on the wharf. An officer thought he could observe a difference in the quality of the granite at each end of the blocks. He took a hammer and pounded on one end of the block, but without effect. He turned it over and struck the other end several heavy blows, when, to the surprise of every one present, the false granite crumbled and it was found that several pounds of opium were packed in a square hole or chamber in the centre. This had been closed with granite cement so closely resembling the main part that a casual observer would fail to discover the difference between them. The officers of the Society to Protect Chinese were at hand, and their presence and occasional rebukes operated as wholesale checks on the useless and illegal destruction of property. A remarkable spectacle was the landing of the women and girls, of whom there were two hundred and forty on board. It was like landing a drove of sheep or cows. The policemen and Chinese 'bosses' kept each squad together, and drove the entire crowd into a corner under the shed, and there they stood, watched as closely as ever was guarded a gang of slaves in the South. Near this multitude is an office in which a white woman is stationed, and whose business is to search the females for opium. It is seldom any opium is found in the possession of these poor wretches. Most of those who come are young girls, many of them not over twelve or thirteen years of age, and nine-tenths, at least, are for purposes of prostitution."

THE SUEZ CANAL.—We find the following in the Pall Mall Gazette:—"The Canal Company have already become involved in two suits. One was heard by the Frank Committee at Alexandria on the 10th. A French vessel allowed herself to be detained at Port Said for the fêtes, in consideration of the company towing her afterwards down the Sea of Suez, which the company failing to do, the vessel went ashore at Ras Gharib, and was wrecked. The other was the case of the steamer Brazilian, chartered by the Peninsular and Oriental Company with 3,000 tons of coals, for delivery at Bombay. Being too deep in the water, the company compromised the matter by purchasing 1,500 tons of the coal at Port Said, and taking the ship, so far emptied, through the Canal at reduced rates."

Foreign Intelligence.

GERMANY, &c.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

HAMBURG, Jan. 3.

A letter has been received here from Captain A. J. Möller, of the Hamburg ship Lorenz Meyer, to his owners, stating that on the night of Sept. 11 last, whilst on his voyage from Hakodadi to Nagasaki, it being very dark at the time, the ship ran against the mast of a sunken wreck protruding above the surface of the water, and could only disentangle itself with loss of anchor, jibboom, and some of the running rigging. He adds that he was obliged to return to Hakodadi for repairs, and has applied to the German Consul there to assist him in obtaining redress and full compensation from the Japanese Government for the damage sustained. The captain founds this claim on the fact that the wreck in question was within a mile's distance from the coast, and that though visible by day it was the bounden duty of the Japanese authorities to have placed a lighted lantern there at night as a warning to passing vessels. If the Japan Government repudiate the claim, I suppose the next thing we hear of will be that the German fleet has received orders to sail for Japan to demand satisfaction or this insult to the German flag.

A wonderful piece of intelligence is going the round of the German press unchallenged, that has rather startled geographers, to wit, that Livingstone discovered the sources of the Nile in 120 degrees south latitude. The astonishing thing is, not that he discovered the sources, for by his previous letters we were prepared to hear that, but that he discovered them "in 120 degrees of south latitude," whilst we innocent Fellows of the Royal Geographical Society have always believed that there were not more that ninety such degrees. On my making inquiries of editors of papers here, I find that one and all obtained it from Dr. Max Schlesinger, in London, who furnishes the German press with a lithographed sheet containing the news of the day in the German language. Let us charitably suppose that he made a mistake, and inadvertently put an 0 too much, turning 12 into 120; still that does not exonerate the editors and readers of the German papers from the charge of either gross ignorance or gross carelessness to let such a geographical blunder creep into their papers, and that not one of them should have discovered it in time or rectified it afterwards.

This letter would not be complete without some account of the doings of the Chinese Ambassadors. They are still residing at Berlin, but are making preparations to leave that capital in the beginning of this month for St. Petersburg.

HOLLAND.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ROTTERDAM, Jan. 3.

I have but little news to send; the Parliamentary business has been interrupted by the Christmas holidays, and the members of the Second Chamber debated the last chapters of the Budget in haste, in order to enable them to leave the Hague the day before Christmas. They will not meet again until the 15th February, when several Bills of great importance will be discussed, namely, those referring to Academical Instruction, the National Guard (Schuttery), the Abolition of Capital Punishment, and the Agrarian Law for India.

The Budget of the Minister of Finance was carried by 47 against 30 votes; the discussions thereupon were of small interest. The members were in such haste to separate that the Colonial Budget passed after a debate of one day only, by 47 ayes against 24 noes. This is certainly a large majority, and the voting list is of more importance because the Minister, Mr. de Waal, had declared in the course of the debate that he should consider the outvoting of this Budget as a vote of want of confidence. There was, of course, really no debate, more than what is called in Parliamentary language a "colonial" one. The great struggle between the Liberals and Conservatives is reserved for the time when the Agrarian Law is brought under discussion. The sections have already examined this Bill, and the report, which is just published, is like all reports; it says nothing, and contains only an accumulation of common-places. Although the debate upon the Colonial Budget was so short, Messrs. Hasselman, Nierstrasz, van Sype, Steyn, van Wassenaer, and Haffmanns found time to severely criticise the Minister's policy. The first asked what would become of our colonies in the future if Liberal principles were constantly applied and lamented that we should lose the yearly favourable balances. The second regretted that a man like Mr. van Rees was appointed member of the Council of India, which proved that the Minister cultivated antagonism between India and the mother country; he sketched the miserable condition of Java, and referred to a correspondence, which was addressed some months ago to the Pall Mall Gazette by an Englishman residing at Batavia, in order, he stated, to instigate the English Government to interfere with our authority in Java. This nonsensical argument, of course, made no impression. Mr. Haffmanns was of opinion that the Minister ought to resign after the vote on the amendment, carried by Mr. van Naamen-Blusse. The last-named thereupon declared that his motion had not the least inimical intention. The Minister, of course, replied to the several objections made against his policy, the voting list proves with what success.

Mr. van Kerkwyk has asked for information with regard to the interest which is due to us from the Government of Japan for our share in the sum of indemnification for the expedition to Simonoseki. This interest was not paid last year, and it seems now that it will not be paid before 1872. The Minister of Finance stated in reply that the other Powers—England, France, and America—had agreed to this delay, and that it was better to agree to the arrangement than to endeavour to force the Japanese Government.

Digitized by Google

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS, CORRESPONDENTS, &c.

No notice can be taken of anonymous correspondence. Whatever is intended for insertion must be accompanied by the name and address of the writer, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith.

A REGISTER is kept of the addresses of all persons connected with the FAR EAST, and reference can be made to the same by personal application at the Office or by letter.

Any Information required by Subscribers in reference to Commercial or general matters in CHINA, JAPAN, SINGAPORE, and other parts of the FAR EAST, will be supplied on application at the Office, where files may be seen of the Journals published in those Countries.

The "LONDON AND CHINA TELEGRAPH" is published on the arrival of the fortnightly English mail, and the monthly French mail. Subscription, 30s. per annum: with Export Supplement, £2 2s.

The "LONDON AND CHINA EXPRESS" is published on the day of departure of the mails, and contains a Summary of English, Continental, and American, News-Commercial and Shipping Reports, &c. Subscription, 54s. per annum; with Export Supplement, 66s.

JAMES WEST, PUBLISHER,
2, COWPER'S-COURT, CORNHILL, LONDON.

The London & China Telegraph.

LONDON: MONDAY, JAN. 10, 1870.

THE SUEZ CANAL VERSUS THE CAPE ROUTE.

HERR VON SCHERZER, who is attached to the Austrian Expedition to the Far East, has compiled a statement of the conditions he considers necessary to enable a direct line of steamers to be worked profitably between Trieste and China direct, via the Suez Canal; and the Economist devotes some space to an analysis of his calculations, which are shown to be not very encouraging as to the Canal. The writer fixes the standard rate of freight for the direct steamers at £5 per ton of forty cubic feet each way, and by sailing ship round the Cape at 30s. outward and £4 10s. homewards, per ton of fifty feet. In accordance with this scale, he shows that the cost of freight and insurance on each ton of tea would be only £1 4s 6d. more by the new than by the old route—an infinitesimal difference, which, he estimates, will be more than counterbalanced by the saving of three months' interest on the cost of the cargo. But, then (as the Economist justly says). the time saved will not be three months, and to this we may add another objection; Herr VON SCHERZER puts down the rate of insurance via the Canal at only half that charged round the Cape, which is quite a gratuitous assumption. A calculation of the relative charges on export cargo by the two routes gives a result still more decidedly in favour of the Cape, and the same remarks as to interest and insurance of course apply to the outward voyage. Although Dr. SCHERZER states that his proposals were received with "sympathy" by the German houses in Hong Kong, we doubt whether any substantial support could be gained for such a line. Austrian trade with the Far East is at present almost nothing, and merchants or shippers in Northern and Central Germany, having at hand such convenient ports as Hamburg and Rotterdam, with a large mercantile marine of their own to employ, will not be very likely to send their goods by a long and costly railway journey to Trieste merely for the sake of patronising an Austrian steam company. Herr VON SCHERZER'S project is not likely to be realised just yet.

In a letter to General SABINE, which was read at the Royal Society the other night, Mr. BATEMAN, C.E., declares the Suez Canal to be "a decided success," though much yet remains to be done with it. The reef at Serapeum, he says, limits the Canal at present to vessels of 16 feet draught of water; when these rocks are removed the available depth may be increased to 21 feet or 22 feet. This will still be far short of the promised depth of 26 feet. The organs of the Canal Company lay great stress to the large tonnage of some of the vessels that have passed through the Canal, some of the steamers that have traversed its entire length being over 2,000 tons. It is hardly necessary to observe that this has no real bearing on the question of the practical utility of the Canal, for these large ships carried no cargo, and in some cases had even to take out ballast. The opening of the Canal must doubtless have the credit of stimulating our Government to one good resolution, namely, to improve the channel and harbour of Aden, a work that we understand will be forthwith taken in hand. The Canal will largely increase the importance of Aden, both as a coaling port for steamers and a military station.

GALLE HARBOUR.

WE hear from Galle that the Commission which has been sitting to inquire into the various schemes that have been put forth for the improvement of Galle Harbour, and to determine the most feasible one, is now approaching the termination of its labours. We hope no hasty conclusion will be arrived at, for, without in any way disparaging the ability of the gentlemen who compose the Commission, we cannot help feeling some misgivings when we reflect on the extremely difficult and technical character of the question they are called on to decide. Anxious as we are to see this long-needed work carried out, we cannot express ourselves perfectly satisfied with the manner in which the preliminary steps have been taken. When an Act was passed towards the close of last session, authorising an advance of a quarter of a million sterling to be expended in the improvement of Galle Harbour, subject to certain conditions rather onerous to the colony, we naturally supposed—and so, probably, did the public generally—that the work had been duly planned, the estimates framed on reliable data, and, in fact, that the scheme had been in all respects matured, and was approved of—together with the conditions above alluded to—in the colony. This, it seems, was by no means the case. Sir HERCULES ROBINSON, in the first place, consulted certain English engineers on the subject; they examined and compared the various schemes that had been from time to time proposed, and then, without fixing on any particular one, delivered an opinion that a work of some sort might be completed for about £250,000. On this apparently insufficient ground the Act of Parliament was framed, and until it was passed not even a rumour reached the Ceylon public of what was going on! All this, too, has been done in the face of the well-known fact that "harbour works," as they are technically termed, are the most difficult and critical of all engineering works, and those of which previous estimates or calculations are the most deceptive. We have good reasons for believing that there is not one such work (of any magnitude) in existence that did not cost double the amount of the original estimate, and in the case of Galle Harbour there are special elements of uncertainty. We hear—and find some difficulty in believing—that there are somewhere about forty different schemes before the commission, and this alone, if true, shows what a wide diversity of opinion exists among projectors as to the nature of the work to be done. To evolve order out of this chaos must be a task of no small difficulty, and, however ably it may be accomplished, we doubt whether the colonists will easily reconcile themselves to the heavy burden which even the most favourable solution of the problem must throw on them. The object is one of such vast importance to British commercial interests in the Eastern Seas, that help ought to have been given, and with no niggard hand, from the Imperial Treasury. As it is, the whole cost, which is not unlikely to be half a million sterling, is most unfairly fastened upon Ceylon.

THE NEW CHINA TREATIES.

BESIDES the British, another European Government has lately concluded a treaty at Peking. The Austrian treaty with China is the first that has been made containing any restrictions as to the appointment of Consuls; but at last it seems that the Chinese Government has awakened to a sense of the evils attending a system which allows of from six to a dozen "trading Consuls" at every port, some of them without any raison d'être, except their own interests—as, for example, at Kiukiang, where a recent census of the American residents gave the curious result of "one Consul and family, one marshal, one citizen." The use to which some of these trading Consuls turn their privileges has long been notorious. In March last, when writing on this subject, we mentioned some exceedingly gross instances of such abuses and of their detrimental effect on the true interests of commerce—at the same time observing, that "An official in high position, who trades "on that position, must degrade himself in the eyes of the "native Government, and his influence with them for all good "ends is necessarily diminished, while foreign prestige suffers "as a whole." We are glad to see that at last the truth of this has, at least in one case, been recognised, and hope the example set by Austria will be followed by other nations, so that the hybrid race of "Merchant Consuls" may speedily become extinct.

Digitized by Google

SIR CHARLES DILKE ON BRITISH POLICY IN CHINA.

TELEGRAPHIC communication, though in the main a boon to journalists, is not without its drawbacks; one of them lies in the frequency with which an important piece of news falls flat owing to the edge having been taken off the reader's appetite by an anticipatory telegram. We are therefore fortunate in having a choice morsel to transmit to China by the next mail that cannot well have been so forestalled; we allude to Sir CHARLES DILKE's letter to The Times, which, amusing as it is, would hardly be considered worth telegraphing verbatim. Wise critics have been shaking their heads this last week over some unwonted aberrations in the columns of the Athenæum; now the mystery is solved—Sir CHARLES has been absorbed with a Chinese mare's nest—and, it is grievous to add, the produce thereof is addled! Sir CHARLES starts however, with an undeniable truth. "It is now more than a "year since I had an opportunity of addressing you upon "Chinese affairs." What a pity this admirable reticence has not been longer preserved. Sir CHARLES ought to know that though "speech is silvern, silence is golden"—especially as regards a subject you don't understand. It would certainly be unjust to blame a traveller for not possessing a perfect knowledge of every country he has visited, but we have a right to find fault with one who, on the strength of the slightest possible acquaintance with a nation, assumes that his own views regarding it are infallible, and coolly stigmatises the statements of those who differ with him as "wholly false." It is not very long since we had occasion to correct some extraordinary mistakes made by the same writer regarding Ceylon, and now we have once more to perform a similar ungracious office.

As regards Shanghai, there is a curious similarity between the ideas of the Duke of SOMERSET and those of Sir CHARLES DILKE. The latter evidently adopts the "sink of iniquity" view, for according to him the community at that port is always busy "concocting" (that is his word) some villanous scheme to imperil our amicable relations with the Chinese Government. "Great credit," says Sir CHARLES, with a fine irony, "must be accorded to the Shanghai community for their two last strokes." This naturally prepares the reader for a revelation of some dark Machiavellian intrigues, but on reading further it is disappointing to find that the first of these "strokes" is "the publication of a private letter of Mr. "HART, in which his own text and somebody else's comments "on it have been so ingeniously mixed up as to have deceived "one of your contemporaries." Now the truth is that Mr. HART's letter was first printed in San Francisco (in the Alta California of Sept. 19), and was copied into many American papers, from some of which the China papers have recently re-printed it. The assertion, therefore, that the Shanghai community have unfairly published a private letter is distinctly untrue. The comments, described by Sir CHARLES as "somebody else's," are by Mr. ROSS BROWNE, lately United States Minister at Peking; Mr. HART's letter and Mr. BROWNE's comments thereon were printed by some of the China papers in parallel columns (as is often done in such cases to facilitate reference), and this is what Sir CHARLES calls "ingeniously mixing up" with a view to deceive—another most unjust aspersion. Now for the second "stroke." The letter goes on to state that this publication of a private letter "will hardly, however, prove to be so successful a "piece of policy as the refusal of an audience to the "Duke of EDINBURGH." There is such an extraordinary confusion of ideas here that we cease to wonder at the little eccentricities in the Athenæum above adverted to. The sentence must mean (if it means anything) that the EMPEROR's refusal to receive the Duke of EDINBURGH at Peking was a piece of policy on the part of the Shanghai community! A little further on we read that "it is impos-"sible to escape the conclusion that a refusal was courted "when the request was made." By whom? The Shanghai community certainly did not request the EMPEROR to receive the DUKE; so far from this, there was a very strong feeling among all Englishmen in China against the DUKE's going to Peking at all. The regret that he should place himself in so false a position was universal, and was most openly expressed. And yet Sir CHARLES presumes to assert that "the audience was only asked for" (by the Shanghai community!) "in order that it might be refused." The utter ignorance here displayed of the whole course of recent events in China is ludicrous.

Of course Sir CHARLES thinks the Chinese Government quite right in refusing the DUKE an audience. "It could not have been granted," he tells us, "without violating one of the most holy traditions of the Empire." It seems a little strange that the bigoted conservatism of an overbearing Government should inspire so much reverence in the breast of an advanced Liberal like Sir CHARLES DILKE. But some Liberals have curious ideas. The prejudices of an Oriental despot are "holy traditions," but in England we have no holy traditions, or if we have they don't avail to stay the progress of radicalism—they are called relics of barbarism, and swept away without scruple. This theory would be a dangerous one if carried out consistently. Suppose for instance, we accredited an envoy to some not over-civilised country, where, among other "holy traditions," the natives cherish the custom of feeding on one another,—and suppose they eat our Minister. Would Sir CHARLES condone this also, and recognise cannibalism as an amiable weakness, deserving of all respect?

Then, to refute the prevalent idea that the English residents in China are "wholly inoffensive and injured people," Sir CHARLES professes to give "a few specimens of their recent utterances." The one that he lays most stress on is a passage in the speech made by Colonel KNOX GORE (a military officer, be it observed, not a China merchant) at the banquet given in Hong Kong to Admiral KEPPEL. The gallant colonel said that the Chinese were an inferior nation, and ought to be made to understand that fact. Sir CHARLES finds fault with this, so we must conclude that he regards the Chinese as his superiors—a touching example of humility that our readers will, we fear, find some difficulty in emulating. The Supreme Court and Consular Gazette he accuses of writing an "annexation leader," simply because an article in the issue of October 16 advocated an extension of the Foreign Customs system to the collection of the inland revenue. The Chinese Government having failed in every attempt to check the entire misappropriation of the Customs' revenue so long as it was in the hands of corrupt Mandarins, gladly availed themselves of the services of foreign inspectors, and the system thus inaugurated has worked for many years to their entire satisfaction. The collection and appropriation of the internal revenue is as full of abuses now as were the Customs in former days, and it is surely a sensible suggestion that the system that has redeemed the one from utter disorganisation should be applied to the other. But Sir CHARLES stigmatises the proposal to appoint two or three foreign commissioners for each province as an attempt at annexation! He evidently does not even know that in the foreign Inspectorate of Customs the distribution of the chief posts among various nationalities is carefully provided for, so as to avoid an undue preponderance of any one treaty power, and that an inspectorate of inland revenue would necessarily be on the same plan. Finally, Sir CHARLES broadly condemns all criticism adverse to the Chinese Government as unfair, and all statements that their policy is reactionary as untrue. We venture boldly to retort these accusations on Sir CHARLES; his criticisms on the utterances of the China press are unfair, because they are conceived in ignorance and prejudice, and his accusations against the China communities are simply untrue. Nowhere is the weakness of his arguments more plainly manifested than in the concluding paragraph of his letter, wherein it is said that in the revised treaty "the Chinese appear to have granted more than our Board "of Trade thought it advisable to ask, and the experience of "the year would seem to prove that there is no amount of "progress which may not be hoped for, provided, &c., &c." The italics are our own, and sufficiently indicate the vagueness of the writer's ideas. Simultaneously with Sir CHARLES DILKE's letter, was published a telegram stating that Sir R. ALCOCK had been insulted by the Governor of Nanking, a rather suggestive coincidence from which our readers will not fail to make appropriate deductions.

Since the above was written, leading articles on Sir CHARLES DILKE's letter have appeared in the Standard and Globe, in which very similar opinions are expressed. We reprint them in another column. Sir CHARLES has delivered an address to his constituents at Kensington on the Foreign Relations of Great Britain, in the course of which he averred that an adherence to our present China policy was the only way to prevent the annexation of China by Russia!

Digitized by Google

COLONIAL JUDGES.

THE Economist propounds a novel and startling theory on the subject of colonial government. In reviewing Mr. NAPIER'S recent pamphlet on the independence of the Judges in the Straits Settlements—which we noticed in a recent issue—the Economist says, "At first sight it would seem the most "expedient course to make the Colonial Governor the Chief "Judge, concentrating all authority in his hands, as his rule "must be despotic." It is hardly necessary to say that this sentence alone suffices to expose the writer's ignorance of the entire subject. To take the latter part of it first, the assumption that the rule of the Governor of a Crown Colony "must be despotic" is preposterous. It too often happens that the Legislative Council of a colony is so defectively constituted that it degenerates into a mere voting machine, of which the Governor can make whatever use he pleases, thus becoming in truth a petty despot. But this is not what it ought to be, or what it was intended to be. The very fact that a Legislative Council exists is in itself proof that the Legislative function was primarily intended to be exercised by the Council, and not by the Governor; how, therefore, can it be said that the Government of a Crown Colony must be despotic? That it is so, in certain cases, is too true; but in these cases the Legislative Body is packed with official members, who vote under the Governor's orders—a state of things we have often characterised as disgraceful. The Economist, however, goes further than this. Not satisfied with establishing the absolute rule of the Governor in Legislative matters, it would give him a monopoly of Judicial authority also. The bad system of making the Judge subservient to the Governor is to be cured by making the Governor himself Chief Judge! If natives who have claims against the Government already fear to bring them into Court because they look on the Judges as servants of the Governor, would they feel any more confidence if the Governor were himself the Judge? Again, in the case of Crown prosecutions, the Governor himself would be virtually prosecutor, judge, and jury. The Economist's brilliant idea of "Every Governor his own Chief-Justice" might be varied in many ways; for instance, something might be saved by making "every governor his own bishop," or—to carry out the despotic theory to the last extremity—"every governor his own hangman."

IN another column we insert a letter from "A Singapore Merchant," wherein the shortcomings of the Straits Government are ably dealt with, and we shall very shortly be enabled to publish the despatch from Governor ORD, to which we referred in a recent issue, together with the reply of the Straits Association thereto. We are informed that at a recent meeting of the Legislative Council (of which we have seen no printed report of the proceedings) the gunboat question again came up. The vote for this continues to appear on the Estimates, and Mr. ADAMSON (a new non-official member) proposed to strike it out, in which he was seconded by Mr. REID. On a division, the Chief Justice voted with the four non-official members, in favour of Mr. ADAMSON'S motion, and the remaining five official members against it. The Governor's casting vote decided the question—we need hardly say on which side.

IN another part of our paper will be found a summary of an excellent speech recently delivered at Edinburgh by the Rev. Dr. LEGGE, on the condition and capacities of English Missionaries in China. The opinions of so well-known and highly-respected a member of the missionary body cannot fail to be interesting to our readers

---

WE understand that the decision of Mr. Consul ROBERTSON at Yokohama, in the case of the Ocean Queen and New York—which, it will be remembered, was upset by Judge HORNBY—is now under the consideration of the Foreign-office and their legal advisers. Should Judge HORNBY be supported, we presume there will be an appeal to the Privy Council.

FROM Washington we hear that a Bill has been introduced into the House of Representatives, granting a subsidy to a line of American steamers to the East by way of the Suez Canal. It is not considered likely to pass, there being a strong feeling against the granting of more subsidies.

THE "SPINDRIFT."

IT is announced that a lengthened and careful examination held at Trinity-house into the loss of the Spindrift has resulted in the suspension of Mr. MARTIN, the pilot, for six months. At the expiration of that period a re-examination and production of testimonials to character will be required before the licence is renewed. His previous good character is alleged as the reason for this lenient treatment, but for all that we must endorse the verdict of The Times, that it is "a most inadequate sentence." A correspondence on the subject of the inquiry into the loss of the Spindrift has taken place between the Board of Trade and the Trinity-house. The opinion of the Board of Trade may be gathered from the tone of a letter addressed to Mr. PATTESON, the magistrate who investigated the case, by the SECRETARY of the BOARD of TRADE, from which we quote the following passage:—

> Whether he was guilty of any such breach of duty as to justify the suspension of his certificate, or as to entitle shippers or others to any civil remedy against his owner, are questions on which the Board of Trade have no jurisdiction, and on which they desire to express no opinion; but they are anxious to protest against the practical conclusion to which the report of the Court is likely to lead—viz., that a merchant captain, when he has on board a pilot whom the law obliges him to take, may neglect all ordinary precautions, may leave his ship in a state of disorder, and may, unless the pilot is notoriously drunk, refuse to pay attention to the most obvious signs and warnings of danger, confident that if he does but allow the pilot's orders to be implicitly obeyed, he and his crew will be exempt from all responsibility, and, as it would seem, from all blame.

The Shipping Gazette strongly approves of the opinion expressed on the part of the Board of Trade in the letter above quoted. It says:—

> It is with much pleasure that we find a principle for which we have at all times contended so distinctly defined and so resolutely upheld by the Board of Trade. We have never admitted that a shipmaster can be divested of his authority by the presence of a compulsory pilot on board his ship, and have always maintained that the master who believes that he can be, and acts on that belief, is totally unfit for command. The sooner the minds of shipmasters are disabused of this notion the better. But we fear that so long as the existing law of compulsory pilotage is maintained, will the opportunity be afforded for this mischievous and most dangerous misconception. A great deal of the case of the Spindrift is wrapped in mystery, but sufficient has transpired to show that if the master had trusted less implicitly to the pilot his ship would have been saved. The case and its results will teach shipmasters henceforth, it may be hoped, that, whether the pilot is on board or not, they are never relieved of responsibility as to the navigation of the ship, and that if a pilot brings a ship into danger, and the master does not interfere to prevent him, the master is guilty of an unjustifiable dereliction of duty. The master is commander of his ship in any and every event, and if he does not exercise his judgment, even when a pilot is forced on board his ship by law, he must take the consequences.

THE prospectus of the China Submarine Telegraph Company, issued in the early part of last month, held out the promise of an ultimate extension of the line from Hong Kong to Shanghai, but it was not expected that anything would be done towards this section for some time. We observe, however, with satisfaction, that immediate action is to be taken, an extraordinary meeting having been held on the 7th instant, at which the directors were authorised to take immediate steps for extending the line from Hong Kong to Shanghai. We are glad to observe too that the necessary steps are being taken for an extension of the British Indian system to Australia; this undertaking also deserves the sympathy of our readers, for it will place not only Europe, but the Straits Settlements and China, in direct communication with the Australian colonies, and must greatly tend to develop trade in that direction.

THE BURLINGAME Mission is about leaving Berlin for St. Petersburg. We understand that a convention has been concluded with the North German Government similar to that with the United States. It is said the Mission is assured of a cordial reception at St. Petersburg, but this is not so certain. A correspondent of the Vienna Wanderer states that the Russian Government intends to demand from the Chinese Embassy that its subjects shall have the right of trading in every part of the Celestial Empire, and that Russia shall be empowered to send consuls to every considerable town in China.

WE are informed by the Post-office authorities that the reduction in the rate of postage between this country and the United States will not affect correspondence for Japan and China by the Pacific route, which remains at one shilling the half ounce.

Digitized by Google

OUR "TELEGRAPHIC EXTRA."

(From the London and China Express.)

THIS adjunct to our paper has now been sufficiently long in existence to enable us to form a correct idea regarding the opinion in which it is held among the mercantile communities of the Far East. The advices from our agents and correspondents at the various ports unmistakably indicate that while our special commercial messages are highly valued, notwithstanding the delays and mutilations they have suffered owing to the inefficiency of the telegraph lines, the reproduction of Mr. REUTER'S general telegrams, as received at Galle, is looked on with indifference. In fact, it has become evident that the real value of the Extra to subscribers lies solely in our own special telegrams, and this will be still more the case when an improvement in the telegraphic system ensures punctuality and correctness. These considerations have induced us to decide on a modification of our original plan, whereby REUTER'S telegrams will in future be excluded, and the Extra will consist simply of a slip containing our special telegrams, together with those from Bombay and Calcutta, and any other items of news particularly interesting to subscribers, such as must often turn up at such a central point as Galle. Advices by last mail inform us that the telegraph wires have been working better, and we are glad to find our telegrams of Nov. 25 for the Extra arrived in time for the issue of Dec. 1.

MISSIONARIES IN CHINA.

At a meeting recently held in Edinburgh, on behalf of the English Presbyterian Missions in China, the Rev. Dr. LEGGE, in moving a resolution expressive of sympathy with the China missionaries, made an able speech, defending them from the attacks of the Duke of Somerset and others. We append a summary of Dr. Legge's speech, and also a letter commenting upon it, addressed by Mr. HUGH MATHESON to the Weekly Review:—

Dr. Legge's resolution was as follows:—"That this meeting deeply sympathises with the missionaries of this association in the troubles and difficulties to which they have been exposed during the past years, and the reproaches that have been unjustly uttered against them, and desires to express its confidence in the Christian wisdom and forbearance which have invariably characterised their procedure."

In supporting the resolution, Dr. Legge referred to the difficulties and trials connected with the life of a missionary, and the reward which they had when they saw their work prospering. In 1852, when he went for a fortnight on a visit to Amoy, there were only half-a-dozen converts in connection with all the missions; subsequently, when he visited it, it was like going to what one had seen before as a rugged heath and barren wilderness, and beholding it everywhere beginning to bud and blossom like the garden of the Lord. He then referred to the charges which had been brought against the missionaries. I confess (he said) that I was overwhelmed when the news came of the outrages at Yangchow, for which the missionaries were not at all responsible. Thereafter there set in a storm of abuse and aspersion against them, echoing from the column of one newspaper to another, and finally taken up and reverberated in one great explosion by the Duke of Somerset in the House of Lords. It was said that missionaries were not sufficiently educated for their work. Sir R. Alcock has again and again intimated in his communications to Lord Clarendon that it was vain to expect from such a feeble folk as they were the great results which were anticipated. I agree with our detractors in wishing that both in natural capacity and acquired attainments our missionaries in China were tenfold abler men than they are. More and more do I feel that our work demands the highest human culture and the highest natural capacity. But if we can wish that we were better than we are, I do not think we need be ashamed that we are what we are. You have no need, I can boldly say, to be ashamed of your missionaries in China; and, as belonging to another society, I can speak of them more freely than perhaps they would like to do themselves. I can speak of all of them, as knowing them all personally and intimately. When they are spoken of as only half-educated men, unfit for the work which the Christian Church has called them to pursue, I think it would be very difficult to pick out in the English Presbyterian Church, or in the Free Church of Scotland, ten men before whom your ten men now in the mission-field in China would have reason to hide their heads. (Applause.) Sure I am that missionaries as a body are not inferior to any other body of men in China. We are not inferior in capacity or attainments to the merchants there, or to the members of the consular service, diplomatic service, or any other service in the great fields of labour. (Applause.) When it pleased the Duke of Somerset to speak of missionaries in the House of Lords, he spoke of us as wanting to propagate Christianity by means of Her Majesty's gunboats, and that in effect wherever you found missionaries you found either rogues or enthusiasts. After a distance of months has intervened I feel that the remark of his lordship is not worth more than a smile. Sorry I am that any person in the House of Lords should have descended to it; sorry I am that when an occasion of making explanations was afforded to the Duke of Somerset he was unequal to it; and, without giving railing for railing, I would dismiss his remark with the observation that he has occasion for shame, and that he never will stand right with the world until he acknowledges that he is ashamed of having so expressed himself. (Loud applause.) The charge of a want of education and the aspersions of the Duke of Somerset might be allowed to pass without anything more being said upon them. They were just little flashes like those which now and then trouble the atmosphere, but leave it clearer than it was before. However, I am afraid that there may arise out of what has occurred at Yangchow and other places, and out of the want of proper resolution on the part of missionary societies, an action on the part of our Government in reference to our missionaries that would be most unhappy, and which I for one would most deeply regret. Sir Rutherford Alcock has again and again expressed himself to Lord Clarendon that the proselytising agency, as he terms it, which had been grafted upon the treaty of commerce, was both futile and embarrassing, and has added that the mandarins and the Chinese authorities, and the official classes have an implacable hostility to the missionaries, and that there is great danger from the missionary enterprise, as it has been growing into a more aggressive agency, and extending into the interior of the country, thereby leading to great embarrassments and interferences of our commercial and other interests connected with that great empire. Now it is to be greatly deplored if our Government sanctions the initiative of a retrograde action in its communications with China, or sanctions any departure from its previous stipulations. It is strange that the reproach should be constantly thrown out against us that we do not do as the Roman Catholic Missionaries, viz., go into the interior of the country and sacrifice ourselves as they do, and at the very moment that it is possible for us to do so there gets up this hue and cry; and Lord Clarendon says in the House of Lords that it is indispensable for missionaries to confine their operations to the treaty ports, and even there exercise the greatest caution and judgment. As to the statement that the official classes are implacably hostile to Christianity, last year the Governor General of one of the provinces, the most powerful man in China, whilst stating that the Chinese must put their foot down and sternly resist the formation of railways and all such things, said the missionaries had a right to teach and preach in the country, and that they should not be interfered with. (Applause.) So far as the people of China are concerned, I am bold to say that whatever of good feeling exists among them to foreigners is owing to the influence of the missionaries. There are none whom they know so well, and there are none of whom they have more reason to think well. I am sure of this, that the best thing for the preservation of the peace and of our good relations with China, and for the promotion of commercial and other interests there, would be an enlarged and extended increase of missionaries and missionary labours throughout the length and breadth of the empire of China. It is often cast us a reproach to us that we Protestant missionaries were for the most part married, and had a great many children. I think, however, that our wives and children are the best hostages which the Government or the country could have for our prudence and forbearance. (Loud applause.) I would advise Government to let missionaries and missionary matters alone; let things go on as they are going, and take their course under the providence of God. And I would advise missionary societies, instead of seeking to lay any restrictions on their missionaries, to bid them God-speed, and to express the confidence which this resolution expresses in the Christian wisdom and forbearance which have characterised their proceedings in China. (Loud applause.)

Dr. Duff seconded the resolution. He only wished that the Duke of Somerset had been present and heard what had been said in defence of the missionaries in China, in order that he might have had an opportunity of showing that he was capable of blushing. He then commented in severe terms on the general apathy which was shown towards the mission work; remarking that the great mass of the people gave only the leavings of their incomes to the cause of Christ.

The resolution was carried.

MR. MATHESON'S LETTER.

DEAR SIR,—I am anxious to draw the special attention of your readers to the very able speech delivered in Edinburgh a few days ago by the Rev. Dr. Legge, in vindication of the missionaries in China from the unjust and unwarrantable aspersions which were thrown upon them during last session of Parliament. The occasion was the annual meeting of the friends of our China mission in Scotland, at which I had the satisfaction of assisting, and it was peculiarly gratifying to me to listen to the very complete statement of Dr. Legge, upon a subject upon which he, of all men, is eminently entitled to speak. For a number of years past Dr. Legge has been engaged in translating one of the most important works, in a missionary point of view, that has ever been brought to light—the Chinese classics, containing the writings of Confucius and his disciples, writings upon which the whole life of China for upwards of a thousand years, civil, religious, and economical, has been based. Several volumes of this remarkable book have already been issued, and it is, I think, impossible to exaggerate the importance to be attached to them by all who have to deal with the Chinese, whether they be the Government officials of other nations, or the missionaries of the everlasting Gospel. The principles which govern every department of life in China to this day are enunciated in these ancient classics, and the student of them will wonder how, with such a marvellous and in many respects admirable system of morality, we should yet find among the Chinese so little of the practice of those sublime virtues which every child is theoretically taught to reverence from his earliest years. We need only, however, to remember that no system of virtue ever devised can convert a human soul by nature "dead in trespasses and sins," all being alike powerless to change the heart. It is thus that in China, above all other heathen countries, we see how powerless mere civilisation is to effect the regeneration of a people, and that until Christianity comes in, revealing a living Saviour, and a life-giving Spirit, the shrines of the purest morality are nothing but whited sepulchres.

The testimony of Dr. Legge to the education and learning of our own missionaries was not needed for us, who knew that they are all University men, capable of taking their places beside a similar number of cultivated men in any profession in England. But it is gratifying to receive the testimony from such a source. And in regard to missionaries generally, the fact cannot be disputed that if you want to know who has done anything by his pen to convey to the Chinese information and instruction from the West, you will find that it is to the missionary that in ninety-nine cases out of the hundred the credit of efforts in this direction is due. And it would be the highest wisdom in our rulers, even if animated by mere worldly policy, instead of frowning upon the missionary cause, to give it every encouragement, as being the medium above all others calculated to raise Great Britain in the estimation of the Chinese, as a nation which sends them men of the highest beneficence, who, wherever they settle, are found to seek the good of the people, and to promote peace and harmony among them. We do not want the patronage of any earthly government; but we claim reasonable protection, and the treaty right of immunity from persecution for "those who teach and those who profess the Christian religion."

Digitized by Google

In addressing you some time ago in regard to affairs in the island of Formosa, I took occasion to refer to the deep regret with which I, in common with almost every one who has any intercourse with China, viewed the recent change of policy adopted towards the Chinese authorities by our Government. I fear it must now be said that the fruits of that change are more rapidly manifesting themselves than any of us were prepared for. That the hostility which is being displayed by the Chinese is in no sense specially directed against Christian missionaries as such is becoming more and more apparent. I assert with the utmost confidence that recent hostile acts are inspired by that hatred to foreigners, and exclusive jealousy of our superiority and moral power, of which we can hardly hope to see any abatement so long as the head of the Chinese Empire is recognised as in some sort a representative of Heaven by all the subjects of the "Middle Kingdom." And from information on which I can rely, I believe, the Chinese Government is taking practical steps to place their seaboard in a higher condition of defence than has ever before existed. The Taku forts, where our fleet under Admiral Hope met with so disastrous a reverse on our first expedition to Peking, are now being rebuilt on a greatly extended scale, and mounted with rifled cannon, while naval arsenals are being established on other important points of the coast, all which must be known by our Government. The pressing want now is that Sir Rutherford Alcock should be succeeded at Peking by a statesman of known energy and experience; for it is only too evident that the next few years will prove critical in the history of our intercourse with China.—Yours very faithfully,

London, Dec. 23, 1869. HUGH M. MATHESON.

BRITISH POLICY IN CHINA.

The following letter from Sir Charles Wentworth Dilke, on the subject of British Policy in China, has appeared in The Times, and the Standard has an article on it, which we append. Further reference to it will be found in our leader columns.

It is now more than a year since since I last had an opportunity of addressing you upon Chinese affairs. At that time no public declaration had been made of the course that would be taken by Her Majesty's Government in the Chinese question, and although it had previously been rumoured that Lord Stanley had adopted a conciliatory tone, it was not certain but that the representations of interested persons might prevail with his successor. Happily, such was not the case, and in his despatch of Dec. 28, 1868, Lord Clarendon once more enunciated, with praiseworthy firmness, the policy of peaceful action and "reference to Peking." In the year that has now elapsed the leading missionary bodies have, with their usual wisdom, rebuked their more hasty envoys and accepted the policy of the Government, and the old views of our position in China have found expression only at the meetings of the merchants in the Treaty ports, and in the columns of the local Press. England, too, has not stood alone, and just as America was beforehand with us in giving official expression to her feeling in favour of a juster policy, so North Germany, France, and Russia have united in endorsing the action of Great Britain. It would be reasonable, then, to expect that the advocates of fair dealing by the stronger towards the weaker peoples should now be willing to let well alone, and to listen with indifference to the murmurs of Shanghai and Hong Kong.

Unfortunately, however, telegrams play so large a part in modern daily literature that it becomes advisable to caution those who take an interest in Chinese affairs that the China telegrams are almost invariably coloured by the anti Chinese party. In the course of the past year the telegraph, for example, has informed us that the Chinese had refused to ratify the new Treaty with the United States; that the Mission to Europe had been recalled; that Mr. Burlingame's credentials had been made in duplicate, and that the copies differed; that the proclamation creating the Mission set out that it was sent to "tributary States;" that Mr. M'Leavy Brown had been recalled by the British Government; and that Sir Rutherford Alcock had addressed a despatch to Mr. Medhurst, in which he said that there was no hope of progress on the part of China unless force were used. The greater part of these statements have been already contradicted by you, and little trouble is needed to show that the whole of them are false. The Treaty with the United States was ratified on the 23rd of November; Mr. M'Leavy Brown, who appears to have been sent to Peking to report the progress that had been made by the Mission, and who is known to have stayed while there in the house of Mr. Hart, is now on his way back to Vienna or St. Petersburg; and the telegram stories about the recall of the Mission and the use of the phrase "lesser States" are simple fabrications.

The work of concocting similar productions is now in progress, with a view, doubtless, to Parliamentary action during the next session, and great credit must be accorded to the Shanghai community for their two last strokes. The publication of a private letter of Mr. Hart, in which his own text and somebody else's comment on it appear to have been so ingeniously mixed up as to deceive one of your contemporaries, but in which Mr. Hart does make one or two very natural admissions as to the Conservatism of the Chinese Government upon the audience question, will hardly, however, prove to be so successful a piece of policy as the "refusal of an audience to the Duke of Edinburgh." Now, in reference to this main point there is no one in Peking who does not know that the request could not have been granted without violating one of the most holy traditions of the Empire, and as the United States and all European Powers have expressly waived the audience question pending the minority of the Emperor, it is impossible to escape the conclusion that a refusal was courted when the request was made, if indeed we should not go to the extent of believing that the audience was only asked for in order that it might be refused.

As there is just now a disposition in some quarters to represent the English community in China as consisting wholly of inoffensive and injured people, it may not be out of place to set before your readers a few specimens of their recent utterances. At the dinner lately given to Sir Henry Keppel at Hong Kong and at which the whole of the leading merchants and officials seem to have been present, Colonel Knox Gore responded for the army. One of the China papers thus reports his speech:—"As regarded China, he contended that the Chinese were an inferior nation, and should be brought down and shown that they were the inferior nation. (Loud cheers) He objected strongly to the tampering policy followed by the present economical Government, and styled it a most pernicious policy, and a policy which would not have been tolerated for a moment 200 years ago."

One of the chief doctrines enunciated by Lord Clarendon was that British officers should not make war upon their own account, except in cases where English lives or property were immediately exposed; and one of the hardships of which the Hong Kong and Shanghai communities complain is that gentlemen holding the opinions of Colonel Knox Gore should not be permitted to attack the Chinese whenever they think fit. That it may not be supposed the words here quoted were an isolated expression of opinion, I will, with your permission, cite one or two paragraphs from the China papers in the same direction. The Overland China Mail of the 19th of October last speaks thus:—"Let us say to China, this must be done because we choose. There is no other way of appealing to the nation. . . What can avail but threats? We may be thankful that just at this moment the hollowness of their pretended desire for progress has become apparent. Should another war, as is most probable, occur, the peacemongers will no longer be able to weep over the injuries inflicted upon a 'meek and progress-loving' people." The Supreme Court and Consular Gazette of October 16, in an annexation leader, writes:—"It cannot be doubted that if two or three foreign commissioners were sent into each province, with power first to collect the revenue and prevent its present misappropriation, and, secondly, to apply that revenue to the development of the mineral and agricultural resources, to the improvement of means of communication and the enhancement of the value of the staple productions, no opposition would be experienced from the people at large. For some time there would be a conservative class, some of the members of which should be summarily dealt with, while others would learn that under the new regime the fairest field would be open to the most marked intelligence."

These extracts speak for themselves. The unfairness of all criticism, and the untruth of all statements that are based upon the supposition that the Chinese Government has become reactionary, is best shown by what has occurred in reference to the revision of the Treaties, in which the Chinese appear to have granted more than our Board of Trade thought it advisable to ask; and the experience of the year would seem to prove that there is no amount of progress which may not be hoped for, provided that the temperate policy of Lord Clarendon and Lord Stanley be not exchanged for one of threats and force at the dictation of the China press.

(STANDARD.)

The Chinese Empire, ever since it was heard of, has been a paradox and a puzzle to the rest of the world. The pictures of it drawn by successive travellers—by Jesuits, Protestant missionaries, merchants, consuls, naval and military officers, and gentlemen in pursuit of science, resemble nothing so much as that aspect of a dioramic scene when one perspective is blending with and disappearing in another. No people have been more extolled; none have been more caricatured. It is some comfort to know, however, that just when we are all wrong, an authority is pretty sure to turn up and set us right; and he is the more welcome if we are at a loss to understand how he came to be constituted an oracle. Mill, the historian of British India, argued in his preface, that because he had never seen the region he was the better qualified both to describe its manners and relate its annals. We hardly know in what degree Sir Charles Wentworth Dilke claims a similar title, since he has been a voyager, and may possibly have caught sight of a Chinese cape; but if we remonstrate with him concerning his version of matters as they stand in China at present, it is because he is doing his best to encourage a very shallow notion. It has been rather a fashion of late years to ridicule experience, and to treat with contempt the opinions of "twenty-years-in-the-country-sir" men, as being persons darkened by excess of light. Now, it is quite credible that long residence and familiar intercourse, combined with the narrowing influence of a small and exclusive community, may stereotype certain ideas on the mind. We know that in British India, for example, there are what used to be called "Presidency prejudices;" but if compelled to choose, we must still prefer the person who is likely to comprehend his subject to the person who despises him on account of his special education. It may be partiality; yet, as an affair of local politics, we imagine that the Europeans at Hong Kong and Shanghai are, in their position, almost as well informed as though they dwelt in Sloane-street. Far be it from us, indeed, to suggest that Chinese questions should be settled entirely from an Anglo-Chinese point of view, or to deny the right of public men—especially one so cultured and so much in earnest as Sir Charles Dilke—to challenge the judgments of the Anglo-Chinese press. That against which we protest is the assumption that our countrymen in the East, changing their natures as they cross the seas and settle down among the discoloured races of the world, are necessarily ignorant, selfish, addicted to embroilments, bullying, and violence. This, however, is the "Liberal" way of looking at it. The origin of it is not unknown. We heard precisely the same jargon ten years ago, when Manchester scouted its former favourites; and some there may be who can remember how swift was the contagion of the new philanthropy, which melted into the benedictions of pirates, and found charitable excuses for head hunting. Well, the Chinese Government stood in need of a character, and one is given it, somewhat at the expense of English sagacity and humanity, by Sir Charles Wentworth Dilke. Its appearance is simultaneous with the announcement that Her Majesty's representative has been grossly insulted at Nanking—a fit commentary on the return of Admiral Keppel.

Digitized by Google

Is there any meaning in the phrase "British interests?" It seems to be falling into desuetude, "interested motives" being the substitute. And what on earth, if not motives of interest, should tempt Englishmen to establish themselves on those barbarous confines? And what can their "interests" be except the commercial interests at large of the country to which they belong? To believe some individuals, however, would be to fancy that nothing short of chronic blockades and bombardments, the cessation of trade, and the intermittent execution of mandarins would satisfy the Hong Kong and Shanghai communities. But they have been bridled by Lord Clarendon, whose policy of conciliation and "reference to Peking," whose snubbings of our merchants, rebuke of our consuls, and censure of our naval commander have been so appropriately supplemented at Nanking. The United States, according to Sir Charles Dilke, had taught him the lesson. France and Russia joined with him in learning it, and China, meanwhile, has been cruelly misrepresented, for telegrams, like tea, are coloured to suit the market. Thus she had refused to ratify her American treaty; had recalled the European mission; had made out Mr. Burlingame's credentials in duplicate, varying their phraseology; Mr. M'Leary Brown had been sent for to Europe; and Sir Rutherford Alcock feared force would be necessary to secure the faithful observance of treaties. Not a word of it true. Never heed what your "twenty-years-in-the-country-sir" men say. it is all the simplest fabrication. But we happen to have some historical light to help us, of which the newest is not the least valuable; unless. indeed, the last electric message, like the rest, be only a concoction of Hong Kong and Shanghai spite. In what documents, however, does Sir Charles Dilke read his Chinese history? Of course, when questioning his data, we do not defend Ministers for their stupid error in demanding for the Duke of Edinburgh an Imperial audience at Peking; but that is not the real issue involved, which is—what have we brought upon ourselves by our new system of cringing? Plainly, the "Conservatism of China"—language which explains itself, and signifies barbarous pretence, hypocritical diplomacy, arrogance towards foreigners, and an utter incapacity for honourable dealing. It is possible, no doubt, to pick out paragraphs for newspaper articles, and after-dinner speeches; but it is possible, also, to be too humble. Sir Charles complains that somebody at the dinner given at Hong Kong to Admiral Keppel, spoke of the Chinese as an inferior nation. Why, what in the name of reason are they? Or, if not, what are we ourselves? And will any one, whose intellect has not been warped by twenty or thirty years of intimate observation, tell us what is portended by the phrase "progress" in China, or what was ever portended by it since Chinese civilisation came to a dead stop, a barren fixity innumerable ages ago? Where is it? In the "holy tradition' which forbids an Imperial minor to be seen of mortal men not born in the yellow? In the prodigious system of pedantry, teaching nothing, which has left China in the nineteenth century behind the rest of the world in everything that marks the improvement of modern times? She was before us with a good many inventions, the legends say, and certainly no one desires to cannonade her into another wakeful fit; possibly, also. no treaty can bind in amicable relations with us every governor in that vast and dissolving dominion. But, since our intercourse with China began, its Government has never once—we assert it deliberately—set an example of voluntary good faith. Its pride is pleaded in extenuation. Be it so; it is, however, the pride of a savage, the growth of an ignorant instinct.

It is an inexcusable libel upon the merchants of the European community, and the commanders of the China squadron, to affirm that they are impatient of peace, and for ever hankering after an occasion of bloodshed. Men, before making such assertions, ought to be very sure of their ground. Nor is it much less disingenuous to claim for Lord Clarendon the credit of the principle that British officers shall not make war on their own account, to gratify a local rancour. They are employed for the protection of British life and property; and instances must arise in which they are to be judges of the fact, and competent to take immediate action. Else why keep a naval force in distant seas at all? We may, with Sir Charles Dilke, deprecate the dream of British rule in China, the collection of its revenue, and the development of its resources, yet the idea is one that any man is free to hold, not less free than is Sir Charles Dilke to sneer at men for believing of a country exactly what they see of it. At all events, may we be pardoned for our scepticism concerning "progress" under the edicts of the vermilion pencil, and also for hesitating to congratulate Lord Clarendon upon the triumph which, though so eminently pacific, has landed us among dangerous complications, and may launch us into a war?

(GLOBE.)

The letter of Sir Charles Dilke on "Our Chinese Policy," which appeared in The Times of Monday, is characterised throughout by a glib vagueness which marks that the writer possesses but a very superficial acquaintance with the subject of which he treats. He says that "there is no one in Peking who does not know that the request to give an audience to the Duke of Edinburgh could not have been granted without violating one of the most holy traditions of the Empire." What does Sir Charles mean by this? If he means that the admission of a European into the Imperial presence would violate one of the most holy traditions of the Empire, he is quite wrong, for Europeans have repeatedly been admitted into the presence of preceding Emperors, and if the Foreign Ministers at Peking would only consent to make the ko-tow they would be granted an audience to-morrow. But if he means that to have received the Duke of Edinburgh on the same terms on which he would have been received by a European crowned head would have violated one of the most holy traditions of the Empire, we think that he would have put it more truly by saying that it would only have wounded the inflated pride and childish conceit of a nation which refuses to acknowledge that any kingdom in the world has a right to claim equality with itself. It is exactly the same question that we fought for at the Ports over again. When foreign Consuls were first established at Canton, the local authorities persistently refused to hold intercourse with them on terms of equality; they flouted their remonstrances and disregarded their arguments, and it was found necessary to enforce vi et armis regulations for the fair adjustment of the relative ranks of consuls and mandarins before business could be properly conducted and friendly relations kept up. The position of affairs at Peking at the present day is an exact reflection of the state of things that existed at Canton a quarter of a century ago, and it will probably have to be set right by precisely similar means to those then employed. Our allowing ourselves to be excluded from the Imperial presence is looked upon by all classes throughout the Empire as a tacit admission of our inferiority as a nation, and as sufficient to warrant provincial officials and gentry in freely offering slights and insults to our Ministers and Consuls. It is a mistake to suppose that the Chinese regard the exclusion of foreigners from "the presence" in any other way than as a badge of superiority; as to "holy traditions" they exist only in the minds of Sir Charles Dilke and others equally acquainted with China. A passage has recently been quoted from a Chinese work on the wars of the present dynasty, written by a native official of high rank, and published at Peking in 1845, which curiously illustrates what we have said. In speaking of the relative positions occupied by the European kingdoms he describes Russia as the greatest and most powerful, and adduces as proof of his statements the fact that "our own envoys in their journeys thither have only had interviews with their (i.e., the Russian) territorial governors, and have not been admitted to see the Emperor." The admission of Foreign Ministers to the Imperial presence is the one thing that can place our relations with China on a sure footing, and on our insisting on or waiving this point rests the decision whether we will continue our present commercial relations with China. or submit to be driven back to the position we occupied before the Treaty of Tientsin.

Monetary and Commercial.

The China Submarine Telegraph Company (Limited) have given the order for the manufacture of their cable (to be laid between a station in the Straits of Malacca and Hong Kong), accompanied by the necessary payment to the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company. At an extraordinary meeting of the China Submarine Company held on the 7th, which is reported in another column, it was resolved to increase the capital by £300,000, and to take immediate steps to extend the line from Hong Kong to Shanghai.

The prospectus of the British Australian Telegraph Company (Limited) has been issued. The capital is £660,000, in 66,000 shares of £10 each, of which £120,000 will be taken in fully paid-up shares by the contractors. This line is substantially a continuation of the chain of communication already in progress between England, India, and the Straits, and is to be completed in 1871. Traffic arrangements have been made with the Anglo-Mediterranean, the Falmouth-Malta, the British Indian, and he Extension Telegraph Companies, providing that these companies shall grant the same rebate on their through rate on all messages forwarded over their lines and the Australian company's cables, as has been granted to the China Submarine Company. The Board comprises representatives from all the companies named, who are the proprietors of the direct submarine lines between England, India, and Singapore, the chairman being Viscount Monck, and it is intended to place the conduct of the traffic throughout in charge of a single committee of directors. The first section will consist of a cable 563 miles in length, from Singapore to Batavia, from whence the Dutch lines extend to the south-eastern extremity of Java. From this point in Java, the second cable, 1,163 miles in length, will be laid to Port Darwin, in Australia, touching at Timor. From Port Darwin to Berketown, in Queensland (800 miles), a land line will be constructed to connect with the telegraph system of Queensland, New South Wales, Victoria, South and Western Australia, and Tasmania. Full particulars will be found in our advertising columns.

The directors of the Oriental Bank Corporation have issued a circular pointing out that the daily increasing numbers of negotiable securities render their custody a matter of great importance, both to bankers and their constituents. For the convenience of its customers the bank will continue to take charge of these documents, and will collect the interest at a small remuneration for the expense and trouble this duty involves; but, in the event of loss, the Corporation will not in any case be liable, except for such loss as may occur through gross negligence on their part.

Now that the Overend-Gurney trial is over, it is suggested that measures will probably be taken for restoring Mr. H. G. Gordon to the seat at the boards of the Oriental Bank and the Union Bank of London, which he found it advisable to vacate pending the investigation.

Digitized by Google

It is stated that refiners and importers of sugar in France complain of the "types" employed by the French Customs for the classification of raw sugars. From an address just sent to the Minister by the Chamber of Commerce of Marseilles, in the name of a considerable number of refiners, merchants, and brokers, it appears, that they desire that new types, like those used in Holland, shall be issued, "in order to put an end to the intolerable and trying inequality in which their industry is placed with respect to its Dutch competitors." The "intolerable inequality" referred to is said to consist in this fact:—"That there is a difference of one or two numbers between the Customs' types of France and Holland, and that the sugars of Java, typed to commence Nos. 16 and 17, are in Holland classed Nos. 13 and 14, and consequently admitted to the yield of 88 per cent., whilst the same sugars in France are invariably classed 15 to 16, and subjected to a yield of 94 per cent." The practical working of this is that the Dutch are underselling the French refiners in Italy, notwithstanding they have to bear greater expenses for carrying, insurance, averages, and interest, than the French.

Messrs. Lamport and Holt, of Liverpool, intimate that they have opened a house in London, St. Helen's-place, as general merchants and commission agents. Mr. Arthur Holland, who has assisted them for several years, will manage the London department. This arrangement will not interfere with the correspondence on the charter of ships which the house has been engaged in for more than twenty years with Messrs. Galbraith, Stringer, Pembroke, and Co., shipbrokers, of Austin-friars, London. Messrs. Hall, Russell, and Co., the well-known iron ship builders and engineers of Aberdeen, have opened offices at 123, Fenchurch-street, Mr. J. T. Rennie being their London agent.

The failure is announced of Mr. Henry H. Severs, general merchant. His liabilities are roughly estimated at about £250,000, principally on bills which have been drawn against consignments to China, consisting of cotton and woollen goods. Mr. Severs has been in business in London about two years. The following circular has been sent to the creditors:—

"Gentlemen.—I much regret to inform you that I am compelled to suspend my payments. I have placed my books in the hands of Messrs. Cooper Bros. and Co., of George-street, Mansion-house. I trust the result of the liquidation will be satisfactory, but it will depend upon the realisation of consignments to China. I had hoped that the estate might have been wound up under a private deed of arrangement, but I am advised that in consequence of the liabilities being chiefly upon bills of exchange now running, the holders of which are not known, this course is impracticable, and that, at all events in the first instance, it is necessary, in order to protect the rights of all parties, that the estate should be taken into bankruptcy.—I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant, HENRY H. SEVERS."

At a meeting of the creditors of Messrs. George Barnes and Son, spinners and manufacturers, of Haslingden, Lancashire, the liabilities were stated to be £7,531, with assets estimated at £2,066. An offer of 5s. in the pound having been made, and not agreed to, a relative offered to guarantee 10s., but it was determined, after considerable deliberation, that a deed of assignment to three of the creditors should be executed.

The arrangement with the creditors of Messrs. Benyon, Harding, and Templer, tea-brokers, for a composition of 5s., is in progress; but some of the creditors are dissatisfied with the speculations of the firm, and the manner in which tea warrants entrusted to them have been appropriated.

The Manchester Courier states that two small failures have been reported—Mr. James Potter, cotton spinner, Bell-street, Oldham, with liabilities of £9.300, and Mr. James Procter, manufacturer, Radcliffe, owing £1,800 to £2,000.

As usual at this period of the year numerous changes have been made in commercial firms, and we notice the following announcements:—

"Messrs. Dent, Palmer, and Co., of London, have issued a circular stating that the interest of Mr. Thomas Dent and Mr. Richard Whiteman Fall in the firm ceased on the 31st ult., and that Mr. Greville Horsley Palmer and Mr. Thomas James Reeves have been admitted partners. Messrs. Catling and Andrews, tea brokers, intimate that the partnership hitherto carried on by them, in Fenchurch-street, London, has been dissolved by mutual consent; Mr. Arthur Andrews states that he shall continue the business of a tea broker, at the same address, under the style of Arthur Andrews and Co. Messrs. Wm. James and Hy. Thompson, of Mincing-lane, have admitted into partnership the second son of their senior partner, Mr. Arthur Thompson. Mr. John Hodgson retires from the firm of Grant, Hodgson, and Co., of Fenchurch-street, London, and the business of tobacco brokers will be continued by Messrs. George Grant and James Chambers, under the same title. The announcement has been made of the termination of the partnership of Anderson and Thomson, ship and insurance brokers, and the formation of a firm under the style of Anderson, Anderson, and Co.; it may be added that Mr. Thomson, associated with Mr. F. G. Westmoreland, continues business under the title of James Thomson and Co. It is notified that the firm of Holmes, Knevitt, and Holmes, shipbrokers, has been dissolved by mutual consent, and that Mr. R. K. Knevitt will continue the business as a ship and insurance broker and insurance agent in Sun-court, Cornhill, under the firm of Knevitt and Co. Messrs. Broughall and Co., of 62 Cornhill, London, have intimated that Mr. John Francis Carter is admitted a partner in their firm. Messrs. Hayter and Howell, of Mark-lane, London, have given notice that Mr. Henry Hamilton Howell has withdrawn from the firm; the business will be continued by Mr. H. G. Hayter and Mr. O. E. Hayter, under the style of Hayter and Hayter. The 'H. H.' mark and other trade marks will remain in the exclusive use of the new firm."

The following is an extract from a letter of M. Lange, the representative in London of the Suez Canal Company:—

"I am informed that since my return from Egypt great efforts have been made to remove the inequalities in the depth of the Canal. Between Port Saïd and Ismailia this work has been successfully completed. Then between Ismailia and Suez the piece of rock had been reduced seventy centimetres in a fortnight; in other words, that part of the Canal is seventy centimetres deeper than it was at the time of the inauguration, and the entire removal was confidently looked forward to towards the end of January next. I have had many inquiries from shipowners and merchants with regard to a rumour afloat that the Canal is likely to be closed for the purpose of blasting this rock, and hasten to inform your readers that there is no foundation whatever for such a rumour."

The amount of bullion by the P. and O. Company's steamer Nyanza, from Southampton on the 8th inst., was, in gold, to Galle, £525; to Bombay, £1,700; to Madras, £4,000; to Alexandria, £13,700; in silver, to Calcutta, £3,000; to Singapore, £20,000; to Hong Kong, £12,396; to Shanghai, £16,035; total in gold, £19,925; in silver £51,431.

The tenders for £387,500 in bills on India were received on the 6th inst. at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were:—To Calcutta, £358,700; and to Madras, £28,800. The minimum price was fixed as before, viz., at 1s. 11d. on Calcutta and Madras. Tenders on those presidencies at 1s. 11⅛d. will receive about 25 per cent.; above that price in full. These results show a trifling diminution in the demand for remittance to the East.

CHINA SUBMARINE TELEGRAPH.

An extraordinary meeting of this company was held on the 7th inst. at Cannon-street Hotel; Mr. J. Pender in the chair.

The Secretary read the notice of meeting, which was called "for the purpose of authorising the directors to enlarge the share capital of this undertaking, and to adopt other measures for the completion of the line of telegraph from Hong Kong to Shanghai." The requisition of shareholders was also read, calling upon the directors to take steps to carry out this extension.

The Chairman said this requisition was signed by shareholders holding £10,000 shares in the company, and the point urged was of extreme importance, as they had taken no slight interest in the progress of submarine telegraphy. He pointed out that it had always been part of this company's scheme to go to Shanghai, but that part had been delayed until the line was at work to Hong Kong. But it had now been seen that others proposed to enter this field, therefore it behoved the company to protect their own proposals by carrying out the project. He acknowledged that the proposals emanated from honourable gentlemen, who, perhaps, were not aware of this company's proposition in the field, and who, perhaps, would not, when they became aware of this position, run the risk which certainly stood before them. The China Submarine Company could soon carry out the work if the meeting gave the necessary powers, and he moved "That this meeting is of opinion that the directors should, as early as possible, take the necessary steps for the completion of the telegraph from Hong Kong to Shanghai."

Lord William Hay seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

The Chairman then moved, that the directors be authorised to increase the capital of the company to £825,000, the additional £300,000 to be issued at such times and on such terms as the directors might determine. He said the extra shares should be offered to the shareholders pro rata, and all shares not taken by proprietors might be taken by other persons.

This motion was seconded, and, in answer to questions, the Chairman said that £250,000 of the additional £300,000 was for the construction of the new line, and £50.000 was requsite for working capital.

The motion was unanimously carried, and thanks to the chairman closed the proceedings.

BOARD OF TRADE RETURNS.

The Board of Trade Returns for the month of November last show that the total declared value of the exports of British and Irish produce and manufactures for the eleven months amounted to £174,450,252, being £9,625,598 and £6,518.874 more than the shipments during the same months of 1868 and 1867 respectively; the value for 1868 was £164,824,654, and for 1867 £167,931,378. The total exports for the first eleven months of 1866 amounted to £173,913,222, so that our export trade continues somewhat in excess of that of the year in which trade assumed its greatest proportions. The question as to the character of this increased business is no doubt of great importance. The profits are probably on a smaller scale, but we can hardly think that merchants, as a body, are disposed to carry on for a long period this large export trade without obtaining, directly, or indirectly, satisfactory results. The returns for the month of November present the following figures:—1867, £14,879,739; 1868, £14,143,493; 1869, £15,287,820; thus showing an increase for the present year of £1,144,327 over 1868, and of £408,081 over 1867.

Digitized by Google

As regards imports, the values of which are brought down only to the end of October, the returns state the computed value at less than last year. The total computed value of the principal articles imported during the ten months ending October is put at £195,480,921, or £2,055,253 less than in the same period last year, but £3.632,913 more than in the corresponding months of 1867, the figures being, 1868, £197,536,174; 1867, £191,848,008. The value of the imports for October is stated at £23,759,824, being £2,256,985 and £3.274,431 in excess of the amounts for the same months in 1868 and 1867 respectively, the figures being, 1868, £21,502,839; 1867, £20,585,393.

We annex a summary of those figures which relate to our Import and Export trade with China and other countries in the Far East :—

IMPORTS.

TEA.

		1867.	1868.	1869.
Quantity for the month ended 30th Nov.	lbs.	7,225,345	32,561,667	22,404,722
Quantity for the eleven months ended 30th Nov.	lbs.	105,545,759	137,074,598	122,237,883
Value for the month ended 31st Oct.		£1,602,401	£1,284,707	£1,340,731
Value for the ten months ended 31st Oct.		£7,598,706	£8,402,140	£7,468,764

RAW SILK.

From		For the Month ended 30th Nov. 1867.	1868.	1869.
China	lbs.	—	—	4,761
British India	,,	1,969	6,728	1,947
Egypt*	,,	234,950	671.079	528,867
Other Countries	,,	219,290	160 919	189,781
Total	,,	456,209	838.726	725,356
For the Eleven Months ended 30th Nov.
China	lbs.	40,016	50,024	254,917
British India	,,	2,469	32.103	10,846
Egypt*	,,	3,423,695	4,824,455	3,868,871
Other Countries	,,	1,789,613	1,551.195	868,809
Total	,,	5,255.793	6,457,777	5,003,443
Value for the Month ended 31st Oct.
China		—	—	£147
British India		£550	£13.840	4,762
Egypt*		572 551	£609,066	816,647
Other Countries		137.099	199 355	226,218
Total		710.200	822 261	1,047,774

*In transit from India, China, and Japan.

COFFEE.

From		For the Month ended 30th Nov. 1867.	1868.	1869.
Ceylon	lbs.	5,040,905	6,469.415	7,092,331
Other British Possessions	,,	3,614.162	5,061,828	865,877
Total from all parts		9,836.849	14,089 778	9,817,392
For the Eleven Months ended 30th Nov.
Ceylon	lbs.	77.277,374	95,218,086	83,500,065
Other British Possessions	,,	18.784,612	32,746.671	28,246,349
Total from all parts	,,	128,869.238	162,325.696	158,561,588

RAW SUGAR.

From		For the Month ended 30th Nov. 1867.	1868.	1869.
Java & Philippine Islnds.	cwts.	24.618	10.784	88.520
Total from all parts	,,	375,724	683,408	644,898
For the Eleven Months ended 30th Nov.
Java & Philippine Islnds.	cwts.	324 335	769,042	788,874
Total from all parts	,,	9,934,541	10,991,682	10,209,671

HEMP.

From		For the Month ended 30th Nov. 1867.	1868.	1869.
Philippine Islands	cwts.	3,175	—	11,985
Total from all parts	,,	107,736	68.820	71,205
For the Eleven Months ended 30th Nov.
Philippine Islands	cwts.	77,727	127,362	85,826
Total from all parts	,,	743,373	839,609	918,489

RAW COTTON.

From		For the Month ended 30th Nov. 1867.	1868.	1869.
China	cwts.	—	—	—
British India	,,	300,568	765.592	531,187
Egypt	,,	37.838	50 831	122,944
United States	,,	85,862	71.749	209,496
Total from all parts	,,	469.373	962.528	932,901
For the Eleven Months ended 30th Nov.
China	cwts.	4,707	—	8
British India	,,	4,008,407	3,827.924	3,811,480
Egypt	,,	940,077	910,998	1,158,962
United States	,,	4,306,297	4,493.241	3,384,249
Total from all parts	,,	10,152.919	10.273,411	9,307,592

CLEARANCES FOR HOME CONSUMPTION.

		For the Month ended 30th Nov. 1867.	1868.	1869.
Tea from all parts	lbs.	14,757,591	8,742.156	10,004,887
Coffee from Ceylon	,,	1,425,178	1,330.205	1,894,588
Do. from all parts	,,	2,589,597	2,492,995	2,529,212
Raw Sugar from Java & the Philippines	cwts.	78,929	76,064	68,645
Raw Sugar from all parts	,,	1,010,776	899.318	952,980
For the Eleven Months ended 30th Nov.
Tea from all parts	lbs.	104,825,715	98.776,178	103,665,661
Coffee from Ceylon	,,	18,880,811	17,683,398	14,869,386
Do from all parts	,,	29,341,107	28,550,092	26,962,198
Raw Sugar from Java & the Philippines	cwts.	508.796	680,381	714,154
Raw Sugar from all parts	,,	10,627,840	10.316 022	10,396,383

The following were the quantities of the undermentioned articles remaining in the bonded warehouses of the United Kingdom on the 30th Nov., 1869, compared with the two previous years :—

		1867.	1868.	1869.
Coffee	lbs.	43,688,730	50.919 853	61,726,929
Tea	,,	76,411,984	89.199,712	82,516,515
Unrefined Sugar	cwts.	2,341,417	2,724.522	2,291,873

The value of the Imports into the United Kingdom from the several ports and countries of the Far East for the three months and nine months ended 30th Sept., 1869, compared with the corresponding periods of the two preceding years, is returned as follows :—

From	For the Three Months ended 30th Sept. 1867.	1868	1869.
China (exclusive of H. Kong)	£1,279,425	£1,930.917	£1,207,251
Hong Kong	22.437	18,754	28,491
Japan	69,142	48,748	1,556
Straits Settlements	309.618	478,550	489,494
Ceylon	1,095.524	1,201,631	1,004,881
Philippine Islands	286,768	502,905	362,546
Java	10,199	80,193	136,697
Siam	—	55.453	120,049
Borneo	—	25.563	9,172
Cochin China, &c.	—	16 160	30,053
From	For the Nine Months ended 30th Sept. 1866.	1867.	1868.
China (exclusive of H. Kong)	£5,512,839	£6,427.846	£5,821,492
Hong Kong	160,727	97,799	197,684
Japan	266,274	105,290	142,949
Straits Settlements	876,756	1,214,918	1,480,612
Ceylon	2,527.461	2,807,363	2,493,588
Philippine Islands	567,942	1,195.863	1,058,499
Java	13.262	42,895	164,437
Sumatra	—	—	9,970
Borneo	27,970	37.678	29,235
Siam	—	71,980	349,879
Cochin China, &c.	—	33,394	76,816

EXPORTS.

COTTON YARN.

To		For the Month ended 30th Nov. 1867.	1868.	1869.
China and Hong Kong	lbs.	510,708	180,000	992,400
Japan	,,	718,510	686,850	1,067,120
Singapore	,,	344,040	207.150	362,810
Ceylon	,,	32,070	15.000	20,800
Total to all parts	,,	18,511.088	14.113 925	14,421,469
For the Eleven Months ended 30th Nov.
China and Hong Kong	lbs.	7,446,982	6,369.621	4,632,722
Japan	,,	3,235,920	3,416,370	4,793,156
Singapore	,,	2,889,830	1,504.900	1,365,925
Ceylon	,,	355,751	397,710	385,584
Total to all parts	,,	153,982.419	160,534,272	152,929,522

COTTON MANUFACTURES.

To		For the Month ended 30th Nov. 1867.	1868.	1869.
China and Hong Kong	yds.	27.383,780	23,328.522	23.830,753
Japan	,,	3,778 540	1,727,090	3,008,130
Philippine Islands	,,	924,185	1.720.200	2,476,100
Java	,,	3,010,950	3.414.100	2,315,500
Singapore	,,	6,042.330	3,162,334	3.598,793
Ceylon	,,	1.811,086	1.588,605	1,117,380
Total to all parts	,,	277,488,052	251,464,157	245.267,890
For the Eleven Months ended 30th Nov.
China and Hong Kong	yds.	188.543,711	303.491,955	270,695,137
Japan	,,	24,506.119	19.410,659	16 180,137
Philippine Islands	,,	32.355,117	33.555.519	28.378,939
Java	,,	36.743,898	26,530.767	17 577,257
Singapore	,,	68,344.679	50 434 937	56.192,610
Ceylon	,,	19,052,118	23,372.507	21,792,472
Total to all parts		2,567,804,445	2,727,963,496	2,604,790,888

WORSTED STUFFS.

To		For the Month ended 30th Nov. 1867.	1868.	1869.
China and Hong Kong	yds.	1,288,620	724,396	1,544,583
Japan	,,	590,585	97,000	111,920
Total to all parts	,,	11,877,281	14,164.482	17.283,873
For the Eleven Months ended 30th Nov.
China and Hong Kong	yds.	20,986,101	17,608,935	20,095,898
Japan	,,	6,907.149	2,866 371	3,043,772
Total to all parts	,,	189,082,973	208,903.832	234,216,751

WOOLLEN AND WORSTED CLOTHS.

To		For the Month ended 30th Nov. 1867.	1868.	1869.
China and Hong Kong	yds.	34.824	31,873	115,406
Total to all parts	,,	2,141,723	1.964 724	2,410,314
For the Eleven Months ended 30th Nov.
China and Hong Kong	yds.	1.330.691	1,617,176	1,904,483
Total to all parts	,,	29,473,244	22 583 479	26,107,004

LEAD.

To		For the Month ended 30th Nov. 1867.	1868.	1869.
China and Hong Kong	tons	618	833	1,724
Total to all parts	,,	3,021	2,950	3,736
For the Eleven Months ended 30th Nov.
China and Hong Kong	tons	3.826	9,415	13,678
Total to all parts	,,	27,072	41.176	46,923

The value of the Exports from the United Kingdom to the several ports and countries of the Far East for the month and ten months ended 31st Oct., 1869, compared with the corresponding periods of the two preceding years, is returned as follows :—

Digitized by Google

To	For the Month ended 31st Oct. 1867.	1868.	1869.
China (exclusive of H. Kong)	£498,273	£662,453	£708,074
Hong Kong	285,542	279,923	187,703
Japan	103,037	75,289	33,808
Straits Settlements	210,768	116,866	208,568
Ceylon	73,613	69,193	99,436
Philippine Islands	106,948	88,594	102,559
Java	159,369	71,635	72,999
Siam	—	—	—

	For the Ten Months ended 31st Oct. 1867.	1868.	1869.
China (exclusive of H. Kong)	£3,893,505	£5,352,449	£5,627,621
Hong Kong	1,959,321	1,949,247	1,627,383
Japan	1,196,231	843,460	1,093,826
Straits Settlements	1,763,499	1,246,330	1,402,087
Ceylon	632,214	698,219	664,591
Philippine Islands	942,889	855,061	712,790
Java	1,103,401	650,629	443,415
Sumatra	445	2,517	—
Borneo	—	—	896
Siam	4,085	422	20,202

Shipping Intelligence.

ARRIVALS.

Date.	Ship	Captain.	From.	At.
Dec 20	Bato	Kramer	Batavia	Texel
— 22	John Milton	Boutellier	Foochow	Deal
— 18	Rachel	Fraill	Singapore	Marseilles
— 22	Flying Spur	Barn	Foochow	Deal
— 23	Dorothy	Williams	Ceylon, &c.	Deal
— 27	Yan: Tzse	Smith	Foochow	London
— 25	Veronica	—	China	Liverpool
— 27	Gulnare	—	Sarawak	Deal
— 23	Georg	Mehrens	Bassein	Bremerhaven
— 26	Bassaan Pot	Zettler	Batavia, for Rotrdm.	Off Dungeness
— 28	Grasmere	Stockman	Canton	Off Falmouth
— 29	Wm. Fruing	Chevalier	Manila	Downs
— 26	No. Lantaro	Sans	Manila	Barcelona
— 31	Juanpore	Brown	Shanghai	Deal
— 31	Blenheim	Cottier	Singapore	Do.
— 30	Samuel	Owen	Akyab	Falmouth
Jan 1	Corona	Crondace	Foochow	London
— 1	Challenge	Causebrook	Shanghai	Do.
Dec 31	Kinfauns Castle	Holmes	Singapore, via Livrpl.	Clyde
Jan. 3	Ullswater	Mette	Do., &c.	London
— 3	Gleam	Burgess	Amoy	Do.
— 1	Argo	Grunberg	Rangoon	Weymouth
— 1	Hiawatha	Mathias	Do.	Falmouth
Nov 25	Providentia	—	Macao	Callao
— 25	Harmonides	Jago	Yokohama	Do.
Jan. 1	General de Stuers	—	Batavia	Portland
— 2	Dharwar	Thomas	Penang	Off Scilly
Dec 31	Baltimore	Doeksen	Batavia	Texel
Jan. 4	G raint	Watson	Shanghai	Deal
— 4	Deerfoot	Casson	Foochow	Falmouth
— 5	Dilkhoosh	Gedye	Shanghai	London
— 5	Tycho Brahe (str.)	Peel	China, Singap., &c.	Do.
— 5	Hollinside	Bains	Colombo	Deal
— 5	Joseph Weir	Stanwood	Akyab	Falmouth
— 4	Julie	Cherpion	Padang	Brouwershaven
— 4	Antonia	—	Batavia, for Rotrdm.	Off Dungeness
— 4	Sirius	—	Batavia, for Amstdm	Do.
— 4	Electric	Reyn	Do. do.	Do.
— 6	Bothwell Castle	—	Singapore	Liverpool
— 5	Tonia	Johan	Batavia	Brouwershaven
— 7	Fiery Cross	Middleton	Shanghai	London

DEPARTURES.

Date.	Ship.	Captain.	For.	From.
Dec 22	Eleanor	Maxwell	Yokohama	London
— 21	Hydra	Bunge	Hong Kong	Falmouth
— 21	Martin	Dale	Do.	Cardiff
— 21	Joseph Haydn	Hagett	Singapore	Do.
— 23	Benvoirlich	McDougall	Penang	London
— 23	Whinfell	Jones	Shanghai	Do.
— 23	Falcon	Dunn	Do.	Do.
— 23	Excelsior	Lingdal lsen	Cardiff and do.	Do.
— 24	Helen Nicholson	Halliday	Shanghai	Do.
— 23	California	Deinum	Batavia	Ramsgate*
— 23	Loyola	Castro	Manila	Liverpool
— 27	Volunteer	Black	Singapore & Penang	London
—	Noach	Vanschelven	Batavia	Zierikzee
—	Nederland	—	Do.	Rotterdam
— 24	G. H. Handel	Sanders	Shanghai	Cardiff
— 24	Milton	Smith	Singapore	Do.
— 24	Cruiser	Kirby	Congo and Ceylon	Do.
— 7	Mozart	Brusch	Macassar	Cuxhaven
— 28	William Miller (str.)	Wyberg	Colombo, Singap., & H. K., via Suez Canal	London
— 28	Ringleader	Hamblin	Cardiff & Hg. Kong.	Do.
— 27	Lizzy	Williams	Singapore	Liverpool
— 28	Pierre	Defoy	Saigon	Quiberon
—	Batavia	Zwanenburg	Java	Rotterdam
— 25	Bengal	Renny	Singapore	Penarth Dock
— 30	Lochnagar	Neill	Yokohama and Hiogo	London
— 28	Algernon	Otley	Shanghai	Sunderland
Jan. 4	Dunmore	Robertson	Batavia & Sourabaya	Glasgow
— 1	Ajax (str.)	Kidd	Mauritius, Singapore, China, &c.	Liverpool
Nov 25	America	Pearks	China	Callao
Dec 31	County of Berwick	M'Lean	Batavia & Sourabaya	Glasgow
Jan. 1	Afrique (str.)	Rolland	Colombo, &c., via Suez Canal
— 4	Woodman (str.)	—	Ceylon	Portland
— 4	Egmont and Hoorn	Loesewitz	Singapore	Cardiff
—	Utrecht	—	Batavia	Rotterdam
— 4	St. James	Hatfield	Yokohama	Penarth
— 4	Bertie	Courbier	Singapore	Do
— 6	Helen Morris	Nott	Hong Kong	Liverpool

* After repairing.

(See Commercial Postscript and Corresponde ts' Letters.)

LOADING.

At LONDON.—For Yokohama: Min, John Milton. For Yokohama and Hiogo: Harbottle. For Shanghai: Juanpore, Geraint, Clara, Weymouth, Wild Deer, Melbrek, John R. Worcester, Thyatira, Flying Spur. For Hong Kong: Dunmail, Hopewell, Maiden Queen, Seawfell, William Fung. For Singapore: Ocean Belle, Kingdom of Belgium, Sree Singapura. For Penang: Eleanor. For Penang, Singapore, Hong Kong, and Shanghai (via Suez Canal): Chu Kiang (str.). For Batavia and Sourabaya: Vesta. For Colombo: Prince Alfred, River Indus, Shooting Star, A.O.A. For Colombo (via Suez Canal): Otterburn (str.).

At LIVERPOOL.—For Yokohama: Singapore. For Shanghai: Doune Castle. For Hong Kong: Veronica. For Manila: Estrella, Aurora. For Singapore; Ellen Lamb. For Batavia and Sourabaya: Konigin Augusta.

At GLASGOW.—For Singapore: Kinfauns Castle. For Penang: Annie Braginton. For Buenos Ayres and Penang: La Plata.

At GREENOCK.—For Shanghai (via London): Cutty Sark.

SPOKEN.

CROWN PRINCESS (Dan. bq.), Swansea to Hg. Kong., Dec. 1, 3 N., 25 W.
DAPHNE (Swed. schn.), Frederickstadt to Shanghai, Dec. 2, 5 N., 25 W.
BERMAN (Dutch barque), Bordeaux to Batavia, Dec. 2, 5 N., 25 W.
GROOTMEESTER NATIONAAL (Dth. bq.), Btva. to Dordt, Dec. 5, 12 N., 30 W.
SCHNACKE (?), London to Japan, Nov. 15, lat. 21., lon. 27 W.
CONCHITA, Manila to Cadiz, Dec. 6, 30 N., 36 W.
MOUNTAIN ASH, London to Yokohama, Nov. 15, 19 S., 28 W. [30 W.
THE SIR JAMSETJEE FAM. (B. ship), Lon. to Shang., Oct. 7 (Nov. ?), 15 S.,
BELLE (of Jersey), Cardiff to Japan, Nov. 20, 22 S., 25 W.
PRINCESS, Hamburg to Singapore, Nov. 28, 14 S., 30 W.
LAURA AND GERTRUDE, Cardiff to Galle, Nov. 28, 14 S., 30 W.
QUEEN OF THE AGE, London to Hong Kong, Nov. 15, 22 N., 23 W.
JEANNIE LOUTIT, Tyne to Singapore, Dec. 11, 1 N., 22 W.
MARANON, Liverpool to Batavia, Nov. 26, 19 S., 33 W.
GUTTENBERG, Batavia to Rotterdam, Nov. 26, 7 S., 14 W.
HILORION, Cardiff to Galle, Dec. 3, 4 N., 22 W.
DORCHESTER, Liverpool (?) to Shanghai, Dec. 5, 4 N., 31 W.
ITALIA (ship), Havana to Hong Kong, Nov. 20, 24 S., 22 W.
BENARES, Bangkok to Falmouth, Oct. 28.
EARL OF MORRO (?), from Singapore, 64 days out, Nov. 20, 29 S., 9 E.
ARGONAUT, Shanghai to New York, Nov. 27, 32 S., 18 E.
ZEPHIR, Batavia to Rotterdam, Nov. 1, 28 S., 56 E.
EUDORA, Samarang to Rotterdam, Nov. 12, 31 S., 31 E.
COUNTY OF AYR, Sumatra to Belgium, Nov 19, 31 S., 39 E.
HINDOSTAN, from Foochow, Nov. 12, 27 S., 5 E.
TORONTO, Singapore to Liverpool, Dec 8, 19 S., 3 W.
STANLEY CASTLE, Shanghai to New York, Nov. 21, 31 S., 36 E.
FRODE, Foochow to London, October 25, 16 S., 74 E.
ALFREDO, Singapore to Falmouth, Nov. 15, 28 S., 45 E.
ALEXANDRA, Cardiff to Singapore, Nov. 17, 4 N., 26 W.
TEVIOT, London to Colombo, Dec. 2, on the Line, 30 W.
ALSEN (Ger. ship), Cardiff to Hong Kong, Nov. 30, 3 N., 25 W.
QUEEN OF THE WEST, London to Colombo, Nov. 30, 3 N., 25 W.
NITO SIN (Japanese man-of-war), Rotterdam to Japan, Dec. 6, 6 N., 26 W.
STAR OF THE SOUTH, Colombo to London, Dec. 7, 7 N., 27 W.
QUEEN'S OWN, Sunderland to Singapore, Nov. 20, 5 N., 25 W.
JOSEPH ROWAN (Russ. ship), Cardiff to Singapore, Nov. 21, 20 S., 31 W.
CONQUEROR, Shanghai to London, Aug. 29 N., 24. 126 E.
BARQUE, No. 2,470, 4th d.p., Cardiff to Shanghai, Oct. 3, 9 S., 144 E.
ALBION, Penang to London, Dec. 7, 3 N., 23 W.
ASIE MINEURE, Samarang to Belle Isle, Dec. 10, 7 N., 26 W.
QUEEN EURS (?), for Singapore, Nov. 2, 15 S., 31 W.
SHIP showing 2nd pndt., No. 0,276, Cardiff to H. K., Nov. 5, 3 S., 30 W.
CHANTICLEER, London to Nagasaki, Nov. 4, 4 N., 22 W.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS.

Berth freight to the Eastern ports show signs of improving, and rates have in some instances slightly advanced, and are firmer; tonnage is also in better request. The rates for coal from the Northern outports are without any noticeable alteration.

Current rates of freight for vessels on the berth:—To Yokohama: 32s. 6d. weight, 35s. meast. To Shanghai: 40s. weight, 30s. meast. To Hong Kong: 35s. weight, 30s. meast. To Batavia: 25s. weight, 30s. meast. To Singapore: 30s. weight; 25s. to 30s. meast. To Ceylon: 20s. to 25s. weight, 20s. meast. At New York to China; $12 to $15 per ton of 40 cubic feet.

The current quotations for coal, &c., are as follows:—From Wear or Tyne per keel.—For Shanghai: £40. For Hong Kong: £32. For Singapore: £25 10s. For Galle: £24. From Newport, Cardiff, or Swansea per ton. For Yokohama: £1 18s. For Shanghai: £2 2s. For Hong Kong: £1 10s. For Saigon: £1 5s. For Singapore: £1 6s. For Galle: £1 5s. 6d.

The Admiralty have invited tenders for the conveyance of 148 tons stores to Hong Kong.

CASUALTIES.

The Wild Curlew, Parnell, from London to Bangkok, arrived in the Downs, Dec. 22, and was supplied with an anchor and sixty fathoms chain in lieu of others lost.

The Eastern Isles (str.), Knight, which sailed from Glasgow, Dec. 17, for Singapore, Hong Kong, &c., put into Falmouth, Dec. 22, with slight damage to machinery.

The Cleopatra, Doane, arrived at New York, Dec. 9, from Manila, experienced a heavy N.N.E. gale, Dec. 6, off the Highlands, lasting fifteen hours, during which she lost sails, and was driven as far as Cape May.

The George Treat, Ginn, from Penang to London, which put into Fayal, Nov. 26, leaky, and with mainmast sprung, &c., commenced discharging on the 30th.

The California, Deinum, which sailed from Ramsgate, Dec. 23, for Batavia, after repairing, put into Plymouth, Dec. 25, leaky.

The Ogir, for Singapore, loading in the Birkenhead Dock, Liverpool, had part of her deck, hold, sails, and outstanding rigging burnt, owing to a shed having caught fire.

Digitized by Google

The Challenge (of Liverpool), from Shanghai, which arrived at London Jan. 1, reported having been on the Goodwin Sands.

The Doon, Munro, which arrived at New York Dec. 20, from Yokohama, experienced a succession of heavy gales from W.N.W. to S.W. off Cape Horn; on Oct. 17 she shipped a heavy sea, which swept decks, stove bulwarks abaft the main rigging, filled cabin, &c., and it was feared that the cargo would be found damaged.

The General de Stuers, from Batavia to Rotterdam, was towed into Portland on the night of Jan. 1, with loss of rudder.

The Marie, Sluik, which arrived at New York Dec. 22 from Padang, reported having lost sails and had bulwarks stove, &c., during the gale of Dec. 18.

The Jonge Jan (Dutch barque), Itz, from Rotterdam to Batavia, which stranded at Brouwershaven Dec. 17, put into Flushing, and would have to discharge there in order to go into dry dock.

The following telegram has been received:—"Singapore, Dec. 7, Carmarthenshire, Foochow to London, arrived in distress, all spars cut away in a cyclone except the foremast, much cargo damaged."

The Bengal and the Milton, both from Cardiff to Singapore, have put back to the former port, and would have to go into dock.

The Dilkhoosh, Gedye, from Shanghai, which arrived at London, Jan. 5, reported having encountered a very heavy gale on the 29th Dec., in lat. 48 N., long. 13 W., during which she lost part of bulwarks, foretopsail, &c.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Eleanor, Maxwell, which sailed from London, Dec. 22, for Yokohama, put into Falmouth, Jan. 5, with loss of water.

At GIBRALTAR.—Sakana (str.), from London, for Yokohama, via Suez Canal.

The Rocket (str.). from Shields, for Shanghai, had arrived at Suez, having passed through the Canal.

Off ASCENSION.—Nov. 22. Widdrington, from Colombo, for London; Dec. 6, Niewe Waterweg, from Batavia, for Amsterdam; 12, Invincible, from Macao, for London; 14, Emma (French brig), from Singapare, for Marseilles; Pebun (?) (English ship), from Java, for Amsterdam. 15, Veronica, from Batavia, for Queenstown; Roslin Castle, from Singapore, for Liverpool.

At ST. HELENA.—Nov. 29, Carin, Gray, from Manila, and sailed for London; 30. Maria Adolfina, Bakker, from Batavia, and sailed for Amsterdam; Dec. 3, Magallanes, de Larrinaga, from Ilo Ilo, and sailed for Liverpool: 5, Joseph Sprott, Dixon, from Shanghai, and sailed 6 for London; 6, Mary Falconer, Reddie, from Penang, and sailed for London; 7, Johan Berlin, from Passaroeang, and sailed for Amsterdam; 8. Pegasu Mackey, from Shanghai; St. Andrew's Castle, McBain, from Foochow and both sailed for London; 9, Euphrosyne, Christie, from Padang, and sailed for Amsterdam; Chattanooga, Freeman, from Hong Kong, and sailed for New York; 10, Pepita, de Lizarsa, from Manila, and sailed for Cadiz; Wm. Poelman, Kettler, from Batavia, and sailed for Rotterdam.

Off ST. HELENA.—Dec. 1, Charmian, from Shanghai, for London; 4 Devana, from Foochow, for London; 8, Indian Empire, from Batavia, for Rotterdam; 7, Canvas Back and Jeanne Alice, both from Saigon; 9, Windermere, from Foochow, for London; 10, Roslin Castle, from Singapore, for Liverpool.

At TABLE BAY.—Nov. 20, Bangkok (str.), Haffender, from Waterford, and left 24 for Singapore; Canning, Hybert, from Singapore; 25, Ariel (str.), Timmerman, from New York, and left 30 for Hong Kong; 20, Nestor (str.). Drenning, from Liverpool, and left 21 for Singapore, China.

Off CAPE POINT.—Nov. 27, Fiery Cross, Middleton, from Shanghai.

At ALGOA BAY.—Nov. 19, Santos, Kleingarn, sailed for Shanghai.

Off MOSSEL BAY.—Paragero, King, from Canton, for Buenos Ayres; Pere (?), from Java, for Amsterdam.

THE BOARD OF TRADE have awarded a telescope to Captain Sokawa Nakaba, of the Japanese steamer Genkomarn, in acknowledgment of his humanity and kindness to the survivors of the crew of the barque Mary Nicholson, whom he received on board his vessel on the 4th of October, 1869, their own vessel having become a total wreck on the 30th of September, about ninety miles south of the Ki Channel.

THE WRECK OF THE "CARNATIC."—Advices from Shadwan to the 15th ult. report as follows:—"To-day the diver went down and examined all the fore part of the wreck of the Carnatic, without finding anything. On going outside the ship he found that a bank of sand and broken coral had formed up all along the lee bilge, the top of the bank being about eight feet above the level of the port rail. It does not touch the rail, but slopes up from the bilge. The vessel appears to have righted a little. About six or seven planks on the upper deck, from the waterways into the midships, and from fore side of post-office, a long way aft, have gone away entirely. In the mail-room there is very little alteration; if anything, the orlop deck has been forced up a little more. We finished the day's work at the fore-hold, but only recovered four bales. Three others burst to pieces in the hold."

THE BEST ROOFING MATERIAL.

BRABY & CO. ALSO MANUFACTURE SHEET AND PERFORATED ZINC, ROOFING FELT, GALVANIZED BUCKETS AND ALL OTHER ZINC AND GALVANIZED IRON GOODS, ILLUSTRATED LISTS OF WHICH WILL BE SENT FREE ON APPLICATION.

F. BRABY & Co.

(LIMITED),

BRABY'S GALVANIZED IRON HOUSES.

FITZROY WORKS, EUSTON ROAD, LONDON · AND AT IDA WHARF, DEPTFORD, S.E.

TRADE MARK ON CAPSULES & CASES

PARTICIPATION CHARENTAISE

LA GRANDE MARQUE COGNAC

LONDON OFFICES (for the trade only)—22 and 23, Great Tower-street.

Mr. V. JOUANNET, Managing Director, Cognac. | Mr. E. VIGNIER, Manager for the U.K., London.

The largest holders of Vintage 1865, and old Brandies of the first growths; which can be obtained from all Wine and Spirit Merchants, or can be procured by them, as large consignments have been lately shipped to all the principal ports of China, Japan, Java, Singapore, and Ceylon.

Blue Label, 6 years; Yellow Label, 11 years; Red Label, 14 years; White Label, from 18 to 40 years.

Samples forwarded free, by Overland Route, to Merchants giving satisfactory references in London.

C. KRAMER begs to inform the public that he has established himself at this place as NURSERYMAN and SEEDSMAN, and is fully prepared to execute any orders for Japanese plants bulbs, or seeds for any part of the world.

An experience of four years in this business in foreig parts two of which has been gained in this country may ensure the confidence of customers.

Orders must be accompanied by remittances or references, and letters must be addressed to

C. KRAMER,

No. 63, BLUFF, YOKOHAMA.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS can be confidently recommended as a domestic remedy for the ailments of all classes and conditions of people. Young and old, men and women, parents and children, may take this medicine with the certainty of deriving benefit from its use when disorder or disease is making them miserable. Holloway's Pills are unrivalled for their purifying, aperient, and strengthening properties. They remove indigestion, palpitation, and headaches, and are specially serviceable in complaints peculiar to females. Each box of Pills is wrapped in printed instructions for the guidance of invalids who readily understand, by carefully studying them, the best way of regaining health. Holloway's Pills work a thorough change in the constitution of the weak and nervous.

THE SAIGON ADVERTISER & SHIPPING GAZETTE.

A SUMMARY of Commercial and Shipping Reports from SAIGON, and a Record of Progress in COCHIN CHINA.

Subscription, £5 per annum, exclusive of postage.

London Agency: THE LONDON AND CHINA TELEGRAPH Office, 2, Cowper's-court, Cornhill, London, E.C.

THE STRAITS TIMES.—Daily, weekly and fortnightly editions; published in Singapore for circulation throughout the STRAITS SETTLEMENTS, JAVA, BORNEO, SIAM, FRENCH COCHIN CHINA, CHINA, and JAPAN.

This paper, which is the oldest in Singapore, and the most widely circulated throughout the FAR EAST, offers an excellent medium for the advertisements of shipbuilders, machinists, manufacturers, patentees, &c., in the United Kingdom.

Advertisements to be forwarded through an Agent in Singapore, or GEORGE STREET, 30, Cornhill, London.

CANADIAN NEWS, every Thursday, contains all the latest news from the New Dominion

Price 2d., post free, 3d.

Office: 8, Clement's-lane, Lombard-street, E.C.

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES.

THIS UNIVERSAL REMEDY now stands the first in public favour and confidence; this result has been acquired by the test of fifty years' experience. These lozenges may be found on sale in every British colony; and throughout India and China they have been highly esteemed wherever introduced. For COUGHS, ASTHMA, and all AFFECTIONS of the THROAT and CHEST, they are the most agreeable and efficacious remedy; they do not contain opium or any other deleterious drug and may therefore be taken with perfect safety by the most delicate constitution.

Sold in boxes, tins and bottles of various sizes.

KEATING'S CHILDREN'S WORM TABLETS.

The great remedy for these disorders in Adults and Children can now be administered in the form of A PURELY VEGETABLE SWEETMEAT, at once agreeable and effective

TESTIMONIAL.

"Batley, Jan 26, 1869.

"SIR,—One of my children, aged two years and four months, being troubled with worms, I was induced to try your Bon Bons. I purchased some from Mr. B. Whitaker, chemist, of Batley, and after taking two only, she voided nine large worms. Two days after another dose, she again voided three more; three of them, the worst, measuring from 8 in. to 9 in. each in length. I consider them a most invaluable remedy, and should be tried by all suffering from worms

(Signed) "JOHN STENSON.

"Witness, B. WHITAKER.

"To Mr. Keating, London"

Sold in tins and bottles of various sizes.

KEATING'S INSECT DESTROYING POWDER.

This Powder is QUITE HARMLESS TO ANIMAL LIFE, but is unrivalled in destroying Fleas, Bugs, Cockroaches, Beetles Musquitos, and every other species of insect.

Sold in packets, tins, and bottles of various sizes.

☞ The public are particularly requested to observe that all the above preparations bear the Trade Mark as herein shown.

KEATING · 79 ST PAUL'S CHURCHYARD

TRADE MARK.

Sold in Hong Kong and Shanghai by Watson and Co.; Singapore, Little and Co and Woodford and Schroeder; Ceylon, Piters and Co. and Mailland and Co.; Penang, Gazette office.

Digitized by Google

THE BRITISH-AUSTRALIAN TELEGRAPH COMPANY, LIMITED.

In connection with The Falmouth, Gibraltar, and Malta; The Anglo-Mediterranean; The British-Indian Submarine; The British-Indian Extension; and the China Submarine Telegraph Companies (Limited).

CAPITAL £660,000, IN 66,000 SHARES OF £10 EACH,

Of which £120,000 will be taken in Fully-paid Shares by the Contractors, leaving for Subscription 54,500 Shares.

DEPOSIT, £1 ON APPLICATION, AND £2 ON ALLOTMENT.

The Balance, £7 per Share, to be paid by Instalments not exceeding £3 per Share, at intervals of not less than Three Months, commencing 1st July, 1870.

DIRECTORS.

CHAIRMAN—The Right Hon. Viscount MONCK.

Lord WILLIAM MONTAGU HAY, Chairman of the Anglo-Mediterranean Telegraph Company.
The Right Hon. WILLIAM NATHANIEL MASSEY, Chairman of the British-Indian Extension Telegraph Company.
Sir JAMES ANDERSON, Managing Director Anglo-Mediterranean Telegraph Company, &c.
JOHN PENDER, Esq., Chairman of the Falmouth, Gibraltar, and Malta, the British-Indian Submarine, and the China Submarine Telegraph Companies.
WILLIAM McARTHUR, Esq., M.P. (Messrs. W. and A. McArthur), Coleman-street.
CHARLES WM. EARLE, Esq., Managing Director.

Consulting Electrician—FLEEMING JENKIN, Esq.

Engineers—LATIMER CLARK, Esq.; HENRY CHARLES FORDE, Esq.

Bankers—THE CONSOLIDATED BANK, 52, Threadneedle-street. | Solicitors—Messrs. FRESHFIELDS, 5, Bank-buildings, London.

Secretary (pro tem.)—T. H. WEDDELL, Esq.

Offices—No. 100, Palmerston-buildings, Old Broad-street, E.C.

This Company has been formed to establish Telegraphic communication with the Colonies of Australia, Tasmania and New Zealand. It is considered that such an enterprise can only be successfully undertaken in connection with the Companies who will be the proprietors of the direct Submarine Telegraph lines between England, India, and Singapore, and accordingly exclusive arrangements have been made with them for working the whole Line between England and Australia at through rates, and under such management as will practically place the conduct of the traffic throughout in charge of a single Committee of Directors, comprising representatives from all the Companies concerned.

It is anticipated that by these means undue competition will be avoided, and the business be carried on to the satisfaction of the Shareholders and to the public.

It is proposed to lay a Cable, 563 miles in length, from Singapore, the terminus of the British Indian Extension Telegraph Company, to Batavia, from whence the Dutch lines extend to the south-eastern extremity of Java. From this point in Java, the second section, consisting of a Cable 1,163 miles in length, will be laid to Port Darwin, in Australia, touching at Timor. From Port Darwin to Burketown, in Queensland, a distance of 800 miles, a Land Line will be constructed to connect this Company's Cable with the Telegraph system of Queensland, New South Wales, Victoria, South and Western Australia, and Tasmania. Soundings have been taken along the whole route, and are perfectly satisfactory.

A contract has been entered into with the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company, on the usual conditions of their contracts, for the manufacture and laying by the latter of the Cables required, and the construction of the Australian Land Line. The contract includes stations, station fittings, and instruments, and the contractors are to transfer to the Company the steamship Investigator, with her tanks and machinery, as a maintenance ship.

The Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company also guarantee interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum upon the paid-up capital of this company, payable half-yearly until the date fixed for the opening of the entire line.

The contract price is £634,000, of which £120,000 is to be taken in fully paid shares, £20,000 on the shipment of the Cable, and £100,000 to be reserved until the Company's Engineer has certified that the Line has been completed in good working order.

Upon this certificate £50,000 will be paid, and the remaining £50,000 will be retained until the Cables have continued in working order for thirty days.

The Cables and Land Line are to be complete in 1871.

This Company has acquired the right to purchase for £70,000, within one year after the Line to Burketown is completed, the Telegraph Cable recently laid, and now working between Melbourne and Tasmania, and upon which the Tasmanian Government guarantee £4,200 per annum on the terms stated in the Contract with that Government, of which a copy may be seen at this Company's Office

The Land Lines in Java which are proposed to be used for this Company's traffic are in a very efficient state, and negotiations are in progress with the Dutch authorities for landing this Company's Cables at Java and Timor, and for a tariff for messages passing over the local Dutch Lines. In the improbable case of the Dutch Government not granting the facilities asked for, it is intended to raise such additional Capital as may be requisite for establishing a direct Line to Australia, by Cable from Singapore to Port Darwin. The contract with the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company contains the necessary provisions for effecting these alterations of route.

The Cables for this Company are to be of a similar type to those of the British-Indian Extension and China Submarine Telegraph Companies.

The traffic arrangements entered into with the Falmouth, Gibraltar, and Malta, the Anglo-Mediterranean, the British Indian Submarine, and the British Indian Extension Telegraph Companies, provide that these Companies shall allow the same rebate upon their through rate on all messages forwarded over their Lines and this Company's Cables from or to the Dutch Possessions, Australia, Tasmania, and New Zealand, as they have granted to the China Submarine Telegraph Company.

The rate which, on through messages, will, according to the intended tariff, belong to this Company, is £2 10s. per message of twenty words between Australia and England, and £1 1s. between the Dutch Islands and this country.

It is calculated that twenty messages each way may be expected daily from Java and the surrounding Dutch Islands, and sixty-five messages each way, at the outset, from the Australian Colonies.

The annual revenue of the Line, reckoning each Message at thirty words (this being the average length on the Anglo-Mediterranean and other Lines), and assuming 330 working days, may be estimated as follows:—

Messages from and to Java, &c.	£20 790
Messages from and to Australasia	160,875
Together	£181 665
Deducting £15,000 Reserve Fund, and £45,000 for working expenses and maintenance	60 000
There remains an annual profit of	£121 665

Being upwards of 18 per cent. upon the Capital, exclusive of Local and Chinese traffic.

Copies of the Memorandum and Articles of Association, and Contracts can be seen at the offices of the solicitors of the Company, Messrs. Freshfields, 5, Bank Buildings, E.C., or at the offices of the Company.

Applications for shares should be left at the Company's bankers. The deposit will be returned if no allotment is made, and if an allotment is made, will be applied on account of the amount payable on the shares allotted.

The deposits and any subsequent payments will be liable to forfeiture if any instalment on the shares is not duly met.

The following is a copy of the Memorandum of Association:—

1. The name of the Company is "The British Australian Telegraph Company Limited."
2. The registered office of the Company is to be in England.
3. The objects for which the Company is established are:—

   The contracting for, constructing, acquiring, leasing, maintaining, dealing with and working lines of Telegraph between the Straits of Malacca, Singapore, or the Malay Peninsula, and the Australian Continent, Tasmania, and New Zealand, and any place or points in or adjacent or near thereto respectively, or forming or intended to form part or parts of any telegraphic route or routes between those places, or any of them, and (as and when authorised by extraordinary meetings of the members) branches from and extensions of any of those lines to such countries or places as the Company think fit; the establishment of telegraph stations, and, generally, carrying on the business of a telegraph company; the applying for, acquiring, selling, leasing, using, and disposing of such lands, telegraph lines, vessels, concessions, leases, privileges, licences, and letters patent, and any shares or interest therein respectively, as may be useful or desirable for the purposes aforesaid, or any of them; the doing of all or any of those matters or things in conjunction with any other company or person: the registration or constitution of the Company abroad as a Société Anonyme or otherwise; the subscribing for and acquiring shares of, or amalgamating with and sharing in the business or undertakings of any other telegraph company or companies, and the making and carrying into effect of working traffic and other agreements with Governments railway, steamboat, postal, telegraph, and other companies and authorities, and the doing of all such other things as are incidental or conducive to the attainment of the above objects.
4. The liability of the members is limited.
5. The capital of the Company is £660,000, in 66,000 shares of £10 each.

The following contracts have been entered into:—

3rd January, 1870.—Articles of Contract between the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company, Limited and Reduced, of the one part, and the British Australian Telegraph Company, Limited of the other part.

3rd January, 1870.—Agreement between the Falmouth Gibraltar, and Malta Telegraph Company, Limited, the Anglo-Mediterranean Telegraph Company, Limited, the British-Indian Submarine Telegraph Company, Limited, and the British-Indian Extension Telegraph Company, Limited, of the one part, and the British Australian Telegraph Company, Limited, of the other part, comprised in letters of this date.

Digitized by Google

OVERLAND ROUTE.—

The PENINSULAR AND ORIENTAL STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY book Passengers and receive Cargo and Parcels by their steamers for—

	From Southampton.	From Marseilles.
GIBRALTAR ...	Every Saturday, at 2 P.M.	—
MALTA.....	,, ,,	—
ALEXANDRIA.	,, ,,	Every Sunday, at 7 A.M.
ADEN	,, ,,	,, ,,
*BOMBAY	,, ,,	,, ,,
GALLE	,, ,,	,, ,,
MADRAS	Saturday, Dec. 25, 2 P.M.	Sunday, Jan. 2, 7 A.M.
CALCUTTA ...	Saturday, Dec. 25, 2 P.M.	Sunday, Jan. 2, 7 A.M.
PENANG	And every alternate Saturday thereafter.	And every alternate Sunday thereafter.
SINGAPORE ...	And every alternate Saturday thereafter.	And every alternate Sunday thereafter.
CHINA	And every alternate Saturday thereafter.	And every alternate Sunday thereafter.
JAPAN	And every alternate Saturday thereafter.	And every alternate Sunday thereafter.
AUSTRALIA ...	Saturday, Dec. 25 2 P.M. And every fourth Saturday thereafter.	Sunday, Jan. 2, 7 A.M. And every fourth Sunday thereafter.

And all ports touched at by the British India Steam Navigation Company's steamers.

* The following reduced rates will be charged to Bombay:—

From Southampton... £72 first class; £45 second class.
From Marseilles ... 70 ,, 43 ,,

exclusive of transit through Egypt. A corresponding reduction will be made in the rates from Bombay to Europe.

For further particulars apply at the Company's Offices, 122, Leadenhall-street, London; or Oriental-place, Southampton.

OVERLAND ROUTE VIA MARSEILLES.

SERVICES MARITIMES DES MESSAGERIES IMPERIALES OF FRANCE.—FRENCH MAIL STEAM PACKETS LEAVE MARSEILLES AS FOLLOWS:—

23 January 19 February 19 March 16 April 14 May	For	Alexandria, Aden, Mauritius, Seychelles Reunion, Point de Galle (Ceylon), Pondicherry, Madras, Calcutta, Singapore, Batavia, Saigon, Hong Kong, Shanghai, and Japan.

9th, 19th, and 29th of every month for Alexandria.

For Passage, Freight, and information, apply to B. W. and H. HORNE, 4, Moorgate-street, London; G. H. FLETCHER and Co., Liverpool; at the offices of the Services Maritimes des Messageries Imperiales in Paris, Lyons, Bordeaux, and Marseilles; or to Smith and Co., Rotterdam

 Passengers eastward of Suez securing their berths in London are entitled to the conveyance of their luggage free to Marseilles.

NEW ROUTE TO CHINA AND JAPAN, VIA LIVERPOOL.

THE WEST INDIA AND PACIFIC STEAM SHIP COMPANY (Limited) sign through bills of lading for goods to Yokohama, Nagasaki, Hong Kong, and Shanghai, via San Francisco, by the Pacific Mail Steam Ship Company's new line of mail steamers from that port

Passengers will find excellent accommodation, and the fares more reasonable than by any other route.

For terms, &c., apply to the Agents, J. M. CURRIE, Esq., 21, Quai d'Orleans, Havre, or 7, Rue Scribe, Paris; or at the Company's Offices, 117, Leadenhall-street, London, and The Temple, Dale-street, Liverpool.

ARTHUR B. FORWOOD, Managing Director.

ROYAL MAIL

ROUTE, via PANAMA, for NORTH and SOUTH PACIFIC, Central America, Japan, and China.—The ROYAL MAIL STEAM PACKET COMPANY'S ATLANTIC STEAMERS now run through from Southampton to Colon (Aspinwall), by which arrangement passengers for the above localities will be conveyed to the Isthmus of Panama in the vessel in which they embark at Southampton.

Passengers and goods are booked

For the South Pacific, Central America, West Coast of Mexico, California, British Columbia ... ... } By steamer from Southampton on 2nd and 17th of each month.

Japan and China... ... 17th of each month.

For further particulars apply to

J. M. LLOYD, Secretary.

Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, 55, Moorgate-street London. E C.

FOOCHOW DOCK.

RIVER MIN.

THE above granite floored DOCK, of the following dimensions, viz., Length, 300 feet, breadth at bottom, 40, is capable of receiving vessels drawing 13 to 16 feet, as the state of the tides will allow. The Dock runs dry to the blocks, and is pumped out by steam.

The above premises comprise a large Machine Shop containing a

WHITWORTH'S 12-INCH SCREW CUTTING GAP LATHE, DRILLING AND SCREWING MACHINES,

A LARGE SMITHY, &c., &c., &c.

Large Godowns are on the premises for STOWAGE OF CARGO, &c., &c. A large stock of Woods, Metal, &c., &c., always on hand.

The Dock steam tug Woosung is available at all times to tow vessels to or from sea.

JOHN C. SKEY, Superintendent.

SINGAPORE DOCKS.

THE PATENT SLIP AND DOCK COMPANY execute SHIPS' REPAIRS of all descriptions in the most efficient manner, under the supervision of European Engineers and Shipwrights.

The DRY DOCK (opened in March, 1859) admits two Vessels at the same time, being over 400 feet in length, with a depth of water ranging to 15½ feet. A second DRY DOCK of larger dimensions will shortly be completed, and available for the heaviest Steamers.

Adjoining the above there is extensive WHARF WAREHOUSE, and other accommodation, including every convenience for coaling Steamers, discharging cargo, and storing goods, together with ample MACHINERY and appliances for repairing iron steamers, &c.

Apply at the offices of Messrs. PATERSON, SIMONS and Co., Singapore; or 21, St. Swithin's-lane, Cannon-street, London, E C.

WM. CLOUGHTON, Managing Director.

New Harbour, Singapore, June, 1868.

PORT OF AMOY.

SHIPOWNERS, AGENTS, and COMMANDERS are informed that the Dock Company's establishments at the above port afford every facility, at moderate charges, for REPAIRING and SPARRING VESSELS, cleaning and painting iron ships and steamers.

Their large Granite Dock has 286 feet length on the blocks and at average spring tides can receive vessels of 16 to 17 feet draught It has a caisson-gate and a powerful centrifugal steam pump, and an engineer's workshop fitted with lathes and tools, driven by steam: iron and brass foundries, boiler-makers' shop, a large smithy and carpenters and boat-builders' sheds. All superintended by resident Europeans.

Their two smaller GRANITE DOCKS can receive, at spring tides, vessels drawing 12 feet.

Spars, timber, and other Dockyard material kept in stock.

Quarters for officers and a DRY GODOWN for stores of vessels under repair.

CHINA SUBMARINE TELEGRAPH COMPANY (Limited).

At an EXTRAORDINARY GENERAL MEETING of the Shareholders in this Company, held at the CITY TERMINUS HOTEL, CANNON-STREET, LONDON, on FRIDAY, the 7th Jan., 1870,

JOHN PENDER, Esq., in the Chair,

the following resolutions were passed unanimously:—

1. That this meeting is of opinion that the Directors should as early as possible take the necessary steps for the completion of the Line of Telegraph from Hong Kong to Shanghai.

2. That the Directors be authorised to increase the capital of the Company to £825,000, the additional capital of £300,000 to be issued by the Directors at such time and upon such terms as they may determine.

JOHN PENDER, Chairman.

It was resolved—

That the best thanks of the meeting are due, and are hereby tendered to the Chairman and Directors for their attention to the interests of the Company.

THOMAS FULLER, Secretary.

COMPTOIR D'ESCOMPTE DE PARIS.

Incorporated by National Decrees of 7th and 8th March, 1848, and by Imperial Decree of 20th July 1854, and 31st December, 1866.

Recognised by the International Convention of 30th April, 1862.

CAPITAL, fully paid up, £3,200.000.

Reserved Fund ... ... f.20,000,000 ... £800,000

HEAD OFFICE.—14, Rue Bergere, Paris.

AGENCIES AT—Lyons, Marseilles, and Nantes (France), Alexandria (Egypt), Calcutta, Bombay, Hong Kong, Shanghai, Saigon (Cochin China), Bourbon (Reunion), and Yokohama (Japan).

LONDON BANKERS.—The Union Bank of London.

LONDON AGENCY.—13, Leadenhall-street, E.C.

MANAGER.—G. Pietsch.

SUB-MANAGER.—Theod. Dromel.

The London Agency grants Drafts and Letters of Credit, and purchases or collects Bills payable at the above-named places.

The Agency will conduct Banking business of every description with the Continent, India, China, &c., upon terms to be ascertained at the Office.

UNION INSURANCE SOCIETY OF CANTON.

DIRECTORS IN HONG KONG.

W. NISSEN, Esq.,
J. P. DUNCANSON, Esq.,
P. BYRIE, Esq.,
W. KESWICK, Esq.,
A. A. D. SASSOON, Esq.,
E. A. HITCHCOCK, Esq.,
W. LEMANN, Esq.,
W. H. FOSTER, Jun., Esq.

AGENTS FOR LONDON.

Messrs. DENT, PALMER, and Co.

Marine Risks are accepted by the above Society on goods by first class vessels from the United Kingdom to India, China, Japan, Melbourne, and Sydney, at the current rates of premium.

Claims for Losses and Averages are payable in London, or at the Port of destination, as may be desired.

OFFICES:—

Nos. 9 AND 11. KING'S ARMS YARD, MOORGATE STREET, E.C.

OSLER'S CRYSTAL GLASS CHANDELIERS.

WALL LIGHTS and LUSTRES for Gas and Candles
CHANDELIERS in Bronze and Ormolu
MODERATOR LAMPS and LAMPS for INDIA,
TABLE GLASS of all kinds
ORNAMENTAL GLASS, English and Foreign
Mess, Export, and Furnishing Orders promptly executed.
All articles marked in plain figure
,OXFORD STREET, W.

MANUFACTORY AND SHOW ROOMS.—Broad Street, Birmingham.

Established 1807.

HONG KONG AND SHANGHAI BANKING CORPORATION.

Capital, 5,000,000 dols Paid up, 3,000,00 dols.

COURT OF DIRECTORS AND HEAD OFFICE IN HONG KONG.

LONDON MANAGER—W. H. Vacher, 32, Nicholas-lane

BANKERS.—London and County Bank.

BRANCHES AND AGENCIES:

Hong Kong	Hankow	Singapore
Shanghai	Japan (Yokohama)	Bombay
Foochow	Manila	Calcutta
Ningpo

The Bank grants DRAFTS upon and negotiates or collects BILLS at any of its Agencies or Branches; also receives DEPOSITS for fixed periods, at rates varying with the period of deposit.

NOTICE

MORRIS'S DIRECTORY for CHINA, JAPAN, and the PHILIPPINES, &c., to be published on the 1st Jan., 1870, contains a Revised List of the Foreign Residents at all the open Ports of the China Sea, including Saigon, which has never yet been included in any similar work; together with the Time Tables of the different Steamship Companies, Rates of Postage, Local Ordinances, and such other matter as will be useful to all interested in the China trade. No trouble or expense has been spared to make this the most accurate publication of the kind ever offered to the public.

Price, complete in one volume, 14s.

Orders received by the Publisher of the "London and China Telegraph," 2, Cowper's-court, Cornhill, E.C.

CAUTION.

THE GROSS FRAUDS which continue to be practised by obscure manufacturers, more particularly in Germany, by imitating the labels attached to JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s PERFUMERY, render it imperative upon the Proprietors to Caution the public against such nefarious proceedings, and to request their friends and patrons to purchase only of respectable dealers, who import direct from JOHN GOSNELL and Co., and invite special attention to the address. ANGEL-PASSAGE, 93, UPPER THAMES-STREET, late of 12, Three King-court, Lombard-street, London, E.C.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s SELECT PERFUMES—Ess Bouquet. Royal Yacht Club Bouquet, Jockey Club Perfume, Essence of Wood Violet, Victoria Bouquet, Garibaldi Bouquet, Frangipanni, Military Bouquet, The Bride's Bouquet, Tea Rose, Russian Leather Perfume.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Toilet Vinegar, Inexhaustible Salts, Aromatic Vinegar, Aromatic Eau de Cologne.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Prince of Wales Perfume

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Princess Alexandra Perfume.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s La Noblesse Perfume.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s La Noblesse Pomade.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s La Noblesse Soap.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Real Old Brown Windsor Soap.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Golden Oil—Moellins—Macassar Oil, Bear's Grease, &c., for the Hair.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Extra Highly Scented Toilet and Nursery Powder.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Stereodesmic or Dentist Tooth Brushes and Trichosaron Hair Brushes, warranted to purchasers

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Instantaneous Hair Dye.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Cherry Tooth Paste is greatly superior to any tooth powder, gives the teeth a pearl-like whiteness, protects the enamel from decay, and imparts a pleasing fragrance to the breath.

Orders executed on receipt of 10 per cent. of the amount in cash, the balance being drawn for through a Banker.

Liebig Company's Extract of Meat.

AMSTERDAM EXHIBITION, 1869, FIRST PRIZE, being above the Gold Medal. Supplied to the British, French, Prussian, Russian, Italian, Dutch and other Governments. One pint of fine flavoured Beef-tea at 2½d. Most convenient and economic "stock."

CAUTION. Only sort warranted genuine by the Inventor, Baron Liebig, whose signature is on every genuine Jar.

Ask for LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT, and NOT for Liebig's Extract of Meat.

PRICE'S

BENZODYNE AN INTERNAL STYPTIC of great value. In Cholera, Diarrhœa, and Dysentery this medicine far surpasses any other, having a peculiar mechanical power of putting a sudden stop to wasting diseases. Chronic Cough and blood spitting are immediately relieved by it, as well as pain and debility of every kind. Prepared by Mr. PRICE, Analytical Chemist, 2, Lower Seymour-street, and 30, Duke-street, Portman-square, London; and sold by Chemists all over the world, in bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., 11s., and 22s., or in dispensing bottles at 5s., 10s., and 20s. each

Digitized by Google

TANJONG PAGAR DOCK COMPANY

(LIMITED).

VICTORIA DOCK, SINGAPORE.

This Company's Granite DRY DOCK, 450 feet in length, 65 feet width of entrance, and 20 feet depth of water on the sill, was OPENED on the 17th October, 1868. In the high tides of the North-East Monsoon there is a foot to eighteen inches more water.

In connection with the Dock is a complete range of workshops, fitted with steam machinery, driving all descriptions of engineers' tools required in the construction and repair of vessels and machinery, and a foundry for iron and brass castings.

The Company's extensive Wharves and Godowns for receiving and storing cargo immediately adjoin the Dock.

Having an efficient European staff in each department, the Company is in a position to guarantee the best workmanship, executed with every possible despatch, as well as low rates of charges.

These advantages, and the great facilities which the proximity of the Dock to the town offers for the transport of materials, &c., enable this Company to adopt a very low scale of charges for ships' work of all classes.

LONDON AGENTS.

Messrs. MACTAGGART, TIDMAN, and CO., 34, Great St. Helens.

E. M. SMITH, Manager.

MAIL ROUTE FOR CALIFORNIA, JAPAN, AND CHINA. VIA PANAMA.

THE PACIFIC MAIL STEAM SHIP COMPANY despatch their splendid side-wheel steamers from NEW YORK on the 5th and 21st, and from PANAMA on the 13th and 29th of every month for SAN FRANCISCO (calling at ACAPULCO and MANZANILLA en route), thence to YOKOHAMA, HIOGO, NAGASAKI, SHANGHAI, and HONG KONG, on the 1st of every month. Passengers from England may connect with this line at New York by any of the various lines of steamers from Liverpool, Glasgow, Southampton, or Havre.

Passengers by this line are less than ten days in the tropics.

SANDWICH ISLANDS and BRITISH COLUMBIA.—The steamers of the North Pacific Transportation Company leave San Francisco at regular intervals for those countries.

H. STARR and Co., Agents, 22, Moorgate-street, London.

UNION PACIFIC RAILWAY.—THROUGH LINE from NEW YORK to SAN FRANCISCO.

San Francisco, in 18 days from England.
Japan ..... in 38 " "
China ..... in 44 " "

Passengers for California and intermediate points on this road may now be booked through from England at the established rates of fare; and from San Francisco to Japan, China, &c., by the magnificent steamers the Pacific Mail Company.

For Rates, Tickets, &c., apply to H. STARR and Co. Agents, 22, Moorgate-street, London.

CHINA AND JAPAN.

THE following high-classed Clipper VESSELS will be despatched as under:—

Port.	Ship.	Class.	Dock.	Last Shipping Day.
Shanghai ..	Weymouth..	A1 12 yr.	E I D.	With des.
Do.	J.R.Worcstr.	A1 12 yr	E.I.D.	To follow
Nagasaki & Chefoo ...	Zohrab (new)	A1 9 yr.	E.I.D.	With des.

For Freight or Passage apply to NORRIS and JOYNER, 60, Cornhill, E C.

JOHN C. CAMPBELL will despatch the following splendid VESSELS:—

Destina'	Ships	Tns.	Class.	Dock.	Sailing about
Colomb	iverIndus	1045	AA1	W.I.D.	Jan. 20
Do.	Jeraldine
	Paget ...	1200	A1	W.I.D.	To fol.

No. 22, Great St. Helen's, E.C.

PENANG, SINGAPORE, CHINA, AND JAPAN.

ROBERTSON and CO. will despatch the following first-class clipper VESSELS:—

Destination.	Ships.	Class.	Dock.	Last Shipping Day.
Penang, Singapore, Hg. Kg., & Shanghai..	Chu Kiang s.s.(new) (viaSuez Canal)...	A1 18 yr.	W.I.D.	Jan. 17
Singapore, Hong Kg., Shanghai, Yokohama	Erl King, s.s. (via Suez Cnl	B. A1	E I.D.	Feb. 10
Shanghai ...	Flying Spur	A1 14 yr	W I D	Jan 12
Do.	Juanpore ...	Brocklbk	W.I.D.	With des.
Hong Kong	Maiden Qn.	A1 14 yr	W.I.D.	With des.
Do.	Devana ...	A1 13 yr	W.I.D	To follow
Yokohama (Kanagawa)	John Milton	A1 14 yr	W.I.D.	With des.

For Freight and Passage apply at 5, Newman's-court, Cornhill, London; or York Chambers, 55, King-street, Manchester.

CHINA and JAPAN.—The following splendid first-class SHIPS will be despatched as under:—

Port	Ship.	Class.	Dock	Last Shipping Day.
Shanghai ...	Thystira.....	A1 17 yr.	E.I.D.	Jan. 15
Do.	Geraint	A1 14 yr.	E I D.	Feb 10
Hong Kong	Hopewell	A1 13 yr.	W I D.	With des.
Do.	Wm. Fruing	A1 13 yr.	E I D.	To follow
Yokohama (Kanagawa)	Min	A1 13 yr.	E.I.D.	With des.

For Freight or Passage apply to KILLICK, MARTIN, and Co., 10, George-yard, Lombard-street, E.C.

JAVA AND JAPAN.

MORS LE BLANCH and CO. intend despatching the following first-class clipper VESSELS:—

Destination.	Ships.	Class.	Dock.	Date.
From LONDON.
Yokohama and Hiogo.	Harbottle ..	A1	E.I.D.	Jan. 20
Batavia and Sourabaya	Vesta	A1	ond.	Jan. 25

For Freight, &c., apply at 19 to 2, The Albany, Liverpool; or 7, East India-avenue, Leadenhall-street, London.

To follow the "Granville." Will meet with immediate despatch.

DIRECT for COLOMBO, the magnificent clipper ship RIVER INDUS, AA1 1,045 tons register; G. SHEARER, Commander; West India Docks. This splendid vessel, built in 868, is well known for her rapid passages and the good order in which she always delivers her cargo, and from her high class can be strongly recommended to shippers of fine goods.

For Freight or Passage apply to LIVINGSTON, HOLDING, and BRIGGS, 31, Great St Helen's, Bishopsgate-street, E C.; or to JOHN C. CAMPBELL, 22, Great St. Helen's, Bishopsgate-street, E.C.

To sail on the 12th.

FOR HONG KONG, the well-known clipper DUNMAIL, A1 14 years, 771 tons register; PETER THOMPSON, Commander; East India Docks.

For Freight or Passage, apply to SHAW, MAXTON, and Co., 2, Royal Exchange-buildings, London, E.C.

Regular Line of Pack t Ship.

FOR HONG KONG, the well-known clipper SCAWFELL, A1 13 years, 826 tons register; R. THOMSON, Commander; East India Docks.

For Freight or Passage, apply to SHAW, MAXTON, and Co., 2, Royal Exchange-buildings, London, E.C.

FOR SHANGHAI, the well-known clipper CLARA, A1 13 years, 938 tons register; THOMAS POWER, Commander; East India Docks. Has a full poop, with superior accommodation for passengers.

For Freight or Passage apply to SHAW, MAXTON, and Co., 2, Royal Exchange-buildings, London, E.C.

THE CHINA & JAPAN AGENCY.

For the Purchase and Shipment of Goods of all kinds to Ports in China, Japan, the Straits Settlements, &c. Orders for Furniture, Stores, Books, and Personal Requirements of every description promptly executed, either by Overland Route or Clipper Sailing Vessels. The articles in all cases are carefully selected by persons who have had personal experience of the wants of residents in China and Japan. Orders should be accompanied either by a remittance, or a reference for payment in London. All communications to be addressed, and remittances made payable, to

THE MANAGER,

CHINA & JAPAN AGENCY

2, COWPER'S-COURT, CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C.

Printed for the Proprietors by WOODFALL and KINDER, Milford-lane, Strand, W.C., and published by JAMES WEST, at the Office of the "LONDON AND CHINA TELEGRAPH," 2, Cowper's-court, Cornhill in the parish of St. Michael's, in the City of London.—Monday, Jan. 10, 1870.

Digitized by Google

FRENCH MAIL EDITION.

The London and China Telegraph.

JAPAN HERALD, AND JOURNAL OF THE EASTERN ARCHIPELAGO.

PUBLISHED ON THE ARRIVAL OF THE FORTNIGHTLY ENGLISH, AND MONTHLY FRENCH MAILS FROM CHINA JAPAN &c.

IN CONNECTION WITH THE "LONDON AND CHINA EXPRESS." A SUMMARY OF NEWS FOR THE OUTWARD MAILS.

VOL. XII.—No. 339.] LONDON, MONDAY, JAN. 17, 1870. [Price 9d., with Sup., 1s. 3d.—Sub. 30s. per ann., postage included. Sup. 12s. extra.

Latest Advices.

Ports.	Outward. From London.	Outward. Arrived out.	Homeward. Received this day.
Japan.—Yokohama	Oct. 8	Dec. 1	Dec. 2
Yedo	—	—	Dec. 1
Osaka and Hiogo	—	—	Nov. 26
Hakodadi
Nagasaki	—	—	Nov. 28
China — Peking
Tien-tsin	—	—	Nov. 22
Chefoo
New-chwang
Hankow	Sept. 30	Nov. 24	Nov 27
Kiu-kiang
Chin-kiang
Shanghai	Oct. 8	Nov. 27	Dec. 1
Ningpo	—	—	Nov. 28
Foochow	Oct. 8	Nov. 28	Nov. 30
Formosa
Amoy	—	—	Dec. 4
Swatow
Hong Kong	Oct. 22	Dec. 4	Dec. 7
Canton	—	—	Dec. 6
Macao	—	—	Dec. 6
Philippines—
Manila
Cochin-China—
Saigon	Oct. 28	Dec. 5	Dec. 12
Siam — Bangkok	—	—	Dec. 7
Borneo—Labuan	—	—	Dec. 8
Sarawak	—	—	Dec. 9
Java — Batavia	—	—	Dec. 10
Samarang	—	—	Dec. 9
Sourabaya	—	—	Dec. 8
Malacca Straits—
Singapore	—	—	Dec. 15
Penang	—	—	Dec. 12
Ceylon—Galle	Nov. 25	Dec. 20	Dec. 23
Colombo	Nov. 25	Dec. 21	Dec. 22

THE MAILS, &c.

The present inward mail is delivered on its due date. The Massilia, with the heavy portion of the last P. and O. mail, arrived at Southampton on Saturday. The despatches by the Pacific mail, leaving Yokohama Dec. 2, were delivered this morning. No later telegrams have been received from China; the Indian wires are again working badly, some messages now coming in having been eighteen days in transmission from Galle.

List of Passengers.

PASSENGERS INWARD.

Per Pacific Mail Company's steamer China, at San Francisco, Dec. 26 (omitted in our last) —Mrs. Bridgens, Mrs. G. B. Oglesby, Baron Herbert, O. Esche, John Jones, Miss Rosa Barrondez, H. Schumann, wife and child, and two servants, W. H. Regensberger, M. Mendelson, Joseph W. Harper, Capt. Hutchinson, wife, and child, Hyashi, Thomas Stanley, G. Baptista, J. Senahan, P. Quigley, John Fletcher, Henry Somers, Michael Mulcahy, Mr. Woods, G. Vogliasso, G. B. White, W. M. Boyland, Fritz Jungi, W. Peshill, David Wilson, John A. Lamb.

By this mail to Marseilles, per Messageries Imperiales str. Moeris, arrived Jan 14 —From Yokohama: Messrs. Andrei, Laplace, and Caulet, Messrs. Ortmans, Moremburg. From Hong Kong: Messrs. Comi, Brumische, Guerineaux, Mr. and Mrs. Elizald. From Batavia: Messrs. Lucassen, Brinnier, Heckel, Flugi, Mdme. Guillisen. From Singapore: Mr. Orr. From Galle: Colonel Gowler.

PASSENGERS OUTWARD.

Per P. and O. steamer Nyanza, from Southampton, Jan. 8.—To Ceylon: Mr. G. A. Talbot, Mr. and Mrs. Folkard, Mr. Hill, and one second-class passenger.

Per P. and O. steamer Bangalore, from Marseilles, Jan. 16.—To Ceylon: Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Elliott.

Per P. and O. steamer from Suez, Jan. 23.—To Hong Kong: Mr. C. Schlesicke, Mr. A. Strack. To Singapore: Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Remé. To Ceylon (en route for Melbourne): Mr. Jas. Macfarlane, Mr. John Macfarlane.

Per P. and O. steamer Tanjore, from Southampton, Jan. 22.—To Shanghai: Mr C. Y. McViccar, Mr. T. G. Smith. To Singapore: Mr. R. G. Hurst, Mr. Baker. To Ceylon: Mr. E. England, Miss A. Robinson, Mr. F. M. Mackwood.

Per P. and O. steamer Pera, from Marseilles, Jan. 30.—To Hong Kong: Mr. A. Paterson. To Penang: Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Evans. To Ceylon: Mrs. Russell, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Kendrew and child.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

The French mail, delivered this morning, left Yokohama on Nov. 28, and simultaneously with it we receive despatches by the Pacific mail up to Dec. 2. The latest advices from home were to Oct 8, received Dec. 1., and London telegrams to Nov. 3 were received by the Pacific steamer, which arrived Nov. 30. The Japan Times gives the following summary of news:—

Political affairs in Japan are in statu quo, and the Mikado's Government may be now considered as thoroughly established beyond the chance of a counter revolution. The most absurd rumours have been current about Satsuma's intentions and intrigues, which is always the case whenever he has to take his turn in assisting to garrison Yedo or is relieved, and when bodies of his troops are seen on the march along the Tokaido to or from their duty. We need hardly say that they are utterly without foundation.

By no means a despicable piece of evidence of the power of the Government to preserve peace and order in the country is afforded by the unmolested passage from Kioto to Yedo of the very slightly guarded train in attendance on the Mikado's young consort, who passed through Kanagawa last week. Ten times the number of soldiers guarded a daimio, in the days of the Shiogoon, than were thought necessary for the safety of the Empress. The procession, indeed, was of such simple, modest proportions that, for the mere spectator, it did not repay the trouble of walking from Yokohama to the Tokaido. It was all the more interesting, for that very reason, to those who look below the surface of things.

Our native landlords promise to commence at last the fulfilment of their part of the contract entered into nine years ago, when Yokohama was assigned to us as a settlement. We agreed to pay a ground rent of £76 sterling per acre for the land in composition for all municipal rates or taxes for drainage, road making, or scavenging. We have paid this regularly, but have never had either a street or a drain worthy of the name. The natural consequence is that the soil is now saturated with filth, the water is being slowly poisoned, and such diseases as typhus, typhoid fevers and affections of the throat are becoming common. The best men amongst us have laboured hard for seven years, with untiring perseverance, to get some reform; but the foreign ministers, to whom we have repeatedly applied, have always pleaded their inability to assist us, and our only chance appears to be a petition to the home governments.

We are in no better case in the matter of Government afloat than ashore. Ships are so carelessly berthed that on the occasion of even a moderate gale of wind damage ensues; hulks with enough powder in them to blow down half the town and sink many of the ships are allowed to remain in most dangerous positions, and a British man-of-war has come in with a number of cases of smallpox on board, and anchored in an ordinary berth. A very strong and just feeling of indignation has been excited amongst shipmasters by this wanton disregard of the health of their crews, and the cry for a harbour master is again raised. The Ministers tell us, of course, that the Japanese have no funds to pay such an official, which is true enough. We see no reason why the wrong should not be at once repaired by a supplementary convention imposing a tonnage due to pay for lighting, buoying, dredging and properly regulating the harbour.

We cannot close this summary of our news from Japan without an expression of regret for the loss of one of our ablest, and most useful, and universally respected fellow residents. Mr. John G. Walsh, of the firm of Walsh, Hall and Co., was one of the pioneers of Western commerce in Japan, and both in Nagasaki and Yokohama has earned a well-deserved reputation, both for business ability and public spirit.

The Japan Gazette of Dec. 2 says:—One American General takes his departure for San Francisco to-day—General van Valkenburgh. Another arrived the day before yesterday in the America—General Tom Thumb. The latter and his party gave an entertainment on the night of their arrival. Those who were present were delighted with the little people every one; and as to Commodore Nutt, he kept them in roars of laughter by his singing of some Irish songs and his comical ways. To-day at two P.M. they held a reception at the International Hotel, at which several ladies and gentlemen, with a few children, were present. Their visitors expressed their regret that the stay at Yokohama was so short, to which the whole party responded by wishing it had been otherwise, but stating they were tied to time. After paying a visit to Mr. Beato, the party were taken on board the New York by Captain McDonald in his boat.

Digitized by Google

Sir Harry Parkes has now taken up his residence at Yedo. Count de la Tour, Minister for Italy, was about to leave in the Principessa Clothilde for Siam.

The telegraph just erected between Yedo and Yokohama is to be kept exclusively for Government service.

More forced emigration is taking place to the north of Yesso and Shaghalien, the Government being in great fear of the encroachments of Russia.

In his charge to the jurors of Yokohama, Judge Hornby made some strong observations as to the condition of the settlement and the deplorable absence of local self-government, which tend to confirm what was written by Our Special Correspondent last year. We regret to find that there has been no improvement in this respect. Judge Hornby said:—"As far as I have been able to discover during the short time I have been here, the Government of this community, if it can be called one, is one of stagnation, of passsive obstruction, and of individual and official negativeness. There is an amount of loose immorality, of a careless disregard of cleanliness and health in Yokohama absolutely appalling. No doubt the cause of this may be traced to the difficulty of conjoint action—in words, to the difficulty of inducing a number of people of different nationalities, bound by no common tie of allegiance, to act together or to determine on any one thing, or in pursuing any one course, for the public good; but if this difficulty, grown as it has done here to a positive evil, is not met resolutely and without delay, it requires no gift of prophecy to foretell what must be the inevitable result."

CHINA.

—o—

TIENTSIN.

A correspondent writes:—"His Excellency Sir Rutherford Alcock arrived here from Peking on the 4th Nov., and took up his abode, together with his family, in the British Consulate. It having previously become known to his Excellency Chung-how that Sir Rutherford was desirous of paying a visit to the Imperial Arsenal at Tientsin, it was arranged with Mr. Mongan that the visit should take place during the forenoon of the following day, when Chung-how would be at the Arsenal to receive Sir Rutherford, and show him over the works. Mr. J. A. T. Meadows, the foreign superintendent of the Arsenal, having also previously received intimation of the intended visit, made the necessary preparations, and a couple of railway trucks were temporarily fitted up as cars to convey the visitors and the officials on the Arsenal railway to the several blocks of buildings.

"It had been settled that Sir Rutherford Alcock would reach the Arsenal at 10.30 A.M.; and punctually at that time he appeared, accompanied by Mr. Connolly and Consul Mongan. On alighting from his sedan Sir Rutherford was formally received by his Excellency Chung-how and the civil and military mandarins of Tientsin.

"After the company had taken their seats, the compliments natural on such an occasion were exchanged between Sir Rutherford Alcock and his Excellency Chung-how. After the company had chatted for a quarter of an hour, Chung-how requested Sir Rutherford Alcock to make an inspection of the works. The first building inspected was the Laboratory, and the last the Glazing house; and as the Arsenal is of considerable extent the party went between the several blocks of buildings on the railway trucks. Before leaving the Arsenal, Sir Rutherford expressed himself in the most flattering terms on the nature and progress of the works, praise which was naturally most gratifying to his Excellency Chung-how and to the officials connected with the Arsenal."

The community at this port have subscribed to present a testimonial to Mr. Alexander Macpherson, Commissioner of Customs, on his return home. The following inscription is to be engraved on the testimonial:—"Presented to Alexander Macpherson, Esq., Commissioner of Customs, by the foreign community at the port of Newchwang, on the occasion of his leaving China for England, as a slight mark of respect for his official character, and token of regard for his private worth. 1st November, 1869."

A correspondent writing on Nov. 20, says, "This river still continues open and free from ice off the settlement. Owing to the prevalence of northerly winds, the water in the Peiho has become very low, and large steamers now find it difficult to navigate the river. I fancy henceforth they will discharge at Takoo. The Shanghai Steam Navigation Company being now provided with a very suitable steamer—the Millet drawing only seven feet and carrying 500 tons of cargo—for lightering their large steamer at Takoo, shippers of cargo at Shanghai will incur no inconvenience this season in getting their merchandise delivered quickly and safely at the Tientsin wharves.

"The Chinese officials are in no small state of excitement at this moment, his Excellency Tsung Kwo-fan—the Governor-General of this province—having just arrived at Tientsin, and taken up his quarters in the Wan-tsing-hing-kwan, a large Government caravansari inside the East-gate a short distance. It is said he is making his annual visits of inspection of the public or Government works in his own jurisdiction. From here he goes to inspect the Government war steamer Wan-neen-tsing, built at Foochow, and also the Takoo Forts. The chief object, it is also said, of his coming here at present is to make a personal examination as to the manner of transporting rice by the river from this to Peking in Government junks next season. I hear there was considerable trouble last year in getting the rice delivered quickly at Tungchow, owing to the scarcity of junks; and it is stated that several more will be built this winter for conveyance of rice to Peking. If I had anything to say on the matter, I should strongly advise the rice being conveyed by rail."

HANKOW.

A correspondent writes:—"There is very little to say about the doings of the past week at this dead-and-alive port. The news brought by the French mail, which arrived on the 24th Nov., was not of a very reassuring character, and for some hours after the delivery of the letters and papers the most casual and uninstructed observer would have been enabled, by a glance at the faces of those he met, to decide as to those who had made large shipments of tea and those who had not. Sir Rutherford Alcock, with his Secretary of Legation, Mr. Conolly, and private secretary, Mr. Lowder, and accompanied by Lady Alcock and Miss Lowder, arrived on the 21st Nov., by the Plymouth Rock, and left again on the 24th. I hear that the Adventure and Leven will await the Minister at An-king, and by their presence enforce his claim for the adequate punishment of the instigators in the late attack on the missionary party. I believe an indemnity has been demanded, but this is only secondary to the punishment of the actual offenders, and the arrest and forwarding to Peking for trial of the original promoters of the outrage."

KIUKIANG.

THE LAST OUTRAGE ON MISSIONARIES.

KIUKIANG, Nov. 15, 1869.

On the 3rd of this month Nganking, the provincial capital of Ngan-hwei, witnessed an anti-missionary riot, similar to that which has now become notorious as "the Yangchow affair." In the present instance Roman Catholics and Protestants have fared alike. The house of the resident priest was pulled down, his furniture stolen, together with a valuable collection of botanical specimens. He at once proceeded to Shanghai, when he laid the case before the French authorities. The following are the particulars of the said riot, as it affected the Protestant missionaries:—

In the spring of this year Messrs. Meadows and Williamson, with Mrs. Meadows and two children, all of the China Inland Mission, succeeded in renting a house in this city of Nganking. The house was taken on a lease for two years, and the rent paid in advance. The whole party was dressed in native costume. By extremely cautious measures, such as not attempting public preaching, never singing in their own worship, and never allowing the lady or her children to be seen in the street, they succeeded in passing over six or eight months in quietness.

As the time of the district and prefectural examinations drew near, one of the magistrates (the Ur Fu) called on the missionaries, requesting them to suspend all public teaching so long as these examinations should last. They informed him that as yet they had not begun to preach, and assured him that they intended to take every possible precaution in order to prevent any breach of the peace. In retiring from this interview the officer hinted to an employé of the missionaries that they had better leave the city till the examinations were over. But as that involved removal for three months, at their own loss and expense, and no end of inconveniences, they could not agree to that suggestion. They determined to remain, hoping, by great care, to avoid any outbreak.

The smaller examinations for the district passed over without the slightest disturbance. The prefectural examinations commenced, twenty thousand students were assembled. On the 2nd Nov. an inflammatory placard, written in a few large letters, was posted up on the walls of the examination hall, calling upon the candidates, "on the 5th of Nov. to pull down the dwelling" of the missionaries. It styled them "a seditious sect, ungovernable and dangerous," and also affirmed that they were "unfriendly to the students themselves." Forthwith the missionaries had a copy taken of this placard, and on the 3rd proceeded with it the Yamun of one of the principal Mandarins (the Taoutai), to seek his advice and protection in the threatened emergency. Finding his Excellency out they awaited his return. But on his return he refused to see them, and sent out word that they must proceed at once to another magistrate. Hereupon the missionaries took their chairs and began to leave his Yamun. It was impossible, however, for them to go farther than the outer door; the mob had gathered and was on them. Their chairs were violently seized, and they were saluted with vociferous and continued shouts of "beat the foreign devils! kill the foreign devils!" On this they quickly alighted, and crying out according to native custom, "Spare our lives! spare our lives!" rushed back through the crowd into the inner courts of the Yamun. The great doors were closed behind them, and they could only hear the yellings of the infuriated and disappointed mob outside.

Digitized by Google

Whilst this was going on at the Yamun, another mob gathered at the missionaries' house, in which Mrs. Meadows had been left alone with her children and native servants. There being nothing to prevent it, the house, its inmates, and furniture at once became the prey of the boisterous, thieving rioters. In her fright Mrs. Meadows sought shelter in the adjoining house of their landlord. He refused to let her in; however, by some means, she forced an entrance, and stayed there an hour; when, the riot growing more and more threatening, the kind landlord turned her out. At this time most of the furniture had either been stolen or smashed to pieces, and the work of destruction and pillage was being briskly carried on. The arrival of an officer on the spot, with a few native police, caused a lull in the tempest. That functionary confined his efforts to the bidding of Mrs. Meadows to get her up stairs, and the stationing of a few of his followers at the door. His departure was the signal for a second and more thorough attack; every remnant of stuff was stolen, with every foreign book; native books were torn to pieces, with such articles of furniture as were too bulky for removal. The dastardly thieves even demeaned themselves so far as to pluck the wedding ring from the lady's finger, to steal a sucking ring from her baby's waist, and to search her, roughly and rudely, on the supposition that she had money on her person. Happily no one struck her, and the few slight bruises she sustained were, in her distraction, self inflicted. At length, with her baby in her arms, Mrs. Meadows and her little boy of six years were led by a faithful coolie through the mob to the Yamun, where Messrs. Meadows and Williamson were detained. Being suddenly surprised, Mrs. Meadows could not secure any clothing suitable for removal, and found herself turned out into the street without any covering for her head, without any but mere slippers on her feet, without any change of linen for herself or babe, without a dollar, and without a pice.

The mission party remained at the Taoutai's Yamun till dark, Two boats were hired to take them away; $100 was given to them. with some native bedding; and so they left, under cover of night, guarded by a small military escort, and embarked for Kiukiang, where they arrived on the 9th, having suffered considerably from the coldness of the weather and the scanty accommodation afforded.

This story I have heard from their own lips, and can vouch for its accuracy. This time the mandarins themselves are not charged with complicity in the affair. They are chargeable with imbecility and partial neglect, in allowing a riot of such dimensions to continue a whole day, with such disastrous consequences, without making any proper attempt to quell it, and protect the people exposed. The blame, in this instance, lies on the literary and military candidates, no bad representatives of the entire Empire. They are the cream of the people, the class whence the mandarins are taken. Assembled for examination in any city, they are, pro tem, the greatest power there; mandarins fear them, and none but very powerful ones can control them. It is also undeniably true that the present instance is not one of religious persecution. The head and front of the offence is to be found in the fact that the missionaries were foreigners. It is not true that the Chinese, as a people, are well disposed to us. The reverse is the case. Of course they vary according to their acquaintance with us, or the benefits they have received from us; or they vary in certain districts, some being more mild and peaceable than others; but take the mass, and love for foreigners stands below zero.

What I have related above is simply an outburst of this national antipathy. It speaks badly, to say the least, for their high state of civilisation, and is disreputable alike to people and rulers. Surely a nation that cannot speak of other nations without insulting them in the vilest language; a people that can neither see nor reciprocate the generous dealings and feelings of foreigners; a Court that disdains to receive on equal terms a Prince of the blood of Britain, does not deserve to be reckoned on a par with Western Powers, and by them to be treated on a footing of perfect equality! How long shall we tamely submit to be called "foreign devils" wherever we go? How long shall Queen Victoria's Ambassador be disallowed an audience of the Emperor of this country? How long shall we be satisfied with such a treaty with China as we would not accept from any other nation? How long shall we forbear while such treaty stipulations as we have got are insolently broken? How long shall we allow this people indulgence in their inconvenient dream of supreme superiority over all other nations? Left to themselves, they will never improve; yielded to, their arrogant assumptions will multiply manifold; weakly dealt with, their insolence will know no limit; but, brought face to face with a powerful, decided, righteous policy, they must and will yield. Yield what? Not their just rights and liberties, as some erroneously suppose, but acknowledgment of national fraternity, of the obligations of international laws, of the binding character of treaty conventions; yield, to treat other nations with respect and justice, as other nations treat them. Such a policy is not oppression. It may become a schoolmaster's rod on the back of a refractory scholar; but it is simply needed discipline, deserved correction, the ultimate result of which must be the good of all peoples concerned.

SHANGHAI.

From this port we have advices to Dec. 1. The outward mail of Oct. 8 was delivered there on the 27th Nov.

Sir Rutherford Alcock was reported to have passed Woosung in the Adventure, on his way to Ningpo, on the 29th Nov. Whether the N'ganking outrage affair has yet been settled or not is not stated; but the N. C. Daily News mentions that M. Rochechouart, who was in Shanghai, intended to go up the Yangtsze with the two French gunboats in port, to settle the matter so far as the French missionaries are concerned, and also states that H.I M. frigate Venus is expected shortly from Hong Kong for the purpose of supporting M. Rochechouart's negotiations.

Is is stated in the Evening Courier that the French Minister, Count Rochechouart, intends to proceed shortly to Yu-yang in Szechuen—the scene of a murder of a French priest and a number of native Christians at the beginning of 1869. A small naval squadron will convey the Minister as far as Ichang, whence he will proceed by boat with an escort of fifty men and two field pieces to Yu-yang. It is said the Count contemplates, besides, several long journeys in Kweichow, Szechuen, Shensi, and Shansi, but the armed escort will probably not proceed further than Yu-yang.

The chief event of the past week (says the North China Herald) has been the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, at which the new treaty came, naturally, up for discussion. A condensed report of the proceedings will be found below. As was remarked by one of the speakers, there seem to be three opinions on the matter, a favourable, an adverse, and a middle one. One party condemns the treaty, another approves it, and a third regards it with mixed favour and disfavour. The gist of the opinions expressed and resolutions passed on Friday was that the new transit due arrangement is good, if it be carried out; but that our previous experience forbids us to expect that this will be done, and that Foreign Governments will need to keep a very tight hand on the Chinese to enforce good faith.

The Shanghai Evening Courier says:—"The policy of applying to the central Government for redress for all grievances against the Chinese is now on its trial, and the course of events during the next few months will show what it is worth. It would be instructive to have compiled in a concise form a list of the outrages against the persons of foreigners, and the circumstances attending them, committed since Mr. Burlingame left China, in order to be able to appreciate exactly the consequent action of the foreign authorities, and the amount of success attending it. Murderous attacks, which in preceding years were almost unheard of, have now become comparatively frequent, and follow each other in succession sufficiently close to impress upon the public that there is danger in travelling in the interior." The Courier adds some evidence showing that the recent murder of the Rev. James Williamson was instigated and planned by the mandarins.

A Peking correspondent of the North China Herald writes:—I hear Mr. Burlingame is coming back, with still latent hopes that the Chinese will ratify his treaty. The affair will probably be smoothed over somehow, by ingenious translations or otherwise. I hear the British Government are extremely pleased with Mr. Hart's conduct. We shall see him made a C.B. before long, for having helped us to revise the treaty. The Customs will be the paramount power in China in ten years.

The Shanghai Evening Courier has the following remarks on the conduct of the Koreans in the case of the Star of the East:—"The authorities of Korea have furnished another strong argument why their seclusion should not be tolerated by the civilised powers. The British barque Star of the East was stranded on the coast within thirty miles of the Russian frontier. The natives of Korea showed every disposition to treat the shipwrecked people hospitably and kindly; but the officials on hearing of the misfortune came down to the vessel and ordered the foreigners away on pain of death. They refused even to allow them to travel the thirty miles by land which would have enabled them to reach in safety the Russian settlement of Passiet; so the officers, crew, and passengers of the vessel were driven to their boats to make the voyage along a rough coast at a season when storms seem to have been of almost daily occurrence. As for the ship and cargo, the latter of which might have been saved, they were plundered and as much as possible destroyed by the acts of the authorities of Korea.*

We understand that M. Dabry, who has for some time filled the post of Consul-General for France at Shanghai, leaves for Canton, where he will replace the Baron de Trincalie, who has been invalided home. M. Dabry carries with him the best wishes of his countrymen.

A meeting of the local branch of the Asiatic Society took place

*The London and China Telegraph some time back devoted much attention to the necessity of steps being taken to bring these savages to reason, but our Government remains supine. Piracy, wrecking, and cruelty to shipwrecked mariners are, we suppose, "holy traditions" among the Koreans, and must on no account be interfered with.

Digitized by Google

on the 22nd November, when papers were read by Mr. Simon on "Banking Institutions in China;" and by the Rev. Mr. Eitel on the "Fabulous Source of the Yellow River." Baron Richthoven has promised to prepare a paper on the Geology of China. Some efforts are to be made to render the society more popular.

A shocking murder has taken place near Shanghai. The crew of a boat belonging to a Mr. Stevens, a pilot, gave information at the United States Consulate that they had been attacked by pirates near the Ruggeds, and Mr. Stevens murdered. The boatmen have been detained.

The Shanghai Club is advertised for sale by auction on December 6th.

The Woosung road may be expected to prove a success in the undertaking, as some Tls. 1,000 have already been subscribed for, without any great effort on the part of the petitioners to the Municipal Council, and but Tls. 4,000 are said to be needed, to lay out and bank up a suitable road along the present Bund line. Property holders along the river bank, who have now, for several years, looked in vain for any return for their speculative outlay, are willing to come forward and contribute, while the riding community of Shanghai, tired of going the beaten round to the Bubbling Well, will do all in their power to open a new avenue to the banks of the Yangtsze

The steam-tug Millet, lately arrived out from England, to the S. S. N. Co., has taken her departure for the north, and, from her appearance while here, she will without doubt prove a valuable aid to the steamers entering the Peiho river by lightening them over the Bar, or otherwise assisting them in the difficult navigation of the river.

On the 9th Nov. a lecture upon Electricity was delivered to the members of the Ningpo Book Club by J. D. Bishop, Esq.; H. M. Consul W. H. Fittock, Esq., in the chair. The lecturer gave a highly interesting account of the recent improvements in electric telegraphy, and in the course of some conversation that followed Mr. Knowlton remarked, that heartily as he concurred in the wish expressed by all present that electricity might soon be facilitating the progress of commerce in China, he thought it would greatly advance that object, so dear to all, if Mr. Bishop would kindly consent to give a repetition of his lecture to the Chinese of Ningpo; he himself would be only too happy to give his services as interpreter. His proposal was warmly welcomed, and we may hope that if Mr. Bishop's lecture takes place it will help to overcome the scruples of the Chinese as to this valuable agent.

The leading American firms here have addressed the following letter to the Shanghai News Letter, as a commentary on the letter of Mr. Kiernan to the New York Herald, which was reprinted in the China Express of Sept. 24:—

Shanghai, Nov. 1869.

SIR,—As a letter has appeared in the newspapers of America and England from Jas. L. Kiernan, formerly United States Consul at Chinkiang, giving his views upon the Chinese question as from a person of experience, we think it proper to state the circumstances of his stay in China, as the best means of rebutting the calumnious statements he has made.

He came to this port in May, 1866, on his way to Chinkiang. He remained in the country nine months, which he spent partly at that place, partly here, and partly on board the steamers passing between the two.

The distance to Chinkiang from Shanghai is 156 miles, with no port of call between. All of China, therefore, that Mr. Kiernan saw was Shanghai and Chinkiang, and the river banks between. The foreign population of Chinkiang, excluding Custom-house people, but including Consuls, is seven. The trade is nearly all in the hands of the Chinese, and there is consequently very little intercourse between the foreigners and the native population, and probably in Mr. Kiernan's case none at all.

All that he can have seen of the people are the crews of the steamers, his household servants, and probably the Governor of Chinkiang on one or two official visits.

Of the foreign residents in China he saw very few. We think he can have known no English merchants of Shanghai.

It was his misfortune to leave the country in debt, a sum of over $1,300 being still due to several of the American firms, advanced by them to enable him to withdraw from it. This circumstance may embitter his recollections.

We do not think this General Kiernan capable of giving any just opinion upon any matter connected with China. His charges against the English residents are scarcely worth even the notice of saying that we consider them unwarrantable and slanderous. Your obedient servants,

RUSSELL & Co.
AUGUSTINE HEARD & Co.
OLYPHANT & Co.
BULL, PURDON & Co.

At a sale of land in Hong-que, belonging to the estate of Messrs. Dent and Co., the following prices were realised:—

	m.	f.	li.		Tls.
Lot 687,	5	3	7	with buildings thereon	600
688,	4	7	3	" " "	240
695,	7	6	2	" " "	890
691,	3	0	7	land only per mow	25
692,	4	5	0	" "	26
693,	4	5	6	" "	43
694,	4	3	2	" "	27
696,	4	4	6	" "	35
697,	4	5	0	(chiefly water)	1
698,	6	0	0	land only	7

437, about 15 mow on the north of the Wongpoo, rear Gibb's Wharf, per mow, 31. The land on South Bank, known as the Brick and Saw Mill Company's field, 66 mow, per mow 7.50.

A Lot of 10 mow on South Bank, below Steamboat Dock, per mow, 3.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Shanghai General Chamber of Commerce took place on the 26th November, F. Porter, Esq., in the chair, when, after the ordinary current business resolutions had been passed, a series of resolutions concerning the convention as to the revision of the Treaty were brought forward.

Mr. F. B. Johnson, who drew up the draft, supported it in remarks of some length, and Mr. Michie seconded the resolution.

On the motion of Mr. Cunningham, it was agreed to consider it clause by clause, which being done, the whole was passed in the following form, with the exception of Clause No. 6, which was lost:—

Clause 1: That this Chamber having received the semi-official communication of the British Minister, conveying the terms of the convention for the revision of the treaty between Great Britain and China, cordially recognises the efforts of H.E. Sir Rutherford Alcock to settle the question of transit dues upon foreign imports, and views with satisfaction the explicit declaration of the Chinese Government of its adherence to the principle for which the Chamber has always contended, viz., the absolute freedom of all such imports from further taxation throughout the Empire on payment of a fixed commutation.

Clause 2. That this Chamber consequently regards this part of the convention, provided it be faithfully carried into effect, as a great boon to the trading interests of China and of foreign nations having relations with her, but considering that similar obligations undertaken in the Treaties of Nanking and Tientsin have hitherto been disregarded by the Chinese, and not enforced by the treaty powers, the Chamber cannot refrain from declaring its opinion that, unless the Chinese Government should be more faithful in the future than it has been in the past, and that the British Government should be more strict in exacting the performance of such engagements than it has hitherto been, the effect of the stipulation will be to increase the burthens upon foreign trade, already too heavy.

Clause 3. That this Chamber is of opinion that the compulsory payment which is the consideration for the guarantee against internal dues should be made terminable by the convention at the option of H.M.'s Government, unless the guarantee should be found effective.

Clause 4. That with regard to the other clauses of the convention, the Chamber views with great satisfaction those which throw open new ports, authorise the working of coal mines and announce the intention of the Chinese Government to assent to a code of rules having the force of law in cases of dispute between Chinese and foreigners. The Chamber welcomes such stipulations as evidences of a disposition on the part of the Chinese Government to shape its policy in accordance with the desires of its own people, and in recognition of its obligations to the foreign communities settled on its shores, and trust that the measures may be considered as forerunners of others, having more important results, in the same direction.

Clause 5. That this Chamber, however, is at a loss to understand the principle upon which the duties on the Export of Silk and the Import of Opium are to be augmented.

The latter article, as now taxed, with difficulty holding its own with the native-grown drug.

Clause 6. That especially in regard to the increase of duty upon Indian opium, as the proposed measure will operate directly to encourage the preparation of opium in China at the expense of the foreign trade, and while it will deprive the Indian Government of a large portion of its revenue without, in all probability, increasing to an important extent the revenue of China, the Chamber considers the increased tax to be vicious in principle and injurious in all its bearings, and pledges itself to oppose the adoption of this clause of the convention by every means in its power.—(Not carried.)

Clause 7. That the Committee of the Chamber of Commerce be requested to address H.B.M. Government, and all foreign powers having treaties with China, with the expression of the views of the Chamber upon the revised treaty.

In the course of the discussion Mr. Cunningham read an extract from a private letter of Sir Rutherford Alcock's, dated 17th June, wherein it was stated that of the Duties "the only amount remitted to Peking is the 4-10ths of the Maritime duties set aside to repay the indemnities and 3-10ths of the Transit Dues. The remainder all goes towards the several provincial treasuries in which the ports are placed for the expenses of the province."

Proposed by Mr. Milsom, seconded by Mr. Reid, and carried—

Resolution 5. That the committee be requested, before communicating with H.M.'s Government, to collect further facts bearing on the manner adopted by the Chinese officials in taxing trade, as well as articles of trade, contrary to the spirit of the treaty and the interests of foreign merchants, and to lay them before the Government with the expression of their fear, based on facts elicited, that the compulsory payment of transit dues will only add a further tax on trade, unless the foreign Governments adopt measures more efficient than hitherto in inducing the Chinese to keep their engagements.

In July last the Committee suggested to the members, by circular, the formation of an Association, whose objects would be to agitate China questions, and represent generally on political matters concerning that country the interests of merchants engaged in the trade. It was proposed that a paid agent should be engaged in England, and that firms at home, as well as those in other parts of China, should be invited to become members. The support received was, however, by no means general, and the matter therefore at present remains in abeyance.

HONG KONG.

The P. and O. mail of Oct. 22 arrived out on Dec. 4. Dates are now down to the 7th. The following are the details of the piratical attack on the Crofton, previously reported by telegram:—

The Crofton, British bark, cleared from Hong Kong for Yokohama on the 26th Nov. and was attacked shortly after by pirates, in the locality of the Ladrones. It was reported at Macao by the crew of a small fishing boat that while at the Island of Montanha she saw a junk lying in shore, the crew of which had landed; with them were some five or six Europeans. The junkmen proceeded to behead them, and having made a large fire put the bodies therein, with the intention of destroying them. The fishermen immediately made their way over to Macao, and landing at the Typa fort reported the occurrence they had witnessed. The Governor of Macao immmediately put a force of soldiers on board the Camoes, and sent her in pursuit of the pirates. On her way she met the N. G. corvette Medusa and the Chinese gunboat Sui-tsing, both of which accompanied her. On reaching the spot indicated two junks were found, whose crews took to the shore immediately and made for the hills. The beach showed signs of a recent large fire, and blood was found at various spots, while numerous copies of charts, bills of lading, &c., belonging to the Crofton, were strewed about. No sign could be seen of the vessel's hull. Chase was given and nine of the pirates were captured, the junks being taken possession of by the men-of-war. Both junks and criminals were handed over to the mandarins at Macao.

Digitized by Google

A later account says:—The hull of the vessel has been found covered with stains of blood in numerous places, and the cabin was rifled and gutted, but the ship's papers were left behind. A boat arrived from the vessel containing the mate and the seamen, who had left her, with the object of obtaining steam assistance. When they left the vessel she had seven feet of water in her hold; her pumps would not work, and the crew had no fresh water. The boats were in readiness, and during two nights the crew had remained in them close to the ship, fearing that she would sink.

Chief Justice Smale returned by the steamer Glenartney, via Calcutta. The able manner in which the business of the Court has been temporarily conducted by Acting Chief Justice Pauncefote has called forth well-merited commendation both from the profession and the general public, and will, no doubt, be a subject of congratulation to his lordship, during whose absence several cases of importance have been decided.

The China Mail says:—A rumour is in circulation which possesses peculiar interest for the colonists of Hong Kong, whether as regarding their political views, their ideas of local expenditure or their private interests. It is to the effect that despatches have been received from the Home Government disapproving the various expenditures which have been made from the "Special Fund" for local purposes; directing that these be borne by the ordinary revenue of the colony; that the colonial yacht and other "superfluities "are to be given up; and, worse than all, giving instructions for the transmission to England of the total amount accruing from the gambling licences. We are not in a position to affirm or deny the positive truth of this rumour, being in receipt of no special information; but we may express our entire belief that directions equivalent in general tenor to the foregoing have been received by his Excellency the Governor.

A circular is in course of distribution respecting the library and museum of the City Hall, to which we are glad to direct public attention. It was originally intended to issue this circular at the commencement of October, but the expected arrival of the Duke of Edinburgh, and the manifest inconvenience which would have ensued by the reception of cases, books, &c., while preparations were being made for his reception, led to its being postponed. The circular is now issued in the belief that a season of greater leisure on the part of the community will ensure greater attention on its contents. A very brief statement is given of the present state of the Library, which as yet comprises only the Morrison and Asiatic Libraries. For a long time it has been proposed to turn over the Victoria Library to the City Hall, but nothing has as yet been done. But it may be confidently hoped, we should imagine, that every one possessing books of little value to himself, and unlikely to meet with any sale, will be willing to aid in the formation of a public library of reference.

From Canton we find the following item:—The Rev. A. Krolezyk has just returned from a visit to the Miau-tsz in Lin-chau. His visit was one of exploration for missionary purposes, but he has learned many interesting facts about the strange people who inhabit the mountain districts in the north-west of this province. It is to be hoped that he will favour the public with the result of his observatinos. A party of three gentlemen and three ladies have also returned this week from a trip of sixteen days up the North River. The excursion was partly for relaxation and partly for missionary purposes. They were well received everywhere, and express themselves as delighted with the scenery, and pleased with the reception they met with from the people.

From Foochow we learn that the steamer Island Queen was transferred to some mandarins, stationed at Formosa. The Island Queen proceeds to Hong Kong to be thoroughly overhauled and refitted; she is then to be put on active service, and manned exclusively with Chinese. The new Sanitarium on Sharp Peak Island is near completion, and will shortly be opened to the public.

H.M. gunboat Weazel was sold at auction for $5,150, and the Bustard for $5,200, to Chinese; the Rifleman was bought in.

The police rate has been fixed at 7¾ per cent.; the fire brigade, at ¾; lighting, 1½; and water, 2 per cent.; total, 12 per cent.—a formidable burden on property.

Marine House was put up at auction, but was bought in for $40,000. The highest bid obtained was that of $22,500.

H.M.S. Rifleman was again offered to public sale, and again bought at a figure apparently beyond buyers' ideas. An intimation was made that negotiations for her sale would be favourable received, but we have not as yet heard of any offers.

On the application of Mr. Caldwell, proctor, letters of administration with the will annexed, of the estate of Henry Davies Margesson, late of Hong Kong, were granted to Messrs. W. Keswick and T. G. Linstead, as attorneys for the executors.

A meeting of the Hong Kong and Whampoa Dock Company was held to confirm the resolution passed on the 16th November. The Daily Press has the following report of the meeting:—

Present—the Hon. William Keswick, chairman; Messrs. Helland, Burrows, and Bertrand, directors; and Messrs. Pollard, Crichton, Pyke, Berwick, Captain Bernard, William M. Morgan, Deacon, Heaton, Kaye, Coxon, and Minto.

Mr. Helland, seconded by Mr. Bertrand, proposed a special resolution, confirming the one passed at the meeting held on the 16th of November. Before this was put to the meeting, however, Mr. Crighton rose and asked whether it was now possible to amend the new articles before they were finally confirmed.

The Chairman said it was.

Mr. Crichton said that, in that event, he wished to propose that the new articles should provide that all questions should be determined by ballot instead of by a show of hands. Captain Barnard seconded this proposition.

Mr. Pollard remarked that he thought this would be found very inconvenient, and it was also against the recognised custom of all companies he had any knowledge of. This very matter was most satisfactorily provided for by section forty-six, in which it was said that after a show of hands had been taken, any two shareholders could demand a ballot. It would be found very inconvenient if all the machinery of a ballot had to be used every time a dividend was declared or report adopted.

Mr. Pyke remarked that at the last annual meeting an application for a ballot had been unsuccessful.

The Chairman explained that that was under the old articles, in which many things had been discovered which were inexplicit, and not easily understood. The fault at the last annual meeting had been his own. In the new articles, he thought the question was very satisfactorily provided for.

Captain Barnard thought there ought always to be a show of hands when officers were to be elected. It was in truth the only way in which the sense of the meeting could really be taken.

Mr. Crichton thought it was very wrong to have at first a show of hands, which was at least unpleasant and always invidious. A ballot for all officers should be taken in the first instance. After some further conversation on this point, Mr. Crichton modified his resolution, so as to read that articles 45, 60 and 95 be so changed as that the election of directors and auditors shall take place by ballot only.

On being put to the meeting, this resolution was lost by a majority of two. The special resolution was then put and carried, and the meeting separated.

Another of the many cases arising out of Lyall, Still, and Co.'s bankruptcy has been decided, and is thus reported by the China Mail:—

(Before the Hon. Acting Chief Justice Pauncefote.)

IN CHANCERY.

The Comptoir d'Escompte de Paris and Another, Plaintiffs—against Alexander Rodger and others, and F. S. Huffum, Official Assignee of the Estate of Lyall, Still, and Co., Defendants.

Judgment.

I have now to deliver my opinion on the third question, which relates solely to the costs of this interpleader bill and of the special case arising out of it.

It has been urged on behalf of the official assignee that the plaintiffs should be made to pay their own costs, it being contended that they have failed to make out a proper case for an interpleader bill on various grounds, and among others that they had an interest in the fund as creditors of the estate. I think I am relieved from expressing any opinion as to whether the case was a proper one or not for an interpleader bill, by the very just rule which appears to have been laid down in the case of Myers v. the United Guarantee Society (7 D. M. and G. 112) that where the defendants have adopted the suit the plaintiff is allowed his costs, whether the interpleader bill is properly filed or not. In this case it was competent to either of the defendants to have demurred or to have taken objection to the bill at the hearing, but they adopted the bill for the purpose of trying their respective rights on a special case instead of proceeding to a hearing.

I have given a most careful consideration to the question of costs, and do not see anything in the case to take it out of the ordinary rule. I can come to no other conclusion consistently with the judgment delivered by me on the other points than that the official assignee having occasioned the proceeding should pay the plaintiff's costs of the interpleader bill, and that having failed in establishing his claim he should pay the other defendant's costs both of the interpleader bill and of the special case.

The third paragraph of the order made on the special case will therefore be:

That the defendant, F. S. Huffum, official assigne of the estate of Lyall, Still and Co., do pay the plaintiff's cost of the Interpleader bill, the other defendant's costs of the interpleader bill, and special case.

Digitized by Google

The following case is also of interest :—

SHAIK ALLI MAHOMED ALLI v. NGO WO AND OTHERS.—The special jury was as follows :—Messrs. T. Pyke, W. Kaye, W. Lemann, W. H. Forbes. J. Vickers, J. M'G. Heaton, and J. Crichton. Mr. Hayllar, instructed by Mr. Hazeland, was for the plaintiff ; and the Acting Attorney-General, instructed by Mr. Caldwell, was for the defendants.

The facts of the case are briefly these :—The defendants are Annamese forming part of an embassy from Cochin China ; and they brought with them a quantity of silk for sale to try the market between this port and their native country. As they allege, a Chinaman connected with the Lin Cheong copper-smith shop introduced them to the plaintiff as a person likely to purchase their silk ; when a sale was effected. Upon the silk being delivered the plaintiff stated that the money had been paid to this Lin Cheong, and he had possession of the silk in question. It was then found that Lin Cheong's man had taken his departure without paying any money, and the defendants were left without silk or money. Some proceedings took place at the magistracy (as it may be remembered), and it was arranged that the silk should be handed over to the Annamites (present defendants), on giving a guarantee to pay the money advanced by Shaik Alli, if ordered to do so by the Civil Court above. The action now taken by the plaintiff is to recover the silk in question ; and the evidence taken on both sides tended to show that Lin Cheong either had or had not a right to pass the silk

The jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff, by which he secures possession of the silk, the question of damages having been dropped. The verdict carries costs.

JAVA.

—o—

BATAVIA.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

BATAVIA, Nov. 30.

I hear that a direct steam line is shortly to be established between Singapore and Java. The capital of the company formed for carrying out the project is fixed at $200,000, of which half is already subscribed at Singapore. The plan meets with very little sympathy here, and I do not expect that the new company will be able to compete successfully with the Dutch India Steamship Company.

The Java Bode, the journal representing Conservative principles in Java, will appear after the 1st of January as a daily paper. This is the first ever established in the Dutch colonies. The Bataviaasch Handelsblad contains an elaborate biography of the late lamented editor of that paper, Mr. Lion. In several districts here committees have been formed to raise a fund for educating the children of the late Mr. Lion. This "Lion Fund" will be a proof of the gratitude of Java towards the journalist to whom we owe the first introduction of Liberal principles in this country. Mr. Lion rendered great benefits to the Dutch East India colonies, and he has died not in poor, but at the same time not in prosperous circumstances. His children will receive the best possible education, and should there be an overplus after this has been provided for, it will be used to promote the instruction of the Javanese. It is said that the editorship of the Batavia Handelsblad has been offered to Dr. Van Hoevell, who is conspicuous as being the first who protested, as a member of the Dutch Parliament, against the principles of "squeezing" the Javanese on behalf of the Dutch Treasury.

The sugar manufacturers in the east districts of Java have protested against the Bill which has been laid before the Dutch Parliament, containing new regulations for sugar cultivation in Java. They are of opinion that the new Bill will be disadvantageous to this industry.

The wet season has commenced, and on the north coast the blue flag is hoisted as a sign that it is dangerous to land. The mail of Oct. 8 only arrived at Batavia on the 17th inst. This late arrival was caused by a delay of the mail steamer Orissa at Galle. Jhr. Mr. A. van der Does de Bye, lawyer and editor of the Nieuw Bataviaasch Handelsblad, has just died. He is much regretted.

At Souracarta an institution is to be established for educating the children of poor Europeans. After the 1st January the French language will be taught at all schools in Batavia, Samarang, Sourabaya, Souracarta, Djocjocarta, Macassar, and Padang.

Rumours are current that Banjoemaas is inundated. The Java Bode has, however, contradicted the report. In several districts of Borneo, Timor, and Cheribon, severe shocks of earthquake have been felt.

COMMERCIAL.

Gum Damar, f.45 to f.48. Cutch, f.60 to f.120 per picul, according to quality. Hides : Cow, 35c. to 40c. ; Buffalo, 22c. to 23c. per lb. Indigo : At Samarang a large parcel has been sold at f 5.30 to f.5.40. Manufactures.—Madapollams (English), without demand. Shirtings (English) : some qualities sell readily, others are dull. Cambrics : There is only demand for No. 24. English Drills meet with a good inquiry. Mule Twist : Holders decline to operate without an advance. Batticks can only be sold at very low prices. Metals.—English Iron in overflowing stock, and cannot be sold. Coals meet with but a limited demand. Exchange.—Holland, 6 mo., f.104 to f.103¼ for Bank bills, and f.104½ to f.104¼ for private. London : 6 mo. sight, Banks, f.11.50 to f.11.57½ per pound ; private, f.11.45 to f.11.47½.

The English ships Golden City and Eliza Thornton are loading for Holland, via the Suez Canal. The Dutch ship Gysbert Karel van Hogendorp is loading rice for England, at £3. The Aberdeen is loading at Sourabaya for the United States.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

From this port we have advices to Dec. 15. The recent visit of the Duke of Edinburgh continued to be the chief topic, and the Governor's line of action during his stay seems to have excited general dissatisfaction.

The Straits Observer says :—"In the first place, considerable discontent was manifested when seats were given in the reception-tent. The officials alone were cared for, and the gentlemen of the Reception Committee, their wives and families, who were justly entitled to some consideration, were left to struggle for seats with the rest of the public. They naturally preferred chairs in their own verandahs, and his Royal Highness, after landing and being received by the Chief Justice and Brigadier, the Governor rushing down to the tent just in time to be too late, was presented to a plentiful supply of empty seats, with a sprinkling of official and other ladies. At the formal dinner which took place in the evening, at which officials and consuls alone attended, nobody was introduced to the Prince, although every person there had a right to expect such an honour. No endeavour was made to make the Prince acquainted with the leading members of the community, but there, as on the subsequent evening at the reception at Government House, all communication between H.R.H. and the guests was carefully prevented, and he passed the greater part of the evening in the bureau of his Excellency, for fear, may be, that he should be contaminated by mixing too freely with the community. Was it for similar reasons that not an officer of H.M.S. Galatea was present, except those attached to the staff of H.R.H. ? Was it feared that by mixing with the merchants they might learn too much, and become acquainted with the real state of affairs ?

"We now come to a more delicate subject, but we cannot with truth and justice overlook the episode of the English clubs. His Excellency the Governor had endeavoured to induce the members to place one of them at his disposal during the stay of his Royal Highness, but as this was contrary to the usage which had prevailed elsewhere, it was not acceded to, it being considertd more complimentary to offer the use of the clubs direct to the Prince and his officers. So soon as the Galatea anchored, the chairmen of the respective clubs themselves took the invitation on board, in order to show the desire of the members to do due honour to His Royal Highness. The officers of the ward room accepted, but the invitations addressed to the Duke were never acknowledged, except indirectly by the Ward-room being informed that H.R.H. would not visit the Tangling Club, which intimation closed its doors to them. Now the Prince, as a man of the world, must have been aware that in society such common courtesy is never omitted except with the intention of offering a slight. But why should the Prince wish to offer a slight to a body of gentlemen of whom he knew nothing, except that it was evident they wished to show him every respect, and to afford him the most loyal and the heartiest reception in their power ? He evidently could have had no motive, and his judgment must have been influenced by the advice or the observations of some person to whose opinion he felt bound to concede, and extraordinary must indeed have been the report of this person to induce his Royal Highness to adopt so unusual a course to mark his displeasure.

"In the chronic war which the Governor, by his public conduct and private demeanour, has waged with the public ever since his ill-omened arrival, he appears to have thought it politic and in good taste to engage the Prince as an ally, or rather as an instrument, and the opportunity was not to be thrown away, even at the expense of his guest's popularity. He was determined that a slight should be offered to two associations of Englishmen, to the community and to the merchants who were prepared to offer the Prince, in this distant spot, the respectful and loyal welcome which Englishmen are always ready to afford to members of the Royal Family, and who had given H.R.H. no cause of complaint. He made the Prince the instrument to gratify his ill-feeling towards a body of men who have resisted and in a measure thwarted his overbearing and rapacious tendencies, and finally he has, very unintentionally no doubt, but very surely nevertheless, shown to the world the estimation in which he is held, when not even the honour of a Royal visit, highly valued as it was, could obtain him admission into an English Club in Singapore.

Digitized by Google

Commercial Report.

—o—

(For dates see First Page.)

IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—The market was quiet for Cotton Goods, Grey Shirtings being the only description in demand. Other Shirtings closed weaker at slightly lower prices, while for Cotton Yarn 16-24 there was a fair demand at improved rates; 38-42 much wanted; 28-32 neglected. Woollens without enquiry, Blankets being quite unsaleable. Metals: The market was rather more active and metals of most useful descriptions were in demand, but prices showed no change. Stocks were estimated at—Grey Shirtings, 58,000 pieces; Cotton Yarn, 8,600 piculs; Taffachelass, 83,000 pieces; Blankets, 42,000 pairs; Coal, 5,500 tons. Quotations:—Cotton Yarn, 16 to 24, $53.00 to $54 per picul; 28 to 32, $53 to $54 per picul; 38 to 42, $61 to $64 per picul; Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., $2.60 to $2.65 per piece; 8 lbs., 4-6, $3.02½ to $3.05 per piece; Black Velvets, $9 to $9.65; T. R. Cambrics, $0.95 to $1 per lb.; Taffachelass, double weft, 12 yards, 48 in., $3.25 to $3.50, single weft, $2.50 to $2.90; Blankets, $0.38 to $0.43 per lb., nominal. Metals: Nail Rod Iron, $2.90 to $3.25 per picul; Lead, $5.90 to $6 per picul; Tin Plates, $6.25 to $8 per box. Coal, $8.50 to $9 per ton.

SHANGHAI.—Piece Goods: The business transacted in all kinds of manufactures since the departure of the English mail had been most limited. Prices for Grey Shirtings were a shade weaker, with only a retail demand. A few sales had been made of T-Cloths at low rates, but the inquiry was not active. Woollens: There had been some demand for Long Ells, though the prices offered had not been such as to tempt sellers. Camlets quiet at last values; other goods showed no change of interest. Metals: There was no change whatever to notice, saving that Bar Iron and the large sizes of Nail Rods were utterly rejected; no business transacted, and quotations unaltered. Coals: No transactions of consequence, arrivals confined to City of Perth from Australia and Kagosima from Japan; prices without change. Quotations (duty paid):—Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., Tls. 1.9.5 to Tls. 2 per piece; 8.4 to 8.6 lbs., Tls. 2.1.8 to Tls. 2.2.2; 9 to 9.12 lbs., Tls. 2.4.5 to Tls. 2.7.0; White Shirtings, Tls. 2.0.5 to Tls. 8; T-Cloths, 6 lbs., Tls. 1.4.5 to Tls. 1.6.5; 7 lbs., Tls. 1.6.5 to Tls. 1.9.0; 8 to 8.4 lbs., Tls. 1.9.0 to Tls. 2.4.0; American Drills, 40 yards, Tls. 3.7.5 to Tls. 3.8.5; American Jeans, 30 yards, Tls. 2.9.0 to Tls. 2.9.5; American Sheetings, 40 yards, Tls. 3.6.0 to Tls. 3.7.5; English Drills, 40 yards, Tls. 3.6.5 to Tls. 3.7.5; Dutch Drills, 40 yards, Tls. 3.5.0 to Tls. 3.6.0; Gentian Shirtings, Tls. 2.8.5 to Tls. 3; Chintz, Tls. 1.5.0 to Tls. 1.9.0; Turkey Reds, 24 yards, Tls. 2.2.0 to Tls. 2.4.0; Camlets, English, SS, Tls. 11.5.0 to Tls. 12.5.0; Spanish Stripes, Tls. 0.5.4 to Tls. 0.8.0 per yard; Medium Broad and Habit Cloth, Tls. 0.9.5 to Tls. 1.6.0; Long Ells, Scarlet, Tls. 6.1.0 to Tls. 6.1.5 per piece; Assorted, Tls. 6.2.0 to Tls. 6.2.5; Iron, Nail Rod, Tls. 2 to Tls. 2.1.5 per picul; Hoop, Tls. 1.6.0 to Tls. 1.7.0; Flat and Round, Tls. 2 to Tls. 2.1.0; Lead, Tls. 5.2.5 to Tls. 5.3.0; Coals (cargo quotations afloat)—Cardiff, Tls. 8.5.0 per ton; North Wales, Tls. 7.7.5; English, Tls. 7; Anthracite, Tls. 10.

HONG KONG.—The interval since the despatch of the English mail had been marked by extreme quietness in all articles of import, with the exception of Cotton, in which a temporary excitement during the first of the week had been experienced. This activity, however, was confined entirely to Bengal staple. Cotton goods were excessively dull, and the business done had been of the most trifling nature, the low values ruling being no inducement for dealers to operate. In Cotton Yarns, Nos. 38 to 42 were wanted, whilst no change of moment could be noted in the lower numbers. Woollens quiet and unchanged. A moderate business was being done in Metals. Tin commanded former values. Lead, though moderately taken, showed no improvement. Grey Shirtings, 8¼ lbs., were quoted $2.80; Cotton Yarn, 16-24, $140; 28-32, $145.

SAIGON.—The market had been fairly active, but at the close it was reported quiet. Quotations:—Grey Shirtings, 8¼ lbs., $3.05; ditto, 7 lbs., $2.57½; Grey T-Cloths, 6 lbs., $1.80; ditto, 5½ lbs., $1.70; ditto, 5 lbs., $1.65; ditto, 4½ lbs., $1.60; White Irishes, $2.20 to $2.25.

EXPORTS.

—o—

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—Settlements to a fair extent had been effected at advanced rates. The stock showed a considerable increase, and comprised about 10,500 piculs in grades ranging from medium to fine. Total export for the current season 3,108,955 lbs., against 4,719,135 lbs. in 1868-69, 4,051,393 lbs. in 1867-68, and 3,522,126 lbs. in 1866-67. Quotations:—Common, $20 to $22; good common, $24 to $26; medium, $27 to $29; good medium, $30 to $33; fine, $34 to $36; finest and choice, nominal.

SHANGHAI.—Black: Operations had been small since the departure of the English mail. Settlements, 3,400 chests, all of inferior and common kinds, at from Tls. 18 to Tls. 20¼. Stock, 18,000 chests, almost all of very inferior quality. Green: There had been a considerable business, as teamen had shown a desire to meet buyers. Settlements:—Fychows, Moyunes, and Teenkais, 19,400 half-chests; Pingsueys, 337 half-chests; Shanghai-packed, nil; total, 19,737 half-chests. Some of the purchases of medium to good teas showed better value; finest chops were still inquired for and commanded full prices.

FOOCHOW.—The demand for Congous, had continued good, and settlements had been made to a fair extent upon former terms. Transactions in Souchongs had been very small, whilst last quotations were repeated. No business had resulted in Ooloongs, and holders of the stocks were very firm in their demands. The W. E. Gladstone sailed for Boston on the 27th and the Tyburnia for London on the 30th November, the former taking some 425,000 lbs., and the latter 1,170,750 lbs.

AMOY.—A small business had been done in Congous, at rates showing no change from last quotations. No settlements of Ooloongs had taken place, though the stock had been slightly increased by the arrival of some 1,400 packages. There were very few fine Teas on offer, and as buyers were not bidding for the commonner grades the market closed quiet. Further receipts were expected to be very small, and the deficiency thus far in the season's supply was 49,000 packages.

CANTON.—No settlements had taken place; quotations were unchanged.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—The market was very quiet, and prices showed a slight decline upon last mail's rates; buyers were holding off, while the natives were willing sellers. The stock was estimated to be about 2,500 bales.

SHANGHAI.—A considerable business for the time of the year had been transacted, the settlements being estimated at 1,000 bales. Prices showed a decline of Tls. 10 to Tls. 15 per picul, as compared with closing quotations given for last mail, and at the rates then current Chinese were willing sellers, and in many cases shippers also. In Chop Tsatlees, "Yah Kee," No. 3, had been taken at Tls. 540 per picul, and "Donkey's" were offered at the same rate without attracting the attention of buyers. There had been more demand for Karshing Taysooms, which showed a decline of Tls. 10 per picul. In Hainings nothing had been done, but they may be nominally quoted at Tls. 460 for "Fat Mow, No. 2." The unsold stock was estimated at about 3,000 bales.

CANTON.—There had been a trifle more disposition shown by holders to effect sales, but they were still asking prices much above the ideas of purchasers, and until values become more reasonable, or the advices from home more encouraging, it was not expected that much business would be transacted.

SAIGON PRODUCE.

The following is from Messrs. Kaltenbach, Engler, and Co.'s Report:—

RICE.—Attracted by our last high quotations, nearly all stocks of old Rice, which were still kept in the interior, were simultaneously thrown on the market, so that this grain was freely offering for immediate delivery. At the same time the demand was, however, subsiding, and new Rice which promised to be soon brought to the market gained more favour. Owing to these circumstances prices of old grain experienced a sudden and heavy decline, which went as far as $1.37, at which rate several transactions have transpired, and lately the article became again firmer. Rates of new Rice for short delivery were, on the contrary, maintained up to the beginning of this month, as first supplies were readily taken up to meet previous contracts, amounting to about 100,000 piculs. Before departure of the mail for China some lots were, however, bought at $1.50 and $1.49, and although on account of considerable purchases for Singapore and Hong Kong Chinese seemed not very willing to sell, we nevertheless hope to see soon still lower figures. The yearly exports from 25th December, 1868, up to 11th December, 1869, amount to 2,560,500 piculs, against 2,244,500 piculs of the preceding year, and are composed as follows:—Europe, 521,600 piculs; Mauritius and Bourbon, 338,650 piculs; Singapore, 261,650 piculs; Molucca Islands, 3,800 piculs; Quinhone and Tourane (Anam), 9,200 piculs; China, 461,850 piculs; Japan, 963,750 piculs; total, 2,560,500 piculs.

PADDY.—The only steam-mill which has been working up to now meets continually with much difficulty in contracting Paddy deliverable here. We quote 85 cents per picul nominal.

COTTON.—There has been very little doing; supplies being insignificant. To-day's quotations are $6.25 per picul for uncleaned; $20 to $21 for cleaned No. 1; and $18 for cleaned No. 2. The monthly exports amount to 2,800 piculs.

HIDES have declined a little in value. Several lots have changed hands at $8.50 and $8.25 per picul for Buffalo, and $11 per picul for Cow.

HORNS.—Buffalo have met with good inquiry, and last quotation of $8.50 per picul for horns of not less than 1 catti each has been fully maintained.

BLACK PEPPER.—No new contracts have been reported. Prices are nominal, $8¾ per picul.

COCOANUT OIL has further advanced in value, and dealers are asking now $8½ per picul.

GAMBOGE.—We have no change to report, and no supplies came to hand; we quote nominally $58 per picul.

LIST OF SILK SHIPPERS TO SOUTHAMPTON AND MARSEILLES.

From June 1st to Nov. 9th, 1869.

	Bales.		Bales.
Adamson, Bell, and Co. ...	70	Helbling and Co.	716
Ashton and Co.	—	Hogg Brothers	557
Barnet and Co.	1,810	Holliday, Wise, and Co. ...	10
Birley, Worthington, & Co.	715	Jardine, Matheson, and Co.	502
Birt, W.	104	Jarvie, John, and Co. ...	391
Bland, J.	199	Meynard and Co.	20
Borneo Company	100	Milsom and Tod	839
Borntraeger and Co. ...	365	Nachtrieb, A., and Co. ...	742
Bourjau, Hubener, and Co.	220	Parsees	87
Bovet, Brothers and Co. ...	593	Pustau, Wm., and Co. ...	75
Bower, Hanbury and Co....	1,384	Reid and Co.	54
Brand, Monro, and Co. ...	2,382	Reiss and Co.	154
Bradwell, Bloor, and Co. ...	23	Russell and Co.	1,332
Bull, Purdon, and Co. ...	8	Remé, Wm., and Co. ...	690
Carter and Co.	1,385	Sassoon, D., Sons, and Co.	232
Chapman, King, and Co. ...	352	Sassoon and Co., E.D. ...	46
Chinese	64	Scheibler, Matthai, and Co.	536
Coutts and Co.	65	Shaw Brothers and Co. ...	715
Cumine and Co.	332	Siemssen and Co.	397
Dickinson and Co. ...	156	Skeggs and Co.	814
Fogg and Co.	25	Smith, Archer, and Co. ...	231
Framjee, Hormusjee and Co.	50	Textor and Co.	638
Gamwell, F. R.	1,033	Thorne Brothers and Co....	119
Gibb, Livingston, and Co...	790	Trautmann and Co. ...	226
Gilman and Co.	657	Westall, Brand, and Co. ...	115
Glover, Dow, and Co. ...	204	Miscellaneous	2,039
Gutschow and Co.... ...	198
Heard, Augustine, and Co.	451	Total bales... ...	26,962

Digitized by Google

EXCHANGES, &c.

[For dates, see first page.]

ON LONDON.

At	Bank Bills.	Credits.	Documentary.
Yokohama, 6 m. s. ...	4s. 5⅞d.	4s. 6¼d.	4s. 6¼d.
Shanghai ,, ,, ...	5s. 11¼d.	6s. 0d.	6s. 0⅛d.
Canton ,, ,,	4s. 5⅞d.	4s. 6d.	4s. 6¼d.
Hong Kong ,, ,,
Macao ,, ,,
Singapore ,, ,, ...	—	—	—
Manila ,, ,, ...	—	—	—
Colombo ,, ,, ...	—	—	—

MISCELLANEOUS.

—	At Shanghai.	At Hong Kong.
Bills on India	300	225
,, Hong Kong	25½ to 25⅝ dis.	—
Bar silver	111.7.5	8 prem.
Mexican dollars	74.4.0	⅛ prem.

Bons, at Yokohama, 338 to 364 per 100 dols.

SHARES AT HONG KONG.

Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank, New, 14 to 14½; Old, 23 to 24 per cent. premium.
Hong Kong Gas Company, 45 dols. per share.
Hong Kong and Whampoa Dock, 5 per cent. discount.
Union Dock Company, 50 per cent. discount.
China Traders' Insurance, 1,600 to 1,800 dols. premium.
Hotel shares, 50 to 60 per cent. discount.
Hong Kong and Macao Steamboat Company, 22 to 23 per cent. premium.

Shipping Intelligence.

ARRIVALS.

At YOKOHAMA.—From Glasgow, Nov. 27, Diana; H.M.S. Cormorant put back.

At HIOGO.—From London, via Nagasaki, Nov. 19, Esperanza,

At SHANGHAI.—From London, Nov. 23, Omba.

At HONG KONG and CANTON.—From Glasgow, Dec. 5, Lismore (str.).

At SAIGON.—From Bordeaux, Dec. 6, Cosmopolite; 10, from Marseilles, Belle Justine.

At PENANG.—From London, Parana (reported by telegram).

At COLOMBO.—None.

At GALLE.—From Cardiff, Dec. 15, Prospero; from Swansea, 16, Duke of Northumberland; from Sunderland, 17, Choice.

DEPARTURES.

From YOKOHAMA.—None.

From HIOGO.—None.

From SHANGHAI.—For London, Nov. 23, John Lidgett; 28, Corea, Dundonald; for New York, Tynedale; cleared, for London, 30, Araby Maid.

From FOOCHOW.—For Channel, Nov. 24, Kali Mass.

From HONG KONG and CANTON.—Dec. 6, for Falmouth, cleared, Royal Diadem.

From SINGAPORE.—Cleared, for London, Dec. 14, Kate Carnie; for Liverpool, 15, Panic.

From SAIGON.—For Europe, none.

From COLOMBO.—For London, Dec. 17, Palestine, Lincelles.

From GALLE.—None.

CASUALTIES.

SWATOW.

The P. and O. steamer Azof experienced light monsoon and fine weather throughout. Reports a North German barque taken into Swatow by a licensed pilot leaking badly; was fallen in with outside, the crew on the point of abandoning her, who remained on the pilot's advice. Pilot claimed salvage.

HONG KONG.

The North German barque Herzog Ernst reports having light and variable winds until Nov. 28, in lat. 22·32 N., and long. 115·18 E. Strong gales then commenced, which lasted until the 2nd, when, having lost foretopmast and topgallantmasts, and ship straining much in the heavy cross sea, determined to bear away for Hong Kong.

The British barque Eleanor Dixon reports since leaving Cana an open roadstead on west coast of Luzon, bound for Shanghai; experienced a succession of very heavy gales from N. and N.E., with an extremely heavy head sea, and was compelled by the severity of the weather, loss of sails, damage to rigging, and the ship making much water, to bear up for Hong Kong, into which port were fortunate to arrive before the present gale set in with vigour.

The French frigate Venus reports leaving Saigon on the 18th of November, and Cape St. James on the 20th, experienced a very heavy head sea, which retarded the vessel so much that with four boilers out of six her speed was reduced to two knots per hour. Put into Camrank; during her stay in this port the corvette Dupleix arrived, and sailed thence on the 26th in consort, arriving in Hong Kong as above, without other damage than the berthing of the head, which was started in the plunging against the heavy sea.

The British steamer China, Captain Rodger, from Calcutta, reports the first part of passage fine weather and strong monsoon until Dec. 2, in lat. 11.30 N., long. 111.30 E., when had a strong typhoon from N.W., which rounded to S.E., with heavy cross sea, washing away three boats and causing other damage to the ship; the typhoon lasted thirty-six hours, and when it increased, bore away to the S.E., for about five hours, after which the weather became more moderate, then stood the course to the N.E. On Dec. 3, exchanged signals with the ship Hermiage steering to the S.W., since encountered strong monsoon and thick hazy weather.

The British steamer Glenartney, Captain Bolton, from Calcutta and Penang via Singapore, reports from Singapore to Hong Kong: the first part of the passage had fine weather and light variable winds until 2nd December, when experienced severe gales, with heavy cross sea, which lasted thirty-hours, then moderate and cloudy and thick foggy weather till arrival in port. The s.s. Kwang Tung arrived at Singapore on the 25th November, twenty-seven hours before the s.s. Hindostan.

The Norwegian barque Saga, Captain Roe, from Saigon bound to Yokohama, reports having experienced severe weather and strong N.E. monsoon with very heavy sea; the ship rolled very much, and sprung a leak, lost several spars, and was obliged to put to Hong Kong for repairs. The Elmstone, which left Saigon fourteen days before the Saga, was seen at sea and kept in company with her for several days.

SHIPPING POSTSCRIPT.

ARRIVALS NOT IN THE TABLES.—Jan. 10, off the Start, from Batavia, for Rotterdam, Maria Adolfina; 10, at Texel, from Batavia, Helena, Mentor; 15, at London, from Galle, &c., Jane Anna; from Foochow, Devana; 9, at Lorient, from China, Diamant; at New York, from Shanghai, Ada; 1, from Amoy, Insulaire, 15, at London, from Shanghai, Charmian.

DEPARTURES.—Jan. 12, from Falmouth, for Singapore, Hong Kong, &c., Eastern Isles (str.); 6, from Lisbon, for Galle, &c., Arrow (str.); both after repairing; 14, from London, for Colombo, Prince Alfred; 15, for Hong Kong, Dunmail; for Cardiff and Singapore, Ferdinand Brumm; 13, from Clyde, for Shanghai (via London), Cutty Sark.

CASUALTIES.—The St. James, Hatfield, from Cardiff to Yokohama, put into Liverpool, Jan. 12, with damage. The Albatross, from Liverpool to Yokohama, put back to the former port, Jan. 12. The Volunteer, Black, which sailed from London, Dec. 27, for Singapore, put into Weymouth, Jan. 14, leaky. Advices from Mauritius, dated Dec. 17, state that the Rota, Hauschell, from Shields to Batavia, put in there, Nov. 30, with damage to rudder, having experienced a very heavy gale on the 9th and 10th Nov., in 41 S., 54 E.; she had discharged 550 tons coals, and gone into dry dock for repairs.

MISCELLANEOUS.—At Port Said, Jan. 12, Sakana (str.), Lobnitz, from London, and would leave, 13, for Japan, via the Suez Canal. At Suez Jan. 13, Sakana (str.), Lobnitz, left for Japan, having passed through the Canal. At Mauritius, Dec. 1, Nestor (str.), Drenning, from Liverpool, and left for Singapore, China, &c.; 10, Appin, (str.) Russell, from the Clyde, and left 11, for Singapore; November 20, Senior, Van Det, from Batavia, sailed for Amsterdam, after repairing.

LAID ON.—At London, for Hong Kong, Fiery Cross. At Glasgow, for Yokohama (via London and Suez Canal), Tzree (str.); at London for Hong Kong and Foochow, Devana.

SPOKEN.—Alexandra (barque), Cardiff to Singapore, 25 days out, Nov. 17, 3 N., 25 W. Buston Vale (barque), London to Penang, Nov. 18, 22 N., 21 W.; Zeven Sterin, Manila to London, Nov. 14, 26 S., 58 E.; Empress, Foochow to London, 44 days out, 4 N., 106 E; Dartsmouth, London to Shangai, 75 days out, Nov. 12, 25 S, 105 E.; Lorton, Shanghai to London, 36 days out, Nov. 23, 24 S., 57 E.; Oscar Mooyer, Bangkok to Falmouth, 28 days out, Nov. 26, 17 S., 81 E.; Amendier (?) (Brit. barq.,) S'dland to Shanghai, Nov. 3, 415, 57 E.; Arospero, Cardiff to Galle, Nov. 26, 15 S., 83 E.; Imperatice, Shanghai to London, 47 days out, Nov. 7, in the Straits of Sunda; Splendide, Madeira to Galle, Nov. 22, 17 S., 86 E.

LATEST TELEGRAMS.

JAVA.

(RECEIVED AT ROTTERDAM, JAN. 14.)

BATAVIA (date illegible, probably 19th December).—Arrack, f.113.50 per cask; 5,000 piculs Billiton Tin sold at f.70¾; Madapollams, Bleached. f.5⅞ to f.6; Shirtings, Bleached, f.9⅛ to f.9¼; Unbleached, f.8⅞ to f.9⅛. Freight to Holland, f. 40 to f.42½. Exchange on Holland, f.104.25 to f.104.75.

ARRIVALS.—Yminden.

DEPARTURES.—Aurora, Bestevaer, Enthoven, Erasmus, Europa, Hoek van Holland, Java, Johanna Maria, Maarten van Rossum, President Plate.

THE Economist of Saturday last, in an article on the new China convention, says there is good ground for the disapproval with which it has been received. Both the good faith and the ability of the Peking Government in promising to enforce a prohibition of all inland duties is to be questioned. The Government is not entitled to our confidence, and the presumption is against their fulfilling any treaty unless under compulsion.

FROM Galle we hear (under date December 23) that the M. I. steamer Godavery arrived from Marseilles on the 19th, being the first arrival from Europe via the Suez Canal.

The Admiralty appointments have been published of Surgeon Henry Hadlow to the Ocean, additional for service at the sick quarters at Yokohama, and of Captain E. H. Howard, who formerly commanded the Rattler on the China station, to the Racoon, now stationed in the West Indies.

Sir John Davis, the first Governor of Hong Kong, writes that the two new ports opened by the new Treaty were always considered of importance. He visited them in 1816.

SIR HENRY ELLIOTT, the British Ambassador at Constantinople, arriving at Osborne yesterday, and received the honour of G.C.B.

WE learn from Nature that the Southampton Town Council have decided to adopt the "A B C" process (Mr. Sillar's) for the utilisation of sewage, and to make such arrangements with the Native Guano Company as may be agreed upon.

Digitized by Google

DRIFTING INTO WAR.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph.)

CHINA, Nov. 21, 1869.

SIR,—There is a reluctance to intermeddle with public questions which besets men who shrink from strife; but there is a duty which lies upon observers who have watched the progress of affairs for many years, to communicate some of the results of their observation to those who are more recently called into action.

You know how, for nearly a quarter of a century, I have been conversant with the course of events here in China; and you know also my goodwill towards the Chinese, both rulers and people. When, therefore, I say that the turn things have taken at home is one that is drifting us, as speedily as possible, into yet another Chinese war, you will not think I write unwittingly or without feelings of the deepest regret. Of course, it cannot be the purpose of the speakers and writers who represent the laissez-faire policy to bring upon Great Britain the expense, or upon China the misery, of renewed hostilities; and they will perhaps be slow to admit, even to themselves, that such a calamity would be likely to follow the carrying out of the views they advocate. Yet it would not be difficult to show why, for several reasons, the "moral effect" of the kind of forbearance they advocate will never be produced; why the most magnanimous and exemplary conduct on the part of Foreign Powers does not "take effect" at all upon the Chinese people, and very slightly indeed upon the masses (for masses they are) of the ruling and influential class.

Take, as a specimen, the Yangchow affair. We, who have lived here long enough to know the way in which such things are managed, understand how it is that, twenty miles from the place itself the people either are in complete ignorance that there has been any "affair" at all, or else they have it so represented to them that the general impression left upon their minds is, "Those foreigners have made another outbreak, and a few of them violently penetrated as far as Yangchow, and even to Nanking; but they were driven away, and are now restrained again within the bounds of propriety."

Such ignorance and misapprehension may seem incredible to home readers; but let me ask them how they would have known anything of this same Yangchow difficulty, and of the manner of its settlement, but for the newspapers which they have, and which the Chinese have not? The peasants of Somersetshire in Queen Elizabeth's time were more intelligently informed of the movements of the Spanish Armada then are the people of China now of what goes on between foreign Powers and their own rulers. It is reasonably to be doubted whether one in fifty of the mandarins are aware of the existence of the treaties, and perhaps not one in five hundred has ever read them through. Under these circumstances, how is it possible that any moral effect can be produced on the minds of a populace so utterly in ignorance of the events which are supposed to impress them? And how futile the reasoning which takes for granted that the inhabitants of Foochow, and Nanking, and Hankow have some Chinese Times, or Star, or Daily News to enlighten them as to what is going on in the world. There is nothing of the sort—not even a weekly, or a monthly, or an annual "Recorder," or "Repository," or "Magazine;" nothing but the so-called Peking Gazette, an official announcement of promotions, transfers, and degradations among the corps mandarinique.

It is difficult for our friends at home to appreciate this fact; nay some will hardly believe, that a people whose books are numbered by tens of thousands should have no periodic literature—absolutely none. It has been with much difficulty, and in spite of most persistent opposition, that, even with the aid of foreigners, a few serials in the Chinese language have attained to a limited circulation in Canton, Hong Kong and Shanghai; and if we add to these one in London, one in Australia and one in San Francisco, stray copies of which find their way to China, there is the whole of the apparatus of a literary and political kind for making the people of China acquainted with current events by means of the press.

And yet there is a keen appetite for news on the part of a few of the more responsible of the rulers. At one of the Treaty Ports where a tri-weekly newspaper in Chinese was first published, it was the duty of one of the writers in the Taoutai's Ya-mun to make a fair copy, in the form of an "official communication of the resume of events which the printed paper contained. It would have been infra dig. for the Viceroy to read a foreign news sheet; but he was very glad to learn, in this less exceptionable way, what was going on in Europe, and America, and India. As to the people—even the literary class, able to read (after their fashion)—there is neither anxiety to know nor ability to appreciate the course of public events beyond their own immediate circle, where their interests are bounded by the consideration—Am I likely to get a better appointment than I now hold when the time for promotion arrives.

Of course there are some—whom a competent authority (Mr. Hart) has recently computed at "from ten to twenty"—who are intelligently convinced that the only safety for China as an Empire, the only hope for the continuance of the present dynasty, lies in a hearty and sincere acceptance of the proffered friendship and assistance of Foreign Powers; but "what are they among so many?" True they are in positions of influence; some are members of the Tsen-le Ya mun (Foreign-office), and some are Governors of great provinces; but they are suspected and distrusted by their own people, who count and call them "traitors" whenever they make any unwelcome concession to the foreigner, no matter how reasonable in itself, or how really advantageous to the Chinese.

Such facts as these show how peculiarly inapt and infelicitous is the phraseology which describes "China" personified (that is, the whole, or at least a majority of the people) as "opening her arms to receive the embrace of other nations;" as "welcoming the advance of progress," &c., even to the planting of the "shining cross" on every eminence, &c., &c.

It reminds one of those impassioned assertions of young college orators, who are fond of asserting that "Greece" did so and so, and "Rome" thought or said such and such a thing; the truth being that perhaps three or four Greek philosophers, and one or two Roman moralists, had done or said as claimed, while at the same time the multitudes of these nations knew no more, and cared no more about such matters than do the Chinese people of these times know or care about foreign politics. Now, what we could wish, in reference to the formation at home of opinions about China is this, that people would not think and write as though there was any Press out here; there is none. Allow me to repeat it, and to beg that the import of the fact may be weighed and allowed for in future discussions about our affairs.

Again, we would ask that it be understood that the "Party of Progress" in China means, at the present time, from ten to twenty men—most of them but half convinced of the advantages of foreign intercourse, and all greatly embarrassed by want of confidence on the part of their "constituents," so to call them; these same constituents being the tens of thousands of office-holders or office-seekers who are the influential class, controlling the uneducated multitudes below them, and affecting very powerfully the actual adminstration of affairs. Quæ cum ita sint, as Cicero hath it, the adoption of a give-back policy, cannot be regarded as anything but disastrous to one who has been a patient observer since 1845; and what we would suggest in its place is simply the maintenance of that prestige which it has cost so much to acquire, and which we are now losing very fast, greatly to the damage of all parties concerned. Our headway is already stopped, and very soon we shall be drifting backwards, unless wiser counsels prevail. A series of petty provocations in the provinces, futile negotiations thereon at Peking, ending in some insolent treatment of our representatives, when the "powers that be" think themselves strong enough to make a stand, relying on the resources of those arsenals now established for them, by foreign agents, at Canton, Foochow, and Shanghai, not to speak of camps of instruction (under foreign officers) at Ningpo, Shanghai, and Tientsin—all this is as plain a sequel to the present policy as anything, short of demonstration, can well be, and the result will be another war in about two years, more or less. We commend this view of affairs to the consideration of those who are accustomed to join in the supplication, "Give peace in our time, O Lord." How is our prestige to be maintained? By patience and pressure. Patience, calm and reasonable, that does not expect great results in a moment; and pressure, friendly but firm, which demands that some beginnings shall be made in accordance with treaty obligations, with those professions of readiness to advance which China's chosen ambassador has uttered.

Another thing ought to be understood. It is needful to a Chinese mandarin to have a peremptory requisition made upon him by a foreign Power—that is, by its representative, backed by an adequate force. He can then say to his associates and satellites (who are the "power behind the throne"), those gentry, and literati, and expectants of office—that influential class of whom I have already spoken—he can say to them, "You see that I cannot help myself. We must needs yield; resistance is impossible." And thus he is enabled to do what he (if belonging to that "ten or twenty" who form the party of progress) is himself disposed to do but dare not venture upon, lest he should lose caste with his own still reluctant countrymen surrounding him.

Tseng-kwo-fan, at Nanking, with the Rinaldo before his eyes, can afford to be civil to a British Consul; but with the Rinaldo withdrawn he becomes supercilious. Again, when the Rodney appears civility returns, and he does what is reasonably required of him, being, no doubt, himself relieved by the evident necessity for yielding.

Now, it is of no use for our good friends at home to say—"This is a very extraordinary way of dealing with a friendly power!" It is extraordinary and anomalous, and undesirable; but so are all our circumstances out here; and it is idle, foolish—nay, culpable—to deal with great questions, such as our intercourse with the Chinese, on a theory entirely inconsistent with the facts of the case. We do not, we cannot, trust the Chinese to punish crimes committed by our people on Chinese territory; all our treaties proceed on that principle. It is not to be wondered at, therefore, that—as in the administration of justice so in the conduct of negotiations—anomalous methods must be adopted; and, if we insist on pursuing regular methods where rules do not apply we must take the consequences, which in this case are a speedy renewal of hostilities. To accelerate this it will only be necessary to continue a little longer in the present method. Let the naval force be weakened and the officers enjoined to be inactive; let the more energetic commanders be withdrawn, and their successors elaborately instructed to keep quiet; let the Consuls who "deserve well of their country" be discountenanced, and the new Minister at Peking (whoever that unfortunate man may be) required to maintain an entente cordiale, no matter what comes; let this course be persevered in, and a very short time will suffice to show how easy it is to get another costly war upon our hands—a war which may again cause (as a Chinese war has before now caused) the Ministerial benches to be vacated by one set of administrators and occupied by another.

Digitized by Google

Accept these forewarnings from CASSANDER.

MEETING OF MERCHANTS IN THE CHINA TRADE.

A highly important and influential meeting assembled yesterday at the offices of Messrs. Matheson and Co., to consider the clauses in the Convention lately concluded by Sir Rutherford Alcock with the Chinese Government.

Mr. HUGH MATHESON, on being called to the chair, very concisely indicated the object of the meeting, and said that in condemning some clauses of the Treaty there were many that showed very distinct advantages, and that they should not be overlooked.

Mr. REISS, in proposing the first resolution, dwelt at considerable length on the manner in which the Treaty of 1858 had worked, especially in regard to the inland transit dues on our imports, which had acted most prejudicially on the interest of the importer, and said that we were now called on to submit to a further impost of 2½ per cent. without any adequate security against the continuation of the illegal exactions current during the last ten years.

Mr. BOWER followed, and illustrated most forcibly the objectionable nature of the new regulations as regards British interests; and he considered that Sir R. Alcock had made a very poor use of the information which he asked for from the merchants in Shanghai, who very emphatically informed him that an impost of 2½ per cent. at the place of landing to cover transit dues was the least satisfactory of any solution of the difficulty. That there was nothing in the present convention which gave a better security against the peculations of the inland mandarins than already provided for in the Treaty of 1858, although we are now called upon to make an additional payment of 2½ per cent. on our imports. The clauses of the convention must, taken as a whole, be considered very imperfect and unsatisfactory. An impression seemed to prevail that under the Treaty of 1858 it was essential that goods to be conveyed by transit passes should continue in foreign ownership, but this interpretation was erroneous, the Chinese Government having themselves eventually admitted that native-owned goods of foreign importation came under these regulations. He quoted the portion of a despatch of Sir R. Alcock, wherein he stated that it would be preferable to have no revision rather than one which did not give increased facilities to foreign commerce, and he urged the meeting to press this view on Her Majesty's Government.

The resolution was then put, and carried unanimously:—

That this meeting is of opinion that the stipulation by which an addition of fifty per cent. upon existing duties is proposed to be paid upon the import of textile goods into China in lieu of the interior dues hitherto levied, while it enforces an important addition to the duties upon importation, offers no security beyond those hitherto found fallacious in practice, for the cessation or diminution of illegal exactions in the interior.

Mr. R. J. GILMAN, in moving the second resolution, explained that the additional impost on silk was entirely a retrograde and unexpected step, and considering that the great cause for the demand for China silk, viz., "the failure of the European crop," was now passing away year by year, it was particularly inopportune to place further restrictions on its export from China, and he believed that we should be the losers by it. The basis of the treaty of Sir Henry Pottinger was an import and export duty of 5 about per cent., and he thought if the duty on silk were raised that on tea should be reduced.

Mr. WALKINSHAW, in seconding the resolution, pointed out that the two ports opened for trade, viz., Wanchow, on the coast, and Wuhu, on the Yangtsze, would not add to the consumption of British goods, and that was the main point in any negotiations with China. He considered that further ports in the South and the Gulf of Tonquin would certainly have been of service, and he regretted that our interests in the South had been overlooked. In reference to the appointment of Chinese Consuls in English possessions he thought if one were appointed to Hong Kong it would tend much against our prosperity there. This was particularly unfortunate just now, when the trade and general condition of trade at Hong Kong were in such a wretched condition. The resolution was then put and carried unanimously.

That this meeting is of opinion that the stipulation by which the export duty on silk is doubled is retrograde in policy and calculated to affect injuriously the trade of both merchant and manufacturer.

Mr. KIRKMAN HODGSON then moved the next resolution in a few remarks, followed by Mr. SPRINGFIELD, who said that the previous speakers had done full justice to the subjects under discussion. The resolution was then put, and carried unanimously:—

That this meeting is of opinion that the other clauses of the proposed revision contain nothing of countervailing advantage as against the injurious character of the before-named additions of fifty per cent. to the import duties on textile goods, and one hundred per cent. to the export duty on silk, and this meeting is therefore of opinion that the proposed revision is inexpedient, and should not be ratified.

Mr. MAGNIAC then rose to propose the last resolution, remarking that the present was the most important meeting ever held in the interests of the China trade, and he was glad to see so numerous and influential an attendance, which could hardly fail to have its proper weight.

Mr. W. S. BROWN seconded the resolution, which was also carried unanimously:—

That a copy of the foregoing resolutions be sent to the Right Hon. the First Lord of the Treasury, the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, and the Right Hon. the President of the Board of Trade, with a view to requesting an interview with Her Majesty's Government on this subject. And that the following gentlemen be requested to act as a committee for the purpose of inviting the co-operation of the Members of Parliament for the City of London, and of the Chambers of Commerce of Manchester, Liverpool, Glasgow, Leeds, Bradford, Macclesfield, Halifax, and other mercantile bodies in the United Kingdom, in this matter, and to make the necessary arrangements for the proposed deputation to Her Majesty's Government. Committee:—Hugh M. Matheson, Kirkman Hodgson, Sir W. Baynes, Bart., Francis A. Hamilton, R. J. Gilman, James Reiss, T. Jones Gibb, Richard Durant, jun., James Brand, J. Crum-Ewing, W. S. Brown, W. R. Admamson, R. D. Sassoon, W. Walkinshaw, and Frederick Bower.

A vote of thanks to the Chairman was proposed by Mr. BOWER, who considered the meeting fortunate in having for chairman a gentleman of such well known moderate and just principles as Mr. HUGH MATHESON. The meeting then separated, Mr. GILMAN suggesting that the Chambers of Commerce at Lyons and other places in France should be invited to co-operate in the movement, but the meeting thought that this had better be left in the hands of the Committee.

The following gentlemen were present at the meeting:—

H. M. Matheson (Chairman), Sir Wm. Baynes, Bart. (Gregson and Co.); Thos. Baring, M.P.; Kirkman Hodgson, R. J. Gilman, Ashton, Walkinshaw, Bower, Lamond (Oriental Bank), Gwyther (Chartered Bank), Vacher (Hong Kong Bank), Chas. Shaw, Wm. Hogg, Jas. Hogg, R. D. Sassoon, W. S. Brown, Reiss, Crum-Ewing, Canny, Ranken, H. W. Eaton, R. Durant, junr., T. Jones Gibb, Halton, John Holliday, Springfield, Robison, Kershaw, Dewhurst, C. P. Henderson, Sampson, Lucas, How, Buxton (Gledstanes and Co.), Man (Elias and Co.), Goldsmidt, Wilkinson (Crawford, Colvin, and Co.), Sichel, Brand, Carey (Adamson and Co.), Lentillac (Dufour Bros.), Magniac, Whittall, Macandrew, and others.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, AND DEATHS.

BIRTHS.

ANGERBECK—On the 6th Dec., at Rio, the wife of J. E. van Angerbeck, Esq., of a daughter.

BAILEY—On the 26th Nov., at Batticaloa, Ceylon, the wife of Allanson Bailey, Esq., of a daughter.

BAUMGARTEN—On the 11th Dec., at Singapore, the wife of Alexander Baumgarten, Esq., of a son.

BETCHER—On the 30th Nov., at Galle, the wife of John Waring Betcher, Esq., M.D., Royal Artillery, of a daughter.

BURN—On the 12th Dec., the wife of Lieut. H. Burn, Master Attendant, of twin girls, one stillborn.

CHRISTOPHER—On the 7th Dec., at Galle, the wife of Carmichael Christopher, Esq., of a son.

DUDGEON—On the 5th Nov., at Peking, the wife of J. Dudgeon, Esq., M.D., of a daughter.

FENNING—On the 26th Nov., at Lower Hongque Wharf, Shanghai, the wife of William Fenning, Esq., of a daughter.

KRAMER—On the 3rd Dec., at Colombo, the wife of Th. Kramer, Esq., of a son.

MILNE—On the 27th Nov., at Springwood, Ceylon, the wife of A. Milne, Esq., of a son.

PILKINGTON—On the 7th Dec., at Newton Estate, Dickoya, Ceylon, the wife of Henry T. Pilkington, Esq., of a son.

MARRIAGES.

DYER—CHRICHTON.—On the 30th Nov., at St. John's Cathedral, Hong Kong, by the Rev. Canon Beach, M.A., Alexander Kidd Dyer, Esq., M.D., Shanghai, to Margaret Muir, daughter of M. H. Crichton, Esq., Edinburgh.

EDEY—LOWE.—On the 4th Dec., at St. John's Cathedral, Hong Kong, by the Rev. Canon Beach, M.A., W. W. Edey, of H.M.'s Naval Yard, to Maria Lowe, of Hong Kong.

NICHOLLS—SLEEMAN.—On the 1st Dec., at Galle, by the Rev. John Alcock, George Nicholls, Esq., to Bessie, eldest daughter of William Sleeman, Esq., Helston, Cornwall.

PARGITER—COCQ.—On the 27th Nov., at St. John's Church, Chundicully, Jaffna, by the Rev. T. Good, R. S. Pargiter, Esq., Commissioner of Requests and Police Magistrate, Chavakachcheri, to Emma, eldest daughter of A. H. Roosmale Cocq, Esq., District Judge of Jaffna.

PAUW—WARDROPER.—On the 12th Jan., at Farnley Tyas, Yorkshire, by the Rev. Cutfield Wardroper, uncle of the bride, Klaas Pauw, Esq., of Oakleigh House, Timperley, Cheshire, to Miss Diana Wardroper, youngest daughter of the late Lieut.-col. Edward Wardroper, of the Madras Grenadiers.

PRINGLE—MITCHELL.—On the 30th Nov., at Galle, by the Rev. H. Mitchell, Mr. William Pringle, to Jemima, second daughter of Mr. D. Mitchell, Anstruther, Scotland.

VERNEDE—MCEWEN.—On the 11th Jan., at Westbourne-grove Presbyterian Church, by the Rev. Alex. McEwen, D.D., of Glasgow, uncle of the bride, Oscar Vernede to Annie, eldest daughter of the late Robt. McEwen, Esq., merchant, Singapore.

DEATHS.

CERVETTO—On the 5th Dec., at Hong Kong, Colonel Frederico Varela y Cervetto, a native of Cadiz, aged 48.

COLLINS—On the 21st Nov., at Hong Kong, Mr. Charles Collins, second clerk to the Magistracy, aged 33.

HUGHES—On the 10th Nov., at Yokohama, John Hughes, Esq., merchant, aged 48.

STEWART—On the 20th Dec., at his residence, 3, Delamere-terrace, London, W., Mr. James Calder Stewart, for many years Secretary to the Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China.

THE QUEEN has been pleased to appoint William Ramsay Scott, William Adamson, and Hoo ah Kay (Whampoa), Esqrs., to be Members of the Legislative Council of the Straits Settlements.

Digitized by Google

Foreign Intelligence.

GERMANY, &c.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

HAMBURG, Jan. 13.

The last accounts about the movements of the Chinese Embassy are that they have again postponed their departure from Berlin for some days. Their negotiations with Prussia are stated to be of a satisfactory nature, and have taken such a turn that Mr. Burlingame has been enabled to put down the arrangement he proposes in the form of a despatch. It is understood to be not only a Treaty of Commerce, but ne also of peace and amity, with a liberal interpretation of existing treaties, and in the spirit of the Additional Convention of the 28th of July, 1868, between China and the United States. They have not yet had their final take-leave audience, but on the 5th they were received by the Queen in the presence of the Crown Prince and his family, the King being unable, "from a slight indisposition," to be present. On Saturday last they had an audience of the Queen Dowager, and later in the day were received by the Crown Prince and Princess. It is now asserted—with what degree of truth I am unable to say—that they are not going to St. Petersburg at all, but on leaving Berlin proceed direct home to Peking.

A Berlin paper gives an account of the difficulties the corvette Hertha had to encounter in passing through the Suez Canal, en route to China and Japan. She entered the Canal on the 2nd of December, but five hours after leaving Port Said she was obliged to stop at Cantara, for at the entrance to Lake Timsah a Dutch corvette had got aground and blocked up the navigable channel. When the latter got off and the place had been deepened, the Hertha continued her voyage on the 5th, but could not reach Ismaila that day, as two miles to the north of that place the pilot in the service of the company ran her aground. As some alterations had been made in the bed of the Canal a day or two before, perhaps the blame attaches less to the pilot than to his superiors in not giving him timely notice and instructions what course to take. Caution prescribes a slow rate of movement in the Canal, and the vessel grounded so quietly and without all shock, that she might easily have been floated off by steam tugs; but the captain objected to this, fearing some of her copper plates might be displaced by using force, and with the long and distant voyage before him he wisely preferred getting her off by lightening her. The heavy guns, with anchors and chains, were therefore discharged, and on the 7th she was again afloat. But when she arrived at the dangerous spot where the rock was discovered in the bed of the Canal, and where there is only seventeen feet of water, she was again obliged to be further lightened by the discharge of her shot and iron ballast. After more difficulties and delay she, however, finally got through in safety; but it was not till noon on the 13th that she anchored in the Roads of Suez, thus taking eleven days to get through the Canal.

RUSSIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 11.

The preliminary negotiations for the new Treaty of Commerce between Russia and China were opened as far back as the year 1862, but were not really concluded till April, 1868, when the Treaty was signed at Peking by General Vlangali, as the Russian Envoy and Plenipotentiary, and on the part of China by Hun, the Minister for Foreign Affairs. A considerable period of time was agreed on for obtaining the ratifications of their respective sovereigns; but these have at length been duly exchanged and the Treaty promulgated in the Russian official organs. One of the stipulations has reference to the border traffic, and it is mutually agreed that a strip of land seven miles wide, on either side of the frontier, shall be considered as free territory, and the inhabitants thereof be exempted from the payment of duties. The caravan road to the principal Chinese commercial emporium of Tiantsin is to be via Kalgan, Dunba, and Tungchow. The merchants and dealers of the one country travelling on business in the territory of the other must be provided with a certificate from their own home authorities, as a legitimation of their persons and goods. The importation of every description of goods is mutually permitted in all the ports of the two high contracting parties. The Treaty is to remain in force for five years, at the expiration of which it is renewed for another period of five years, unless notice be given in the course of the six months preceding the expiration of the first period of five years, of the intention of one of the powers not to renew the same.

DENMARK.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 12.

The announcement has been made that the Danish steam frigate Tordenskjold is under orders to sail for China to assist in laying down the new submarine cable for the company in course of formation, for which the "concession" has been granted to the Councillor of State Tietjen, Director of the Bank of Copenhagen, Herr Erichsen, of Newcastle, and Consul-General Pallisen, of St. Petersburg. This hand-in-hand working of the Danish Government in conjunction with private industry in an affair of such importance to the interest of Denmark has created a favourable impression at Copenhagen, as it shows what steps the new Naval Minister, General Rasslöff, is prepared to take to keep up the efficiency of the Navy in time of peace. The measure will be sure to meet the full approval of the Danish Parliament, as it gives a favourable opportunity of exercising the crew on a distant expedition and at moderate cost, for a part of the plan is that the company pay a share of the expenses; but the particulars are not yet settled. Besides, it is considered of importance to display the Danish flag occasionally in the waters of the Far East. The Tordenskjold is one of the finest ships of the Danish Navy, and has been specially selected for this service on account of her great capacity for stowing away the telegraph wire in her hold. She will be armed en flute, that is, her heavy guns will be removed and her crew will not be so numerous as when fitted out for war purposes, with a full complement. The "concession" is granted for thirty years, and the share capital for the first series, which is to connect the Russian telegraph in Eastern Siberia, is fixed at £350,000, in shares of £10 each, of which £2 10s. is to be paid on allotment, and the remainder by successive instalments till October next. The voyage of the frigate is calculated to last for two years, as after she has laid the cable to China, with its extension to Japan, she will proceed to lay the line from the mouth of the Amoor to the continent of America. Capt. Frangois Lund, of the Danish Royal Navy, is appointed to the command of the Tordenskjold.

Literature.

*Java, Siam, Canton: a Voyage Round the World. By Le Comte de Beauvoir.

Count de Beauvoir has made a tour of the world, in company with the Duc de Penthièvre, son of the Duc de Joinville, and a Crimean officer, M. Fauvel. A short time since he published a volume similar to the present on Australia, which had great and deserved success, and contains, perhaps, the best account from a French pen, and in small compass, of our noble colony. The present work, though published only the other day, is already in its second edition, and will doubtless run through many more.

About half the volume is devoted to Java, where the Prince and his companion were received with great consideration by the Dutch authorities, who afforded them unusual facilities for seeing the interior, through which they made what may almost be called a royal progress, though it really was something far better than that, for no one sees a strange country so badly as princes in the ordinary way, who pass along, as it were, between walls of etiquette that shut all common sight out from their view. It was not so with the Duke and the Count; they saw the interior life of Java under conditions such as few persons have enjoyed, and their privilege may be estimated from the fact that one of the two native Sultans whom they visited is said never to have spoken before to any European except the resident representative of Holland. The travellers made the ascent of the famous Tankoubanprahou, and the burning sulphur caves, whose fumes shrivel up the trees of the forest as they stand, and produce, in the midst of one of the most luxuriant spots on the face of the earth, the abomination of desolation. They visited two Sultans, nominally independent, the sovereigns of Sourakarta and Djokjokarta, and in each case were admitted into the very bosom of royalty, partaking in the rejoicings at the birth of the thirty-third son of a monarch aged twenty-eight, who had twice as many daughters; they dined at the Imperial table, received the confidences of a young prince of thirteen who had already the command of a district, a small army, and a harem—and last and crowning honour, were introduced to the Sultan's wives, on whose fingers they pressed their lips, and saw the whole of the blushing and budding beauties of the Sultan's family.

The decription of Kraton, the palace, or, rather, the city of palaces, of the Sultan Sousouhounan-Pakoe-Saidin-Pomatogomo IX., which shelters ten thousand persons, were it not stamped with every mark of truth, would read like a story from the "Arabian Nights;" in truth, the real effect is to stamp those wondrous tales with the indubitable mark of fidelity. The great court of the palace is described as being a thousand feet long; and one of the grand apartments, the great hall, as at least five hundred feet long; this hall seems to be a most magnificent place, with elaborately-twisted staircases of sandal-wood, leading to little pulpits or altars before which perfumes burn continually; magnificent beds that would charm the director of the South Kensington Museum; with a perfect labyrinth of partitions and screens formed of carved and pierced wood-work, the whole flaming with gold and colours; brilliant carpets, sparkling lamps, and enlivened on this occasion with a perfect crowd of princes, soldiers, and attendants, men and women, all prostrate before the lord of the land.

These courtly incidents are most pleasantly relieved by admirable sketches of the country, the forest, and the people; the wild animals, the revered apes, the dwarf deer six inches high, and a hundred other interesting creatures, including particularly the mosquito, for whom the Count has not common Christian charity.

Much as we have read about the Far East, we have perused Count de Beauvoir's work with great interest; we cannot say that we invariably agree with his conclusions and reflections, but they are those of an observant and cultivated spirit—they are void of egotism, very moderate as regards length, and admirably expressed. Of all the nations and interest touched upon throughout the volume, the English will certainly find as little to displease them as any. Well written, well printed, well illustrated, and cheap (four francs), the Count's narrative is one of the most pleasant companions for the fireside, railway, or cabin, that we have met for some time.

*Java, Siam, and Canton; Voyage Autour du Monde. Par Le Comte de Beauvoir; with Map, and Fourteen Engravings from Photographs. Paris: Henri Plon, 1869. 12mo, 448 pp.

Digitized by Google

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS, CORRESPONDENTS, &c.

No notice can be taken of anonymous correspondence. Whatever is intended for insertion must be accompanied by the name and address of the writer, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith.

A REGISTER is kept of the addresses of all persons connected with the FAR EAST, and reference can be made to the same by personal application at the Office or by letter.

Any Information required by Subscribers, in reference to Commercial or general matters in CHINA, JAPAN, SINGAPORE, and other parts of the FAR EAST, will be supplied on application at the Office, where files may be seen of the Journals published in those Countries.

The "LONDON AND CHINA TELEGRAPH" is published on the arrival of the fortnightly English mail, and the monthly French mail. Subscription, 30s. per annum: with Export Supplement, £2 2s.

The "LONDON AND CHINA EXPRESS" is published on the day of departure of the mails, and contains a Summary of English, Continental, and American, News-Commercial and Shipping Reports, &c. Subscription, 54s. per annum; with Export Supplement, 66s.

JAMES WEST, PUBLISHER,
2, COWPER'S-COURT, CORNHILL, LONDON.

The London & China Telegraph.

LONDON: MONDAY, JAN. 17, 1870.

THE NEW CHINA TREATY.

THE text of the new Treaty, or as it is more accurately defined the "Supplementary Convention to the Treaty of Tientsin," which was signed at Peking on the 23rd of Oct., has been published. The substance of its provisions has been known in China for some time, but it was stated that the document itself would not be published until it had received the approval of Her MAJESTY'S Government, so we may conclude from its appearance in The Times that it has already received such official sanction. The convention is in almost every respect unsatisfactory. Large concessions are made to the Chinese, without any corresponding advantages being secured to British subjects or British trade. Retrogression is written in every line. If the provisions of this new convention be faithfully executed on the side of China, we shall be in no better position as regards the question of transit dues—the chief point at issue—than we have been at any time during these last ten years; while most of the other points in the new convention refer only to modifications of details. It looks very much as if there had been a good deal of close bargaining between the contracting parties, ending in our Minister getting decidedly the worst of it.

The main point at issue is, as we have said, the question of transit dues. By the Treaty of 1868 it was agreed that foreign merchants who chose to send their own imports into the interior for sale, might do so by paying a tax of 2½ per cent. in commutation of all barrier charges. But from the beginning this regulation became a dead letter. Merchants took out transit passes, paid the tax, and conveyed their goods into the interior; but in the teeth of the treaty stipulation their passes were ignored, and they were met at every turn with some "squeeze," or illegal exaction on the part of the local mandarins, for which no redress could ever be obtained. It is difficult to see what is gained by the change now made. Instead of having the option of paying transit duty and sending his goods up the country, the merchant is now to be compelled to pay the same tax, whether he wants to send them into the interior or not; and for this infliction the only return he gets is a promise that for the future he will not be subjected to the same system of robbery and extortion as hitherto. What guarantee have we for the fulfilment of this undertaking? It is well known that the swarms of local mandarins subsist on the pickings they get from the Le-kim and other "squeezes"—is it likely that they will acquiesce in an arrangement that takes one most lucrative source of revenue out of their hands? And, if they defy the regulation, and ignore the transit passes as before, how is redress to be obtained? Lord CLARENDON'S instructions expressly forbid any pressure being brought to bear on the local authorities, and in distant provinces the Central Government is virtually powerless; so that even if abuses are checked for a time, they will soon crop up again. It is impossible to regard this part of the bargain as at all fair. If the Chinese faithfully carry out their part of it, we only get the rights purported to be secured to us by the Treaty of Tientsin, which we ought to have been enjoying for the last ten years; while the Chinese obtain at once a clear increase of fifty per cent. on their customs revenue, simply as a bonus for ceasing to defraud us of those rights. If, on the other hand, they fail to fulfil their undertaking (a far more likely contingency), we shall be in an immeasurably worse position than before. It is the old story—"Heads I win, tails you lose."

Turning to the other matters dealt with in the convention, we find one thing only that looks like an unalloyed benefit to trade, namely, the institution of bonded warehouses, with which is associated a welcome modification in the mode of paying drawbacks, and an extension of the time during which they may be recovered. The system of bonding imports has long been a desideratum, and unless hampered with vexatious restrictions and made a pretext for "squeezes," it will prove an acceptable boon. The opening of two more ports is no very valuable concession. One has long been due to us in the place of Kiungchow, which proved worthless. Of the new ones, Wanchow we should think will prove the most important; Wu-hu will but divide the already small trade of Kiu-kiang, and a port on the Upper Yangtsze would have been worth more than both these together. The limits put to the navigation of inland waters are absurd; the idea of one single tugboat, in native hands, to tow boats on the Poyang Lake, is laughable. The increased duty on opium can serve no purpose except to discourage an important trade on which our Indian revenue largely depends. The doubling of the export duty on silk is still more oppressive, and altogether unjustifiable. Whether any real benefits are to result from the clause regarding coal mines depends on the caprice of the "Superintendent of Foreign Trade in the South"—who happens to be the Viceroy of NANKING, an official inimical to foreigners, and unless we misinterpret a recent telegram, the very individual who has insulted Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK.

Such is the convention; a truly miserable result of all the trouble that has been taken by Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK to collect information, and by the Chambers of Commerce to afford it. If this is the best that can be done at a time when the Chinese have sent a special envoy to Europe to proclaim their eagerness to be received into the Family of Nations, what are we to look for in the future? Clearly, Lord CLARENDON'S policy will not help us to anything better. The only hope we dare entertain is, that the vigorous action of the merchants here, who are interested in the China trade, may suffice to convince the Government that so hollow a convention ought not to be ratified. Our report of the important meeting that took place yesterday will show that an attempt is to be made in this direction. Should the Committee charged with this movement (and a more influential and competent one could not have been chosen), fail to attain its object, then we may bid adieu to all hope of progress in China—or anywhere else—so long as Mr. GLADSTONE'S ministry is permitted to retain office.

IN addition to the meeting of London merchants above alluded to, a special meeting of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce has been held to consider the new Convention negotiated by Sir R. ALCOCK with the Chinese Government. After some conversation a resolution was passed to the effect that in the opinion of the board it was undesirable that the Treaty should be ratified until a full opportunity had been afforded for examining its provisions. This will doubtless be followed by meetings of the other Chambers interested in the China trade.

OUR correspondent writes that the departure of the Chinese Mission from Berlin is once more postponed, and that rumours are afloat that the intended visit to St. Petersburg has been abandoned altogether, and Mr. BURLINGAME intends returning direct from Berlin to China. This, if founded on fact, would give colour to the assertions lately current that his proceedings have been viewed with dissatisfaction at Peking, and that the funds for an extension of his European tour are not forthcoming. On the other hand we hear from St. Petersburg that the last treaty between Russia and China, concluded in 1868, has just been ratified, with some additional provisions, and this may have rendered Mr. BURLINGAME'S presence at St. Petersburg unnecessary.

We understand that a memorial window is to be placed in the Cathedral at Hong Kong to the memory of the late DOUGLAS LAPRAIK, Esq.,

Digitized by Google

THE "PALL MALL GAZETTE" ON CHINA AFFAIRS.

AN article on the probable effect of the new China convention on the revenue of our Indian possessions, which appeared in the Pall Mall Gazette of the 14th of January, demands some notice in our columns. The indisputable fact that an increase of forty per cent. in the duty on opium imported into China must necessarily cause a decline in prices at Calcutta and Bombay, and thus add to the already serious financial difficulties of the Indian Government, is fully recognised by the writer, but his deductions therefrom as expressed in the concluding paragraph of the article, are curious indeed. "It "appears to us," says the Pall Mall Gazette, "that if the "effect of the Chinese Treaty, when ratified by Her MAJESTY, "is to add to the burdens of the natives of India, it is im- "possible to consider that the British Government, as a whole, "has properly acquitted itself of its moral liability. Unless "the twelfth article admits of some explanation which we "have not been fortunate to discover, the people of India "will be taxed to pay for the convenience and profit of a com- "munity, which, of all English quasi colonial societies, is "probably the least deserving of respect." The meaning "of the last sentence is somewhat obscure, but if we interpret it correctly, a wanton insult is levelled at our countrymen in China. The only persons who will reap either convenience or profit from the increased duty are, firstly, the Chinese Government, through their "Imperial Maritime Customs," and, secondly, the growers of native opium; and neither of these can possibly be indicated by the phrase "English quasi-colonial society." We are reduced therefore to the conclusion that this term, and the uncomplimentary expressions attached to it, are intended to apply to the British merchants in China. In this case the writer is quite at sea, for so far from deriving either profit or convenience, they will be sufferers by the change, which imposes a clog on an important branch of their trade. It is distinctly untrue that the people of India are to be taxed for the benefit of English residents in China; but the Pall Mall Gazette has a rooted antipathy to that body which must be gratified on every possible occasion, however shallow the pretext. Our contemporary does not attempt to show on what grounds the English in China are of all such societies "the least deserving of respect." We have more than once had occasion to comment on the unreasoning animosity against them displayed by the writers in the Pall Mall Gazette, and this gratuitous slander is only another instance of it. Such perseverance in casting unmerited obloquy on a community whose wrongs should rather inspire a feeling of sympathy is totally unworthy of a respectable journal. But the ravings of the Pall Mall, like those of Sir CHARLES DILKE, are conceived in ignorance and prejudice, and would be unworthy of notice were it not for the influence undoubtedly exercised by that journal on public opinion.

ONE OF MR. BURLINGAME'S CHAMPIONS.

To some men notoriety is essential. If they fail to become famous, they are content to be infamous; anything rather than remain in obscurity. A pleasing example of this class is afforded by Mr. KIERNAN, the gentleman who indited a certain letter to the New York Herald which appeared in our issue of the 24th September last, and is doubtless still fresh in the memory of our readers. Mr. KIERNAN visited China in 1866, having somehow obtained the appointment of United States Consul at Chinkiang. He remained nine months in China, part of which was spent in Shanghai, part in Chinkiang, and the remainder in journeying between the two ports. As his short stay gave him no opportunity of intercourse with the natives—and as he was not admitted into foreign society at Shanghai, while at Chinkiang the entire foreign population is under a dozen—it would not appear that Mr. KIERNAN had any great opportunities of mastering questions of Chinese policy, or of forming an accurate judgment regarding the position and conduct of British subjects in China. But his thirst for notoriety was not daunted by any such paltry considerations as these. Having terminated his short sojourn in China by a discreditable exit he proceeded, on returning to the States, to give his countrymen (through the medium of the New York Herald) the benefit of his large and varied experience in the letter we have alluded to. This savagely truculent effusion, as will be remembered, was made up of fulsome adulation of Mr. BURLINGAME and abuse of the English. Mr. BURLINGAME is wise and munificent; a NESSELRODE, a TALLEYRAND. The British are robbers, thieves, cheats, smugglers, slave-traders (!) they entertain a bitter jealousy and animosity towards all Americans, they are cruel, swindling, lying, licentious, and degraded. These are by no means all the epithets lavished on our countrymen in China, but they are some of the choicest. For the truth of his accusations Mr. KIERNAN vouches on the strength of his long residence in China, during which he asserts that he "travelled the empire extensively." Having effectually disgraced himself and the flag he was unfortunately allowed to represent abroad, and repeated the process at home, Mr. KIERNAN might well have been allowed to sink once more into his native obscurity. But thinking it would afford food for mirth among our Shanghai friends, we published his letter in the London and China Express, and the result is that the matter has been taken up more seriously than we anticipated by the American residents in Shanghai; four of the principal firms having addressed a letter to one of the local papers, wherein the falsity of his assertions, and the impossibility of his possessing any knowledge at all of the subjects he writes of, are clearly exposed. This letter was perhaps hardly necessary, and savours a little of "breaking a butterfly (or some less harmless insect) on the wheel"—still, it affords pleasing evidence of the promptitude with which American merchants in China hasten to repel any aspersions cast on their British fellow-residents. At any rate one of Mr. BURLINGAME'S most valiant champions may now be considered satisfactorily disposed of.

THE STRAITS SETTLEMENTS ASSOCIATION.

A MEETING of this body was called on the 12th instant to discuss the reply prepared by the Committee to Governor ORD'S despatch. The meeting was numerously attended, but owing to domestic circumstances Mr. NAPIER was absent and the Deputy-Chairman, Mr. JAMES GUTHRIE, presided. There was a full discussion of the despatch and the reply proposed to be made to it, during which a strong opinion was expressed by some of the members that the Committee had taken too little notice of the insulting tone of the despatch, and of the charges of misrepresentation and discreditable motives brought by Sir H. ORD against the Association. The meeting however supported the Committee in the more moderate course they had adoped, and the reply was ordered to be printed. A further letter from Earl GRANVILLE was read, handing copies of reports from the Governor of the Straits Settlements on the finances of the Colony, and replies to the criticism made by the Association on the accounts. We do not understand that the Association are in any way driven from the position they have taken up on this point. That the annual expenditure of the Colony has largely increased under the present Governor, and that its financial affairs are subject to what in mercantile language would be called the "recovery of a doubtful debt," cannot be denied. Whether the Association may have been misled in any details by the confused nature of the colonial accounts, does not really affect the matter. A letter from the Hon. Secretary to Earl GRANVILLE on the subject of the proposed new steamers was read and approved.

AT the meeting above alluded to, the following resolution, proposed by Mr. GUTHRIE, and seconded by Mr. BOUSTEAD, was passed:—"That the Association having learnt with deep regret the death of the Hon. Col. MACPHERSON, Lieut.-Governor of the Straits Settlements and Colonial Secretary, desire to express to MRS. MACPHERSON and her family their sincere sympathy with them in the loss they have sustained; to record their appreciation of the public services Col. MACPHERSON has rendered to the Colony; and to bear testimony to the affectionate esteem in which he was held by all classes of the community. Resolved, that the Hon. Secretary be requested to forward a copy of this resolution to Mr. NAPIER for transmission to Mrs. MACPHERSON."

WE have already noticed one official report on the Suez Canal, and another will soon be forthcoming. The surveying ship Newport (now at Malta, awaiting orders) is to convey Capt. RICHARDS, hydrographer, and Col. CLARKE, Director of Admiralty works, through the Canal, for the purpose of reporting on its present condition.

Digitized by Google

THE SUEZ CANAL.

THE utility of the Suez Canal is still confined to vessels of seventeen feet draught. This is a great disappointment to shipowners, and applications have been repeatedly made to ascertain the time when vessels of nineteen or twenty feet will be able to pass. In answer to one, in the case of the Erl King, now loading for China, the directors replied that they could guarantee her passage through at nineteen feet at the end of February. Shipowners seem determined to avail of it, and if the banks do not crumble by the passage of steamers, the Canal must have an important bearing on the employment of sailing vessels round the Cape, and already an extraordinary impetus has been given to the employment of screw steamers for the India, China, and Japan trade. A reference to our shipping columns will show that several are now on the loading berth, and that the underwriters have reduced their rates of insurance by the Canal route. There appears to be a strong desire on the part of the Liverpool shipowners to be among the foremost to make use of the Canal, and by this means maintain the prestige of Liverpool as a loading port. Regular lines for Bombay and Calcutta are announced. The most thoroughly practical account we have yet seen of a passage through the canal is one contained in a letter addressed to the Bombay Gazette, by Capt. BLOW, Marine Superintendent of the North China Steamer Company, who accompanied their new steamer Sin Nanzing on her outward voyage. We are strongly tempted to transfer it to our columns, but the great pressure on our space, and the consideration that ere this reaches China it will certainly have been quoted by the local press, render this unadvisable. The following abstract however will be interesting to those who have not seen the letter itself :—

The Sin Nanzing sailed from Greenock on the 11th Nov., and anchored in Bombay Harbour on the evening of the 16th of Dec. But of this period or thirty-five days nineteen were taken up by the voyage from Greenock to Port Said, owing to bad weather in the Bay of Biscay and the Mediterranean, and delays at Gibraltar and Malta to coal and water the ship, and get news about the formal opening of the Canal. The length of time occupied by the voyage from Port Said to Bombay was therefore only between sixteen and seventeen days, the average time for conveyance of the mails from Alexandria to Bombay, by Egyptian railway and P. and O. steamer, being sixteen days. It took the Sin Nanzing three days and a quarter to pass through the Canal to Suez. Her tonnage is 1,141 tons gross and 722 register, with 250 nominal and 1,436 indicated horse-power. It is not stated that she had any cargo on board except coals for her own consumption; and Mr. Blow says that "having been constructed specially for trading on the coast of China, she has great speed on a light draught of water, and drew only twelve feet eleven inches in going through the Canal. Notwithstanding her light draught she touched once, but got off again without damage. Among the ships in Port Said was the Brazilian, 400 feet long, and with 4,000 tons of coal on board, of which she was discharging 1,000 tons to lighten. "The Canal authorities seemed a little anxious about her." The only "great drawback" to the Canal, however, according to Mr. Blow, is that "the pilots seemed to be very little acquainted with the configuration of the bottom of the Canal, and they cannot speak English;" and he suggests the employment of a few quartermasters out of English steamships. The benefit to England of the opening of this route is, that iron screw-steamers alone will be used to navigate the Canal, and that England now builds these for all the world. "I know," says Mr. Blow, "of a large American company in the East, which is now having vessels built on the American plan, as to engines and hulls, on the Clyde; and it is their intention to reconstruct their entire fleet of fourteen large wooden steamers, many of them vessels of 2,000 tons, and build them of iron." Mr. Blow was captain in 1857 of the first steamer that sailed from Dublin with troops to put down the Indian Mutiny, and he now makes this declaration, which is worth the attention of advocates of retrenchment, who know the real cost of keeping up the gigantic troopships engaged in conveying soldiers between England and India: "I will guarantee to carry in an auxiliary screw steamer of about the Sin Nanzing's tonnage, and having two decks, 600 soldiers, with their baggage, &c., and land them on the twenty-fifth day from leaving England at Bombay, and the cost shall be fifty per cent. less than the average cost per head for every soldier landed in India during the Mutiny, and the time occupied will be twenty-five days instead of seventy-five."

WE have frequently noticed a proposition for connecting the existing Russian land lines of telegraph extending to Posiette Bay with China by submarine cables. The scheme has at last taken a definite form, a company for executing it having been formed in Copenhagen under the title of "The "Great Northern Telegraph, China and Japan, Extension Com-"pany." The company will of course command the sympathy and, indeed, the substantial aid of the Russian and Danish Governments; the former has promised to send a war steamer to accompany the expedition, and the latter (as will be seen by our correspondent's letter in another column) provides a steam-frigate, the Tordenskjold, to lay the cable. The Times, observing that this scheme follows very closely on that of the China Submarine Extension, and that they cover nearly the same ground, suggests that instead of Danish and English cables being laid side by side, some arrangement should be arrived at for harmonious working between all the parties concerned.

COLONEL GORDON has received from the Chinese Government medals for the following officers who took part in, or assisted the operations of the "ever-victorious army" :—Col. TAPP, Col. BAILEY (late of Chung's Artillery), Captains MACGUIRE, JEFFREYS, TAYLOR, HOLLINS, SCHAMLOFFEL; Doctors ROSS and LONGHEAD; Capt. STACK, late of H.M.'s 67th Regiment; and the late Capt. DEW, R.N.

GREAT BRITAIN AND CHINA.

The following is the Supplementary Convention to the Treaty of Commerce and Navigation of June 26, 1858 :—

ARTICLE 1.

China having agreed that British subjects shall participate in all advantages accorded by treaty to the subjects of other Powers, it is further agreed that British subjects desiring to participate in the advantages accorded by treaty to the subjects of other Powers shall participate in such advantages on the same conditions on which they have been accorded to and are participated in by the subjects of such other Powers.

ARTICLE 2.

China having agreed that England may appoint Consuls to reside at every port open to trade, it is further agreed that China may appoint Consuls to reside at all ports in the British dominions.

The Consuls so appointed shall respectively be entitled to the treatment accorded to the most favoured nation.

ARTICLE 3.

It is agreed that commodities of the following classes and denominations—viz., cottons, linens, woollens, cotton mixtures, &c.—imported by British merchants, shall pay both import duty and transit due simultaneously at the time of importation.

On the other part, China agrees that the above-mentioned commodities imported by British merchants, and having paid import duty and transit due simultaneously at the time of importation, shall be exempt from all other taxes and charges whatever in treaty port provinces.

ARTICLE 4.

It is agreed that native produce purchased in the interior by British merchants, furnished with the documents prescribed by the Supplementary Regulations, shall pay all inland dues and charges on its way to the Treaty Port.

On the other part, China agrees that any such native produce, having paid all inland dues and charges on the way to the port from the place of purchase, shall be entitled to the return of any amount that may have been thus paid over and above the treaty transit due (half export duty), provided exportation by British merchants to a foreign port takes place within twelve months.

It is further agreed that native produce shipped to another treaty port shall not be entitled to such refund.

ARTICLE 5.

It is agreed that Chinese produce shipped from Hong Kong to a Treaty Port shall not be carried inland under the transit rule, but shall pay dues, duties, and inland charges like all other native produce at all barriers passed.

On the other part, China agrees to issue to native produce shipped by British merchants from Treaty Ports to Hong Kong the ordinary export duty proofs, and to collect on such produce, on arrival at a second Treaty Port, the ordinary coast trade (half import) duty.

ARTICLE 6.

It is agreed that the port of Wanchow (in the province of Chekiang) shall be open to British trade, and that Kiungchow, in Hainan, named in the Treaty of Tientsin, shall be removed from the list of Treaty Ports.

ARTICLE 7.

It is agreed that British merchant vessels shall not be called on to pay tonnage dues oftener than once in the four months.

On the other part, England agrees that British merchant vessels of every description, whether used for the transport or storage of merchandise, conveyance of passengers, or residence (merchant ships, hulks, chops, &c.), as well as all craft of the Chinese type owned by British subjects, shall pay tonnage-dues according to their tonnage, if trading from port to port, on the expiration of their special certificates, and, if used as hulks in port, on the expiration of the term of four months, as the case may be.

ARTICLE 8.

It is agreed that all British merchant vessels shall report to the Customs their port of destination, and shall hand in export manifests when about to clear.

On the other part, China agrees that the amount of any fines for false manifest, where British subjects are concerned, shall be determined in accordance with the special circumstances, and shall not in any case exceed the sum of 500 taels.

ARTICLE 9.

It is agreed that in all cases arising out of fines for breaches of

Digitized by Google

Customs' regulations the Superintendent or the Commissioner of Customs may have a seat on the bench and take part with the British Consul in inquiring into the case, and that in all cases of confiscation arising out of breaches of Customs' regulations the British Consul may have a seat on the bench with the Superintendent or the Commissioner of Customs, and take part in inquiring into the case.

It is further agreed that England and China shall in consultation draw up a Commercial Code.

ARTICLE 10.

On the one part, China agrees to issue licences to pilots. On the other part, England agrees to punish British subjects piloting, or who employ persons to pilot, not having licences.

It is further agreed that effect shall be given to the stipulation of the treaty of Tientsin, that "for the due restraint of crews of ships regulations will be drawn up by the Consuls and the local authorities."

ARTICLE 11.

It is agreed that drawbacks issued to foreign goods re-exported by British merchants to foreign countries within three months from the date of importation shall be convertible (at the Hainan Bank) into cash.

On the other part, England agrees that foreign goods re-exported by British merchants to foreign countries after the expiration of three years from the date of importation shall not be entitled to drawback of import duty.

ARTICLE 12.

It is agreed that opium shall pay import duty at an increased rate.

On the other part, China agrees:—

1. That British subjects holding passports may use their own vessels, resembling Chinese craft and propelled by oars or sails, when visiting non-treaty ports or places in the interior.

2. That bonded warehouses shall be established for British subjects at such treaty ports as may be expedient.

3. That the Superintendent of Customs at Kiukiang shall provide a tug for the use of British-owned Chinese-like boats on the Poyang Lake and in the vicinity of Hukew.

4. That bonds entered into by British merchants for the re-export of tea shipped from Yangtsze ports shall, as an experiment, be done away with.

5. That the Imperial Commissioner in the South shall open coal mines at two or three places; and,

6. That the duty on native coal exported by British merchants from the southern ports shall be reduced.

ARTICLE 13.

It is agreed that silk shall pay export duty at an increased rate

On the other part, China agrees:—

1. That Wu-hu, in Anhwey (in the Yangtsze), shall be open to British trade.

2. That foreign grain may be re-exported and without payment of duty by British merchants.

3. The materials used by British subjects in docks for the repair of British vessels shall be exempt from duty; and,

4. That import duties shall be reduced on watches, pepper (black and white), tin plates, and timber imported by British subjects.

ARTICLE 14.

It is agreed that each Custom-house shall draw up rules fixing the touch of Sycee to be received in the payment of duties by the bank at each port.

It is further agreed that the various documents issued to British subjects (transit papers, passports, &c.) shall be returnable on the expiration of one year from the date of issue.

ARTICLE 15.

It is agreed on both parts that the Articles untouched by the present revision shall be hereby declared to be renewed and confirmed, and that the revised version shall rule in the case of such Articles as the present revision affects.

ARTICLE 16.

The present Convention shall be ratified and the ratifications shall be exchanged at Peking as soon as possible.

Oct. 24, 1869.

SUPPLEMENTARY RULES.

RULE 1.—The Convention permits certain specified commodities of foreign origin,—viz., cottons, linens, woollens, cotton mixtures, &c., to circulate freely in treaty port provinces without further liability to inland dues or charges, on payment simultaneously of import duty and transit due at the time of importation. When taken inland by British merchants in person or by Chinese, the agents of British merchants, or by Chinese purchasers—while the British merchant will be required as prescribed by the treaty of Tientsin to travel provided with the usual passport—the commodities aforesaid need not be accompanied by any transit certificate, and may be sold freely and at pleasure along the road, without being in any place called on to pay further duties, dues, or inland charges. The various Customs stations passed by such commodities will, however, make such examination as is usual, in order to provide against fraudulent substitutions and the transport of prohibited articles.

2. With the exception of those classes of commodities which are to pay import duty and transit due simultaneously, all other foreign merchandise carried inland will continue to be exempt from all dues, duties, and charges, en route, provided, having paid full import duty on importation and the tariff transit due when leaving the port to enter the interior, it is found to be accompanied by the ordinary proof of payment of transit due—namely, a transit certificate. Such goods will be liable to all duties, dues, and charges wherever found inland, if unaccompanied by transit certificates. Both British and Chinese merchants will be treated in accordance with the provisions herein set forth.

3. When the commodities specified in the first clause of this rule are carried inland in Treaty Port provinces by either British or Chinese merchants, and when such commodities are accompanied by other foreign merchandise of the class provided for in the second clause of this rule, the latter merchandise will be liable to all inland dues, duties, and charges if not provided with transit certificates. Failure to report the presence of any such uncertificated merchandise when passing Customs stations, or any attempt to defraud the revenue by carrying native produce in that guise, will subject all the goods of the same description to seizure and confiscation.

4. When commodities of the kinds specified in the first clause of this rule, and which simultaneously paid import duty and transit due, are to be conveyed by either British or Chinese merchants to non-Treaty Port provinces, transit certificates should be procured from the Customs at the port started from, on the face of which will be distinctly set forth the name of the place for which the said commodities are destined. On their way from the port and other place thus set forth in the certificate, such certificated commodities will be exempt from all liability to inland charges, dues, or duties; but in the event of its being discovered by any Customs station that may make examination that the merchandise contained in the packages is different from the commodities set forth in the certificate, or that the certificate is for a less quantity than it is accompanied by, the goods concerned will be confiscated. On the arrival of such duly certificated commodities at the place set forth in the certificate, the certificate will become invalid, and the commodities having arrived at their place of destination will be liable to whatever inland charges, dues, or duties the locality they are found in collects, and will henceforth be treated like native produce in the localities concerned.

Rule 2.—British merchants, whether going in person or sending Chinese agents into the interior for the purchase of native produce should first obtain from the Customs a blank memorandum. The native produce purchased will be liable to all inland charges, dues, and duties on the way to the port, just like any other Chinese goods in Chinese hands. On the other hand each Customs station or barrier will be required to certify to the receipt of the amount of dues, duties, or charges there collected, by making an official and duly stated entry on the face of the blank memorandum. Any sale in transitu of the native produce to which the blank memoranda refer will be punishable in accordance with the regulations.

2. On the arrival of such native produce at the last barrier the merchant is to report its arrival to the Commissioner of Customs, and the goods are to await examination. The memorandum brought back from the interior is, at the same time, to be deposited with the Customs. Should such native produce be exported to a foreign port (Hong Kong excepted) within twelve months from the date of arrival, the exporter will, at the time of exportation, pay the usual export duty; and, as regards inland charges, while, on the one hand, the exporter will be called on to make up the amount by which the sums entered on the memoranda fall short of a treaty transit due (half export duty); on the other, the Customs will refund to the exporter the amount by which such sums may be found to exceed the treaty transit due. Should the produce be shipped for conveyance to a treaty port, no make-up will be called for, and no refund will be allowed.

Rule 3.—Foreign goods re-exported to a foreign country within thirty-six months from the date of arrival, if found to be in their original packages with marks and numbers unchanged, will be entitled to receive the refund of the sum paid on import duty by a drawback, which shall be a valid tender for payment of other duties (tonnage dues excepted). Goods re-exported after the expiration of the said thirty-six months shall not be entitled to receive such drawback.

If re-exported within three months from the date of arrival a drawback certificate will be issued at the Custom-house, which, on presentation at the Customs bank, will be convertible into cash. Goods re-exported after the expiration of the said term of three months will not be entitled to receive such convertible drawbacks.

As regards native produce, drawbacks for coast trade duty will continue to be issued when the produce is re-shipped within twelve months from the date of arrival. If re-shipped after the expiration of that term, native produce will not be entitled to any drawback of coast trade duty.

Rule 4.—British merchants will be allowed one month's grace for the return of such documents as they may have taken out when going inland (passports, transit passes, &c.). All such documents become invalid on the expiration of twelve months from the date of issue, and if not returned within thirteen months from that date, the application of the parties concerned for other documents will not be attended to.

Digitized by Google

Rule 5.—At such of the Treaty Ports as may be expedient bonded warehouses will be established, and regulations for the working will be drawn up by the Inspector-General of Customs and the superintendent at the port concerned. Where sufficient reasons for the non establishment of such bonded warehouses exist, they will not be introduced.

Rule 6.—The Superintendent of Customs at Kiu-kiang will provide a steam-tug for the use of the British merchants on the Po-yang Lake and between Hankow and Kiu-kiang. The tug in question will be for the towing of British-owned vessels of the Chinese type, and a tariff of fees will be published, in accordance with which merchants whose boats may be towed will pay the Kiu-kiang Customs for that service.

Rule 7.—British merchants who may go inland duly provided with passports, to sell foreign goods, purchase native produce, or carry native produce into the interior for sale, are permitted to use their own vessels if of the Chinese type, and propelled by sail or oar, and, when in the interior, are further permitted to rent for short periods either hotels or private houses, where they may store their goods, but on which they are not to exhibit their Hong name or the style of their firm. Native produce purchased in the interior and entered on the memorandum for conveyance to a port must not be sold in the interior.

In the case of the inns or private houses thus rented from the Chinese, the British merchant is not to interfere to protect the landlord from the incidence of the taxes and charges for which his house or property is assessable. The Chinese of the locality must not annoy or maltreat the British merchant, and proclamations setting forth all that precedes have been prepared, and will be sent to the Governors-General and Governors of the provinces for publication everywhere.

As regards vessels of the Chinese type, owned by British merchants and used by them to go to non-treaty ports or places in the interior, each such vessel must be registered at the Custom-house, where the Commissioner of Customs will issue a certificate of registration and the flag to be sailed under, the certificate to be countersealed by the superintendent. Such vessels must exhibit the flag received from the Customs, and comply with the special rules and regulations drawn up for their management. Any vessel unprovided with a certificate of registration detected in the fraudulent use of a flag resembling the Customs flag, or flying the house flag of any foreign mercantile firm, or having a certificate and flying the flag of any foreign country, will be subject with her cargo to confiscation.

Rule 8.—The Imperial Commissioner superintending foreign affairs in the South will inquire into the condition of Kiu-yung, Lo ping, and Ke-lung, and will depute officers to work the mines at those places as an experiment. The question of the employment of foreigners to assist in mining and of using foreign machinery will be left to be given effect to by the Imperial Commissioner. The coals produced will be for sale to British and Chinese merchants without distinction.

Rule 9.—The rules appended to the tariff attached to the treaty of Tientsin enumerated the articles that are to be admitted free of duty for household use and as ship's stores. A revised list is to be drawn up by the Inspector-General of Customs, and will be hereto appended, of the articles that are thus to be admitted free for the use of British subjects. Should such articles be carried inland, they will be dutiable in accordance with the rule and practice that formerly obtained.

Rule 10 —Docks owned by British merchants will be permitted to import such articles as they require for the repairs of ships, free of duty; but on newly-built vessels there will be levied a duty of 5 per cent. ad valorem. Before being entitled to the privilege of importing their stores duty free, such docks must be registered at the Customs, and the owners must enter into such bonds as the Customs in question may consider necessary for the protection of the revenue. A list of the articles to be imported duty free will be provided by the Inspector-General of Customs.

TARIFF.

IMPORTS.—Watches, émaillees à perles, per pair 4 5 0 0 taels; ditto, gold, ditto, 1 0 0 0; ditto, silver, ditto, 0 5 0 0; pepper, white, per 100 catties, 0 4 0 0; ditto, black, ditto, 0 2 0 0; tin plates, 0 2 0 0; grain, coal, and guano (foreign) free, whether imported or exported, but to take out permits in accordance with the Customs regulations; timber, reduction to be made after full inquiry at Shanghai; opium, per 100 catties, 50 0 0 0 taels, and to be dealt with in accordance with the special rules respecting that drug.

EXPORTS.—Silk, raw and thrown, per 100 catties, 20 0 0 0 taels; ditto, yellow, from Sychaan, ditto, 10 0 0 0; coal, native at the southern ports, ditto, 0 0 0 5; ditto, at the northern ports, ditto, 0 0 4 0.

THE HOME PRESS ON CHINA AFFAIRS.

THE NEW CHINA TREATY.

(THE TIMES, JAN. 11.)

A new Convention, supplementary to the Treaty of Tientsin, has been concluded between Sir Rutherford Alcock and the Chinese Government. Its stipulations show the extreme jealousy with which the Chinese still regard the European nations, for all that is conceded seems as if wrung from the Court of Peking by resistless importunity. But the concessions, so far as they go, are substantial, and confirm the opinion we expressed some days since that foreign enterprise may gradually win its way into the country by fair means, without recourse to the high-handed measures which are so much in favour with the European society of the ports. The new provisions are supplementary to the great Treaty which is the basis of our present intercourse with China, and, as they are devoted chiefly to the explanation and extension of existing rights, they have no character of novelty. The Treaty of Tientsin is the most notable mark of the progress that has been made in drawing China from her isolation, and its provisions transcend in importance even the Treaty of 1842. It provided for the appointment of Ambassadors or other diplomatic agents at the Court of Peking, the transaction of business with them by the Chinese Government on terms of perfect equality, the toleration of the Christian religion, and the protection of those who profess it. British subjects were allowed to travel for pleasure or trade into all parts of the interior with passports from their Consuls. The great river, the Yang-tsze, was opened to commerce as far as Hankow; five other ports were made free to Europeans, and British subjects obtained immunity from Chinese control, civil or criminal, and were subject only to the Consular authority.

This is the great charter of British rights in China, and its provisions are large enough to cover a much more extended intercourse than yet prevails. They do, in fact, contain the elements of important and continual changes, for the rights they give Europeans can never be exercised without creating relations which will demand every year new and newer liberties. Of this we see the proof in the present Treaty. It has been rendered absolutely necessary by the intercourse that has grown up during the last ten years. It is demanded not more by the English and other foreign communities than by the trading Chinese themselves. Every article is to the direct and immediate advantage of the native trader and consumer whom we supply with goods, of whom we buy in return, who are our agents, our correspondents, and who, there can be little doubt, look on the foreigner with a much less jealous eye than the Court of Peking and the official world. Yet we can well believe that it will not satisfy the more ardent tempers among the English community. It is painfully prosaic, it deals with merely material interests, it declares no general principles, but rather accepts the narrow policy of the Chinese, and seeks to creep gradually from favour to favour, and from one petty privilege to another. The equal and reciprocal duties of foreigners and Chinese are not proclaimed; the rights of free ingress and egress, free action, free speech, and free teaching are still in abeyance. They remain where the Treaty of Tientsin placed them; for the new Treaty of the 23rd of October refers almost entirely to matters of detail, and only seeks to remove the most pressing inconveniences under which British trade suffers. Yet those conversant with the subject will readily admit that Sir Rutherford Alcock has not laboured in vain. A large increase of trade with the interior of China may be looked upon as the probable result of the changes which the Treaty will effect. As explained by our Shanghai correspondent, there has been hitherto a considerable difficulty in conveying goods to the interior without an undue enhancement of their price. Under the old Treaty goods imported pay an ad valorem duty of five per cent., and a British subject may transmit them to the interior by the payment of two and a half per cent. additional, in return for which he receives a transit pass, which is supposed to carry them free from the internal duties which are levied in China. But it has been found in practice that this pass is not regarded; proof of the foreign ownership is demanded; the transit pass is declared fraudulent, and the dues are levied in spite of every remonstrance. Under the provisions of the new Treaty there will be no restriction as to the ownership. Foreign goods which have paid the seven and a half per cent. will go free to whomsoever they may belong, and all the vexations and extortions of the present system will cease.

It is only by experience that the most eligible places of trade can be discovered; and the trade itself may be expected to shift from time to time, according to the wants and dispositions of the population. We are not surprised, therefore, to hear that one of the ports obtained by the Treaty of Tientsin is to be definitely abandoned. It is well known that of the five ports opened in 1842 one or two never attained any great importance, and that the commerce of Shanghai soon equalled that of all the other ports together. So, of those demanded in 1858, the port of Kiung-chow, in Hainan, has been found useless, and no establishment has been made there. It is now to be exchanged for Wanchow, a port on the mainland, in the province of Che-kiang, which is expected to be a favourable position for the tea trade. Furthermore, we are to be admitted to Wu-hu, a place in the interior, situated on the Yang-tsze, and said to be the centre of a considerable trade. As we publish the text of the Treaty, it is unnecessary to recapitulate its provisions; we content ourselves with noting and observing upon the most salient. The increase in the import duty on opium will be in favour of the Chinese grower, and is likely to cause dissatisfaction to the Indian Government. But so large is the consumption, and so constant the demand for the best growths, such as India affords, that the trade is not likely to be seriously affected. We shall not have the satisfaction of believing that Chinese morality has been improved, even at the expense of the Indian revenue. Article 9 provides for the establishment of a kind of mixed court to adjudicate on certain matters. Thus, in cases arising out of breaches of the Customs' regulations, the Commissioner of Chinese Customs and the British Consul are to sit together and inquire into the matter. It almost follows from this union of powers that Common Regulations should be devised; and we find it stated that "it is further agreed that England and China shall in consultation draw up a commercial code."

Digitized by Google

Certain stipulations show, as we have said, the extreme jealousy which still animates the Chinese Government. Thus, the free use of steam vessels on the great rivers of China is not yet conceded to foreigners, and nothing can more clearly evince the spirit of exclusiveness which still rules at Peking than No. 7 of the "Supplementary Rules." No wonder that the more impatient and energetic of the Europeans on the coast long to carry matters with a high hand, and break through such preposterous regulations at the point of the bayonet. British merchants, "duly provided with passports," may go inland to buy or sell, but they must not travel except as the authorities bid them —that is, in the most primitive and wretched manner. "They are permitted to use their own vessels if of the Chinese type, and propelled by sail "or oar;" but they must not use steam-vessels, which, it seems, would place them at an advantage to the native population, though there is nothing to prevent a native merchant using a steamer if he pleases. Furthermore, though Englishmen may rent "for short periods" hotels or private houses, they "are not to exhibit their Hong name" or the "style of their firm." The whole of this Rule No. 7 is worthy of perusal, as showing the precise degree at which the personal intercourse of British traders within the interior has arrived. Yet limited as are our rights even under this new Treaty, they are, in fact, extended by it, and it is easy to see that the extension will compel further extension, until at last we may gain that full liberty which our most earnest pioneers demand.

The right of coming and going and doing business is one which, in the nature of things, must ultimately prevail. Let us have a little patience with these timid Celestials, even if they respond to our overtures by stipulations after their own fashion. After all, China is not so many years behind the Continent of Europe. In the days of the Emperor Nicholas, foreigners were almost as much worried throughout his vast dominions as they will be by the officials and literates on the banks of the Yang-tsze. Little more than ten years ago it was declared by an Austrian politician that his Government would be very glad if no foreigner ever visited its Italian dominions. The passport was all over Europe the sign of a political suspicion hardly less worthy of contempt than that displayed by the Court of Peking. It was universal ten years ago; now it is almost extinct. May not ten years bring about a similar change in China, and a free intercourse with the outer world be accepted by the Government and people, because they find that the foreigner is well-behaved, friendly, and useful? We hope for this consummation, and will willingly believe that a threatening and hostile attitude ought to be abandoned. We must not and cannot cease for a moment from persisting in our moral right to absolute freedom of travel and settlement in all parts of the Chinese Empire; but in the means to be used for the attainment of this right there is the utmost diversity, and with present prospects and information we incline to the more gentle.

(PALL MALL GAZETTE.)

The Supplementary Treaty with China, which was signed on the 24th of October, will be regarded with dissatisfaction by two classes of persons. Those who rejoiced in the concessions made by the Chinese Government in the Treaty of Tientsin will naturally complain that no notice has been taken of the repeated violations of some of the most important of them. Those, on the other hand, who think that the extortion of these concessions was a mistake will regret that, though withheld in practice, they are still to be insisted on in form. From both points of view, the provisions that persons teaching or professing the Christian religion "shall alike be entitled to the protection of the Chinese authorities," and that British subjects shall be "authorised to travel, for their pleasure or for purposes of trade, to all parts of the interior," will continue to serve as an unwelcome reminder that diplomatists do not always cut their coat according to their cloth. The protection of the Chinese authorities in the one case, and the authorisation granted by them in the other, have turned out to be mere polite nothings. English travellers do occasionally penetrate far into the interior of the Empire, but if they do so with safety it is owing to their own tact and courage, and not at all to the fact that they are only exercising a treaty right. English missionaries have made several attempts to extend the sphere of their well-meant exertions, but in spite of the admission in the treaty that the Christian religion "inculcates the practice of virtue, and teaches man to do as he would be done by," the protection to which its teachers are declared entitled has had to be enforced in each particular case by the intervention of British gunboats. As to the position of the natives who profess Christianity we have wisely forborne to inquire, but it may be suspected that a Chinese convert who gets into difficulties with a local mandarin will not find it of much avail to plead the 8th Article of the Treaty. There is a large section of English politicians who denounce Lord Clarendon for acquiescing in this state of things. Their theory is that, in the interest alike of the Chinese and of Englishmen, the provisions of the Treaty of Tientsin should be rigorously enforced. Every omission on our part to do so will be taken, they tell us, as a proof of weakness, and the result of the impression thus conveyed to the Chinese mind will be eventually seen in the virtual withdrawal of many of those purely commercial privileges which have as yet been granted without demur.

We are so far from sharing in this opinion that we regret that Lord Clarendon was not able to substitute a treaty of more limited scope for that which contains these futile stipulations. We entertain very little respect for the notion that it is our bounden duty to impose our commercial policy and religious belief upon every semi-civilised nation with whom the restless energy of the Anglo-Saxon race brings us into more or less hostile contact. Here and there, no doubt, this theory is professed in good faith by missionaries who prove their sincerity by not waiting for the protection which they conceive, not unreasonably, to be virtually secured them by the treaty. But far more often the spread of Christianity and civilisation is simply a phrase. For anything most of those who use it care, the Chinese might remain a nation of uncultivated heathens to the end of time, provided only that they allowed Englishmen to drive a good trade with them. Looked at in this matter-of-fact light, the opposition to Lord Clarendon's policy appears at once dishonest and short-sighted. If our case is that we have a right to compel every barbarous or half-barbarous people to trade with us on our own terms, let us at least say so openly. If we think that the commercial enlightenment of the Chinese is more likely to be brought about by the application of physical force than by the natural promptings of self-interest, we shall show great ignorance of human nature. It may be admitted, indeed, that to allow the provisions of a treaty to be systematically set at defiance is not the way to gain the respect of the Chinese authorities. But there is in fact only a choice of evils open to us. We have not the power to enforce the concessions nominally made in 1858. If they had reference exclusively to the acts of the Chinese Government or its immediate representatives, things would be different. In that case we might lay siege to Peking, and dethrone the Emperor, every time an English traveller found the gratification of his geographical curiosity hindered or made more costly. Unfortunately, however, they have reference to the acts of all manner of subordinate officials, and very often of people who are not officials at all. In a huge and disorganised empire like that of China, it is useless to hold the central Government responsible for outbursts of popular fanaticism, or local jealousy, or even for the official cupidity which shelters itself under these excuses. We may exact apologies, and to a certain extent reparation, but neither will afford the slightest guarantee against the repetition of the wrongs complained of. If we had boldly faced this impossibility, and abrogated the provision in question, it would have been a confession of weakness even more significant than the omission to insist on compliance with them. The only remaining alternative was to improve the Treaty of Tientsin as far as possible, and to observe a prudent silence as to those parts of it which we have learned by experience must for the present remain inoperative.

The result is that the Supplementary Treaty is more interesting to merchants than to politicians. It speaks well, however, for Lord Clarendon's recent policy that Sir Rutherford Alcock has been able to obtain some additional concessions which promise to be of real service to trade. British goods are to pay the same duty in treaty-port provinces whether they are taken inland by British or native traders—by which means all difficulty as to proof of foreign ownership will in future be avoided. Native produce brought down from the interior and subsequently bought for exportation will be entitled to a return of all duties paid in excess of those payable on native produce purchased by British merchants in the interior—a clause which is an obvious step towards the equalisation of transit dues. Bonded warehouses will be established at certain treaty ports. Additional coal mines are to be opened in the South, and the duty on the exportation of native coal is to be lowered. Small as these modifications may seem, it is something that they have been gained by negotiation, not by force, and that they may so far be taken as representing a substantial if slow progress on the part of the Chinese Government.

(STANDARD.)

Rather more than eleven years after that Treaty of Tientsin from which so much was expected Sir Rutherford Alcock has concluded a Supplementary Convention, professedly intended to increase such facilities as the Celestials have already deigned to afford to those "outer barbarians" of whom the British are the most important representatives in Chinese waters. Some of our contemporaries, with excessive gratitude for small mercies, have hailed this latest example of the modern commercial treaty as if it represented a substantial advance upon the traditional exclusiveness of the most obstinately resistant Oriental nation. An attentive perusal of the document in question, however, leaves us at a loss to discover what the great gain on which we are told to congratulate ourselves really is. True, there are some stipulations which provide for taking import and transit, or, as we should call them, customs and excise dues together—a change which it is suggested will save merchants trading in the interior from a multitude of minor exactions to which they are now subject, through the fact that every mandarin has his own way of interpreting the treaty, or, to put it more plainly, of enforcing his powers of raising revenue from foreign goods or those who travel with them. Henceforth, cottons, linens, woollens, and woollen mixtures, are to be taxed, once for all, at the port of entry, provided always that they have not been shipped at Hong Kong for one of the treaty ports. We look in vain, however, for any assurance that this will be more than a paper stipulation, which mandarins will observe or disregard as they may think fit or find profitable, while it is quite certain that the supplementary rules and sub-rules, with their many reservations, qualifications, and exceptions, will be fruitful in disputes and difficulties, which will go far towards rendering nugatory any potential advantage which our representatives think they have secured.

Objections of this kind, however, do but moderate our estimate of what we are supposed to have gained. Other portions of the treaty show that in some important respects we have positively lost ground by the negotiations which Sir Rutherford Alcock has conducted. Considering that our smartest philosopher of the truly Liberal type has told us that the Chinese, taking them all round, are as good as we are, and perhaps better, we will say nothing about the somewhat supercilious fashion in which China holds herself out as if all she gave and granted were so much grace and favour. For instance, "China has agreed that British subjects" who desire so inestimable a benefit "shall participate in all treaty advantages," as well as the subjects of other powers. "China has agreed that England may" appoint consuls and send woollens. China will allow British merchants to buy goods in the interior on payment of certain dues, and to issue duty proofs on certain not very clearly specified conditions. But in exchange for these privileges England consents that China shall levy an increased duty upon the import of English opium and the export of Chinese silk. In other words, at a time when the yield of opium is a matter of moment to every Indian Finance Minister, China is to diminish the value of our opium crop by putting a fresh tax upon it; and while our manufacturers of silken fabrics find it more than they can do to hold their own, the price of the raw material is to be artificially enhanced in the interest of the Celestials. If carrying coal to Newcastle were ever likely to prove profitable we might congratulate ourselves on the prospect of being allowed to export Chinese coal at a reduced rate. At present, however, we put this among the minor advantages of the treaty, thrown in, as it were, by way of make-weight, together with watches, pepper, and tin plates; and with the permission formally accorded to British merchants to go inland "in their own vessels of the Chinese type, propelled by sail or oar," with the further indulgence of renting hotels for short periods, provided they do not exhibit "their hong names, or the style of their firms." But, taken in its entirety, the Supplementary Convention is deficient in almost every essential of a satisfactory commercial treaty. It is pervaded by no principle, and it is indicative of no settled policy. It represents nothing better or more dignified than the haggling of a couple of hucksters, each anxious to overreach the other. It is sufficiently humiliating to British pride to know that our representatives have conducted their negotiations in such a spirit, but it is still more mortifying to find that, having done so, they have been immeasurably out-bargained by the astute Orientals to whom they were opposed.

Digitized by Google

THE LAST NEWS FROM CHINA.

(THE STANDARD, JAN. 11.)

The latest news from China scarcely justifies the view which Sir Charles Dilke and some of his political friends hold about Chinese civilisation as compared to British barbarism. It has been said that we ought to be ashamed of ourselves for expressing the opinion that we are superior to the Chinese; and certainly, under the new political influences which we now acknowledge, it does appear either that the Chinese are rapidly coming up to us, or that we are descending to the Chinese. The mere statement of the new philo-Mandarin philosophy, however, does not assist us much in our transactions with the people of that other civilised empire. Are we to deal with China as we should with one of the regular European Powers; or are we to treat her as though she were beyond the pale of the international comity? We ask our sentimental Chinese sympathisers to tell us which plan they prefer, that we may regulate our conduct accordingly; for it is obvious that China cannot be permitted to have the advantages of both positions. She is either a civilised Power or she is not. But, if a civilised Power, she is bound to act as such, as well as to expect civilised treatment.

In the cases of which we hear by the latest mail what is the policy which the Sinophiles would have this nation pursue? In the first place, we have Sir Rutherford Alcock, our Ambassador, while strictly acting up to his treaty obligations, grossly insulted by the governor of Nanking. Now, civilised nations do not as a rule suffer the governors of provinces to treat our ambassador with disrespect, and when they do there is a recognised method of obtaining reparation for the affront. Is it the civilised process, then, that our Chinese sympathisers would have us adopt on this occasion? In this case, our course is clearly to lay the matter before the Imperial Government at Peking. But if the Imperial Government will not or cannot punish the governor of Nanking, is England, according to the civilised procedure allowed in such circumstances, to declare war against China? Again, there is, as usual, a case of the barbarous ill-treatment of missionaries by the people of a Chinese town. It is true that the missionaries are a nuisance, and have a habit of intruding where they are not safe and where they are not wanted. Still, in a civilised country, the people do not commit outrages on missionaries, and when they do they are expected to make reparation. What reparation would Sir Charles Dilke propose on the present occasion? A third instance of the exceptional civilisation of the Chinese comes from Corea, the natives of which enlightened province ordered the captain and crew of an English ship, which had been wrecked on the coast, to leave the country in three days, "under pain of decapitation." Under this somewhat rigorous decree of the civilised Coreans the unfortunate Englishmen had to take to their boats at great risk of life, and eventually succeeded in reaching a friendly harbour. Now are we to deal with a case of this kind according to the civilised codes? Are we to make the Imperial Government responsible for the acts of its Corean subjects? That would be an absurdity and an injustice, which could end only in war or in a heavy tax upon the innocent people of China. And yet if we punish the people of Corea directly we shall be held to be violating the traditions of civilised nations, and offending against a power which Sir Charles Dilke says is not inferior to England.

TESTIMONIAL TO MR. JARMAN.

In reference to our notice of a testimonial and gold tablet which had been presented to Mr. Jarman, late Assistant-Superintendent of Police at Hong Kong, by some of the oldest and most respectable Chinese residents, we have lately seen the document, which is elaborately written on satin, and subjoined is a translation of the same. Mr. Jarman, who is now in England, wishes to convey to the donors his high appreciation of the honour thus conferred on him:—

"Mr. Jarman, Assistant-Superintent of Police in the English colony of Hong Kong, after enjoying honours and emoluments in the island for above twenty years, and having been most diligent in fulfilling the duties of his office, so that the place was peaceful through his stringent search by night, and careful tracing of runaways, added to attention in correctly arranging affairs, and tranquillity being sufficiently secured, causing men to rejoice and respect him, now that he is resigning office in this year 1869, and returning to England, all we, the undersigned Chinese merchants of Hong Kong, together unite in honouring him with every kind feeling, and to record our admiration of his goodness in a verse of praise."

FREE TRANSLATION OF THE VERSE.

"Mid fragrant tears we see you leave your post,
And think what tedious years you here have lost;
May fortune, peace, and happy joys attend you
In generous measure, and may God defend you."

Monetary and Commercial.

The prospectus has been issued of the Great Northern Telegraph, China and Japan Extension, Company, incorporated in Copenhagen under Danish law, to connect the Russian lines terminating at Posiette Bay with China and Japan. The London agents for the promoters, Messrs. C. J. Hambro and Son, announce that they are authorised to offer in London 45,000 shares of £10 each, the remaining 15,000 shares, which complete the capital of £600,000, having been subscribed in Copenhagen. Cables are to be laid from Posiette Bay to Shanghai, and subsequently to Hong Kong, and a working agreement has been concluded with the Great Northern Telegraph Company, by whose lines the traffic will be conducted between Russia and England. The cables are to be manufactured by Mr. William Hooper, and are to be ready for shipment within three and six months respectively. It is stated to be perfectly susceptible of proof that the undertaking can be worked and maintained successfully and without interruption, as is demonstrated by the celerity with which messages have been transmitted across the Russian land lines, and the directness and shortness of the route are urged as commanding advantages.

In connection with the proposed London Chamber of Commerce, a preliminary meeting has been held, under the chairmanship of Mr. M'Arthur, M.P., and a Provisional Committee appointed.

We understand that Messrs. Robert Benson and Co., the London agents of the newly formed Marine Insurance Company at Shanghai, intend inviting applications for shares in this country.

Advices from the North report the failure of Messrs. Robertson and Co., shipbuilders, of Greenock. The unsecured liabilities are estimated at £13,000, but nothing is known as to the probable assets.

Messrs. Benyon, Harding, and Co. inform us that the composition deed to which we alluded in our last has been carried out.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

The following is from the Circular of Messrs. Kinnear, Hawes, and Hertz:—An improved tone of the market has been confirmed by the transactions of the last fortnight. It is mostly the medium to fine grades of Black-leaf Congou which have benefited by this improvement, and we quote these sorts 0½d. to 1d. per lb. better. Several transactions in small parcels of common black-leaf show an advance of about 0¼d. to 0½d. per lb.; but in the quarters where large quantities of this class can be disposed of buyers at improved rates are not to be found. Flowery Pekoe: The very fine parcel we mentioned in our last report, for which 4s. 6d. had been refused, has since sold for 5s. per lb., the highest price paid this season. Scented Teas: For Foochow and Canton kinds the demand has been limited, the latter sort being particularly heavy of sale. Of Uncoloured Japans there is nothing to remark. Green Teas—in the face of the large parcels which have been placed on the market, and over 6,000 packages printed "Without reserve" for the next public sale—have generally declined.

The following is Messrs. A. Capel and Co.'s Annual Report:—During the past year the Tea market has been dull throughout; nor could it be otherwise in an over-supplied market, with the whole burden of holding stock thrown on importers, who have been constantly endeavouring to press sales both privately and at public auction, whilst on the other hand the trade have been even more persistent in buying only for immediate wants. The result has been a lower range of prices for all but common and finest Teas than for some time, and but for the very great support given to the market during the first six months, by the large increase in the export demand, prices would have gone even lower. When the advices from China showed more caution in opening the markets, especially at Foochow, and that exports were much less than the previous season, there was a better market, with some rally in prices. On the arrival of the new Teas, however, the great anxiety shown to quit them without delay, and at any price, coupled with advices of increased shipments from China, caused a reaction, and prices receded rapidly from the opening rates, and for good and fine Teas reached a point 3d. to 4d. per lb. lower than during the previous year, when supplies had been much larger. These low prices have led to a large consumption, and there has been some rally in the prices of good to fine kinds. Finest have been very scarce, and have throughout commanded extreme rates, especially for the Russian markets. Common have also been fairly maintained, the fluctuations not exceeding 1d. per lb.

The import trade has again resulted unfavourably; the losses on the balance of the season 1868-69 realised this year have been large beyond all precedent, whilst on the whole crop of 1869-70, as far as realised, there must, we think, have also been a loss, although comparatively light. We would still urge with all earnestness upon importers to use their endeavours to bring about a better system. It is impossible, as stated over and over again, for buyers here to take off shipments on arrival on the scale at which they are sent from China during the first six months of the season, and unless the export is more spread, or at all events Teas are cured in China so as to make it a certainty that they will keep in England, and thus give importers confidence in holding, the trade must be carried on at great disadvantages.

Digitized by Google

The Home Trade gives but little subject for remark. The deliveries for consumption have increased by about five millions, and as prices have generally been moderate, and the trade has bought chiefly to supply immediate wants, the year must on the whole have been satisfactory. The export trade has fluctuated somewhat: during the first seven months of the year, the deliveries showed the large increase of about 7,000,000 lbs., but this has been entirely lost, and at the close there is a deficiency, as compared with last year, of about 2,000,000 lbs. The demand has again run chiefly on common and finest kinds. Large quantities were sent from China in transit for the Russian markets.

The statistics of the past year are on the favourable side, the deliveries having exceeded the imports to a trifling extent. The total import has been 145,000,000 lbs., and the delivery 146,000,000 lbs., showing a decrease of 8,000,000 lbs. in the former, and increase of over 4,000,000 lbs. in the latter; the home consumption being 5,400,000 lbs. more, and the export about 1,200,000 lbs. less. The Stock will prove much the same as last year, owing to an error discovered in the dock returns. We estimate it at 88,400,000 lbs., against 88,644,000 lbs. The quantity of China tea afloat is 49,191,000 lbs., against 39,152,000 lbs., and of India tea 3,351,500 lbs., against 3,184,000 lbs.

JAPAN TEAS.—There have been but limited supplies of uncoloured to this country, America affording a better market; the few that have arrived have not met with ready sale. Coloured Japans are, as a rule, less in favour than China Greens, and prices rule relatively lower, quality for quality, the flavour in many cases being objected to, whilst the colour is not so equal as in China kinds.

BLACK TEAS.—The quality of this season's Congous has been indifferent. The Foochow Teas we make decidedly inferior, the usual crack Chops being much below former years, whilst the medium to good kinds have been deficient in character, and in many instances have realised only 1d. to 2d. per lb. over good common Congou, although costing much more in China. The Paklins, with few exceptions, were much inferior to last season. In Teas from the Northern Ports, the flavoury Kiukiang Teas have realised the highest price; they have been fine in quality, but deficient in strength. The Oonfahs have been very much inferior to last season, and have only taken second rank. The Monings and Wopaks, with but very few exceptions, have not come out well, being wanting in pungency. New-make Canton Congous have been in over abundant supply, and gradually receded in value, and are now only saleable at from 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 1½d. for good common to fair quality. Oolongs have again been inferior, too much mixed in the leaf, and wanting pungency in the cup; they have been difficult of sale, except for some of the finest parcels. Souchongs has been the worst crop ever sent to this country, and have consequently been out of favour. Flowery Pekoes: The few sent have been fine, and commanded a ready sale. Scented Teas: Canton Capers have been in over supply; spurious kinds have sold very low. Common to fair have been dull of sale throughout; good to fine have been better supported, but prices have given way even for these. Foochow kinds of Caper have been in request this season, but few having come forward. Canton Orange Pekoe, with the exception of the finest kinds, have been difficult of sale even at a low range of prices, the imitation Foochow kinds in particular. Foochow kinds have ruled very low, being greatly in over supply, and good quality of old season sold from 1s. ½d. to 1s. 3d. in large quantity. Those of this season have sold rather more readily at fair prices, the supply being more moderate. Fine qualities have done better than medium to good.

GREEN TEAS.—The market has been tolerably steady, the stocks having been moderate throughout. The finer kinds and the commoner have been most readily saleable; the medium kinds have been generally uncertain in value, according to the quantity offering. The Pingsueys have averaged about former years as to quality, but the Moyunes have not been up to the standard of former seasons; the coarse Fychow kinds and the Teenkai sorts have not found ready buyers, and have generally sold at comparatively low rates. The export demand has not been so large this year as usual. Canton-made kinds, except those with quality, have been difficult of sale, the low to common kinds being especially neglected, and only taken at very low prices.

SILK.

The following is taken from Messrs. Kilburn, Kershaw, and Co.'s Circular:—

The Silk market has become extremely active, and within the last few days prices have advanced 6d. to 1s. on Japans, and 6d. on Bengals and Chinas. There appears no falling off in the demand for continental consumption, and it is owing to the continued strong enquiry from all parts that prices still advance. Canton silk is also sharing in the general business, and has also advanced 6d., with a strong market; we quote No. 1 Tsatlee reel, 20s. to 20s. 6d. Of Shanghai Silks we quote:—Tsatlee, best, No. 3, 30s. to 30s. 6d.; best No. 4, 26s. to 26s. 6d.; fair, No. 4, 25s. 6d. to 26s.; 4½ and inferior, 23s. to 23s. 6d. Taysaam, good to best, No. 1, 24s. to 26s.; Japan, best Mybach, 30s. to 32s.; extra superior, 33s. to 34s. The deliveries from 1st to 12th inst. are:—Bengal, 214 bales; China, 1,240 bales; Canton, 202 bales; Japan, 258 bales—total, 1,914 bales.

The past year cannot but have been a disappointing one to silk importers, not so much, probably, on account of the result of sales, although, with rare exceptions, there must have been a steady loss throughout—as with the difficulty at times of selling at all; for, unfortunately, the silk market now too often lapses into a long period of wearisome inactivity, when, to sell, is next to impossible, and prices drag along with benefit to no one; this has been the case to an extraordinary extent again this year, and in looking back over the past twelve months, it is too easily seen that this chronic dulness has been the leading feature of our market. Prices have not seriously fluctuated, nor have they gone back with suddenness; they have, as it were, drifted along, often irregular, and always bringing increased depression the lower they have become, until, at some moment, a buyer bolder than the rest has stepped in and the market has immediately recovered and a few weeks of business resulted. Twice during the past year has this happened, viz., in February, when prices had receded so far that it became a matter of wonder how much lower Silk should go, when an operator at last appeared and business began, under which, during two months, prices recovered nearly 2s.; the market then relapsed into quiet again, people began to canvas the chances of the European crop, and finding the reports continually favourable almost entirely forsook the market, and for months afterwards, even until the fall of the year, there was no real firm business, only an occasional fitful moment or two of buying, prices never giving way to any serious extent, but slowly going back;—thus the market lingered on until importers became uneasy. At one period in October, China Silk, and more especially Japan (which by the way has suffered more than any other Silk this year), declined so low in price, that even at 23s. for No. 4 Tsatlee and 24s. 6d. for Maibash Japans there were willing sellers; these quotations, after they actually became established as the quotations of the day, became also the turning point, for buyers began seriously to consider whether they had not better begin to look about them, and with the usual result, directly business began to stir, prices moved upwards, slightly at first; but that was enough after the long depression to give relief to the market; the trade soon came in, and one steady uninterrupted business has since continued, lifting the market out of an almost unprecedented period of dulness into genuine activity and sound business, and in which manufacturers and dealers feel more confidence in buying than when Silk was to be had at 2s. to 3s. per lb. less; and it is, we think, with very good reason that this confidence exists, for figures fully warrant it, and, what is much more to the purpose, consumption necessitates it. The actual state of the London warehouses on the 1st inst., as compared with the same date last year, and a comparison of quantities, are worth a few moments' study:—The total stock of all Asiatic Silk is 29,628 bales, against 34,560 bales, or 14 per cent. less; of this quantity the unsold portion is 11,861 bales, against 22,103 bales, or 46 per cent. less; and the sold portion is 17,767 bales, against 12,457 bales, or 43 per cent. more. Of China Silk the total stock is 15,853 bales, against 23,072 bales, or 31 per cent. less; of which the unsold portion is 6,061 bales, against 14, 977 bales, or 60 per cent. less. The extreme fluctuations in the prices of the leading Silks during 1869 were about 3s. on Tsatlees and Taysaams, 1s. 6d. to 2s. on Cantons, and 5s. to 6s. on Japans.

Chinas have been in more favour during the year than any other Silk, except for the common Hainins, thrown and re-reels, which have been at times quite unsaleable, and which even now have hardly improved in demand, notwithstanding the totally changed aspect of the market.

Japans have been singularly unfortunate; not only have they been more irregular and fluctuating in price, but they have been neglected, often for months together, and only by forced sales have they been moved; and the deliveries—only 7,110 bales—are 20 per cent. under the imports. The finer and better qualities have lately been looked after, and are probably returning into favour. Cantons have not participated in the rise of the last two months, and are just now in less demand; a larger proportion of fine Loongcongs have arrived this season than usual, and these have found buyers at good prices; but the medium descriptions of this class have been very difficult of sale, and show a great disproportion in relative value to the finer sorts. Tsatlee reels have fluctuated very little in price, and the demand has been fairly steady throughout the year.

COFFEE.

The first public sales of the year were held on the 4th inst., and went off with good spirit for all kinds, which has since continued, Ceylon sorts being fully 1s. 6d. to 2s. per cwt. higher than previous to the holidays. There have been large quantities offered at the public sales, but the competition has been active, especially for coloury sorts of Plantation. The following were the prices realised at the last sales:—Plantation, triage and ordinary, 43s. to 57s.; small grey and dull, 62s. to 65s.; low middling and middling do., 66s. to 71s.; bold do., 70s. to 76s.; small coloury, 65s. to 70s. 6d.; middling coloury, 72s. to 79s.; good middling bold, 80s. to 84s.; pea-berry, 75s. to 81s. 6d. Native, good ordinary, 51s. 6d. to 52s.; good bold, 57s. 6d. to 58s. 6d.; pea-berry, 56s. 6d. In other descriptions of East India the following have been the transactions:—Of 1,173 bags Singapore offered, 450 bags sold—sound at 51s. 6d., Campar sort at 45s., chiefly sea-damaged at 46s. 6d. to 50s. 6d. 226 bags bold palish Padang sold at 52s. to 55s. Of 1,200 bags Manila offered, 560 sold—ordinary mixed at 46s., Padang kind at 50s., mixed pale at 53s.

The quantity of Ceylon Coffee afloat for Great Britain on the 10th Jan. was as follows:—Plantation, 106,536 cwt., against 123,909 cwt. at the corresponding date of 1869; Native, 9,813 cwt., against 38,144 cwt. The quantity afloat for Europe was—nil, in both years. The quantity of Coffee landed in the week ended Jan. 8, 1870, was, of Ceylon, 754 tons, against 286 tons during the corresponding period of 1868; of all descriptions, 836 tons, against 309 tons. The quantity entered for home consumption was, of Ceylon, 177 tons, against 192 tons; of all descriptions, 319 tons, against 333 tons. The quantity exported was, of Ceylon, 429 tons, against 259 tons; of all descriptions, 782 tons, against 606 tons. The stock on Jan. 8 was, of Ceylon, 14,047 tons, against 10,985 tons; of all descriptions, 23,807 tons, against 18,788 tons.

SUGAR.

The market re-opened after the Christmas holidays with a moderate demand, which has since continued to the close, and prices are unaltered from those of last mail. The public sales have consisted almost exclusively of superior crystallised qualities, of which a good portion has found buyers at about previous terms. The supply of suitable qualities on sale privately is small, and little business has therefore been done. Of Penang, 750 bags have been sold at 36s. to 38s. Of Manila 4,120 bags (200 tons) unclayed Taal sold at 26s., and 12,200 bags Ilo Ilo at 26s. 6d., 1,797 bags low unclayed being bought in at 26s. 6d. By private contract the sale has been 7,200 bags clayed Manila (duty 8s.) at 30s. 6d. per cwt., and 5,600 bags low clayed at 29s. 6d.

The quantity of Sugar landed in the week ended Jan. 8, 1870, was, of Penang, nil, against 68 tons in the corresponding period of 1869; of Manila, Java, and China, 1,720 tons, against 708 tons; the quantity entered for home consumption was, of Penang, 92 tons, against 17 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 647 tons, against 88 tons. The quantity exported was, of Penang, — tons, against — tons; of Manila, Java, and China, — tons, against 8 tons. The stock on Jan 8 was, of Penang, 2,238 tons, against 610 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 36,863 tons, against 32,103 tons.

Digitized by Google

CINNAMON.—At public sale of 58 bales Ceylon 25 bales sold, good common first sort, 2s. 9d.; second, 2s. 4d.; third, 1s. 10d.; low, 10d. to 11d. Chips: 6 cases 662 bags Ceylon were all disposed of at the considerable reduction from previous public sales of about 1½d. per lb., low coarse bark, 2½d.; common to good common bark, 2½d. to 3½d.; middling chips, 4½d. to 4¾d.; good, 6¾d.; fine thin, 11½d. The quantity of Ceylon Cinnamon afloat to Great Britain on the 10th of January was 442,701 lbs., against 383,605 lbs. at the corresponding date last year.

CUTCH.—Has continued in active demand, and at the close prices are 1s. higher; the total sales are about 3,500 boxes fine Pegue at 26s. to 27s., closing at the latter price. A private sale of 300 boxes is reported at 27s.

CAMPHOR.—The only sale reported has been of 500 cases China; the terms were not reported, but it is believed the price paid was 80s. (recent weights). No business in Japar.

COCOA NUT OIL.—There is a fair demand for Ceylon at an advance of 5s. per ton, the current quotations being £41 10s. The quantity of Ceylon afloat for Great Britain on Jan. 10 was 31,243 cwt., against 43,459 cwt. at the corresponding date last year, and 37,773 cwt. in 1868.

GAMBIER.—The market is quiet; in auction 768 bales common bought in, a few lots sound at 17s. 3d., chiefly damaged at 16s. 6d. to 17s., except 100 bales first class since sold at 17s.; 200 baskets Cubes, bought in at 20s.

JAPAN WAX.—There have been no transactions; 335 boxes saucers were offered and bought in at 72s. to 77s. per cwt.

MANILA HEMP.—We have again to record an entire absence of business; 50 bales fine white quality were offered at public sale and were bought in at £68.

PEPPER.—Black: At the auctions 1,721 bags were held firmly and about one-half sold on previous terms, 801 bags fair common Penang at 4 1-16d., including first-class sea-damaged, 600 bags Singapore at 4⅜d. to 4¾d. In addition 700 bags Penang landing have been sold at 3 31-32d., and 400 bags "to arrive" at 4d. per lb. Privately 150 bags Singapore have been sold on the spot, good 4¾d., fair 4 11-16d., also 500 bags Penang afloat at 4d. White: 1,355 bags Singapore offered in public sale met little demand and were chiefly bought in at 5½d., only about 750 bags being sold thereat.

PLUMBAGO.—Of 450 barrels Ceylon offered only 100 barrels dust sold at about the previous value, common, 7s. to 7s. 6d., the remainder being bought in, dust at 6s. 6d. to 9s. 6d.; low to ordinary lump at 13s. to 18s.

RICE.—The market during the fortnight has been quiet, but the advance reported in our last has been firmly maintained. The only sales on the spot have been 200 bags Ballam at 9s., and 1,700 bags Rangoon at 9s. 3d., 4,820 bags heated do. at 8s. 9d. to 9s., and 568 bags Java medium white at 10s., cleaned at 17s. to 17s. 6d. Considerable business has been done in floating cargoes, the sales of which include a cargo of 1,200 tons Necransie at 8s. 3d. ex ship, without guarantee of quality, and the following, consisting wholly of field Siam:—The Preciosa, 900 tons, in bags, at 7s. 6d. ex ship, or 8s. landed; the Sebastian Bach, 17,000 gunny bags, distant sailing, at 8s. 1½d. landed; the Indiana, 660 tons, in bags, at 7s. 9d. ex ship, or 8s. 3d. landed; the Benares, 1,110 tons, in mats, at 7s. 7½d. ex ship, or 8s. 1½d. landed; the Thrunelda, 680 tons, in mats, at 7s. 7½d. ex ship, or 8s. 1½d. landed in London; the Ruhtinas, 920 tons, in bags, at 7s. 10½d, ex ship.

SPICES.—Cassia: 64 cases Japan bought in at 50s. Cassia Vera: 336 bales direct Padang sold at firm prices; fine, 86s. to 88s.; good, 82s.; mouldy, 81s. to 82s. Mace: 65 cases red Java kind from Padang bought in at 2s. 9d.; 8 cases middling Penang chiefly sold rather cheaper at 3s. to 3s. 3d. Nutmegs: A rather large supply amounting to 184 cases Penang has been offered and meet a good demand, the whole being sold at firm prices—very fine bold, 60 nuts to the lb., at 4s. 3d., bold 71's at 3s. 7d., 83's at 2s. 4d., 94's at 2s., 121's at 1s. 8d., 130's at 1s. 6d. to 1s. 7d., shrivelled 170 to 150's at 10d. to 1s. 1d., defective 7d. to 8d.; 6 cases Java 97's sold at 1s. 8d. to 1s. 9d.

SAGO.—In auction of 898 boxes small pearl 550 boxes good bright sold firmly at 18s.; 745 bags chiefly sold; brown large, 18s. 6d.; middling, 19s.; good, 21s. Flour: 1,607 bags Padang bought in at 13s. 6d. to 14s., but since sold at 13s. to 13s. 3d.; 700 bags Singapore bought in at 14s., except 73 bags inferior, which sold at 12s. 6d.

TAPIOCA.—Large quantities of East India kinds offered met a moderate demand, and only a small portion sold at easier rates; of 1,038 bags Malacca only 200 bags good white sold at 2d. to 2¼d.; the remainder bought in at 2d. to 2¼d.; and 276 bags Penang at 2¼d. Pearl Tapioca: 100 boxes medium Singapore sold at 21s. 6d. to 22s.; 72 bags bought in; large, 23s. 6d.; extra large, 30s. Flour: 16 bags Singapore sold at 2d. to 2¼d.; also 10 cases (in tins) fine at 3d.

TIN.—Injudicious speculation has destroyed all confidence in this import, and prices are again lower; the quotations are, Banca and Billiton, £106; Straits, £104 to £104 10s. per ton.

ARTICLES OF EXPORT.

WOOLLEN GOODS.

We have to report the Bradford market as decidedly firmer. Higher prices have been obtained for Wools, also for certain classes of goods, and the belief we expressed in our last issue is now confirmed. More business in goods would have been done during the last fortnight than there has been if manufacturers would have taken last prices. The advance obtained has been on goods principally for the home trade, prices for goods suitable for China and Japan being without alteration.

QUOTATIONS.

	s.	d.
Long Ells, Scarlet	31	0	per piece, packed
Camlets ,, S	66	0	,, unpacked
Do. ,, SS	62	9	,, ,,
Do. ,, SSS	54	0	,, ,,
Spanish Stripes, Scarlet, best quality ...	3	0	per yard, packed
Worsted Lastings, Black	49	6	per piece, unpacked
Worsted Crape Lastings, Black ...	39	0	,, ,,
Crape Lustres	19	0	,, ,,
Figured Lustres, Black, best quality ...	19	0	,, ,,

The following is Messrs. Hayter and Howell's monthly statement of the estimated exports of Woollens shipped to China and Japan from London and Liverpool:—

—	Pieces Long Ells.	Pieces Camlets.	Pieces Spanish Stripes, Broad Cloths, &c.	Pieces Stuffs.	Pieces Inferior Woollens.
Total shipped in 1869	186,120	85,860	99,879	473,669	207,222
Do. do. 1868	146,540	80,190	70,554	423,980	86,047
Do. do. 1867	140,420	79,717	56,002	648,665	41,455
Do. do. 1866	106,420	88,012	63,347	626,110	87,317
Had arrived in China when the last accounts left of this year's shipment	109,320	48,560	58,447	278,759	138,926

QUOTATIONS.

	s.	d.
HH Long Ells	31	0	per piece	Scarlet
HH Spa: Stripes	2	10	,, yard	,,
HH } Camlets	63	0	,, piece	,,
SS }
SS Do.	61	6	,, ,,	,,
HH Lastings	57	0	,, ,,	Gentian
HH Crape Lastings	46	0	,, ,,	,,
LL Do. do.	42	0	,, ,,	,,
HH China Figures	21	0	,, ,,	Scarlet
HH Crape Lustres	19	9	,, ,,	Black
China Blankets	1	9	,, lb.	Scarlet

(These prices include tilleting and packing, and are subject to a discount of 1½ per cent for cash.

Shipping Intelligence.

ARRIVALS.

Date.	Ship	Captain.	From.	At.
Jan. 6	Maasluis	Kuchler	Batavia	Brouwershaven
—	Asie Mineure	Gonyon	Java	Belle Isle
— 3	Conchita	Larabe	Manila	Cadiz
— 10	Albion	Moncrieff	Penang	London
— 11	Flora	Dixon	Singapore	Do.
— 11	Skimmer of the Wvs.	Gouch	Colombo	Do.
— 11	Carin	Gray	Manila	Do.
— 7	Grootmeestr. Nationl.	Giesse	Batavia	Brouwershaven
— 8	Zephir	Van Oostrum	Do.	Do.
— 9	Gutenberg	Brarens	Do.	Do.
— 12	Patna	Sodermann	Rangoon	Falmouth
Dec 10	Senator Weber	Hancock	Yokohama	Callao
— 10	Star of India	Charton	Do.	Do.
— 11	Confederate Star	Roach	Do.	Do.
— 22	Maid of Glanwern	Thomas	Ceylon, for Philadlph	St. Thomas

DEPARTURES.

Date.	Ship.	Captain.	For.	From.
Jan. 8	Wild Deer	McTavich	Shanghai	London
—	Utrecht (s.s.)	Overlack	Batavia	Rotterdam
— 7	Salvadore	Urrutio	Hong Kong	Cardiff
— 11	Weymouth	Gibson	Shanghai	London
— 8	Annie Braginton	Drysdale	Penang	Glasgow
— 12	Ocean Belle	Jarvis	Singapore	London
—	Falke	Gottsche	Hong Kong	Hamburg
—	Noranside	Deas	Singapore	Amsterdam
— 10	Oceana	White	Galle	Cardiff
— 10	Albatross	Vanelius	Yokohama	Liverpool
— 10	Katherine	Gerstenberg	Singapore	Do.
— 10	Ogir	Olsen	Do.	Do.

(See Commercial Postscript and Correspondents' Letters.)

LOADING.

At LONDON.—For Yokohama: Min, John Milton. For Yokohama (via Suez Canal): Tszru (str.) For Yokohama and Hiogo: Harbottle. For Shanghai: Juanpore, Geraint, Clara, Melbrek, John R. Worcester, Thyatira, Flying Spur. For Hong Kong: Dunmail, Hopewell, Maiden Queen, Scawfell, William Fung. For Singapore: Kingdom of Belgium, Sree Singapura. For Singapore, Hong Kong, Shanghai, and Yokohama (via Suez Canal): Erl King (str.) For Penang: Eleanor. For Penang, Singapore, Hong Kong, and Shanghai (via Suez Canal): Chu Kiang (str.). For Batavia and Sourabaya: Vesta. For Colombo: Prince Alfred, River Indus, Shooting Star, A.O.A. For Colombo (via Suez Canal): Otterburn (str.).

At LIVERPOOL.—For Yokohama: Singapore. For Shanghai: Doune Castle. For Hong Kong: Veronica. For Manila: Estrella, Aurora, Hong Kong. For Singapore: Ellen Lamb. For Batavia and Sourabaya: Konigin Augusta.

At GLASGOW.—For Singapore: Kinfauns Castle. For Batavia and Sourabaya: County of Lancaster. For Buenos Ayres and Penang: La Plata.

At GREENOCK.—For Shanghai (via London): Cutty Sark.

Digitized by Google

SPOKEN.

AQUILINA, Sunderland to Galle, Dec. 7, on the line, 28 W.
ROYAL SOVEREIGN, Batavia to Rotterdam, Oct. 17, 34 S., 27 E.
ENGLISH SHIP, 2nd. pdt. 0456, Plymouth to Galle, Nov. 14, 3 N., 25 W.
LOTUS (s.), Plymouthto Bangkok, Nov. 14, 3 N., 25 W.
BANDA, Tarragona to Singapore, Nov. 14, 15 S., 27 W.
GLADIATOR, London to Batavia, Nov. 15, 14 S., 28 W.
STAR OF THE SOUTH, Colombo to London, Dec. 13, 15 N., 29 W.
DERWENT, London to Shanghai, Nov. 24, 17 S, 31 W.
TITANIA, London to Shanghai.
NIEUW HOLLAND, Rotterdam to Batavia, Nov. 8, 16 S., 30 W.
4TH D.P. 1,925, Batavia to Rotterdam, Nov. 20, 34 S., 19 E.
ARGONAUT, Shanghai to New York, Dec. 16, on the line, 31 W.
BENGALEE, Bordeaux to Singapore, Dec. 21, 15 N., 26 W.
COREA, London to Penang, Nov. 26, 13 S., 33 W.
DORETTE (N.G. ship), Liverpool to Singapore, Dec. 5, 5 N., 28 W.
ADMIRAL DE RUYTER, Amsterdam to Batavia, Nov. 15, 7 S., 31 W
THE CALIPH, London to Shanghai.
HELENA, Batavia to Amsterdam, Jan. 3, 47 S., 15 W.
LA PLATA (str.), Liverpool (?) to Batavia, Dec. 16, 12 S., 37 W.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS.

Berth freight to the Eastern ports show signs of improving, and rates have in some instances slightly advanced, and are firmer; tonnage is also in better request. We quote below rates of freight by steamers (via Suez Canal), of which there are four loading for Ceylon, Singapore, China and Japan. The following are the rates of Insurance to these ports by this route:—London to Yokohama and Shanghai, about 40s. to 50s.; Singapore, about 40s.; Colombo, about 30s. The rates for coal from the Northern out ports are without any noticeable alteration.

Current rates of freight for vessels on the berth:—To Yokohama: 32s. 6d. weight, 35s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 120s. weight, 110s. meast. To Shanghai: 40s. weight, 39s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 90s. weight, 80s. meast. To Hong Kong: 35s. weight, 30s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 80s. weight, 70s. meast. To Batavia: 25s. weight, 30s. meast. To Penang: per steamer, via Suez Canal, 80s. weight, 70s. meast. To Singapore: 30s. weight, 25s. to 30s. meast.; per steamer via Suez Canal, 70s. weight, 60s. meast. To Ceylon: 20s. to 25s. weight, 20s. meast; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 60s. meast. At New York to China; $12 to $15 per ton of 40 cubic feet.

The current quotations for coal, &c., are as follows:—From Wear or Tyne per keel.—For Shanghai: £40. For Hong Kong: £32. For Singapore: £25 10s. For Galle: £24. From Newport, Cardiff, or Swansea per ton. For Yokohama: £1 18s. For Shanghai: £2 2s. For Hong Kong: £1 10s. For Saigon: £1 5s. For Singapore: £1 6s. For Galle: £1 5s. 6d.

The Admiralty have invited tenders for the conveyance of 240 tons stores to Hong Kong.

Messrs. Angier Brothers, in their freight report for 1869, say that:—Coal and iron freights during the past twelve months have not varied to any great extent in any trade, notwithstanding there has been an increase in the total exports of coal and iron compared with preceding years. Doubtless the continued depression in these freights generally, throughout the past year, is in a great measure attributable to the enormous increase in the supply of steam-tonnage. In the East India trade rates have ruled low, with few variations; the same may be said of the West India and Brazil trades. There have been more frequent changes in Mediterranean quotations. During the greater part of the year great quantities of iron and railway material were shipped both to Northern and Southern Russian ports. For the Italian ports rates have been firm, and remain good. There has also been activity in the Baltic trade, the rates having ruled high to Cronstadt and other ports, chiefly in consequence of the low homeward freights. We require large vessels at present for San Francisco, Callao, Singapore, Galle, from the North or Wales—also for Bermuda, most of the Brazilian ports, and the River Plate, according to the annexed list. We have orders here, likewise, for coals from the Tyne for Valencia, Malta, Corfu, Odessa, Alexandria, &c.

CASUALTIES.

The Flora, Dixon, from Singapore, arrived in the Downs Jan. 8, having lost an anchor and thirty fathoms of chain; she proceeded in tow for London.

Advices from Fayal, dated Dec. 27, state that the Nell Gwyn, Smith, from Java to Amsterdam, put in there Dec. 13 with loss of rudder; she was being fitted with a false sternpost and rudder, and would be ready for sea in eight or ten days.

The Sirius, van Hilten, which arrived at Texel, Jan. 6, from Batavia, had sustained some damage.

Advices from St. Thomas's, dated Dec. 23, state that the Maid of Glanwern, Thomas, from Ceylon to Philadelphia, put in there Dec. 22, with her mainmast said to be sprung; it was not known whether she would have to discharge.

The King Lear (ship), of London, from Cardiff to Hong Kong, with coals, foundered, Jan. 7, thirty miles W.N.W. of the Smalls.

The Lizzy, Williams, from Liverpool to Singapore, put into Falmouth, Jan. 11, with loss of bowsprit, foretopgallantmast, bulwarks, watercasks, &c., and three crates of cargo washed overboard.

The Arrow (str.), from the Clyde, &c., for Galle, put into Lisbon, Dec. 31, for repairs.

MISCELLANEOUS.

At MALTA.—Jan. 5, Sakana (str.), Lobnitz, from London, for Japan (via Suez Canal).

At MAURITIUS.—Nov. 23, Nouveau Nomade, Marchandeau, from Singapore; Dec. 9, Silence, Dugoud, from Bangkok.

CAPTAIN WILLIAM OXLEY, of the barque Flatworth, has had a gold watch awarded him by the President of the United States, in acknowledgment of the services rendered by him in the following case:—On the 28th of August last, the whaling schooner Susan N. Smith, of Boston, U.S., J. P. Rounseville, master, was capsized in a hurricane, and became a total wreck. The captain's wife and their two children, and all others on board, except the captain and four seamen, were washed away and lost. The five survivors remained on the wreck, the bows of which alone were above water, for eight days, without food, water, or covering. On the 5th of September the Flatworth, bound from Penang for London, saw the wreck, bore down upon her, and rescued the five men from their perilous situation, all of them being well nigh exhausted and ready to perish, and Captain Rounseville delirious from mental and physical suffering. The conduct of Captain Oxley is reported as most generous. He gave the unfortunate seamen the best of his clothing, stores, and medicine, and presented Captain Rounseville, when he left the barque, with money for his immediate wants.

THE two new vessels, each of 3,500 tons and 600-horse power, which the Peninsular and Oriental Company have recently contracted for with Messrs. Caird and Co., of Greenock (in addition to the Australia, of similar dimensions, already in progress at the same yard), have been named the Khedive and the Mirzapore.

THE screw steamer Sakana, London for Yokohama, arrived at Port Said on the 13th inst., and left for Suez.

THE screw steamer Shantung, built for the Shanghai Steam Navigation Company for their Tientsin trade, was launched yesterday from the yard of Messrs. Inglis, on the Clyde, and will proceed in a few days for China, via the Suez Canal. The river boat building for the same Company will not be ready for a couple of months.

THE BEST ROOFING MATERIAL.

BRABY & CO. ALSO MANUFACTURE SHEET AND PERFORATED ZINC, ROOFING FELT, GALVANIZED BUCKETS AND ALL OTHER ZINC AND GALVANIZED IRON GOODS, ILLUSTRATED LISTS OF WHICH WILL BE SENT FREE ON APPLICATION.

F. BRABY & Co.
(LIMITED),

BRABY'S GALVANIZED IRON HOUSES.

FITZROY WORKS, EUSTON ROAD, LONDON · AND AT IDA WHARF, DEPTFORD, S.E.

TRADE MARK OF CAPSULES & CASES

PARTICIPATION CHARENTAISE

LA GRANDE MARQUE COGNAC

LONDON OFFICES (for the trade only)—22 and 23, Great Tower-street.

Mr. V. JOUANNET, Managing Director, Cognac. | Mr. E. VIGNIER, Manager for the U.K., London.

The largest holders of Vintage 1865, and old Brandies of the first growths; which can be obtained from all Wine and Spirit Merchants, or can be procured by them, as large consignments have been lately shipped to all the principal ports of China, Japan, Java, Singapore, and Ceylon.

Blue Label, 6 years; Yellow Label, 11 years; Red Label, 14 years; White Label, from 18 to 40 years.

Samples forwarded free, by Overland Route, to Merchants giving satisfactory references in London.

CANADIAN NEWS, every Thursday contains all the latest news from the New Dominion

Price 2d., post free, 3d.

Office: 8, Clement's-lane, Lombard-street. E.C

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT

INDIGESTION, BILIOUS HEADACHE.—These ailments may sometimes be considered by the young and thoughtless to be trifling inconveniences; but it should be borne in mind that by simple inattention and neglect they often end most seriously. The wise without delay rectify a deranged stomach; they take Holloway's Pills, rub his celebrated Ointment over the pit of the stomach and liver, and they at once perceive a change for the better in their system, spirits, appetite, strength, and energy. The improvement, though it may be gradual, will be thorough and lasting. They preserve from a recurrence of the malady. Holloway's Pills will be found to purify the blood and give healthy action to every organ.

Digitized by Google

PORT OF AMOY.

SHIPOWNERS, AGENTS, and COMMANDERS are informed that the Dock Company's establishments at the above port afford every facility, at moderate charges, for REPAIRING and SPARRING VESSELS, cleaning and painting iron ships and steamers.

Their large Granite Dock has 286 feet length on the blocks, and at average spring tides can receive vessels of 16 to 17 feet draught. It has a caisson-gate and a powerful centrifugal steam pump, and an engineer's workshop fitted with lathes and tools, driven by steam iron and brass foundries, boiler-makers' shop, a large smithy and carpenters and boat-builders' sheds, superintended by resident Europeans.

Their two smaller GRANITE DOCKS can receive, at spring tides, vessels drawing 12 feet.

Spars, timber, and other Dockyard material kept stock.

Quarters for officers and a DRY GODOWN stores of vessels under repair.

SINGAPORE DOCKS.

THE PATENT SLIP AND DOCK COMPANY execute SHIPS' REPAIRS of all descriptions in the most efficient manner, under the supervision of European Engineers and Shipwrights.

The DRY DOCK (opened in March, 1859) admits two Vessels at the same time, being over 400 feet in length, with a depth of water ranging to 15½ feet. A second DRY DOCK of larger dimensions will shortly be completed, and available for the heaviest Steamers.

Adjoining the above there is extensive WHARF WAREHOUSE, and other accommodation, including every convenience for coaling Steamers, discharging cargo, and storing goods, together with ample MACHINERY and appliances for repairing iron steamers, &c.

Apply at the offices of Messrs. PATERSON, SIMON and Co., Singapore; or 21, St. Swithin's-lane, Cannon-street, London, E.C.

WM. CLOUGHTON, Managing Director

New Harbour, Singapore, June, 1868.

FOOCHOW DOCK.

RIVER MIN.

THE above granite floored DOCK, of the following dimensions, viz., Length, 300 feet, breadth at bottom, 40, is capable of receiving vessels drawing 13 to 16 feet, as the state of the tides will allow. The Dock runs dry to the blocks, and is pumped out by steam.

The above premises comprise a large Machine Shop containing a

WHITWORTH'S 12-INCH SCREW CUTTING GAP LATHE, DRILLING AND SCREWING MACHINES,

A LARGE SMITHY, &c., &c., &c.

Large Godowns are on the premises for STOWAGE OF CARGO, &c., &c. A large stock of Woods, Metal, &c., &c., always on hand.

The Dock steam tug Woosung is available at all times to tow vessels to or from sea.

JOHN C. SKEY, Superintendent.

COMPTOIR D'ESCOMPTE DE PARIS.

Incorporated by National Decrees of 7th and 8th March, 1848, and by Imperial Decree of 20th July 1854, and 31st December, 1866.

Recognised by the International Convention of 30th April, 1862.

CAPITAL, fully paid up, £3,200.000.

Reserved Fund ... ... f.20,000,000 ... £800,000

HEAD OFFICE.—14, Rue Bergere, Paris.

AGENCIES AT—Lyons, Marseilles, and Nantes (France), Alexandria (Egypt), Calcutta, Bombay, Hong Kong, Shanghai, Saigon (Cochin China), Bourbon (Reunion), and Yokohama (Japan).

LONDON BANKERS.—The Union Bank of London.

LONDON AGENCY.—13, Leadenhall-stre t, E.C.

MANAGER.—G. Pietsch.

SUB-MANAGER.—Theod. Dromel.

The London Agency grants Drafts and Letters of Credit, and purchases or collects Bills payable at th above-named places.

The Agency will conduct Banking business of every description with the Continent. India, China, &c., upon terms to be ascertained at the Office.

UNION INSURANCE SOCIETY OF CANTON.

DIRECTORS IN HONG KONG.
W. NISSEN, Esq.,
J. P. DUNCANSON, Esq.,
P. RYRIE, Esq.,
W. KESWICK, Esq.,
A. A. D. SASSOON, Esq.,
E. A. HITCHCOCK, Esq.,
W. LEMANN, Esq.,
W. H. FOSTER, Jun., Esq.

AGENTS FOR LONDON.
Messrs. DENT, PALMER, and Co.

Marine Risks are accepted by the above Society on goods by first class vessels from the United Kingdom to India, China, Japan, Melbourne, and Sydney, at the current rates of premium.

Claims for Losses and Averages are payable in London, or at the Port of destination, as may be desired.

OFFICES:—
Nos. 9 AND 11, KING'S ARMS YARD, MOORGATE STREET, E.C.

HONG KONG AND SHANGHAI BANKING CORPORATION.

Capital, 5,000,000 dols Paid up, 3,000,00 dols.

COURT OF DIRECTORS AND HEAD OFFICE IN HONG KONG.

LONDON MANAGER—W. H. Vacher, 32, Nicholas-lane

BANKERS.—London and County Bank.

BRANCHES AND AGENCIES:

Hong Kong	Hankow	Singapore
Shanghai	Japan (Yokohama)	Bombay
Foochow	Manila	Calcutta
Ningpo

The Bank grants DRAFTS upon and negotiates or collects BILLS at any of its Agencies or Branches; also receives DEPOSITS for fixed periods, at rates varying with the period of deposit.

CAUTION.

THE GROSS FRAUDS which continue to be practised by obscure manufacturers, more particularly in Germany, by imitating the labels attached to JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s PERFUMERY, render it imperative upon the Proprietors to Caution the public against such nefarious proceedings, and to request their friends and patrons to purchase only of respectable dealers, who import direct from JOHN GOSNELL and Co., and invite special attention to the address, ANGEL-PASSAGE, 93, UPPER THAMES-STREET, late of 12, Three King-court, Lombard-street, London, E.C.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s SELECT PERFUMES—Ess Bouquet, Royal Yacht Club Bouquet, Jockey Club Perfume, Essence of Wood Violet, Victoria Bouquet, Garibaldi Bouquet, Frangipanni, Military Bouquet, The Bride's Bouquet, Tea Rose, Russian Leather Perfume.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Toilet Vinegar. Inexhaustible Salts, Aromatic Vinegar, Aromatic Eau de Cologne.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Prince of Wales Perfume

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Princess Alexandra Perfume.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s La Noblesse Perfume.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s La Noblesse Pomade.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s La Noblesse Soap.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Real Old Brown Windsor Soap.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Golden Oil—Moelline—Macassar Oil, Bear's Grease, &c., for the Hair.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Extra Highly Scented Toilet and Nursery Powder.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Stereodesmic or Dentist Tooth Brushes and Trichosaron Hair Brushes, warranted to purchasers.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Instantaneous Hair Dye.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Cherry Tooth Paste is greatly superior to any tooth powder, gives the teeth a pearl-like whiteness, protects the enamel from decay, and imparts a pleasing fragrance to the breath.

Orders executed on receipt of 10 per cent. of the amount in cash, the balance being drawn for through a Banker.

"THE CHINA MAIL,"

No. 2, WYNDHAM-STREET, HONG KONG.

NOTICE.—THE BUSINESS heretofore carried on under the style of "Shortrede and Co," was this day purchased by the undersigned, in whose name and by whom it will henceforth be conducted, and to whom all outstanding accounts owing to the said business are to be paid.

Hong Kong, Aug. 15, 1867. CHAS. A. SAINT.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS.

THE DAILY CHINA MAIL.—Six pages; published every evening (except Sunday). Subscription, 24 dols. per annum Circulates in Hong Kong and along the China and Japan coasts. Terms of advertising:—Ten lines and under, 1 dol.; each additional line, 10 cents; one-half of these charges for repetitions. In Chinese, 2 cents per character for any number of days during the current week.

THE OVERLAND CHINA MAIL.—Compiled from the Daily China Mail, is published twice a month on the morning of the English mail's departure, and is a record of each fortnight's current history of events in China and Japan, contributed in original reports and collated from the journals published at the various ports in those countries. It contains, besides, a Shipping List for Shanghai Hong Kong, Canton, and Macao, and a complete Commercial Summary.

Subscription, 12 dols per annum, payable to any of the undermentioned agents. Postage added. Terms of advertising:—Same as in Daily China Mail.

AGENTS.—London: F. Algar, 11, Clement's-lane, Lombard-street, E.C. San Francisco: White and Bauer, 518, Clay-street, San Francisco. Swatow: Drown and Co. Amoy: Giles and Co. Foochow: Thompson and Co. Shanghai: H. Fogg and Co. Manila: Karuth, Heinzen, and Co. Australia: Gordon and Gotch, Melbourne and Sydney. Singapore: Locke. Hongghee, and Co. Batavia: H. Van Dorp.

THE SAIGON ADVERTISER & SHIPPING GAZETTE.

A SUMMARY of Commercial and Shipping Reports from SAIGON, and a Record of Progress in COCHIN CHINA.

Subscription, £5 per annum, exclusive of postage.

London Agency: THE LONDON AND CHINA TELEGRAPH Office, 2, Cowper's-court, Cornhill, London, E.C

THE STRAITS TIMES.—Daily, weekly, and fortnightly editions; published in Singapore, for circulation throughout the STRAITS SETTLEMENTS, JAVA, BORNEO, SIAM, FRENCH COCHIN CHINA, CHINA, and JAPAN.

This paper, which is the oldest in Singapore, and the most widely circulated throughout the FAR EAST, offers an excellent medium for the advertisements of shipbuilders, machinists, manufacturers, patentees, &c., in the United Kingdom.

Advertisements to be forwarded through an Agent in Singapore, or GEORGE STREET, 30, Cornhill, London.

OSLER'S CRYSTAL GLASS CHANDELIERS.

WALL LIGHTS and LUSTRES for Gas and Candle
CHANDELIERS in Bronze and Ormolu
MODERATOR LAMPS and LAMPS for INDIA,
TABLE GLASS of all kinds.
ORNAMENTAL GLASS, English and Foreign
Mess, Export, and Furnishing Orders promptly executed.

All articles marked in plain figure
OXFORD STREET, W.
MANUFACTORY AND SHOW ROOMS.—Broad Street, Birmingham.
Established 1807.

C. KRAMER begs to inform the public that he has established himself at this place as NURSERYMAN and SEEDSMAN, and is fully prepared to execute any orders for Japanese plants bulbs, or seeds for any part of the world.

An experience of four years in this business in foreign parts, two of which has been gained in this country may ensure the confidence of customers.

Orders must be accompanied by remittances or references, and letters must be addressed to

C. KRAMER,
No. 63, BLUFF, YOKOHAMA.

NOTICE.

MORRIS'S DIRECTORY for CHINA, JAPAN, and the PHILIPPINES, &c., to be published on the 1st Jan., 1870, contains a Revised List of the Foreign Residents at all the open Ports of the China Sea, including Saigon, which has never yet been included in any similar work; together with the Time Tables of the different Steamship Companies, Rates of Postage, Local Ordinances, and such other matter as will be useful to all interested in the China trade. No trouble or expense has been spared to make this the most accurate publication of the kind ever offered to the public.

Price, complete in one volume, 14s.

Orders received by the Publisher of the "London and China Telegraph," 2, Cowper's-court, Cornhill, E.C.

COWASJEE DINSHAW.

Close to the Landing Place, Depot of

EUROPEAN, CHINA, AND INDIAN WORK.

WINE, BEER, CHAMPAGNE, and SPIRITS of the best quality. Bombay-made Soda Water and Lemonade. Perfumery, Confectionery, Ollman's Stores, and Stationery of every description. Sola Topees and Canvas Shoes, &c., &c., &c.

STEAMER POINT, ADEN.

Drawing and Reading-room free to Passengers.

THE London and China Express ON SALE.

PRICE'S

BENZODYNE AN INTERNAL STYPTIC of great value. In Cholera, Diarrhœa, and Dysentery this medicine far surpasses any other, having a peculiar mechanical power of putting a sudden stop to wasting diseases. Chronic Cough and blood-spitting are immediately relieved by it, as well as pain and debility of every kind. Prepared by Mr. PRICE, Analytical Chemist, 2, Lower Seymour-street, and 30, Duke-street, Portman-square, London; and sold by Chemists all over the world, in bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., 11s., and 22s., or in dispensing bottles at 5s., 10s., and 20s. eac

Liebig Company's Extract of Meat.

AMSTERDAM EXHIBITION, 1869, FIRST PRIZE, being above the Gold Medal. Supplied to the British, French, Prussian, Russian, Italian, Dutch, and other Governments. One pint of fine flavoured Beef-tea at 2½d. Most convenient and economic "stock."

CAUTION.—Only sort warranted genuine by the Inventor, Baron Liebig, whose signature is on every genuine Jar.

Ask for LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT, and NOT for Liebig's Extract of Meat.

MORRIS AND CO.,

COMMISSION AGENTS, AUCTIONEERS AND NEWS AGENTS.

SPECIAL AGENTS FOR THE

LONDON AND CHINA EXPRESS.

HONG KONG.

THE MONEY MARKET REVIEW

A WEEKLY JOURNAL OF THE HIGHEST CLASS.

EXCLUSIVELY DEVOTED TO THE DISCUSSION COMMERCIAL AND FINANCIAL TOPICS.

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

PAYABLE IN ADVANCE.

Single Paper ... ... 6d. early ... ... £1 6s.

BY POST.

Sinle Paper ... ... 7d. Yearly ... ... 10s.

 Post-office Orders to be made payable to FRANCIS FISHER, 2, Castle-court, Birchin-lane, Cornhill, London E.C.

Digitized by Google

OVERLAND ROUTE.—

The PENINSULAR AND ORIENTAL STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY book Passengers and receive Cargo and Parcels by their steamers for—

	From Southampton.	From Marseilles.
GIBRALTAR ...	Every Saturday, at 2 P.M.	—
MALTA.....	" "	—
ALEXANDRIA.	" "	Every Sunday, at 7 A.M.
ADEN	" "	" "
*BOMBAY	" "	" "
GALLE	" "	" "
MADRAS	Saturday, Dec. 25, 2 P.M.	Sunday, Jan. 2, 7 A.M.
CALCUTTA ...	And every alternate Saturday thereafter.	And every alternate Sunday thereafter.
PENANG
SINGAPORE ...
CHINA
JAPAN
AUSTRALIA ...	Saturday, Dec. 25, 2 P.M. And every fourth Saturday thereafter.	Sunday, Jan. 2, 7 A.M. And every fourth Sunday thereafter.

And all ports touched at by the British India Steam Navigation Company's steamers.

* The following reduced rates will be charged to Bombay:—

From Southampton... £72 first class; £45 second class.
From Marseilles ... 70 " 43 "

exclusive of transit through Egypt. A corresponding reduction will be made in the rates from Bombay to Europe.

For further particulars apply at the Company's Offices, 122, Leadenhall-street, London; or Oriental-place, Southampton.

OVERLAND ROUTE VIA MARSEILLES.—SERVICES MARITIMES DES MESSAGERIES IMPERIALES OF FRANCE.—FRENCH MAIL STEAM PACKETS LEAVE MARSEILLES AS FOLLOWS:—

22 January, 19 February, 19 March, 16 April, 14 May — For — Alexandria, Aden, Mauritius, Seychelles, Reunion, Point de Galle (Ceylon), Pondicherry, Madras, Calcutta, Singapore, Batavia, Saigon, Hong Kong, Shanghai, and Japan.

9th, 19th, and 29th of every month for Alexandria.

For Passage, Freight, and information, apply to B. W. and H. HORNE, 4, Moorgate-street, London; G. H. FLETCHER and Co., Liverpool; at the offices of the Services Maritimes des Messageries Imperiales in Paris, Lyons, Bordeaux, and Marseilles; or to Smith and Co., Rotterdam.

 Passengers eastward of Suez securing their berths in London are entitled to the conveyance of their luggage free to Marseilles

---

MAIL ROUTE FOR CALIFORNIA, JAPAN AND CHINA, VIA PANAMA.

THE PACIFIC MAIL STEAM SHIP COMPANY despatch their splendid side-wheel steamers from NEW YORK on the 5th and 21st, and from PANAMA on the 13th and 29th of every month for SAN FRANCISCO (calling at ACAPULCO and MANZANILLA en route), thence to YOKOHAMA, HIOGO, NAGASAKI, SHANGHAI, and HONG KONG, on the 1st of every month. Passengers from England may connect with this line at New York by any of the various lines of steamers from Liverpool, Glasgow, Southampton, or Havre.

Passengers by this line are less than ten days in the tropics.

SANDWICH ISLANDS and BRITISH COLUMBIA.—The steamers of the North Pacific Transportation Company leave San Francisco at regular intervals for those countries.

H. STARR and Co., Agents, 22, Moorgate-street, London.

UNION PACIFIC RAILWAY.—

THROUGH LINE from NEW YORK to SAN FRANCISCO.

San Francisco, in 18 days from England.
Japan ..... in 38 " "
China ..... in 44 " "

Passengers for California and intermediate points on this road may now be booked through from England at the established rates of fare; and from San Francisco to Japan, China, &c., by the magnificent steamers of the Pacific Mail Company.

For Rates, Tickets, &c., apply to H. STARR and Co., Agents, 22, Moorgate-street, London.

ROYAL MAIL ROUTE, via PANAMA, for NORTH and SOUTH PACIFIC, Central America, Japan, and China.—The ROYAL MAIL STEAM PACKET COMPANY'S ATLANTIC STEAMERS now run through from Southampton to Colon (Aspinwall), by which arrangement passengers for the above localities will be conveyed to the Isthmus of Panama in the vessel in which they embark at Southampton.

Passengers and goods are booked

For the South Pacific, Central America, West Coast of Mexico, California, British Columbia ... ... } By steamer from Southampton on 2nd and 17th of each month.

Japan and China... ... 17th of each month.

For further particulars apply to

J. M. LLOYD, Secretary.

Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, 55, Moorgate-street London, E.C.

NEW ROUTE TO CHINA AND JAPAN, VIA LIVERPOOL.

THE WEST INDIA AND PACIFIC STEAM SHIP COMPANY (Limited) sign through bills of lading for goods to Yokohama Nagasaki, Hong Kong, and Shanghai, via San Francisco, by the Pacific Mail Steam Ship Company's new line of mail steamers from that port.

Passengers will find excellent accommodation, and the fares more reasonable than by any other route.

For terms, &c., apply to the Agents, J. M. CURRIE, Esq., 21, Quai d'Orleans, Havre, or 7, Rue Scribe, Paris; or at the Company's Offices, 117, Leadenhall-street, London, and The Temple, Dale-street, Liverpool.

ARTHUR B. FORWOOD, Managing Director.

CHINA and JAPAN.—The following splendid first-class SHIPS will be despatched as under:—

Port	Ship.	Class.	Dock.	Last Shipping Day.
Shanghai ...	Thyatira.....	A1 17 yr.	E.I.D.	Jan. 20
Do.	Geraint	A1 14 yr.	E.I.D.	Feb. 10
Hong Kong	Hopewell ...	A1 18 yr.	W.I.D.	Jan. 22
Do.	Wm. Fruing	A1 18 yr.	E.I.D.	To follow
Foochow ..	Wylo	A1 16 yr.	E.I.D.	With des.

For Freight or Passage apply to KILLICK, MARTIN, and Co., 10, George-yard, Lombard-street, E.C.

PENANG, SINGAPORE, CHINA, AND JAPAN.

ROBERTSON and CO. will despatch the following first-class clipper VESSELS:—

Destination.	Ships.	Class.	Dock.	Last Shipping Day.
Penang, Singapore, Hg. Kg., & Shanghai,	Chu Kiang s.s.(new) (viaSuez Canal)...	A1 18 yr.	W.I.D.	Jan. 17
Singapore, Hong Kg., Shanghai, Yokohama	Eri King, s.s. (via Suez Cnl	B. A1 ...	E.I.D.	Feb. 10
Shanghai ...	Juanpore ...	Brocklebank...	W.I.D.	With des.
Do.	Hindostan ...	AA1.....	W.I.D.	To follow
Hong Kong	Maiden Qn.	A1 14 yr.	W.I.D.	With des.
Do.	Devana	A1 13 yr.	W.I.D.	With des.
Yokohama (Kanagawa)	John Milton	A1 14 yr.	W.I.D.	With des.

For Freight and Passage apply at 5, Newman's-court, Cornhill, London; or York Chambers, 55, King-street, Manchester.

CHINA AND JAPAN.

THE following high-classed Clipper VESSELS will be despatched as under:—

Port.	Ship.	Class.	Dock.	Last Shipping Day.
Shanghai ...	J.R.Worcstr.	A1 12 yr.	E.I.D.	With des.
Nagasaki & Chefoo ...	Zohrab (new)	A1 9 yr.	E.I.D.	With des.

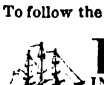
For Freight or Passage apply to NORRIS and JOYNER, 60, Cornhill, E.C.

JOHN C. CAMPBELL will despatch the following splendid VESSELS:—

Destinatn	Ships.	Tns.	Class.	Dock.	Sailing about
Colombo ..	RiverIndus	1045	AA1	W.I.D.	Jan. 25

No. 22, Great St. Helen's, E.C.

To follow the "Granville." Will meet with immediate despatch.



DIRECT for COLOMBO, the magnificent clipper ship RIVER INDUS, AA1. 1,045 tons register; G. SHEARER, Commander; West India Docks. This splendid vessel, built in 1868, is well known for her rapid passages and the good order in which she always delivers her cargo, and from her high class can be strongly recommended to shippers of fine goods.

For Freight or Passage apply to LIVINGSTON, HOLDING, and BRIGGS, 31, Great St. Helen's, Bishopsgate-street, E.C.; or to JOHN C. CAMPBELL, 22, Great St. Helen's, Bishopsgate-street, E.C.

To Sail Feb. 1.

FOR HONG KONG, the well-known clipper SCAWFELL, A1 13 years, 826 tons register; R. THOMSON, Commander; East India Docks.

For Freight or Passage, apply to SHAW, MAXTON, and Co., 2, Royal Exchange-buildings, London, E.C.

FOR SHANGHAI, the well-known clipper CLARA, A1 13 years, 938 tons register; THOMAS POWER, Commander; East India Docks. Has a full poop, with superior accommodation for passengers.

For Freight or Passage apply to SHAW, MAXTON, and Co., 2, Royal Exchange-buildings, London, E.C.

THE THATCHED HOUSE CLUB.

This Club, established in 1865 for Members of Civil Services, is now open to Officers in the Army and Navy, Magistrates, Deputy Lieutenants, &c.

The house is situated in the best part of St. James's-street, next to the Conservative Club.

The Committee being about to complete the full number of members, applications for admission, with reference, must be made to the Secretary, 86, St. James's-street, London, from whom the rules and lists of members may be obtained.

Entrance fee, 25 guineas; annual subscription, 8 guineas; foreign ditto, 1 guinea.

S. BARNETT'S SODA WATER & LEMONADE MACHINES.

THE ONLY PRIZE MEDAL FOR SODA-WATER MACHINES, AWARDED IN 1862, WAS TO SAMSON BARNETT.

FOR HE MANUFACTURE OF

Soda, Potass Seltzer, Carrara, Lithia, Magnesia, and Tonic Waters. Lemonade, Ginger Beer, Orangeade, Gingerade, Nectar, & Champagne Cider

Ful directions for preparing all the above drinks sent with each Machine.

Machines to make doz. bottles per day.				Price.
No. 1	300	...	...	...£65	0	0
" 2	200	...	...	... 60	0	0
" 3	150	...	...	... 55	0	0
" 4	100	...	...	... 50	0	0
" 5	60	...	...	... 45	0	0
Prize Medal Bottling Apparatus			...	... 9	0	0

The above Machines are all packed entire, and can be set to work immediately on arrival.

The illustrated book of Advice before purchasing ent to any part of the World, or can be obtained at he Office of this Paper, and of the Agents abroad, hrough whom orders can be sent to the Manufacturer.

S. BARNETT, Engineer,
23, FORSTON-STREET, LONDON, N

THE CHINA & JAPAN AGENCY.

For the Purchase and Shipment of Goods of all kinds to Ports in China, Japan, the Straits Settlements, &c. Orders for Furniture, Stores, Books, and Personal Requirements of every description promptly executed, either by Overland Route or Clipper Sailing Vessels. The articles in all cases are carefully selected by persons who have had personal experience of the wants of residents in China and Japan. Orders should be accompanied either by a remittance, or a reference for payment in London. All communications to be addressed, and remittances made payable, to

THE MANAGER,
CHINA & JAPAN AGENCY
2, COWPER'S-COURT, CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C.

THE LONDON & CHINA TELEGRAPH.

THE TWELFTH Volume of this JOURNAL commenced on the 10th of January, 1870. The Subscription for three numbers per month is 30s. per annum, including Postage, and to the Export Supplement 12s. extra. Terms for advertising, 2s. 6d. per five lines, and 6d. for each additional line.

Subscriptions and Advertisements received abroad by the following Agents:—

Paris	G. W. YAPP, 4, Place Wagram, Boulevard Pereire.
Brindisi	AGENTS FOR BRINDISI STEAMERS.
Hamburg	Mr. ONCKEN.
Holland (Rotterdam and Amsterdam)...	COLONIAL AGENCY, Delftschevaart, 6,323, Rotterdam.
New York	WM. H. FOGG & Co., 32, Burling Slip.
San Francisco	WHITE & BAUER, 413, Washington-street.
Alexandria	DAVID ROBERTSON & Co., The Square.
Aden	COWASJEE DINSHAW.
Point de Galle	J. GIBSON, THOMSON, & Co. FREDK. PITERS.
Colombo	J. MAITLAND & Co.
Singapore, Labuan, and Sarawak	JOHN LITTLE & Co., Singapore.
Penang	SANDILANDS, BUTTERY, & Co.
Saigon	RIBEIRO & Co.
Batavia	HUNTER, HOUGHTON, & Co.
Samarang	DE GROOT, KOLFF, & Co.
Sourabaya
Anjer — Straits of Sunda.....	G. SCHUIT, Anjer Hotel.
Manila	MICHELL, BARNARD, & Co.
Hong Kong, Canton, Macao and Swatow	MORRIS & Co., Hong Kong.
Amoy	BROWN & Co.
Foochow	HEDGE & Co.
Shanghai	H. FOGG & Co.
Tien-Tsin	JAMES HENDERSON.
Nagasaki—Japan ...	PIGNATEL & Co.
Yokohama	E. C. KIRBY & Co.
Osaka and Hiogo ...	E. C. KIRBY & Co.

OFFICE 2, COWPER'S-COURT, CORNHILL, E.C.
(Over the JERUSALEM.)

Digitized by Google

GREAT NORTHERN TELEGRAPH, CHINA AND JAPAN EXTENSION, COMPANY.

INCORPORATED UNDER DANISH LAW, WITH LIMITED LIABILITY.

CAPITAL, £600,000, IN 60,000 SHARES OF £10 EACH.

Messrs. C. I. HAMBRO and SON are authorised to offer for SUBSCRIPTION in LONDON 45,000 SHARES of £10 each, in the above Undertaking, the remainder having been Subscribed in Copenhagen.

Payments to be made as follows:—£1 on Application; £1. 10s. on Allotment; £1. 10s. no the 1st March, 1870; £2 on the 2nd May, 1870; £2 on the 1st August, 1870; £2 on the 1st October, 1870.

Instalments will be received in advance, at any date, under Discount of Five per Cent. per Annum.

SUBSCRIPTIONS will be Received until TUESDAY, the 18th January, at Two o'clock p.m.

DIRECTORS.

C. A. BROBERG, Esq., Firm of Chr. Broberg and Son.
L. P. HOLMBLAD, Esq.
M. LEVY, Esq., Secretary to the Minister of Finance.
J. FR. SICK, Esq., formerly Minister at the Hague and Brussels.
O. B. SUHR, Esq., Firm of J. P. Suhr and Son.
C. F. TIETGEN, Esq., Director of the Private Bank of Copenhagen.

Bankers in London.
Messrs. C. I. HAMBRO and SON.

Solicitors in London.
Messrs. PARKER and CLARKE, St. Michael's Alley.

Bankers in Copenhagen.
THE PRIVATE BANK OF COPENHAGEN.

Brokers in London.
Messrs. WALKER and LUMSDEN, 25, Austin Friars, E.C.

Offices of the Company in London—7, GREAT WINCHESTER STREET BUILDINGS, E.C.

PROSPECTUS.

This Company, constituted under Danish law, has been formed for carrying out a concession granted by the Russian Government on the 11th (23rd) October, 1869, for connecting China and Japan with Europe through Russia.

The peculiar and commanding advantage of this route consists in its shortness. Any other route, as may be seen from the map, must make a large detour, whilst the route by Russia is direct from England to China, and at the same time the land lines of this route have their maintenance guaranteed by a strong European power, through whose territory alone they have to pass. This route is already recognised as the shortest means of telegraphic communication with the northern ports of China, and as many as thirty to forty messages, of twenty words each, have been sent through it from China to England in one day.

The concession, for which there were several applicants, was, after long investigation, granted by the Russian Government to Danish parties connected with the Great Northern Telegraph Company. By the terms of the concession the Russian Government has granted the Company, besides other special privileges, the exclusive right for thirty years of connecting China and Japan with Europe through the Government wires on Russian territory. The concession provides for a renewal of these exclusive privileges on preferential terms at the expiration of the thirty years, and in any case secures to this Company the continuance of the right of transmission of their messages through the Russian land lines.

The caution money of S.R. 150,000 has, in accordance with Sec. 8 of the Concession, been duly deposited with the Russian Government by the Concessionnaires, and reverts to them. The consideration for the transfer of the Concession to this Company by the Concessionnaires is fixed and agreed at £25,000.

The Russian Government further undertakes to connect their system of land lines with the landing points of the Company's cables, and to increase their number of wires as the requirements of the traffic may demand.

A working agreement between this Company and the Great Northern Telegraph Company of Copenhagen, by whose lines the traffic will be conducted from Russia to England, has been concluded with a fair rebate on the tariff of that Company.

The first cable will be laid from Posietta to Shanghai, either direct, if deemed advisable, touching at Nagasaki, or other convenient point in Japan. The next section will extend from Shanghai to Hong Kong. Ultimately the other important ports in Japan and China will be included in the system of the Company; and to construct these further lines the necessary extension of the Company's capital will be applied for under the regulations of the statutes.

Preliminary contracts have been entered into with Mr. William Hooper for the manufacture of the cables, the insulation being "Hooper's India-rubber," similar to that employed by the Great Northern Telegraph Company in their cables between England and Denmark, and Scotland and Norway, and for 1,200 nautical miles from Posietta Bay to Shanghai, and for 1,100 nautical miles from Shanghai to Hong Kong; and the cost of these two sections is £396,000.

For the laying of the cables the Directors have, on due consideration, made no contracts. The Danish Government will aid the expedition with a Steam Frigate, which will take out a large portion of the cable, and assist in completing the necessary soundings.

For the transport of the remainder of the cables, and the laying of the same, the Directors will take measures to ensure its being done at the lowest possible cost, whereby a great saving on the ordinary cost of laying cables at remote distances will be effected.

The Russian Government provides a war steamer to accompany the expedition, to assist and convoy the ships laying the cables.

The maximum tariff for messages from any of the stations in China or Japan to the western frontier of Russia has been fixed by the concession at 100 francs per single message of twenty words (of which 60 francs accrue to this company and 40 francs to the Russian Government), consequently the charge for messages between China and Japan and England, including transit rates, can never exceed £4. 6s. per single message of twenty words.

The contracts with the manufacturer stipulate that the cables shall be ready for shipment within three and six months respectively. Whatever other Telegraph lines may ultimately be established between Europe and China, there can be no doubt that this Company, with its exclusive privileges from the Russian Government, will be able to maintain its position and make a good profit on the capital invested in the enterprise.

The shares of this Company will be issued to bearer and pass by delivery, unless any Shareholder should especially require to have his shares registered for transfer, which, in such case, can be done both in London and Copenhagen. The liability is by the Danish law strictly limited to the amount of the shares.

A translation of the concession, and copies of the preliminary contracts for the manufacture of the cables, may be seen at the Office of the Company.

Prospectuses, with printed translations of the Statutes, and forms of application for shares, may be obtained at the Office of Messrs. C. I. Hambro and Son, 70, Old Broad-street, and of Messrs. Walker and Lumsden, 25, Austinfriars, E.C.

London, 14th January, 1870.

No. .....

London ..... January, 1870.

TO THE GREAT NORTHERN TELEGRAPH, CHINA AND JAPAN EXTENSION, COMPANY.

(Incorporated under Danish Law, with Limited Liability.)

Care of Messrs. C. I. Hambro and Son, 70, Old Broad-street.

Gentlemen,— request you to insert name in you ist of applications for Great Northern Telegraph, China and Japan Extension, Company's Shares, to the extent of Shares. enclose cheque for pounds (£), being an instalment of £1 per share on shares, and hereby engage to accept the same, or any smaller number you may allot, and pay the remaining instalments in accordance with the terms of the prospectus and statutes.

Gentlemen, your obedient servant,

Name.....

Address.....

RECEIPT FOR DEPOSIT.

No.....

Received of the sum of pounds, being a deposit of £1 per share upon an application for Shares of the Great Northern Telegraph, China and Japan Extension, Company (Incorporated under Danish Law, with Limited Liability).

For C. I. HAMBRO and SON.

£..... .....

Printed for the Proprietors by WOODFALL and KINDER, Milford-lane, Strand, W.C., and published by JAMES WEST, at the Office of the "LONDON AND CHINA TELEGRAPH," 2, Cowper's-court, Cornhill, in the parish of St. Michael's, in the City of London.—Monday, Jan. 17, 1870.

Digitized by Google

The London and China Telegraph.

JAPAN HERALD, AND JOURNAL OF THE EASTERN ARCHIPELAGO.

PUBLISHED ON THE ARRIVAL OF THE FORTNIGHTLY ENGLISH, AND MONTHLY FRENCH MAILS FROM CHINA JAPAN &c.

IN CONNECTION WITH THE "LONDON AND CHINA EXPRESS." A SUMMARY OF NEWS FOR THE OUTWARD MAILS.

VOL. XII.—No. 340.] LONDON, MONDAY, JAN. 24, 1870. [Price 9d., with Sup., 1s. 3d.—Sub. 30s. per ann., postage included. Sup. 12s. extra.

Latest Advices.

PORTS.	OUTWARD. From London.	OUTWARD. Arrived out.	HOMEWARD. Received this day.
JAPAN — Yokohama	Oct. 8	Dec. 1	Dec. 5
Yedo	—	—	Dec. 3
Osaka and Hiogo
Hakodadi
Nagasaki	—	—	Dec. 1
CHINA — Peking
Tien-tsin	—	—	Dec. 1
Chefoo			Dec. 4
New-chwang
Hankow	Oct. 8	Dec. 1	Dec. 4
Kiu-kiang	—	—	Dec. 5
Chin-kiang
Shanghai	Oct. 8	Nov. 27	Dec. 8
Ningpo	—	—	Dec. 4
Foochow	—	—	Dec. 1
Formosa
Amoy	—	—	Dec. 2
Swatow
Hong Kong	Oct. 28	Dec. 12	Dec. 14
Canton	—	—	Dec. 13
Macao	—	—	Dec. 13
PHILIPPINES— Manila	Oct. 10	Nov. 26	Dec. 1
COCHIN-CHINA— Saigon	—	—	Dec. 10
SIAM — Bangkok	—	—	Dec. 10
BORNEO—Labuan	—	—	Dec. 8
Sarawak	—	—	Dec. 10
JAVA — Batavia	Nov. 5	Dec. 14	Dec. 15
Samarang	—	—	Dec. 13
Sourabaya	—	—	Dec. 12
MALACCA STRAITS— Singapore	Nov. 5	Dec. 9	Dec. 21
Penang	Nov. 19	Dec. 21	Dec. 23
CEYLON—Galle	Dec. 3	Dec. 28	Dec. 29
Colombo	Dec. 3	Dec. 28	Dec. 28

THE MAILS, &c.

The present mail brings rather a meagre budget of news; from Japan we have only three days later than that received via San Francisco and published in our last issue.

The next inward mail, due here on the 7th February, should bring the following dates:—Yokohama, Dec 19; Shanghai, Dec. 22; Hong Kong, Dec. 28; Singapore, Jan. 4; and Galle, Jan. 13.

The latest telegrams are in advance of the succeeding mail leaving Hong Kong Jan. 4. These have come through in very fair time. Telegrams from San Francisco announcing the Pacific mail steamer from Yokohama Jan. 1, are now due.

List of Passengers.

PASSENGERS INWARD.

By this mail to Marseilles, per P. and O. steamer Pera, arrived Jan. 22.—From Hong Kong: Mr. Farley, Mr. Sauz and servant, Mr. Romeiro, Mr. Reynolds. From Singapore: Mr. Sinclair, and two second-class passengers. From Penang: Mr. Stokoe. From Ceylon: Mr. Stewart.

To Southampton, per P. and O. steamer Ceylon, expected to arrive Jan. 28. From Hong Kong: Mr. Hunter, Dr. Bodle. From Singapore: Mr. and Miss Moss, Captain Ivey. From Galle. Mr. and Mrs. Bois and child, Mrs. Phillips, child, and servant, Dr. Mally, Mr. Strickland, Mr. Banon.

By last Bombay mail to Marseilles, per P. and O. steamer Poonah, arrived Jan. 13.—From Hong Kong: Mr. A. W. Rasden.

To Southampton, per P. and O. steamer Ripon, arrived Jan. 23.—From Hong Kong: Mr. Medlen, Mr. Soy. From Galle: Mr. T. Nicholls.

PASSENGERS OUTWARD.

Per French mail steamer Moeris, from Marseilles, Jan. 22 (booked from London).—To Singapore: Mr J. D'Almeida. To Ceylon: Mr. Cunningham.

Per P. and O. steamer Tanjore, from Southampton, Jan. 22.—To Shanghai: Mr. C. Y. McVicar, Mr. T. G. Smith. To Singapore: Mr. R. G. Hurst, Mr. Baker. To Ceylon: Mr. E. England, Miss A. Robinson, Mr. F. M. Mackwood.

Per P. and O. steamer Pera, from Marseilles, Jan. 30.—To Yokohama: Mr. and Mrs. L Howell. To Hong Kong: Mr. A. Paterson. To Penang: Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Evans. To Ceylon: Mrs. Russell, Mr. H. McLeod, Mr. and Mrs J. A. Kendrew and child.

Per P. and O. steamer Ripon, from Southampton, Feb. 5.—To Yokohama: Mr E. Fraser. To Hong Kong: Mr. and Mrs F. W. White. To Ceylon: Miss Allen, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Brownrigg and two children.

Per P. and O. steamer Nyanza, from Marseilles, Feb. 13.—To Shanghai: Mr. and Mrs. J. Crawford. To Hong Kong: Mr. J. Lachlan, Rev. Dr. Legge. To Singapore: Rev. Mr. Copland. To Penang: Mr. D. C. Presgrave. To Ceylon: Mr. G. Goodeve, Mr. A. Wiggin.

Summary of News from the Far East.

CHINA.

SHANGHAI.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SHANGHAI, Dec. 7, 1869.

The French mail closed on the forenoon of the 1st inst.; since then but little of moment has occurred.

By Kiachta we have telegrams to Nov. 9. We may hear of this route at any one moment being closed. Ice has shown itself on the Peiho; we have had here for the last five days, a succession of north or north-westerly gales

Count Rouchechouart intends shortly proceeding up the Yangtsze with two French gunboats, in regard to the Anking difficulties. He will also proceed to Ju Jang, in Szechuen, the scene of the murder of a French priest and a number of native Christians early this year.

It is said that the speculations entered on by some Chinese officials to force the value of Mexican Dollars ended in a loss of some 250,000 Tls. Business generally is described as exceedingly dull, and few, if any, imports paying. Opium has fallen considerably, owing to the increased cultivation of the native drug. Rice is dearer, owing somewhat to the appropriation of the land for opium, which gives three times the return. Mr. Edward Cunningham, the managing partner of Messrs. Russell and Co., has given a farewell ball and supper. He leaves with Mrs. Cunningham for the United States, via Japan and San Francisco. Mr. Cunningham commenced his career in Canton in 1845, and his departure is now universally regretted. He is succeeded by Mr. H. H. Warden, of Messrs. Griswold and Co., New York.

It is reported that Wu-hu, when opened, and Chinkiang, are both to be Vice Consulates under the Shanghai Consulate."

The Austro-Hungarian flag was yesterday hoisted at this port, M. Calice, Consul-general and Diplomatic Agent, entertaining his brother consuls at a grand dejeuner.

There has been a meeting of the shareholders of the Shanghai Club. They have decided to forego all interest in the institution, and turn it over to the Recreation Fund Committee, who in turn hand it over to the members of the Club, but retaining mortgages on the building to the extent of Tls. 69,000.

The Rev. J. Thomas, of the Union Chapel, has resigned his charge.

The northern papers are warmly advocating the formation of a China and Japan Association.

The Peking correspondent of the North China Daily News gives the following heads of news:—"Three new members, said to be pro-foreign, elected to Tsungli Yamên; Dr. Martin installed President of the Peking College; Mr. Hart had not left Peking on the 25th; Mr. McLeavy Brown was waiting to come with him. There is also a report that the latter has succeeded in getting the American treaty ratified."

It is reported that Mr. H. N. Lay, who is now on a visit to Japan, has purchased the Japan Times, and that Mr. Howell will edit that journal. Mr. Rickerby is about to return to England.

(FROM ANOTHER CORRESPONDENT.)

The statement that has appeared in the newspapers here respecting an intended visit to Szechuen by the French Minister, accompanied by an armed escort, field pieces, &c., is authentically alleged to be much exaggerated. M. de Rochechouart intends proceeding up the Yangtsze, visiting the Imperial Commissioner Ma, at Nanking, in reference to the damages sustained by the French Jesuit missionaries at N'ganking; but his ultimate destination is Hankow, where he expects to meet the Viceroy, Li Hung-chang, on the latter's return from Szechuen, whither he was ordered to proceed some months ago in connection with the missionary murders in that province. It has become tolerably well known that M. de Rochechouart looks with no favourable eye on the revision of the Treaty which Sir R. Alcock has achieved—or, perhaps, it would be better to say, which the Chinese Foreign-office and Mr. Hart have agreed upon. It appears that the French Minister received no intimation of the negotiations in progress until they had been finally completed, and he is said to object particularly to the increase of duty on Silk, which forms one of the provisions.

Digitized by Google

It is rumoured that Mr. Hart is no longer in as high favour as formerly with the Chinese Foreign Office, and that he has received a strong hint to the effect that he is no longer required to remain permanently at Peking. Mr. McLeavy Brown, whose extraordinary position as an emissary of Mr. Burlingame's, and a negotiator on behalf of the American Government, while still holding a post in the British Consular service, is spoken of as a probable successor to Mr. Hart. If the latter does in reality experience ingratitude at the hands of the Chinese Government, and be displaced to make way for a former subordinate of his own, he will be in a good position to sympathise with the feelings of Mr. H. N. Lay, in 1864.

Captain Forbes has come out to take charge of the Marine Department of the Customs. His duty will lie in the maintenance of lights in the open harbours and in the rivers, the construction and repair of lighthouses, and general river and port conservancy. He will also have the management of the steamers which are now daily expected out. No one knows exactly what these steamers are to be. Some say they will be revenue cruisers; others that they will be regular gunboats; others that they are to serve only for lighthouse purposes. I imagine a little of all comes nearest to the idea.

THE INSULT TO SIR RUTHERFORD ALCOCK.

The following paragraph, from the North China Daily News, proves how thoroughly the example set at Peking in snubbing Prince Alfred is followed in the provinces, and may help to open the eyes of the blind at home.

"His Excellency's interview with the Viceroy and Imperial Commissioner Ma is reported to have been extremely unsatisfactory, owing to great rudeness and discourtesy on the Chinese side. The British Minister was kept waiting for nearly ten minutes outside the Yamen's doors, although due notice had been sent of his intended visit, and the Viceroy's manner is described as blustering and loud. On complaint being made, the Viceroy protested that no intentional discourtesy had been shown in the delay, and, on Sir Rutherford's return to his vessel the presents were sent with the accustomed formalities. These, however, Sir Rutherford declined to accept until an official of due rank should have been sent to express regret for the apparent discourtesy. Late at night this official made his appearance, and Sir Rutherford then refused to receive him. It is to be hoped that this timely assertion of the dignity of a foreign Minister will not be lost on the arrogant and complacent Governor."

The Courier, however, goes even further. In its issue of the 3rd Dec. it makes a statement which, if correct, should call for the prompt punishment of the offenders. It says:—

"Sir Rutherford Alcock was treated with great rudeness by the Viceroy Ma at Nanking. He was kept waiting a quarter of an hour before he was admitted to the favour of an audience, and on his remonstrating with the official for his behaviour, the attendants shouted and clamoured and drowned his objections. A letter of apology and presents were subsequently sent from the Yamen, but the Minister very properly refused to receive either."

TIENTSIN.

Nov. 15.

Our new Treaty, or Convention, has been signed and sealed on the 23rd Oct., and has been sent home for ratification.

I believe his Excellency is no ways proud of it, and does not expect it will give satisfaction to the merchants. He is reported to have done all in his power, and even to have got more than the Board of Trade asked for. He had an interview with Wansing, and strongly urged on him the opening of the Chartay mines, and the making of a good road from them to Tungchow. Wansing flatly refused, and reminded his Excellency that his own Government had promised not to press them, and they were not to be pressed. Our Minister's hands being thus tied by the imbeciles of the Foreign-office, we are left, so far as they care, to the tender mercy of the Chinese.

Three coal ports—or coaling stations—are to be opened on trial, under the control of the Southern Superintendent of Trade, who has the option of employing foreigners and foreign trading. Read this in connection with an extract from a note on Chinese matters by Robert Hart, who writes, "Some forty officials in the provinces, and perhaps ten at Peking, have a glimmering notion of what it is that the foreigner means when he speaks in general terms of progress, but, of these fifty, not one is prepared to enter boldly on a career of progress, and take the consequence of even a futile initiation." What hope for our coal mines, left to the option of a Chinese? If he go boldly into the matter, he will deserve well of his countrymen and of foreigners, because he will have sounded the death knell of the Fung Shui, but if he is not prepared to enter boldly into a course of progress, where are we? In a worse, a much worse, position than before. As I intimated in my last letter, whatever concessions are granted, will at first be in the South. So has it come to pass. In the North we derive no advantage from the opening of new mines, even the heavy export duty being still retained.

Little or nothing can be said against the increased duty on opium; it would be well for the Chinese if its growth, native and foreign, could be abolished, but so long as its growth is permitted here all over the country, it would look as if the Chinese Government were rather anxious to protect the native grown opium, by increasing the duty on the foreign grown article. I doubt very much whether the Government will receive the whole of this extra duty on opium. I think the extra duty is very likely to add considerably to the smuggling of it in the South.

HANKOW.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

DEC. 4.

You have already heard of the outrage on the missionaries at An-king. Sir Rutherford Alcock, who left Shanghai on the 17th ult., in the S. S. N. Company's steamer Plymouth Rock, visited the city on his way up the Yangtsze, and as the Futai was absent, remonstrated with the Taoutai, and delivered him his ultimatum. The demands made included an indemnity for the losses sustained by the missionaries, the punishment of those concerned in the attack, and the arrest of the literati who, as was confessed by the Taoutai, instigated the whole affair. These latter persons are to be sent for trial to Peking. No doubt some farcical imitation of compliance with Sir Rutherford's demands will be made, for the Adventure had received orders to lie outside the city on her arrival, and there await the Minister, whose plan was not to return to Shanghai, but to go directly down the coast as far as Amoy in that vessel. Fortunately he met the gun-vessel Leven at Kiu-kiang, and at once ordered her to hasten down to Anking, and add to the effect likely to be produced by the silent presence of the Adventure. It was arranged that on his return from Hankow he would again pay a visit to the Anking officials, and ascertain how far they had complied with his demands in the meanwhile. Sir Rutherford and Lady Alcock, and Miss Lowder, accompanied by Mr. Conolly, Secretary of Legation, and Mr. Lowder, of the Customs Staff at Swatow, temporarily lent by Mr. Hart to act as Sir Rutherford's private secretary, arrived at Hankow on the morning of the 21st ult., and put up at the English Consulate. The Taoutai of Hankow called early on Monday, the 22nd, and most of the residents left cards. An official dinner on the evening of the 22nd, a visit to the Wu-chang side, and a pic-nic at the bungalow on the Hanyang Hill, filled up the time of the Minister's stay at Hankow. He left on the 24th in the Plymouth Rock.

What is facetiously called "our policy in China" will, I suppose, never be changed until the Chinese give us a lesson. On this ground every exhibition of contempt and hatred is so much in our favour, as hastening on the long-expected event. Here, then, are two encouraging facts. Some mails ago I told you of an attack made upon Catholic missionaries at Tien-mun (Heaven's gate), a few miles above Hankow. When Sir Rutherford Alcock's intended trip up the river was rumoured there the literati and people thought that it was the French Minister who was coming, and their imagination furnished him with two gunboats and a large body of troops. They immediately arrayed all their forces, threw up works, and prepared their war junks, determined to show fight. This will show how much we have succeeded in teaching these ignorant and presumptuous savages. Again, Li Hung-chang is still in Szchuen, endeavouring to arrange for the punishment of the people concerned in the recent murder, and the levying of the indemnity claimed. But I am told by a mercantile friend in Hankow, who has constant opportunities of meeting Szchuen traders, that all these latter say that "the Viceroy is wasting his time," for the Szchuen people are not like the Hupeh people; "they are not sheep, not they," and so forth. To sum up in one sentence all the signs of the times, as presented by our relations with the really influential classes in the empire—we are much less feared than we were in 1860, and infinitely more disliked.

HONG KONG.

Advices from this port are to the 14th Dec. The outward mail of Oct. 28 arrived Dec. 12.

The following extracts are from the China Mail:—It is said that the licensed gambling-houses will be closed, by orders from home, in a few days, and that the Special Fund will be at once cut off from all purposes of Colonial expenditure. From all we hear, the opium farm of this colony is exceedingly remunerative, and can well afford to pay a very much higher contract price to the Government. It is not impossible that the necessity of raising additional revenue will become a matter demanding the best consideration of the local executive, if, as is stated, the Home Government is about to "put on the screw" regarding the "Special Fund" expenditure.

One of the colonial improvements which Sir Richard MacDonnell will leave behind him when he leaves Hong Kong and its administration will undoubtedly be the road round the island which has recently undergone a thorough repair. This undertaking has been quietly progressing for some years ack, and may now be said to be in a state "fit for use." From Victoria, by the Gap or the western road, the traveller reaches Pok-fo-lum, whence he may proceed down the steep to Aberdeen, along the causeway-like road to Little Hong Kong, and thence to Stanley (where, by the way, a punt has to be called into requisition for a few yards, if the traveller be not on horseback), next on to Tai-tam-tuck, and thence to Sowkewan, returning from the eastward to Victoria. It must be remembered that for very many years several lines of communication—gutters, gullies, furrows, footpaths, public ways, or whatever they may be called except roads—existed between the most important out stations of the Island and the City of Victoria. But to the present Governor is owing mainly the credit of having transformed them into roads.

Digitized by Google

Another improvement, which we believe will soon be an accomplished fact, is the electric telegraph which is in course of being laid. This is an undertaking which, of all others, ought to have been taken in hand and carried out years ago; and it has often been wondered that, standing as this British Colony does on the verge of an empire whose people are more stubborn and obstructive even than Hottentots, no attempt has hitherto been made to show the neighbouring Chinese what can be done by Western science in its peculiarly "anti-Feng-shuy" aspects. These various means taken by the present administration to bring this little rocky wart of a British dependency up to the age, in regard to communication, are not only creditable to those at the head of affairs, but they are so necessary, that future generations will wonder why their predecessors were so slow in showing themselves up to the mark of civilisation and progress. It is to be hoped that these and other improvements may not be hindered by the unsatisfactory state of health in which the Special Fund has been so suddenly thrown.

American agencies for Chinese emigration to the States have been opened and are doing well. The terms offered are liberal, and so far as can be judged, no abuses seem likely to take place.

The taxed costs in the Crown libel case of Regina v. Saint have been paid to the defendant. There is now no more coolie kidnapping at Macao.

Great changes have been made in Government appointments at Macao; the Procurador of Chinese Affairs, Chief Justice, Superintendent of Emigration, First Interpreter, and other officials having been superseded.

The master, officers and crew of the Glenclune lost on the coast of Formosa have been honourably acquitted of blame.

We learn, on good authority, that the marriage of the Emperor of China is deferred until the autumn of 1870, at which period, it seems probable, His Majesty will also be emancipated from tutelage and commence his actual reign.

A movement, likely to be successful, is on foot to send a delegate or delegates from the Chamber of Commerce to explore Western China, in company with Baron von Richthofen, if the latter consents to be accompanied.

Chief Justice Smale has resumed his seat in the Supreme Court.

SIAM.

—o—

BANGKOK.

We take the following items from the Siam Weekly Advertiser:—

H.I.M.'s Consul, M. F. Dillon, has had his audience. The Emperor's letter was honoured with twenty-one guns, and the Consul was saluted with seven. The Consular party were entertained with a repast. The Consul, his staff, the officers of the Frélon, and the gentlemen invited by the Consul to be present, were allowed to stand during the audience, and this is to be the custom of future audiences. There were twenty-four in the party.

The disastrous fire on the bank of the new canal has been the most painful and prominent event of the week. The actual loss for the natives was great; multitudes are rendered houseless and penniless. This fire, however, suggests the need of some systematic efforts to aid in preventing the rapid spread of fires upon the combustible establishments of which this city is mainly composed.

Three printing offices in Siam are now issuing native Siamese books. It is a new era for this country, and we prognosticate good as the result. Books are the food of the mind—and the making of books, that are to be bought, betokens a demand or a supposed demand. We hope the event will show the time has arrived when Siam is to become a reading community, and we hope, too, the character of the books will gradually improve and writers be multiplied.

One press is publishing a Chinese history translated into Siamese, another the sayings of wise men in China and Siam, and the third, the Royal press, is about to issue a Siamese History, prepared, we understand, by the ex-foreign minister of Siam. He is well fitted for his work, and if an impartial one, will probably be among the best books Siam has ever had. We understand it is being published with great despatch, that the King may have the books to distribute among the presents given on the occasion of the funeral ceremonies at the burning of his Royal Father.

JAVA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BATAVIA, Dec. 9.

The news I have to send by this mail from Padang is most distressing. On the evening of the 22nd ult., after the rain had poured down incessantly for several days, shots were fired by the natives as a sign that Bandjirs (streams of water flowing from the mountains) were coming, and before an hour had elapsed, the whole country was inundated. The stream flowed so quickly that the natives had no time to save themselves, and hundreds were consequently drowned. The whole crop was totally destroyed, several houses were demolished, and an enormous number of buffaloes perished. The damage is, of course, very considerable, and will prove most disastrous to trade. The fields of indigo being totally inundated, there will be very soon a great lack of dying materials, and of course this must influence the prices of both white and unbleached cottons. The paddy, which had already began to bud, is totally destroyed, and the fields are covered with a kind of mud, so that they will have to be dug up again. The stock of rice is very small, and all the requirements for consumption must be provided for by imports from here. Prices are rising every day—almost every hour.

It has created much astonishment that Colonel Flugi has resolved to return to Holland, and to ask for his retiring pension. He was one of the most popular officers of the East India army. Rumours are current that Colonel de Brabant will follow his example. This is owing to the adoption of a course most demoralising for the officers of the East India army, both these officers having been passed over in promotion.

The jubilee of our Freemasons' Lodge, the "Star of the East," has been celebrated with great eclat.

The news from the West Coast of Borneo is very favourable; the greatest tranquillity prevails.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

The P. and O. mail of 5th Nov. arrived out on the 9th Dec. Dates are now down to the 21st Dec.

The Straits Times of 21st Dec. says:—At the time of departure of last mail we were still blessed with the sunshine of Royalty, but on the following day—the 8th inst.—his Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh bid farewell to the Settlement, and proceeded to Malacca and Penang in H.M.S. Galatea, his Excellency the Governor accompanying him in the colonial steamer Perlis. At Malacca H.R.H. remained some six hours, arriving at Penang on Saturday morning, the 11th inst., where—and in the province—he stayed four days, taking his final departure for Calcutta on the 15th instant. The visit of H. R. H. to Penang seems to have been attended by all that was pleasant, and, according to the local papers, the folks there seem equally in love with the Prince, and with their own enthusiastic manner of receiving and entertaining him. His visit to Singapore, unfortunately, was not productive of the same unqualified gratification to the residents, or, it is to be presumed, to himself; every effort had been ungrudgingly made to secure both the one and the other, but through an oversight, or some cause yet to be explained, a hitch occurred; the invitations sent him by the English Clubs were entirely disregarded, while he availed of the privileges of the German Club "Teutonia;" and so a natural feeling of disappointment usurped the place of enthusiasm among many of his countrymen. It is right to mention that the death of the Lieut.-Governor of the Settlement, by putting an end to the Grand Ball to be given on the eve of his departure, added considerably to damp enthusiasm, and probably prevented explanations which might have restored complete good feeling.

The funeral of Colonel Ronald Macpherson, R.A., Lieutenant-Governor and Colonial Secretary, took place on the 7th, with military honours. The detachment of the Royal Artillery, the wing of the 75th Regiment, the Singapore Volunteer Corps, and about one hundred seamen of the Galatea, together with the Galatea's band, attended at the new cemetery, where his remains were interred. The usual three volleys were fired over his grave by the 75th.

A great deal of rain has fallen during the fortnight, many of the suburban roads being at times flooded to the extent of two to three feet; the weather has been correspondingly cool and agreeable.

Great complaints have been made at the manner in which the arrangements were made for the General by Colonel Macpherson, by which many of his oldest friends were prevented from attending.

The Hon. Captain Shaw, Lieutenant Governor of Malacca, has been appointed acting Colonial Secretary.

A meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held on the 10th inst., but nothing of any importance was discussed.

The French Government has entered into contracts with two houses at Saigon for Labuan and Australian coals,—the former at $5·52 and the latter at $9·18 per ton. The Government intend giving these coals a fair trial, and, it is expected, will eventually order large quantities of that which proves most favourable.

The Marine Court of Inquiry held before the Master Attendant and J. L. Kirby, Esq., into the loss of the British ship Inarime,

Digitized by Google

Captain Ivey, on one of the London reefs, on the 14th Oct., ended on the 15th Dec. The Court strongly censured Captain Ivey for want of care, and suspended his certificate for nine months. The chief officer was also censured for the manner in which the log wat kept.

The annual public examination of the boys' department of the Raffles Institution has been held. His Honour Sir P. B. Maxwell was present by invitation, and occupied the chair during the examination. Upwards of 300 pupils were present on the occasion, who were put to a rigid examination, both by the Examining Committee and afterwards by the Chairman, but acquitted themselves most satisfactorily. The result of the examination was highly satisfactory, and the Principal of the Institution may be congratulated upon the state of efficiency which his pupils have attained.

The last effusion of "Extinguisher," published in the Straits Observer, of Dec. 10, is devoted to the death of Col. Macpherson, and is one of the best that has yet appeared.

PENANG.

H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh arrived in the Galatea, accompanied by the Governor, Sir H. Ord, on the 11th Dec., and after a very pleasant visit of four days, which were devoted to receptions, balls, cricket matches, &c., the Duke left for Calcutta on the 15th.

Commercial Report.

—o—

(For dates see First Page.)

CEYLON, STRAITS, JAVA, CHINA, AND JAPAN IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—The market was without change.

SHANGHAI.—Only a moderate trade can again be reported in all kinds of Manchester goods, and prices generally were without material alteration. Grey Shirtings: Buyers of small lots of 7 lbs. and 8-4 lbs. at quotations, but no active business. Stock about 1,000,000 pieces, against about 100,000 pieces at the same time last year. A sale of 20,000 pieces fine 9-10 to 12 lbs. weight reported (to a speculator) at Tls. 2.80 per piece. Quotations:—Tls. 1.97 to Tls. 2.02 per piece for 7 lbs.; Tls. 2.19 to Tls. 2.22 for 8-4 lbs; and Tls. 2.50 to Tls. 2.80 for 9 lbs. to 1-12 lbs. At the close there was rather more inquiry for the North, and some sales resulted at slightly better prices. The demand, however, seemed likely to be only temporary. T-Cloths: Only a small demand existed, chiefly for ordinary to fair 6 lbs. and 7 lbs., at about last prices. We quote 6 lbs. Tls. 1.45 to Tls. 1.65 per piece; 7 lbs. Tls. 1.65 to Tls. 1.82; 8 lbs. to 8-4 lbs. 36 inches, Tls. 1.95 to Tls. 2.15; and Tls. 2.40 for XX. At the close a fair demand for good colour, 7 lbs. at Tls. 1.75 per piece, with but few sellers. White Shirtings: Sales effected to a limited extent at last rates, but no active demand. Prices:—56 reed, Tls. 2.15 per piece; 60 reed, Tls. 2.25 per piece; 64 reed, Tls. 2.35 to Tls. 2.40 per piece; 66 reed, Tls. 2.50 to Tls. 2.55 per piece. Drills, Jeans, and Sheetings: Inquiry very slack, and a further fall in prices has to be noted. Fancy Goods: A few sales of Brocades and Chintzes at last values, but business generally of a retail kind. Woollens: Long Ells and Figured Orleans lower; Assorted Camlets maintained former rates; Spanish Stripes, little alteration; Fancy Woollens, &c., only in limited request. Metals: No change to report, no transactions having taken place; quotations unaltered. Coals: The arrivals had been difficult of sale, transactions unimportant, prices without improvement. Quotations (duty paid):—American Drills, 40 yards, Tls. 3.7.5 to Tls. 3.8.5; American Jeans, 30 yards, Tls. 2.9.5; American Sheetings, 40 yards, Tls. 3.4.5 to Tls. 3.6.0; English Drills, 40 yards, Tls. 3.6.0 to Tls. 3.6.5; Dutch Drills, 40 yards, Tls. 3.5.0 to Tls. 3.6.0; Brocades, White, 40 yards, Tls. 2.1.0 to Tls. 2.1.5; Dyed, Tls. 3.1.0 to Tls. 3.2.0; Damasks, Tls. 4.1.0 to Tls. 4.2.5; Chintz, Tls. 1.5.0 to Tls. 1.8.0; Camlets, English, 8S, Tls. 11 to Tls. 12.5.0; Spanish Stripes, Tls. 0.5.0 to Tls. 0.8.0 per yard; Medium Broad and Habit Cloth, Tls. 0.9.5 to Tls. 1.7.0; Long Ells, Scarlet, Tls. 6 to Tls. 6.2.0 per piece; Assorted, Tls. 6.2.5; Lastings, 30 yards, Tls. 11 to Tls. 12; Coals (cargo quotations afloat)—Cardiff, Tls. 8.5.0 per ton; North Wales, Tls. 7.7.5; English, Tls. 7.

HANKOW.—Grey Shirtings: The more favourable advices received from Shanghai encouraged the dealers to get into stock at the low prices current at this port, and a fair amount of business had been done at last quotations. The market closed quiet, but steady, at Tls. 1.95 to Tls. 1.98 for 7 lbs., Tls. 2.14 to Tls. 2.19 for 8¼ lbs., and Tls. 2.70 to 2.85 per piece; nominal, for 9¾ lbs., goods. White Shirtings had been taken in small quantity at easier rates. T-Cloths: More inquiry for 8 to 8¼ lbs. goods, and prices for these weights firm; 7 lbs. Cloth of best makes placed at Tls. 1.85 per piece; good ordinary chops in fair demand, at Tls. 1.80 per piece, showing a slight fall on previous sales. Drills dull of sale, prices declined 1 to 1½ mace per piece; good English makes quoted Tls. 3.70 per piece, with little inquiry; quotations for American Goods quite nominal, at Tls. 3.80 to Tls. 3.90 per piece. Fancy Cottons: White and Dyed Spots, Dyed Brocades and Dyed Damasks asked for; other descriptions met with little attention. Woollens and Worsteds: Camlets had changed hands to some extent at previous rates. Lastings quoted 1 mace lower, and in poor demand. Long Ells had been pressed for sale by native holders, and prices were in consequence weaker; Scarlet quoted Tls. 6.10 to Tls. 6.20 per piece; assortments, Tls. 6.20 to 6.35 per piece. Spanish Stripes: Sales in considerable quantity reported at good prices; Medium and Broad Cloths without inquiry. Figured Orleans dull. China Crapes: Beyond one or two trifling sales of picked colours nothing had been done in these goods. Metals: Lead moved off slowly at rather lower rates; Quicksilver, Tls. 50.50 per picul. Quotations:—White Shirtings, at Tls. 2.1.0 to Tls. 2.5.0 per piece. Spotted Shirtings: White, Tls. 2.1.5 to Tls. 2.1.7 per piece; Dyed, Assorted, Tls. 2.7.0 to Tls. 2.8.0. Brocades: White, Tls. 2.0.3 to Tls. 2.0.6 per piece; Dyed, Assorted, Tls. 3.1.0 to Tls. 3.1.7. Damasks: Dyed, Assorted, Tls. 4.3.0 to Tls. 4.4.0. Spanish Stripes: Tls. 0.5.5 to Tls. 0.5.9.5 per yard. Broad Cloth: Tls. 1.3.0 to Tls. 1.6.0 per yard. Camlets: S, Tls. 12.8.0 to Tls. 13.3.0 per piece; SS, Tls. 12 to Tls. 12.4. Lastings, Tls. 10.8.0 to Tls. 11.3.0 per piece. Lead: Tls. 5.3.5 to Tls 5.6.0 per picul.

HONG KONG.—Cotton Yarn: No sales from first hands. Market weak, especially for Nos. 28 to 32, which had been quitted from second hands at a considerable decline. Nos. 38 to 42 firm. Grey Shirtings: 7 lb. depressed, through heavy importations from India. 8.4 lb. rather firmer. White Shirtings: Considerable speculative inquiry for all reeds. Prices tending upward. T-Cloths: Hardly any business; prices unchanged. Spotted Shirtings: No change. Brocades: Firm. Damasks: Demand at low prices. Chintzes: Good demand for Assorted. All other Cotton Goods neglected. Woollens—Spanish Stripes declining. Long Ells lower. Camlets also lower. Lastings in good demand. Crape Lastings declining. Orleans: Best assortment wanted. Blankets much depressed, and unsaleable privately. Metals—Iron: Market quiet. Little demand for any description of Iron. Lead in small inquiry. Coals: No arrivals, and no sales. A small lot of English was put up for sale by auction, but offers not being satisfactory, no sale was effected. In last report a sale of Cardiff at $7.75 ex ship was omitted to be mentioned. Quotations:—Cotton Yarn, Nos. 16 to 24, $140 to 147.50 per bale; 28 to 32, $145 to 150; 38 to 42, $170 to 185; Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., $2.45 to 2.50per piece; 8.4 lbs., $2.75 to 2 80; 9.12 to 10 lbs., $3.70 to 3.80; White Shirtings, $2.40 to 3.10; fine, $3.70 to 6; T-Cloths, 6 lbs., 32-inch, $1.90 to 2.10; 7 lbs., $2.15 to 2.55; 8 to 8.4 oz., 36 inch, $2.65 to 2.90; Spotted Shirtings, $2.70 to 2.90; Turkey Red Shirtings, 3 lbs., $2.65 to 2.75; Brocades, $3.10 to 3.40; Damasks, $4.75 to 5; Chintzes, Assorted, $2.20 to 2.30; Velvets, $0.25 to 0.27, per yard; Velveteens, $0.20 to 0.22; American Drills, $5.15 to 5.25 per piece; Dutch Drills, $4.75 to 4.80; Spanish Stripes, Scarlet, $0.70 to 0.72 per yard; Assorted, $0.65 to 0.70; Medium Ladies and Habit Cloths, $1.40 to 3; Long Ells, Scarlet, $7.70 to 7.75 per piece; Assorted, $7.60 to 7.70; Camlets, SS, Scarlet, $16 to 16.50: SS, Assorted, $15.25 to 15.75; Lastings, $14 to 16.25; Iron, Nail Rod, 2.45 to 2.50 per picul; Round, Square, and Flat Bar, $2.50 to 2.60; Lead, $6.35 to 6.50; Coals, English, $7 per ton; Welsh, $7.75.

SINGAPORE.—Shortly after the departure of last mail business was resumed and considerable clearances of 6 lbs. and 8¼ lbs. Grey Shritings were made for Siam and other outports; but this demand being supplied, and the local requirement small, dealers held back and prices were a shade weaker, $2.90 per piece being the closing rate for 8¼ lbs. Grey Madapollams no demand, sales limited at easier rates. T-Cloths weaker, sales small. A fair inquiry for the coarser makes of White Shirtings, fine and medium unsaleable. Imitation Irish Linens lower. White Madapollams small stock, no inquiry. White Cambrics low class goods wanted, a better inquiry for fine, 15s to 16s cleared to a fair extent at $32½ to $33 per corge. Figured Shirtings sold at previous rates; small sales of Jacconets and Lappets. No improvement in Dyed Cottons, which continued in heavy stock. Small sales of Plain Orange Shirtings, Pink Figured, Turkey Red Cambrics, and T. R. Mulls are reported. Prints neglected. Grey Yarn: Nothing had been done; stocks in first hands light, Nos. 40, $151 per bale. Turkey Red Yarn sold at $157½ for 11¼ to 12 lbs., No. 40; 10 lb. Yarn is scarce. Coloured Yarns without change; sales small. Metals very dull. Iron in large stock—sales trifling, at low rates. Lead: Small sales reported, at $6.10 to $6.20 for Pig, and $7 for Sheet, per picul. Yellow Metal in small request, at $21½ to $22 per picul. Sales of Brasswire and Tinplates reported. Coals very dull; Cardiff, ex ship, at $7⅜ per ton.

PENANG.—The amount of business done had not been very considerable. Grey Shirtings in moderate demand at $44 per corge for 6 lbs., $51½ for 7 lbs., and $59 for 8¼ lbs. Grey Long Cloths dull; no transactions. Grey Madapollams: Sales of 2¾ lbs. at $22 per corge. Grey T-Cloths: Sales reported of 7 lbs. at $44 and $45 per corge; in other weights no business. White Shirtings: Moderate sales at $44 to $102 per corge. White Cambrics: Sales reported of low at $21½, and medium at $27 per corge. Nos. 15/16 have been disposed of at from 32½ to $33 per corge, according to quality. In Yarn, small sales of Grey Mule at $141 for No. 30, and $151 for No. 40; in other Twists no transactions. A sale of Iron reported at $2.60, but in other metals not a single operation.

COLOMBO.—The Christmas holidays having commenced, business had been greatly restricted. There is no change in the tone of the import market generally to report.

CEYLON, STRAITS, JAVA, CHINA, AND JAPAN EXPORTS.

—o—

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—A steady business had continued to be done, and this had enabled native dealers to obtain full prices, in spite of plentiful supplies and a very heavy stock. Settlements about 2,500 piculs of the medium and good medium grades, principally for the New York market. Amongst the arrivals a large quantity of Mino leaf had appeared, and had been much mixed with the medium grades. Stocks estimated at 8,000 to 10,000 piculs. No further export since last report. The Rifleman, Grenadier and Herbert Graham still loading; no other vessels laid on. Quotations:—Common, $20 to $21 per picul, nominal; good common, $22 to $23; medium $26 to $28; good medium, $29 to $32; fine, $33 to $36; finest and choice, nominal.

SHANGHAI.—Black: Owing in a great measure to the reduction in stock an inconsiderable business had been transacted. Prices showed no quotable change, being fully up to those previously paid. The average quality of the purchases was a very low one, many parcels being of an undesirableness not equalled for many years. The stock was reduced, but would be increased slightly by a quantity of inferior Tea in process of manufacture. The export from this port for the season will exceed the total shipments of last. Quotations (duty paid, exchange for Credits, six months' sight, at 6s., and freight at £2)—Hohow, common to fair, Tls. 17¾ to Tls. 20, equal to 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 1¾d.; Oonam, common, Tls. 18 to Tls. 19½, equal to 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 1¼d.; Ningchow, common, Tls. 19½ to Tls. 20, eqnal to 1s. 1¼d. to 1s. 1¾d.; Oopack, common, Tls. 19½ to Tls. 21½, equal to 1s. 1¼d. to 1s. 2½d. Green: The demand continued, and large settlements had been made chiefly for the American market. Prices for medium and fine Teas had been fully maintained, but common descriptions sold at rather easier rates than those current last mail. There were very few fine chops offering, but the market was well supplied with common and medium Teas. Quotations—Moyune and Teenkai, Tls. 32 to Tls. 43; Fychow, Tls. 28 to Tls. 36½; Pingsuey, Tls. 31 to Tls. 33; Shanghai-packed, Tls. 25 to Tls. 30. Settlements for the fortnight, 34,180 half-chests; reshipments on owners' account, 1,319 half-chests; stock,153 chops, or 94,500 half-chests.

Digitized by Google

HANKOW.—The quotations were nominally lower, but the inferiority of the Tea coming forward was quite unparaleled; transactions for the fortnight—Settlements, 1,296 chests; Shipments on native account, 3,170 chests. The prices paid were:—Oanfas, Common, Tls. 13.50 to 14.50 per picul, equal to 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 1¼d. per lb.

KIUKIANG.—Black: Arrivals had consisted principally of Teas from the Hohow district; of these only two chops had been settled at Tls. 13.2.5 to 14.5.0. Further arrivals would probably be on a small scale. Green: There had been no business transacted, and arrivals had been on a moderate scale, amounting to about 9,000 half-chests.

AMOY.—Congou: The settlements amounted to 1,658 packages at $11 to $14, and 50 half-chests of fair quality at $22. Oolong: Nearly the whole stock had been taken at an advance of about $1 on last prices, say $16 for common Ankois, and $19 to $21½ for common and fair cargo. The Golconda sailed for New York on the 30th Nov. The Jurgen and Margarita were on the berth.

CANTON.—Scarcely any business had been done. The London advices reporting sales of Canton Teas were not encouraging, and buyers were disinclined to operate, save at a considerable reduction, which holders were not willing to concede. Canton settlements from 25th Nov. to 9th Dec., 1869: Country Congous, nil; Canton District Congou, nil; Scented Orange Pekoe, 1,000 boxes at Tls. 20 to Tls. 25; Scented Caper, nil; Canton Greens, Gunpowder, 800 boxes at Tls. 18; Young Hyson, nil; Country Greens, nil.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—The market had been quiet, with moderate purchases. Dealers, though more desirous to sell, were still very firm, and no appreciable fall can be quoted. There was a large proportion of Oshu in the stock, but it was held for extreme rates.

SHANGHAI.—The following is from Messrs. C. J. Skeggs and Co.'s Circular, dated December 7:—The business during the fortnight, including shipments per sailing vessels and the French mail of the 1st inst., amounts to about 2,000 bales. Prices for good medium and common sorts of Tsatlees must be left unchanged, although they have been more easy to purchase, whilst chop Silks show a further decline of about Tls. 10. The following are a few of the more prominent quotations:—Choopings, Tls. 550; Dragons, Tls. 547½; Yakee, Tls. 540; Blue Flag, Tls. 500; Elephant, Tls. 475; Red Peacocks, Tls. 445 to 450. The low descriptions, ranging from Tls. 400 to 420, are still in favour, and command comparatively the highest prices, although they are exceedingly common and mixed. Previous rates are maintained for Taysaams, which are still in limited supply. Holders of Hainins are very anxious to sell, and appear willing to accept a further decline, but without enticing buyers.

STRAITS AND CEYLON PRODUCE.

SINGAPORE.—The produce market had been, more active with a fair business in the principal staples. About 1,200 tons Gambier had been taken up, at $3,02½ to $3.10 per picul; the market closed at $3.07½. Bontyne Coffee had been bought to a moderate extent at a slight reduction upon last rates, viz., $12 to $12.05; Pari Pari sold as high as $10⅛ per picul. The Pepper serson not yet opened; $7.15 to $7.20 paid by Native shippers for Black for immediate delivery; but though several European firms were offering $25 for usual delivery, no contracts had been made. White Pepper, nothing done. Sago flour $2.70 to $2.42½ for Borneo, $2.35 for other descriptions. Pearl Sago a shade weaker, purchases as low as $3.02½ up to $3.12. Gutta Percha in request; high prices are paid for No. 1. Small sales reported of Cutch, Gamboge, Gum Damar, Gum Copal, India Rubber, Nutmegs, Mace, and Tapioca. Tin had fluctuated $29.80 and $30.25 paid in the early part of the fortnight; but $28¾ to $29 is the closing rate; no purchases for Europe.

PENANG.—There had been no change except in Tin, which had varied in price, purchases having been made from $27¼ to $28 per picul; $27¾ to $27½ may be said to be the closing prices. There was no considerable quantity on the market, but arrivals were expected.

COLOMBO.—The following is from Messrs. J. Gibson, Thomson and Co's. circular:—Coffee: We have had an interval of good curing and shipping weather and good progress has been made in getting crops to Colombo. The arrivals to market of low grown chetty parchment have been full, but the bulk is coming in very wet; prices for inferior are somewhat easier at about 10s., but for really good fair 10s. 6d. is readily obtained; high grown Estate Coffee maintains its price; 11s. 9d. to 12s. is the current value; some samples have been bought at 12s. 6d. but this we look upon as a most extraordinary price. Native continues very short, without alteration in quotations. Cinnamon.—No transaction to report, holidays having come on us. Cocoanut Oil: We can report only a limited market for this article with a tendency towards lower prices. Contracts have been done at 26s. 6d. Coir: Yarn of the better qualities is in active demand and scarce, dealers will not accept proportionately lower rates for inferior sorts. For Fibre of the better sort there is a demand. Rope appears to attract but little attention. Plumbago: A better demand has arisen for the higher qualities of this mineral, and the quantity on offer being inadequate to the demand, the dealers succeeded in gaining an advance, we call it firm at £15 for fine lump, £7 chips, £4 10s. to £4 15s. for small bright dust. Ebony: Good wood is worth £5 5s., lower quality can be bought at £3 15s. Cotton: Rs. 153 last price paid for a few hundred bales. Rice: Market at a stand-still.

EXPORT OF TEA AND SILK, SEASON 1869-70.

TO GREAT BRITAIN.

Date.	From Yokohama & Nagasaki.	From Shanghai and Hankow	From Foochow.	From Amoy.	From Canton, Macao, &c.	Total lbs.	SILK Total Bales & Cses
From June 1 to Nov. 30, 1869	74573	68831560	41650584	1349918	11543353	118449988	28205
Corresponding period last season	605753	63378693	49533375	...	12129197	125647018	39096

Shipments Since:

Nov. 25 per Corea		From Shanghai	...	717,051	11*
— 27 ... Dunwald		... Do.	...	756,244*
— 30 ... Araby Maid		... Do.	...	1,067,018	248*
Dec. 2 ... Dora		... Do.	...	526,716
— 4 ... Barbadian		... Do.	...	722,249
— 7 ... Camboge (F. ml. str.)		... Do., &c.	...	—	550
— 8 ... Petchilee		... Canton	...	362,875
— 8 ... Tyburnia		... Foochow	...	1,237,600
— 14 ... Travancore (ml. str.)		... Shanghai, &c.	...	—	1362

* Included in above totals.

TO THE CONTINENT.

		Bales
From June 1 to Nov. 30, 1869	1476590	9764
Corresponding period last season	3232439	1473

Shipments Since;

Nov. 16 per Panuco		From Foochow	...	379,600
— 24 .. Kali Maas		... Do.	...	345,300
— 30 ... Orissa (ml. str.)		... Shanghai	...	— 466*
Dec. 7 ... Royal Diadem		... Hong Kong	...	216,137

* Included in above totals.

TO UNITED STATES.

		Pcls.
From June 1 to Nov. 30, 1869	19423276	576
Corresponding period last season	17093031	746

Shipments Since;

Nov. 24 per Oliver Cromwell	From Canton	...	13,427*
— 25 ... W. E. Gladstone	... Foochow	...	424,600*
— — ... Costa Rica (str.)	... Shanghai	...	67,679*
— 26 ... Tynedale	... Do.	...	646,356*
— 28 ... Yokohama	... Hong Kong	...	378,331*
— 30 ... Golconda	... Amoy	...	504,968*
Dec. 2 ... N. B. Palmer	... Shanghai	...	1,087,249

* Included in above totals.

TO AUSTRALIA.

From June 1 to Nov. 30, 1869	10,591,897 lbs.
Corresponding period last year	15,172,661

Shipments Since;

Nov. 30 per Rose	From Hong Kong	...	58,778
— — ... Whirlwind	... Do	...	121,960

TO GREAT BRITAIN.

	Tea—lbs.	Silk bales China & Japan.
From 1843 to 1844	51,022,600	...*
,, 1845 to 1846	57,334,200	18,604
,, 1850 to 1851	63,972,000	22,113
,, 1853 to 1854	77,327,800	61,280
,, 1855 to 1856	92,210,300	50,481
,, 1857 to 1858	76,990,255	68,315
,, 1858 to 1859	65,789,792	83,134
,, 1859 to 1860	85,560,452	64,169
,, 1860 to 1861	90,066,160	70,644
,, 1861 to 1862	109,854,040	79,199
,, 1862 to 1863	121,273,580	72,887
,, 1863 to 1864	117,463,586	46,603
,, 1864 to 1865	121,236,870	32,313
,, 1865 to 1866	118,333,042	62,890
,, 1866 to 1867	118,423,290	50,052
,, 1867 to 1868	116,890,430	57,449
,, 1868 to 1869	142,789,804	70,917

* Including the Continent.

EXCHANGES, &c.

[For dates, see first page.]

ON LONDON.

At	Bank Bills.	Credits.	Documentary.
Yokohama, 6 m. s.	4s. 5½d.	4s. 6¼d.	4s. 6¼d.
Shanghai ,, ,,	5s. 11½d.	6s. 0¼d.	6s. 0¼d.
Canton ,, ,,	4s. 5d.	4s. 5½d.	4s. 5½d.
Hong Kong ,, ,,
Macao ,, ,,
Singapore ,, ,,	—	—	—
Manila ,, ,,	4s. 5d.	4s 5½d.	4s 5½d.
Colombo ,, ,,	¼ dis.	1 to 1¼ dis.	2 to 2¼ dis.

MISCELLANEOUS.

—	At Shanghai.	At Hong Kong.
Bills on India	299½ to 300	220 to 221
,, Hong Kong	25¼ to 25¾ dis.	—
Bar silver	111.5.0	9½ prem.
Mexican dollars	74.2.0 to 74.3.0	¼ prem.

Bous, at Yokohama, 338 to 363 per 100 dols.

SHARES AT HONG KONG.

Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank, New, 16¼; Old, 31 per cent. premium.
Hong Kong Gas Company, 44 dols. per share.
Hong Kong and Whampoa Dock, 7 per cent. discount.
Union Dock Company, 50 to 60 per cent. discount.
China Traders' Insurance, 1,600 to 1,700 dols. premium.
Hotel shares, 50 to 60 per cent. discount.
Hong Kong and Macao Steamboat Company, 26 per cent. premium.

Digitized by Google

SETTLEMENTS OF TEA.

From 1st June to 9th Nov., Season 1869 to 70.

BUYER.	BLACK. Chests.	Re-shipments. Chests.	GREEN. ½-Chests.	Re-shipments. ½-Chests.
Adamson, Bell, and Co.	15,184	6,890	11,173	3,054
Ashton and Co.	—	454	—	—
Barnet and Co.	—	—	—	—
Birley, Worthington, and Co.	35,593	2,309	14,179	2,291
Blain and Co.	19,824	5,251	6,622	1,725
Borneo Company (Limited)	—	—	—	—
Bourjau, Hubener, and Co.	455	2,134	—	—
Brand, Monro, and Co.	7,777	—	—	—
Bull, Purdon, and Co.	2,681	529	—	—
Butterfield and Swire	15,112	3,872	496	—
Chapman, King, and Co.	6,653	596	901	—
Dent and Co.	1,788	14,172	—	—
Dickinson and Co.	671	—	—	—
Fraser and Co.	—	—	—	—
Gibb, Livingstone, and Co.	1,135	7,122	6,132	686
Gilman and Co.	17,181	3,396	25,105	—
Glover, Dow, and Co.	10,847	1,932	1,126	493
Gundry and Co.	—	—	—	—
Hargreaves and Co.	375	—	728	—
Heard, Augustine, and Co.	14,074	2,776	22,888	260
Hogg Brothers	12,423	6,015	3,224	—
Holliday, Wise and Co.	202	2,024	1,624	—
Hyde and Co.	—	—	—	—
Jardine, Matheson, and Co.	9,640	3,571	9,285	1,591
Jarvie, J., and Co.	—	—	—	—
Lent and Co.	14,535	798	3,490	—
Little and Co.	5,527	684	43,860	—
Olyphant and Co.	2,862	200	27,801	313
Osborne and Co.	8,638	458	7,584	7,839
Overbeck and Co.	42,650	1,630	879	—
Overweg and Co.	18,259	6,833	—	—
Petrocochino and Co.	14,701	—	11,534	—
Reid and Co.	13,104	2,328	4,189	676
Reiss and Co.	1,482	4,297	—	—
Rothwell and Co.	11,938	270	1,802	870
Russell and Co.	358	3,076	20,650	—
Sassoon, David, Sons, and Co.	496	3,073	—	—
Shaw Brothers and Co.	4,106	—	5,035	—
Siemssen and Co.	970	—	—	—
Smith, Archer, and Co.	—	—	5,471	—
Tate, J. P., Esq.	17,549	—	4,449	—
Thorne Brothers and Co.	11,913	10,513	11,115	—
Turner and Co.	—	8,675	—	—
Weston and Co.	6,401	5,687	1,417	415
Wilkinson, A., and Co.	671	—	—	—
By Sundries	27,589	7,278	9,180	—
	378,299	122,941	263,127	17,159

Shipping Intelligence.

ARRIVALS.

At YOKOHAMA.—From London, Rockliff; from Liverpool, Finzel (reported by telegram).

At HIOGO.—None.

At SHANGHAI.—From London, Dec. 2, Sarah Nicholson; from Liverpool, 3, City of Agra; from Cardiff, 2, Max; from Hamburg, 1, Figaro; from London (reported by telegram), Bristow, Eaglet, Loudon Castle.

At HONG KONG and CANTON.—From London (reported by telegram), Merse, Peterborough, Coryphans, Geologist, Borealis, Lauderdale (dismasted).

At MANILA.—None.

At SINGAPORE.—From Liverpool, Dec. 19, Glenlyon; from Cardiff, 15, Constantia; 19, Staffa, from Newcastle, English Crown, from Sunderland; 15, Stanley, from Liverpool, reported by telegram; Nestor (st.), Hopeful.

At BATAVIA.—From Amsterdam, Dec. 3, Ymuiden; 11, Zaanstroom; A. M. Wilhehmina, from Boston, Nabob.

At PENANG.—From Glasgow, Dec. 17, James Paton; from London, 18, Parana; from Liverpool, 19, Nestor (st.).

DEPARTURES.

From YOKOHAMA.—None.

From HIOGO.—None.

From SHANGHAI.—For London, Dec. 2, Araby Maid; 4, Barbadien; for New York, 2, N. B. Palmer.

From FOOCHOW.—No advices.

From AMOY.—For New York, Nov. 30, Golconda.

From HONG KONG and CANTON.—For London, Dec. 3, Petchelee; for Falmouth, 12, Alice; for Callao, Dec. 1, Uncowah.

From MANILA.—For New York, Dec. 3, Western Chief.

From SINGAPORE.—For London, Dec. 14, Kate Carnie; for Liverpool, 15, Panic; 17, Huddersfield; for Glasgow, Naworth; for Hamburg, Johanne Auguste.

From Penang.—For London, Dec. 15, Pelham; for Boston, 18, Rocket; 22 (cleared), John Paul.

From BATAVIA.—For Holland, Dec. 2, Hock van Holland; 5, Graafstroom; 8, Janetje; 12, Alblaserdam; for United States (via Padang), 7, Nevada.

From BANGKOK.—For Europe, Nov. 18, Drydens; 26, Scawfell; Dec. 2, Rajah of Cochin.

VESSELS LOADING.

At YOKOHAMA.—For London, none; for New York, Herbert Graham, Rifleman, Southern Belle.

At SHANGHAI.—For London, Fontenaye, Nyassa, Omba, Caleiston, Arracan; for New York, Etha Rickmers, Elizabeth Nicholson, Elizabeth (full), Good Hope, City of Perth, Horatio, Ensign.

At HONG KONG and CANTON.—For London, James Shepherd; Neville; for New York, Arracan.

At MANILA.— For London, Doriga; for Cadiz, Cervantes, Elena; for Coruna, Cosmopolite; for Boston, Bunker Hill; for New York, Tabor; for Cork, Cleughs; for Copenhagen, Havfruen.

At SINGAPORE.—For London, Coldinghame, Maria Rickmers; for Liverpool, Mary Spencer, Mount Vernon; for Hamburg, Europa; for Boston, Polly Lewis.

At BATAVIA.—For Channel, Luctor and Emergo, Eliza Thornton, G. K. G. v. Hogendorp, Cornelia Humboldt, Heimath, Scharnhorst; for Rotterdam, Jannetjie, Ada, Ary Scheffer, Dageraad, Doelwyk, Landbouw, Pres. van Ryckevorsel; for Amsterdam, Nederland and Oranje, Albion, Batavia, Imatra, Vertrouwen, Vier Gebroeders, Kosmopoliet, India Packet, Perpetua; for Bordeaux, Louisa; for Holland, Golden City, Mystic Belle, Courser, Hellevoetsluis, Australia.

At BANGKOK.—For Europe, Venmore, Emerald, Flora, James Vinecombe, J. H. Love, Macedon, Ocean Bride, Oliver Cromwell, Penith, St. Helens; for Marseilles, Strathmore; for Gibraltar, f.o., Jerfalcon.

At PENANG.—For London, Parana, James Paton, John Paul.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS.

At YOKOHAMA.—Unaltered.

At SHANGHAI.—To London the rate remains at £2, with little freight offering; to New York, £2 10s.

At HONG KONG and CANTON.—To London, £2; to New York, £1 15s.

At MANILA.—The Cleughs (453) gets £2 15s. per ton for a full cargo of sugar to the Channel, 10s. extra if ordered to the Continent.

At SINGAPORE.—The rates to London or Liverpool, £2 5s. to £2 10s.

At BATAVIA.—To Continent f.35; Coffee f.32 50c.; Rice f.50.

At PENANG.—To London £2 10s. to £2 15s.; measurement £3.

CASUALTIES.

SHANGHAI

The Customs' tender Quashing, which returned on the 3rd Dec. from her cruise in search of the Lightship West Wind, which has been wrecked, reported that the latter was lying, in 19 feet water (low tide), near the Raffles. Both of her anchors have been stolen; and in order to clear away the thousands of Chinese boats around her, it was requisite to fire several shots over their heads. There is no hope of recovering the hulk.

The Dutch steamer Baron Sloet van der Beele, from Batavia, arrived here, having in tow the British ship Dilbhur, which vessel grounded on a reef near the Philippines, on the voyage from Zebu to London, and put into Batavia leaking. She will discharge cargo and repair here.

HONG KONG.

The barque Marie Gabrielle, from Foo-chow-Foo, for Melbourne, was wrecked on Nov. 25, near Cape Otway. The crew got ashore, and after fasting for some days reached the Cape Otway lighthouse, where they obtained relief. The cargo of the vessel is completely damaged by sea water.

The British barque Balmacarra reports having bad weather from N.E. to North throughout the passage, put into Chefoo on the 25th, sailed again on the 27th. The Siamese ship Racehorse went into Chefoo, with the loss of all three lower masts, which were cut away to save the ship, when the cargo shifted in a heavy gale experienced in Siam-tung Gulf, off Pron Island. The Caldew arrived in Chefoo on the 23rd ult. reporting terrible weather, and the loss of two suits of sails; will remain to load at Chefoo. British barque Maria Miles sailed from Newchwang on the 19th, and N. G. barque Oberon on the 21st, bound to Hong Kong; the North German barque Maria was left inside the Bar, the only vessel in the roads.

VESSELS PASSED STRAITS OF SUNDA.

Date.	Ship.	From	To.
Nov. 24	England's Glory	Foochow	London
,, 28	Albert Victor	Singapore	London
,, 29	Wilhelmina and Clara	Batavia	Amsterdam
,, 30	Messenger	Manila	Boston
,, —	Bede (str.)	Bangkok	Falmouth
,, —	Rodney	Singapore	England
Dec. 1	Ymuiden	Amsterdam	Batavia
,, —	Staffa	Cardiff	Singapore
,, 2	British Crown	Shields	Singapore
,, —	Ceylon	Foochow	London
,, 5	Glenlyon	Liverpool	Singapore
,, 16	Dryden	Bangkok	London
,, —	Franklin	Manila	New York
,, 7	Phaeton	Japan	New York
,, 9	Zaanstroom	Amsterdam	Batavia
,, 10	Albrecht Beyling	Rotterdam	Samarang

COMMERCIAL POSTSCRIPT.

The British Australian Telegraph Company have given the order for the manufacture of their cable (to be laid between Singapore and Batavia, and Java and Port Darwin, Australia), accompanied by the necessary payment to the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company.

The prospectus of the New China and Japan Marine Insurance Company, noticed in our last issue, has been issued by the London agents, Messrs. Robert Benson and Co. The proposed capital is

Digitized by Google

1,500,000 taels, of which 300,000 taels is to be paid up. Further particulars will be found in our advertising columns.

We regret to announce the failure, at Berlin, of Mr. Keyser Siegfried, owing to speculations in Japan silk. The liabilities are estimated at 1,800,000 thalers.

SHIPPING.

ARRIVALS NOT IN THE TABLES.—Dec. 29, at San Francisco, from Hong Kong, Galveston; not arrived at Galveston, as reported in casualties. Jan. 23, off Scilly, from Canton, Cathay.

DEPARTURES.—Jan. 20, from Cardiff, for Shanghai, Marie Louise; for Singapore, Andreas; 21, Gauertje Maria.

LAID-ON.—At London, for Yokohama, Espiegle.

SPOKEN.—Macassar, Amsterdam to Macassar, Oct. 26, 41 S., 21 E.

LATEST TELEGRAMS.

CHINA.

SHANGHAI, DEC. 22.—Grey Shirtings, 6½ catties, 8¾ lb., $2.20. Cotton: Shanghai, $19. Silk active; No. 3 Tsatlee, 560 taels. Settlements since departure of last mail, 3,900 bales. Export to date (China and Japan), from commencement of season, 40,500 bales. Exchange on London, Bank bills, six months, 6s. 0¼d. Freights: Tea, 40s.

HONG KONG, DEC. 27.—Grey Shirtings, 6¼ catties, 8¼ lb., $2.75. Water-twist, 16-24, $1.45. Cotton, Bengal, fine medium, $18. Tea quiet. Total export (China and Japan), 127,000,000 lbs. Exchange on London, Bank bills, six months, 4s. 5¼d.

(RECEIVED JAN. 22.)

SHANGHAI, DEC. 30.—Settlements of silk, 900 bales; total export, 41,500; stock, 1000 bales. Exchange, 6s. 0¼d.

HONG KONG, JAN. 4.—Tea at Foochow active and good demand.

WRECK OF THE "OCEAN QUEEN."

HONG KONG, JAN. 4.—The ship Ocean Queen has been wrecked off Sakadugava.

JAVA.

(RECEIVED AT ROTTERDAM, JAN. 19.)

BATAVIA, DEC. 28.—Java Coffee, f.31; Sugar, No. 16, f.15¾ to f.16; freight to Holland, f.40 to f.45; Change, f.104.25 to f.104.50.

ARRIVALS.—Azia, Gelderland, Lichstraal, Madura, Maria, Elise, Pantalon, Vrachtzoeker.

DEPARTURES.—Æolus, Henriette Adriana, Jacob van Lennep, Jason. The Tollens, Mulder master, shipwrecked; crew saved.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, AND DEATHS.

BIRTHS.

HARRIS—On the 5th Jan., at Highstone, Leytonstone, Essex, the wife of Henry Harris, of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

PARKER—LECLERCQ.—On the 18th Jan., at the British Embassy, Dresden, by the Rev. J. W. Kitto, Franke H. Parker, of Shanghai, China, to Marie, daughter of Professor E. Schuman Leclercq, of Dresden. No cards.

SANTIREWARNAM—PULLEYNAYEGUM.—On the 9th Dec., at Colombo, by the Rev. S. D. J. Ondaatjie, Anthony Santiago Pulle Santirewarnam, Modliar, to Maria, eldest daughter of Mr. A. R. Pulleynayegum.

SPARKS—ANDREE.—On the 15th Dec, at Colombo, by the Rev. A. P. Lovekin, assisted by the Rev. Dr. B. Boake, William Hewitt Sparks to Anne Caroline, daughter of Archibald Andree, Esq.

TEDLIE—TOLSON.—On the 20th Jan., at the British Legation, Brussels, by the Rev. Edward Drury, M.A., Edward Tedlie, Esq., Captain 35th (Royal Sussex) Regt., to Marian Ellen, youngest daughter of Robert Pelle Tolson, late of Batavia, Esq.

DEATHS.

ADRIAN—Nov. —, at Hakodadi, Japan, J. Adrian, Esq.

BARGE—On the 29th Nov., at Bangkok, Capt. Barge, of the British barque Fanny.

BORRADAILE—On the 18th Jan., at Hawkhurst, Kent, Robert Borradaile, Esq., aged 70.

PALMER—On the 14th Jan., at Mixbury House, Eastbourne, Ella Mary, youngest child of J. Carrington Palmer, aged thirteen months.

THE NEW CONVENTION.

Mr. Hugh Matheson has sent to the Chambers of Commerce throughout the country a copy of the resolutions passed at the recent meeting of merchants at which he presided, with the following letter:—

Sir,—For the information of your Chamber I have the honour to wait upon you with a copy of resolutions which were unanimously agreed to at a meeting of merchants and others interested in the trade with China, held here on the 13th inst. The meeting was called to consider the provisions of the convention just made by Sir Rutherford Alcock with the Chinese Government, as supplementary to the treaty of Tientsin.

On the part of the committee appointed at that meeting I have been instructed to communicate with your Chamber on this subject, and beg respectfully to submit the following considerations in support of the resolutions which were adopted:—

1. The treaty of Tientsin, concluded by Lord Elgin in 1858, conferred important rights and privileges upon British trade, and under it our commercial intercourse with China has rapidly extended. We are of opinion that unless with the object, on the one hand, of undoubted improvement, and of further facilitating British trade, or, on the other, of removing any provisions which might be found unjust in their operation towards the Chinese Government, it is not for the interest of Great Britain that the terms of the treaty should be altered. On this point Sir Rutherford Alcock, addressing H.M.'s Consul at Shanghai on April 1, 1869, said:—

Late as it is, there is yet time, before any final decision need be taken, to turn to profit any well-considered scheme by which the chief difficulties may be satisfactorily removed. Any revision of the treaty, indeed, which should fail in this, would, in my opinion, fail in the most cardinal point, and could be of little avail for the extension and free development of trade. It is far more important that a revision of the treaty should be satisfactory than that it should be effected within any specified time. There is nothing, in fact, to limit the period of preliminary examination and negotiation. If, in the present condition of the empire, or the existing state of affairs, the obstacles to any satisfactory revision, in the sense of large and practical improvements, should be found insuperable, there is nothing to be gained by hurrying the negotiations to a close. On the contrary, I believe it would be better, in the common interest, to have no revision at all than to accept such incomplete and imperfect results as would leave foreign interests and relations practically the same and without any material improvement. I have no desire to be a party to any such settlement.

2. In examining the new stipulations, it is with disappointment and regret that we fail to recognise among them any important provisions favourable to foreign commerce, or which can at all be considered an adequate set off against those to which we principally take exception, and which we believe are calculated to inflict a direct injury upon British commerce. Of the advantages of opening the two new ports specified, nothing can be certainly affirmed; and at all events, the trade, which it is expected will be established at these ports is much more likely to fall into the hands of Chinese than of British merchants. There are other stipulations which are undoubtedly advantageous, but they are of very small importance when put in comparison with those which we proceed now to consider.

3. In Article III. of the new Convention it is agreed that British textile fabrics shall pay both import duty, about 5 per cent., and transit dues, equal to half import duty, or about 2½ per cent., simultaneously on importation, and that the goods shall thereafter be exempt from all other taxes or charges whatever in the treaty port provinces. It will be observed that this impost is now to be levied upon goods taken for local consumption, a large and increasing quantity, and which have heretofore been liable to no transit dues whatever. We may also mention that in some of the more northern parts of China open to our trade there are either no transit dues at all or very insignificant ones. In the case of these also the new impost is a clear addition of duty.

Now, while we are prepared to welcome any bonâ fide attempt to regulate the inland duties, it is notorious that obligations with reference to these, made under former treaties, have not been observed by the Chinese, nor have they been enforced by the treaty powers. The inland transit dues have been by immemorial custom levied by the provincial authorities through whose districts the merchandise is conveyed, and not by the Imperial Government. Complaints of arbitrary and excessive exactions, for which no redress could be obtained, led to the insertion into the treaty of Tientsin of a provision by which it was made optional to commute these dues for 2½ per cent. ad valorem, on payment of which certificates were to be issued which should exempt the goods from all transit dues en route from the treaty port into the interior. This system has completely failed; illegal exactions have been made not only on British merchants, but still more on Chinese traders, to the serious injury of British commerce. It is now sought to make the commutation compulsory, and we have no guarantee whatever that the payment of these dues into the imperial exchequer will exempt traders from the exactions of local officials. There is no provision made in the convention beyond that which has hitherto proved entirely ineffective for securing that British goods, in transit to the markets of the interior, shall pass free from taxation. We are therefore forced to conclude that the 2½ per cent. now to be levied at the port of importation will prove to be merely an addition to the import duty of 5 per cent.

4. In Article XIII. of the convention it is proposed to double the export duty on silk. Hitherto ten taels per picul, or about 6d. per lb., this duty will now be increased to 1s. per lb., and as the transit dues will also be doubled, being fixed by the treaty at half the amount of export duty, the additional cost of China silk to the British consumer will be about 9d. per lb. That this will act as a premium to the native manufacturer cannot be doubted; and there is reason to fear that it will still further curtail the export of some of the most useful classes of raw silk, particularly Taysaams, which enter largely into native consumption, and the diminished supplies of which have already caused our manufacturers much inconvenience.

It has been alleged that an increase of the export duty on silk is admissible, on the ground that the fixed duties specified in the treaty are based upon a 5 per cent. ad valorem rate, and that the present increased value of silk will justify the proposed revision. To this it may be answered that silk in former years ruled, and may again rule, at prices which would make the 10 taels duty little short of 5 per cent. ad valorem. Moreover, to apply this argument fairly, it would be necessary to make such revision of export duties a general one, when it would be found that a material reduction would be required upon the export duty upon tea, now about 12½ per cent.

With these remarks on the more important stipulations of the Convention, as they affect British trade, we take leave to commend this matter to the early attention of your Chamber. In the meantime, may I request the co-operation of your Chamber and of its members in using all their influence to oppose the ratification of the Convention in its present form, both by canvassing public opinion in your community and by making urgent representations to Her Majesty's Government.—I have the honour to be, Sir, your most obedient servant,

HUGH M. MATHESON, Chairman.

3, Lombard-street, London, Jan. 21, 1870.

Digitized by Google

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS, CORRESPONDENTS, &c.

No notice can be taken of anonymous correspondence. Whatever is intended for insertion must be accompanied by the name and address of the writer, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith.

A REGISTER is kept of the addresses of all persons connected with the FAR EAST, and reference can be made to the same by personal application at the Office or by letter.

Any Information required by Subscribers, in reference to Commercial or general matters in CHINA, JAPAN, SINGAPORE, and other parts of the FAR EAST, will be supplied on application at the Office, where files may be seen of the Journals published in those Countries.

The "LONDON AND CHINA TELEGRAPH" is published on the arrival of the fortnightly English mail, and the monthly French mail. Subscription, 30s. per annum; with Export Supplement, £2 2s.

The "LONDON AND CHINA EXPRESS" is published on the day of departure of the mails, and contains a Summary of English, Continental, and American, News-Commercial and Shipping Reports, &c. Subscription, 54s. per annum; with Export Supplement, 66s.

JAMES WEST, PUBLISHER,
2, COWPER'S-COURT, CORNHILL, LONDON.

The London & China Telegraph.

LONDON: MONDAY, JAN. 24, 1870.

SOME FURTHER REMARKS ON THE NEW TREATY.

SIR R. ALCOCK'S China convention having now been long enough before us to enable a fair idea to be formed of its probable effects on trade (always supposing, of course, that it is ratified in its present form), it will be well to weigh the value of the concessions made on either side, and compare our prospective profits and losses. That the balance will be on the wrong side is manifest at a glance, but let us see to what extent. The additional 20 taels payable on opium is of course the largest item on the adverse side; this on an estimated importation of 55,000 piculs gives an increased revenue to the Chinese Customs of Tls. 1,100,000. Next comes the double silk duty—an increase of 10 taels on an export of (say) 51,000 piculs, giving Tls. 510,000, and of 3 taels on "yellow" silk, say 6,000 piculs, giving another Tl. 18,000. Here we have an additional burden on trade to the extent of Tls. 1,628,000 in the shape of direct taxation on opium and silk; to which has to be added the now compulsory transit duty on imported cotton goods of the estimated value of Tls. 11,510,000, and woollen or mixed goods Tls. 3,700,000, which dues, at 2½ per cent., will amount to Tls. 380,250. This makes a total gain to the Chinese Exchequer of Tls. 2,008,000, or in round numbers two millions. On the other side we have (1) the abolition of the duty on foreign coal, which only amounts to about 150,000 tons per annum, giving a duty of Tls. 7,500—which has probably been relinquished because the amount is so small as hardly to repay the trouble of collection. (2) A reduction in the duty of native coal exported from the South only—which, on 25,000 tons will give almost twice as much—say Tls. 15,000. (3) The reduced duty on timber, pepper, and some other articles not so easily estimated; and (4) the abolition of the duty on Dockyard stores. All these together, even if taken at a high estimate, will certainly not exceed a quarter of a million taels; so that for our new privileges—ill-defined and shadowy as they are—we have to pay, in hard cash, a million and three quarters of taels. And for the chief of these dearly-bought privileges—the exemption of our goods from inland "squeezes," we have absolutely no security—there is not even a stipulation that the increased duty shall cease to be paid should the Chinese fail to carry out their engagements in this respect.

No doubt Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK did his best to procure better terms, but he was shorn of his powers for good by the recent action of the Home Government, and virtually reduced to the position of an inferior suing for favours to a superior power. The Chinese, by the tone they maintained during the negotiations, showed a clear appreciation of this fact. The main object of the BURLINGAME Mission was doubtless to lessen the power of the Foreign Ministers at Peking, and so far it has admirably answered the purpose. The Foreign-office has cut the ground from under Sir R. ALCOCK'S feet to such an extent that it is almost a wonder he was not compelled to accept even worse terms; and his successor will evidently be powerless to demand any further concessions from the Chinese. The conduct of our Government in the matter has been weak and vacillating throughout. While their representative at Peking was endeavouring to make some sort of stand against the retrograde tendencies of the Chinese, they on this side more than neutralised all he could do by yielding to Mr. BURLINGAME'S impertinent demands. Indeed, we may justly accuse the Foreign-office not only of supineness, but of bad faith in this matter, for in July last, at the very time when these negotiations at Peking were in progress, and when Lord CLARENDON had already made those lamentable concessions to Mr. BURLINGAME, Mr. OTWAY stated in the House of Commons on behalf of the Government, that it was intended to postpone the revision of the Treaty of Tientsin until the EMPEROR came of age, some four years hence. Mr. OTWAY, or those who put him forward to make this statement, must have well known it to be incorrect. Some explanation of this misrepresentation ought to be demanded as soon as Parliament reassembles.

As regards the probability of the new Convention being ratified, it is yet early to form an opinion. The fact of its publication in this country being authorised is evidence that it is approved by our own Government, and that of the United States is certain to follow suit. But it must be remembered that the Convention is not to come into operation unless all the Treaty Powers agree to accept it, and we have yet to see whether those who are not pledged to refrain from using pressure on the Chinese Government will agree in this course. Probably they will not, and there is yet a hope that the example of France and Russia, together with the strong representations that will shortly be made to Lord CLARENDON by the London merchants and the various Chambers of Commerce, may induce our Government to pause before finally committing themselves to a step fatal to the interests of British trade in China.

DRIFTING INTO WAR.

THE letter signed "CASSANDER," which appeared in our last issue, contains some reflections on the too probable result of Lord CLARENDON'S policy towards China that will, we are sure, receive hearty commendation from our readers. As CASSANDER points out, the situation is getting more serious every day, and as time wears on the chance of a peaceful solution of the difficulties now rising in every direction becomes more and more remote. Every step taken in the direction of weakening our naval forces in China, of snubbing our Consuls, of tying down our Minister by stringently pacific instructions, will be met by an aggressive movement on the other side. So long as we are peaceful, the Chinese Government will be arrogant and presumptuous; if we go further, and exhibit humility, they will instantly become warlike and defiant. And in any future struggle they will be far better prepared than when they last threw off the mask, at Taku. Already there are dockyards and arsenals at Canton, Foochow, Nanking, and Shanghai, besides military camps under foreign instruction; and the enormous gains secured through the Customs by this new convention, will doubtless be applied to the maintenance and further development of these warlike establishments, which are surely intended to be turned against us on the first occasion when from words we come to blows with them. Of course all these preparations will not make them invincible, but they will at least be capable of a much more formidable resistance than our arms have hitherto encountered on Chinese soil. The day of trial is probably not very far off. The more eager our Government is to conciliate the Chinese, the more stringently our representatives are "bound over to keep the peace," even at the cost of any degree of humiliation—the more surely are we drifting into war.

WE learn, on the authority of the Globe, that on the strength of the new transit regulations a London firm is about to ship to China a consignment of eight hundred and forty thousand pocket-knives, and sixty thousand bottles of brandy, for transmission into the interior of the country. Are the members of the firm indicated so credulous as to believe they are likely to make a fortune by the speculation? Or is it possible that some un-redressed wrong has inspired them with a deadly hatred of the Chinese race, and that they are making this shipment in the hope that sixty thousand Chinamen will forthwith drink the sixty thousand bottles of brandy, and under its influence cut each others' throats with the eight hundred and forty thousand pocket-knives? This would certainly be revenge on a grand scale.

Digitized by Google

SOME time ago we devoted a good deal of space to urging the necessity of some steps being taken to bring the Korean Government to reason. Even if we are bound to respect the voluntary seclusion of a people so long as they give us no active cause of offence, the obligation surely ceases when shipwrecked crews cast involuntarily on their shores are maltreated. In the case of the Star of the East, lately stranded on the coast of Korea, the natives were disposed to be hospitable and friendly; but soon the officials appeared, and "ordered the foreigners away on pain of death," whereby much hardship and suffering was inflicted on them. It is clearly the duty of the English Government to demand redress for this outrage; but any representation to this effect would doubtless be met by the reply that wrecking, cruelty, and murder are "holy traditions" among the Koreans, and must therefore be respected. What a pity it is that Sir CHARLES DILKE does not become a naturalised Korean, and go and dwell permanently among that delightfully civilised and progress-loving people!

WE notice with satisfaction the large increase that has lately been visible in the tonnage employed in the Siam trade. In the Siam Weekly Advertiser of Dec. 2 we find a list of no less than fifty-five foreign merchant vessels aggregating over 21,000 tons then at Bangkok, most of them sure of employment; of these thirteen were loading for Europe, with a gross tonnage of 6,800, or nearly one-third of the whole. Besides the foreign, there were twenty-six Siamese vessels in port, representing over 9,000 tons. The trade is still unfortunately almost confined to the export of rice, there being apparently hardly any demand among the natives for European manufactures, and (as the Advertiser justly remarks) it is a pity that the numerous vessels coming to load should bring nothing better in the way of imports than stone or sand ballast. It seems to us that the rice trade itself is capable of considerable development by an extended introduction of steam machinery for preparing the article.

A FEW days since some apprehension was manifested as to the safety of the Great Eastern, owing to her not having been spoken since she left St. Vincent in November last, with the British Indian Cable on board, and some depression in Telegraph shares was the result. The managing director of the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company has set these fears at rest by a communication to the Stock Exchange pointing out that the track of the Great Eastern lay entirely out of the direction pursued by homeward-bound ships. We cannot hear of her from the Cape until the next mail arrives, which is now about due. If her coaling at the Cape is not delayed by bad weather, she might arrive in Bombay some day this week; but, owing to the irregularity and uncertainty of the telegrams from India, it is impossible to say when we may hear of her arrival there. There is not the slightest reason for any anxiety about the ship or her freight.

A NOTICE just issued at the Admiralty (dated Jan. 8) intimates to all persons interested therein that "preparations "are now being made for the intended distribution of the "proceeds of a piratical junk and cargo, captured on April 8, "1867, by Her MAJESTY'S gunboat Havock." The junk was one captured up the West River, and adjudicated a lawful prize by the Hong Kong Court nearly two years ago. The amount of "preparation" required by the Admiralty for settling such a small affair as this is wonderful. Even now it is uncertain when the claimants will get their money. It is stated that "due notice will be given, by future advertise-"ments in the London Gazette, of the date proposed for the "commencement of distribution."

ADMIRAL OHIER, the Governor and Commander-in-Chief of Saigon and French Cochin China, who returned by the last mail owing to ill health, is, we understand, to be succeeded by Admiral DE LA GRANDIERE. This, we feel sure, will be highly gratifying to most of the residents at Saigon. Admiral CORMILHIER DE LUCIMERE, the commander of the China and Japan fleet, has assumed the government ad interim.

THE January number of the Westminster Review contained an article on "British Policy in China," evidently from the pen of a resident at one of the Northern ports. We regret that our space does not admit of any lengthened notice of it

WITH reference to the meeting of merchants held to consider the new China Convention, which was reported in our last issue, we publish in another column a letter addressed by Mr. MATHESON to the various Chambers of Commerce, with a view to joint action. No time has yet been fixed for the proposed deputation to the Government, and it is possible that this may be deferred until Parliament assembles, next month. A resolution was passed on the 19th by the Glasgow Chamber of Commerce to the effect that it is inexpedient that the Convention should be ratified.

ADVICES have been received from Sydney that the Government have decided to postpone the consideration of the proposed mail service between Java, Brisbane, and Sydney, via Torres Straits, until after the meeting of Parliament in January. We shall probably, therefore, not hear of the decision regarding a subsidy for this service until March. We understand that the P. and O. Company, the British Indian, and the Netherlands India Company have submitted tenders.

THE Peiho, one of the four vessels building by the Messageries Imperiales for their Indo-China service, has been launched, and is now fitting her engines, &c. She will probably be ready to proceed to her station in March next, by which time the Suez Canal, it is expected, will be passable for vessels of twenty-four feet draft. Should this prove practicable, it is the intention of the Company then to pass all their vessels through the Canal.

THE Chinese Mission has terminated its labours at Berlin. In another column will be found some interesting extracts from the correspondence between Count BISMARK and Mr. BURLINGAME with which the negotiations terminated.

PIRACY IN THE CHINA SEAS.

THE melancholy story received by last mail of the piratical attack on the Crofton following closely on the case of the Apenrade and others, indicates that piracy on the Southern Coast of China is again on the increase, and we trust the warning as to the necessity of keeping up an efficient gunboat squadron in those waters will not be lost on our Government. The following extract from a Hong Kong letter on the subject has appeared in The Times:—

Another shocking piracy has just occurred. The British bark Crofton was in a sinking state, having sprung a leak while somewhere not far from Macao, and the mate with a boat's crew came in here for assistance. The ship must have been subsequently taken by pirates, who carried the captain and remainder of the crew to the island of Montamba, close by Macao, near the Tyfea, where they beheaded the prisoners and burnt the bodies on the beach. Information was given at Macao by some fishermen, and investigation set on foot by the Prussian corvette Medusa, English gunvessel Midge, and Portuguese gunboat Camoes. Distinct traces of the tragedy were discovered, with many of the Crofton's papers. Several prisoners have been taken, and two or three villages burnt. The Crofton herself has not been found, she has probably sunk. Deference to the susceptibilities of the Chinese Government has of late induced the English authorities to restrain the action of English cruisers in Chinese waters, on the understanding that the now rather numerous fleet of Chinese gunboats should be employed in the suppression of piracy. The result is that piracy is rapidly increasing again. The Chinese gunboats are employed in blockading this port and that of Macao, and levying "squeezes" on trade, and within the last few weeks two European ships, the Apenrade and Crofton, have been captured, and several European lives lost between this and Macao. Besides these piracies, there have been several cases of attacks on Chinese craft. What with the extension of piracy, the increase of import and export duties under the revised Treaty, and the growing obstructiveness and insolence of Chinese officials, whose arrogance is in exact proportion to the humility and forbearance of European Governments, foreigners in these parts find their position daily becoming more and more critical, and look forward to a new war as the only means of relief from their burdens, and the extrication from the very embarrassing position into which a weak and utterly mistaken policy has driven them.

STEAM LIGHTERS FOR JAPAN.

THE want that has so long been felt at Yokohama and other ports in Japan of proper facilities for discharging vessels will soon be supplied by means of a number of steam lighters of a novel construction, which are being shipped to Yokohama, where we understand they will be consigned to Mr. PITMAN. Four of these useful vessels have been completed, and three of them are already en route to their destination, while others are in course of construction on the Thames, by Messrs. ALLIBON, NOYES, and Co., of Northfleet.

The boats are built of "Monk Bridge" iron, which is the highest class of Yorkshire iron except the celebrated Low-moor. Their dimensions are as follows:—Length, 80 ft. 6 in.; beam, 17 ft. 6 in.; depth of hold, 5 ft. 6 in.; draught of water, only 3 ft. 6 in. They will carry 150 tons of coals, and, owing to the arrangement of the upright "Allibon" boilers the space occupied by the engine department is only 14 feet. The stopping and starting gear is on deck, close to the steering wheel, which is forward. The boilers are especially constructed to burn the light quality of Japanese coal that is so destructive to the funnels of ordinary steamers; as the flame has to descend to the bottom of the boiler before it reaches the funnel, all the heat is exhausted and at the same time utilised, so that the consumption of coal is reduced to 2 lb. per hour for every horse power. There are four watertight compartments in each boat, and the bottoms are so constructed as to enable them to run on shore and discharge, or go up to the bank of a river, which is in some cases very desirable. Each lighter is moreover fitted with a powerful steam winch, which will be a great assistance to vessels requiring to discharge rapidly. The boats are also well fitted to carry passengers on deck in case of need, having high bulwarks with iron stanchions for awnings.

Digitized by Google

We hear that a set of blocks and tackle for shears capable of lifting fifty tons weight are also being sent to Yokohama.

MR. BURLINGAME AND COUNT BISMARK.

The Berlin correspondent of the Globe sends the following translation of the first part of Mr. Burlingame's letter to the Chancellor of the North-German Confederation, dated Jan. 4, which is as follows:—

I had the honour to state, in our conversation yesterday and to-day, that it was not so much the desire of the Chinese Government to make new treaties, as to secure a fair execution of old ones. Existing treaties, with the opportunity of changing them afforded by the presence at Peking of the Representatives of the Treaty Powers, are sufficient for commercial purposes; but from the manner in which they are established, and the harsh stipulations consequent thereon, may be difficult of enforcement. Without here questioning the propriety of their origin or denying the obligation of the Chinese to observe them, it may be permitted to request such forbearance in their execution on the part of the Western Powers as shall be compatible with the independence of China and the interests of civilisation. Upon this subject, while there may be an equal desire to do justice, there is great diversity of opinion. One party maintains that as the treaties had their origin in force, pressure must be continued in their support, and that any relaxation of this system would be fatal to progress. The other party holds that this system is neither wise nor safe, that while it may be convenient for the moment, in the end it must be destructive of the interests of its promoters; that it is inconsistent with the true Sovereignty of China, and with that international law, which does not measure the rights of nations by their power to resist or by the interests of those who do not belong to these nations, and degrades the Central Government of China by dealing with the local authorities, and submits the great question of war to the caprice of those whose interest it is to make it.

Mr. Burlingame proceeds to state that the action of those of the Treaty Powers which have been visited by the Mission has been in favour of the latter party. The Treaty concluded with the United States is in this spirit. The correspondence between Lord Clarendon and Mr. Burlingame, and the instruction of the former in accordance therewith, disclose a determination on the part of Great Britain to maintain a conciliatory policy towards China, and to restrain its agents within proper limits. Mr. Burlingame mentions the cordial reception of the Mission by the Emperor of France, and the just views expressed by him at that time, as well as the subsequent declaration of his Ministers in the same sense, together with the gratifying response by direct letters to the Emperor of China of the Sovereigns of Holland, Denmark, and Sweden, as assurance of a general desire of harmonious and considerate action towards China.

The despatch goes on to express the warm gratitude felt by all the members of the Embassy for the more than official courtesy shown to them by the King of Prussia, as well as for the ever-recurring kindness of which they have been the recipients at the hands of Her Majesty the Queen. Mr. Burlingame assures the Chancellor that the Government of China will appreciate and respond to the generous spirit of the Western Powers. This, he says, has already been proved by the Treaty concluded with England, the favourable stipulations of which are detailed by Mr. Burlingame at some length. The despatch concludes as follows:—

I hasten, in the name of China, to thank you for the views you have expressed, and to request that you will, in response to this, place them upon record to the end that this declaration may give still greater confidence to China, and an additional incentive to further progress on its part.

The following is a translation of Count Bismark's despatch in answer to the above:—

BERLIN, Jan. 16.

Your Excellency,—I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 4th inst. referring to our conversations of the same and the preceding day.

While bearing witness to the accuracy of your recital of what you said, I willingly comply with your request by reiterating in substance and placing upon record what I answered you.

It is a matter of great satisfaction to me that I should have received the first direct diplomatic communication from the Chinese Government to this country, and I trust that the intercourse thus established, in accordance with the law of nations, will prove equally beneficial to both parties.

The reception you have met with here, and of which you and the other members of the Embassy have been pleased to convey to me so warm an acknowledgment, testifies the sympathy of the German people with China, and its desire to cultivate with her the most friendly relations. I am happy to add that the North German Confederation, and his Majesty the King, my most gracious Sovereign, being the head of the same, will not cease to observe a policy concurring with that disposition. They are convinced that in the intercourse of our respective countries the interests of Germany will be best served by what is conducive and necessary to the well-being of China; that is to say, the activity of the Central Government enjoying respect, authority, and power commensurate with the magnitude of the empire, both in territorial extent and number of population. By maintaining order and security of life and property throughout the realm, such a Government will afford the best guarantee for fair and equitable dealing on the part of the servants and subjects of the Emperor, the most efficacious and universal protection of our countrymen resorting to China, the safest way to secure the execution of treaties and to obtain redress of grievances. When unharassed by internal dissensions and foreign conflicts, the Government would naturally concentrate its energies upon the further development of the boundless resources of the country, industry at home and commerce abroad would grow together, and increasing prosperity would, it may be trusted, strengthen the hands, and fortify the determination of the Government to follow up the policy of active intercourse, of amity, and mutual confidence with foreign nations, as initiated by your mission.

Resting upon these suppositions, the North German Confederation will ever be ready to suit its attitude to the exigencies of that authority, the impairing of which, in extent or intensity, would open a prospect difficult to imagine, but certainly the reverse of what the interests of the Western Powers, in the growth of commerce and spread of civilisation, demand.

I avail myself of this opportunity to renew to your Excellency the assurances of my highest consideration. BISMARK.

Foreign Intelligence.

HOLLAND.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ROTTERDAM, Jan. 19.

The members of the First Chamber of the States-General have been occupied with the several chapters of the Budget. The general debate was uninteresting, there being not the least show of opposition; so that it is clear that the Opposition members did not hold with the views expressed by Opposition papers with regard to the actual condition of the State finances. By way of contradiction to the assertions of these journals, the Minister of the Financial Department stated that the revenues during the past year presented a very favourable appearance, being 2,800,000 guilders above the valuation. Yet the Dagblad speaks every day of a national bankruptcy. Wicked tongues say that this is a mania of the editor, who always speaks of insolvency because the paper itself is much en déconfiture. A very interesting debate took place when the Budget of Foreign Affairs was brought forward. Mr. van Beeck Vollenhoven regretted greatly that the Second Chamber had outvoted the demand of the Minister of Foreign Affairs for the credit for appointing a Minister at Peking. He protested earnestly against this vote, because he said the rejection of the proposal was most injurious to trade and shipping. It may be, he said, that our China trade is not so extensive as formerly, but the trade still exists, and there are even signs of a revival. He further demonstrated that the appointment of a Minister was of the greatest urgency. Mr. Smit agreed entirely with this idea, and he was of opinion that the members of the Second Chamber had refused the credit because they were not sufficiently informed upon the subject. Mr. Schimmelpenninck van der Oije said that while a Minister was, according to his conviction, necessary, he should prefer that none should be appointed if the Minister retained his intention of paying such a very poor salary for the post. Mr. Joost van Vollenhoven also opposed the vote o the Second Chamber, and said that he agreed wholly with the view taken by the several chambers of trade, who had induced the Minister to renew his proposal. The Minister, answering to the several speakers, said that he was willing to consider the fresh proposition; but Mr. Smit was not content with this answer. He wished for something more definite, and accordingly Mr. Roest van Limburg promised that he would lay before the members of the Second Chamber a special Bill for the appointment of a Minister in China. The Budget for Foreign Affairs was thereupon carried, which was also the case with the Budget of the Navy and the War Department; all were voted unanimously. In to-day's sitting the Minister of Marine stated that our troops had carried a brilliant victory over the natives at our colonies on the West Coast of Africa.

The First Chamber then proceeded with the Finance Budget, which was carried by twenty-five against one vote, and the debate was then opened upon the Colonial Budget. Messrs. van Nispen and Hartsen delivered long speeches in opposition to the Liberal policy, but without success. The whole of the evening's sitting was taken up with the speech of Mr. de Waal, Minister of the Colonial Department. After replying to the Opposition speakers, defending the Liberal policy, he stated that the Java coffee crop of 1869 was only calculated to produce 900,000 piculs, but the produce will really be one million piculs, and that the crop for 1870 is estimated to produce 1,000,000 to 1,200,000 piculs; that the produce of the sugar crop for 1869 is 2,000,000 piculs, and that the private tobacco culture was most favourable. The Budget was carried by nineteen Ayes against six Noes. The Chamber then took recess.

Mr. M. H. Godefroi, M.P. for Amsterdam, has resigned his seat. The ill health of his wife renders it necessary that he should remain for a long period in Paris. There are no candidates yet named. His Majesty has accepted the resignation of Mr. D. de Graef, Minister resident in Japan, has thanked him for the good services he has rendered to the State, and has appointed in his place Mr. F. P. van der Hoeven, of the embassy at St. Petersburg.

Digitized by Google

Messrs. van Hoevell, member of the Council of State, des Amorie van der Hoeven, and J. van Gennep have issued a circular to promote subscriptions on behalf of the "Lion Funds," which are being collected in Java with the object of defraying the cost of educating the children of the late Mr. Lion, the pioneer of Liberal principles in Java. Without doubt, the contributions will be very large. I hear that one of the most influential members of the Liberal party has subscribed ten mille.

His Majesty has accepted the resignation of Mr. C. Bosman as Dutch Consul at Hong Kong, and has appointed Mr. Ludwig Beyer to the post.

I believe that no decision can be expected on the proposed Java and Holland line, via Suez Canal, until answers arrive to many queries sent out to Batavia.

The Dutch Trading Company has chartered the following vessels to convey produce from Java to Amsterdam:—Australia at f.74.99; to Schiedam, Utrecht, at f.68.67; and to Middleburg at f.74.—per last.

During the present year 2,000 soldiers will be sent out to reinforce the East India army.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

In general, a most healthy tone prevails; a good business has been done in Sugar and Coffee at improved prices, and considerable lots of Cassia Vera, Rattans, and Wax have changed hands.

COFFEE.—The demand for Java still improves, and the market value for greenish is now from 1½c. to 2½c., and for white and yellow 1½c. to 2c. above the prices paid at the November auction. There is, however, but very little offered, and holders as well as speculators decline to operate without a further advance. An improvement in prices is therefore waited for. At the closing of the market good ord. Tanger is quoted 32¾c. to 33¼c.; good ord. greenish Malang, 33¼c. to 33¾c.; good ord. white Java, 36¼c. The transactions include 550 b. Padang, ex Alida; 546 b. Java, ex Jupiter, at 32c. to 42½c.; 624 b. Benzuelen, ex Alida, at 32c. to 35c.; 600 b. Java, ex Dageraad, at 32¾c.; 1,060 b. Padang, ex Delft, 196 b. do. ex Alida.

SPICES.—There is a good speculative demand, and prices have improved. Nutmegs: No. 1, quitted at 118c., and No. 2 at 114c. Of Mace 62 chests changed hands at very firm prices.

TEA.—The Deerfoot having arrived from Foochow with a full cargo, general attention has been fixed upon this import; 5,172'12 chests, ex this vessel, will be very shortly offered in public auction. In the meanwhile business is suspended; the nominal quotations are—90c. to 95c. for Congou, 85c. to 88c. for ord. do., 90c. for Java Congou, and 85c. for ord. do.

SUGAR.—The very active demand which has prevailed since New Year's-day has become more animated, so that in the last fortnight about 35,000 mats have changed hands at f.1¼ to f.1½ under the November value, and holders now decline to operate without an improvement in prices. The transactions include 1,000 mats Samarang, ex Herman de Ruiter, No. 12½ to 14, at f.34¾ to f.36; 249 do., do., floating, per Gutenberg, No. 13¾, at f.35¾; 1,413 do. Sourabaya, per Europa, No. 12½, at f.35; 139 do. Passaroeang, ex Glenduror, No. 18, at secret prices; 359 do. Samarang, ex Sydney, No. 10, f.34; 1,556 do. Samarang, ex Kenilworth, No. 10½ to 14, at secret prices; 1,531 do. Sourabaya, floating, per Weljekset, No. 12½ to 14; 1,359 mats Java, ex Drie Gezusters, No. 14, f.36; 725 mats Probolingo, floating, per Indian Empire, Nos. 8 to 14; 615 mats Pekalongan, floating, per Yedo; 625 mats Cheribon, ex Aimo, No. 12½ at f.35½; 2,075 mats Cheribon, ex Electric, No. 13½, at f.36; 255 mats Sourabaya, floating, per Jan Pieterszoon Kaen, No. 12½, at f.35½; 1,012 mats Samarang, ex Gutenberg, No. 13½; 1,185 mats Probolingo, ex Indian Empire, No. 11¾ to 12½; 1,040 mats, and 1,814 mats Pekalongan, ex Yedo, No. 11¾; 170 mats Batavia, ex Zepher, No. 15, at prices that did not transpire.

JAVA TOBACCO.—Without business. The stock is 10,451 bales Java in Rotterdam, and 8,124 bales in Amsterdam.

RATTANS.—The following parcels have been sold: 141 piculs, ex Argo; 212 piculs, ex Asia; 185 piculs, ex Vesta; 100 piculs, ex Delft: 160 piculs, ex Nereus.

TIN.—The markets is again dull. Banca, after a trifling business had been done at f.64½, declined to f.62. Some hundreds of slabs sold for future delivery at f.62½ to f.62.

MISCELLANEOUS.—Camphor nominal at 53c. for Japan, and 51c. for China. Cubebs unaltered at 20c. Long Pepper can be bought at 18c. Cassia Lignea 74c. to 75c. Gummi Benzoe: 108 chests, ex Maria, sold at very firm but secret prices. Wax: In public auction 40,000 kilo. Benzuela, realised f.98 to f.98¾; the quotation for Japan Wax is f.46 for A and f.44 for B. Gutta-Percha meets with a good demand for fine qualities. Gummi Damar dull. Sapanwood: 100 piculs changed hands at unaltered prices.

FRENCH EXPLORATIONS IN EASTERN ASIA.

It has been generally understood of late that the attempts of the French Government to establish the existence of a practicable water communication between its Cochin Chinese dependency and the South Western Provinces of China proper have not been successful. This, in fact, is the inference suggested literally by the series of papers published in the Revue des Deux Mondes, by M. de Camé, under the title of "Exploration du Mékong. Noble as the expanse of the river called by the French the Mékong would seem to be according to the ordinary maps, it turns out to be obstructed by rapids and cataracts which render it useless for navigation. The French expedition under M. de Lagrée succeeded, however, in reaching South-Western China, and a very interesting account of their experiences is given by M. de Camé in the number of the Revue which has just appeared. But the important point is, that the French explorers have satisfied themselves that the true line of communication between South-Western China and the sea is not by the Mékong, but by the Sankoi, or Sang-Koi, which traverses Tonquin and falls into the Gulf of Tonquin. Information gathered in China itself would appear to show that it presents only one serious difficulty throughout its course. The provinces which the river traverses are not those under the immediate control of the French, but M. de Camé argues that steps should be at once taken to give them the command of the navigation. We think M. de Camé quite wrong in the impression which he seems to have formed that the discovery of a practicable water route would be looked upon with jealousy by the British public, which he appears to consider bent on making the railway from British Burmah to Yunan. But nobody, we suppose, regards the railway as other than a pis aller. River communications are simpler, cheaper, and more accordant with Chinese habits than railways, and the British mercantile interest would have nothing but congratulations for the French if they succeeded in opening the Sang-Koi. The Indian Government, which has a genuine dread of the political complications in which the railway might involve it, would be even better satisfied than the merchants. If M. de Camé had not, to speak frankly, something of a craze on the subject of Englishmen in the East, we should attach much importance to his opinion of the hopelessness of the railway scheme, and of the utter unfitness for commercial relations of the Mahomedan insurgents who still hold the extreme westerly portion of Yunan.

SILK REELING IN ENGLAND.—The first number of the Journal of the Silk Supply Association has just been issued. One of the objects of the Journal is to point out the advantages to the silk manufacturer and silk operative if the raw material were reeled in this country. No valid reasons (says the Journal), indeed, have yet been alleged against the production of silk in the southern counties of England, where much of the land is peculiarly favourable to the growth of the mulberry; and we hope that at no very distant day the profits of such an industry may assist in improving the position of the labouring classes in that part of the kingdom. But a practical association should look rather to the immediate than to the more remote future; and the successful culture of silk demands a knowledge which, though easy of attainment, can be of course but slowly diffused. The question, however, of reeling cocoons is one of a totally different nature. They can be pressed-packed and imported into England without any difficulty, moderate care alone being required to ensure their arrival in an undamaged condition. We possess many mechanical inventions for effecting the reeling that have been practically tested and shown to produce a thread equal to any produced in France or Italy, and at a smaller cost. In the centres of silk industry, such as Coventry or Macclesfield, we have at hand a large population already familiar with the manipulation of silk, to whom, in the present depressed state of trade, the introduction of a new industry especially suited to them would be an inestimable boon.

"PLEASANT ISLAND."—In Nature (Messrs. Macmillans' new journal) there is an interesting account of an island lying in the route of ships between Australia and China. Though called "Pleasant Island," it had, previous to 1865, on account of the conduct of the natives, a very bad reputation. In that year a ship captain visited the place, bringing away a favourable report of it, as well as news that there was an Englishman among the native population. Three years later Captain Hall, of the barque Glenisle, passed that way, and was boarded by canoes from the island, and a couple of whale-boats. Two Englishmen came with the skifls, one of whom said he had been twenty-eight years on the island, and introduced his younger companion, eighteen years old, as his son. They told Captain Hall that they tried to visit all ships passing within easy distance, and were anxious it should be known that they could supply ships with pigs and cocoa-nut oil. The captain advised them to cultivate potatoes, and they gave him an advertisement to put in the colonial papers. Unfortunately this document has baffled all attempts to decipher it, from the faulty writing. The island is stated to be nine miles across, and twenty-two miles in circumference.

PROPOSED FRENCH PORT ON THE RED SEA.—The French cannot apparently forgive us for having anticipated them in seizing the island of Perim, and thus adding a Malta to our Gibraltar of the Red Sea, as they call Aden. According to the papers, M. Poilay, one of the engineers of the Suez Canal, has determined to counteract our influence in that quarter of the globe. He has with this object purchased a large tract of land at Babelmandeb, where he purposes to "créer une ville et un port." The future of this magnificent scheme is, according to his prospectus, already assured; for the neighbourhood is rich in coal mines, which can be worked (with forced labour, we suppose) at a trifling cost.

An Admiralty notice has been issued that about the 1st of April a telegraph station vessel will be moored by the International Mid-Channel Telegraph Company off the entrance to the English Channel. She will have three masts, and to the top of the mainmast a large black cone will be hoisted during daytime, and a globular light at night. A flare-up light will also be shown every fifteen minutes during the night. The commercial code of signals for the use of all nations will be used on board.

SILKWORMS' EGGS.—The steamship China, which recently arrived at San Francisco from China and Japan, brought 3,600 cards of silkworms' eggs, which are coming through to New York, via the Pacific Railroad. Their destination is Lyons, France. The French shippers are dissatisfied with their experience in shipping the eggs via the Isthmus of Suez, and have tried the experiment of a shipment across the American continent.

By the death of Admiral of the Fleet Sir George Seymour, G.C.B., K.C.H., a captain's good service pension, owing to the promotion of Captain Paynter, has fallen to the gift of the First Lord of the Admiralty, and it is rumoured it will be bestowed on Captain Oliver Jones, lately Commodore at Hong Kong.

THE U. S. MINISTER TO CHINA.—We hear from Washington that Minister Low has received his final instructions from the State Department, and was to leave Washington for New York, and the latter city for China, via California, this week.

Digitized by Google

Monetary and Commercial.

It is stated that the shares in the Great Northern Telegraph China and Japan Extension Company have been very influentially subscribed for to the full extent of the capital. The proposal of this company to lay telegraph cables to Hong Kong, in connection with the Russian land lines, has drawn forth a letter to The Times deprecating any appeal to English capitalists for such a purpose. No hostility (says The Times) should be entertained. If the China Company could have agreed with the Danish Company so as to obviate, at all events for the present, the laying of a double line from Hong Kong to Shanghai, that arrangement would have been advantageous; but it is probable that the Danish, owing to the totally different character of its connecting route, will interfere but very slightly with the English one, and an alternative line will in any case prove beneficial to commerce. As regards the nationality of the Danish enterprise, and the fact of its being based on a Russian concession, it is merely necessary to observe that English capitalists and merchants are sufficiently enlightened to promote all enterprises, in those or any other countries, the object of which is the extension of trade and friendly intercourse.

On the 17th inst. a first sitting was held at the Bankruptcy Court, in the affairs of Mr. H. H. Severs. The debts are returned in the preliminary statement at about £250,000; the failure was ascribed to losses on consignments to China. Mr. C. Despard, of 89, Cannon-street, commission agent, was chosen assignee; and a resolution as passed for an administration of the estate out of Court, under the 185th section of the Bankruptcy Act, 1861, by means of a deed of inspectorship.

The half-yearly general meeting of the proprietors of the City Bank was held on the 18th inst. Mr. John Jones took the chair. The directors declared a dividend at the rate of 7 per cent., and placed an additional sum of £5,000 to the reserve fund, which now stands at £90,000. The chairman moved the adoption of the report, which was seconded by Mr. G. Young, and agreed to without discussion. Unanimity at these meetings is the best proof of prosperity. Cordial thanks to the directors and managers were presented before the proprietors separated.

Nearly all the cases of specie have been recovered from the sunken wreck of the Carnatic steamer in the Gulf of Suez. Three only remained to be got up when the last report was despatched, and these are spoken of with certainty.

Tenders for £387,500 in bills on India were received last week at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were—to Calcutta, £374,150; and to Madras, £13,350. The minimum price was fixed as before, namely, at 1s. 11d. on those Presidencies. Tenders at 1s. 11¼d. will receive about 2 per cent., above that price in full.

The amount of bullion by the P. and O. Company's steamer Tanjore, from Southampton on the 22nd inst., was, in gold, to Galle, £170; to Bombay, £4,890; to Madras, £2,020; in silver, to Shanghai, £2,200; total in gold, £7,080; in silver £2,200.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

The following is from Messrs. W. J. and H. Thompson's Circular, dated 19th inst.:—The market continues firm for all descriptions of Congou, and the prices of medium to fine Monings have slightly hardened. The business transacted, however, has not been extensive, for the attention of the trade has been occupied with the public auctions. Foochow Congous: Some common siftings sold at the auctions at 6¼d. to 6½d., broken leaf at 10d., leafy at 11¾d.; good common, rather dusty, may be quoted 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 0¾d., fair and medium at 1s. 1d. to 1s. 3½d., at which several breaks have been sold at public sale; good and fine are held for higher rates. Black-leaf Congous: A chop of common "with all faults," sold at 1s. to 1s. 0½d. For good common there is not much inquiry at the moment, but it is generally held for 1s. 1d. per lb. Fair to medium has been dealt in at 1s. 1½d. to 1s. 4d. per lb., showing in some cases a further slight advance, and for good to fine from 1s. 6d. to 1s. 10d. occasionally higher rates have been paid. Tayshan Congous: Some breaks at auction of common to fair quality sold at 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 0¾d. per lb. Souchongs: The common and medium grades are dull of sale, and some few have been sold at 1s. 1½d. to 1s. 4d. per lb. Oolongs: The few fine that arrive continue to be taken for export at rather better prices. Scented Orange Pekoes: Common spurious mixed has again sold at lower prices at Public Sale, 8½d. to 10d. per lb., good common to fair at 11d. to 1s. 0½d. per lb.; medium by private contract at 1s. 4d. to 1s. 6d. per lb. Scented Capers: Spurious at 5¾d. to 8d. per lb.; common at 10½d. per lb. Green Teas: Large quantities have been realised at the Auctions. The Ping Suey kinds sold at full rates, while Moyunes and Coloured Japans sold rather easier. Canton Gunpowders 9½d. to 11d. in boxes. Some sales of finest quality Moyunes, however, have been made at extreme rates. The China Sales of the 14th instant consisted of 6,268 packages, mostly Green Teas. The Sale that commenced on the 18th, and which concluded to-day, comprised 15,136 packages. These passed with fair spirit, prices being equal to those ruling privately, while some Green Teas sold at better rates.

SILK.

The following is from Messrs. Kilburn, Kershaw, and Co.'s Circular:—

The market continues extremely active, and, under the influence of large daily business, prices have further advanced until 30s. 6d. to 31s. has been paid for best chop 3rd Tsatlees, 26s. to 28s. for best 4, and 23s. to 25s. 6d. for common to fair No. 4, and 24s. 6d. to 27s. for fair to extra best No. 1 Taysaam. Red Peacock is quoted 26s., and best No. 1 Kahing 27s. For China Silk generally there has been great enquiry, and Chop Hainins have shared in the rise, 26s. having been freely paid for No. 2 Fatmow. Japan Silk has also been in great demand, and the finest sorts especially have been realising very high rates, extra qualities of Mybash having found ready buyers at 33s. to 35s.; Canton Silk has risen 1s. during the last ten days, the Tsatlee reel of good ordinary quality being worth 20s. 6d. to 21s., and better sorts 21s. 6d. to 23s. The general tone of the markets is good; and consumption progresses satisfactorily, from 1st to 18th inst. the deliveries having been—1,967 China, 347 Canton, 329 Japan, 337 Bengal; total, 2,980 bales.

COFFEE.

A considerable quantity of Ceylon has been brought forward at the public sales, and has met an active competition at last mail's prices. There is, therefore, no change to report in the market. The following were the prices realised at the last auctions:—Plantation, triage and ordinary, 35s. to 59s. 6d.; small grey and greyish, 61s. to 64s. 6d.; low middling and middling do., 65s. 6d. to 70s. 6d.; bold do., 70s. to 77s. 6d.; small coloury, 65s. to 70s.; middling coloury, 72s. to 78s. 6d.; good middling bold, 79s. 6d. to 82s. 6d.; Peaberry, 72s. to 81s. 6d. Native small, 44s. 6d. to 46s.; good ordinary, 52s. to 53s.; good bold, 56s. 6d. to 57s.; Peaberry, 56s. to 56s. 6d. By private contract 500 bags fine ordinary native have realised 54s. In East India descriptions of Coffee other than Ceylon 57 bags pale and mixed Singapore sold at 51s. 6d. to 54s. 6d., and 988 bags Manila sold, pale Indian sort at 53s. to 53s. 6d., one lot bold brownish 59s. 6d.

SUGAR.

The supply on offer, especially of Manila, is considerably in excess of buyers' requirements, and there being very little demand the market for the past few days has been extremely dull, and the current rates show a reduction of 3d. to 6d. per cwt. The quantity sold has been very limited. Of Manila, at auction, 34,595 bags unclayed Ilo Ilo sold at 26s. to 26s. 6d., after having been bought in at 27s. to 27s. 6d.; and 100 bags unclayed Taal, of low quality, realised 24s. 6d. Privately about 11,000 bags clayed ordinary to good (duty 8s.) have found buyers at 28s. 6d. to 29s. There has been no business in any other description of East India Sugar. 4,500 bags brown China have been offered and bought in at 26s. 6d. per cwt.

The quantity of Sugar landed in the week ended Jan. 15, 1870, was, of Penang, nil, against 320 tons in the corresponding period of 1869; of Manila, Java, and China, 2,146 tons, against 2,188 tons; the quantity entered for home consumption was, of Penang, 166 tons, against 117 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 999 tons, against 293 tons. The quantity exported was, of Penang, 6 tons, against 2 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, — tons, against 8 tons. The stock on Jan. 15 was, of Penang, 2,158 tons, against 607 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 36,937 tons, against 32,848 tons.

COIR GOODS.—A small supply of Yarns offered at the sales, consisting chiefly of common qualities, met a good demand, and was all taken off at about £1 per ton advance. Fibre also sold at higher prices. 64 tons Ceylon Yarn in dholls. were all sold, low coarse to common, £23 10s. to £26 10s.; good common to middling, £27 to £29; good, £32 15s.; sea damaged, fine, £48 to £51 10s.; and 12 bales Singapore at £22. 9½ tons Ceylon Fibre chiefly sold at £25; mostly damaged, £24 10s. 189 coils Ceylon Rope withdrawn.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—There is a good demand at firm and advanced prices; the public sales have included 78 casks Ceylon at £41 5s. to £41 10s.; and later on 60 tons at £41 10s., which last price is firmly maintained; for arrival there are buyers at £42 10s. per ton. The quantity of Ceylon afloat for Great Britain on Jan. 10 was 31,243 cwt. against 43,459 cwt. at the corresponding date last year, and 37,773 cwt in 1868.

CAMPHOR.—About 200 cases China have been sold at 82s. 6d. per cwt. No transactions in Japan.

CUTCH.—There has been no business; 123 cases from Singapore were bought in at 28s. per cwt.

GAMBIER.—There has been no business at public sale; by private contract 100 tons good common have been sold at 17s. 6d., and for arrival, 50 tons, ex ship with all faults, at 16s. 10½d.

GALLS.—Nothing has been done since our last report; 50 chests China were offered, and bought in at 50s.

GUMS.—The following have been the transactions since our last report. Benjamin: 20 cases second Sumatra sold at £9 to £9 15s., rather inferior £8 5s. to £8 10s. Copal: Of 74 cases Manila offered, 27 cases good hark partly dard sold at 50s. Damar: Of 142 packages Batavian offered, 43 cases good fair bold and small sold at 90s. down to 88s. Of 319 cases Singapore only 20 cases sold, good small to bold yellow and pale rather dusty 70s., yellow and dark mixed 61s., pickings 36s., the remainder bought in at 80s., pickings 50s., inferior ditto 18s. to 20s.; also 122 boxes from China, good pale and yellow small to rather bold at 85s., good fair 80s.

HEMP.—A large supply of Manila of recent import, amounting to 3,862 bales, has been brought forward and met a moderate demand, but being held firmly for high prices only 350 bales were disposed of; barely fair roping at £58, fine (Sorsagon) at £61, superior £63, the remainder being bought in at £55 to £63 for common to superior. This is the first sale of Manila during the present year.

Digitized by Google

PEPPER.—Black: Prices show slightly more firmness; there have been sales of Penang on the spot at 4¼d., landing at 4 1-16d.; and of Singapore at 4⅛d. to 4⅜d. per lb. White: 70 bags common Singapore in auction sold at 5⅜d. to 5½d., and 16 bags Penang at the same prices. Privately, 100 bags fair Singapore sold at 5¼d.

RICE.—There is no change to report in the tone of the market. At the public sales, of 6,441 bags Bassein offered the sound portion was bought in at 9s. 6d., but 5,800 bags sea damaged sold, first-class at 8s. 6d., with a few lots 8s. 9d.; 2,318 bags damaged Rangoon sold, second class 8s. 3d., third and repacked at 7s. 3d. to 7s. 6d.; and 2,416 bags indirect sound Moulmein, broken at 8s. 6d. to 8s. 9d., inferior, 8s. 294 bags Ballam were offered, and bought in at 10s. Privately, 5,000 bags Moulmein have been sold at 8s. 9d., short prompt.

SPICES AND SAGO.—There have been no sales since our last report.

TAPIOCA.—In auction 730 bags Penang were chiefly bought in at 2¼d. to 2½d.; of 474 bags Singapore about 140 bags sold at 2d. to 2¼d.; 47 bags Singapore flour sold at 2d. to 2¼d.

TIN.—The market for Straits exhibits a slight improvement, business having been done at £106 per ton, which is the closing quotation.

NEW YORK MARKETS.

—o—

TEA.

The following is from Messrs. Beebe's Circular, dated the 31st Dec.: —Since the 17th inst. our market for Tea has been rather quiet for goods in hand, and prices are without material change, though at the close the extreme figures thus far current for New Crop Greens and Japans are realised with more difficulty, in consequence of free offerings to arrive at decidedly lower rates. Transactions reported during the fortnight include sales of 12,300 half-chests Green (9,000 of which are to arrive), 20,000 half-chests Japan (12,000 to arrive), 7,300 half-chests Oolong (3,500 to arrive), and 3,200 half-chests Souchong, all to arrive. Resales of the bulk of the Japans ex Doon have been made on the basis of our revised quotations. These figures show a large advance over the currency for old teas, and are not likely to be maintained when the market is better supplied.

The following are the current quotations:—Greens (Moyune, Twankai, and Fychow), old crop, Gunpowder, 70c. to 100c.; Imperial, 57c. to 80c.; Young Hyson, 50c. to 85c.; Hyson, 55c. to 80c.; Hyson Skin, 45c. to 50c. New crop: Gunpowder, 100c. to 125c.; Imperial, 70c. to 110c.; Young Hyson, 50c. to 85c.; Hyson, 55c. to 80c.; Hyson Skin, 50c. to 55c.; Oolongs, old crop; Foochow, common to good cargo, 48c. to 54c.; superior to fine, 57c. to 70c.; finest, 75c. to 90c.; Amoy, common to good cargo, 46c. to 52c.; superior to fine, 54c. to 62c.; finest, 65c. to 70c.; Souchong and Congou, new crop, common to good cargo, 46c. to 53c.; superior to fine, 56c. to 65c.; finest, 70c. to 85c.; Japans, new crop, common, nominal; medium to good, 64c. to 70c.; fine and finest, 72c. to 78c.; choice, 80c. to 85c.

The total receipts of Tea from China and Japan in the United States from Jan. 1 to Dec. 29, 1869, were as follows:—Greens, 19,885,051 lbs.; Japans, 10,322,701 lbs.; Souchongs, 2,009,777 lbs.; Oolongs, 10,053,298 lbs.; other sorts, 409,376 lbs.; total, 42,680,203 lbs. The stock on Jan. 1, 1869, was 9,577,014 lbs., which, added to the above total, gives a result of 52,257,217 lbs. Subtracting from this total the exports from Jan. 1 to Dec. 29, 5,014,980 lbs., and the withdrawals for home consumption during that period, 37,722,747 lbs., there remains a total of 9,519,490 lbs., representing the stock on the last-named date. The receipts from Dec. 15 to Dec. 29 amounted to 971,192 lbs.; the withdrawals for home consumption to 1,082,988 lbs., and the exports to 16,780 lbs.

COFFEE.—The market for East India is extremely quiet, and no sales are reported. The current quotations—which must be regarded as nominal—are, Java (mats), 22c. to 22½c.; do. (Government bags), 21½c. to 22c.; Manila, 16c. to 18c.; Singapore, 19c. to 20c.; Native Ceylon, 17½c. to 19½c. gold (duty paid). The stock of Manila on the 1st Jan. was estimated at 2,627 bags, against 5,955 bags on Jan. 1, 1869; of Java (Government) at 1,315 bags, against 2,931 bags; of Java (mats) 26,857 mats, against 13,000 bags; of Ceylon 4,151 bags, against 8,500 bags; of Singapore nil.

CAMPHOR.—China is quoted 18c. gold (in bond).

GAMBIER.—The current quotation is 4c. gold; stock, 7,500 bales.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Anisced is quoted $2.6 to $2.10; Cassia, $1.25 gold (in bond).

HEMP.—There has been an entire absence of business in Manila since we last reported. The nominal quotation is 14½c. gold. The stock of Manila on the 1st Jan. was estimated at 12,757 bales, against 17,951 bales at the corresponding date of 1869, and 21,863 bales in 1868.

INDIGO.—The market for Manila continues quiet, and we have to record a further slight decline, 10 cases having been sold at $1.20 to $1.36 currency. The stock of Manila on the 1st January (which was all in second hands) was estimated at 1,025 cases, against 750 cases at the corresponding date last year, and 900 cases in 1868.

PRESERVED GINGER.—China is quoted $10.50 to $11 currency (duty paid).

RHUBARB.—The quotation for China is $1.50 to $2 gold (duty paid).

RICE.—The market for all kinds is extremely dull; the only sale has been of 70 bags Rangoon for export at $3.25 gold (in bond), showing no change from the price previously ruling. The stock of East India on the 1st Jan. was 7,829 bags, against 10,316 bags at the corresponding date last year, and 2,652 bags in 1868.

SAPANWOOD.—Quotation, $40 currency; stock, 200 tons.

SUGAR.—The market for raw is very quiet. The refiners are holding off, the trade purchase moderately, and the importers make a rather meagre display of samples, and reject nearly all overtures which would tend to lower prices. There are no transactions in East India to report. The current quotations rule as follows:—Java, Nos. 10 and 12, 10⅛c. to 11⅛c.; Manila, current clayed, and superior, 10c. to 10⅛c. per lb. gold. The stock on the 1st Jan. was of Java 810 baskets, against 310 baskets at the corresponding date last year; of Manila 940,560 bags, against 17,404 bags; of China 1,911 bags, against 1,000 bags.

SPICES.—The market is active and firm. We quote Cassia at 43c. to 43½c.; Nutmegs, 95c. to $1; Singapore Pepper at 25½c.; Cloves, 26c. to 26½c.; Cinnamon, 70c. to 75c. (in bond); Mace at $1 25c. gold.

TIN.—The market continues perfectly stagnant, and there has been an entire absence of business. The nominal quotations are—Straits, 31⅝c. to 32c.; Banca, 33½c. per lb., gold. The stock on the 1st January was of Straits, 5,500 slabs, against 7,400 slabs at the corresponding date last year, and 5,000 slabs on the 1st January, 1868; of Banca 1,500 slabs, against 2,000 slabs in 1869, and 1,200 slabs in 1868.

SAN FRANCISCO MARKETS.

TEA.—Imports from Jan. 1st to Dec. 16th: China, 678,681 lbs., 2,256 pkgs.; Japan, 884,999 lbs. 6,137 pkgs. Beyond the usual steady jobbing trade requirement, there is little of general interest to remark. Stocks are not excessive, and importers not inclined to force sales. 20 cases Japan, in 4-lb. jars, are reported sold at 72c.

COFFEE.—Imports from Jan. 1st to Dec. 16th: Java, 1,010,532 lbs., 1,906 pkgs.; Manila, 359,255 lbs., 2,593 pkgs.; Ceylon, 3,650 sacks. The market is bare of Rio. Of all other descriptions supplies are considerable, and with a limited demand for the season, prices are nominal. Importers, for the most part, are not disposed to force sales.

RICE.—Imports from Jan. 1 to Dec. 16: China, 22,326,059 lbs., 29,059 packages; Siam, 3,637,783 lbs.; Batavia, 110,271 lbs., 660 packages. With considerable supplies of most descriptions low and medium grades, and a restricted demand, prices continue unchanged. China is held at 5c. to 5¾c.

SUGAR.—Imports from Jan. 1 to Dec. 16: Manila, 15,383,622 lbs., 35,715 packages; China, 1,633,400 lbs., 2,837 packages; Batavia, 1,659,457 lbs., 731 packages; Siam, 40,133 lbs., 5,428 packages. There is no life to the market, either in raws or refined. Stocks of the former are considerable, with little demand.

Shipping Intelligence.

—o—

ARRIVALS.

Date.	Ship	Captain.	From	At
Jan. 10	Maria Adolfina	Bakker	Batavia for Rottrdm.	Off the Start
— 10	Helena	V. Leeuwen	Do.	Texel
— 10	Mentor	Butenuth	Do.	Do
— 15	Jane Anna	Thomson	Galle, &c.	London
— 15	Devana	—	Foochow	Do.
— 9	Diamant	Barriere	China	L'Orient
—	Ada	—	Shanghai	New York
— 1	Insulaire	Fleuriot	Amoy	Do.
— 17	Charmian	Stewart	Shanghai	London
— 17	Star of the South	Smith	Colombo	Do.
— 11	Ringdove	Lloyd	Singapore	Trieste
— 16	Royal Sovereign	—	Java, for Rotterdam	Off Dungeness
— 14	Nieuwe Waterweg	Van Linden	Batavia	Texel
— 14	Constantia	Van Monnom	Do.	Brouwershaven
— 18	Patria	Soderman	Rangoon	London*
— 17	Roslin Castle	Alexander	Singapore	Off Crookhaven
—	Mondelli	Dernis	Do.	Bordeaux
— 18	Stanley Castle	—	Shanghai	New York
— 5	Borneo	Bursley	Padang	Boston
— 5	Joshua Loring	Loring	Singapore	Do.
Dec 29	Malacca	Dansen	Yokohama	San Francisco
— 30	Nightingale	Sparrow	Hong Kong	Do.
Jan. 15	Favorite	Cromar	Singapore	Marseilles
— 18	Hindostan	Worsley	China	Off Scilly
— 19	Queen of the Ocean	—	Foochow	Off Penzance
— 21	Sir H. Parkes	—	Shanghai	Scilly

* Not the Patna, as before reported.

DEPARTURES.

Date.	Ship.	Captain.	For	From
Jan. 12	Eastern Isles (str.)	Knight	Singap., Hg. Kg., &c.	Falmouth*
— 6	Arrow (str.)	Laing	Galle, &c.	Lisbon*
— 14	Prince Alfred	Hunter	Colombo	London
— 15	Dunmail	Thompson	Hong Kong	Do.
— 15	Ferdinand Brumm	Voss	Cardiff & Singapore.	Do.
— 13	Cutty Sark	Moodie	Shanghai, via London	Clyde
— 17	Min	Clark	Yokohama	London
— 15	Wm. Clowes	—	Hong Kong	Shields
— 17	Insulaneren	Nielsen	Yokohama	Dublin
— 14	British Constitution	Shaw	Ceylon	Shields
— 20	Chu Kiang (str.)	Warden	Penang, Sing., China, &c., via Suez Canal	London
— 20	Navigator	Roos	Cardiff and Galle	Do.
— 18	Christel	Drummond	Singapore	Cardiff
— 18	S. D. Thurston	Snow	Ceylon	Do.
— 18	Como	Drewer	Do.	Do.
— 21	Flying Spur	Barnett	Shanghai	London
— 19	Shun-Tung (str.)	—	China	Clyde
— 20	Maitland	Hunter	Hong Kong	Sunderland

* After repairing.

(See Commercial Postscript and Correspondents' Letters.)

LOADING.

At LONDON.—For Yokohama: John Milton. For Yokohama and Hiogo: Harbottle. For Shanghai: Juanpore, Geraint, Clara, Melbrek, John R. Worcester, Thyatira, Flying Spur. For Hong Kong: Hopewell, Maiden Queen, Scawfell, Fiery Cross, William Fr u ng. For Hong Kong and Foochow: Devana. For Singapore: Kingdom of Belgium, Sree Singapura. For Singapore, Hong Kong, Shanghai, and Yokohama (via Suez Canal)

Digitized by Google

Erl King (str.) For Penang: Eleanor. For Penang, Singapore, Hong Kong, and Shanghai (via Suez Canal): Chu Kiang (str.). For Batavia and Sourabaya: Vesta. For Colombo: River Indus, Shooting Star, A.O.A. For Colombo (via Suez Canal): Otterburn (str.).

At LIVERPOOL.—For Yokohama: Singapore. For Shanghai: Doune Castle. For Hong Kong: Veronica. For Manila: Estrella, Aurora, Hong Kong. For Singapore: Ellen Lamb. For Batavia and Sourabaya: Konigin Augusta. For Mauritius, Penang, Singapore, and Shanghai: Agamemnon (str.)

At GLASGOW.—For Yokohama (via London and Suez Canal): Tszru (str.). For Singapore: Kinfauns Castle. For Batavia and Sourabaya: County of Lancaster. For Buenos Ayres and Penang: La Plata.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS.

Berth freight to the Eastern ports are without much animation; coal freights from the Northern outports remain unaltered.

Current rates of freight for vessels on the berth:—To Yokohama: 32s. 6d. weight, 35s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 120s. weight, 110s. meast. To Shanghai: 40s. weight, 30s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 90s. weight, 80s. meast. To Hong Kong: 35s. weight, 30s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 80s. weight, 70s. meast. To Batavia: 25s. weight, 30s. meast. To Penang: per steamer, via Suez Canal, 80s. weight, 70s. meast. To Singapore: 30s. weight, 25s. to 30s. meast.; per steamer via Suez Canal, 70s. weight, 60s. meast. To Ceylon: 20s. to 25s. weight, 20s. meast; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 60s. meast. At New York to China; $12 to $15 per ton of 40 cubic feet.

The current quotations for coal, &c., are as follows:—From Wear or Tyne per keel.—For Shanghai: £40. For Hong Kong: £32. For Singapore: £25 10s. For Galle: £24. From Newport, Cardiff, or Swansea per ton. For Yokohama: £1 18s. For Shanghai: £2 2s. For Hong Kong: £1 10s. For Saigon: £1 5s. For Singapore: £1 6s. For Galle: £1 5s. 6d.

CASUALTIES.

The Dunmore, Robertson, which sailed from Glasgow, Jan. 4, for Batavia and Sourabaya, put into Queenstown, Jan. 16, with cargo shifted.

The St. James, Hatfield, from Cardiff to Yokhama, with coals, which put into Liverpool, Jan. 12, with damage, is discharging for repairs; she had at one time eight feet of water in her hold.

A telegram dated Hong Kong Dec. 28, reports Lauderdale, London to Shanghai, dismasted, and making for that port.

Advices from Rotterdam, dated Jan. 19, state that the Anna Margaretha, bound to Samarang, whilst going to sea Jan. 18, got aground, and had been towed back to Zierikzee roads.

The Galveston, which arrived at Galveston Dec. 29, from Hong Kong, split sails during a hurricane from S. E. to W. on the 23rd.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Eleanor, Maxwell, from London to Yokohama, which put into Falmouth, Jan. 5, with loss of water, sailed thence, 16, for her destination.

At Suez, Jan. 13, Sakana (str.), Lobnitz, left for Japan, having passed through the Canal.

At Mauritius, Dec. 1, Nestor (str.), Drenning, from Liverpool, and left for Singapore, China, &c.; 10, Appin, (str.) Russell, from the Clyde, and left, 11, for Singapore; November 20, Senior, Van Det, from Batavia, sailed for Amsterdam, after repairing.

At MARSEILLES.—Jan. 17, Afrique (str.), Rolland, from the Clyde, for Colombo, &c., (via Suez Canal).

At ST. HELENA.—Dec. 13, Sumatra, Buyser, from Batavia, and sailed 14, for Rotterdam.

Off ST. HELENA.—Dec. 13, County of Ayr, from Padang, for Rotterdam; 14, Johannes, from Batavia, for Amsterdam.

THE BEST ROOFING MATERIAL.

BRABY & CO. ALSO MANUFACTURE SHEET AND PERFORATED ZINC, ROOFING FELT, GALVANIZED BUCKETS AND ALL OTHER ZINC AND GALVANIZED IRON GOODS, ILLUSTRATED LISTS OF WHICH WILL BE SENT FREE ON APPLICATION.

F. BRABY & Co.

(LIMITED),

BRABY'S GALVANIZED IRON HOUSES.

FITZROY WORKS, EUSTON ROAD, LONDON · AND AT IDA WHARF, DEPTFORD, S.E.

TRADE MARK ON CAPSULES & CASES

PARTICIPATION CHARENTAISE

LA GRANDE MARQUE COGNAC

LONDON OFFICES (for the trade only)—22 and 23, Great Tower-street.

Mr. V. JOUANNET, Managing Director, Cognac. | Mr. E. VIGNIER, Manager for the U.K., London.

The largest holders of Vintage 1865, and old Brandies of the first growths; which can be obtained from all Wine and Spirit Merchants, or can be procured by them, as large consignments have been lately shipped to all the principal ports of China, Japan, Java, Singapore, and Ceylon.

Blue Label, 6 years; Yellow Label, 11 years; Red Label, 14 years; White Label, from 18 to 40 years.

Samples forwarded free, by Overland Route, to Merchants giving satisfactory references in London.

GELLE FRERES PERFUMERY

CHIEF ESTABLISHMENT, 35, RUE D'ARGOUT, à PARIS.

THE house of GELLE FRERES, celebrated for the superiority of its Perfumery, addresses itself to the fashionable world as much for its essentially hygienic, refreshing, and tonic preparations as for its delicate and distingué perfumes.

STEAM WORKS AT NEUILLY SUR SEINE

SILVER EXHIBITION PARIS 1867 MEDAL

DEPÔT BLUMBERG & Cº 55 Cannon Street West LONDRES.

DÉPÔT H. BRULÉ 27, Rue de l'Hopital BRUXELLES.

1ST CLASS LONDRES 1851 EXHIBITION MEDAL

COMMISSION — ARTICLES SPECIALLY RECOMMENDED — EXPORTATION

REGENERATEUR GELLE FRERES, a superior pomade for preserving, beautifying, and reproducing hair.

EAU D'ALBION for the toilet, an exquisite production from the juice of flowers and aromatic plants.

ARBOQUINA ROSE, superior tooth-powder, composed of carbon, quinine, and Provins roses.

CUCUMBER SOAP for softening the skin, the best of all toilet soaps.

LAIT PROPHYLATIC to remove frekcles and improve the appearance of the skin.

COMPOSITION ZOUAVE, for the instantaneou dyeing of the whiskers and moustache.

COLD CREAM, AU LOTUS DE LYBIE, to soften and refresh the skin.

NIGRITINE VEGETALE, an incomparable dye for the hair and beard, not staining the skin.

IOLET ESSENCE and VIOLET WATER for the handkerchief.

CONCENTRATED EAU DE COLOGNE for the toilet.

PERFUME ESSENCES OF ALL KINDS.

SPECIAL PERFUMERY WITH A BASIS OF GLYCERINE.

SOAP, TOOTH-PASTE AND ELIXIR, POMADE, CREAM FOR THE COMPLEXION AND SKIN, EAU DE TOILETTE.

GLYCERINE ANTI-PELLICULAIRE. DULCIFIED CREAM OF SOAP WITH GLYCERINE FOR THE BEARD.

To be obtained of all the principal Perfumers and Hairdressers in Europe and other parts of the world.

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES.

THIS UNIVERSAL REMEDY now stands the first in public favour and confidence; this result has been acquired by the test of fifty years' experience. These lozenges may be found on sale in every British colony; and throughout India and China they have been highly esteemed wherever introduced. For COUGHS, ASTHMA, and all AFFECTIONS of the THROAT and CHEST, they are the most agreeable and efficacious remedy; they do not contain opium or any other deleterious drug, and may therefore be taken with perfect safety by the most delicate constitution.

Sold in boxes, tins, and bottles of various sizes.

KEATING'S CHILDREN'S WORM TABLETS.

The great remedy for these disorders in Adults and Children can now be administered in the form of A PURELY VEGETABLE SWEETMEAT, at once agreeable and effective.

TESTIMONIAL.

"Batley, Jan 26, 1869.

"SIR,—One of my children, aged two years and four months, being troubled with worms, I was induced to try your Bon Bons. I purchased some from Mr. B. Whitaker, chemist, of Batley, and after taking two only, she voided nine large worms. Two days after another dose, she again voided three more; three of them, the worst, measuring from 8 in. to 9 in. each in length. I consider them a most invaluable remedy, and should be tried by all suffering from worms.

(Signed) "JOHN STENSON.

"Witness, B. WHITAKER.

"To Mr. Keating, London."

Sold in tins and bottles of various sizes.

KEATING'S INSECT DESTROYING POWDER.

This Powder is QUITE HARMLESS TO ANIMAL LIFE, but is unrivalled in destroying Fleas, Bugs, Cockroaches, Beetles, Musquitos, and every other species of insect.

Sold in packets, tins, and bottles of various sizes.

☞ The public are particularly requested to observe that all the above preparations bear the Trade Mark as herein shown.

KEATING, 79, ST. PAUL'S CHURCHYARD. TRADE MARK.

Sold in Hong Kong and Shanghai by Watson and Co; Singapore, Little and Co and Woodford and Schreeder; Ceylon, Piters and Co. and Mailland and Co.; Penang, Gazette office.

CANADIAN NEWS, every Thursday, contains all the latest news from the New Dominion

Price 2d., post free, 3d.

Office: 8, Clement's-lane, Lombard-street, E.C.

Digitized by Google

PORT OF AMOY.

SHIPOWNERS, AGENTS, and COMMANDERS are informed that the Dock Company's establishments at the above port afford every facility, at moderate charges, for REPAIRING and SPARRING VESSELS, cleaning and painting iron ships and steamers.

Their large Granite Dock has 286 feet length on the blocks, and at average spring tides can receive vessels of 16 to 17 feet draught. It has a caisson-gate and a powerful centrifugal steam pump, and an engineer's workshop fitted with lathes and tools, driven by steam; iron and brass foundries, boiler-makers' shop, a large smithy and carpenters and boat-builders' sheds, superintended by resident Europeans.

Their two smaller GRANITE DOCKS can receive, at spring tides, vessels drawing 12 feet.

Spars, timber, and other Dockyard material kept in stock.

Quarters for officers and a DRY GODOWN for stores of vessels under repair.

SINGAPORE DOCKS.

THE PATENT SLIP AND DOCK COMPANY execute SHIPS' REPAIRS of all descriptions in the most efficient manner, under the supervision of European Engineers and Shipwrights.

The DRY DOCK (opened in March, 1859) admits two Vessels at the same time, being over 100 feet in length, with a depth of water ranging to 15½ feet. A second DRY DOCK of larger dimensions will shortly be completed, and available for the heaviest Steamers.

Adjoining the above there is extensive WHARF WAREHOUSE, and other accommodation, including every convenience for coaling Steamers, discharging cargo, and storing goods, together with ample MACHINERY and appliances for repairing iron steamers, &c.

Apply at the offices of Messrs. PATERSON, SIMON and Co., Singapore; or 21, St. Swithin's-lane, Cannon-street, London, E.C.

WM. CLOUGHTON, Managing Director.
New Harbour, Singapore, June, 1868.

FOOCHOW DOCK.

RIVER MIN.

THE above granite floored DOCK, of the following dimensions, viz., Length, 300 feet, breadth at bottom, 40, is capable of receiving vessels drawing 13 to 16 feet, as the state of the tides will allow. The Dock runs dry to the blocks, and is pumped out by steam.

The above premises comprise a large Machine Shop containing a

WHITWORTH'S 12-INCH SCREW CUTTING GAP LATHE, DRILLING AND SCREWING MACHINES;

A LARGE SMITHY, &c., &c., &c.

Large Godowns are on the premises for STOWAGE OF CARGO, &c., &c. A large stock of Woods, Metal, &c., &c., always on hand.

The Dock steam tug Woosung is available at all times to tow vessels to or from sea.

JOHN C. SKEY, Superintendent.

COMPTOIR D'ESCOMPTE DE PARIS.

Incorporated by National Decrees of 7th and 8th March, 1848, and by Imperial Decree of 20th July 1854, and 31st December, 1866.

Recognised by the International Convention of 30th April, 1862.

CAPITAL, fully paid up, £3,200.000.

Reserved Fund ... ... f.20,000,000 ... £800,000

HEAD OFFICE.—14, Rue Bergere, Paris.

AGENCIES AT—Lyons, Marseilles, and Nantes (France), Alexandria (Egypt), Calcutta, Bombay, Hong Kong, Shanghai, Saigon (Cochin China), Bourbon (Reunion), and Yokohama (Japan).

LONDON BANKERS.—The Union Bank of London.

LONDON AGENCY.—13, Leadenhall-stre t, E.C.
MANAGER.—G. Pietsch.
SUB-MANAGER.—Theod. Dromel.

The London Agency grants Drafts and Letters of Credit, and purchases or collects Bills payable at the above-named places.

The Agency will conduct Banking business of every description with the Continent India, China, &c., upon terms to be ascertained at the Office.

UNION INSURANCE SOCIETY OF CANTON.

DIRECTORS IN HONG KONG.
W. NISSEN, Esq.,
J. P. DUNCANSON, Esq.,
P. RYRIE, Esq.,
W. KESWICK, Esq.,
A. A. D. SASSOON, Esq.,
E. A. HITCHCOCK, Esq.,
W. LEMANN, Esq.,
W. H. FOSTER, Jun., Esq.

AGENTS FOR LONDON.
Messrs. DENT, PALMER, and Co.

Marine Risks are accepted by the above Society on goods by first class vessels from the United Kingdom to India, China, Japan, Melbourne, and Sydney, at the current rates of premium.

Claims for Losses and Averages are payable in London, or at the Port of destination, as may be desired.

OFFICES:—
Nos. 9 AND 11, KING'S ARMS YARD, MOORGATE STREET, E.C.

BRITISH-INDIAN EXTENSION TELEGRAPH COMPANY (LIMITED).

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that a CALL of £2 per SHARE on the Shares in this Company is PAYABLE on TUESDAY, the 1st day of February next, at the Company's Bankers, Messrs. Barclay, Bevan, Tritton, and Co., 54, Lombard-street.

The remaining instalments will be due on the days undermentioned, viz.:—

£2 per Share on 1st April, 1870.
£2 per Share on 1st May, 1870.
£1 per Share on 1st June, 1870.

By order,
THOMAS FULLER, Secretary.

95 Palmerston-buildings, Old Broad-street, E.C., Jan. 15, 1870.

ORIENTAL BANK CORPORATION.

Incorporated by Royal Charter, August 30, 1851.

PAID-UP CAPITAL, £1,500,000.

RESERVED FUND, £444,000.

The Corporation grant Drafts and negotiate or collect Bills payable at Bombay, Calcutta, Colombo, Foochow, Hong Kong, Kandy, Madras, Mauritius, Melbourne, Point de Galle, Shanghai, Singapore, Sydney, and Yokohama, on terms which may be ascertained at their office. They also issue Circular Notes for the use of Travellers by the Overland Route.

They undertake the agency of parties connected with India, the purchase and sale of Indian and other Securities, the custody of the same, the receipt of Interest, Dividends, Pay, Pensions, &c., and the effecting of remittances between the above-named dependencies.

They also receive deposits of £100 and upwards for fixed periods, the terms for which may be ascertained on application at their office.

Office hours, Ten to Three; Saturdays, Ten to Two.

Threadneedle-street, London, 1870.

HONG KONG AND SHANGHAI BANKING CORPORATION.

Capital, 5,000,000 dols Paid up, 3,000,00 dols.

COURT OF DIRECTORS AND HEAD OFFICE IN HONG KONG.

LONDON MANAGER—W. H. Vacher, 32, Nicholas-lane
BANKERS.—London and County Bank.

BRANCHES AND AGENCIES:

Hong Kong	Hankow	Singapore
Shanghai	Japan (Yokohama)	Bombay
Foochow	Manila	Calcutta
Ningpo

The Bank grants DRAFTS upon and negotiates or collects BILLS at any of its Agencies or Branches; also receives DEPOSITS for fixed periods, at rates varying with the period of deposit.

THE CHINA AND JAPAN MARINE INSURANCE COMPANY.

CAPITAL,

1,500,000 Taels Shanghai Syees, in 3,000 Shares of 500 Taels each.

PAID-UP CAPITAL,

Tls. 300,000, or Tls. 100 per Share.

COURT OF DIRECTORS.

F. A. Groom, Esq., of Messrs. Glover, Dow, and Co.
W. Jackson, Esq., of the Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London, and China.
R. W. Little, Esq., of Messrs. Little, and Co.
T. Probst, Esq., of Messrs. William Pustau and Co.
J. B. Robertson, Esq., of Messrs. Bull, Purdon, and Co.
J. F. H. Trautmann, Esq., of Messrs. Trautmann & Co.

HEAD OFFICE.—SHANGHAI.

The Company will commence business in January, or as soon after as the Directors shall have been enabled to allot the Shares.

The Company will be a permanent one.

The Net Profits will be divided every year as follows:—30 per cent. will be returned as bonus to all contributors of business, rateably in proportion to the amount of net premia contributed. Interest at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum on the paid-up Capital will be paid to the Shareholders, and the balance of the Net Profits carried to the Reserve Fund.

When the Reserve Fund shall have reached Tls 300,000, the Net Profit will be divided as follows:—30 per cent. to all contributors of business, 20 per cent. to the Reserve Fund, and 50 per cent. to the Shareholders.

When the Reserve Fund shall have reached Tls 500,000, the Net Profits will then be divided as follows:—30 per cent. to all contributors of business, and 70 per cent. to the Shareholders.

ROBERT BENSON AND CO.,
LONDON AGENTS,
10, King's-arms-yard, Moorgate-street.

Jan. 24, 1870.

OSLER'S CRYSTAL GLASS CHANDELIERS.

WALL LIGHTS and LUSTRES for Gas and Candle CHANDELIERS in Bronze and Ormolu
MODERATOR LAMPS and LAMPS for INDIA, TABLE GLASS of all kinds.
ORNAMENTAL GLASS, English and Foreign
Mess, Export, and Furnishing Orders promptly executed.

All articles marked in plain figure
OXFORD STREET, W.

MANUFACTORY AND SHOW ROOMS.—Broad Street, Birmingham.

Established 1807.

RE-ENGAGEMENT WANTED, as BOOKKEEPER AND ENGLISH CORRESPONDENT, by a GENTLEMAN having six years' experience in China and Japan. Satisfactory testimonials as to integrity and ability.

Address, YANGTZE, 13, Buckingham-street, Strand.

C. KRAMER begs to inform the public that he has established himself at this place as NURSERYMAN and SEEDSMAN, and is fully prepared to execute any orders for Japanese plants, bulbs, or seeds for any part of the world.

An experience of four years in this business in foreign parts, two of which has been gained in this country, may ensure the confidence of customers.

Orders must be accompanied by remittances or references, and letters must be addressed to

C. KRAMER,
No. 63, BLUFF, YOKOHAMA.

Liebig Company's Extract of Meat.

AMSTERDAM EXHIBITION, 1869, FIRST PRIZE, being above the Gold Medal. Supplied to the British, French, Prussian, Russian, Italian, Dutch, and other Governments. One pint of fine flavoured Beef-tea at 2½d. Most convenient and economic "stock."

CAUTION.—Only sort warranted genuine by the Inventor, Baron Liebig, whose signature is on every genuine Jar.

Ask for LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT, and NOT for Liebig's Extract of Meat.

PRICE'S BENZODYNE AN

INTERNAL STYPTIC of great value. In Cholera, Diarrhœa, and Dysentery this medicine far surpasses any other, having a peculiar mechanical power of putting a sudden stop to wasting diseases. Chronic Cough and blood-spitting are immediately relieved by it, as well as pain and debility of every kind. Prepared by Mr. PRICE, Analytical Chemist, 2, Lower Seymour-street, and 30, Duke-street, Portman-square, London; and sold by Chemists all over the world, in bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., 11s., and 22s., or in dispensing bottles at 5s., 10s., and 20s. each.

ROBERT COCKS and Co.'s NEW MUSIC. The most POPULAR SONGS and BALLADS of the day.

O, Fair Dove, O, Fond Dove. A. S. Gatty.
Far Away. Miss M. Lindsay (Mrs. J. W. Bliss).
Thy Voice is Near. W. T. Wrighton.
The Daughter of Denmark. Brinley Richards.
I Built a Bridge of Fancies. Annie Fricker.
When Sparrows Build. Miss M. Lindsay (Mrs. J. W. Bliss.)
Happy be thy Dreams. J. R. Thomas.
Far on the Deep Blue Sea. By Ditto.
O, ye Tears! and Kathleen Aroon. Franz Abt.
God bless the Prince of Wales. Brinley Richards.

Each 3s.

THE NEW DANCES for the PIANOFORTE, finely illustrated.

Happy Dreams Waltz. J. Pridham. 4s.
The Suez Quadrille. Adam Wright. 3s.
Little Nelly's Quadrille. A. S. Gatty. 3s.
Twilight Polka. Composed by Adam Wright. 3s.
Carte Blanche Galop. Composed by J. Buchanan. 3s.
Loch Katrine Quadrilles. By J. Buchanan. 4s.
Le Lac d'Azur. Polka Mazurka. By A. Delasaurie. 3s.
Selina Mazurka. Adam Wright. 4s.
The Trossachs Quadrille. J. Pridham. Solo and Duets, 4s. each.
Sappho. Valse Brillante. M. Graziana. 4s.

THE ELEGANT BALLAD of the day is FAR AWAY. By Miss M. Lindsay (Mrs. J. W. Bliss). The same for the pianoforte, by Carl Luini, composer of "Home they Brought her Warrior Dead," "Resignation," "Rest," "Too Late! Too Late!" "Oh, When wilt Thou Come unto Me?" &c. Each 3s.

MR. W. T. WRIGHTON'S NEW SONGS and BALLADS.—"Thy Voice is Near," "The Music of her Voice," "In the Downhill of Life," and "Morn on the Meadow." Each 3s.

London: Published only by Robert Cocks and Co., New Burlington-street, and of all musicsellers.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—HEALTHY HOMES.—Nine-tenths of our ailments might be altogether prevented, or directly cured, if the first faulty action were set right. This great end is accomplished with wonderful certainty and safety by Holloway's Pills, which are adapted to the stout as well as the frail, and are equally suited to every constitution and climate. They purify the blood, that seat of life and source of health, which, in its reviving streams, diffuses regularity and vigour throughout the system, and gives every organ its proper natural function. Many stomachic maladies, though simple and curable by Holloway's treatment at their outset, become through neglect or mismanagement both very troublesome in their progress and very serious in their results.

Digitized by Google

NAGASAKI PATENT SLIP.

THIS SLIP IS NOW AVAILABLE FOR DOCKING SHIPS OF 1,200 TONS OR UNDER.

ALL WORK CONNECTED THEREWITH, AS ALSO IN THE

SHIPWRIGHTS, JOINERS, BOAT BUILDERS, SPAR MAKERS', AND GENERAL DEPARTMENTS

IS UNDER

THE SUPERINTENDENCE OF EXPERIENCED EUROPEANS.

The Slip has been most substantially built, in a perfectly landlocked and secure position, and has been pronounced by competent authority to be equal to any existing construction of the same kind.

Charge for three days' use of the Slip, $1 per ton, and all labour, material, &c., supplied on moderate terms. For further information apply to

GLOVER AND CO., MANAGERS,

NAGASAKI, JAPAN.

OVERLAND ROUTE.—The PENINSULAR AND ORIENTAL STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY book Passengers and receive Cargo and Parcels by their steamers for—

	From Southampton.	From Marseilles.
GIBRALTAR ...	Every Saturday, at 2 P.M.	—
MALTA.....	,, ,,	—
ALEXANDRIA.	,, ,,	Every Sunday, at 7 A.M.
ADEN	,, ,,	,, ,,
*BOMBAY	,, ,,	,, ,,
GALLE	Saturday, Dec. 25, 2 P.M. And every alternate Saturday thereafter.	Sunday, Jan. 2, 7 A.M. And every alternate Sunday thereafter.
MADRAS
CALCUTTA ...
PENANG
SINGAPORE ...
CHINA
JAPAN
AUSTRALIA ...	Saturday, Dec. 25, 2 P.M. And every fourth Saturday thereafter.	Sunday, Jan. 2, 7 A.M. And every fourth Sunday thereafter.

And all ports touched at by the British India Steam Navigation Company's steamers.

* The following reduced rates will be charged to Bombay:—

From Southampton... £72 first class; £45 second lasse.
From Marseilles ... 70 ,, 43 ,,

exclusive of transit through Egypt. A corresponding reduction will be made in the rates from Bombay to Europe.

For further particulars apply at the Company's Offices, 122, Leadenhall-street, London; or Oriental-place, Southampton.

OVERLAND ROUTE VIA MARSEILLES.—SERVICES MARITIMES DES MESSAGERIES IMPERIALES OF FRANCE.—FRENCH MAIL STEAM PACKETS LEAVE MARSEILLES AS FOLLOWS:—

23 January
19 February
19 March
16 April
14 May

For Alexandria, Aden, Mauritius, Seychelles, Reunion, Point de Galle (Ceylon), Pondicherry, Madras, Calcutta, Singapore, Batavia, Saigon, Hong Kong, Shanghai, and Japan.

9th, 19th, and 29th of every month for Alexandria.

For Passage, Freight, and information, apply to B. W. and H. HORNE, 4, Moorgate-street, London; G. H. FLETCHER and Co., Liverpool; at the offices of the Services Maritimes des Messageries Imperiales in Paris, Lyons, Bordeaux, and Marseilles; or to Smith and Co., Rotterdam.

 Passengers eastward of Suez securing their berths in London are entitled to the conveyance of their luggage free to Marseilles

---

ROYAL MAIL ROUTE, via PANAMA, for NORTH and SOUTH PACIFIC, Central America, Japan, and China.—The ROYAL MAIL STEAM PACKET COMPANY'S ATLANTIC STEAMERS now run through from Southampton to Colon (Aspinwall), by which arrangement passengers for the above localities will be conveyed to the Isthmus of Panama in the vessel in which they embark at Southampton.

Passengers and goods are booked

For the South Pacific, Central America, West Coast of Mexico, California, British Columbia ... ... By steamer from Southampton on 2nd and 17th of each month.

Japan and China... ... 17th of each month.

For further particulars apply to

J. M. LLOYD, Secretary.

Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, 55, Moorgate-street London, E.C.

MAIL ROUTE FOR CALIFORNIA, JAPAN AND CHINA, VIA PANAMA.

THE PACIFIC MAIL STEAM SHIP COMPANY despatch their splendid side-wheel steamers from NEW YORK on the 5th and 21st, and from PANAMA on the 13th and 29th of every month for SAN FRANCISCO (calling at ACAPULCO and MANZANILLA en route), thence to YOKOHAMA, HIOGO, NAGASAKI, SHANGHAI, and HONG KONG, on the 1st of every month. Passengers from England may connect with this line at New York by any of the various lines of steamers from Liverpool, Glasgow, Southampton, or Havre.

Passengers by this line are less than ten days in the tropics.

SANDWICH ISLANDS and BRITISH COLUMBIA.—The steamers of the North Pacific Transportation Company leave San Francisco at regular intervals for those countries.

H. STARR and Co., Agents, 22, Moorgate-street, London.

UNION PACIFIC RAILWAY.—THROUGH LINE from NEW YORK to SAN FRANCISCO.

San Francisco, in 18 days from England.
Japan ..... in 38 ,, ,,
China ..... in 44 ,, ,,

Passengers for California and intermediate points on this road may now be booked through from England at the established rates of fare; and from San Francisco to Japan, China, &c., by the magnificent steamers of the Pacific Mail Company.

For Rates, Tickets, &c., apply to H. STARR and Co., Agents, 22, Moorgate-street, London.

NEW ROUTE TO CHINA AND JAPAN, VIA LIVERPOOL.

THE WEST INDIA AND PACIFIC STEAM SHIP COMPANY (Limited) sign through bills of lading for goods to Yokohama Nagasaki, Hong Kong, and Shanghai, via San Francisco, by the Pacific Mail Steam Ship Company's new line of mail steamers from that port.

Passengers will find excellent accommodation, and the fares more reasonable than by any other route.

For terms, &c., apply to the Agents, J. M. CURRIE, Esq., 21, Quai d'Orleans, Havre, or 7, Rue Scribe, Paris; or at the Company's Offices, 117, Leadenhall-street, London, and The Temple, Dale-street, Liverpool.

ARTHUR B. FORWOOD, Managing Director.

CHINA and JAPAN.—The following splendid first-class SHIPS will be despatched as under:—

Port	Ship.	Class.	Dock.	Last Shipping Day.
Shanghai ...	Thyatira.....	A1 17 yr.	E.I.D.	Jan. 25
Do.	Geraint	A1 14 yr.	E.I.D.	Feb. 10
Hong Kong	Hopewell ...	A1 13 yr.	W.I.D.	Jan. 26
Do.	Wm. Fruing	A1 13 yr.	W.I.D.	To follow
Foochow ...	Wylo	A1 16 yr.	E.I.D.	With des.
Yokohama, Kanagawa	Lota	A1 13 yr.	E.I.D.	With des.

For Freight or Passage apply to KILLICK, MARTIN, and Co., 10, George-yard, Lombard-street, E.C.

CHINA AND JAPAN.

THE following high-classed Clipper VESSELS will be despatched as under:—

Port.	Ship.	Class.	Dock.	Last Shipping Day.
Shanghai ...	J.R.Worcstr.	A1 12 yr.	E.I.D.	With des.
Yokohama (Kanagawa)	Espiegle	A1 14 yr.	E.I.D.	With des.
Nagasaki & Chefoo ...	Zohrab (new)	A1 9 yr.	E.I.D.	With des.

For Freight or Passage apply to NORRIS and JOYNER, 60, Cornhill, E.C.

SINGAPORE, CHINA, AND JAPAN.

ROBERTSON and CO. will despatch the following first-class clipper VESSELS:—

Destination.	Ships.	Class.	Dock.	Last Shipping Day.
Singapore, Hong Kg., Shanghai, Yokohama	Erl King, s.s. (via Suez Cnl	B. A1 ...	E.I.D.	Feb. 12
Shanghai,...	Juanpore ...	Brocklebank...	W.I.D.	With des.
Do.	Hindostan ...	AA1.....	W.I.D.	To follow
Hong Kong	Maiden Qn.	A1 14 yr.	W.I.D.	With des.
Hong Kong, Amoy, and Foochowfoo	Devana ..	A1 13 yr.	W.I.D.	With des.
Yokohama (Kanagawa)	John Milton	A1 14 yr.	W.I.D.	With des.

For Freight and Passage apply at 5, Newman's-court, Cornhill, London; or York Chambers, 55, Kingstreet, Manchester.

JOHN C. CAMPBELL will despatch the following splendid VESSELS:—

Destinatn	Ships.	Tns.	Class.	Dock.	Sailing about
Colombo ..	RiverIndus	1045	AA1	W.I.D.	Jan. 25

No. 22, Great St. Helen's, E.C.

JAVA AND JAPAN.

MORS LE BLANCH and CO. intend despatching the following first-class clipper VESSELS:—

Destination.	Ships.	Class.	Dock.	Date.
	From LONDON.
Yokohama and Hiogo.	Harbottle ...	A1	E.I.D.	Jan. 31
Batavia and Sourabaya	Vesta	A1	Lond.	Feb. 1

For Freight, &c., apply at 19 to 21, The Albany, Liverpool; or 7, East India-avenue, Leadenhall-street, London.

To follow the "Granville." Will meet with immediate despatch.

DIRECT for COLOMBO, the magnificent clipper ship RIVER INDUS, AA1. 1,045 tons register; G. SHEARER, Commander; West India Docks. This splendid vessel, built in 1868, is well known for her rapid passages and the good order in which she always delivers her cargo, and from her high class can be strongly recommended to shippers of fine goods.

For Freight or Passage apply to LIVINGSTON, HOLDING, and BRIGGS, 31, Great St. Helen's, Bishopsgate-street, E.C.; or to JOHN C. CAMPBELL, 22, Great St. Helen's, Bishopsgate-street, E.C.

To Sail Feb. 1.

FOR HONG KONG, the well-known clipper SCAWFELL, A1 13 years, 826 tons register; R. THOMSON, Commander; East India Docks.

For Freight or Passage, apply to SHAW, MAXTON, and Co., 2, Royal Exchange-buildings, London, E.C.

FOR SHANGHAI, the well-known clipper CLARA, A1 13 years, 938 tons register; THOMAS POWER, Commander; East India Docks. Has a full poop, with superior accommodation for passengers.

For Freight or Passage apply to SHAW, MAXTON, and Co., 2, Royal Exchange-buildings, London, E.C.

Printed for the Proprietors by WOODFALL and KINDER, Milford-lane, Strand, W.C., and published by JAMES WEST, at the Office of the "LONDON AND CHINA TELEGRAPH," 2, Cowper's-court, Cornhill, in the parish of St. Michael's, in the City of London.—Monday, Jan. 24, 1870.

Digitized by Google

The London and China 新聞紙 Telegraph.

JAPAN HERALD, AND JOURNAL OF THE EASTERN ARCHIPELAGO.

PUBLISHED ON THE ARRIVAL OF THE FORTNIGHTLY ENGLISH, AND MONTHLY FRENCH MAILS FROM CHINA JAPAN &c.

IN CONNECTION WITH THE "LONDON AND CHINA EXPRESS. A SUMMARY OF NEWS FOR THE OUTWARD MAILS

VOL. XII.—No. 341.] LONDON, MONDAY, FEB. 7, 1870. [Price 9d., with Sup. 1s. 3d.—Sub. 30s. per ann., postage included. Sup. 12s. extra.

Latest Advices.

—o—

PORTS.	OUTWARD. From London.	OUTWARD. Arrived out.	HOMEWARD. Received this day.
JAPAN — Yokohama	Oct. 22	Dec. 18	Dec. 19
Yedo	—	—	Dec. 18
Osaka and Hiogo	—	—	Dec. 14
Hakodadi
Nagasaki	—	—	Dec. 17
CHINA — Peking
Tien-tsin	—	—	Dec. 14
Chefoo
New-chwang
Hankow	—	—	Dec. 17
Kiu-kiang	—	—	Dec. 18
Chin-kiang
Shanghai	Oct. 28	Dec. 17	Dec. 21
Ningpo
Foochow	Oct. 28	Dec. 17	Dec. 20
Formosa
Amoy	—	—	Dec. 22
Swatow	—	—	Dec. 23
Hong Kong	Nov. 5	Dec. 19	Dec. 28
Canton	—	—	Dec. 27
Macao	—	—	Dec. 27
PHILIPPINES— Manilla	Oct. 28	Dec. 16	Dec. 21
COCHIN-CHINA— Saigon	—	—	Dec. 26
SIAM — Bangkok	—	—	Dec. 27
BORNEO—Labuan	—
Sarawak		—	Dec. 28
JAVA — Batavia	—	—	Dec. 29
Samarang	—	—	Dec. 27
Sourabaya	—	—	Dec. 26
MALACCA STRAITS— Singapore	Nov. 25	Dec. 28	Jan. 4
Penang	Dec. 8	Jan 5	Jan. 6
CEYLON—Galle	Dec. 17	Jan. 11	Jan. 12
Colombo	Dec. 17	Jan. 12	Jan. 12

THE MAILS, &c.

—o—

The present mail is delivered on its due date. The next inward mail, due here on Monday next, should bring the following dates:—Yokohama, Dec. 26; Shanghai, Dec 29; Hong Kong, Jan. 4; Singapore, Jan 12; Galle, Jan. 20. Telegrams via Galle in advance of the succeeding mail leaving Hong Kong Jan. 11, were received on the 1st inst., but were mostly unintelligible. By the Pacific mail route we have advices from Yokohama nearly a fortnight later than those by the P. and O. mail.

List of Passengers.

—o—

PASSENGERS INWARD.

Per Pacific Mail Company's steamer America, arrived at San Francisco Jan. 23.—For San Francisco: Lieut. Commander Hooker (U.S. Navy), William Rhodes (U.S. Navy), J. Wilson (U.S. Navy), D. W. H. Jones (U.S. Navy), Paymaster Alley (U.S. Navy), J. J. Ray, W. Finley, G. E. Migley, J. McLeavy Brown, D. R. Magarth, C. Grau, Michael Branking, Charles Price, Lieut. Commander W. G. Dana (U.S. Navy), M. Gillet Gill, William Robinet, H. B. H. Wade, Frederick Hanna, James Pierce, Richard Griffith, George W. Eggleston, Charles Jones, and 713 Chinese in the steerage. For New York: Henry King, Jonathan Parsons, J. A. Murphy, C. H. Kimberley, T. Williams, J. J. Woodington, Mr. and Mrs. Hart, Mr. Hanson, H. Joseph, Capt. T. Neil, Edward Cunningham and family. For Europe: Mr. Bessen, Capt. A. S. Yost, Capt. H. Keiting, Robert V. Gratain, Frank R. Schayer. Eugene von Denherd, A. Shuttmurst, Harry Wright, Mrs. T. G. Wright, Mrs. Robert Schmidt, and Mr. Aachen.

By this mail to Marseilles, per P. and O. steamer Nyanza, arrived Feb. 4.—From Shanghai: Mr. Collinson From Hong Kong: Mr. and Mrs. Newton, child, and servant Mr. Lemann. From Singapore: Mr. McLean, Mr. Wenley, Capt. Stewart, Mr. Oldham, Mr. Tinney, and three second-class passengers. From Ceylon: Capt. and Mrs. Galway.

To Southampton, per P. and O. steamer Poonah, expected to arrive Feb. 11.—List not to hand.

By last Bombay mail to Suez, per P. and O. steamer China, arrived Jan. 22.—From Hong Kong: Mr. G. H. Lea.

PASSENGERS OUTWARD.

Per steamer Agamemnon (Holt's line), sailed from Liverpool 30th Jan —To Singapore: Mrs. Stolze. To Hong Kong: Mr. H. Hadlow. To Shanghai: Rev. A. and Mrs. Elwin.

Per P. and O. steamer Ripon, from Southampton, Feb. 5.—To Hong Kong: Mr. G. F. Johnson. Mr. and Mrs F. W. White, Mr. Middleship, Mr. P. R. Smith. To Ceylon: Miss Allen, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Brownrigg and two children, Miss King.

Per P. and O. steamer Nyanza, from Marseilles, Feb. 13.—To Shanghai: Mr. and Mrs J. Crawford. To Hong Kong: Mr. J. Lachlan, Rev. Dr. Legge, Mr. Patterson. To Singapore: Rev. Mr. Copland. To Penang: Mr. D. C. Presgrave. To Ceylon: Mr. G. Goodeve, Mr. A. Wiggin.

Per P. and O. steamer Bangalore, from Southampton, Feb. 19.—To Hong Kong: Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Perkis. To Singapore: The Bishop of Labuan, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. G. Kemp, Mrs. Chambers, Miss Woolley. To Ceylon: Mr. Jeffery, Capt. Sharpe, Mr. F. Murray.

Per P. and O. steamer Tanjore, from Marseilles, Feb. 27.—To Shanghai: Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Parker. To Hong Kong: Mr. T. H. Ballance, Mr. R. A. Houston. To Singapore: Mr. and Mrs. Brooke.

Summary of News from the Far East.

—o—

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

From this port we have advices to Dec. 19; the outward mai of Oct. 22 reached Yokohama on Dec. 18. The Japan Times furnishes the following summary of news:—

The capital is perfectly quiet, and we have heard no more of the threatened disturbances, to be created by Satsuma and others, so industriously circulated when we wrote last. The country and Government remain in their unhappy condition of poverty; the crops this year have been far from satisfactory, the necessaries of life increase in value and a good deal of distress is apparent. Foreign trade, too, languishes, and must necessarily do so, until Japan recovers from the effect of the war, and the waste and loss it occasioned are repaired.

The Government appear anxious to develop the mineral resources of the country; Mr. Erasmus Gower, their mining engineer, has received orders to proceed to the examination of certain mines in the Inland Sea. But they are, naturally enough, extremely averse to entertain the proposals of adventurers who want to "exploiter" the country; (we have no English work to describe the process) and will not work by any means in that comprehensive and extensive way which alone can speedily extricate them from the impecuniosity which so presses on them.

The Japan Gazette says:—The sale of foreign steamers has been more active of late. An American built beam engine, paddle-wheel steamer, the Nautilus, has been sold for $210,000—the payment extending over five years. The Prince of Tosa is the buyer. From having been one of the most violent of the anti-foreign party, he has become one of the most active dealers with us of all the princes. No one now mentions his name, but as a friend of foreigners. And he has taken one step in advance of all his noble brethren, in advertising in a foreign newspaper the name and address of his sole agent for negotiating with foreigners.

A case that has just been tried in the British Consular Court, by virtue of its temporary jurisdiction over Austrian subjects, has been one of some interest. We need not give the details; enough that it was a suit by a Japanese builder against an Austrian subject named Jelovitz, who, after disgusting two other contractors by his continued evasion of stipulated payments, had induced the third to finish the works for a certain sum, also payable in instalments, rather than sacrifice the timber he had supplied on credit to his predecessors. Jelovitz failed as before, to fulfil his engagements, ultimately giving a promissory note to pay a lump sum. When this fell due it was dishonoured, and the plaintiff had to sue for the payment. The evidence on both sides not only clearly proved Jelovitz's liability, but showed as clearly that, even after paying the sum claimed, he would have got his buildings for considerably less than prime cost. The verdict was, of course, in favour of the Japanese, and public opinion is naturally unanimous in regret that the defendant's conduct can only be punished by exposure. In the French Court a similar case has also been decided against another dishonest foreigner. A man named Weuve, just such another "merchant" as Jelovitz, got some Japanese to trust him with silkworms' eggs for sale on commission on their account, pledged them as security for a loan of less than half their value, pocketed the money, and when asked for them by the owners, who had effected their sale themselves, declined to give them up, except on receipt of an enormous sum for "expenses" and "commission"—the fact being that the eggs were already shipped. Of course a Consul and jury of Weuve's countrymen have ordered him to pay the estimated value of the eggs, and again public opinion regrets that no personal punishment can be inflicted on the culprit. These suttlers to the army of commerce do more mischief than can readily be imagined, and one cannot but chafe at their being protected by our flags as effectually as honest merchants.

Digitized by Google

And, while disclaiming, as we do most truthfully and earnestly, any pretentions of such adventurers to be "merchants" of Yokohama, we must take the same opportunity of entering the same protest in the case of the miserable wretch Boyd, of whose horrible murder we received particulars last mail. He is described in the home papers, most inaccurately, as a "Japan merchant" and a man of some consideration here. We must respect the common prejudice expressed in the proverb which tells us to speak nothing but good of the dead, and refrain from writing of him what all men here know; but we must ask our home readers to disabuse themselves of the notion that the merchants of Yokohama have, in any one particular, anything in common with the late Mr. Boyd.

The steamer HongQue had a narrow escape from burning on her way up to Hakodadi. A fire broke out in the cook-house, and threatened to spread rapidly, but it was got under by the strenuous exertions of the officers and crew. She had a stormy passage, and was forced to put into Sendai Bay for shelter.

A gigantic government scheme is said to be under way, which will affect (if adhered to) the whole trade, both native and foreign, throughout the country; within one month after the 1st day of the Japanese New Year we may, says the Hiogo Herald, expect to see changes that will cause results the most important and novel to the whole Kingdom, ever yet known within the memory of man. A few of the very few foreigners residing at Hiogo are either leaving or preparing so to do, mostly for the reason that they cannot contrive to do anything whereby to earn an honest crust.

The following is from the Japan Herald:—Indications of approaching ferment still continue to manifest themselves; at Osaka we learn that lead is enquired for, and has risen in price. There is little-doubt but that it is wanted for bullet-making purposes, as it is from the yashikis, not the merchants, that the enquiries come.

LATER ADVICES VIA SAN FRANCISCO.

The Pacific mail steamship America reached San Francisco on Jan. 23 from Japan, with advices from Yokohama to Dec. 31.

Mr. J. McLeavy Brown, Chief Secretary of the Burlingame mission, came by the America, en route to Washington, as a bearer of the ratified treaty between the United States and China. The America brought 2,900 packages of tea, 86 of silk and 1,069 of merchandise for New York, and a number of passengers, a list of whom will be found in the usual place.

The New York papers give the following items of news, which however must as usual be received with caution:—

Mr. Hulay, late Inspector-General of Customs, has concluded a loan of £1,000,000 sterling to the Mikado's Government to build a railroad from Yedo to Kioto. He represents that several English capitalists have effected a loan of £2,000,000 more on the public works. The British Legation rendered him no assistance in the negotiations.

The Government has informed the Foreign Ministers it will coin new Japanese dollars as soon as it can get workmen from the English Mint. The new dollar will be a trifle finer and heavier than the Mexican dollar. In time the circulation will expand sufficiently to take the place of the old coin.

The city of Yokohama is in a demoralised condition. There is no municipality and no police. Murders, riots and assaults are frequent. Trade is suspended during the holidays.

A destructive fire has occurred at the mint at Osaka, which will probably delay the mintage of the new coin.

The telegraph line from Yokohama to Yedo is nearly completed.

Several rice riots have occurred in the interior.

A little vessel named the Paris Port de Mer has arrived here from Paris. She will return direct to the same city by way of the Suez Canal.

The import trade is in a more disastrous state of stagnation, if possible, than at the last advices. The only activity noticed is in the shipment of teas to America.

Silk continues dull, in consequence of the discouraging advices from abroad. The arrivals of silk the past fortnight were 250 bales, and the settlements were about the same. The stock in Yokohama is about 2,000 bales

Teas steady. The settlements were 12,000 piculs, principally for the New York market. Prices have advanced $1 to $2 per picul since the last quotations. The stock has been reduced, and the amount now in Yokohama does not exceed 3,000 piculs.

Exchange on London, 4s. 6¼d.; on Paris, 562 francs.

The british barque Hercules, bound to this port with a cargo of rice, foundered Dec. 9, off Formosa. The steward was drowned. The remainder of the crew were rescued by the barque Hong Kong.

The ship Rifleman sailed for Boston Dec. 4 with 9,000 packages of tea.

NAGASAKI.

A large fire has occurred at the back of the old Chinese Guild; it spread with great rapidity, till Captain Racchia, of the Principessa Clotilde, landed a party of sailors and pulled down a lot of houses to cut off the line of fire. It is thought, however, that the dilapidated hovels that have been destroyed are well out of the way.

SHANGHAI.

Dates by this mail are up to 21st Dec. The P. and O. mail of the 22nd Oct. arrived on the 12th Dec., and the French of 28th on 17th. London telegrams, via Kiachta, were up to 23rd Nov. The text of the New Treaty Convention had found its way into the Shanghai papers, in a similar form to that published in our issue of 17th Jan.

The third number of the Customs Gazette shows a marked improvement on the general "get up." The trade of Shanghai is summed up as follows:—The import of Grey Shirtings for the quarter shows a falling off nominally of 25 per cent (this may have been caused by some undeclared cargoes); that of T-Cloths is 48 per cent. in excess of last year, while Drills show an advance of 200 per cent. and Jeans of 400 per cent. In Damasks there is a marked decrease, and Fancy Goods generally exhibit a falling off in supplies. Lustres are also 25 per cent. less than last year. The other figures will be seen on reference to the report. Iron shows an increase on last year of cent per cent., Lead is 33 per cent and Tin 100 per cent. over last season. On the other hand, only 663 piculs of Tin plates were imported, against 4,196 piculs last year. Taking the figures now before us, and combining them with those of the two former quarters of 1869, we find that the total import of Grey Shirtings from 1st January to 30th September 1869, was 3,994,477 pieces, against 3,435,889 pieces last year, and that the re-exports of the same goods for a similar period were 2,906,957 pieces, against 2,898,790 in 1868. As regards T-Cloths, we find that the imports from 1st January to 30th September, 1869, were 2,276,636 pieces, against 1,186,525 in 1868, and that the re-exports of these goods for the same period were 1,680,735 pieces, against 974,738 pieces in 1868.

Mr. H. N. Lay has addressed a letter from Yokohama to the Supreme Court Gazette, which is a sort of defence much better left alone, as the feeling which existed between him and the merchants in 1852 to 1860 has been forgotten; most of the people of that day have retired from China and its trade. In one paragraph Mr. Lay says:—

The simple truth is—and there can be no harm at this distance of time in stating it—that the whole question from 1854 to 1862 was in fact a trial of strength between an opposition, championed by the two leading firms, and the Customs as an institution. They decreed its overthrow, and would listen to nothing less. To offers of explanation or co-operation they turned their back; our annihilation was the sentence recorded, and against it they would suffer no appeal. Such was my position. That I should accept their permit of self-extinction was scarcely to be expected, and accordingly I held my own, and all the more tenaciously from the conviction that if my administration was governed by certain principles, ultimate triumph was certain, whatever the early misapprehension and opposition encountered.

The following is from the North China Herald of Dec. 21:—Our readers are aware that Sir Rutherford Alcock called at Nanking during his trip up the Yangtsze, and commenced negotiations with the Viceroy respecting the Nanking missionary troubles. We are now informed that Mr. Medhurst has been commissioned to open communication with H. E. Ma on the subject, with a view of ascertaining from him how far he is carrying out his promises of speedy redress made to Sir R. Alcock, and to report the result to Mr. Wade. The missionaries have handed in memoranda, upon affidavit, of their losses, and these have likewise been submitted to Ma. In the meantime we hear that the sum claimed by the Jesuit missionaries as compensation for their losses at Nanking, has been received at the French Consulate General, Shanghai; a plot of land valued at $1,000 will also be ceded. The payment, however, has been accepted under reserve of every other satisfaction, the principle of which has been already admitted by the Chinese Government. We shall be glad to hear that equally complete reparation has been exacted by the British authorities; and especially that the more important point of punishing the rioters has been insisted on.

The French frigate Venus, from Hong Kong, with the Admiral on board, has arrived at Woosung, and is, we believe, to accompany M. Rochechouart on his projected expedition up the Yangtsze, to inquire into the Szechuen missionary troubles. H.I.M.'s Duplelx and Scorpion steamed away yesterday to join the Venus at Woosung. The Admiral will only accompany them as far as the place destined for the disembarking of an expedition which M. Rochechouart intends taking into Szechuen, and will then leave for Saigon, to assume the Governorship of that colony, lately vacated by Admiral Ohier.

Digitized by Google

The pro forma sale of the Shanghai Club building took place, when it was knocked down to Mr. Groom, on behalf of the Recreation Fund, for Tls. 35,000. The complicated relationship between the two bodies of shareholders is thus at length cleared up. It only remains now for terms to be arranged between the new shareholders and the members. This, we hope, will soon be done.

It is a little remarkable that we have received news of Mr. T. T. Cooper simultaneously from each end of the districts he is exploring. A correspondent writes us from Hankow that a letter has been received there dated Tatsienloo, 7th October, announcing that tidings had been transmitted thither of Mr. Cooper's detention at a village called Jugga, on the frontier of the southern portion of Thibet. The letter stated, moreover, that the chieftains of the neighbourhood were prepared to dispute Mr. Cooper's further advance by force of arms if necessary; and that two of his party had returned to India with letters. Fortunately, however, to prevent any anxiety this statement might have created, we have a letter from Mr. Cooper himself, dated Sudya, Nov. 5, in which he announces his intention of starting only ten days later, in company with a chief whom he has bribed with Rs. 1,000 to pass him to Bathang. So it is evident the first report is false.

In our last issue we noticed the intended departure of Mr Cunningham, of Messrs. Russell and Co., and that he would be succeeded by Mr. Warden, who also takes the Presidentship of the Shanghai Steam Company.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

Sir Rutherford Alcock has gone south after visiting the new port Wuhu on the Yangtsze, he was accompanied there by H.M.S. Adventure, a steam troop-ship, and being in the neighbourhood of Nanking, visited the Viceroy of this province, Ma, who took the opportunity of insulting the British Minister, by keeping him waiting outside, and when remonstrated with, the attendants made a noise sufficient to prevent his being heard. These sort of affairs are always premediated by Chinese officials. It is understood also that Ma refused any redress to the missionaries lately attacked, who had their lives jeopardised and their property plundered or destroyed. So much for the newly inaugurated peace policy, and the absence of a material force to demand and obtain redress. This is another proof, if proof were wanting, of the inability of negotiating with Chinese officials without the presence of material force. Until a squadron be kept at some convenient point on the coast of China, it is quite useless asking or expecting any equitable dealing from Chinese authorities. The present policy, if continued, must sooner or later bring about a dead lock, involving as heretofore an army and navy to bring matters to a proper state. It is reported that the Burlingame expedition has got a two years' prolongation of life in the shape of a subsidy from Mr. Hart of one hundred thousand taels, payable out of the tonnage dues.

Mr. Hart, Inspector-General of Customs, has arrived here from the North, on a tour of inspection to all the Treaty ports, and doubtless will find much to occupy him for the next few months.

Mr. Hart has been elevated to the rank of a Red Button Mandarin, that being the highest rank but one in the Chinese Civil Service.

The other fashionable arrivals here are General "Tom Thumb" and suite. They came by the American Mail, on the 7th inst., from San Francisco. The Chinese seem to take much interest in the diminutive hero, and follow his carriage about in numbers. I have not heard that any of them were sufficiently enthusiastic to pay for admission to the Lyceum, but they have announced a reception at the Chinese Theatre.

There have been two cases of piracy in this neighbourhood—hitherto rare—one on board a junk at Worsung, and another junk near Nangpo. A case of piracy and murder is also reported of a British ship near Hong Kong, when the captain and a portion of the crew were murdered.

I enclose, or rather forward you, a copy of the new Treaty, the latest effort of diplomacy at Peking, and, as usual, all the good things fall to the lot of the Chinese. The new regulations do not find favour with the merchants, as the increased payments on imports is a certain loss, with only an uncertain gain. It remains to be proved whether the local officials will give up their imposts; most people doubt it. The extra duties on silk and opium have taken merchants by surprise. However, the Treaty may never be carried out, as the other Treaty Powers must agree to it as well as England—a clever ruse of the Chinese, and a neat way of shelving any question of the future, but our sagacious diplomatists never see through these dodges until it is too late.

TIENTSIN.

Advices from this port, dated Dec. 14, state that the Peiho was blocked up with ice from Tientsin down to the Taku Forts. The tug-boat Pathfinder was frozen up in Nine Fort Reach. The weather had been very cold and stormy. No vessels left in port; business at a standstill. The steamer Nanking arrived on the 11th Dec., and delivered cargo outside of Taku in boats. Market for American goods dull and declining. Drills, best marks, Tls. 3.8.5 to Tls. 3.8.8; other marks, Tls. 3.7.5 to Tls. 3.8.0. Grey Shirtings had advanced to Tls. 2.2.5 for best 8-4 lbs. eagle chops.

HONG KONG.

The dates are to Dec. 28. The outward mail of Nov. 5 arrived out on Dec. 19. Telegrams only reach to Nov. 25.

The Adventure arrived on Dec 22. Among the passengers were Sir Rutherford and Lady Alcock, and Miss Lowder, and Messrs. Connolly (secretary to Legation), Lowder (private secretary), Boyce, Board of Works. The Adventure left at once for Canton with Sir Rutherford on board. We conclude from this that no kind of reception was given to Sir Rutherford at Hong Kong. He was to leave by the present mail for London.

A fire took place at Shameen, Canton, on the afternoon of Dec. 17th, which caused considerable alarm in the foreign settlement. Some builders' sheds at the rear of Messrs A. Heard and Co.'s new house, next door to that occupied by Messrs. Jardine, Matheson an dCo., caught fire about one P.M., at a time when, owing to the fact that the races were in progress, almost every one of the foreign residents was absent from the site. Thanks, however, to the energetic exertions of the few persons who hurried at once to the spot, and to the subsequent assistance lent by the Chinese fire-engines and the officers and crew of H.I C.M. gunboat Feiloong, the conflagration was got under with comparatively slight loss, only the outbuildings having suffered.

The following is the account, duly certified, of the average amount of bank notes in circulation and specie in reserve in Hong Kong, during the month ending 30th November, 1869:—

Banks.	Average amount.	Specie in reserve.
Oriental Bank	$701,377	$233,793
Chartered Mercantile	664,546	250,000
Chartered	398,050	133,000
Hong Kong	1,005,201	800,000
Total...	$2,769,174	$1,416,793

The Hong Kong Community have subscribed $2,700 towards the Consul Gibson memorial fund.

The Trade Report says:—The bearing of the Revised Treaty on the trading facilities of the colony has been the subject of some comment. It is provided that native produce shipped from Hong Kong to a Treaty Port shall not be protected by the clause with reference to inland taxation, and Hong Kong is thus placed at a great disadvantage as compared with the Treaty Ports. The Chamber of Commerce are engaged in preparing a memorial on the subject, in which it is probable this point will be fully alluded to, as it is one of vital importance to the trading interests of the colony.

Authentic information has come to hand that a gigantic system of squeesing on the Chinese in Canton engaged in foreign trade has just been inaugurated at that place. The various guilds have been squeezed during the last few days by the Viceroy to the amounts of $10,000 each, viz.: the Piece Goods Guild, the Cotton Yarn Guild, the Raw Cotton Guild, &c.,&c., under the pretence that the money is wanted to carry on the war against the Panthays in Yunan. In order to recoup themselves, the guilds have resolved to levy a tax on all manufactures, &c., &c., imported into Canton, which tax was to come into operation on Saturday last. It is needless to add that the money will eventually come out of the foreigners' pockets. This is a very encouraging inauguration of the new treaty arrangement, and comes at a most opportune time. Large shipments of goods have gone up to Canton during the last day or two, in order to get them in before the new squeeze comes into force.

An extraordinary general meeting of the shareholders in the Hong Kong and Whampoa Dock Company has been convened for the 26th January, for the purpose of considering certain terms proposed by the Union Dock Company with a view to effecting an amalgamation. These terms are, in substance, that the Hong Kong and Whampoa Dock Company pay the Union Dock Company the sum of $308,000, or the amount of their capital less one-third, and assume the responsibility of the Union Dock's debt of $220,000, in return for the property of the Union Dock Company at Whampoa and Kowloong, together with all assets including the Little Orphan.

CHINA TRADERS INSURANCE COMPANY.

The annual meeting of the China Traders' Insurance Company, managed by Messrs. A. Heard and Co., in China, and Messrs. Fearon and Co., London, was held on the 15th Dec; the shareholders present including Messrs. Holland (in the chair), A. Heard, Kaye, Hitchcock, Sage, Sands, Mellish, Hale, Da Costa, See Yong, Leong Wing Choon, and Qwong Kee.

The Chairman, having read the report of the committee (which will be found in our advertising columns), proposed its adoption, together with the accounts; which was seconded by Mr. Mellish, and unanimously carried.

It was then proposed by Mr Hale, and seconded by Mr. Mellish, that Messrs. Jukes and Sage be elected auditors for the next year; which was carried nem. con.

Mr Hale next proposed, and Mr. Mellish seconded, that the retiring members of committee (Messrs Holland and Hitchcock), be re-elected. This was also carried unanimously.

The Chairman informed the meeting that the dividend would be available on and after the 18th; and the meeting terminated with the usual vote of thanks to the chairman and committee.

Digitized by Google

JAVA.

—o—

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BATAVIA, Dec. 28.

You will remember the disturbances at Becassie, about which so much noise was made by the European press, and which were said to be the sign for a general revolt for the independency of Java. Several months have since elapsed, and now at last a decision in the affair has been given. No less than twenty-nine persons have been condemned to death, and nineteen to fifteen years' forced labour. It, however, seems that even now the suit has not been finished. The Batavia papers protest against the horrible manner in which the prisoners were treated. Several of them were flogged day after day, with rattans; others were tied hands and feet to pallisades and thus exposed day and night Others again were locked up in detestable holes, so small that they could not sleep. Seven persons died in consequence of these shameful tortures. The Assistant-Resident, Meester Cornelis, and the Sheriff of Becassie accused each other of having committed these horrible acts. An enquiry is now being made, and it is most desirable that, should the functionaries be found to be culpable, they should be punished most severely. Indeed, it is of the greatest urgency that the Minister of the Colonial Department should take measures to revise the code penal in a more humane manner than he seems to intend doing. The police at Becassie act in such an independent and illegal manner that they cause the greatest discontent amongst the natives, and it is even feared that there will be a repetition of the same disorders which occurred last spring; the police having again co-operated with the Chinese Bapa Beira to rob the natives—and this caused the last revolt. Much has still to be done to secure to the Javanese right and justice. But the Dutch Government is slow; for five years Java has been obliged to be content with promises, which have not in the end been fulfilled.

The men of war Maduro, Barito and Kapoeas, have been ordered to Poelae Madjar, in order to make peace between the Dajacs of Sarawak and those of Batang-Loepar. The first-named had claimed a certain amount of money, and had threatened to burn all the houses at Batang-Loepar if the money was not paid. It has not yet transpired whether the threat was carried out, but so much is certain that when our soldiers landed they found that peace once more prevailed.

The Chamber of Trade and Industry at Batavia has forwarded an address to the Governor General urging the necessity that a steam line should be established between Java and Australia with stations at Singapore, Sydney, and Brisbane. Of course the claim for a Government subsidy is repeated, and it is regretted that not one guilder is asked for this purpose by the Colonial Minister in his Budget of 1870.

The news from Padang is again most distressing; not only has the country again been inundated by a bandjir, but an earthquake which lasted forty-five seconds, has occasioned a good deal of damage.

An aqueduct has been constructed at Koepang (Timor), by which vessels can easily be provided with water.

The preliminary works for the Batavia-Buitenzorg Railway are progressing.

COMMERCIAL.

Coffee: Java, f.31 to f.32 50c. per picul. Sugar: No. 14, f.16 50c. to f.16 75c.; No. 15-20, f.15 50c. to f.15 75c., with a good business done. Rice: 1st quality, f.165 to f.180; and 2nd quality, f.125 to f.145 per koyang. Carga, f.110 to f.115; the stock is not large. Cloves, f.27 49c. per picul; nutmegs, f.115; black pepper, f.17 to f.18; white ditto, f.30 per picul, without stock. Rattans: Borneo, f.10 50c. to f.13; Padang, f.8 to f.9. Sapanwood: Manila, f.5, stock exhausted; Java, f.3 to f.3 50c., with some transactions. Tin: Billiton, none offered. Hides: Cow, 35c. to 40c.; and buffalo, 23c. to 28c. per half kilo. Manufactures: Madapollams, English white, with a very unimportant demand; unbleached, without transactions. Shirtings: English white meets with a firm demand. For 7lb. Cambrics No. 15-16, dull. English Drills: Small lots can be realised at somewhat lower prices. Mule Twist: Prices lower, the stock, however, is not large. Batticks meet with a good demand. English Iron: The market is over-supplied.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

Dates hence are to Jan. 4. The outward French mail of Nov. 25 arrived on Dec. 28. Telegrams had been received from London to Dec. 6. The following summary of news is from the Straits Times:—

The past fortnight has been unusually quiet, and the Legislative Council not being in session, political matters have for the time remained in abeyance.

At the meeting on the 24th his Excellency the Governor introduced the subject of an armed police in lieu of the native troops, a project by no means original with him, or new to most of our readers. Governor Cavenagh laboured hard to convince the Indian Government of the economy and desirability of such a force; Sir Harry Ord, however, appears to have been more successful with the authorities at home, and to have obtained their consent to the innovation. We, however, have serious misgivings as to the beneficial result of the change, and have stated our reasons at length in a previous issue. The amount of patronage at the disposal of the Secretary of State and the Governor, in the appointment of officers, may have considerable weight in influencing their views on the subject—but to us it seems a dangerous experiment to arm a body of inexperienced men—probably strangers to the Settlement—to awe a peaceable native community into order. The subject has been dropped for the time, and when next it comes before the Council will probably be in the form of a Bill approved of by the Secretary of State, to whom the Governor expressed his intention of referring the matter.

The Government Gazette of the 24th ult. contained two notifications, one announcing the confirmation of the appointments of Messrs. W. R. Scott and W. Adamson to seats in the Council, and the other notifying Mr. Whampoa's appointment as a member of that body. No one would envy Mr. Whampoa the distinction bestowed upon him. He has been so long and so favourably known among us, and possesses such an influence over the Chinese, that perhaps no better choice could have been made. But a difficulty presents itself to our mind in regard to this appointment, in that the Letters Patent constituting the colony limit the number of unofficial members of Council capable of acting in the discharge of their duty to five, while we have now six, all capable of doing duty. Glad as we should be to have Mr. Whampoa in the Council, we should be extremely sorry to part with the services of any of the others.

The Christmas and New-Year holidays are over, and have been marked by no events of great importance. A novelty was afforded to the residents in the performances of the Tom Thumb troop at the Town Hall Theatre. The past two months have been the wettest known here for a long time.

An action was brought by Virgin and Co., owners of the steamer Coety, against the Tanjong Pagar Dock Company, for $5,000 damages, owing to delay and alleged faults in their work, but Chief Justice Maxwell reserved final decision.

CEYLON.

—o—

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

The currency question has argued itself into repose. At first it was discussed rather warmly, and there was a strong feeling against any interference with the system £ s. d. which has heretofore governed our accounts and finances, our contracts and bargains, and been understood to be represented by rupees at 2s. per rupee; and which system was acknowledged on all hands to have worked well. Since, however, it has been discovered that a rupee is only value for 1s. 10½d., and since it has been declared that the Home Government will not have a fictitious currency, while they also insist that the rupee, being the coin in which we generally pay, shall be the medium also through which we shall count; the feeling which at first ran so strong against any change that memorials were got up and numerously and respectably signed against any interference with the existing system, has now, merged into one of comparative acquiescence. The only agitation now is the consideration that, if there must be a change what change would be best, and most suitable to our requirements, and to the comprehension of all classes of the community. The general feeling is that this should be the decimal system—with rupees and cents as the only two coins, with their subdivisions, necessary for our arithmetic. This would involve but two columns in our accounts, while the computation of a column of figures would be so simple that the least instructed in counting might understand it. A native even who has not been at school could work it on his ten fingers, while the conversion of rupees into pounds sterling would be merely the omission of the last figure for pounds, and doubling it, unless a cipher, if to be converted into shillings. The agitation ultimately resolved itself into a memorial to the Government, which was very extensively signed, praying that—without asking for a change—if a change must be, the most convenient change for all classes would be rupees and cents, and not rupees, annas, and pies, as in India. An association has been got up for furthering this object. They have had meetings, framed resolutions, and held conferences with the Governor. Of the result of all these we are yet unaware; but on all hands preparations are being made for accepting the change which may be decided upon, and which will come into operation, it is said, in July next. And let us hope it will be the introduction of the decimal system, as above described.

THERE is not much news from the Suez Canal. Between thirty and forty large ships have passed through since the opening. The amount of tolls received from them has been about £12,000. There is said to be nowhere less than twenty feet. The large transport ship Jumna is to go through at the end of March. M. de Lesseps has gone to France to hold a general meeting of the shareholders, and endeavour to raise the present low figure at which the shares are quoted.

Digitized by Google

Commercial Report.

(For dates see First Page.)

CEYLON, STRAITS, CHINA, AND JAPAN IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—Cotton Yarn continued in good demand, at prices slightly in advance of last quotations. Large supplies were looked for from China. Grey Shirtings also inquired for, settlements moderate; there was an improvement in White Shirtings, T-Cloths, Turkey Reds, and Velvets, while Woollens, with the exception of Cloths, were much depressed. Stocks estimated at—Grey Shirtings, 32,700 pieces; Cotton Yarn, 6,400 piculs; Blankets, 4,100 pairs; Coal, 4,700 tons. Quotations:—Cotton Yarn, 16 to 24, $54 to $54.50 per picul; 28 to 32, $54 to $55; 38 to 42, $65 to $66.50; Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., $2.65 to $2.70 per piece; 8 lbs., 4 to 6, $3.02 to $3.05; Black Velvets, $9 to $9.65; T. R. Cambrics, $0.95 to $1 per lb.; Taffachelass (double weft) 12 yds. 43 in., $3 25 to $3.50; Taffachelass (single weft) $2.50 to $2.90; Blankets, $0.35 to $0.40 nominal; Nail rod Iron, $2.70 to $3.50 per picul; Lead, $6 to $6.25; Tin plates, $6.25 to $8 per box; Coal, $8.50 to $9 per ton.

SHANGHAI.—Busines had been done, and prices generally had receded; stocks of most manufactured goods were heavy. Grey Shirtings:—The demand had been almost entirely of a retail character, and buyers had had the market very much in their own hands. Fair inquiry for 7 lbs. at Tls. 1.96 to Tls. 2.01. The stock of this weight was comparatively small, and many holders declined to meet the market of 8.4 lb.; buyers had been able to supply their wants from second hands at figures much below the ideas of importers. Eagle Chop 8.4 lb. had changed hands at as low as Tls. 2.18½ per piece for cash, but "chop Eagles" had been sold from first hands at Tls. 2.21½ per piece on ordinary terms. Rather more inquiry for heavy goods, and several sales irregular, but weaker rates. Stock of all weights, 975,000 pieces; against 200,000 pieces last year. Quotations:—7 lbs., Tls. 1.97 to Tls. 2.01; 8-4 lbs., Tls. 2.18 to Tls. 2.21; 9 lbs. to 9-12 lbs., Tls. 2.40 to Tls. 2.75 per piece. T-Cloths: Only cheap goods commanded any attention, and though several sales had been effected, they had simply been caused by a full concession in price on the part of holders. The prices had, therefore, been somewhat irregular, and quotations must be considered as more or less nominal. 6 lbs. Tls. 1.45 to Tls. 1.61 per piece; 7lbs. Tls. 1.63 to Tls. 1.75, and 8 lbs. to 8.4 lbs. 36 inch Tls. 1.90 to Tls. 2.12 per piece; XX Tls 2.40. White Shirtings: A few small sales of 56 and 64 reed at a decline on last values. Quotation:—56 reed, Tls. 2.10 to Tls. 2.13 per piece; 60 reed, Tls. 2.20 to Tls. 2.25 per piece; 64 reed, Tls. 2.35, and 66 reed, Tls. 2.45 to Tls. 2.48 per piece. Drills, Jeans, and Sheetings: All kinds lower in value, with a slack demand. Fancy Goods: Small transactions quoted, but the demand was far from active. Damasks had been more sought for, especially the lower kinds, at moderate figures; holders not inclined to realise unless at good prices. Chintzes wanted. Woollens, &c.: Transactions in Camlets and Spanish Stripes to a most limited extent. Scarlet Cloth of the former goods materially declined, but other colours of both classes show little variation. Figured Orleans rather firmer; some sales effected at fair rates, the demand having run chiefly on common to ordinary makes. Metals: Lead—L B, a few sales of cargo on the spot at Tls. 5.25. Iron: Not a single sale is reported. Quotations (duty paid):—American Drills, 40 yards, Tls. 3.7.5 to Tls. 3.8.0; American Jeans, 30 yards, Tls. 2.9.5; American Sheetings, 40 yards, Tls. 3.5.0; English Drills, 40 yards, Tls. 3.4.5 to Tls. 3.6.5; Dutch Drills, 40 yards, Tls. 3.4.5 to Tls. 3.5.8; Damasks, dyed, 40 yards, Tls. 4.2.5 to Tls. 4.5.0; Chintz, per piece, Tls. 1.6.5 to Tls. 1.7.5; Camlets, English, SS, per piece, Tls. 11.5.0 to Tls. 12; Medium Broad and Habit Cloth, Tls. 0.9.5 to Tls. 1.6.0; Long Ells, Tls. 6 to Tls. 6.2.0 per piece; Coals (cargo quotations afloat)—Cardiff, Tls. 8.5.0 per ton; North Wales, Tls. 7.7.5; English, Tls. 7; Anthracite, Tls. 10.

HANKOW.—Grey Shirtings: 7 lbs. goods had been wanted, and prices had slightly advanced. Sales of 8¼ lbs. to a fair extent at last quotations, but holders were asking higher rates, and the market closed firm. Heavy makes had changed hands at Tls. 2.75 to Tls. 2.85 per piece. Closing quotations:—Tls. 1.96 to Tls. 2.0 for 7 lbs., Tls. 2.16 to Tls. 2.20 for 8¼ lbs., and Tls. 2.75 to 2.84 for 9¾ lbs. goods. White Shirtings: 60 and 66 reeds in small inquiry at previous rates. T-Cloths in some demand; sales on a larger scale than for some time previously. The market closed dull, with heavy stocks on hand. Drills further declined 5 candareens per piece for both English and American makes—quotations nominal. Fancy Cottons little inquiry. Chintz and Black Velvets quoted lower. Woollens and Worsteds—Camlets: A few trifling sales of picked colours constitute the business of the fortnight in these goods. Lastings hardly a transaction. Long Ells very unsaleable, lower prices current. Scarlet quoted Tls. 6.0.4 to Tls. 6.1.5; assortments, Tls. 6.1.0 to Tls. 6.2.5 per piece. Spanish Stripes in small inquiry. Medium and Broadcloths not wanted. Figured Orleans: Picked assortments only taken in retail quantities. China Crapes unsaleable. Metals—Lead: A small sale at Tls. 5.4.0 to Tls. 5.6.0. Quicksilver in slight demand, without change in price.

FOOCHOW.—The following transactions were reported:—850 pieces 7 lbs. T-Cloths, at $2.55½ to $2.57½ per piece; 500 pieces 8¼ lbs. Grey Shirtings, at $3; 100 pairs 10 lbs. Assorted Blankets, at $5.50.

HONG KONG.—Cotton Yarn: No transactions, save in 38-42s, of which a small parcel found a buyer at $1.85 per bale. The Chinese were offering to resell the best 16-24s. at $140 per bale; but much of what they hold would leave them a profit at this price. Grey Shirtings: There have been sales of Bombay qualities of 7 lbs. at lower rates than last quoted. Of 8.4 lbs. some of the best quality have been sold at $2.75 per piece, but $2.80 per piece had been obtained towards the close, and this must be considered the full value of the finer makes. A few 10 lbs. lots changed hands at $3.90 per piece. White Shirtings: Fair sales, and fine qualities had most attention. Dealers wished to anticipate the spring demand, and bought principally "to arrive." For goods on the spot or very near at hand none but inadequate offers could be obtained. Prices may be considered about 5c. per piece higher. Grey T-Cloths: Sales of 6 lbs. of fair quality at $1.95 per piece, of good at $2 per piece, the latter being the highest figure obtained; 7 lbs. in very little request, as also 36 inch makes; market weak. Grey Twills: Small quantities Dutch taken at about former low rates. Dyed and Fancy Cottons nothing doing. Woollen Cloths: Only a few pieces of Medium, Dark Blue, had changed hands. Spanish Stripes: Beyond a small parcel of very good quality, which obtained 70 cents per yard, the only prices offered had been 65 to 67 cents per yard, and in a few instances these were accepted. Long Ells: No improvement in these had taken place; only one small lot sold. Camlets: Scarlet saleable, as high as $16.75 per piece being paid for the finest quality of SS. Lastings: No improvement; sales made "to arrive." Metals: All descriptions of Iron stagnant, and no sales reported. Tin Plates neglected. A large sale of Quicksilver at $62.53 per picul, which is an advance upon last quotation. Lead in some little demand, speculators being willing to buy "to arrive" at low prices. 100 tons L. B. sold at $6 50 per picul. A parcel of French on the spot bought for the Canton market at $6.40 per picul. Quotations:—Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., $2.45 to 2.50 per piece; 8.4 lbs., $2.75 to 2 80; 9 to 10 lbs., $3.15 to 3.80; White Shirtings, $2.55 to 3.60; fine, $4.05; T-Cloths, 6 lbs., 32-inch, $1.90 to 2; 7 lbs., $2.15 to 2.22½; Mexicans, $2.30 to 2.45; 8 to 8.4 lbs., 36 inch, $2.65 to 2.75; Grey Twills, Dutch, 14.8 lbs., $4.70 to 4.85; Medium Cloths, $1.15 to 2.30; Long Ells, H, $7.50 to 7.70; Blankets, Assorted, $0.43 to 0.50; Camlets, SSS, Assorted, $13.50 to 14; SS, $15.50 to 16.25; S, $17.25 to 17.75; Lastings, Assorted, $13.75 to 25.16; Coals, English, $7 to 7.50 per ton; Welsh, $8 to 8.50.

SINGAPORE.—Only a moderate business had been done in Manchester staples, and though stocks were light, prices were again slightly weaker. Grey Shirtings, 8¼ lbs., cleared off to a fair extent at $2.87½; other weights also a shade lower. Grey Madapollams very little asked for; sales reported at lower prices. T-Cloths: Demand weaker. Drills: No transactions. Fine descriptions of White Shirtings difficult of sale; inquiry for coarse and medium also fallen. White Madapollams sold to a small extent at previous rates. Good demand for coarser descriptions of White Cambrics; prices maintained; fine cloth also taken to a fair extent at the quotations of last mail. Imitation Irish Linens in rather more request. Figured Shirtings, Jacconets, Brocades, and Lappets dull of sale. Dyed Cottons of all description without improvement. Plain and Figured Shirtings sold at lower rates. Turkey Red Cambrics without animation, sales effected at very low rates. Small sales of T. R. Mulls reported. Grey Yarn in small supply, prices without alteration. No. 40s sold at $150, No. 30s at $140, No. 20s at $134, No. 64 at $163 to $164 per bale. Turkey Red Yarn without change, demand small. Coloured Yarns out of request, lower prices accepted. Metals no improvement. Bar and Nail Rod Iron sold at lower prices. Yellow Metal, also slightly lower, sold at $21¼ to $21½. Pig Lead, no sales. Gunpowder without improvement. Coal market inanimate, stocks large; the only sale reported 200 tons Cardiff at $7⅜ per ton ex-ship.

PENANG.—Small sales of Grey Shirtings reported 6lbs. at $44—7 lbs. at $52 credit, $49 cash—8¼ lbs. at $59 to $61 credit, $58 cash. In 45-in. goods no business. Sales of Grey T-Cloths, 6 lbs., at $39—7 lbs. at $42½ to $46 per corge, according to quality. White Shirtings still inactive; small quantities disposed of at weaker prices. White Cambrics very dull, excepting Nos. 15/16, which found buyers at $32½ to $33 per corge. Dyed Goods of every description in very small demand; prices unaltered. Yarn sales of Grey Twist at $141 to $142; Turkey Red, No. 40, at $144; Imperial Red, $78 to $82; Green, at $82 to $83 per bale.

COLOMBO.—The following is from Messrs. Geo. Wall and Co.'s Circular—There has been a very limited business done during the fornight. Dealers had provided for their local requiremnts in anticipation of Christmas, and printed and coloured goods of all kinds have been quite neglected. But the improved tenour of home advices has placed Grey and White staples in a stronger position than when we last wrote; and in these a moderate business has been done at hardening rates, chiefly for export. We close very firm at our quotations, with the prospect of establishing a further advance should home advices retain their present character. A steady export demand for Grey goods is now freely due; and, as Easter approaches, we look for a renewed inquiry for Prints and other coloured fabrics. Actual transactions afford quotations for Grey cloth only, which we give as follows:—Grey Shirtings, 39 inch, 7 lbs., 11s. 1½d.; 8¼ lbs., 13s. 9d.; 45 inch, 8 lbs., 13s. 9d. to 14s.; 9 lbs., 15s. 4½d. to 15s. 6d.; 10 lbs., 17s. 6d. to 17s. 9d.; 11 lbs., 20s. 6d.; 50 inch, 10 lbs., 17s. 3d. to 17s. 6d.; 11 lbs., 18s. 6d. to 19s. Grey Longcloths, 9 to 10 lbs., at 1s. 6d. per lb.

CEYLON, STRAITS, CHINA, AND JAPAN EXPORTS

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—For a day or two after the departure of last mail an easier tendency was experienced, but on arrival of the American mail a brisk demand set in, resulting in the settlement of over 8,000 piculs of Medium to Finest grades, almost entirely for the New York market. In consequence of this demand prices were slightly higher, and the market closed very firm. Arrivals had come in freely; otherwise the stock would have been much reduced; it remained, however, with little change. About 3,000 piculs had been received from Hiogo for re-export; the Ravensbourne sailed from that port on the 4th December, for New York, with 406,000 lbs. From Yokohama the Rifleman, for Boston, with 394,267 lbs., and the Herbert Graham, for New York, with 279,456 lbs., had sailed. The last P.M.S.S. Co.'s steamer took 15,294 lbs. for New York, and 65,810 lbs. for San Francisco. The Grenadier, Crest of the Wave (chartered), Southern Belle, and Havelock were loading for New York. Quotations:—Common, $20 to $21 per picul, nominal; Good Common, $22 to $23 ditto; Medium, $26 to $28 ditto; Good Medium, $29 to $33 ditto; Fine, $34 to $37 ditto; Finest, $38 to $42 ditto; Choice, nominal.

SHANGHAI.—Black: An insignificant business had been transacted, the purchases amounting to less than 4,000 chests. Prices were a shade easier for very common descriptions, and rather better value had been obtained for those kinds possessing a small amount of flavour. Arrivals had not been large, and the stock on offer was reduced. A very large quantity of very common Congou was being manufactured in Shanghai. Settlements for the fortnight, 3,750 chests; re-shipments on owners' account, 324 chests; stock, 11,687 chests. Quotations (duty paid, exchange for credits, six months' sight, at 6s. 1d. per tael, and freight at £2 per ton)—Hohow, common to fair, Tls. 16 to Tls. 19½, equal to 11½d. to 1s. 1½d.; Oonam, common, Tls. 18½, equal to 1s. 0⅜d.; Ningchow, common, Tls. 19 to Tls. 19¾, equal to 1s. 1¼d. to 1s. 1⅜d.; Oopack, common, Tls. 19¼ to Tls. 19½, equal to 1s. 1⅛d. to 1s. 1⅛d. Green: The business for the fortnight had been large, resulting in the settlement of 40,000 half-chests. The market was almost cleared of fine chops. Medium Teas had commanded full prices, but we note a decline of about one tael per picul, on common to fair grades, compared with prices ruling before the departure of last mail. Arrivals had not been on a large scale, and receipts were on about a par with last year's arrivals. Quotations—Moyune and Teenkai, Tls. 31 to Tls. 43; Fychow, Tls. 28 to Tls. 36; Pingsuey, Tls. 31 to Tls. 33; Shanghai-packed, Tls. 25 to Tls. 30. Settlements for the fortnight, 40,490 half-chests; reshipments on owners' account, 1,337 half-chests; stock, 136 chops, or 66,974 half-chests.

Digitized by Google

HANKOW.—There had been no further arrivals, and the season must be considered nearly closed. Quotations nominal.

KIUKIANG.—Black Teas: Few arrivals had taken place, and settlements were confined to two parcels of Hohow Congous. Quotations were, Ningchows, nominal; Hohows, common, Tls. 13.2.5 to Tls. 14.5.0. In Green Teas there had been no business.

FOOCHOW.—The following is from Messrs. Odell and Co.'s report:—Congous: The demand has not been so active as noticed in our last, though for the period of the year settlements have been to a fair extent, amounting to about 15,600 chests. Rates paid show no alteration, the teamen being still willing to realise at our quotations. Arrivals from the country have not been large, and the total for the season will not exceed 670,000 chests. Souchongs: There is but a poor assortment on offer, and transactions have not been large. Oolong: The small stock remaining at the date of our last issue has been taken on American account, and no further receipts are expected from the country. Scented Teas and Flowery Pekoes: There are no transactions to report. Settlements during the fortnight have been:—Congou, 15,668 chests, at Tls. 11.3 to Tls. 19.5 per picul ship off; Souchong, 1,572 chests, at Tls. 17.3 to Tls. 20.3 per picul ship off; Oolong, 11,690 half-chests, at Tls. 18.8 to Tls. 21.0.5 per picul ship off.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—There was no new feature in the market, further than rather more desire among some silkmen to sell, and consequently a little reduction on some lots of the better class of hanks. The greater part of the stock was, however, held as firmly as before; several dealers preferring to deposit their goods under advance rather than realise. Oshus maintained their price fully. Settlements about 500 bales. Silkworm Eggs: The total export for the season may be definitely stated as amounting to 1,400,000 or 1,420,000 cards. This figure had been confirmed by a comparison with the Custom-house returns, with the average contents of the total quantity of cases shipped, and with the average weight of every hundred cards when packed. The quotations for Silk ruled as follows:—Hanks, Mybash and Sinchu, best, 30s. 11d. to 33s.; medium, 27s. 9d. to 30s.; inferior, 24s. 9d. to 27s. 6d.; Oshu, extra, 34s. 4d.; best, 31s. 3d. to 33s. 3d.; medium, 28s. 8d. to 30s. 11d.; inferior, 22s. 10d. to 26s. 8d.; Coshu, best, 27s. 1d. to 28s. 8d.; medium, 24s. 9d. to 26s. 8d.; Sodai, medium, 24s. 9d. to 26s. 8d.

SHANGHAI.—The following is from Messrs. C. J. Skeggs and Co.'s Circular:—A moderate business has been transacted daily during the fortnight, at rather hardening prices for medium and common Silks, notwithstanding a higher exchange, which is about 3d. per pound against buyers. Red Peacocks and similar descriptions have been taken at about Tls. 5 above last mail's rates, Tls. 450 having been paid for the above-mentioned chop, and common sorts show about the same advance. Crack chops are not much changed, although purchases have been slightly in favour of buyers. All Taysaam sorts being scarce still command very full prices, whilst Hainins on the other hand continue weak and neglected. The market closes very firm, with settlements for the fortnight estimated at about 2,000 bales. The stock is reduced to about 1,500 bales, and the total exports will probably not much exceed 37,000 bales.

STRAITS AND CEYLON PRODUCE.

SINGAPORE.—Gambier had gradually declined from $3.07½ per picul to $3.01½ per picul, about 1,800 tons having been taken up within that range. Bontyne Coffee unaltered at $12 per picul, at which some purchases have been made. Small purchases of Cutch reported at $4.55 to $4.60 per picul. The first contracts for Pepper had been made during the fortnight—about 12,500 piculs having been contracted for in all; 2,300 piculs at $7.25, 750 piculs at $7.30, and the rest at $7.35, which was the closing quotation; a small lot of White bought at $11.05. Pearl Sago taken up to a moderate extent at $3.05 to $3.15, according to grain and quality; about 150 tons Sarawak Sago Flour at $2.45; other descriptions at $2.40 per picul. Buffalo Hides and Horns taken up at former rates. Tin: Malacca quoted at $29 per picul.

PENANG.—Tin had been bought as high as $27.70, but rates had ranged from $27½ to $27 per picul, which was the closing figure. Pepper: no transactions. Sugar in increased demand; prices firmer for all qualities of Penang. Some Hides had come forward, but no purchases had been made.

COLOMBO.—Coffee: There had been but a limited business during the interval. The New Year holidays had interfered somewhat with transactions, but the limited extent of dealings in Native descriptions arose chiefly from a falling off in the supply. Receipts of plantation crops continued on a liberal scale, but the transactions in this quality had been few at 11s. 9d., very fine parcels of high grown commanding 12s. Cocoanut Oil: The inquiry for this article was good, and the supply being very moderate, makers had been enabled to obtain full rates; 27s. was readily given by shippers. Cotton: The season's shipments were nearly at an end. The William Mitchell had sailed from Tuticorin with 4,045 bales, and the Vigilant with 1,986 bales, making the season's exports 77,256 bales, against 95,804 bales at the corresponding period last year. There was no ship on the berth.

SETTLEMENTS OF TEA.

From 1st June to 6th Dec., Season 1869 to 1870.

BUYER.	BLACK. Chests.	Re-shipments. Chests.	GREEN. ½-Chests.	Re-shipments. ½-Chests.
Adamson, Bell, and Co.	15,184	6,890	14,922	672
Ashton and Co.	—	1,519	—	—
Birley, Worthington, and Co.	36,667	2,309	21,306	4,744
Blain and Co.	20,908	5,251	6,622	1,725
Blum Bros. and Co.	1,320	—	9,068	—
Bourjau, Hubener, and Co.	644	2,458	524	—
Brand, Monro, and Co.	7,777	—	—	—
Bull, Purdon, and Co.	3,681	529	—	—
Butterfield and Swire	15,112	4,468	496	—
Chapman, King, and Co.	6,653	596	901	—
Dent and Co.	2,722	14,172	—	—
Dickinson and Co.	892	992	—	—
Fraser and Co.	—	—	4,050	—
Gibb, Livingston, and Co.	1,135	7,122	8,347	686
Gilman and Co.	17,181	3,396	26,541	—
Glover, Dow, and Co.	12,796	1,932	3,277	1,419
Hargreaves and Co.	375	—	728	—
Heard, Augustine, and Co.	15,327	2,776	32,621	834
Hogg Brothers	12,423	6,015	3,224	—
Holliday, Wise and Co.	202	2,024	2,477	—
Hyde and Co.	—	—	—	—
Jardine, Matheson, and Co.	9,640	3,571	11,143	2,928
Jarvie, J., and Co.	—	—	—	—
Lent and Co.	14,535	798	7,912	—
Little and Co.	6,499	634	50,691	—
Olyphant and Co.	2,862	200	45,720	1,257
Osborne and Co.	8,638	458	7,584	7,839
Overbeck and Co.	48,899	1,630	879	5 78
Overweg and Co.	18,259	6,833	—	—
Petrocochino and Co.	14,701	—	11,534	—
Reid and Co.	13,104	2,328	6,565	676
Reiss and Co.	1,482	4,297	—	—
Rothwell and Co.	11,939	270	1,802	981
Russell and Co.	494	3,076	23,719	—
Sassoon, David, Sons, and Co.	496	3,073	—	—
Shaw Brothers and Co.	4,109	—	5,035	—
Siemssen and Co.	970	—	—	—
Smith, Archer, and Co.	—	—	7,468	—
Tate, J. P., Esq.	18,020	—	6,401	—
Thorne Brothers and Co.	12,167	10,513	13,347	—
Turner and Co.	—	8,675	—	—
Weston and Co.	6,529	5,687	1,417	766
By Sundries	35,286	7,278	9,955	—
	399,628	121,770	346,276	25,105

LIST OF SILK SHIPPERS TO SOUTHAMPTON AND MARSEILLES.

From June 1st to Dec. 11th, 1869.

	Bales.		Bales.
Adamson, Bell, and Co.	70	Helbling and Co.	806
Ashton and Co.	—	Hogg Brothers	593
Barnet and Co.	1,981	Holliday, Wise, and Co.	10
Birley, Worthington, & Co.	876	Jardine, Matheson, and Co.	502
Birt, W.	104	Jarvie, John, and Co.	548
Bland, J.	190	Meynard and Co.	20
Borneo Company	109	Milsom and Tod	853
Borntraeger and Co.	400	Nachtrieb, A., and Co.	750
Bourjau, Hubener, and Co.	224	Parsees	87
Bovet, Brothers and Co.	593	Pustau, Wm., and Co.	92
Bower, Hanbury and Co.	1,444	Reid and Co.	54
Brand, Monro, and Co.	2,399	Reiss and Co.	154
Bradwell, Bloor, and Co.	58	Russell and Co.	1,441
Bull, Purdon, and Co.	8	Remé, Wm., and Co.	690
Carter and Co.	1,529	Sassoon, D., Sons, and Co.	366
Chapman, King, and Co.	401	Sassoon and Co., E.D.	45
Chinese	64	Scheibler, Matthai, and Co.	232
Coutts and Co.	65	Shaw Brothers and Co.	585
Cumine and Co.	332	Siemssen and Co.	458
Dickinson and Co.	180	Skeggs and Co.	906
Fogg and Co.	50	Smith, Archer, and Co.	231
Framjee, Hormusjee and Co.	25	Textor and Co.	769
Gamwell, F. R.	1,058	Thorne Brothers and Co.	188
Gibb, Livingston, and Co.	917	Trautmann and Co.	229
Gilman and Co.	685	Westall, Brand, and Co.	125
Glover, Dow, and Co.	204	Sundries	2,232
Gutschow and Co.	210
Heard, Augustine, and Co.	558	Total bales...	28,144

EXCHANGES, &c.

[For dates, see first page.]

ON LONDON.

At	Bank Bills.	Credits.	Documentary.
Yokohama, 6 m. s.	4s. 5½d.	4s. 6d.	4s. 6¼d.
Shanghai " "	6s. 0¼d.	6s. 0⅜d.	6s. 1d.
Canton " "	4s. 5d.	4s. 5⅛d.	4s. 6d.
Hong Kong " "
Macao " "
Singapore " "	4s. 6¼d.	4s. 6⅜d.	4s. 6⅜d.
Manila " "	4s. 5d.	4s 5⅛d.	4s 5⅛d.
Colombo " "	par	1 to 2 dis.	1 to 2 dis.

Digitized by Google

MISCELLANEOUS.

—	At Shanghai.	At Hong Kong.
Bills on India	300 to 301	222½ to 223
„ Hong Kong	25⅞ to 26⅛ dis.	—
Bar silver	111.6.0	9 prem.
Mexican dollars	74.5.0	¼ prem.

Bons, at Yokohama, 338 to 346 per 100 dols.

SHARES AT HONG KONG.

Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank, New, 17 to 17½; Old, 31 per cent. premium.
Hong Kong Gas Company, 44 dols. per share.
Hong Kong and Whampoa Dock, 5 to 7 per cent. discount.
Union Dock Company, 45 to 50 per cent. discount.
China Traders' Insurance, 1,400 dols. premium.
Hotel shares, 50 to 60 per cent. discount.
Hong Kong and Macao Steamboat Company, 26 per cent. premium.

EXPORT OF TEA AND SILK, SEASON 1869-70.

TO GREAT BRITAIN.

Date.	From Yokohama & Nagasaki.	From Shanghai and Hankow	From Foochow.	From Amoy.	From Canton, Macao, &c.	Total lbs.	SILK Total Bales & Cses
From June 1 to Nov. 30, 1869	74573	63831560	41650584	1349918	11543353	118449988	28205
Corresponding period last season.....	605753	63378693	49533375	...	12129197	125647018	39096

Shipments Since:

Dec. 9 per Beemah	From Foochow	... 1,134,000
— 11 ... Valkyrien	... Do.	... 707,900
— 14 ... Glamorganshire	... Do.	... 605,300
— — ... Earl Dalhousie	... Do.	... 1,391,500
— 15 ... Nyassa	... Shanghai	... 986,975
— 22 ... James Shepherd	... Canton	... 1,138,900
— 28 ... Emeu (ml. str.)	... Shanghai, &c.	... —	1950

TO THE CONTINENT.

							Bales.
From June 1 to Nov. 30, 1869	...	...	...	...	...	1476590	9764
Corresponding period last season.....	...	...	...	...	...	3232439	1473

Shipments Since;

Dec. 14 per Osca Vidal	From Hong Kong	... 327,100
— 28 ... Emeu (ml. str.)	... Shanghai, &c.	... —	660

TO UNITED STATES.

							Pcls.
From June 1 to Nov. 30, 1869	...	...	...	...	...	19423276	576
Corresponding period last season.....	...	...	...	...	...	17093031	746

Shipments Since;

Dec. 2 per China (str.)	From Yokohama	... 15,224
— 4 .. Rifleman	... Do.	... 394,267
— — ... Ravensbourne	... Hiogo	... 405,402
— 7 ... Resolute	... Foochow	... 549,200
— 13 ... Herbert Graham	... Yokohama	... 279,456
— — ... Parmenio	... Foochow	... 450,500
— 15 ... Elizabeth Dougal	... Shanghai	... 448,984
— 16 ... Etha Rickmers	... Do.	... 1,250,887
— — ... Arracan	... Canton	... 92,096	150
— 18 ... Jurgen	... Amoy	... 297,757

TO AUSTRALIA.

From June 1 to Nov. 30, 1869	... 10,591,897 lbs.
Corresponding period last year	... 15,172,661

Shipments Since;

Dec. 2 per Else	From Foochow	... 287,200

TO GREAT BRITAIN.

				Tea—lbs.	Silk bales China & Japan.
From 1843 to 1844.....	...	...	...	51,022,600	...*
„ 1845 to 1846.....	...	...	...	57,334,200	18,604
„ 1850 to 1851.....	...	...	...	63,972,000	22,143
„ 1853 to 1854.....	...	...	...	77,327,800	61,280
„ 1855 to 1856.....	...	...	...	92,240,300	50,481
„ 1857 to 1858.....	...	...	...	76,990,255	68,315
„ 1858 to 1859.....	...	...	...	65,789,792	83,134
„ 1859 to 1860.....	...	...	...	85,560,452	64,169
„ 1860 to 1861.....	...	...	...	90,066,160	76,644
„ 1861 to 1862.....	...	...	...	109,854,040	79,199
„ 1862 to 1863.....	...	...	...	121,273,580	72,887
„ 1863 to 1864.....	...	...	...	117,463,586	46,603
„ 1864 to 1865.....	...	...	...	121,236,870	32,313
„ 1865 to 1866.....	...	...	...	118,333,042	62,890
„ 1866 to 1867.....	...	...	...	118,423,290	50,052
„ 1867 to 1868.....	...	...	...	116,890,430	57,449
„ 1868 to 1869.....	...	...	...	142,789,804	70,917

* Including the Continent.

Shipping Intelligence.

ARRIVALS.

At YOKOHAMA.—From Havre, Dec. 7, LB.

At SHANGHAI.—From London, Dec. 8, Laurel; 10, Bristow; 12, Eaglet; —, Dartmouth, Sir Wm. Wallace, Sophie; from Glasgow, 19, Laga; 21, Loudon Castle.

At HONG KONG and CANTON.—From London, Dec. 16, Merse; 25, Peterborough, Corypheus; from Cardiff, 16, Ann Adamson; 26, Ludwig, Samuel, J. Glover; from Callao, 26, Fray Bentos.

At MANILA.—None.

At SINGAPORE.—From Liverpool, Dec. 22, Nestor (st.), from Sunderland, Stavers; from Havre, Georges et Marie (st.).

At BATAVIA.—From Shields, Dec. 13, Azia, Goldenland; from Newcastle, 14, Nordhavet; 17, Francina Wilhelmina; from Rotterdam, 13, Rotterdam; 19, Lichstraal; 20, Madura, Noach III.; from Amsterdam, 17, Maria Elizer.

At PENANG.—None.

DEPARTURES.

From YOKOHAMA.—For Boston, Dec. 5, Rifleman; for New York, 13, Herbert Graham.

From SHANGHAI.—For London, Dec. 18, Nyassa; for New York, 13, Herbert Graham; 17, Elizabeth Dougall; 18, Etha Rickmers; 19, Horatio.

From FOOCHOW.—For London, Nov. 30, Tyburnia; Dec. 13, Glamorganshire; 15, Earl Dalhousie; for Boston, Nov. 27, W. E. Gladstone; Dec. 13, Parmenio.

From AMOY.—For New York, Dec. 18, Jurgen.

From HONG KONG and CANTON.—For London, Dec. 23, Medina, Petchelee, James Shepherd; for New York, Arracan.

From BANGKOK.—For Europe, Dec. 5, J. H. Love; 8, J. Vinnicombe; 15, Oliver Cromwell; 20, Bride.

From MANILA.—For London, Dec. 20, Doriga; for Liverpool, via Cebu, 19, San Fernando; for Cork (for orders), via Ilo Ilo, 18, Cleughs; for Cadiz, 8, Cervantes; for New York, 12, Tabor; for Boston, 17, Bunker Hill.

From SINGAPORE.—For London, Dec. 24, Maria Rickmers; for Liverpool, 25, Mary Spencer; for Boston, Polly Lewis; for New Bedford, 29, Adelina Gibb; for Hamburg, Europa.

From BATAVIA.—For Holland, Dec. 18, Jason, Acolus, Leopold Gr. v. L. Stirum; 19, Humbolt, Jedo; for United States, 18, Iroquois (str.).

From Penang.—For London, John Paul.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS.

At YOKOHAMA.—To New York, £2 to £2 5s. per ton of 40 feet.

At SHANGHAI.—Rates remain unchanged.

At FOOCHOW.—To London, £2 10s.

At AMOY.—To New York, £2 of 40 cubic feet.

At HONG KONG and CANTON.—To London, £2 per ton; to New York, £1 15s.

At MANILA.—To London, Sugar, £2; Hemp, £3 5s.

At SINGAPORE.—To London, £2 2s. 6d. to £2 10s.

At BATAVIA.—For Holland, Sugar and Coffee f.45 to f50.; for Channel, £1 15s. Sugar in bags.

At PENANG.—To London, Sugar, £2 10s.; Tin, £2 10s.; Hides £2 7s. 6d.

VESSELS LOADING.

At YOKOHAMA.—For London, none; for New York, Southern Belle, Grenadier.

At SHANGHAI.—For London, Fontenaye, Omba, Callisto; for New York, Good Hope, Sarah Nicholson, City of Perth.

At FOOCHOW.—For London, Red Riding Hood; for New York, Springfield, Homer; for Amsterdam, Ensign.

At AMOY.—For New York, Margarita.

At HONG KONG and CANTON.—For London, Neville, Dudbrook; for New York, Music.

At BANGKOK.—Benmore, British Empire, Crimpen on the Lek, Emerald, Flora, Geo. Croshaw, Luctor et Emergo, Macedon, Penrith, Venus.

At MANILA.—For London, Victoria; for Cork, Antrim; for Copenhagen, Haufran; for Cadiz, Elena.

At SINGAPORE.—For London, Coldinghame, Glenlyon, Staffa; for Liverpool, Mount Vernon, McNelson; for Marseilles, Georges and Mathilde; for Hamburg, Margot.

At PENANG.—For London, James Paton, Parana, Albuera.

CASUALTIES.

YOKOHAMA.

The steamer Ocean Queen, on her way from Neeagata to Hakodate, got into a very severe gale, which she could not face, and Capt. Bowman, to save his crew and cargo, ran her on shore near Sakado-gawa, where she now lies. When his messenger left she had not made any water, and the treasure and nearly all the cargo was landed.

HONG KONG.

The British barque Merse, Capt. Harris, from London, reports had moderate weather on leaving port. Crossed the Equator on the 6th Sept. in long. 20.23 W.; thence had moderate S. E. trades, passed the meridian of the Cape of Good Hope on the 29th Sept. in lat. 39 S., from thence had continued heavy gales with heavy cross sea down to Amsterdam Island, which sighted on the 23rd Oct. On the 16th Oct. experienced a cyclone which lasted for four days; it began from E., went round to North and suddenly changed to W. Made Java Head on the 6th Nov.; on the same day spoke the ship Matador, bound S., passed Anjer on the 7th November, came through Palawan Straits, passed the S.W. point of Luzon on Dec. 8th. Thence had moderate weather and steady N.E. monsoon till arrival in Hong Kong on Dec. 16th. 133 days out. On the 27th October, in lat. 30.30 S., long. 90.34 E., spoke the French ship Diane, from Bordeaux, bound to Bangkok; on Sept. 6., in lat. 0.5 N., long. 19.55 W., the Merse was suddenly shaken as if she was grating over a sand bank; not being able to account for this, the hatches were opened and the pumps sounded, but everything was found all right. The shaking lasted for about four minutes, and the man at the wheel felt it shaking slightly in his hands; came to the conclusion that it must have been an earthquake.

The British barque Ann Adamson reports experienced fine weather on leaving the Channel and crossing the Bay of Biscay, found the N.E. trade slim and paltry. Crossed the Equator in long. 22 W., and found the S.E. trades squally, indifferent, and again a great prevalence of easterly gales off the Cape, and while running down the Easting; made

Digitized by Google

Lombock on Oct. 31, then light airs, calms, and variable flaws through the Macassar and Celebes Sea; from St. Andrews to the Bashees and into the China Sea, heavy weather from E. to N.E., with much head sea, ship straining and plunging terribly; 169 days out.

The North German brig Ludwig reports having spoken the British ship Lord Dale, London to Shanghai, at eight P.M. on Dec. 20, in lat. 19.30 N., long. 131.50 E. She had lost all her spars except foremast, and required the assistance of a steamer.

The British barque Britomart reports having experienced strong N.E. winds on leaving the Australian continent; passed west of New Caledonia, sighted the Island of Calatina, in the Solomon Group, on the 13th November, several canoes full of natives coming off, but afraid to come alongside, although armed; crossed the Equator in 160° E.; saw Steuart's Island on the 17th, and on closing the island received a visit from the whole of the male population. Hair oil appears to be in demand among these people, who are noticeable as the best behaved in these seas; they can supply all sorts of refreshments in almost any quantity. Minty's reef position, marked doubtful, exists, is about twelve miles long, and Captain Wishart's description is correct,

VESSELS PASSED STRAITS OF SUNDA.

Date.	Ship.	From	To.
Dec. 10	Jannetje ...	Batavia ...	Rotterdam
,, —	Anna Maria Wilhelmina	Amsterdam ...	Samarang
,, 11	Azia ...	Sunderland ...	Order
,, —	Nordhavet ...	Newcastle ...	Do.
,, —	Gelderland ...	Sunderland ...	Do.
,, —	Roxburg Castle ...	Singapore ...	London
,, 12	Rotterdam ...	Rotterdam ...	Batavia
,, —	Conniet de Maria ...	Macao ...	Lisbon
,, —	Raleigh ...	Amoy ...	New York
,, 14	Kennemerland ...	Samarang ...	Amsterdam
,, 15	John and Pauline ...	Macao ...	London
,, 16	Yokohama ...	Hong Kong ...	New York
,, —	Scawfell ...	Bangkok ...	Falmouth
,, 18	Fluellin ...	Singapore ...	London
,, —	Iroquois (str.) ...	Batavia ...	New York
,, —	Gemsbok ...	Singapore ...	New York
,, 19	Madura ...	Rotterdam ...	Batavia
,, —	Acolus ...	Batavia ...	Rotterdam
,, —	Jason ...	Batavia ...	Rotterdam
,, —	N. B. Palmer ...	Shanghai ...	New York
,, —	Jacob Hansen Love ...	Bangkok ...	London
,, —	Helens (str.) ...	Bangkok ...	London
,, —	James Vinicombe ...	Bangkok ...	Falmouth
,, —	Naworth ..	Singapore ...	Glasgow
,, 20	Cervantes ...	Manila ...	Cadiz
,, 23	Kali Maas ...	Foochow ...	Falmouth
,, —	Aracan ...	Shanghai ...	London
,, —	Madone ...	Bordeaux ...	Singapore

COMMERCIAL POSTSCRIPT.

—o—

The verdict at Bombay in the case of the Oriental Bank was in their favour, as the manager had not signed the compact, but, as the Asiatic had, the verdict was against them.

SHIPPING.

ARRIVALS NOT IN THE TABLES.—Jan. 18, at New York, from Shanghai, Stanley Castle; Feb. 4, at Motherbank, from Batavia, for Amsterdam, Nordsflag; at Waterford, from Rangoon, Barham; 3, at Brouwershaven, from Batavia, Strathblane; at Gironde, from Saigon, Rosendaele.

DEPARTURES.—Feb. 5, from London, for Colombo, &c. (via Suez Canal), Otterburn (steamer); 2, from Marseilles, for Yokohama, Casti; from Shields, for Singapore, Johanna Antonia.

LAID-ON.—At London, for Singapore, Windermere.

SPOKEN.—Westward Ho! Cardiff to Singapore, Nov. 29, 17 S., 30 W.; Bengalee, Bordeaux to Singapore, Dec. 26, 7 N., 26 W.; Frederick Tudor, Cardiff to Hong Kong, Feb. 1, 51 N., 9 W.; No. 1,225 4th d.p. (ship), Batavia to Rotterdam, Jan. 27, 50 N., 10 W.

MISCELLANEOUS.—Port Said, Feb. 4, Shun-Tung (str.), Wells, from the Clyde, for China, left for Suez; Suez, Feb. 3, Afrique (str.), Rolland, from the Clyde, left for Colombo, &c., having passed through the Canal.

LATEST TELEGRAMS.

—o—

JAVA.

(RECEIVED AT ROTTERDAM, FEB. 1.)

BATAVIA, JAN. 6.—Coffee, 37,000 piculs Padang sold at f.35,50; freight to Holland, f.41 to f.47½; Exchange on Holland, f.104 to f.103; manufactures nominal.

ARRIVALS.—Cornelis Wernard Eduard, Macassar.

DEPARTURES.—Ada, Jedo, Johanna Maria, Kandanghauer, Kitty, Laurens Coster, Leopold Graaf van Limburg Stirum, Louis Mayer, Nederland and Oranje, Susanne.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, AND DEATHS.

—o—

BIRTHS.

COLLINS—On the 30th Dec., at 2, Belgrave-villas, Lee, S.E., the wife of the Rev. William Henry Collins, of Peking, of a daughter.

DAVID—On the 18th Dec., at Cottanchina, Colombo, the wife of the Rev. Christian David, of a son.

JOHNSTON—On the 18th Dec., at Amoy, the wife of W. Cunningham Johnston, of a daughter.

MACHADO—On the 25th Dec., at Hong Kong, the wife of Mr. F. Machado, of th Harbour-master's Department, Hong Kong, of a daughter.

MARTEN—On the 22nd Jan., at Tanabang House, St. Germain's-place, Blackheath, the wife of W. T. Marten, Esq., of a son.

PRICE—On the 21st Dec., at Harperville, Hong Kong, the wife of Alfred H. Price, Esq., of a daughter.

REME—On the 20th Dec., at Shanghai, Mrs. William Reme, of a son.

SHELFORD—On the 26th Dec., at Broadfields, Tanglin, the wife of Thomas Shelford, Esq., of a son.

SUTHERLAND—On the 23rd Dec., at Dean's-road, Cinnamon-gardens, Colombo, the wife of John Mackie Sutherland, Esq., of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

CASWELL—FINDEN.—On the 2nd Feb., at St. Michael's Church, Paddington, by the Rev. Alexander Woodforde, assisted by the Rev. John Kempthorne and the Rev. G. F. Prescott, James George Caswell, Esq., H.B.M.'s Consul at Saigon, Cochin China, to Florence, youngest daughter of George Corfield Finden, Esq., of 21, Talbot-square, Hyde-park.

CRAWFORD—FAULDS.—On the 25th Jan., at Knockbuckle House, Beith, Scotland, by the Rev. James Martin, Beith, assisted by the Rev. William Muirhead, Shanghai, John Crawford, Esq., merchant, Shanghai, to Eliza Somerville, daughter of James Faulds, Esq., banker. No cards.

MILISCH—VIDAL.—On the 17th Dec., at the Protestant Chapel, Macao, by the Rev. Pastor E. Klitzke, James Milisch, Esq., of Tamsui, Formosa, to Rose, daughter of Camille Vidal, Esq., of Hamburg.

PARKER—HEMSWORTH.—On the 23rd Dec., at St. John's Cathedral, Hong Kong, by the Rev. Canon Beach, M.A., Gifford Forbes Parker, of Saigon, youngest son of the late Hon. James Parker, of Cincinnati, Ohio, to Alice, eldest daughter of John Hemsworth, Esq., of Limerick, Ireland.

DEATHS.

ALLEN—On the 23rd Dec., at his residence, Hill-street, Singapore, Henry Allen, Esq., M.D.

FOWLIE—On the 19th Jan., at Fairlawn, Coombe-wood, Bertha Bessie, third daughter of I. C. Fowlie, aged five years and six months.

GIBSON—On the 17th Jan., at Sugwas Court, Herefordshire, of bronchitis, after a few days' illness, Louisa Sophia, wife of W. C. Gibson, Esq., C.M.G., late Colonial Secretary of Ceylon.

HABGOOD—On the 15th Dec., at Hong Kong, Elizabeth Victoria Alfreda, the infant daughter of Thomas Edgeworth Habgood.

LOHMANN—On the 5th Dec., at Chinkiang, China, Fritz Lohmann, a native of Gluckstedt, Germany.

MELBYE—On the 14th Dec., at Shanghai, after a short illness, Frederick G. Melbye.

ROHDE—On the 13th Dec., at Shanghai, Agnes, the beloved wife of P. J. Rohde, aged 23.

RUGGLES—On the 19th Dec., at Shanghai, John W. Ruggles, aged 45.

CHRONICLES OF ST. GEORGE.

BOOK 2. CHAP. XV.

1. And it came to pass on the day of the feast that was given by the native King that the Lieutenant of the Chief Ruler died.

2. Now this Lieutenant was second only unto the Chief Ruler himself.

3. And when St. George was absent for a season, he ruled in his stead.

4. And he was beloved much, for he had been many years among the people, and his heart was big with love and gentleness.

5. In so much that no man could say ought against him, for he had treated all with loving kindness.

6. And when the news of the death of his Lieutenant came unto the ears of St. George, he was in attendance upon the Juke, in the midst of the sports provided by the native King.

7. Yet stayed he not the sports.

8. For he desired to show unto the Juke the majesty of St. George and the littleness of all other beings in the land.

9. So he toadied unto the Juke, and went down continually on his "marrow-bones" before him.

10. For he thought within himself:

11. If I impress the Juke with a sense of my majesty and power, and yet the readiness of that majesty to bend to him, may hap his mother, when it is noised abroad, will raise me a step in rank.

12. And it rested with the Chief Ruler to appoint the hour in which his great and good Lieutenant should be borne to his last resting place.

13. And it came to pass, that when the sports in the Land of Johore were ended, the Chief Ruler returned unto his own coast.

14. And the people waited anxiously for his return, that the hour for the burial might be announced, that so they might accompany to the grave the body of one who was so justly beloved of them.

15. Yet kept he the hour secret.

16. Moreover he requested of the Chief of the Queen's forces that the body might be laid in the grave without the Military honours that were due unto the departed.

17. But the Commander of the forces would not consent.

18. And when the hour for the burial drew nigh, the places of many of the near friends of the deceased among the mourners were vacant.

19. Therefore was the cause of this inquired.

20. And when the people found that the hour for the burial had not been noised abroad, and that the body had been taken to the grave with a haste that was unusual and unnecessary, they were filled with indignation and cried aloud, saying:

21. "Is it not enough that this man should insult the living?

22. "Must he even show his pompous vanity and want of "respect unto the dead?"

23. So the Lieutenant of the Chief Ruler was gathered unto his

Digitized by Google

Fathers, and his memory, even in his grave, was insulted by this man.

24. And it was felt more deeply of the people, inasmuch as the Juke himself had shown respect unto the corpse of a poor and most humble servant of his but two days before.

25. And had followed the body on foot unto the grave.

26. Thus was given unto the people to perceive the difference between the acts of true, high-born Majesty, and the miserable vanity of a bird in false plumage. EXTINGUISHER.

THE GALLE BREAKWATER.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

The Galle Breakwater is our present difficulty—dividing, as it does, public feeling. Its utility is admitted on all hands. But one party in opposition—the Colombo Chamber of Commerce—sees no necessity for the breakwater for local interests; while if Imperial interests demand it the Imperial Government ought not only to provide all the funds, but to take all the risk. Another party in opposition, led by Mr. G. D. B. Harrison, one of the unofficial members of the Legislative Council, quite agrees in the utility of an improved harbour, and admits that it would be of great use to Ceylon, but thinks it cannot be made for the sum offered on loan by the Home Government—£250,000; considers that it will cost £400,000; and believes it so much more essential to the Imperial Government than to Ceylon that the risk of the undertaking should be divided—four-fifths being chargeable to the Home Government, one-fifth to that of Ceylon. The Governor had previously appointed a commission of seven gentlemen, numbering among its members the Director-General of Public Works, the Surveyor-General, and the said Mr. Harrison, to inspect the harbour and produce a report. By the accidental breakdown of the railway Mr. Harrison was prevented getting to Colombo in time to be with them on the day the Commission had appointed to meet at Galle and consider the question. Mr. Harrison, however, knew the Galle harbour well, having inspected it for a like object ten years ago, and made a report to the then governor, Sir Henry Ward. The report was therefore made up without him, and sent to Kandy for Mr. Harrison's signature. This Mr. Harrison attached, but also appended a note disapproving of the calculations of the Commissioners as to cost, and combating their opinion that there was no necessity for excavating the rocks within the harbour, and that the work could be carried on without staging, by merely tumbling the stones into the sea. Mr. Harrison contended that unless the rocks were excavated the harbour would not be secure, however much were spent upon it, and that without staging they would take twenty years instead of five to construct the breakwater, while the waste of material would be great, and the cost in proportion excessive. His estimate of the cost of staging alone was £60,000. Of the Commissioners four were gentlemen of engineering experience, and three were nautical gentlemen. The other Commissioners replied to Mr. Harrison's memorandum that the opinion of six was better than that of one. There are some, however, who doubt this dictum, and who believe Mr. Harrison's opinion entitled to more weight than that of the other six put together, for this reason that the three nautical members could only speak to the effect of winds, tides, and currents in the vicinity, while not one of the other three engineering members had had any experience in the construction of such a work. Mr. Harrison, on the other hand, having commenced his career in connection with marine engineering, and having been personally employed on that masterpiece of such work—the Portland Breakwater. Well—a committee of Council was appointed to consider the report of the Commission, and the day at length came for their report being brought up and laid on the table of the Council. This brought on a discussion wherein Mr. Harrison led the opposition, and in a very able speech showed the fallacy of the calculations and the inadequacy of the sum estimated for this great undertaking. He was backed up by only other four members of Council, viz., all the unofficials present—the officials, ten in number, to a man voting against him. The work is, therefore, to be undertaken. Fortunately for the colony, however, the Public Works department are not to be allowed to try their hand at marine architecture. They are costly enough on land, and exceed their estimates in such numerous instances on our roads, that there is no saying in what extravagance they might involve the colony were they but allowed to undertake a work on the ocean, of a kind entirely new to them, in which they have had no experience, and with no responsibility. The Director-General even did not contend for this, although he believes nearly as much in the power and ability of his department as did its late veteran head, Major Skinner, who, by the way, raised the force, and might have been allowed a pardonable pride in them; for he had done much with them, and had worked himself up to the belief that they could do almost anything.

A contractor is to be advertised for, and failing one appearing, who can furnish sufficient security for the successful completion of the work for the sum, and in the time estimated, the subject will be again brought under the consideration of the Council. Meantime there is a strong feeling of opposition among the mercantile community, which the Colonial Secretary has characterised as narrow views. But after the exhibition this class made some few months ago in patting on the back the late Colonial Secretary, and commending, and allowing himself to commend, while retiring, his colonial policy—a policy which for twenty years they had persistently denounced—their opinion will not carry much weight at Downing-street; for the Governor has only to hand in a newspaper containing the report of those proceedings, in proof of how men change their opinions over a dinner. Doubtless the Governor, so recently from home, brought his instructions on this and many other matters in his pocket. And we have recently learned, to our sad experience, how little attention is paid to any representation from Ceylon, not supported by his Excellency the Governor. The merchants, instead of opposing the Galle harbour improvements in toto, would have acted a wiser part, and shown more enlarged views, and a more liberal spirit, had they merely pointed out what they considered an omission in the agreement, viz., that should the sum estimated, and agreed to be lent by the Home Government, not be sufficient for the completion of the work, such further sum as might be found necessary should be provided on the same terms by the Imperial Government, with an extension of say twenty years more to the island to recoup itself from the dues and revenue, out of which they are to repay with interest during thirty-three years the already promised loan of £250,000.

As to the construction of this breakwater being entirely an Imperial question it is all fudge. The opening of the Suez Canal will inaugurate a new era in the trade of the East, for if steamers by that route can carry goods to India in a month at a cost of from £3 10s. to £3 17s. 6d., instead of the old overland rate of £20 the ton, it bids fair to revolutionise the entire carrying trade to the eastward of the Cape. Galle, if able to accommodate the increased number of ships that will make that passage, will be a depot for their commodities, and as a port of call so conveniently situated on the lines to Calcutta, China, and Australia, will derive more benefit from this increased eastward trade than any other port along the route, a view of the question hardly contemplated while the success of the Suez Canal was yet doubtful, which it certainly was until very lately.

There is yet another view of the question, however, which ought not to be ignored, and to which the Colonial Secretary drew the attention of the Council by quoting a despatch of the late Sir Charles Macarthy on that subject. Sir Charles estimated that if the Home Government, finding Galle Harbour unsuitable as a packet station, should decide on making Trincomalie the point of call for such steamers, besides the loss of three days each time a mail arrived in getting the letters thence to Colombo, a road would have to be made, the lowest estimated cost of which was £160,000, besides £13,000 annually for its keep. Thus the first year it was opened the road would have cost £175,000, even if made for the sum estimated—a sum nearly equal to the estimated cost of the Galle Breakwater. Let the merchants consider this fact wisely ere it be too late, and ere the island be saddled with Trincomalie as its packet station, or, what would be tenfold worse, annexation to India.

FRANCE AND THE FAR EAST.

(FROM OUR PARIS CORRESPONDENT.)

The two annual documents, the "Exposé" of the Empire, and the Yellow Book of Diplomatic correspondence, published by the French Government, contain a few passages relating to the East and Eastern produce.

In the former we find the following respecting silk:—The silk interest continues unfortunately to suffer from the evils which have for so many years devastated the silk producing establishments nevertheless, the year 1869 exhibited some improvement. The epidemics which attack the silk worm showed much less violence, end their intensity continues to decrease. The yield of silk was larger in 1869 than in previous years. The Government has distributed a considerable number of microscopes in the provinces, for the examination of the "seed" intended for breeding; and has offered premiums for the encouragement of small breeding establishments. M. Pastear, to whom is due the discovery of the corpuscules in the eggs, has been commissioned to undertake new experiments, and has discovered a method, which appears efficacious, in preventing the malady known as des morts-flats, which, with pebrine, causes the greatest ravages. The question of the stamping of the cards of eggs exported from Japan has been the object of an enquiry which has put the Government in possession of the views of silk producers with respect to monthly and annual stamping of the cards.

Digitized by Google

The result of the last crop of cocoons, which surpassed expectation, caused a sensible fall in the price of raw silk, which reacted on the fabric markets. The demands of buyers and the resistance of holders caused operations to be restrained; however, in the month of August there were few looms standing idle at Lyons or in its vicinity, while the lowness of the stocks held out a hope of improvement in business.

The returns of the commerce of France with six foreign countries, all that are enumerated, give the following comparative figures for the first eight months of the year :—

	1869.	1868.
From Great Britain to France :—
Raw Silk	1,097 tons	1,212 tons
Rice	4,077 ,,	5,484 ,,
Jute	11,363 ,,	11,106 ,,
Silk Fabrics	f.3,806,000	f.2,764,000
From France to Great Britain :—
Silk Fabrics	f.140,106,000	f.143,752,000
From France to Belgium :—
Silk Fabrics	f.7,837,000	f.8,934,000
From Germany to France :—
Raw Silk	f.1,277,000	f.1,210,000
Silks	1,119,000	664,000
From France to Germany :—
Raw Silk	f.5,851,000	f.5,668,000
Silks	14,678,000	22,891,000
From Italy to France :—
Raw Silk	f.88,658,000	f.81,255,000
Rice	9,685 tons	13,874 tons
From France to Italy :—
Raw Silk	f.24,306,000	f.16,291,000
Silks	19,169,000	10,987,000
From Switzerland to France :—
Raw Silk	f.17,625,000	f.18,874,100
From France to Switzerland :—
Raw Silk	f.38,219,000	f.36,283,000
Silks	33,363,000	38,074,000

Concerning Cochin China, we are informed that everthing goes on quietly and well; that two natives have been appointed members of the Privy Council of the colony; that delegates from the villages, not in the employ of the Government, have been called to deliberate on the ameliorations to be introduced in the affairs of the colony; that commissions have been appointed—1. To codify the usages of the country as regards the relations of municipal bodies amongst themselves, as well as with the superior authorities and the people. 2. To bring the Annamite populations, which have heretofore held aloof, into civil relations with the Colonial Government. 3. To find means to encourage agricultural improvement amongst the poor population of the colony. The colonial authorities are much occupied with the dissemination of instruction amongst the natives, and have opened evening schools at Saigon, where men, women, and children may learn to speak, read, and write French. There are seven mixed schools, and more than sixty native schools, with an aggregate of two thousand scholars.

In the second document we find passages relating to China and Japan, which we abridge.

Referring to the change lately made in the 15th Article of the Treaty of Tientsien, relative to Pilots on the coast of China, the paper states that, in establishing a body of regulations destined te insure the efficient recruitment of the body of pilots, the Government has taken care to preserve to its Consuls the right of surveillance and direction conferred by the Treaty. On the other hand, it has stipulated that such French captains as have, by long practice, become well acquainted with the Chinese coasts, shall be enabled to pilot their own ships, and thus avoid the additional expense of paying a special pilot for coast work.

The opening of the two new ports in Japan is alluded to, and the following added relative to trade :—The silk trade, which our countrymen are principally interested in, has obtained fresh facilities; in return for certain pecuniary concessions consented to by the Imperial Government, the Court of Yedo has renounced the advantage of that article of the commercial convention which authorised it to demand the revision of the duties on the export of silk; consequently this tax—which has during the last three years been calculated at the rate of 5 per cent., on an average value lower by one quarter than the present rates—will not be augmented, and our manufacturers will thus retain the precious sources of supply which the Japanese market affords them.

OCEAN TELEGRAPHY.

We extract the following passages from a long and interesting article on this subject, which appeared in The Times of Jan. 26.

Our present telegraphic communication with India has arisen out of the military requirements of the Russian Government. Telegraphic communication with the army of the Caucasus was thought to be essential, and a line was, therefore, constructed from Moscow to Tiflis and Erivan, and was placed under the control of General Luders, the well-known engineer officer and the director of the Russian telegraphic system. General Luders found that this Caucasian telegraph, although it was not costly to make, was terribly costly to maintain, and it occurred to him that if it could only be extended to India, the expense of its maintenance might be placed upon the broad shoulders of British commerce. The necessary negotiations were successfully completed, and a line was constructed by the English from the termination of the Russian one, by way of Teheran and Tabreez, to Bushire, and so through the Persian Gulf to Kurrachee. It was agreed that this line should pay a royalty of forty per cent. on its receipts for the privilege of working through the Russian wires, and the gross result has been, not only the absolute dependence of Anglo-Indian telegraphy upon a foreign power, but also that British subjects have paid for the maintenance of the Russian line to the Caucasus, and that the Persian line, thus burdened, has returned to its British proprietors the modest dividend of 1.3 per cent.

Looking beyond India, we find Russian enterprise and astuteness once more in the field. From Russia Proper another military line extends across Siberia and Tartary to Lake Baikal, and thence to Kiachta, on the Chinese frontier. Between Peking and Kiachta there is a regular service of mounted couriers, who perform the journey in ten days; and through their intermediation the Chinese have already had sufficient experience of the benefits of telegraphic communication with the Western world to desire earnestly that such communication should be brought actually to their doors. The success which has attended General Luders with regard to India has been too conspicuous not to furnish him with a precedent to be followed. The Russian Government has undertaken to extend its wires from Lake Baikal, across Eastern Siberia and Mantchouria, to a place named Posiette, in the Japanese Sea; and a company, nominally Danish, has been formed to connect Posiette by submarine cables with Japan, Shanghai, and Hong Kong. This company also is to pay 40 per cent. of its receipts for the use of the Government wires; and thus, not only would the telegraph to Posiette be kept up at the cost of Anglo-Chinese commerce, but the hope is entertained that the present preponderating influence of Great Britain in China might be superseded by that of Russia. The absolute control of the telegraphic communication would not only be an outward and visible sign of power, but it would also supply Russian officials with a variety of means of applying pressure to the Celestial Government and people. The Danish Company has put forth a prospectus dwelling with great unction upon the shortness of its route, and illustrated by a map containing a caricature of half the world, a signal triumph of the art of representing that which is not. The North Pole is made to face the spectator in the upper third of the drawing, and the meridians diverge from it like radii from a centre. Hence a route extending over 130 degrees of longitude, and lying mainly between forty and fifty of north latitude, is made to look less than half the length of an almost parallel route that lies much nearer to the equator.

Apart from the unpleasantness of supporting the Russian military telegraphs, apart from the unpleasantness of being dependent upon Russia for permission to use them, and apart from the possible political consequences of her ownership and control, it is necessary to consider how far these long land lines are secure against frequent interruption by accident or design. The vast regions to the north of China have a climate of great severity, disturbed by frequent and violent storms. The injury done to telegraphs by these natural influences is now attracting the attention of engineers, and is found to entail expense and inconvenience, even in civilised and populous countries. The total length of the Russian land telegraph, from Libau, on the Baltic, to Posiette, will be 10,032 versts, or about 7,300 English miles. Of this distance the greater part will be in a sterile and desolate wilderness, inhabited only by Russian military posts and by tribes of wandering and possibly hostile Tartars. Even in its passage through Persia the line to India was frequently wilfully damaged. A fall in the price of cotton was at one time invariably followed by an interruption of communication. It was supposed that cotton-holders had distant agents, say at Teheran or Tabreez, whose task it was, on the arrival of certain intelligence, to send off two or three rascals, mounted on dromedaries, that they might reach the wires, and armed with nippers that they might cut them. The Chinese would not be slow to learn and adopt similar contrivances; and, between roguery, snowstorms, and savages, a wire extending over thousands of miles in Siberia and Tartary could hardly be expected to subserve, with any steadiness and safety, the perpetual demands of business.

Digitized by Google

The alternative offered to the public is by the submarine cables now laid or in course of construction. When the Great Eastern returns from Aden she will immediately carry out a cable to extend from Falmouth, by way of Gibraltar, to Malta, where it will join the present Malta and Alexandria Cable, and will complete the direct line from England to Bombay. From the southernmost point of Ceylon a cable will then be carried to Singapore, touching at Penang and Malacca. From Singapore one line will proceed north to Hong Kong, Amoy, and Shanghai, and another south to Batavia and through Java to Port Darwin, at the north of Australia. Thence a coast line will be taken round the eastern side of the Australian continent to Burketown, Cardwell, Rockhampton, Brisbane, and Sydney, uniting with the telegraph from Sydney to Melbourne and Adelaide, and with that from Melbourne to Launceston and Hobart Town. From Hobart Town a cable is projected to New Zealand; and, to complete the circle round the world, some American capitalists have been negotiating for another across the Pacific, from China to California, by way of Japan and Alaska. We may fairly assume that in 1874 our readers will be supplied with news, not twelve hours old, from every part of the civilised globe.

Of the enormous system which we have thus sketched in outline it may be said that the whole will be constructed by British skill and energy, and the larger part by British capital. The cables will all be manufactured by the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company, and will be laid by the Great Eastern and her consorts. Excepting in the Island of Java and at the Isthmus of Suez, the wires will be either submerged or upon British territory; and on the isthmus it is proposed that they shall be deeply buried. A submerged cable is practically quite secure. No single speculator can find any means of injuring it for his private gain. As long as England holds the empire of the sea the cables will be safe from enemies in time of war. To grapple and raise them would require not only a knowledge of their exact position and a ship specially fitted with proper apparatus and trained hands, but, also, more time than could be given to the task. The electric lines will lie beneath the great highways of traffic, and no grappling ship in search of them could herself escape notice, or encumbered as she would be by her machinery, could avoid falling an easy prey to cruisers.

It seems probable, therefore, that the greater security and certainty of submerged wires, even in quiet times, will be sufficient to obtain for them the very general preference of the community. As far as India and China are concerned, it is impossible that lines weighted with a tax of 40 per cent., and exposed not only to the risks we have described, but also to the continual occurrence of errors affecting the sense in the transmission of messages, should successfully compete with others which will beat them both in price and performance, which will be perfectly safe from interruption, and which will be in the hands of English operators at every station. The cable from Posiette to Shanghai will probably be completed some months before the English cable from Singapore, but we may fairly venture to predict that, when once the latter is in operation, the Russian Government will have to look to its own Exchequer for the support of its lines in the Caucasus and in Tartary.

It is worth while to subjoin a tabular statement of the ocean telegraphs now constructed or contracted for, and of the sums used or subscribed to complete them. Irrespectively of some short cables in the seas of Northern Europe, the list would be as under:—

Name of Company, &c.	Capital.	Length of Cable.	When Contract was or is to be completed.	Date of forming of Company.
	£	Miles.
Anglo-American Telegraph Company	1,360,000 ('65)	1,898	Sept. 8, 1865	March, 1865
(Two cables, Valentia to Newfoundland) ...	600,000 ('66)	1,852	July 27, 1866
French Atlantic Telegraph Co. (Brest to Boston) ...	1,200,000	1,333	July 20, 1869	July, 1868
Falmouth, Gibraltar, and Malta Telegraph Co.....	660,000	2,456	May 31, 1870	July, 1869
Anglo-Mediterranean Telegraph Company (Malta to Alexandria)	260,000	900	October, 1868	May, 1868
British Indian Telegraph Co. (Suez to Bombay) ...	1,200,000	3,600	April, 1870	January, 1869
British Indian Extension Company (Ceylon to Penang and Singapore)	460,000	1,756	Before end of 1870	October, 1869
China Submarine Telegraph Co. (Singapore to Hong Kong and Shanghai).....	525,000	2,640	June, 1871	Dec. 10, 1869
British Australian Telegraph Co. (Singapore to Java and Port Darwin)...	660,000	1,726 800 land	Before end of 1871	January, 1870
Total capitals ...	£6,925,000	20,961—Total miles.

LEGAL.

—o—

JUDICIAL COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL.—JAN. 26.

(Before Lord Westbury, Sir. J. Colville, and Sir J. Napier.)

RODGER AND OTHERS versus THE COMPTOIR D'ESCOMPTE DE PARIS AND THE CHARTERED BANK OF INDIA, AUSTRALIA, AND CHINA.

Counsel for the appellants—Sir R. Palmer and Mr. Manisty; for the respondents—Mr. E. E. Kay and Mr. Holl.

This was a petition of the appellants in the nature of an application to review the decision of the Judicial Committee on the hearing of the appeal in this case, upon which judgment was delivered on the 19th of February, 1869, as reported in the London and China Telegraph of the 9th of March last. It will be remembered that this case, which is commonly known as the Min case, arose out of the bankruptcy of Lyall, Still, and Co., and related to certain consignments of goods by Messrs. Liebert and Co., Mendel and Co., and Calvert, of Manchester, to Messrs. Lyall, Still, and Co., of Hong Kong, which were shipped on board the Min, bound for Hong Kong, and upon security of the bills of lading, for which the respondents had made advances. The goods on their arrival in Hong Kong, were stopped in transitu by the consignees. The respondents brought an action of trover in the Supreme Court of Hong Kong to recover the value of the goods, and obtained a verdict for $55,816, and this amount, with interest and costs, making together $63,542, was paid over to the respondents in the month of September, 1867. The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, on hearing the appeal in February, 1869, reversed the decision of the Court below, and directed a nonsuit to be entered.

In pursuance of the judgment of the Privy Council a nonsuit was entered accordingly, and an application was made to the Supreme Court at Hong Kong, in May last, for a rule calling upon the respondents to pay back the amount which they had received, together with interest, after the rate of 12 per cent. per annum, from the time of its receipt until repayment, and also appellant's taxed costs of the action in the Supreme Court. Chief Justice Smale granted all that was asked, except interest, and upon that question he said, "It appears that in the absence of any contract for it, or of documentary or other evidence from which an actual agreement to pay interest might be inferred, interest was not payable at common law on any debt. By the 3 and 4 Wm. IV., c. 42, provision was made for giving interest when not actually contracted for. By that Act the jury trying the case are authorised, if they think fit, to allow interest to the plaintiff if the debt is payable on a day certain, or from demand made when uncertain. And by 1 and 2 Vict., c. 110, judgment debts are to carry interest, and execution may be issued for judgment debts and interest. It appears to me that no interest is recoverable at common law in this case, and that the words of neither of these statutes extend to the case of a nonsuit, or to repayment of money erroneously paid under a judgment which is reversed. Such a case as the present is very unusual, and would seem to be a casus omissus in our statute-law; and I am of opinion that no power vests in this Court to give the interest as asked. The case of Page v. Newman, 9 B. and C. 381, was referred to, but there Lord Tenterden expressed an opinion that the Court of Error could give the interest only, which would be recoverable in the Court below. It is not for me to speculate as to the power of the Privy Council to give the interest asked. It is enough for me to decide that this Court has no such power."

In consequence of this decision, the appellants, conceiving that interest followed upon the nonsuit as part of the restitution to be made by the respondents, although the judgment of the Privy Council was silent as to interest, presented their petition of appeal a few days ago, and as it was regarded by the Registrar of the Privy Council as involving a point of practice only, it was immediately put into the cause list to be mentioned, and came on this day to be heard.

An objection was immediately taken by Lord Westbury that there must be a new appeal, and that it was not competent to the appellants to review a previous judgment of the Privy Council by petition in the determined appeal.

It was contended on behalf of the appellants that they did not seek to review the previous judgment, but merely asked that proper consequences should be given to that judgment; nothing was before the Committee on the previous occasion to show that the money had been paid by the appellants, and therefore nothing was said about interest. A nonsuit was directed to be entered simply, and its natural consequences were expected to follow. Nothing was said in the judgment about repaying the principal, and the Judge below might as well have refused to give that, because not ordered to do so, as to have refused the interest.

After considerable discussion the Judicial Committee decided that they could not entertain the present application, which must be the subject of a distinct appeal; but, at the suggestion of Lord Westbury, it was ultimately arranged that in order to avoid expense, and as the question of interest was a very important one, and the only question in dispute, that the petition should stand as an appeal, that printed cases and appendix should be dispensed with, and a short printed record substituted, that the matter should stand over until the parties had had time to communicate with China, and that then, if necessary, a special day should be fixed for the argument of the question of interest.

Digitized by Google

Agents for the appellants, Messrs. Reed, Phelps, and Sidgwick; for the respondents, Mr. Ambrose Parsons.

VICE-CHANCELLORS' COURT.—JAN. 31.

RE THE BANK OF HINDUSTAN, CHINA, AND JAPAN.—MITCHELL'S AND ASPINALL'S CASE.

This case was argued on the 4th December. It raises the question whether the liquidators of a company which is being wound up can prove against contributories who have executed a deed of inspectorship under the Bankruptcy Act for the amount of calls made subsequently to the deed of inspectorship, the deed itself containing the name of the bank as creditors for arrears then due on the shares, but not for the balances which might become du e on the uncalled capital. The facts were reported in our issue of the 18th December. At the present hearing the Vice-Chancellor delivered judgment to the following effect:—

The balance due from Mitchell and Aspinall as contributories to the company is found to be £517 13s. 4d. An order is now applied for by the liquidator for the payment of this sum. The application is resisted on the ground that, soon after the order for winding up, and before the call was made, these contributories executed a deed of inspectorship, which was duly registered under the Bankruptcy Act. The order for winding up was made in December, 1866. The deed of inspectorship is dated on the 4th of June, 1867, and registered in the Court of Bankruptcy on the 21st of June, 1867. In July, 1869, the call for £517 13s. 4d. was made, for the payment of which the order is now asked. On the careful perusal of the Bankruptcy Act of 1861, under which this deed of inspectorship has been registered, I can see no reason to doubt that it is for the Court of Bankruptcy to say whether process for the sum of £517 13s. 4d., or any part of it, should issue against these contributories. The amount due from them as contributories has been duly ascertained in this Court. It is for this Court to make an order for the payment of what is found to be due. When the order for payment is made the Act makes it the duty of the liquidator to apply to the Court of Bankruptcy for leave to issue process for the payment. All questions as to the deed of inspectorship are expressly committed to the Court of Bankruptcy. The section says, "No execution, sequestration, or other process against the debtor's property in respect of any debt, and no process against his person in respect of any debt, &c., shall be available to any creditor or claimant without the leave of the Court"—that is, the Court of Bankruptcy. Can there be any doubt that the order now asked is an order for payment of a debt? Can there be any doubt that the process of this Court, by which the order for payment is to be enforced, is "process against the person in respect of a debt?" In the present case it has been argued that the liquidators should have proved in bankruptcy for the estimated amount of the call; but, according to the Act, it does not seem that they were bound to do this. The enactment is permissive, and having a discretion they had a right to exercise it in the way which seemed to them most for the benefit of the company. According to the words of the section it is for the Court of Bankruptcy to determine all questions arising under the deed according to the law and practice of bankruptcy, so far as they may be applicable, and the section prohibits any execution against the property or person of the bankrupt without the leave of the Court of Bankruptcy. This leaves the question of protection and the extent to which the protection is to be given exclusively to the Court of Bankruptcy in which the deed is registered. If this Court, disregarding the Act of Parliament, were now to entertain the question of protection, and to decide how far the deed is a protection, or whether it is a protection at all, it would create great confusion and interfere, for no useful purpose, with the statutory jurisdiction in bankruptcy. Entertaining, as I do, these opinions as to the construction of the statute, and considering that the authority of the Act of Parliament is the highest authority, the order must now be made for payment of the ascertained balance. The duty of the liquidators will be to apply to the Court of Bankruptcy for leave to issue process according to the course of this Court.

IN RE MACKINTOSH.

The bankrupt, Francis Henry Pottinger Mackintosh, formerly carried on business at Kiu-kiang, China, as a merchant; he was described as of Norris street, Haymarket, out of business. It was stated that in September, 1866, the bankrupt commenced business in China, with a deficiency of £1,041, and the result of his operations had been, that within a period of twelve months a deficiency of £6,049 had arisen. The bankrupt had purchased tea and other produce, and it appeared to have been his practice to deposit the tea with bankers as security for advances; but the assignees admitted that the bankrupt could not be charged with any statutory offence. The debts amounted to £6,049, and there were no available assets. On behalf of the bankrupt it was alleged that he had not proceeded to China as a mere speculator, but as the manager of an established business, and on the failure of his employer he was invited to start upon his own account. Tea was an article subject to great fluctuations in price, and owing to unforeseen losses the bankrupt had been reduced to his present position. The Court granted the order of discharge.

MISCELLANEOUS.

DUTCH RULE IN JAVA.

The following is from the Pall Mall Gazette:—The "law's delay" is a favourite topic with our legal reformers, and the administration of justice is not always as expeditious as could be wished. But if it is any consolation to us to know how much better we are off than our brethren in foreign lands, we can turn with relief to the following examples of Dutch colonial justice, which we find in the principal newspaper of the Straits Settlement: In 1864 two men were committed in Java for manslaughter. After nineteen months' incarceration they were tried, found guilty, and sentenced to four and six years' penal servitude respectively, wholly exclusive of their term of previous imprisonment. These men, however, were guilty, and do not, therefore, deserve much sympathy; but that fact cannot be urged in mitigation of the cruelty of another case. In May, 1868, a father and son were committed in the same Dutch colony on the charge of purchasing a gun knowing it to have been stolen. Although the preliminary inquiry which the Dutch system involves was concluded in the following August, the accused did not receive the official notification of the charge on which they would be tried until April, 1869, and the actual trial did not take place till last September. No knowledge that the gun was stolen could be proved against the prisoners, and they were acquitted after an imprisonment of fifteen months—a period probably double that of the sentence they would have received had they been found guilty. Hard as this case is, it is further aggravated by the fact that the verdict of the inferior Court requires confirmation by the Supreme Court of Java, and the two men are in prison at this moment awaiting the pleasure of the latter tribunal. Java is said to be a perfect paradise in climate, soil, and natural beauty; but Dutch rule, if these are fair samples of it, has endowed the paradise with considerable drawbacks.

SILK MANUFACTURE IN CALIFORNIA.—The following is from the Alta California:—There is probably no greater curiosity in the way of manufactures to be seen in the city than that of the manufacture of silk, as carried on by Messrs. Neumann, at their factory at the corner of Sansome and Commercial-streets. These gentlemen, after struggling for four years to introduce the manufacture of silk into California, having meanwhile passed through many reverses, have at last succeeded in erecting the necessary machinery and fairly entered upon the work. Their establishment now includes everything necessary for the production of a quality of silk which they claim to be equal to any manufactured in Lyons or elsewhere in Europe. Here the visitor can witness the entire process, from the time the cocoons are received until the silk is woven into a perfect piece. One can hardly realise, when looking at the pile of cocoons, that from such material could be produced the beautiful and brilliant coloured silks which he sees upon the looms. The cocoons, when required for use, are given into the charge of young girls, who, deftly manipulating them, manage to find the ends, and assist in the reeling process, where the fibres assume the form of threads, which are arranged in skeins. In a single thread of fine silk there are often no less than forty fibres from the cocoons. The cocoons having been unwound, the skeins are taken to another department, in which, by the aid of the most delicate machinery, the thread is twisted, cleaned, doubled, wound upon spools, and afterwards reeled off into skeins, when it passes through the dyeing process. It is again rewound upon spools, and prepared for the looms. It is extremely difficult to give a minute description of either the machinery employed, or the different processes through which the silk passes. At present the Messrs. Neumann are engaged in weaving and preparing the silk for two elegant flags, each thirty-six feet fly and twenty-one feet hoist, one of which is intended for the National Capitol and the other for the State Capitol. These, which are being got up in the best style, will be worthy of note as being the first specimens of silk manufacture in the United States made from cocoons raised here and carried through all the processes, from the feeding of the worm to the production of the completely finished silk. California may justly take pride in the effort of the Messrs. Neumann.

SOME time ago the House of Representatives passed a resolution inquiring whether some $600,000 in gold had been paid to the United States as indemnity for aggression upon American commerce, pursuant to a treaty with Japan in October, 1864; whether the money had been received in the Treasury, and, if so, what disposition had been made of it. Secretary Boutwell has replied that the department has no information in relation to the payment or disposition of the money, the books showing that no such amount has been deposited.

A SAMPLE of tea has been forwarded to us, says the Food Journal, by a gentleman, who states that he understands it to be of home manufacture, with a request to "see to it." On examination, this tea, which was sold as "gunpowder," was found to be nothing but common "caper" so ingeniously "faced" and manipulated as to be an excellent imitation of fine green "gunpowder" tea.

IT is believed that, should the new scheme of retirement for the navy, to be introduced by Mr. Childers, be carried out, Sir Henry Kellett will be superseded in the command of the China squadron by another officer.

THE Chinese quarter in the town of San Jose, California, was destroyed by fire on the 15th ult., and 1,000 of the inhabitants were rendered homeless.

Digitized by Google

THE NEW TREATY WITH CHINA.

(THE STANDARD).

The efforts made by England to open and maintain a trade with China have surpassed all others recorded in the annals of commerce. They have resulted from a wise conviction that an immense market lay ready, could its approaches be mastered, to the enterprise and industry of Europe. Three hundred millions of people, who, with all their ingenuity, are not greatly addicted to manufactures, consume, every day of their lives, exactly the commodity which we, best of all the world, can produce. We have paid the cost of successive wars in order to secure advantages stipulated for under solemn treaties; and it is rather startling to find that not merely have we a difficulty in enforcing our legal claims, but that without any necessity we have abandoned our rights and sacrificed our interests by a gratuitous surrender. It became known early in the present month that Sir Rutherford Alcock, our representative at Peking, had agreed, as between Great Britain and China, to a convention supplementing the Treaty of Tientsin. That treaty, concluded by Lord Elgin in 1858, certainly did confer large advantages upon British trade; but there is something in the spirit of our diplomacy now which, under the name of conciliation, seems bent upon giving up one point after another—to China especially—till at last all we shall have left will be a suicidal compact entirely in our own disfavour. A meeting of merchants, representing the China trade, assembled in Lombard-street the other day to protest against this new policy of capitulation, and resolutions were passed of unmistakable significance. It was unanimously thought that Sir Rutherford Alcock had submitted to terms very injurious in every sense to his country. Since 1858 our Chinese commerce had rapidly extended; it was still hampered by restrictions, and any revision consented to should aim at their removal; but instead of that we have acquiesced in arrangements aggravating them. Our present Minister at Peking himself, when at Shanghai in the spring of last year, declared nothing would be more impolitic than to vary the stipulations of Tientsin, unless with a view of modification in our own behalf. Time, he added, was wanted in order to re-examine the whole subject of our treaty relations with China; in his opinion, the fresh settlement contemplated should be postponed, since the condition of the empire, with the temper of the official mind, was unsatisfactory; and he for one announced that he would be no party to any hurried diplomacy. Notwithstanding this declaration, we find him, within nine months of that date signing an additional act which is flagrantly offensive to British interests. By whose or by what instructions he was guided we pretend not to know; but whether he carried carte blanche with him, or had received categorical orders, certain it is that he has entered into an agreement against which the commercial sense of this country is most strongly roused. It is indeed true that two new ports under the revised convention are open: of this concession the Lombard-street memorial says little except that the trade likely to be established in them will more probably fall into the hands of Chinese than of British merchants. It does not deny that there is a chance of advantage in the bargain, or that some other details of the supplementary treaty are propitious. But, weighed altogether, they are as nothing in comparison with what we concede. One article stipulates that British texile fabrics shall not only pay import duty to the amount of five per cent., and transit dues equivalent to at least half that rate, but both of these charges are to be collected simultaneously on importation. The goods will then be liable to no further burthern in the Treaty Ports, but elsewhere they are subject to the mercies of an inland revenue system utterly capricious, and with respect to the transit dues they are a clear imposition upon our trade, because in many parts of China they are so insignificant that we shall be paying actually differential taxes. We may trust the Chinese always to cheat us in every respect as consummately as possible. Throughout their diplomacy they invariably exhibited a peculiar zest for reserves, afterthoughts, and artifices; their genius is one, no doubt, which overreaches itself; but why should we go out of the way to indulge them by wronging ourselves?

It would have been a more solid mission for Sir Rutherford Alcock to undertake had he sought to compel the observance of existing stipulations with respect to the inland duties, instead of rendering them still more oppressive and arbitrary. It is notorious that although the treaty of Tientsin engaged the Imperial Government to protect our traders by an uniform and settled fiscal system, the Imperial Government has had nothing whatever to do with it, but has left it altogether in the hands of the provincial authorities, whose exactions have been ruinously unscrupulous. Not only have British traders been pillaged on the transit inland, but Chinese traders besides, and these latter being the distributors of our commerce over that vast and hungry interior are in themselves representatives of our interests. Under pretence of mitigating this evil the new convention substitutes, for the hitherto existing optional commutations, commutations compulsory, but no guarantee is afforded that after their settlement at the treaty ports fresh demands would not be made by the local officials. If the treaty needed revision in any particular, it was in this very one which has been revised precisely in the wrong way. We paid five per cent., with a chance of paying half as much again; and for the future we shall have to pay unconditionally seven and a half per cent. without any security against additional and illegal charges. Plainly stated, the result is that Sir Rutherford Alcock has laid a heavy tax upon British trade in China. But this is not all. We depend principally for our silk manufacture and exchange upon the produce of that unique empire; and until now have purchased it subject to a duty of sixpence a pound on an equality with our rivals. But henceforth this duty will be doubled, with the addition of the transit dues already mentioned, so that our last act of conciliation will cost the consumer of China silk ninepence a pound extra. It is not merely upon our own market that this fact has a bearing, it is upon the Chinese market itself. We have hitherto been enabled to hold our ground against the native manufacturers, and they have long been endeavouring to curtail our supply. They have now succeeded. The courtesy of Sir Rutherford Alcock has erected a barricade of protection between them and us, and we shall have to buy raw silk at a premium, "particularly," as the Lombard-street circular explains, "of Taysaams, which enter largely into native consumption, and the diminished supplies of which have already caused our manufacturers much inconvenience." Now, it has been abundantly proved, that with our machinery, we can buy raw silk in China, bring it home, work it up, carry it back, and sell it there again at a profit, exactly as we might do with cotton in a realm wherein not far from one-third of the human race pulls on a pair of blue cotton drawers every morning. This illustration alone should persuade us of the importance attaching to such a change as that against which the China merchants have entered their emphatic protest. The vista of our possible prosperity in that land of millions is boundless; but, as if Chinese obstructiveness were not enough, we are erecting gates to keep ourselves out. If upon silk an additional duty is justified, upon tea we should have insisted to have an equivalent reduction. The Chinese get an enormous revenue out of that article, and we have yielded everything to them without a solitary compensation to ourselves. Happily, the treaty which makes so handsome a present to China is not yet ratified, and will become a topic of discussion in Parliament; and there is yet time to remedy the mischief which a minister, acting too implicitly upon his confidence in the unnational sentiments of the Government, has, without an apparent purpose or reason, wrought to the discredit and injury of British commerce. This supplementary convention, in effect, lays an addition of fifty per cent. over existing duties upon the import of textile goods into China, enforces an important aggravation upon those duties in the process of levying them, affords no security for the cessation or diminution of illegal exactions in the interior, and increases by one hundred per cent. the duties upon the most valuable exports. And this is an improvement upon a treaty!

(THE TIMES.)

The Convention recently negotiated by Sir Rutherford Alcock, by which the Treaty of Tientsin is revised, is not favourably regarded by the principal China merchants in this country. In our comments on the Convention a short time ago we recognised its material deficiencies in several points, in which further concessions were not only needed, but had been expected. On the other hand, it appeared to us that material advantages were granted in the new stipulations, that our trade would be really facilitated, and that if the advance gained was but a small one, it was still a decided advance. We, therefore, expressed an opinion that, on the whole, it would be wise to content ourselves with such peaceable concessions, and to prosecute them to the utmost. The new relations inevitably promoted could not fail in time to render further freedom of trade necessary alike for the Chinese and for ourselves; and it would be better to advance thus gradually and securely than violently to extort a greater degree of legal freedom at the cost of provoking increased moral hostility. It is satisfactory to learn through the English Press of China that our views are in agreement with those of the mercantile community in that country. "The general feeling," says a Shanghai letter, "among those most interested is one of satisfaction. The advantages gained are substantial, and not the less acceptable because equally beneficial to Chinese as to foreigners, and because acceded to with a good grace by the Chinese authorities, instead of being reluctantly yielded under foreign pressure." Another local journal "does not hesitate to say that everything has been provided for as well as it possibly could have been under the circumstances." It is admitted that the foreign community may at first sight be unfavourably disposed to Sir Rutherford Alcock's solution of the transit dues question; but it is believed that the "more the measure is understood the more it will seem well-considered and satisfactory." That this is an accurate representation of the opinion of merchants on the spot is proved by a series of resolutions passed by the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce at its annual meeting. These resolutions welcome with "satisfaction" and "approval" the more important parts of the Convention, subject only to the reasonable provision that it be strictly enforced. They protest, as is but natural, against the increase in the export duties on silk and in the import duties on opium; but their approval decidedly outweighs their objections. If we are peaceably to negotiate a Convention with China, it is almost a necessary consequence that to some degree our concessions must be mutual. We cannot expect to gain all and give nothing. The practical question is, therefore, whether the advantages secured by this Convention are of more value than those which are sacrificed. The local merchants appear decidedly of opinion that the balance of advantage is in favour of the proposed revision. The China merchants in London take precisely the opposite view. They consider "that the other clauses of the Convention contain nothing of countervailing advantages as against the injurious character of the increase on silk and opium," and they consequently make a formal request that the revision should not be ratified. The Government will, no doubt, feel it necessary to give careful consideration to what seems the unanimous opinion of the London representatives of the trade; but the local opinion is at least equally deserving of respect. A too easy acquiescence in the proposals of the Chinese Government has never yet been the fault of the foreign community in China, and a Convention which, on the whole, commends itself to them would seem at least worthy of trial.

The main point at issue may be readily explained. It need hardly be said that nothing is more essential to the development of our trade than full liberty to convey our goods into the interior of China and to retail them there. The Chinese fiscal system, as it is usually applied, offers very great obstacles to such freedom of trade. Barriers are maintained along the great lines of internal communication, at which transit dues are exacted, and the extortions of Chinese officials might thus most injuriously enhance the prices of our imports. Hitherto, in order to escape this danger, a "transit pass" has been granted upon payment of a fixed charge in commutation of all barrier dues. The import duty on textile fabrics is 5 per cent, ad valorem. A payment of 2½ per cent. in addition entitled a foreign owner to a transit pass. In practice, however, the officials contrived materially to neutralise this concession. The most frequent device was to deny foreign ownership, and when such a point was once raised it was, of course, a matter of considerable trouble and time to furnish the necessary proof. It was not difficult, in short, to treat the transit pass as fraudulent, and to demand barrier dues notwithstanding. Now, according to the proposed revision, the additional 2½ per cent. just mentioned will be rendered compulsory on foreign goods, and will practically be added to the import duty. But in return for this payment the Chinese, in the first place, abandon all restrictions depending on ownership. They further abolish absolutely the transit pass for all the nine coast provinces in which we have Treaty Ports. Consequently, according to a local critic, "in these nine provinces all foreign goods are to pass freely, from the mere fact of their being such; so that the intention is that foreign manufactures should here circulate as unrestrictedly as they would do in Great Britain or the United States." It appears to us difficult to exaggerate the value of such a concession, and that, to quote again from a local authority, "such a benefit is cheaply bought at 2½ per cent." The 2½ per cent., however, is not an additional tax on goods sold in the interior. It is an additional charge only on goods passing into local consumption. In the inland provinces a transit pass will still be requisite, but it is to be granted without any further charge; and if any attempt is made to levy taxes at the barriers, the "Commissioner of Customs is to send a competent foreign inspector to investigate the case on the spot, and any money illegally levied is to be immediately refunded." The Chamber of Commerce at Shanghai is said to have always held that "the most essential questions to be considered were those relating to the bona fide introduction into China of English manufactures." It would seem indisputable that this great object is fully provided for in these Regulations. That foreign made goods, by virtue merely of their foreign make, should be allowed to circulate freely in nine out of the eighteen provinces of China is a concession of absolute freedom of trade in the more important half of the Empire. The Chamber of Commerce at Shanghai fully recognises its importance, and it is to this they give that decided approval we have quoted. The question raised by the London merchants is whether this concession is worth the augmentation of the duties on silk and opium. It is not easy to see how any doubt can be entertained on the point. Particular duties are liable to future revision, but absolute freedom of trade in nine provinces of China cannot fail to lead to further progress, and, once granted, can never be recalled.

Digitized by Google

The Shanghai Chamber of Commerce, indeed, expresses its fear, "based on facts elicited, that the compulsory payment of transit dues will only add a further tax on trade, unless the foreign Governments adopt measures more efficient than hitherto in inducing the Chinese to keep their engagements." Apprehensions that this vigilance will not be exerted seem to have mainly influenced the London merchants in their distrust of the new provisions. It, indeed, appears obvious that the system proposed will afford the Chinese officials far fewer opportunities of obstruction. But there is another observation which has an important bearing on the question. The English Government will be in a much better position for exacting such a performance of engagements from the Chinese if it stands on the footing of a new Convention voluntarily accepted by the Chinese authorities themselves. In the instructive correspondence we published the other day between Mr. Burlingame and Count Bismark, the Chinese Envoy expressly observed that, in the eyes of the Chinese, the existing treaties are in some degree discredited by their origin, and he implied that mutual agreements, in pursuance of their general objects, would stand a much better chance of being duly observed. Such feelings are at all events perfectly natural, and a recognition of them should render us very unwilling to repudiate a Convention which our Representative has obtained from the Court of Peking by friendly negotiation. If, as appears to be the case, the balance of mercantile authority be divided, this consideration might perhaps carry the day. The Shanghai Chamber, indeed, suggest a simple means of protecting ourselves. They propose that "the compulsory payment, which is the consideration for the guarantee against internal dues, should be made terminable by the Convention within a specified date, unless the guarantee should be found effective." Such a provision would, perhaps, have the advantage of testing the good faith of the Chinese, and at the same time afford us the means of vindicating our rights without an appeal to force. But, for our part, we are satisfied that the impulse which would necessarily be given to trade by the formal concession of absolute freedom would soon create interests among the Chinese themselves too powerful for their Government to disregard. Let it once be publicly proclaimed that the interior of China is as free to British manufactures as the United Kingdom itself, and we are confident that all remaining restrictions must gradually disappear.

MR. MATHESON ON THE NEW TREATY.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE TIMES."

SIR,—As one of the London merchants to whom you refer in your article to-day on the new Convention with China, may I be permitted a few words of explanation? I am not unaware that we appear to act an ungracious part, when everyone is talking of concessions made by the Chinese Government, to throw doubts upon their value and importance, and to draw marked attention to other points that have been yielded by Her Majesty's representative which, as we conceive, will inflict a direct injury on British trade. We refer particularly to the compulsory payment of transit dues on the importation of textile fabrics and to the increased export duty on silk. In taking this course, our action is contrasted with that of the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce, from whose resolutions you quote; and while you admit that Government may feel it necessary carefully to consider our representations, you justly remark that the local opinion is at least equally deserving of credit.

In order to enable your readers to judge how far the contrast is warranted, I take leave to enclose a copy of both sets of resolutions, which I request the favour of your printing. I venture to quote but one sentence from those adopted at Shanghai, in which, after expressing approval of certain parts of the Convention, the Chamber goes on to say:—

"But considering that similar obligations undertaken in the treaties of Nanking and Tientsin, have hitherto been disregarded by the Chinese, and not enforced by the Treaty Powers, the Chamber cannot refrain from declaring its opinion that unless the Chinese Government should be more faithful in the future than it has been in the past, and that the British Government should be more strict in exacting the performance of such engagements than it has hitherto been, the effect of the stipulation will be to increase the burdens upon foreign trade, already too heavy."

We are preparing a full statement of our views upon the Convention, to be submitted to Her Majesty's Government. That the subject is one of great importance will be universally admitted when it is considered that it affects our commercial relations with a people who number one-third of the whole human race. When asking, therefore, that it may receive a calm and full consideration, I feel that I am not asking too much. Let me only further say that I regret you have made us complain of "the injurious character of the increase of duty on silk and opium." No reference whatever was made to the duty on opium at the meeting of the London merchants at which I had the honour to preside. It was felt to be a question in which the merchants of London have no direct interest. And for my own part, and without committing others, I do not hesitate to add that I should welcome any measure, from whatever quarter, with reference to the trade in opium which would compel the Government of India to develop the resources of our great Eastern Empire in a less objectionable direction, and to seek its chief revenue from sources that are not liable to the abuses or productive of the moral evils which inevitably attend the cultivation and the consumption of this article.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

3, Lombard-street, Feb. 2. H. M. MATHESON.

(PALL MALL GAZETTE, FEB. 5.)

Considering the great and growing importance of the China trade to the producing interests of this country, it would be improper to give a final opinion on the new Treaty with the Chinese Government until the English mercantile community trading with China have completed the memorial on the subject which they are understood to be preparing. But, so far as they have expressed themselves up to this point, we must say that the merchants in China who, with certain exceptions, approve the Treaty, show to much advantage beside the merchants in London, who, also with certain exceptions, disapprove it. We must be pardoned for the remark that the London meeting, and Mr. Matheson in his letter to The Times, deals far too much with mere phrases. Thus, of the two great concessions proposed to be made to the Chinese Government, the increase of the duty on silk is called "retrograde," while the augmentation of the duty on opium is commended, and coupled with an invitation to the Indian Government to "develop the resources of India" in some other manner. The first phrase is intolerable English, as the last is intolerable Indian, cant. The local community, on the other hand, clearly understand that the treaty, with certain amendments, will probably work. And this is what before all things is wanted—a working treaty. It would be difficult to express in exaggerated language the dangerousness of a conventional engagement, with such a Power as China which cannot really be acted upon, and which, with the vague claims it suggests, and the indefinite grievances it creates, is as sure to end in compromising the English Government as in disorganising the Government of China. It is not too much to say that any day, before we know where we are, we may find all the problems of our early connection with India cast before us for solution in the most hopeless form.

The first great point is to substitute treaty engagements which can for treaty engagements which cannot be carried out; but, even when that has been gained, we are as far as possible from having seen the end of our difficulties. Some power on the spot is urgently required which is strong enough to prevent transgression of the treaty by Englishmen, either in the letter or in the spirit, and thus to nip in the bud a new crop of questions which otherwise will certainly arise. The opinions of Sir Charles Dilke are, we are aware, gall and wormwood to gentlemen whose interests lie to the east of India; but, though so rapid a traveller is doubtless occasionally mistaken, he has the merit of having seen that the relations of trading Englishmen to the Chinese authorities and their subjects require a study by themselves. We rejoice to perceive that a gentleman who speaks with the highest authority on the government of distant dependencies has contributed a practical suggestion to the solution of these menacing problems. Mr. Merivale, in the new number of the Fortnightly Review, argues that all Chinese, Japanese, and Indo-Chinese affairs should be placed under one central management. The present arrangements, in point of fact, mean that everything has been left to pure accident. The simple rule of thumb which governs the practice of the English Government in these matters is that where the Crown claims territorial sovereignty, the Colonial-office manages; where it does not, the Foreign-office controls. But inasmuch as in all these countries the Crown has a personal jurisdiction over its subjects by treaty or usage, a distinction which turns on a claim to territorial sovereignty is meaningless, and furnishes no ground for the distribution of authority. There is just as much reason why the Colonial-office should exercise jurisdiction over the Englishmen in China amenable to the Court at Hong Kong, as there is for its having authority over Englishmen in Ceylon amenable to the Court at Colombo. The one feature which all these assemblages of Englishmen have in common, and one which casts into the shade all differences between them, is their contact with certain Oriental races—races with characteristics strongly marked, but almost as distinct from Hindoos as they are from Englishmen. The Foreign-office, with its whole heart in diplomacy, and the Colonial-office, with its chief interest in communities of self-governing Englishmen, have not the experience which fits them for dealing with problems to which even the India office would probably be unequal; since, though better suited for the work than the other departments, it has already quite enough to do, and the superintendence of the relations between Englishman and natives is not its chief or proper function. Mr. Merivale proposes that there shall be some great local functionary, Minister or Governor-General, placed, not at Peking, but at some more central and accessible spot, who shall be responsible directly to the Crown, and who, with the authority of the Crown at his back, shall be able to prescribe and enforce rules for the conduct of every Englishman from Ceylon to Japan. What shall be the controlling department in England is a point which Mr. Merivale leaves open. We venture upon the suggestion that the machinery could best be provided by an addition to the Board of Trade, which the opportunity might be taken to convert into a Secretaryship of State.

Digitized by Google

We hold to the opinion, which we have already expressed, that, great as are the advantages of a working Treaty, it would be ignoble to buy them at the cost of fresh burdens on the natives of India. We are very far from asserting that the Chinese Government might not be allowed to obtain some new advantage from opium if time were given to the Indian Government to adjust its cultivation to the new state of the market which an augmentation of the duty would inevitably produce. But it is necessary to renew our protest against hastily conceding the enhancement of the tariff, because the London merchants plainly trust to popular prejudice to secure them from an augmented export duty on silk, which would be a real concession from England to China, by forcing the Government to consent to an augmented import duty on opium, which would be no concession at all. Mr. Matheson tells The Times that he should "welcome any measure which would compel the Government of India to develop the resources of our great Eastern Empire in a less objectionable direction, and to seek its chief revenue from sources that are not liable to the abuses or productive of the moral evils which inevitably attend the cultivation and the consumption of this article." It is worth while observing that the two branches of the proposition nullify one another. When the Government of India is told to "develop the resources" of the country in some other direction, the practical meaning is that it is to abandon its monopoly of opium, and fill up the void in its revenues by some new tax on its subjects. But the Indian Government, if it gives up its monopoly, must give up the accessories also, and consequently must relax the prohibition against cultivating the poppy except under licence from itself. The inevitable result would be an enormous extension of one of the most popular of crops under a climate which of all others in the world is the most favourable to it. The "moral evil," therefore, which Mr. Matheson attributes to opium would have its area immensely increased in China, and not only in China, but probably in India itself, and in all the vast countries surrounding it. It is, of course, possible to reply that the cultivation of the poppy should in that case be forbidden to the natives of India. But with all our belief in the fancy which Englishmen have for giving effect to moral platitudes when it is not sobered by their appetite for gain, we cannot persuade ourselves that even English public opinion could be roused to demand such a measure. The Chinese and the Hindoos, though much under British influence, are for moral purposes foreign nations, and to say that one shall not sell a particular drug to the other would be the extremest step on which English Puritanism has ventured. It would be taken, too, when our own morality on this class of questions is not settled—for we have not yet adopted the principles of teetotalism—and when the physiological point which underlies the whole controversy has been barely approached, since it is only just beginning to dawn upon medical men in the East that it is at least doubtful whether a population which is perpetually consuming a nervous stimulant can do without a corresponding sedative. Such considerations, joined to our ignorance of the past and present history of the local growth of the poppy, confirm the opinion that there should be no hasty or ill-considered interference with the Indian monopoly.

TRANSIT DUES.

The following letter appeared in the Standard of the 4th instant:—

Sir,—The fourth clause of the first supplementary rule of the new Treaty with China provides that British manufactures which are to be conveyed to a non treaty port province shall, on their being accompanied by a transit certificate, be exempted from all illegal exactions en route. But it further provides:—"On the arrival of such duly certificated commodities at the place set forth in the certificate, the certificate will become invalid, and the commodities having arrived at their place of destination will be liable to whatever inland charges dues, or duties, the locality they are found in collects, and will henceforth be treated like native produce in the localities concerned."

Now this clause, it seems to me, is the most damaging to British interests of any in the Treaty, and it must have the effect of doing vast injury to British trade in China if approved of by Her Majesty's Government in its present form. Lord Elgin's Treaty of 1858 provides that 2½ per cent. ad valorem should be considered a commutation for all inland dues and taxes whatever, after foreign goods have first paid five per cent. duty at the port of entry. The payment of 7½ per cent. thus frees them from all further exactions, and, practically speaking, this was really the most valuable concession obtained by the Treaty of Tientsin. All our efforts in China have tended to one end—that our goods should be allowed free ingress to the country, and unimpeded transit through the interior in consideration of having paid this fixed stipulated tariff of 7½ per cent. The mercantile community in the East has always looked upon this as the turning point of Lord Elgin's Treaty—the one concession of the highest value and most practical benefit to foreign commercial relations.

The present treaty of Sir R. Alcock, however, opens a loophole for any amount of exactions and arbitrary imposts in the non-treaty port provinces. As soon as it becomes known to the local mandarins that they cannot tax British merchandise in transitu, but that directly the goods have reached their place of destination they become subject to "whatever inland charges, dues, or duties the locality they are found in collects," then the levy of black mail by the way will cease, but in its stead a new crop of exactions will spring up far more damaging to our interests and far more ruinous to our trade than any that have hitherto existed. That such will be the inevitable result no one who is familiar with the ways of Chinese provincial officials can for a moment doubt. The consumers and native merchants who deal in foreign goods will be mulcted according to the wants or pleasure of the local authorities. Prohibitive duties will be imposed legally on British textile fabrics, and Her Majesty's Minister at Peking will not even have the power to protest against such arbitrary imposts. We thus virtually abandon our treaty rights in nine non-treaty port provinces, and these probably the most populous and prosperous in the empire.

I have had considerable personal intercourse with the Chinese people and their officials, and I have no hesitation in saying that if the above clause is ratified by Her Majesty's Government in its present form it will do permanent injury to British trade with China. It will virtually hamper our intercourse with the provinces of Szechuen, Hoonan, Quei-chow, Shan-se, Shen-se, and Ho nan, and will be the source of endless difficulties and international misunderstandings between the two Governments. How Sir Rutherford Alcock could have admitted such a clause into his treaty is more than I can imagine, and I feel assured that when the matter is properly discussed he will be the first to admit that the clause in question is antagonistic to our interests. It should certainly be expunged from the ratified treaty. J. M. C.

London, Feb. 4.

THE BRADFORD CHAMBER AND THE CHINA CONVENTION.

A special meeting of the Bradford Chamber of Commerce was held on the 4th instant, to consider the Peking Supplementary Convention

Mr. Jacob Behrens, the president, occupied the chair, and, in opening the meeting, gave a history of the Convention. He expressed the belief that many of the British residents had become anxious to obtain an extension of privileges and a guarantee for those already secured. The points most objected to in the previous Convention were the smallness of the imposts on textiles and the transit dues, the increase on the export duty of silk, and a higher tax on Indian opium. He observed that the export duty on silk would not be more than 5 per cent. originally bargained for, and the market price would probably not be raised in Europe; but the Chinese grower would have to take so much less at home. He thought if the new regulations were carried out, it would do away with all the formalities of certificates and other papers in the treaty provinces, for it provided that British textiles might circulate freely in the treaty provinces. That was the advantage upon which Sir Rutherford Alcock had strongly insisted, and it might be presumed that it would be fully carried out. The knowledge which the people of China would thus possess would take it out of the power of the mandarins to continue their "squeezing" practices. In some respects there had been a going back to their former policy, for by the new Convention the importer would have to pay 7½ per cent. instead of 5 per cent. That would add 2½ per cent. to goods consumed at the Treaty Ports themselves, and thus far it imposed a fresh burden upon woollen and other textiles. But the extra 2½ per cent. might be obviated by the establishment of bonding warehouses in the Treaty Ports, as provided in Rule 6, for they might suppose that, the goods being lodged in the warehouses, the duty would be paid by the buyers of the goods—the Chinese themselves. According to his view of the new Convention, he believed the advantages would more than compensate for those portions which seemed to take them back to the old system. He was sorry to find that the first clause had hitherto been overlooked, because it was more important than any other. Sir Rutherford Alcock was of opinion that the wording was preferable to the old one, but he (the president) thought it was a dangerous clause, and fatal to the whole. The British Government ought to hesitate before they accepted a treaty which would not come into operation before it was adopted by any other nation.

The character of the Convention formed the subject of much discussion, and there was much diversity of opinion upon it. Several gentlemen, including Mr. Homan and Mr. Dunlop, urged the objectionable effect of imposing higher duties, and contended that the levying of these duties at the Treaty Ports would not prevent subsequent "squeezing" by the mandarins in the interior, because there was no guarantee, in consequence of the weakness of the Chinese Executive, that additional imports would not be levied. Others, like Mr. Alfred Illingworth, were of opinion that the principle of levying the duties at the Treaty Ports commended itself for its simplicity and soundness, and that if it were faithfully adhered to, without entailing disadvantages in other directions, the result would be beneficial to our trade with China.

Ultimately, Mr. H. W. Ripley moved a resolution to the following effect:—"That a deputation be appointed to communicate with the Manchester and other Chambers of Commerce and the London merchants as to what action we ought to adopt in this matter, and that they be requested to report to an early meeting of this Chamber." Mr. C. Semon seconded the motion, which was adopted unanimously. It was suggested that the proposed "communication" might be obtained with the representatives of the various bodies referred to in London during the forthcoming meeting of the associated Chambers of Commerce.

Digitized by Google

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS, CORRESPONDENTS, &c.

No notice can be taken of anonymous correspondence. Whatever is intended for insertion must be accompanied by the name and address of the writer, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith.

A REGISTER is kept of the addresses of all persons connected with the FAR EAST, and reference can be made to the same by personal application at the Office or by letter.

Any Information required by Subscribers, in reference to Commercial or general matters in CHINA, JAPAN, SINGAPORE, and other parts of the FAR EAST, will be supplied on application at the Office, where files may be seen of the Journals published in those Countries.

The "LONDON AND CHINA TELEGRAPH" is published on the arrival of the fortnightly English mail, and the monthly French mail. Subscription, 30s. per annum; with Export Supplement, £2 2s.

The "LONDON AND CHINA EXPRESS" is published on the day of departure of the mails, and contains a Summary of English, Continental, and American, News-Commercial and Shipping Reports, &c. Subscription, 54s. per annum; with Export Supplement, 66s.

JAMES WEST, PUBLISHER,
2, COWPER'S-COURT, CORNHILL, LONDON.

The London & China Telegraph.

LONDON: MONDAY, FEB. 7, 1870.

SIR R. ALCOCK AND HIS NEW TREATY.

THE Shanghai merchants are thankful for small mercies. The string of resolutions passed at the recent meeting of the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce with reference to the New Convention, starts with an expression of thanks to Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK that seems to us quite uncalled for. The Shanghai community, among others, took no little pains to convey to the Minister a clear exposition of their views regarding the revision of the Treaty; and in replying to their memorial, his Excellency acknowledged its value, fully concurred in their opinion that no important alterations in the tariff were needed—freely admitted the necessity for "the bonâ fide admission into the country of English manufactures"—and assured them that with regard to the "better "execution of the provisions regulating the conditions of "foreign trade, an effective revision was already in progress, "with every disposition on the part of the Chinese Govern-"ment to give it effect and to sanction such modifications as "experience may have shown to be desirable in the interests "of trade." These statements on the part of the British minister clearly encouraged the merchants to entertain hopes that were not destined to be realised. After agreeing that the tariff needed no alteration, he submitted to a double duty on one of the two chief exports; the bona fide admission of English goods into the interior is as far off as ever, while the tax payable on their merely being landed at the ports is raised fifty per cent.; and the disposition on the part of the Chinese Government to give effect to a satisfactory revision of the Treaty clearly never existed, except in so far as they were determined on a revision which could be satisfactory to themselves alone. These things being considered, we submit that the Shanghai merchants have good reason to believe that they were in some degree misled, and in fact lulled into a feeling of false security by Sir RUTHERFORD'S despatch above quoted, so their expression of thanks to him was decidedly gratuitous. On the other hand, however, he cannot be held deserving of any great amount of censure, for he was in fact tied hand and foot—so bound down by instructions from home that (as the Chinese Government well knew) he dared not even hint at anything like pressure. Sir RUTHERFORD will not be sorry to get quit of the anomalous position of a "Minister Plenipotentiary" without any powers.

As might be expected, the supporters of Lord CLARENDON'S policy have not been slow to find out the weak points in the Shanghai resolutions, and turn them to account. The Times has a long leading article comparing these resolutions (which it assumes to represent the feeling of the merchants throughout China) with the views of the China merchants here, as expressed at the recent meeting in Lombard-street; the inference deduced being, that the opinion of the Shanghai Chamber is on the whole favourable to the new convention, and that, being formed on the spot, it is more worthy of credence and support than the opinion of the London meeting. It is greatly to be regretted that the resolutions of the Shanghai Chamber were framed in such a manner as to leave them open to misconstruction. The superfluous expressions of gratitude to Sir R. ALCOCK, and the unnecessary use of the words "satisfaction" and "approval" are quite enough to give The Times a hold, and we accordingly find it boldly asserted that the local merchants are "decidedly of opinion that the balance of advantage is in favour of the proposed revision." This is of course very wide of the truth; but then the said local merchants expressed their opinion in such an exceedingly mild, hesitating way, that they can hardly wonder at their meaning being misinterpreted. "The China merchants in London," The Times goes on to say, "take precisely the opposite view"—which is another bold assertion, considering that it rests on no foundation whatever. The interests of the merchants on both sides are necessarily identical, and their views and wishes substantially the same; the only difference is that in Shanghai they have been put forth with many qualifications and apologies, while here they are uttered in a distinct downright way, without any beating about the bush. Still, it is unfortunate that even this apparent dissimilarity should exist, as it gives The Times an opportunity of arguing that the Shanghai merchants hold views "precisely opposite" to those expressed here, and that as the Shanghai community is generally opposed to all proposals of the Chinese Government, a treaty that they don't find fault with must be a very satisfactory one indeed. The article in The Times, however, did not long remain unanswered. In a brief but forcibly written letter of the 2nd instant, addressed to the editor, Mr. HUGH MATHESON points out the fallacy of his arguments, and shows that the contrast on which they are based is entirely unwarranted. We commend this letter to our readers; it will be found, together with the article from The Times, one from the Standard, and another from the Pall Mall Gazette, in another part of our paper.

GOVERNOR ORD'S YACHT.

THE communication recently addressed by the Straits Settlements Association to Earl GRANVILLE on the subject of the steam-yacht required by Sir HARRY ORD, has met with a reply to the effect that the decision of the Colonial-office is still pending, and indicating that it will depend to some extent on the result of an inquiry into the actual state of the finances of the colony. In answering thus, the Secretary of State for the Colonies evades the point at issue. The question is, not what additional burdens the resources of the colony can be made to bear for the gratification of Governor ORD, but whether the proposed steam-yacht is needed at all. If it could be demonstrated that the possession of such a vessel was necessary to the well-being of the colony, or would enhance its prosperity in any way, we cannot doubt that the colonists would gladly acquire one, even at the cost of an increased scale of taxation. But unless this can be proved—and at present there is not one particle of evidence in support of the supposition,—it would be a piece of culpable extravagance to expend one hundred thousand dollars in such a manner, whether the finances of the colony could bear it or not. Even supposing the Governor's assumption that there will be a surplus to be verified, still, that surplus should be devoted to the remission of taxation, not to the purchase of a costly toy. The notion of thus uselessly expending a surplus, simply because you have it to spend, is one strangely at variance with the principles of economy so loudly professed by the present Government.

These, and some other considerations, are very forcibly brought to Lord GRANVILLE'S notice in a letter addressed to him by the honorary secretary of the association on the 21st inst. "Expressions of dissent from this misapplication of public money," his lordship is informed, "continue to reach the Association from the colony." This is putting it mildly; misappropriation would have been the more correct term, for if permitted, it will simply be a confiscation of so much money by the Governor for his own especial use and enjoyment. The letter then goes on to comment on the reasons adduced for the maintenance of a colonial steam fleet. Firstly, it is said to be needed for the conveyance of the Governor and other public officers between the different ports of the colony. Now we have known persons of even more exalted rank and greater importance in every way (except self-importance, for in that he could hardly be surpassed) than Governor ORD, who deemed it not inconsistent with their nobility to travel unostentatiously in a P. and O. steamer, and that even when engaged on important missions. Now the mail and other trading steamers passing through Singapore afford communication with either Penang or Malacca (both ways) twice or three times a week, and some of them could always be chartered, at very moderate cost, for any urgent occasion. Would it be altogether subversive of the gubernatorial dignity if Sir HARRY were occasionally to put his aristocratic foot on a deck that had been contaminated with bales of merchandise? The second and third requirements are the effective administration of the lighthouse service, and the keeping up of communication with the various rivers on the east and west coasts, for the purpose of suppressing the broils frequently arising (to the detriment of British interests) among petty native chieftains. Both these services, it seems to us, can be effectively performed by the two steamers the colony already possesses. Indeed, as regards the latter, we are disposed to agree with the Association, who suggest (in the letter now before us) that Sir HARRY ORD'S penchant for armed intervention in the internal squabbles among native States should rather be checked than encouraged; for in any real emergency the services of a man-of-war could always be procured. The fourth (and last) purpose for which the steam fleet is said to be required is "the preservation of the prestige of the colony, and the suppression of piracy." As regards piracy, its suppression is a duty that concerns the Imperial Government. The colony of Hong Kong, though somewhat hardly treated in the matter of the military contribution, is not required to keep up a steam fleet for the suppression of piracy on the adjacent coast; that work is very properly performed by the gun-boats of the squadron on that station. Why should Straits piracy be dealt with in a different manner? And finally, as to the "prestige of the colony," it appears to us that the only thing that endangers it at the present moment is—Governor ORD. The best preservative measure will at once suggest itself to our readers. It is plainer than ever that the Straitsonians don't like "King Stork," but they will probably have to bear with him as best they can, for some time yet.

Digitized by Google

IN another column we insert a somewhat long but very instructive letter from Singapore, on the subject of Governor ORD'S beneficent rule. The writer gives many interesting details, not only regarding the manœuvres practised in the matter of the new yacht and the building of the Governor's palace, but also about the manner in which the visit of the Duke of EDINBURGH was made a means of heaping contumely on the residents—rather a delicate subject to handle. We strongly commend it to the attention of the Colonial-office.

"OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT."

THE ignorance of most home newspapers regarding China and Japan affairs has come to be proverbial, but at least those journals that boast of "Own Correspondents" in the Far East ought to be better informed. The United Service Gazette, a paper of high standing among its class and one generally believed to be reliable, has lately published some letters from China and Japan, with the heading, "From our "own Correspondent," so full of gross misstatements that we can hardly credit the writer's assertion that his "facts" are based on the experience of many years' residence. Two of these letters now before us—one which appeared in the issue of the 1st instant, and one a short time previously—are of great length, and each of them is from beginning to end a tissue of misrepresentations, false accusations, and slander. The members of the English Legations and of the Consular service come in for the largest share of abuse, and the junior members especially are scoffingly called "addle-pated youngsters," and their usefulness altogether denied. Now although "kissing goes by favour" in the Consular as in other services, we are able to bear testimony to the fact that in almost every case where young men have been placed in prominent positions in China or Japan they have displayed such marked ability as fully justified their advancement. As an instance of the "lavish and wanton expenditure" whereby they are enabled "to flourish in idleness and luxury," this veracious correspondent tells, with much indignation, how a new consulate at Yokohama has been built "at a cost of $225,000, or in English pounds, £45,000 of hard cash," and describes it as "a tall jim-crack structure with three plastered towers, costing £7,000 a-piece." Now every word of this is false. The entire cost of the consulate will not exceed $28,000 dollars, or about £6,300; and Major CROSSMAN, R.E., who designed the building, has taken the trouble (it was hardly worth while) to write to the United Service Gazette and explain this. The assertions of the writer throughout are evidently dictated as much by malice as by ignorance, and the animus pervading the letters is so bitter and so transparent, that we wonder any respectable journal could be found to print them.

MR. BRIGHT will perhaps be surprised to learn that he is likely to receive material aid from China towards the realisation of his pet idea of "a cheap breakfast table." We respectfully commend to the hon. gentleman's notice the following extract from a letter just received from Shanghai:—"The rubbish going forward in the shape of re-dried "tea-leaves will astonish you; it is called here 'Ma-"loo mixture,' Ma-loo being the name of the street leading "to the race-course. Along its sides may be seen heaps of "this trash being dried in the sun, dogs and pigs walking "through and over it; so beware of tasting any. This novel "luxury is said to cost ten taels per picul, duty paid, and "several thousand packages have been shipped to foreign "countries." We believe the idea of making tea-leaves do double duty is not altogether novel, but have not before heard of it as a commercial speculation on a large scale. At any rate, here is curious evidence of the frugality and industry of the Celestials, and of the aid afforded them even by the lower animals, in providing us with a cheap tea that will doubtless be found to possess those desirable characteristics, "point" and "pungency." Cannot Mr. LOWE be persuaded to arrange for the admission of this cheap delicacy at a reduced rate of duty?

THE P. and O. Company have issued a summary of the collections made on board their steamers in aid of the Merchant Seamen's Orphan Asylum. The statement shows that since April, 1867, these collections (the contents of boxes placed to receive contributions from passengers, &c.) have amounted to nearly £1,400, of which £583 was collected in the year 1869 On board some of the vessels the donations have reached from £50 to £100, while, by a curious contrast, the boxes in the company's offices at Hong Kong and Shanghai have realised 10s. 6d. and £1 11s. 6d. respectively. Perhaps the sea air and the increased gastronomic powers imparted thereby tend to develop the charitable impulses of the passengers. The money is applied to good purpose, for it has already enabled the secretary of the company to get into the asylum nine orphans connected with the service, who would otherwise have been almost, if not quite, destitute. We may conscientiously recommend these collecting-boxes as desirable receptacles for an occasional spare dollar or rupee.

THE new Convention with China formed the principal subject of discussion at the meeting of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce on the 26th January. A resolution was passed expressing a hope that the Convention will not be ratified until sufficient time has been allowed for its consideration, or until Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK reaches England, and has had an opportunity of explaining the clauses which seem open to objection. The Bradford Chamber held a special meeting on the 4th to consider the Convention, at which, after a long discussion, it was resolved to appoint a deputation to consult with the other Chambers of Commerce and the Committee of London Merchants. A report of the latter meeting will be found in another column.

THE last two mails have brought undefined rumours that Mr. BURLINGAME'S American Convention had been ratified, and the news just received by way of San Francisco tends to confirm them. Mr. MCLEAVY BROWN, Chief Secretary of the Chinese Mission, was among the passengers who reached San Francisco on the 23rd of January by the Pacific mail, and is stated to be the bearer of the ratified Convention. It is also said that Mr. BURLINGAME'S mission to Europe is extended for two years.

AMONG the passengers to China by the present mail is Mr. P. R. SMITH, who goes to Shanghai to join the editorial staff of the North China Herald. Mr. SMITH has been engaged on the press in Scotland, and on leaving Nairn was entertained by his friends and the principal residents, who, in wishing him "God-speed," spoke highly of his abilities.

Digitized by Google

IN connection with Mr. ANNERSTEDT'S late mission to the Far East, his Majesty the King of SWEDEN and NORWAY has conferred the Grand Star of the Order of WASA on Mr. FRANK FORBES, Consul General for Sweden and Norway at Shanghai The following gentlemen have been made knights of the same Order :—Mr. HART, Inspector General of Chinese Customs; Mr. G. HELLAND, Consul for Sweden and Norway at Hong Kong; Mr. W. VAN DER TAK, of Yokohama; and M. P. LE MESURIER, of Bombay. Gold medals have also been presented to Dr. J. IVOR MURRAY, of Hong Kong, and Mr. S. WELLS WILLIAMS, of the U.S. Legation at Peking.

THE King of PRUSSIA, as President of the Confederation, has recognised the principle and expediency of the Federal ships of war taking part in the naval operations of the other maritime Powers for putting down piracy in the Far East. On the requisition of the Federal Chancellor (Count BISMARK), orders have therefore been given to Captain Kohler, of the Hertha (of whose difficulties in getting through the Suez Canal our Hamburg correspondent lately gave some account), to join any such expedition undertaken by any other maritime state. These orders are not confined to special instructions, but great latitude is given to him to act in each case at his own discretion.

WE lately noticed the appointment of Mr. HENRY JEFFARD TARRANT to the post of Acting Chief Justice at Maulmain (Recorder would have been the more correct designation), and by the last mail we hear that Mr. CORYTON, who holds the appointment, had returned from his visit to China and Japan, and Mr. TARRANT leaves for Allahabad to practice there as a barrister. The community of Maulmain appear to have been well satisfied with Mr. TARRANT'S administration of affairs, and the Maulmain Advertiser suggests that he should be made Recorder at Akyab.

THE postal authorities continue to mark their disapproval of the practice of sending letters or papers insufficiently addressed, by delaying the delivery of them. A Hong Kong Government Gazette, addressed to "The Editor of The London and China Express, London," was delivered two entire days after the arrival of the last Marseilles mail, and was stamped with the words "Not fully addressed." We need hardly apologise for bringing this once more to the notice of our correspondents, and of residents in the Far East generally.

IN a paper published in a recent number of the Journal of the Society of Arts, Mr. Alexander Wallace expresses his conviction that the cultivation of the silkworm may be successfully and profitably carried out in England. He advocates the adoption of the oak-feeding silkworm of Japan (Bombyx Yama-mai), and thinks that the experience of a few more seasons will show the limits of temperature and locality wherein it may be acclimatised.

THE Pacific Mail Company have issued a Handbook, containing full details of the company's regulations, time-tables, fares, freights, &c., from New York to San Francisco, Japan, and China, with the various connections made with steamers for other ports not on their lines. The London agents for the company are Messrs. H. STARR and Co., Moorgate-street.

CROWN COLONIES.

THE best mode of governing a Crown Colony is a fruitful theme, and one on which volumes might be written without exhausting it. But in a pamphlet just published by Mr. STANFORD (Charing-cross) the subject is very ably dealt with, in a manner that exposes all the injustice of the present system * Of one hundred pages, only about thirty are devoted especially to the case of the Crown Colonies, the remainder being occupied with the consideration of our whole Colonial Empire, but the former portion is that which most nearly concerns our readers. The grievances of which our Eastern Colonies seek redress have been too often detailed in these columns to need recapitulation, but some fresh evidence adduced by the writer of the work before us is well worthy of note. The chief of the grievances that are shared alike by Ceylon, the Straits, and Hong Kong, is the tyranny of a packed Legislative Council. Here is a description of such a Council, given by Sir CHARLES ADDERLEY, an ex-Under-Secretary for the Colonies, and therefore a fully competent witness :—

"Considering that the official members of these legislatures (those of Crown Colonies) are required to support the Crown, subject to dismissal; that many of those who are nominated are salaried and could not retain their salaries with any general opposition to the Government; that some of the elected members are similarly beholden, and would have, probably, in critical circumstances, to resign emoluments for independent votes—it is clear that the supremacy of the Crown does not even depend on its casting vote, as the opposition could rarely reach its utmost power against the Government influence. The Queen sends out a representative in whom she trusts, and with whom she should interfere as little as possible; he is furnished with an executive agency, and presides in a council which is really only consultative."

That this is a true definition of the manner in which Crown Colonies are governed there can be no doubt; and that the Colonial Office has perseveringly upheld the system is proved by the following extract from a Colonial Office despatch :—

"I expect that any member of the Council who is in receipt of a salary from Government will, under all circumstances, support Government with his vote, and I trust that in case he finds it impossible to reconcile such a line of conduct with his conscience or his honour, he will not hesitate in resigning his situation. Moreover, I shou'd not be displeased to learn that in the event of any official member acting contrary to these instructions, the Governor had suspended him forthwith from the exercise of his official functions, pending further instructions from home."

Now for one more extract, which our author places in quite a different part of his pamphlet, but which, to have its full effect, ought to have appeared in close juxtaposition with the above. It may be supposed that the actions of Earl GRANVILLE at the present time represent the general policy of the Government now in power, and that Lord CLARENDON adopts that policy; but in former times Lord CLARENDON held very different opinions on the subject of Colonial Government, for, when presenting a petition from the Cape, he once said :—

"He thought the House of Lords would not wonder that a large, intelligent, and thriving community should be discontented with their present form of government, which consisted of a Legislative Council composed of a majority of official persons, and a minority of unofficial persons chosen by the Governor, who very naturally selects those who he thinks most likely to be subservient to his wishes."

Here is a distinct condemnation uttered by Lord CLARENDON, in his place in Parliament, of a colonial policy now being carried out by an Administration of which he is a member. So much for consistency!

Consistency, however, as our author shows a little further on, has little to do with colonial government. Inequalities are manifested in all directions. If there is any fixed principle at all, it would seem to be this: that the more important, the more wealthy and self-supporting a colony becomes, the more tightly the reins of government—or misgovernment—should be drawn. The little island of St. Vincent, hardly as big as the Isle of Wight, with a population of 30,000 and a revenue of £20,000, has a council composed half of elected members, while Ceylon, with a population of 2½ millions and a revenue of a million is not allowed an equality of official and non-official members, even though both alike are nominated by the Governor. The request was treated as presumptuous, although at the same time it was owned that the Colony "had relieved the British taxpayer of "all charges of every description connected with the troops "stationed in it."

The writer treats the case of the Straits Settlements also very fully, and touches on that of Hong Kong, but the same arguments apply to all. So close is the analogy that we long ago suggested that some understanding for joint action should be arrived at among these three Crown Colonies; and we hear with satisfaction that the Straits Settlements Association have received a communication from Ceylon favourable to some such plan, and a similar adhesion may be looked for from Hong Kong. We hope, therefore, to see a combined petition presented to the House of Commons during the coming Session. Appeals to both Conservative and Liberal Governments having alike proved futile, no time should be lost in securing a Parliamentary investigation into the whole system of Colonial Government.]

* The pamphlet may also be had of Mann, Cornhill; and Sotheran, Great Tower-street.

Digitized by Google

HOW TO SUPPORT COLONIAL DIGNITY AND PRESTIGE!

SINGAPORE, Dec. 13, 1869.

I sent you a hurried line about three weeks ago, telling you about the Budget debate, which has been the subject of a good deal of talk. There is some curiosity to see the speeches, but somehow or other the shorthand report has not yet made its appearance. Perhaps Sir HARRY ORD is desirous of having his own views served up to the Colonial-office long before it gets an insight into those of the Colony. Or possibly, the Duke of EDINBURGH'S visit may have something to do with the delay; and yet there was only one day's holiday given in the public offices. However, the case of the Colony is too strong to suffer by delay, intentional or accidental, and I have taken some trouble to make enquiries and to look into things a little, so as to let you see how we are getting on in financial matters. About our surplus or deficit, increased revenue or increased expenditure, it is not necessary to say much just now; what I wish to show is the way in which money is got and spent under our present Government.

The Governor is said to have declared to the Council that in all the outlay in which he had engaged the Colony he had never thought of his own personal gratification, but only of his official dignity (with which of course the happiness of the colony must always be identified). Now let us see how he has set about supporting that official dignity. Two great essentials, he discovered, were needed when he came—a Government-house and a Government yacht. He got for the former $100,000 in 1867, before he had been four months in the colony, to pay for site, buildings, laying out the grounds, and furniture. In 1869 this large sum was declared insufficient by $40,000, and he and the Colonial Engineer declared their mistake arose partly from their having made no detailed estimate before getting the money and beginning the work, and partly because the expected visit of the Duke of EDINBURGH had brought upon them an additional outlay for such unexpected adjuncts to a Government-house as stables, kitchens, servants' quarters, gas fittings, and bell hangings. I am not now "crying over spilled milk," but only showing how colonial officials keep up their "dignity;" so it is enough to say that the $40,000 were voted, spent, and that, thanks to the Straits Association, no fresh vote has been demanded, beyond $3,000 for a guard-house, which, curiously enough, was overlooked. But is the house really finished, and has the colony heard the last of it as a drain on its treasury? We shall see. In the first place, when it is said that the house was finished for $140,000, it is necessary to mention that the bricks were charged to it at $16 per 10,000, though they cost nearly $25. In the next, the grounds, even now, are not half laid out; the road or avenue leading to the house, the gas pipes and other fittings are unprovided for. And this leads me to notice how these difficulties are got over, and how the colony will be made to pay for the Government-house sums upon sums which will never appear charged in the account against it. Some months ago the Straits Observer (August 20) mentioned that the chicks or sunblinds, which are hung all around the house, were charged, not against the house, but under the head of "jail manufactures," and mentioned one or two other similar things. I have reason to believe that this piece of smartness has been repeated, and is being now repeated, daily. I have found some specimens, and here are two or three. A bill for supplying Government-house with gaspipes ($300) is brought to ——— ———; he draws his pen through "Government-house," and substitutes "Repairs of Civil Buildings," in order, of course, that it may be charged to the latter vote. The contractor for the avenue leading up to the house asks for $350 advance; he heads his bill, "Government-house," but it is altered to "Roads, Streets, and Bridges." A bill for 200 carts for carting material for building the house ($40), is cooked in the same way, and the cartage is charged to "repairs of civil buildings." At an official dinner, given on the occasion of the "housewarming," Sir H. ORD talked with some of the non-official members of Council about the necessity of lighting the avenue with gas—a trifle of some $700 or $800. They did not take the hint, and no vote has been passed for it, that I have heard of; nevertheless, the pipes have been laid, and the posts set up, and they blaze away like any street lamps. To what account will this be charged? You may exercise your ingenuity in guessing. These things show how the colonial system works, and they are worth your attention and the attention of the Colonial-office. The auditor is appointed to prevent them, but he is a subordinate, remember! Besides, those heads which fall under the Colonial Engineer's department are not audited, and so you may judge what a field they afford for supplementing the expenditure deemed necessary to maintain the Governor's dignity.

Now let us pass to the steamer. The Legislative Council in its early and unsuspicious days voted a carte blanche to Governor ORD to build himself a paddle-wheel steamer, a steam launch, and a steam cutter, and further to buy himself another steamer for immediate use, while this flotilla was being built. At that time the Colony had already two steamers, an old worn-out one and another recently bought to supply its place; the latter was waiting for new boilers, it is true, but in other respects was a sufficiently serviceable vessel. What the non-official members could have been about when they assented to such a vote it is difficult to imagine; but they were then in the "age of faith," and seem to have implicitly believed the conjuror who told them to shut their eyes and open their purses—or rather our purse; not that that mattered much, for had they objected they would certainly have been outvoted. One steamer always sufficed when steamers were scarce here; but now we have 340 arrivals of steamers a year, and one either comes from or goes to Penang every third day. Last year $117,000 was voted for the new steamer which had been ordered, and early in the present year £23,000 sterling was remitted to the Crown Agents, to pay for it. You are aware that Lord GRANVILLE stopped or suspended that contract; but when the supplies for the ensuing year came to be voted the other day, as it was necessary to carry the unexpended £23,000 to the credit of the Colony, it became equally necessary to ask for a fresh vote for the steamer, if the steamer was to be had. This was accordingly asked for, and the vote was carried by six to five, the Governor voting with the majority—the minority consisting of every independent voice in the Council, that is, the four non-officials and the Chief Justice. Sir HARRY ORD declared that the grounds on which he demanded the vote were set forth in a paper he had laid before the Council in June, 1867, and he now again read this paper to the Council. The document was signed by the Master Attendant, Mr. BURN; and when the Governor had resumed his seat, the Chief Justice is said to have made some caustic remarks on the nature of some of the statements, and the strangeness of finding them put forth by such an official. This elicited from Sir H. ORD the admission that the document was his own handiwork, and not that of Mr. BURN—that is, that he had made the Master Attendant father views which were not his own, and then palmed them off on the Council as the subordinate's! On such a question the old experienced Indian officer would naturally be listened to with more attention than the new West Indian, hardly two months in the Colony Another way of maintaining the official dignity of a Governor! But this is a trifle; let us see what this paper said, for really it is not surprising that its contents excited the Chief Justice's surprise. It began by admitting that officials might find passages by the mail and other steamers, and that the lighthouses might be periodically visited by a hired vessel; but there were three other objects which could not be so attained, and which rendered the maintenance of a special steamer indispensable. First, it was "necessary to provide the means of communicating, speedily and at uncertain times, with the various rivers on the east and west coast, the petty chiefs and rajahs in which, it was alleged, were constantly at warfare with each other, to the detriment of British property and interests. The extent of the appeals," continued the writer, "which the Government receives for protection under these circumstances is probably unknown to e public" (and, it might have added, to the worthy Master Attendant, in whose voice all this was declaimed); "and even with the aid of the two vessels now belonging to the Government it is able to interpose far less often than is desirable"—an observation somewhat neutralised, however, in the recent debate by the sorrowful admission that the Home authorities, Liberal and Conservative, had alike systematically discouraged, and even prohibited, all interference with native rajahs. As to these incessant wars which "jeopardise, if they do not injure," British interests and call for frequent intervention, Sir H. ORD prudently refrained from citing examples. He would have had to go back some six or seven years to find one, and then he would have met with nothing more creditable than the bombardment and burning of the wretched little collection of Malay huts where the Rajah of TRINGANU lived, with the loss to the Malays of some fifty lives—an inglorious exploit, which obtained for the late Governor anything but applause, either from his superiors or from the public, and which besides was performed, not by the colonial steamer, but by a vessel of the Royal Navy, for a colonial steamer never went to protect British interests without being itself well protected But let us get on with the paper. For those who were disposed to remark that British interests when really endangered had a more legitimate and effectual resource in the navy than in colonial steamers Sir H. ORD had many answers ready :—

Digitized by Google

"An idea seems to prevail," the Master Attendant is made to say, "that Her Majesty's ships may be made available for services of this nature, but most of the cases that arise are not of a kind to justify the Government in requesting the assistance of men of war, nor would the naval officers feel authorised to comply with such requisitions if made."

It may be presumed that the Governor gave himself more latitude when speaking under the mask of the Master Attendant than he would have ventured to take without that disguise, or he would not have been bold enough to assert that the Colonial-office and the Admiralty professed different principles on the right of interfering with foreign states and the duty of protecting British interests. However, we must remember that Sir HARRY's notions of his powers are of the most unlimited kind. Did he not fancy himself a Minister Plenipotentiary one day, and conclude a treaty with the Rajah of QUEDAH, which (alas for his dignity !) the Foreign-office unhesitatingly rejected, with some very unkind observations ? Well, if this answer was not satisfactory, here was another :—"The vessels of war employed on this station," he said, strong in the mature experience of two months and some days, "are in the main too large to be able to perform such services efficiently." But as this statement had but a very rickety foundation, there was still the following "clencher" in reserve :—

"Even if gunboats were sent here, and it were found that the Local Government, with a view to save itself expense, was in the habit of endeavouring to obtain their services gratuitously, instructions would soon be sent out to charge the costs of all such expeditions to the Settlements. Her Majesty's Government have laid down a distinct rule that ships and troops are available as against external aggressions in a colony, but that for anything partaking of the nature or duty of a police, and preserving the peace within or around it, the means must be provided at its own cost."

Notice how carefully the protection of British interests up rivers in the Malay peninsula becomes by a gentle transition a matter of police ! But his Excellency is too clever here, and persuades himself faster than he persuades others ; and people here continue to believe that police duties are confined to colonial territory and colonial waters, that the Singapore police have no more to do with neighbouring rajahs and territories than the London police have with the Baltic and Hanse Towns, and that if British interests are jeopardised by Malay rajahs, they are to be protected, as they always have been hitherto, by the national, not the colonial force. In such emergencies as are here contemplated, it would be the duty of the Governor not to proclaim and wage war in his own name, or in the Queen's, but to report to his superiors, and leave the matter in the hands of the Ministers of the Crown. The third object which made the possession of a steamer necessary has still to be examined :—

"Nothing (you hear the speaking-trumpet) has been said of the political aspect of the question. Every one acquainted with the country is aware that the loss of influence and prestige among the natives on both our coasts would be very great, and the direct injury to British interests very serious were it known to them that the Government had no longer an armed ship with which to visit them in their own rivers when necessary; and although the suppression of piracy does not actually form any part of the duty of a colony, it can hardly be denied but that the comparative freedom from this scourge which our craft enjoy is in a large measure due to the knowledge that the Government have the means and the will to interfere for their protection, and that the surrender of this power on its part would be hailed with joy by a good many persons, who are now, from fear of consequences, compelled to engage in peaceful seafaring pursuits."

Fancy, that we have all these years past been saved from pirates, not by the grim corvettes and gunboats stationed in our ports, but by the poor old asthmatic Pluto and Hoogly, which ploughed the deep at the maximum rate of five miles an hour when the tide favoured ! Sir H. ORD unfortunately omitted to inquire into the former exploits of that colonial navy which was so essential to free us from the scourge of piracy. If he had he would have learned that the only conflict within Singaporean memory between a colonial steamer and pirates in these seas was the celebrated one in Governor BLUNDELL's time, more than ten years ago, when the Chinamen, on seeing the steamer approach, stood at bay, and made such excellent ball practice that the English vessel backed out of range of the Celestial fire with a celerity which won her engineer the warmest commendation in the commander's despatch. Well, the appeal for a steamer wound up with a statement that the two colonial steamers had earned in the preceding year, in freight and passage-money, $2,700, and with the assertion that "with an average efficient and safe steamer a second steamer might be dispensed with." This last clause is quite true, but in the meanwhile the Governor has done his best to prevent the earning of freight by demanding a rate just 100 per cent. above the current rates. I know that tin has been repeatedly refused carriage from Malacca in the colonial steamers for less than $10 per 100 slabs, the current rate being $5.

Now you can form some idea of the lengths a colonial governor may go to when bent on supporting his dignity. Not satisfied with the Peiho, which he purchased at 40 to 50 per cent. above her value, to replace the old Pluto, he must have a bran-new steamer, and he has the assurance to put his reasons for wanting it into his subordinate's mouth—and such reasons ! 1st. To protect British interests abroad, which is really the duty of the navy. 2nd. To do police duties, which require the aid of no steamers. 3rd. To put down piracy and keep up prestige, which is also the business of the navy. But the truth is, he had a fourth object—and this, being the real one, was carefully concealed. He required the steamer to keep up his dignity. He has not said so, but listen to what the steamer ordered itself says on the subject, and then doubt if you can. Its tale is as plain and intelligible as possible. It is intended to have a speed of eleven knots with one boiler, and fourteen with two ; and in order to draw a minimum of water while giving a maximum of accommodation, Mr. REED, the Constructor of the Navy (who was paid £500 for designing her), found it necessary to have her built on the diagonal system of Messrs. WHITE, of Cowes, the most expensive, and the most unsuited for this part of the world, as our shipwrights could not repair her hull. Sir H. ORD declares that he is not responsible for this, but it was the only way of meeting his demands for accommodation and light draught. It is said that she was to be of 450 tons burden, built after the model of the QUEEN's yacht. The design left little or no place for cargo, but gave up almost all the room for the accommodation of the happy passengers. There were to be twelve berths ; some of the cabins were to be 12 feet square ; a bath room was to be of the same size ; and (to fit the vessel, no doubt, for the harassing exigencies of ruthless warfare with turbulent rajahs and ferocious pirates) there was to be a luxurious boudoir of spacious dimensions at the stern. But even this would not have sufficed. A scheme for spending some $800 more in building a house on deck for his Excellency's "sanctum" is already cut and dry ! This model of naval architecture and economy would not burn more than twenty tons of coal a-day (say £50 sterling), and besides her price of £23,000 would cost the Colony something like £2,000 to £3,000 to bring her out. Now you may be able to judge whether British interests or Governor ORD's interests, British prestige or Governor ORD's prestige is what this vessel was really intended to maintain. And you can judge whether a Colony may not be afflicted with almost as great a scourge as piracy when saddled with a Governor devoted to the cultivation of his own dignity.

I have gone into all these matters at some length, for it is not possible to understand such financing and finessing operations without looking closely into them. As regards the steamer it is enough to say that the vote has been carried, and that it remains with Lord GRANVILLE to determine what value he thinks Sir H. ORD's reasons for demanding it should have. If the steamer is sanctioned, the Colony will have paid upwards of $300,000 in less than four years for steamers, and this against the unanimous voice of the colonists. Now, the question is one of purely local interest, and it is to be hoped that Lord GRANVILLE will not think it right arbitrarily to impose Sir H. ORD's views on us, or even his own. At all events, before he does so, he may be fairly asked to call for a return (a public return, I mean, to be laid on the table of the Council, and to be open to public criticism, and not a secret one shielded from that wholesome check), showing what services have actually been performed by the steamers since the 1st of April, 1867. The list of killed, wounded, and captured pirates, of conquered or subdued rajahs, and instances of relief to endangered British interests, would need neither pen, ink, nor paper.

Digitized by Google

What is passing at this moment will be found more characteristic of the services of our colonial fleet. The Duke of EDINBURGH has just left us for Malacca and Penang. He proceeded, of course, in his own ship, the Galatea. The Governor, who is to accompany him through the Straits, went in the Peiho, escorted by the steam launch (which may be found useful for landing, though the Galatea has one), and Mr. PLOW, the private secretary, has the other steamer, to carry, I suppose, the carriage and horses, and to push forward to Penang in order to muster the officials in whatever cocked hats and gold lace he can find, and to see that the beds are aired. Three steamers to take his Excellency to Penang, at the cost of the Colony! I do not think I mentioned the steam launch before. She was built here, and fitted up with a fresh water, not marine, boiler—a wise thing for a vessel intended for salt water! She cost £1,200, and might have been got in England for £250, I believe; and the poor Tumongong of JOHORE was told that he had agreed to pay half the cost (which he denies), because she would be useful for police purposes in the strait which separates the island of Singapore from Johore. He has paid his share, but whether he has ever seen the boat or been on board of her I do not know. I suspect she is rarely seen in that strait just spoken of. If she is, it is probably more to catch the opium smugglers, who come from his territory to ours, to the damage of our revenue, than to repress other disorders.

As regards the Government-house, another enquiry is needed, a commission to examine closely all the bills and accounts connected with that work, and all those connected with the Colonial Engineer's department and the convicts. I have not the slightest doubt that the auditors' or treasurer's books and files would furnish forth many cases like those I have mentioned, for it is not likely that the few that have got abroad are the only ones. The Colonial-office has the credit of keeping a sharp look out on all financial eccentricities, and it is time a searching investigation was held into those going on here. The stories may be untrue (and an outsider cannot walk into the auditor's office and ascertain whether they are true or false), but at all events they are current, and they call for explanation or disproof. It is bad enough that the governor of a little colony like this should, in addition to a salary equal to that of the President of the United States, have got $140,000 for a house and $300,000 for steamers within four years; it becomes a shame and an iniquity when more, and yet more, money is got by such means as I have mentioned. But even they do not exhaust the Governor's resources, a regiment of convicts is taken from the public services into his personal service—some forty, I have been told. How much more that source of Colonial revenue and wealth (I suppose we have 1,200 men here) is drawn or will be drawn upon it is impossible to tell. How many men have worked at the Government-house who appear in the convict books as working elsewhere? These questions are worth looking into. I have heard that when the vote of $40,000 was rapidly diminishing, and there was at the same time the greatest pressure to push on the Government-house works, the number of convicts charged to that vote was marvellously small!

The Duke of Edinburgh's visit has been made the occasion of fresh strife and ill-blood between the Governor and the governed.

Sir H. ORD began his career here in 1867 with a false start. The son of a Woolwich professor, he could not but look down on as inferiors the vulgar merchants, bankers, seafaring men, lawyers, and others, birds of equally base plumage, constituting this community; and so he gave offence to many. On the first anniversary of the Queen's birth-day (1867) he gave no public entertainment, as had been usual on that day, and the Tanglin Club supplied the want by giving a ball. To this the Governor was invited by a deputation; he accepted, but he did not go, and not a word of apology reached the club. This was naturally considered discourteous. The other day, on the eve of the Prince's arrival, one of our merchants was asked by him to sound the members of the two English clubs, the Singapore and the Tanglin, to place their establishments at his disposal in order that he might place them at the disposal of the Prince. Meetings were held, and at both clubs the proposal was rejected by overwhelming majorities; it was not palatable, and there was no precedent for it. But resolutions were at the same time passed that on the arrival of the Galatea the clubs should be placed at the disposal of the Prince, and that all his officers should be made honorary members. The Galatea had hardly anchored when deputations from the clubs carried the invitations on board. The Prince was engaged, and did not see them, but the invitations were left with his aide-de-camp or secretary. Time passed; the Prince made his public landing at Johnston's pier, where a spacious shed had been erected to accommodate the élite of the official and un-official world, and its beauty too; but alas! the benches were empty, for the Governor had, as usual, managed to tread on the toes of the vulgar outer world. The Duke, however, received all the homage that cheers and waving handkerchiefs could display along the line of procession. In the evening there was a solemn dinner-party at Government-house, purely official. Next night an "At Home," to which all the Singapore world went to make their bow to the Royal Prince. But beyond a formal presentation nothing was done to bring his Royal Highness in contact with the residents. Governor ORD, on the contrary, mounted guard over him in such a manner as to prevent anything but the most distant exchange of civilities. Not an officer of the Galatea was present, except one young middy, a lad of fourteen, who appeared to be attached to the Duke's suite. All this time he had neither gone to the Clubs nor answered the invitations. The officers of the Galatea had expressed their acknowledgments for the civility, but not one of them either had appeared. This looked odd; for Princes are usually careful to comply with the ordinary usages of society. But the mystery was soon explained. Mr. PLOW, Governor ORD'S private secretary and factotum, told one of the members of the Tanglin Club, that the Prince was greatly incensed at the refusal to place the clubs at the Governor's disposal, and had determined neither to enter them himself nor to allow any officer of his ship to do so, unless the Governor was made an honorary member. Something was said in the course of the conversation (which appears to have been rather animated) about "bringing people to their marrowbones," but the result was that the Clubs declined to comply with the conditions dictated to them, and Sir HARRY ORD had the satisfaction of seeing his enemies snubbed, mortified, and disappointed. Not only did the DUKE keep away from the English clubs, and post a notification in the ward room of the Galatea that he did not visit them, but the Governor took him to the German Club, to which he had, when baffled in his applications to Tanglin and Singapore, sent an urgent appeal, which was so far conceded, I hear, that the walls were placed at his disposal, but there was neither any attendance of members to do the honours, nor any hospitality of a substantial kind offered.

Now in all this, as in everything else, Sir HARRY ORD has shown himself very clever in that species of cleverness which we vulgar people in familiar converse call dodge. [He is full, brimfull, of dodge. But this is not the highest order of talent, or the best qualification for a Governor. The steamer history shows a remarkable display of it, and yet his cleverness deceived no one. The Government-house history shows it carried to an extent which would be fatal to him if the Colonial-office were jealous of the character of its rule. At any rate we shall soon learn whether a Governor may with impunity enlist a Royal Prince in his private feud with the Colony, and expose the QUEEN'S son to the reproach of having been wanting in the royal virtue of politeness, for the gratification of the small feelings of enmity which rankle in his own breast. Certain it is that the feeling of irritation prevalent here is excessive. The Straits Times, a very moderate paper, as you know, has not hesitated to declare that the visit of the PRINCE was to Sir HARRY ORD, not to Singapore, or if to Singapore, that it has been a disappointment; and its rival, the Straits Observer, echoes the same opinion. The whole of our little world had been in a state of pleasurable expectation for months about this Royal visit, and all has been turned to bitterness and annoyance. It is quite clear that the PRINCE had no cause of quarrel with Singapore, neither could he have had a motive for hurting the feelings of any man in the place; it is equally plain that his treatment of the Clubs did give their members great pain, and that it was a course which nothing but very strong reasons could have induced him to take. What were those reasons? They were none of his own. They must have been based on representations made to him in quarters calculated to command his attention. What was the nature of these representations—or *mis*representations? The Singapore public would like to know; they have little doubt as to who made them.

Digitized by Google

CHINESE MEDICINES.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph.)

SIR,—In reference to an assertion made by a Californian examiner of drugs, and copied into your paper, to the effect that the Chinese pharmacopœia is nothing but a farrago of horrible compounds, I beg to say that such is not the fact.

That many nasty substances are found in the Pen T'sau, or Chinese Encyclopœdia of Natural History and Medicine, I am very well aware. The Pharmacopœias of the European Colleges of Physicians of the 17th and 19th centuries contained "stercus bovinum, humanum, pavonis," &c., which were prescribed and partaken of according to law and rule. Some hundreds of years ago Chinese physicians prescribed pepsine in the form of Chun-p'i, or the dried membrane of the stomach of the common fowl, in disorders of the stomach, bowels, and kidneys. Quis-quales Chinensis for worms in children, and Justicia paniculata as a tonic and antifebrile remedy, are common remedies of a domestic character, which are produced in unlimited quantities in China, and could scarcely be matched from the pharmacopœias of any other country.

A work on Chinese Materia Medica, in English and Chinese, the result of some study, observation, and experiment, directed to this subject, will soon appear in Shanghai, under the patronage of Mr. Robert Hart, Inspector-general of the Chinese Customs. Messrs. Trübner and Co., of 60, Paternoster-row, are the London publishers, who will receive names of subscribers. I remain yours, &c., F. PORTER SMITH, M.B. Lond., M.R.C.S. &c.,
Medical Missionary.

Wesleyan Mission Hospital, Hankow,
China, Nov. 29, 1869.

THE ALBERT LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY.

The scheme for resuscitating the Albert Life Assurance Company has now assumed something like a tangible form, and if the projectors are fairly supported by the policy-holders and shareholders, there appears to be no reason why it should not be re-established on a sound basis. The prospectus before us starts with the avowed object of paying all claims in full; and though this may seem at first sight almost too good to be true, the plan, when carefully examined, promises well for its fulfilment. The projectors, in a careful estimate of the position of the estate, show the original deficiency to have been £560,000, to which they add £60,000 for charges incident to the future carrying on of the existing business, and £20,000 for the expenses of the winding up, as far as it has gone. This makes a rather alarming total of £640,000; against which there are the assets of the Albert office, considered good (after paying outstanding liabilities) for £196,000, and the unpaid capital, which must in any case be called up, and which, though nominally nearly £322,000, the projectors estimate to yield only £150,000. We now have a net deficiency of £294,000, and it is proposed that the shareholders of the Albert and of the various associated companies should make up this amount by contributions in certain proportions, according to their estimated liability. There will be a fair chance of these sums being repaid out of future profits, but in any case it is almost certain that, even if not repaid, they would represent a much smaller loss to the shareholders of the respective companies than a series of calls to pay claims, costs of complicated litigation, and the enormous expense of continued liquidation in Chancery. Moreover, in consideration of such payment, the Court of Chancery will be asked to grant to every shareholder who may have contributed a full and final discharge from all liability, and the obtaining this release is to be an essential condition of the plan. The next feature is, that in order to provide for a possible disturbance of calculation, a marginal guarantee fund should be created by the policy-holders and annuitants agreeing to a deduction, for the present, of 12½ per cent. on non-profit and of 10 per cent. on profit policies, such deferred payments to be represented by certificates to be issued by the reconstructed company, which can be discharged by degrees, as actuarial calculation may show that a provision is not required. The last feature of the scheme is the raising of fresh capital to the amount of £250,000, in 50,000 shares of £5 each, with the view of developing new business—such capital to be free of all existing liabilities.

An important consideration to policy-holders in the East is, that by this plan the home and Indian business will be kept distinct, and the premiums received on current policies in both countries, to an amount requisite to represent the outstanding risks from time to time, according to annual actuarial report, which shall be published for the information of policy-holders and shareholders, are to be separately invested in England and in India, and each fund made primarily available for the claims respectively arising in the two countries. It is also important to note that the scheme of the committee includes permission to those who have allowed their policies to lapse since the suspension of the Albert, to revive their policies by payment of arrears of premium, the object being to secure to all the benefits of the proposed arrangements. It is also contemplated that the reconstructed company will be in a position, at an early date, to meet the convenience of policy-holders generally, by paying those who may desire it the surrender value of the policies they hold, based upon an equitable and fair calculation.

The surplus profits on the new business, after paying a dividend of 10 per cent., to be devoted one-half to reserve, and the other half in payment of the amount to be contributed towards the before-mentioned deficiency of £294,000. The chairman of the committee is Mr. James Thompson, chairman of the Agra Bank, and among the members are Sir John Bowring, Mr. Philip Cazenove, Lord Claud Hamilton, Dr. Farr, Mr. Thomas Webster, Q.C., Major-Generals Burn, Haunyngton and Cunningham, Messrs. Charles Frere, J. D. Bell, G. H. Drew, Jervis J. Jervis, Horatio Lloyd, and others.

Monetary and Commercial.

A prospectus has been issued of the Calcutta and Singapore Telegraph Company (Limited), with a capital of £600,000, in shares of £10, to lay a cable of 1,825 miles from Calcutta to Singapore, for which a contract has been made with Messrs. Siemens Bros. There are already land lines from Calcutta to Ceylon, which will be connected with Singapore by the cable of the Indian Extension Company, and there are also land lines between Calcutta and Bombay, whence the cable now being submerged by the Great Eastern will establish communication with London. The proposed new cable, therefore, will not supply any telegraphic link actually wanting, but the view of its promoters is that owing to the greater efficiency and economy of cable routes in comparison with land routes, their line will, so far as it extends, absorb a large proportion of the enormous telegraphic business between the East and the West that must centre at Singapore. The cable is to be laid within twelve months.

A paragraph lately appeared in The Times, taken from the Malta Times, in which it was stated that the P. and O. Company intended running a line of freight steamers, via the Suez Canal, from Liverpool to India. It is only necessary to state that the directors have no such intention. The rates of freight by the company's steamers have been reduced, and now stand at £10 to Aden and Bombay; £15 to Galle, Madras, and Calcutta; £30 to the Straits and Hong Kong; and £33 to Batavia, Shanghai, and Yokohama. These rates are for fine goods, and are subject to considerable reduction for coarse goods.

Some of the tea shipped from Shanghai, and recently landed in London as "common tea," has turned out to be such rubbish, and in such bad condition, as to be immediately condemned as unfit for consumption. When the account-sales of these shipments reach Shanghai they will, we hope, act as a wholesome check on the practice that has lately sprung up of shipping quantities of any trash procurable as "common tea," on the supposition that if laid down under 1s. a pound it must pay a profit.

The liquidation of the Commercial Bank of India under Mr Holyland has not yet been brought to a termination, so far as the shareholders are concerned. The creditors, as already announced, have been paid 17s. in the pound in full, but in order to effect this a loan was obtained, repayable on the realisation of the assets and unpaid calls. These assets—chiefly in landed property in China—are slow to realise, and it may be necessary for the liquidator to make another call on the shareholders in order to repay the loan. Mr. Cameron, in Shanghai, still acts as agent for the liquidator in collecting and realising the assets.

The fifth dividend of 1s. is now in course of payment by the liquidators of the Asiatic Bank Corporation. This, with former dividends, makes a total of 8s. 6d. paid to the creditors. It is probable that a further 6d. or 1s. will be paid. The realisation of the assets has fallen much under the estimate, although the shareholders had paid up the full amount of the share, and £20 per share in addition, as stipulated by the charter.

As we announced some time since, the shareholders of the Oriental Bank are about to take steps for inviting Mr. H. G. Gordon to rejoin the Board of that institution, of which from its origin he was the leading representative. Mr. Gordon, pending the Overend Gurney trial, considered it right to send in his resignation, but the emphatic decision in that case has rendered him free to resume his old station with undiminished honour.

Mr. J. L. B. Templer, who recently appeared in the Bankruptcy Court, attributed his bankruptcy to the failure of the firm of Benyon and Harding, of which he stated he was a member. Messrs. Benyon and Harding (through their solicitors) contradict these statements. They say that Mr. Templer brought no capital whatever into their firm, and that they have, without assistance from him or his friends, settled all the firm's debts; so that his connection with them cannot have made it necessary for him to go through the Court.

The resolution passed at the first meeting of creditors of Mr H.

Digitized by Google

H. Severs, to wind up the estate out of Court, has been submitted to a second meeting for confirmation. The result was that the resolution was negatived, and the bankruptcy will therefore proceed in the usual way. The examination sitting was fixed for the 25th February.

The Albert Life Assurance Company is likely to be resuscitated after all. The plan for reconstructing the office which has just been issued is based on sound principles, and being under the management of Mr. Thompson, who has so successfully revived the business of the Agra Bank, it is not likely to fail through want of energy or skilful management.

The Indo-European Telegraph Company announce that their lines (in connection with those of the Indian Government) are now at work, and that messages may be transmitted from any office of the Electric and International Company. The tariff and other particulars will be found in our advertising columns.

The rates of freight by Holt's line to China, &c., have been reduced from £6 to £4 10s., and in future these steamers will pass through the Suez Canal, commencing with the Diomed, leaving on the 22nd inst., to be followed by the Priam, a new steamer. Six others are building, making a total of fourteen steamers for this line. The agents in London are Messrs. John Swire and Sons.

Messrs. Mosses and Mitchell, the transit agents for London of the Suez Canal Company, have received the following telegram from M. Ferdinand de Lesseps:—"The transit dues on steamers passing through the Canal will in future be levied on the nett registered tonnage (i.e. exclusive of engine-room)."

The directors of the Hong Kong and China Gas Company (Limited) notify that warrants in payment of an interim dividend at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, free of income tax, for the six months ending the 30th Sept., 1869, have been issued.

A further dividend of 2s. 6d. in the pound, making 19s. paid, is now payable to the creditors of the China Steam Ship and Labuan Coal Company (Limited).

The Comptoir d'Escompte have declared a dividend for the first half of the year 1869-70 at 21 francs.

The Messageries Imperiales have paid f.3.75 per share as interest on the provisional shares, on which f.250 has been paid.

The tenders for 38,75,000 Rs. in bills on India were received on the 2nd inst. at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were, to Calcutta, 35,81,000 Rs.; and to Madras, 2,94,000 Rs. The minimum price was fixed, as before, at 1s. 11d. on Calcutta and Madras. Tenders on those Presidencies at 1s. 11½d. will receive about 18 per cent.; above that price in full. It appears from these results that the demand for remittance has diminished somewhat during the last fortnight.

The Crown Agents for the Colonies have accepted tenders for £50,000 on the Government of Ceylon, at 1s. 11 9-16d. per rupee.

The Council of India will receive tenders on the 16th inst. for bills on Calcutta and Madras, to the amount of £387,500.

The steamer Ripon took on the 5th £159,564 in specie for the East. Annexed are the particulars:—Galle, gold, £480; Bombay, gold, £500; Madras, gold, £1,121; Penang, silver, £8,990; Singapore, silver, £56,323; Shanghai, silver, £82,150; and Alexandria, gold, £10,000.

EXPORT OF COTTON GOODS TO THE FAR EAST.

The following is a summary of Mr. Sam Mendel's monthly and annual tables, containing details of the quantities of Cotton Manufactures and Yarn shipped from the ports of London, Liverpool, Southampton, and the Clyde, to Hong Kong, Shanghai, Japan, Singapore, Batavia, Manila, and Ceylon, during the month and twelve months ended 16th Jan., 1870, and during the twelve months ended 31st Dec., 1869, compared with the corresponding periods of the two preceding years:—

MONTHLY TABLES.

HONG KONG AND WHAMPOA.

PLAIN COTTONS.—Export for the month ended 16th Jan., 1870, 5,658,478 yards; for the twelve months 44,813,208 yards; for the twelve months, 1869, 51,692,919 yards; for the twelve months 1868, 55,608,259 yards. Decrease for 1870 against 1869, 7,379,711 yards.

COLOURED COTTONS.—Export for the month ended 16th Jan., 1870, 404,731 yards; for the twelve months, 1,953,623 yards; for the twelve months, 1869, 1,171,971 yards; for the twelve months, 1868, 2,560,034 yards. Increase for 1870 against 1869, 781,652 yards.

PRINTED COTTONS.—Export for the month ended 16th Jan., 1870, 132,570 yards; for the twelve months, 1,097,157 yards; for the twelve months 1869, 2,063,168 yards; for the twelve months, 1868, 752,747 yards. Decrease for 1870 against 1869, 966,001 yards.

COTTON YARN.—Export for the month ended 16th Jan., 1870, 878,580 lbs.; for the twelve months, 5,149,740 lbs.; for the twelve months 1869, 6,260,200 lbs.; for the twelve months 1868, 7,449,364 lbs. Decrease for 1870 against 1869, 1,110,460 lbs.

SHANGHAI.

PLAIN COTTONS.—Export for the month ended 16th Jan., 1870, 25,267,389 yards; for the twelve months, 225,018,493 yards; for the twelve months 1869, 247,573,924 yards; for the twelve months 1868, 144,244,205 yards. Decrease for 1870 against 1869, 22,554,431 yards.

COLOURED COTTONS.—Export for the month ended 16th Jan., 1870, 1,684,476 yards; for the twelve months, 14,569,066 yards; for the twelve months 1869, 6,450,114 yards; for the twelve months 1868, 9,538,721 yards. Increase for 1870 against 1869, 8,118,952 yards.

PRINTED COTTONS.—Export for the month ended 16th Jan., 1870, 436,255 yards; for the twelve months, 5,144,323 yards; for the twelve months 1869, 3,539,161 yards; for the twelve months 1868, 5,471,584 yards. Increase for 1870 against 1869, 1,605,162 yards.

COTTON YARN.—Export for the month ended 16th Jan., 1870, 12,000 lbs.; for the twelve months, 442,863 lbs.; for the twelve months 1869, 317,700 lbs.; for the twelve months 1868, 368,100 lbs. Increase for 1870 against 1869, 25,163 lbs.

JAPAN.

PLAIN COTTONS.—Export for the month ended 16th Jan., 1870, 2,634,435 yards; for the twelve months, 16,647,786 yards; for the twelve months 1869, 18,263,015 yards; for the twelve months 1868, 26,565,706 yards. Decrease for 1870 against 1869, 1,615,229 yards.

COLOURED COTTONS.—Export for the month ended 16th Jan., 1870, 197,220 yards; for the twelve months, 1,823,433 yards; for the twelve months 1869, 1,219,131 yards; for the twelve months 1868, 3,586,666 yards. Increase for 1870 against 1869, 604,302 yards.

PRINTED COTTONS.—Export for the month ended 16th Jan., 1870, 160,328 yards; for the twelve months, 1,004,176 yards; for the twelve months 1869, 426,577 yards; for the twelve months 1868, 776,728 yards. Increase for 1870 against 1869, 577,599 yards.

COTTON YARN.—Export for the month ended 16th Jan., 1870, 2,299,580 lbs.; for the twelve months, 5,933,850 lbs.; for the twelve months 1869, 4,458,129 lbs.; for the twelve months 1868, 4,293,619 lbs. Increase for 1870 against 1869, 1,475,721 lbs.

SINGAPORE AND PENANG.

PLAIN COTTONS.—Export for the month ended 16th Jan., 1870, 6,417,641 yards; for the twelve months, 51,637,953 yards; for the twelve months 1869, 45,729,468 yards; for the twelve months 1868, 66,370,144 yards. Increase for 1870 against 1869, 5,908,484 yards.

COLOURED COTTONS.—Export for the month ended 16th Jan., 1870, 1,124,133 yards; for the twelve months, 5,998,684 yards; for the twelve months 1869, 4,458,484 yards; for the twelve months 1868, 8,499,558 yards. Increase for 1870 against 1869, 1,540,200 yards.

PRINTED COTTONS.—Export for the month ended 16th Jan., 1870, 894,133 yards; for the twelve months, 4,871,190 yards; for the twelve months 1869, 2,341,585 yards; for the twelve months 1868, 4,138,246 yards. Increase for 1870 against 1869, 2,529,605 yards.

COTTON YARN.—Export for the month ended 16th Jan., 1870, 547,726 lbs.; for the twelve months, 2,020,668 lbs.; for the twelve months 1869, 1,513,243 lbs.; for the twelve months 1868, 3,070,114 lbs. Increase for 1870 against 1869, 507,425 lbs.

BATAVIA.

PLAIN COTTONS.—Export for the month ended 16th Jan., 1870, 2,176,115 yards; for the twelve months, 9,566,151 yards; for the twelve months 1869, 18,106,190 yards; for the twelve months 1868, 18,586,515 yards. Decrease for 1870 against 1869, 8,540,039 yards.

COLOURED COTTONS.—Export for the month ended 16th Jan., 1870, 1,952,811 yards; for the twelve months, 8,881,047 yards; for the twelve months 1869, 7,026,414 yards; for the twelve months 1868, 12,573,199 yards. Increase for 1870 against 1869, 1,854,633 yards.

PRINTED COTTONS.—Export for the month ended 16th Jan., 1870, 1,067,028 yards; for the twelve months, 5,370,760 yards; for the twelve months 1869, 4,884,042 yards; for the twelve months 1868, 13,345,782 yards. Increase for 1870 against 1869, 486,718 yards.

COTTON YARN.—Export for the month ended 16th Jan., 1870, 59,690 lbs.; for the twelve months, 363,850 lbs.; for the twelve months 1869, 533,465 lbs.; for the twelve months 1868, 712,800 lbs. Increase for 1870 against 1869, 169,615 lbs.

MANILA.

PLAIN COTTONS.—Export for the month ended 16th Jan., 1870, 1,810,839 yards; for the twelve months, 14,623,511 yards; for the twelve months 1869, 19,276,130 yards; for the twelve months 1868, 17,418,148 yards. Decrease for 1870 against 1869, 4,652,619 yards.

COLOURED COTTONS.—Export for the month ended 16th Jan., 1870, 629,203 yards; for the twelve months, 10,989,606 yards; for the twelve months 1869, 14,896,211 yards; for the twelve months 1868, 15,339,022 yards. Decrease for 1870 against 1869, 3,906,605 yards.

PRINTED COTTONS.—Export for the month ended 16th Jan., 1870, 36,215 yards; for the twelve months, 1,125,186 yards; for the twelve months 1869, 1,244,587 yards; for the twelve months 1868, 972,228 yards. Decrease for 1870 against 1869, 119,401 yards.

COTTON YARN.—Export for the month ended 16th Jan., 1870, 4,616 lbs.; for the twelve months, 175,113 lbs.; for the twelve months 1869, 326,032 lbs.; for the twelve months 1868, 245,047 lbs. Decrease for 1870 against 1869, 150,919 lbs.

CEYLON.

PLAIN COTTONS.—Export for the month ended 16th Jan., 1870. 1,736,636 yards; for the twelve months, 22,137,080 yards; for the twelve months 1869, 23,253,828 yards; for the twelve months 1868, 16,537,466 yards. Decrease for 1870 against 1869, 1,116,748 yards.

COLOURED COTTONS.—Export for the month ended 16th Jan., 1870, 121,742 yards; for the twelve months, 1,247,656 yards; for the twelve months 1869, 805,041 yards; for the twelve months 1868, 977,950 yards. Increase for 1870 against 1869, 442,615 yards.

PRINTED COTTONS.—Export for the month ended 16th Jan., 1870, 97,340 yards; for the twelve months, 3,327,131 yards; for the twelve months 1869, 2,589,370 yds.; for the twelve months 1868, 1,442,830 yards. Increase for 1870 against 1869, 787,761 yards.

COTTON YARN.—Export for the month ended 16th Jan., 1870, 4,000 lbs.; for the twelve months, 447,372 lbs.; for the twelve months 1869, 418,687 lbs.; for the twelve months 1868, 366,685 lbs. Increase for 1870 against 1869, 28,685 lbs.

Digitized by Google

ANNUAL TABLES.

HONG KONG.—Plain Cottons: Monthly average, 1869, 3,612,390 yards; total export, 1869, 43,348,688 yards; 1868, 53,176,219 yards; 1867, 56,160,509 yards; 1866, 41,394,471 yards: 1865, 36,907,736 yards. Cotton Yarn: Monthly average, 1869, 411,503 lbs.; total export, 1869, 4,938,040 lbs.; 1868, 6,370,200 lbs.; 1867, 7,513,364 lbs.; 1866, 4,630,230 lbs.; 1865, 1,140,830 lbs.

SHANGHAI.—Plain Cottons: Monthly average, 1869, 18,571,741 yards; total export, 1869, 222,860,894 yards; 1868, 243,349,435 yards; 1867, 151,355,146 yards; 1866, 125,309,693 yards; 1865, 79,422,708 yards. Cotton Yarn: Monthly average, 1869, 36,905 lbs.; total export, 1869, 442,863 lbs.; 1868, 317,700 lbs.; 1867, 380,832 lbs.; 1866, 126,200 lbs.; 1865, 81,000 lbs.

JAPAN.—Plain Cottons: Monthly average, 1869, 1,371,446 yards; total export, 1869, 16,457,361 yards; 1868, 18,682,700 yards; 1867, 25,378,061 yards; 1866, 22,027,868 yards; 1865, 17,891,196 yards. Cotton Yarn: Monthly average, 1869, 479,508 lbs.; total export, 1869, 5,754,100 lbs.; 1868, 4,534,319 lbs.; 1867, 4,268,039 lbs.; 1866, 1,141,928 lbs.; 1865, 816,432 lbs.

SINGAPORE.—Plain Cottons: Monthly average, 1869, 4,160,292 yards; total export, 1869, 49,923,511 yards; 1868, 48,128,042 yards; 1867, 62,050,610 yards; 1866, 50,941,826 yards; 1865, 32,340,731 yards. Cotton Yarn: Monthly average, 1869, 146,170 lbs.; total export, 1869, 1,754,051 lbs.; 1868, 1,566,156 lbs.; 1867, 3,019,174 lbs.; 1866, 1,851,207 lbs.; 1865, 1,132,785 lbs.

BATAVIA.—Plain Cottons: Monthly average, 1869, 615,769 yards; total export, 1869, 7,389,236 yards; 1868, 1,810,835 yards; 1867, 18,944,716 yards; 1866, 36,483,880 yards; 1865, 14,698,875 yards. Cotton Yarn: Monthly average, 1869, 25,346 lbs.; total export, 1869, 304,160 lbs.; 1868, 533,465 lbs.; 1867, 732,800 lbs.; 1866, 733,831 lbs.; 1865, 452,910 lbs

MANILA.—Plain Cottons: Monthly average, 1869, 1,251,844 yards; total export, 1869, 15,022,132 yards; 1868, 18,879,201 yards; 1867, 18,165,788 yards; 1866, 12,113,822 yards; 1865, 13,326,775 yards. Cotton Yarn: Monthly average, 1869, 15,729 lbs.; total export, 1869, 188,741 lbs.; 1868, 317,163 lbs.; 1867, 267,946 lbs.; 1866, 89,248 lbs.; 1865, 104,502 lbs.

CEYLON.—Plain Cottons: Monthly average, 1869, 1,742,877 yards; total export, 1869, 20,914,524 yards; 1868, 22,746,975 yards; 1867, 17,834,182 yards; 1866, 20,278,509 yards; 1865, 13,630,888 yards. Cotton Yarn: Monthly average, 1869, 37,281 lbs.; total export, 1869, 447,372 lbs.; 1868, 403,687 lbs.; 1867, 366,435 lbs.; 1866, 796,243 lbs.; 1865, 814,977 lbs.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

Prices of all descriptions are steadily maintained, but the demand is not active, and sales are only of moderate extent. Public sales of 15,010 packages China were held on the 2nd and 3rd inst., of which 14,000 packages sold, all "without reserve." Common to fair red-leaf Congou sold rather irregularly, but generally at current rates. Two breaks of common black-leaf Congou brought 1s. 0¼d. to 1s. 0½d., being rather in favour of buyers. Some parcels of fair black-leaf Congou, in half-chests, with all faults, selling at 1s. 2¼d. to 1s. 3d. per lb., show full prices. A chop of very common Shanghai packed realised 7¼d. per lb.

The following is from the Circular of Messrs. Kinnear, Hawes, and Hertz:—In Black-leafs we report a firm market, at gradually improving rates. The business done has confined itself chiefly to the medium sorts of Black-leaf, and has up to the middle of last week been of considerable extent. Within the last few days the market assumed a quieter but otherwise unchanged aspect. The demand for common Black-leaf has been very insignificant; the quotations for this sort have not changed, but, to keep them up, we decidedly need a good inquiry to come in very shortly. Common leafy Hohow kinds, of which great quantities are on offer, have been slowly moving off at from 7¼d. to 8¼d. per lb. The demand for this sort is very limited, and comes chiefly from shipping quarters. Common and other Red-leafs show no alteration of importance. Flowery Pekoes: A sale of about 300 chests (import 1860 61) of fine quality has been effected at 4s. per lb. Oolongs: Better inquiry at slightly improved rates for all desirable kinds. Scented Teas: Canton Capers of fine quality in request; common and medium kinds dull of sale. Really fine Foochow Pekoes are inquired for at full rates; good mediums are rather firmer.

The following is from the Circular of Messrs. Lloyd and Cheshire:—The demand for Siftings has slightly improved, and there is nothing in sound offering under 7d.; good ordinary continues in request at 1s. 0¼d.; a slight inquiry exists for common at 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 0¾d.; good common to even leaf is readily saleable at 1s. 1d. to 1s. 2d.; medium to good medium sells freely at 1s. 4d. to 1s. 6d.; for parcels of fine on offer very full prices are asked. Souchong: Medium to fine has found buyers at 1s. 6d. to 1s. 7d. and fine at 2s.; the quality is still most unsatisfactory. Black Leaf: Little has been done in Siftings, and prices are unchanged; Shanghai is worth 1s. 0½d.; common has been in fair demand at 1s. 1d.; all kinds of medium up to 1s. 6d. continue to attract notice, and prices paid show in most cases a further slight improvement; good to fine is rather scarce, the few sales made have been at an advance of ½d. per lb.; there is no finest offering; new makes, in boxes, have been sold at 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 0¾d. Oolong: The market is almost bare of common Ankoi kinds, a fair amount of business has been transacted in medium at 1s. 3d. to 1s. 4d., and there is now very little offering at this price; fine is taken in small quantities at about former quotations. Scented Tea: We have nothing to report in low spurious kinds; common Canton Scented Caper up to 1s. 1d. is rather easier; medium show no change; there are very few fine offering; S. O. Pekoe remains without alteration; fine Foochows are rather wanted but the market is barely supplied. Green: The demand has been chiefly supplied by offerings in public sale; Moyunes have ruled a shade easier, except for a few finest; Pingsueys command about previous rates; Shanghai packed and mixed Japan kinds, in the absence of shipping demand, are entirely neglected; Canton Gunpowder and Young Hysons have been sold to a small extent at about former quotations for the better kinds.

SILK.

The following is from Messrs. Jacomb, Hogg, and Co.'s monthly Circular, dated 1st inst.:—After the very extensive business of the past two months, and the great advance that has taken place in prices, some relaxation of demand might naturally be expected, but it is only within the last week or ten days that any symptoms of this have been apparent, and the comparative quietude that now exists is doubtless due more to the scarcity of suitable qualities of silk and the extreme pretentions of importers than to any change that has taken place in the position of the article. In China silk for the first three weeks of the month business was very active, and prices continued their upward course; best classic No. 3 Tsatlee having advanced to 31s., and Red Peacock to 21s.; from these prices there has been no reaction, though an inferior parcel of Red Peacocks has since been sold at 25s. 6d. Key Ings and all descriptions of Taysaam are now inconveniently scarce and dear. In Japan Silk the market during the greater part of the month has been very animated, but latterly there has been some cessation of demand, and medium and ordinary Mibash could perhaps be now bought at a slight reduction in price. The deliveries of China, 3,992 bales, are very satisfactory, but the figure for Japan, 603 bales, is still small, and shows that no material improvement in the consumption of this class of Silk has as yet taken place. The imports during January were of China 2,737 bales against 2,281 bales in the corresponding period last year; of Japan 679 bales against 1,448 bales; the deliveries were, China 3,992 bales, against 3,300 bales; Japan 603 bales, against 431 bales; the stock on the 31st January was, China, 18,243 bales, against 25,299 bales; Japan, 6,368 bales, against 5,571 bales.

LONDON QUOTATIONS, FEBRUARY 1.

CHINA.
Tsatlee, No. 1	32s 6d. to 33s. 0d.
,, ,, 2	31s. 6d. to 32s. 0d.
,, ,, 3	28s. 0d. to 31s. 0d.
Red Peacock	25s. 6d. to 26s. 0d.
Yuenfaa, Nos. 1, 2, and 3	22s. 0d. to 27s. 6d.
Taysaam Keying, Nos. 1, 2, and 3	22s. 0d to 27s. 0d.
Long Reel	20s. 6d to 22s. 0d.
Canton	15s. 0d. to 22s. 6d.
Chinese Thrown	23s. 0d. to 26s. 0d.
JAPAN.
Maibash and Sinchu, Nos. 1, 2, and 3	26s. 0d. to 36s. 0d.
Idah, Nos. 1 and 2	None.
Sodai, Nos. 1 and 2	27s. 0d. to 31s. 0d.
Oshiu, Nos. 1, 2, and 3	27s. 0d. to 36s. 0d.
Koshiu, Nos. 1 and 2	23s. 0d. to 29s. 0d.
Eichizen	None.
Mashta	,,
Hatchoji	,,

COFFEE.

The supplies of Ceylon at the public sales have been small; but for all the parcels offered there has been a brisk competition, and the whole quantity has found buyers at a slight advance upon the rates given in our last report, both for Plantation and Native. At the close the market is very firm with a good enquiry but a limited supply, and prices show a tendency towards a further advance, which will no doubt be established, unless the supplies offered during the next few days should exceed the requirements of holders. This anticipation is confirmed by the statistical position of the import, the quantity of Ceylon afloat being considerably less than at the same time last year. In East India Coffee other than Ceylon the transactions have been only to a limited extent, and have consisted exclusively of Singapore; Manila is neglected, and no offers of Java have been made. Of 1,911 bags Singapore offered 517 bags Bonthyne sort were bought in at 58s. to 66s.; the remainder sold, good bold Campar sort, at 48s. to 51s.; fine greenish Pari Pari at 59s. to 59s. 6d.; good, at 54s. 6d.; mixed, at 46s. to 49s.; and greenish Java kind at 54s. 6d. Of Manila 108 bags damaged have been sold at 49s. 6d.

The quantity of Ceylon Coffee afloat for Great Britain on the 24th Jan. was as follows:—Plantation, 110,887 cwt., against 148,246 cwt. at the corresponding date of 1869; Native, 11,461 cwt., against 42,572 cwt. The quantity afloat for Europe was—nil, in both years. The quantity of Coffee landed in the three weeks ended Jan. 22, 1870, was of Ceylon, 2,024 tons, against 1,314 tons during the corresponding period of 1868; of all descriptions, 2,458 tons, against 2,467 tons. The quantity entered for home consumption was, of Ceylon, 560 tons, against 709 tons; of all descriptions, 1,027 tons, against 1,231 tons. The quantity exported was, of Ceylon, 1,397 tons, against 924 tons; of all descriptions, 2,476 tons, against 1,844 tons. The stock on Jan. 22, was, of Ceylon, 13,966 tons, against 10,676 tons; of all descriptions, 23,027 tons, against 18,612 tons.

SUGAR.

Following our last report, a further decline was experienced, the prices at one time showing a reduction of 6d. to 1s. from the rates current at the beginning of the year. There has since been a slight improvement in the demand, but in the absence of any marked activity the market exhibits a depressed tone, and prices are without improvement. Java, Siam, and China: No business.

The quantity of Sugar landed in the three weeks ended Jan. 22, 1870, was, of Penang, 42 tons, against 674 tons in the corresponding period of 1869; of Manila, Java, and China, 2,305 tons, against 2,595 tons; the quantity entered for home consumption was, of Penang, 244 tons, against 65 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 1,465 tons, against 557 tons. The quantity exported was, of Penang, 7 tons, against 2 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, — tons, against — tons. The stock on Jan. 22 was, of

Digitized by Google

Penang, 2,121 tons, against 936 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 36,630 tons, against 32,990 tons.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—The upward tendency of the market for Ceylon continues, and we note an advance of 15s. to 20s. upon our last quoted rates. Sales of Ceylon on the spot are reported at £42 to £42 10s., and 100 tons have been sold for arrival at £42. The quantity of Ceylon afloat for Great Britain on Jan. 24 was 30,597 cwt., against 50,632 cwt. at the corresponding date last year, and 35,398 cwt. in 1868.

CAMPHOR.—The market was firm until within the past few days, when advices received of large shipments being on the way caused some weakness to be displayed. There have been no sales of Japan. Of China about 1,500 cases, on the spot and afloat, have realised the previous price, viz., 82s. 6d. per cwt. The stock on the 1st inst., of China and Japan, was 6,521 packages against 3,321 at the corresponding date last year.

CUTCH.—The market is dull, and prices are lower, 1,100 packages at auction having been sold at 26s. to 26s. 6d. for fair Pegu.

GAMBIER.—At public sale 6,000 mats were bought in at 20s. to 21s., and 1,000 bales block were retired; but there have been large sales afloat and on the spot at 16s. 10½d. to 17s. 6d., and private business is reported at 18s. 6d. to 20s. 6d.

GUMS.—Benjamin: Siam dearer; 40 cases sold in auction—bold and small Almond in block, £20; siftings and tear, £6 2s. 6d. to £9 7s. 6d. Sumatra: 440 cases offered; 2nds steady, £8 to £9 12s. 6d. being realised for common to good White, 3rds lower; TT and Co. Penang, 92s. 6d. to 95s.; Palembang in large supply, and bought in at 57s. 6d. to 85s. Copal: In demand; 250 cases all sold—fine bold clear hard Manila, 47s. to 50s. 6d.; mixed and drossy Singapore, 40s. to 45s. Damar: Lower, and difficult to sell; 800 cases, only a few sold—very fine clear Singapore, 83s.; mixed, 75s. to 77s.; fine Batavia, 90s. to 88s. Gamboge, 98 boxes, mostly sold at £14 5s. to £16 5s. for good and fine pipe (last price £15).

GALLS.—There is a fair demand and but a limited supply; prices may be quoted 2s. higher. At auction 100 cases China have realised 50s., and 157 cases Japan 49s. for fair, and 43s. 6d. for inferior qualities; privately a large business has been done at corresponding rates.

HIDES AND SKINS.—The following is from Messrs. Dyster, Nalder, and Co.'s report for the month of January:—The sale of East India Hides during the month have been large, and reach 395,546 Hides in the hair and tanned. The demand has been good, particularly for export, and nearly the whole of the large quantity brought to auction has been cleared. The best descriptions have been comparatively scarce, and have improved in value ¼d. to ½d. per lb.; ordinary and common qualities, of which the bulk of those sold consisted, barely maintained former prices. Singapore and Penang.—Ox and Cow Hides: 7,964 Hides have been sold at fully former average rates; Dry, Best Light, 9¾d.; Seconds 8¾d. to 9¼d.; Heavy 7¾d. to 8¼d.; Extra Heavy 7¼d. to 8¼d.; Thirds 6¾d. to 7d.; Fourths 5¼d.; Small and Calf 8½d. to 9¼d.; Brined 8d. to 8¼d. per lb. Singapore and Penang.—Buffalo Hides: The quantity offering has been large, and has consisted chiefly of ordinary and low qualities. Good Hides have realised about former rates, whilst stale parcels have been difficult to sell, and may be quoted ¼d. to ½d. per lb. lower. 5,426 Hides have been sold, Prime, Best Heavy 46¼ lb. 7d.; Seconds 6⅝d.; Fair to Good, Best Heavy 5½d. to 5¾d.; Seconds 4⅝d. to 5d.; Light 5½d. to 6¾d.; Thirds 4d. to 4½d.; Ordinary and Inferior, Best Heavy 4½d. to 5½d. Seconds and Light 3¾d. to 4½d. per lb.

INDIA-RUBBER.—In demand, and all sorts 1d. to 2d. per lb. higher, privately all the Singapore and Java bought up at 1s. 9d. to 1s. 10d.; Penang, 1s. 7d. to 1s. 9d.; Assam, sold largely, 1s. to 1s. 3½d.; Borneo, dull, 1s. 1½d. to 1s. 2d., and of 97 baskets in sale, only a few sold at 1s. 1¾d.

JAPAN WAX.—There is but little demand, and prices have receded 3s. to 5s. per cwt.; of 876 cases offered about one half sold at 68s. to 73s. for medium and good saucers.

MANILA HEMP.—The enquiry has been limited, and the sales since our last report have amounted to 150 bales only, which realised previous rates, viz., fair roping, £58; fine, £61; superior Sorsagon, £63 per ton.

MUSK.—Has sold at 2s. advance; 33 caddies all sold, fine flat pods, thin, 30s. to 32s. 6d. per oz.; rough bally and medium, 18s. to 26s.; very inferior, 7s. 6d. 10 tins grain mostly sold 43s. to 49s.; fair and fine quality, 11 caddies Cabardine, part sold 16s. for fair.

OILS.—Aniseed very flat, 8s. 10d. to 9s. per lb., and limited sales. Cassia: 3d. to 6d. lower, and 29 cases in auction retired at 5s. 3d., with sellers to arrive at rather less. Nutmeg: 5 cases white sold readily at 9d. Cinnamon much wanted. Citronelle: 173 cases mostly sold at 2¼d. to 2⅝d., being rather cheaper. Lemon Grass: 40 cases withdrawn at 3⅞d. to 4d.; stocks large.

PEPPER.—Black has been in active demand, and sales of Singapore black on spot 4⅝d. to 5d.; and some 8,000 bags Penang 4¼d. to 4⅝d., with few sellers at latter figure; afloat not much offering. White: A speculative demand raised prices to 6¾d., but the market is quieter again, and there are sales at 6¼d.

PLUMBAGO.—Ceylon is in better demand, especially the good qualities, which continue scarce; lump, 24s. to 27s.; fair mixed, 18s. to 22s.; inferior, 11s. to 15s.; chips, 10s. to 15s.; dust clean, 9s. to 12s.; inferior and middling, 6s. to 7s. 6d.

RHUBARB.—The opening sales of the year comprised 260 cases China, mostly new parcels, which met an active competition, and nearly all sold—28 cases well-trimmed fair, even fracture, 3s. 7d. to 3s. 11d.; 70 cases wormy and duller, dark coat, 2s. 3d. to 2s. 4d., being fully 6d. advance; common rough, dark fracture, at 6d. to 1s. 1d., also showing a slight advance.

RICE.—The market continues to exhibit a quiet tone, but prices are well maintained. The transactions since our last report, which have been limited in extent, have included the following:—Of 12,079 bags good Rangoon, the sound portion sold at 9s. 3d., and the damaged (7,000 bags), first class at 8d. 7¼d. to 9s., second at 8s. to 8s. 9d., third and repacked at 7s. 9d. to 8s. 3d.; 400 bags Ballam sold at 9s. 3d.; 11,531 bags ordinary Necransie Arracan were offered and bought in at 8s. 6d., and 3,518 bags cleaned Java at 17s. to 18s. 6d.

SAGO.—The market is firm; 1,490 boxes and 1,620 bags partly sold at 17s. to 18s. 6d. per cwt., for fair to fine small Pearl, and 21s. 6d. to 24s. for middling to fine large. Flour continues dull; 2,400 bags all retired.

SAPANWOOD quiet. At auction 29 tons Bimas sold at £8 12s. 6d. to £8 15s. per ton, and 8 tons Siam at £7 10s. to £9 15s.

SHELLS are higher; no Macassar offered, but 60 cases (part of 100 cases) good Manilla sold at £9.

SOY.—Of 50 casks China offered half sold at 3s. 1d. per gallon.

STICKLAC.—Lower; 2,247 cases at auction partly sold at 51s. to 52s. per cwt. for good free Siam.

TAPIOCA.—The market is quiet. 1,400 bags Singapore, and 1,650 bags Penang have been offered, but only a very small portion has been sold, realising 2d. to 2¼d. per lb. for good quality.

TIN.—The upward course of the market for Straits, reported in our last, has continued; business has been done at £110, and the current quotations are Straits, £110; Banca and Billiton, £110 to £111 per ton. These prices are firmly maintained.

ARTICLES OF EXPORT.

—o—

WOOLLEN GOODS.

The following is Messrs. Hayter and Hayter's monthly statement of the estimated exports of Woollens shipped to China and Japan from London and Liverpool:—

—	Pieces Long Ells.	Pieces Camlets.	Pieces Spanish Stripes, Broad Cloths, &c.	Pieces Stuffs.	Pieces Inferior Woollens.
Shipped to this date dur. present year	10,300	5,600	6,719	38,320	2,190
Do. do. 1869	6,120	6,650	4,572	29,345	11,501
Total shipped in 1869	186,120	85,860	99,879	473,669	207,222
Do. do. 1868	146,540	80,190	70,554	423,960	86,047
Had arrived in China when the last accounts left of last year's shipments	125,300	56,360	66,767	309,089	160,317

QUOTATIONS.

	s.	d.
HH Long Ells	30	9	per piece	Scarlet
HH Spa: Stripes	2	10	„ yard	„
HH SS } Camlets	61	0	„ piece	„
SS Do.	60	6	„ „	„
HH Lastings (6 reed)	56	6	„ „	Gentian
„ „ (5 reed)	49	6	„ „	„
HH Crape Lastings	45	0	„ „	„
LL Do. do.	41	0	„ „	„
HH China Figures	21	0	„ „	Scarlet
HH Crape Lustres	19	6	„ „	Black
China Blankets	1	8½	„ lb.	Scarlet

(These prices include tilleting and packing, and are subject to a discount of 1½ per cent for cash.)

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.

—o—

TEA.

The following is from Messrs. Beebe's Circular, dated the 14th Jan.:—We last reported under date Dec. 31st, since when a liberal business has been done in most descriptions of Tea, at very full prices for all classes of goods, except old Crop Greens and Japans. Sales reported during the fortnight total up about 11,000 half-chests Green (part to arrive), 7,000 half-chests Japan (chiefly old crop), 16,500 half-chests Oolong (including 5,800 to arrive), and 1,800 half-chests Souchong. The market closes firm for new Crop Japans, with an improving tendency in prices for old. New Crop Greens are less sought for at extreme quotations, and old are for the moment neglected. Oolongs are in fair demand at our quotations for new, and some improvement on late figures for old. For Souchongs the inquiry is very moderate, and prices are maintained with difficulty, in view of large supplies now close at hand. The Insulaire from Amoy, Argonaut from Shanghai, and Ada from Foochow, have arrived since our last.

The following are the current quotations:—Greens (Moyune, Twankai, and Fychow), old crop, Gunpowder, 70c. to 95c.; Imperial, 57c. to 80c.; Young Hyson, 50c. to 80c.; Hyson, 54c. to 75c.; Hyson Skin, 45c. to 50c. New crop: Gunpowder, 95c. to 125c.; Imperial, 70c. to 110c.; Young Hyson, 54c. to 115c.; Hyson, 60c. to 100c.; Hyson Skin, 47c. to 55c.; Oolongs, new crop: Foochow, common to good cargo, 56c. to 58c.; superior to fine, 62c. to 75c.; finest, 80c. to 110c.; Amoy, common to good cargo, nominal; superior to fine, 60c. to 70c.; finest, 75c. to 80c.; Souchong and Congou, new crop, common to good cargo, 45c. to 53c.; superior to fine, 56c. to 65c.; finest, 70c. to 85c.; Japans, new crop, common, nominal; medium to good, 64c. to 70c.; fine and finest, 72c. to 78c.; choice, 80c. to 85c.

The total receipts of Tea from China and Japan at the port of New York from Jan 1. to Jan. 12, 1870, were as follows:—Greens, 655,126 lbs.; Japans, 33,548 lbs.; Souchongs, 145,322 lbs.; Oolongs, 358,849 lbs.; other sorts, nil; total, 1,192,845 lbs. The stock on Jan. 1, 1870, was 9,866,167 lbs.; which, added to the above total, gives a result of 11,059,012 lbs. Subtracting from this total the exports from Jan 1 to Jan 12, 15,502 lbs., and the withdrawals for home consumption during that period, 894,268 lbs., there remains a total of 10,149,242 lbs., representing the stock on the last-named date. The total receipts of Tea from China and Japan at the port of New York for the year 1869 were as follows:—Greens, 20,609,168 lbs.; Japans, 10,413,335 lbs.; Souchongs, 2,102,847 lbs.; Oolongs, 10,461,739 lbs.; other sorts, 419,333 lbs.; total, 44,006,422 lbs. The stock on Jan. 1, 1869, was 9,577,014 lbs., which, added to the above total, gives a result of 53,583,436 lbs. Subtracting from this total the exports 5,022,767 lbs., and the withdrawals for home consumption, 38,694,502 lbs., there remains a total of 9,866,167 lbs., representing the stock on the 1st

Digitized by Google

January, 1870. The total receipts were in 1869, 44,006,422 lbs.; in 1868, 37,370,851 lbs.; in 1867, 35,889,995 lbs.; the exports were in 1869, 5,022,767 lbs.; in 1868, 1,913,924 lbs.; in 1867, 3,149,874 lbs.; the withdrawls for home consumption were in 1869, 38,694,502 lbs.: in 1868, 34,305,898 lbs.; in 1867, 33,949,711 lbs.; the stock on the 1st January was in 1869, 9,577,014 lbs.; in 1868, 8,425,985 lbs.; in 1867, 9,635,575 lbs.

COFFEE.—In sympathy with the improved tone of the market for Brazil, a more active inquiry prevails for East India descriptions, and a moderate business in these has been done at previous rates. Sales are likewise reported of 250 bags Ceylon and 15,000 mats Java (ex Fearless) on private terms. The current quotations are as before: Java (mats), 22c. to 22½c.; do. (Government bags), 21½c. to 22c.; Manila, 16c. to 18c.; Singapore, 19c. to 20c.; Native Ceylon, 17½c. to 19½c. gold (duty paid). The stock of Manila on the 1st Jan. was estimated at 2,627 bags, against 5,955 bags on Jan. 1, 1869; of Java (Government) at 1,315 bags, against 2,931 bags; of Java (mats) 26,857 mats, against 13,000 bags; of Ceylon 4,151 bags, against 8,500 bags; of Singapore nil.

CHINA MATTING.—The market is quiet at the following prices:—4-4 white, 32½c.; 5-4 white, 37½c.; 6-4 white, 42½c.; 4-4 red checked, 37½c.; 5-4 red checked, 45½c.; 6-4 red checked, 45c. to 50c.

CAMPHOR.—China is quoted 18c. gold (in bond).

GAMBIER.—The current quotation is 3⅞c. to 4c. gold (duty paid); stock, small.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is quoted $2.12½; Cassia, $1.25 gold (in bond).

HEMP.—There is still an entire absence of business in Manila. The nominal quotation is 14½c. gold. The stock of Manila on the 1st Jan. was estimated at 12,757 bales, against 17,951 bales at the corresponding date of 1869, and 21,863 bales in 1868.

INDIGO.—The market for Manila, although still quiet, has exhibited slightly more firmness, and the recent decline has been recovered, sales being reported of 12 cases at $1 to $1.45 currency, and 5 cases at $1 to $1.10 gold. The stock of Manila on the 1st January (which was all in second hands) was estimated at 1,025 cases, against 750 cases at the corresponding date last year, and 900 cases in 1868.

PRESERVED GINGER.—China is quoted $10 to $10.50 currency (duty paid).

RHUBARB.—The quotation for China is $1.50 to $2.50 currency (duty paid).

RICE.—The market continues extremely dull; the only sales to report are of 50 bags Rangoon at $6.25 currency (duty paid), and 270 bags at $3.25 gold (in bond), showing no change from the price previously ruling. The stock of East India on the 1st Jan. was 7,829 bags, against 10,316 bags at the corresponding date last year, and 2,652 bags in 1868.

SAPANWOOD.—Quotation, $30 currency; stock, 300 tons.

SUGAR.—The market continues very dull; the quantities on offer are moderate, and are not pressed, though many holders of new crop would make some trifling concessions in preference to storing cargo. The refiners will purchase from hand to mouth only, and the trade lays in just stock enough to last for a few days. There is still an entire absence of business in East India kinds, prices for which must be taken as nominal. The current quotations rule as follows:—Java, Nos. 10 and 12, 10½c. to 10⅝c.; Manila, current clayed, and superior, 9⅝c. to 10⅛c. per lb. gold. The stock on the 1st Jan. was of Java 810 baskets, against 310 baskets at the corresponding date last year; of Manila 940,560 bags, against 17,404 bags; of China 1,911 bags, against 1,000 bags.

SPICES.—There is a good demand at steady prices. We quote Cassia at 42½c. to 43½c., gold; Ginger, 11½c., do.; Mace, $1.25, do.; Pepper, 25½c., do.; Nutmegs, 95c. to $1.05, do.; Pimento, 18c. to 18½c., do.; Cloves, 26c., do.

TIN.—A slight improvement has taken place in the demand for Straits, and we note the sale of 300 slabs at 32½c. gold, showing a slight advance'; Banca has declined, small sales having been effected at 32½c. to 32½c. gold. The stock on the 1st January was, of Straits, 5,500 slabs, against 7,400 slabs at the corresponding date last year, and 5,000 slabs on the 1st January, 1868; of Banca 1,500 slabs, against 2,000 slabs in 1869, and 1,200 slabs in 1868.

BOSTON MARKET REPORT.

COFFEE.—The market is firm, but the transactions have been very light. Small sales of Java in bags and pockets at 22½c. to 23½c. gold., and 14,000 mats Java have been sold on private terms.

HEMP.—There have been sales of Manila to the extent of 1,000 bales at 14½c. and 300 bales at 14½c. gold.

SPICES.—The market is firm; we note sales of 1,650 bales Cassia on private terms.

TEA.—There has been a good business doing in Oolongs and Japans, both being firmly held in anticipation of a short supply. Oolongs: Sales, 1,600 half chests old crop at from 65c. for common to $1 for fine. In low grades a decided advance is noticed. No clean leaf good flavoured teas now offering under 65c. In new there have been considerable sales at about 67c to 70c. gold for invoices. Invoices of old crop fair assortment bring 55c. to 56c. gold. Japans continue scarce, although several vessels being about due, we may shortly expect a better supply. Purchasers are buying only for present wants, but the limited stock enables holders to obtain extreme figures. Large sales have been made to arrive, including several invoices by the Cedric and Rifleman bound for Boston. In other kinds but little doing.

SAN FRANCISCO MARKET REPORT.

COFFEE.—Imports from Jan. 1st to Dec. 31st: Java, 1,331,938 lbs.; Manila, 574,213 lbs.; Ceylon, 505,874 lbs. The market is quite stagnant, and prices altogether nominal; stocks are large, with few sales. Holders, however, exhibit continued firmness, and are not disposed to press sales.

CHINA MATTING.—Imports from Jan. 1st to Dec. 31st: 169 bales; 8,807 rolls. We note recent sales of Chinese cargo, various sizes, at prices within our range, viz., 4-4 cargo, $4.50 to $5; 5 4 cargo, $5.50 to $6; 6-4 cargo, $6.50 to $7; 4-4 contract, $8 to $12; 5-4 contract, $9 to $14; 6-4 contract, $11 to $16.

RICE.—Imports from Jan. 1st to Dec. 31st: China, 25,796,661 lbs.; Siam, 3,637,783 lbs.; Batavia, 214,047 lbs. The market remains unmoved, with considerable stocks in the hands of importers; the demand is light, and prices nominal for all descriptions.

SUGAR.—Imports from Jan. 1st to Dec. 31st: Manila, 17,709,408 lbs.; China, 2,091,976 lbs.; Batavia, 2,186,917 lbs.; Siam, 750,054 lbs. There is still an almost entire absence of business.

TEA.—Imports from Jan. 1st to Dec. 31st: China, 962,137 lbs.; Japan, 1,190,887 lbs. The supply exceeds the demand. Trade is always slack during the month of January, and the present forms no exception to the rule. We quote fine Japans, in bulk, 70c. to 72½c.; in papers, 80c. to 82½c. Basket is dull, at less than cost. Cheap Canton Greens rule from 45c. to 55c.; this latter trade is largely confined to the Chinese houses. Sales include 100 cases Japans, each 8 5 lb. boxes, private.

SHIPPING.

ARRIVALS.—Dec. 29, at San Francisco, from Hong Kong, Galveston; from Hong Kong and Yokohama, Nightingale; from Yokohama, Malacca; Jan. 5, at Boston, from Padang, Borneo; from Singapore, Joshua Loring; 8, at New York, from Shanghai, Argonaut; 12, at San Francisco, from Hong Kong, North Star; 13, at New York, from Foochow, Ada; 17, from Hong Kong, Catharina Jurgensen; from Foochow, Samuel Russell; from Singapore, Chataranga; 18, from Shanghai, Stanley Castle; 19, from Hong Kong, Chattanooga; 21, from Macao, Apenrade; 22, at Boston, from Foochow, Mary Eddy; 23, at San Francisco, from Hong Kong, America (s.); 24, at New York, from Manila, Formosa.

DEPARTURES.—Jan. 1, from San Francisco, for Hong Kong and Yokohama, China (s.); 8, for Hong Kong, Charger.

LOADING.—At San Francisco, for Yokohama, Catalina, Galveston; at New York, for Shanghai and Hong Kong, Gamecock, Samuel Russell; for Hong Kong, Endeavour.

Shipping Intelligence.

ARRIVALS.

Date.	Ship	Captain.	From	At
Jan.18	Cathaya	—	Macao	Off Scilly
— 23	3t. Andrew's Castle	—	Foochow	Off Plymouth
— 23	Tamerlane	—	Shanghai	Do.
— 24	Mary Moore	Mines	Do.	Off Prawle Point
— 18	Invincible	—	Macao	Off Scilly
— 24	Queen of the Ocean	Corkery	Foochow	Portland Roads
— 24	Magellanes	Larrinaga	Ilo Ilo	Liverpool
— 25	Pegasus	—	Shanghai	Off Falmouth
— 26	Creswell	—	Foochow	Off the Lizard
— 27	Otago	—	Maulmain	Queenstown
— 24	William Poolman	Kettler	Sourabaya, for Rotdm	Scilly
— 25	Nell Gwyn	Smith	Do, for Amsterdam	Do
—	Jeannie Alice	Moutier	Saigon	Belle Isle
— 31	Wylo	Browne	Shanghai	London
— 31	Mary Falconer	Reddie	Penang	Do.
— 27	Bothwell Castle	Fraser	Singapre., via Liverpl.	Clyde
— 31	Joseph Sprott	Dixon	Shanghai	London
— 31	Conqueror	Davidson	Do.	Do.
— 31	Northampton	Barclay	Do.	Do.
— 31	Windermere	Johnson	Foochow	Do.
— 31	Empress of India	Turner	Singapore	Do.
— 31	Glenavon	Henderson	Foochow	Deal
— 31	Lord Macaulay	Care	Do.	Do.
— 29	Benares	Anderson	Bangkok	Falmouth
— 28	Toronto	—	Singapore	Liverpool
— 28	Ottawa	—	Do.	Do.
— 25	Madura	Whitwell	Do.	Trieste
Feb. 1	Prudhoe'	Watson	Shanghai	Deal
— 1	Alfred	Gronow	Singapore, for Bremen	Falmouth
— 1	Jeanne Alice	Moutier	Saigon	Havre
— 1	Eudora	Geach	Samarang, for Rotdm	Plymouth
—	Richmond	—	Rangoon	Queenstown
Jan.31	Atlas	Larsen	Batavia	Texel
— 31	Johan	Berlin	Pasaroeang	Do.
Dec 29	Parejero	—	Hong Kong	Buenos Ayres
Feb. 4	Indian Empire	—	Batavia, for Rotrdm.	Deal
— 1	Joyce Phillips		Ylollo	Scilly
Jan 31	Baron v. Paelandt v Rosendaal	Mumford / Dietz	Batavia	Flushing

DEPARTURES.

Date.	Ship.	Captain.	For	From
Jan.20	Marie Louise	Henrichsen	Shanghai	Cardiff
— 20	Andreas	Ebert	Singapore	Do.
— 21	Guurtje Maria	—	Do.	Do.
— 22	Kinfauns Castle	Holmes	Do.	Glasgow
—	Volunteer	Black	Do.	Portland
— 21	Nyverheid	Schaap	Do.	Cardiff
— 23	Estrella	Otazabal	Manila	Liverpool
— 23	Julia	Faukenberg	Singapore	Sunderland
— 20	Crested Wave	Renouf	Shanghai	Cardiff
— 23	Neuhof	Wendt	Singapore	Do.
— 23	Kanagawa	Carst	Do.	Do.
— 24	Ste. Anne	Redenac	Do.	Do.
— 18	Charlie	Drummond	Do.	Do.
— 22	La Plata	Abbot	Buenos Ayres & Peng.	Glasgow
— 27	Maiden Queen	Ray	Hong Kong	London
— 25	Doune Castle	Erskine	Shanghai	Liverpool
— 28	River Indus	Shearer	Colombo	London
— 28	Hopewell	Parson	Hong Kong	Do.
—	Jonge Jan	Itz	Batavia	Flushing
Dec.30	Diamant	Bischoff	Do.	Rio de Janeiro
Jan.29	Wellesley	Stadde	Cardiff and Galle	London
— 29	Perseverance	Garcia	Do.	Do.

Digitized by Google

DEPARTURES—Continued.

Date.	Ship.	Captain.	For.	From.
—	Adriana Petronella...	—	Singapore	Rotterdam
Jan.27	Johanna Antonia.....	—	Do.	Shields
—	Nestor	—	Batavia	Rotterdam
— 29	Agamemnon (str.) ...	Middleton	Penang,Sing.,&Shan.	Liverpool
— 29	Cestrian.....	Portman	Singapore	Sunderland
Feb. 1	Thyatira	McKay	Shanghai	London
Jan.30	Oscar	Alm	Nicolajefsk	Cuxhaven
Feb. 3	John R. Worcester ..	Cawse.....	Shanghai	London
—	Medea.....	Antringa	Batavia	Rotterdam
— 4	Sree Singapura	McKenzie	Singapore	London

* After repairing.

(See Commercial Postscript and Correspondents' Letters.)

LOADING.

At LONDON.—For Yokohama: John Milton, Lota, Espiegle. For Yokohama and Hiogo: Harbottle, Pegasus. For Shanghai: Juanpore, Geraint, Clara, Melbrek, Cutty Sark, Hindostan, Glenavon. For Foochow: Wylo. For Hong Kong: Scawfell, Fiery Cross, William Fruing, Invincible, Sir Harry Parkes. For Hong Kong, Amoy, and Foochow: Devana. For Singapore: Kingdom of Belgium. For Singapore, Hong Kong, Shanghai, and Yokohama (via Suez Canal): Erl King (str.). For Penang: Eleanor. For Colombo: Shooting Star, A.O.A. For Colombo (via Suez Canal): Otterburn (str.).

At LIVERPOOL.—For Yokohama: Singapore, Floris. For Shanghai: W. G. Russell. For Hong Kong: Veronica. For Manila: Aurora, Hong Kong. For Singapore: Ellen Lamb, Knight Templar. For Batavia and Sourabaya: Konigin Augusta. For Penang, Singapore, Hong Kong and Shanghai (via Suez Canal): Diomed (str.).

At GLASGOW.—For Singapore: Bothwell Castle. For Batavia and Sourabaya: County of Lancaster.

SPOKEN.

MAKASSER, Amsterdam to Macassar, Oct. 26, 41 S., 21 E.
VERITAS (ship), Queenstown to Hongkong, Nov. 21, 4 S., 31 W.
TAITSING, London to Hongkong, Dec. 16, 3 N., 24 W.
JOHANNE MARIE (Dan. barq.), London to Hiogo, Oct. 27, 3 S., 126 E.
A SHIP, Cardiff to Galle, Dec. 16, 5 S. (?), 26 W.
ADRIANA, Rotterdam to Batavia, 40 days out, 8 S., 25 W.
ERNESTO ZUCCANI, Shanghai to London, 52 days out, off Mossel Bay.
SOMERSET, Batavia to Amsterdam, Dec. 9, 27 S., 6 E.
ANN, Cardiff to Singapore, Jan. 10, 49 N., 8 W.
BLAIR ATHOL, Shields to Singapore, Dec. 23, 1 N., 23 W.
EVE (French brig), Bordeaux to Saigon, 30 days out, 4 N., 20 W.
ROLLO, Shanghai to London, Dec. 15, 34 S., 23 E.
LUCKNOW (barque), Swansea to Galle, Dec. 9, 4 S., 32 W.
INDRE (Swedish ship), Cardiff to Ceylon, Dec. 16, 14 S., 37 W.
MARY WHITRIDGE, Foochow to Boston, Nov. 6.
ARCHER, from Manila, Nov. 8.
ELLEN JONES, Java to Amsterdam, Jan. 26, 50 N., 12 W.
GLENDEVON (ship), Batavia to Rotterdam, Dec. 31, 5 N., 27 W.
SOOLOO, Boston to Batavia, Dec. 14, 37 N., 42 W.
BOYNE, London to Colombo, Dec. 20, 6 N., 27 W.
LOCHLEVEN CASTLE, Glasgow to Singapore, Dec. 20, 6 N., 27 W.
BLACK WATCH, London to Japan, Dec. 27, 6 S., 33 W.
LIMENA, Colombo to England Jan. 3, 4 N., 32 W.
TEVIOT (barq.), London to Colombo, Dec. 12, 21 S., 27 W.
CATHARINA (Hamb. barq.). for Hong Kong, Jan. 1, 4 N., 25 W.
CHILI (?), (Spanish ship), Cardiff to Manila, Oct. 18, 35 S., 11 W.
No. 1,925 (iron ship), 4th d.p., Batavia to Rotterdam, Jan. 27, 50 N., 10 W.
HINDOSTAN, Shields to Galle, Jan. 18, 5 N., 15 W.
SHARSPEBURG, Batavia to Boston, Jan. 18, 32 N., 72 W.
FIDELIO, Hamburg to Nagasaki, Dec. 19, 30 W.
BENZOEKIE, Rotterdam to Batavia, Dec. 21, 6 N., 26 W.
NIEUWE WATERWEG, Amsterdam to Batavia, Dec. 18, 4 N., 26 W.
EUPHROSYNE, Penang to Amsterdam, Jan. 28, 47 N., 10 W.
DOUNE CASTLE, Liverpool to Shanghai, Jan. 28, 50 N., 12 W.
FLYING SPUR, London to Shanghai, Jan. 26, 42 N., 13 W.
RACEHORSE, Sunderland to Singapore, Dec. 23, 7 N., 25 W.
MEDWAY, Singapore to London, Nov. 20, 30 S., 42 E.
ALFRED, Singapore to Falmouth, Dec. 7, 21 S., 1 W.
V. N. J. W. (English ship), Bangkok to Falmouth, Dec. 29, 20 N., 31 W.
NICOLETTE, Rotterdam to Batavia, Dec. 21, 5 N., 21 W.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS.

Berth freights to the East seem, instead of showing a favourable reaction, to become duller; business in coal freights from the Northern outports is also very slack and inactive, many of the rates quoted being almost nominal.

Current rates of freight for vessels on the berth:—To Yokohama: 32s. 6d. weight, 35s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 120s. weight, 110s. meast. To Shanghai: 40s. weight, 30s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 90s. weight, 80s. meast. To Hong Kong: 35s. weight, 30s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 80s. weight, 70s. meast. To Batavia: 25s. weight, 30s. meast. To Penang: per steamer, via Suez Canal, 80s. weight, 70s. meast. To Singapore: 30s. weight, 25s. to 30s. meast.; per steamer via Suez Canal, 70s. weight, 60s. meast. To Ceylon: 20s. to 25s. weight, 20s. meast; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 60s. mea t. At New York to China; $12 to $15 per ton of 40 cubic feet.

The current quotations for coal, &c., are as follows:—From Wear or Tyne per keel.—For Shanghai: £40. For Hong Kong: £30. For Singapore: £24. For Galle: £24. From Newport, Cardiff, or Swansea per ton. For Yokohama: £1 18s. For Shanghai: £2 2s. For Hong Kong: £1 12s. 6d. For Saigon: £1 5s. For Singapore: £1 6s. For Galle: £1 5s. 6d.

The Admiralty have invited tenders for the conveyance of 204 tons stores to Hong Kong.

CASUALTIES.

Advices from Rotterdam, dated Jan. 19, state that the Anna Margaretha, bound to Samarang, whilst going to sea Jan. 18, got aground, and had been towed back to Zierikzee roads.

The Argonant, Sanderson, which arrived at New York, Jan. 8, from Shanghai, reported having encountered a gale from S.W. to N.W., Jan. 3 and 4, 31 N., 72 W., during which she lost sails and shipped great quantities of water.

The William Clowes, Tetleck, from Shields to Hong Kong, put into Plymouth, Jan. 21, having touched on the Kentish Knock whilst in charge of a pilot.

A telegram received, Jan. 25, from New York, per Atlantic cable, states as follows:—Hercules, for Yokohama, foundered.

The Mondelli, Denis, from Singapore, arrived at Bordeaux, reported having experienced bad weather, and sustained damage; since anchoring in the Gironde she had been obliged to pump every two hours to prevent the water getting above the damage.

The Willem Poolman (Dut. ship), Kettler, from Sourabaya to Rotterdam, struck on rocky ground, near Scilly, Jan. 27, and unshipped her rudder; she was got off (with assistance of boatmen and steamer) leaky; it was supposed her anchor was foul.

The Agamemnon (str.), Middleton, from Liverpool to Singapore, China, &c., whilst lying at anchor in the Sloyne, was fouled, Jan. 29, by a Dutch schooner, but proceeded after picking up her anchor, which she slipped to get clear.

The Wellesley, Stadder, which sailed from London Jan. 29, for Cardiff, and Galle in ballast, put back to the West India Docks Feb. 3, having been ashore on the Long Sand.

The Milton, Smith, from Cardiff to Singapore, with coals, which put back to the former port, Jan. 4, was leaky; and she had boats stove, houses started, bulwarks and sails carried away, having experienced a very severe gale Dec. 30; the cargo would have to be discharged.

The Bengal, Burgess, from Cardiff to Singapore, which put back to Penarth Dock Jan. 3, was leaky; she had mainmast sprung and other damage, having experienced the gale of Dec. 30.

Advices from Rotterdam, dated Jan. 26, state that the Anna Margaretha, V. Munchen, bound to Samarang, which grounded Jan. 18, and was towed back to Zierikzee roads, was leaky; she would discharge at Dordt for repairs.

MISCELLANEOUS.

At SUEZ.—Jan. 24, Woodham (str.), Hill, from Newcastle for Ceylon (having passed through the Canal).

At ST. HELENA.—Dec. 17, Lord Macaulay, Care, from Foochow, and sailed for London; 27, Chetah, Reid, from Macao.

Off ST. HELENA.—Dec. 16, Elizabeth Cushing, from Philippine Islands for London.

Off MOSSEL BAY.—Nov. 25, Parejero, King, from Singapore, and sailed or Buenos Ayres; Peru, from Java, and sailed for Amsterdam.

Advices from Cape Town, dated Dec. 18, state that on the 6th a large screw steamer passed Cape Point, steering W. and when abreast of the lighthouse she signalled Burgomeester Smit, from Shanghai to London, 21 days out, via Table Bay.

At GIBRALTAR.—Jan. 28, Chu Kiang (str.), Warden, from London, and cleared for Penang and China.

At MALTA.—Jan. 14, Arrow (str.), Laing, from the Clyde, and left for Galle, viâ Suez Canal, on the 20th.

At SUEZ.—Jan. 19, William Miller (str.), Wyberg, from London, for Singapore and Hong Kong; Arrow (str.), Laing, from the Clyde, for Galle; Afrique (str.), Rolland, from the Clyde, for Colombo, &c., all having passed through the Canal.

On the 28th Jan. the following goods were recovered from the Spindrift, from London to Shanghai, wrecked off Dungenness:—60 bales, 18 cases, 29 bottles quicksilver, 343 loose pieces cotton goods, 1 gipsy-winch, 1 iron stanchion, belonging to the ship. Owing to the heavy weather of late further operations have been suspended.

At ST. HELENA.—Dec. 10, Pepita, from Manila, for Cadiz.

Off ST. HELENA.—Dec. 13, County of Ayr, from Padang, for Rotterdam.

The Chaturanga, Hardy, from Singapore to New York, which put into Bermuda, Sept. 24, dismosted and leaky, completed her repairs Jan. 8, and sailed for her destination on the 10th, where she arrived on the 17th Jan.

LAUNCHES.

The first of a fleet of steamships building in this country for the Compania de Navigacion a Vapor Italo Platense was recently launched from the building yard of Messrs. J. and W. Dudgeon, shipbuilders and engineers, at Cubitt-town. The vessel was named the Italo Platense, previous to being launched from the slipway, by Madame de Murietta. The Italo Platense is a remarkably handsome vessel of 1,600 tons, of large carrying power combined with fine lines for speed. She is 270 ft. long by 34 ft. in breadth, and is fitted with independently working twin screw engines, designed and manufactured by the Messrs. Dudgeon, of 370-horse power nominal. Two other vessels for the same company are building by the Messrs. Dudgeon, and a fourth is about to be laid down by them. The vessels of the Compania de Navigacion a Vapor Italo Platense are intended to run between Genoa and other Italian ports in the Mediterranean and the River Plate, and develop what is believed to be a very large and important commerce.

On the 29th ult. there was launched from the building yard of the Messrs. Hall, at Footdee, Aberdeen, a fine clipper ship, of 700 tons register, named the Lufra. She is of composite construction, and of the following dimensions:—Length, 180 ft.; breadth, 31 ft.; depth, 18 ft.; classed at Lloyd's, A 1 for thirteen years. She has been built to the order of Messrs. Anderson and Co., owners of Macduff, and is intended for the China tea trade. On leaving the ways the christening ceremony was gracefully performed by Mrs. Hodge, and from the model of the Lufra, and her very graceful appearance on the water, there is no doubt but that she will maintain the reputation of her builders. The vessel will be commanded by Captain Hodge, who has had many years' experience in the China trade.

There has been launched from the shipbuilding yard of Messrs.

Digitized by Google

Maudslay, Sons, and Field, East Greenwich, a sailing ship named the Blackadder, built for Messrs. John Willis and Sons, and intended for the China tea trade. The launch was most successfully managed, the ceremony of christening the vessel being performed by Miss Willis. The principal dimensions of the Blackadder are—200 feet between perpendiculars, 35 feet beam, and 21 feet depth of hold, her registered tonnage being about 940.

On the 31st ult. there was launched from the West Shipbuilding-yard of Messrs. Charles Connell and Co., at Overnewton, Glasgow, a finelly-modelled composite sailing ship of 1,174 tons, named the County of Lancaster, and built to class sixteen years A 1 at Lloyd's. She is owned by Messrs. R. and J. Craig, shipowners, Glasgow, and is intended for their Java line of packets. This is the eleventh vessel built by Messrs. Connell and Co. for the above firm.

NOTICES TO MARINERS.

CHINA SEA.—The French Government has given notice of the existence of two shoals in the Carimata Strait, one lying between Billiton Island and the Montaran Islands, and the other in the fairway of the Strait, to the N.E. of the Discovery East Bank. [All bearings are magnetic. Variation 1 deg. 15 min. Easterly in 1870.] The shoal of the Monprang (Montaran) Islands, discovered by the steamship Maas en Waal, has 18 feet water over it, From the shoal Pulo Sambilan is in line with the south peak of Pulo Nangka, bearing E. ¼ N. distant about six miles. The position of this shoal is lat. 2 deg. 32 min. 30 sec. S. lon. 108 deg. 27 min. E. The shoal in the fairway of the Strait discovered by the steamship Den Briel, on which the rocks could be seen, extends about one mile E. and W.; the position given is in lat. 3 deg. 23 min. S. lon. 109 deg. 27 min. 30 sec. E., which would place the reef 17 miles N.E. ½ E. of the Discovery East Bank.

INDIAN OCEAN.—Information has been received at the Admiralty from Captain Croudace, of the Corona, of the existence of shoal water in a part of the Indian Ocean about 57 leagues to the south-west of Sandal-wood Island, over which the ship passed on her passage from Foochow to London on October 1st, 1869. A series of good astronomical observations, taken immediately after the ship had passed over the shoal, places it in lat. 12 deg 26 min S. lon. 118 deg. 40 min. 30 sec. E.; the shoal was observed to be circular, and not more that an eighth of a mile in diameter; the bottom, with several fish, was distinctly seen. No soundings were obtained, but it is considered that a probable depth of 10 fathoms existed in the ship's tack, MACASSAR STRAIT.—The French Government has given notice of the existence of two shoals near the east coast of Borneo, at the northern part of the Macassar Strait. [All bearings are magnetic. Variation 1 deg. Easterly in 1870.] A shoal with less than 18 feet water was observed by the steamship Onrust. The ship when anchored. with Tanjong bearing W., and Goenong Paddie W.N.W., considered the shoal to lie to the S E., about eight miles distant. The position thus assigned to the shoal is in lat. 1 deg. 40 min. N., lon. 118 deg. 28 min. E. The Dutch barque Johanna Anthonia, in passing through the Macassar Strait, touched on a shoal with depths varying from 10 fathoms to 18 feet, to the southward of Cape Kaniongan. This shoal lies six miles E.S.E. from Bira Birahan Island (Pulo Bira), and is in lat. 0 deg. 42 min. N. lon. 118 deg. 35 min. E.

THE "SPINDRIFT."—A correspondence between Mr. J. H. Patteson, the magistrate at Greenwich Police-court, and Mr. Farrer, secretary to the Board of Trade, as to the observations which the Board made upon the inquiry before the magistrate into the loss of the Spindrift, is published. Mr. Patteson complains that copies of the letter to him were published in the newspapers as soon as he received it, and charges Mr. Farrer with having departed from the rules usually observed in conducting correspondence. He adds that he can scarcely believe that the president and committee of the board would have sanctioned the publication of an "official" letter, censuring the judgment of the Court of Inquiry without any previous communication with the members of that Court, and without giving them the slightest opportunity of replying to the criticism. One of Mr. Patteson's letters enters into much detail respecting the matters in difference between him and the Board of Trade, and he entirely denies the authority of the Board of Trade to question his decision on matters of law. At the same time he informs the Board of the legal principles and cases on which he founded his decision, and says he still adheres to the view he took. He had no statutable jurisdiction over the pilot, who was the sole cause of the loss of the vessel.

TRIAL TRIP OF THE TSZRU.—We recently noticed the launch of the screw steamer Tszru, for the China and Japan trade. This steamer went on trial on Thursday, the 27th ult., to test speed and consumption of fuel. The vessel being fully loaded, and ready to proceed to sea after adjusting compasses, tested her speed by running from Glasgow to Garelochhead, which was accomplished in three hours, notwithstanding the necessary slowings in passing down the river, realising a speed of 10¼ knots per hour, being one knot above the guaranteed speed, the vessel at the same time being loaded 21 inches deeper than the specified draft on which the contract speed was to be tested. The consumption of coal, which was guaranteed at 4¼ cwt. per hour at full speed, was found by weighing out the coals (Scotch) to be 3 cwt. and 10 lb. per hour, or nearly 33 per cent. below contract. The engines worked in the most satisfactory manner during the whole day, and the vessel after trial proceeded to London on her way to Japan. We may remark that the Tszru is fitted with compound engines of 70-horse power nominal, which have been constructed by Messrs. James Howden and Co.

NEW STEAMERS FOR CHINA.—The screw steamer Shantung, built by Messrs. A. and J. Inglis, Glasgow, for the Shanghai Steam Navigation Company (as already reported), has had a trial trip. Her speed at the measured mile was equal to eleven knots, on a consumption of 2¼ lb. per indicated horse-power. After the trial the vessel proceeded on to the Suez Canal, en route for China, touching at Waterford, which place she reached in twenty-four hours, the distance being about 270 nautical miles. The paddle-steamer building for the same company for the Yangtsze was launched from the same yard on the 3rd inst., and is of the following dimensions:—Length over all, 285 feet; breadth do., 69 feet; tonnage, about 2,800 tons gross. She is built in the American style, with iron hull, including main deck, and two tiers of deck-houses above the main deck, the lower tier being fitted for cargo, and the upper for passengers, Chinese and European. The engine is of the genuine North River type, with walking beam at the height of 45 feet above the vessel's bottom. One important difference exists between this vessel and the paddle-wheel steamers built in America, the engine framing being constructed of iron instead of wood, an innovation which it is considered will be a great improvement in point of rigidi ty and durability.

THE LOSS OF THE "KING LEAR."—From a statement made by the chief officer for the Board of Trade, it appears that this vessel (which is owned by the Merchant Shipping Company) was well found, and in all respects seaworthy, on leaving Cardiff for Hong Kong with 2,380 tons of coal. The weather encountered in the Channel was very severe, and she sprung a leak, which could not be kept under, and while clearing away the boats she gave a sudden plunge and sunk—the chief officer and four men being the only survivors.

MESSRS SASSOONS, of London, have despatched a fine screw steamer from Glasgow, via Suez Canal, for Bombay. She is named the Snipe, and is about 800 tons with full power.

WITH a view of testing the Suez Canal, the directors of the P. and O. Company have ordered home the Bengal and Salsette by that route.

THE BEST ROOFING MATERIAL.

BRABY & CO. ALSO MANUFACTURE SHEET AND PERFORATED ZINC, ROOFING FELT, GALVANIZED BUCKETS AND ALL OTHER ZINC AND GALVANIZED IRON GOODS, ILLUSTRATED LISTS OF WHICH WILL BE SENT FREE ON APPLICATION.

F. BRABY & Co.

(LIMITED),

BRABY'S GALVANIZED IRON HOUSES.

FITZROY WORKS, EUSTON ROAD, LONDON · AND AT IDA WHARF, DEPTFORD, S.E.

PORT OF AMOY.

SHIPOWNERS, AGENTS, and COMMANDERS are informed that the Dock Company's establishments at the above port afford every facility, at moderate charges, for REPAIRING and SPARRING VESSELS, cleaning and painting iron ships and steamers.

Their large Granite Dock has 286 feet length on the blocks, and at average spring tides can receive vesse's of 16 to 17 feet draught. It has a caisson-gate and a powerful centrifugal steam pump, and an engineer's workshop fitted with lathes and tools, driven by steam; iron and brass foundries, boiler-makers' shop, a large smithy and carpenters and boat-builders' sheds. superintended by resident Europeans.

Their two smaller GRANITE DOCKS can receive, at spring tides, vessels drawing 12 feet.

Spars, timber, and other Dockyard material kept in stock.

Quarters for officers and a DRY GODOWN for stores of vessels under repair.

FOOCHOW DOCK.

RIVER MIN.

THE above granite floored DOCK, of the following dimensions, viz., Length, 300 feet, breadth at bottom, 40, is capable of receiving vessels drawing 13 to 16 feet, as the state of the tides will allow. The Dock runs dry to the blocks, and is pumped out by steam.

The above premises comprise a large Machine Shop containing a

WHITWORTH'S 12-INCH SCREW CUTTING GAP LATHE,
DRILLING AND SCREWING MACHINES,
A LARGE SMITHY, &c., &c., &c.

Large Godowns are on the premises for STOWAGE OF CARGO, &c., &c. A large stock of Woods, Metal, &c., &c., always on hand.

The Dock steam tug Woosung is available at all times to tow vessels to or from sea.

JOHN C. SKEY, Superintendent.

SINGAPORE DOCKS.

THE PATENT SLIP AND DOCK COMPANY execute SHIPS' REPAIRS of all descriptions in the most efficient manner, under the supervision of European Engineers and Shipwrights.

The DRY DOCK (opened in March, 1859) admits two Vessels at the same time, being over 400 feet in length, with a depth of water ranging to 15½ feet. A second DRY DOCK of larger dimensions will shortly be completed, and available for the heaviest Steamers.

Adjoining the above there is extensive WHARF WAREHOUSE, and other accommodation, including every convenience for coaling Steamers, discharging cargo, and storing goods, together with ample MACHINERY and appliances for repairing iron steamers, &c.

Apply at the offices of Messrs. PATERSON, SIMON and Co., Singapore; or 21, St. Swithin's-lane, Cannon-street, London, E.C.

WM. CLOUGHTON, Managing Director.
New Harbour, Singapore, June, 1868.

Digitized by Google

THE CHINA TRADERS' INSURANCE COMPANY, LIMITED.

REPORT of the COMMITTEE to the FOURTH ORDINARY MEETING of SHAREHOLDERS, held at the Office of the GENERAL AGENTS, at HONG KONG, on December 15th, 1869.

The Committee have now the pleasure of waiting upon the Shareholders with a Report of the working of the Company during the past twelve months.

The amount of Premia collected in Hong Kong and China, between the 1st of November, 1868, and 31st of October, 1869, and the amount collected at the Foreign Agencies within that period, of which the General Agents have received advice, after deducting all sums paid as bonus and commissions, and adding interest, amount to $300,017.51. The annexed accounts have been audited by Mr. M. P. Jukes and Mr. E. J. Sage, the latter named gentleman having been appointed by the Committee to take the vacancy caused by the retirement of Mr. Delbanco. In accordance with the Articles of Association, the meeting will have to elect Auditors for the coming year; Mr. M. P. Jukes offers himself for re-election, and Mr. E. J. Sage is proposed in place of Mr. Delbanco.

It will be seen from these Accounts, that after carrying forward to next year $20,000 for Premia received in respect of risks taken before October 31st, but not yet terminated, placing $31,163.85 to Suspense Account to meet unsettled claims, and writing off $1,856.04 from Preliminary Expenses (extinguishing this account), there remains a balance to the credit of Profit and Loss Account from transactions already closed of $160,000, and the Committee recommend that this sum be declared available for distribution as profits of the Company for the year.

The apportionment of this sum, if so appropriated, will, under the 132nd clause of the Articles of Association, be as follows :—The sum of $40,000 will be carried to the Reserve Fund and invested by the Committee, the sum of $40,000 be divided pro rata among contributing Shareholders, and the sum of $80,000, or $400 per share, be paid to Shareholders as general dividend.

In accordance with the 86th clause of the Articles of Association, two members of the present Committee (Mr. Helland and Mr. Hitchcock) retire from office at this meeting, but being eligible, offer themselves for re-election.

Hong Kong, December 15th, 1869. GEORGE J. HELLAND, Chairman.

STATEMENT FOR THE YEAR ENDING OCTOBER 31, 1869.

ASSETS.

Dr.
Cash in hands of General Agents		$339,140.75
Remittance of £10,000 to London Agents, now in their hands		43,478.89
Premia in hands of London Agents		28,544.71
Reserve Funds deposited in Bank		92,000.00
		$503,163.85

LIABILITIES.

Cr.
Capital	$1,000,000
Amount paid up on 200 shares		$200,000.00
Amount of Reserve Fund		92,000.00
Balance of Profit and Loss Account for the year ending 31st October, 1869		211,163.85
		$503,163.85

PROFIT AND LOSS ACCOUNT.

Dr.
To losses paid		$136,040.78
To preliminary expenses written off		1,856.04
To charges account		6,638.98
To survey fees		4,527.60
To losses in exchange on remittances		256.90
To carried to suspense account, to meet expected claims	$31,163.85
To premia on unexpired risks carried forward to new account	20,000.00
To available for distribution	160,000.00
		211,163.85
		$360,484.15

Cr.
By amount brought forward from last year's accounts	$59,689.53
By unclaimed dividends	777.11
		$60,466.64
By amount of premia collected at Head Office and Agencies	$825,664.64
By less return premia	$32,480.95
and commissions	18,346.46
	50,827.41
		274,837.23
By amount of interest on Reserve Fund ...	$4,600.00
By amount of interest from General Agents...	20,580.28
		25,180.28
		$360,484.15

RESERVE FUND.

Dr.
To amount at interest with the Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China		$27,500.00
To amount at interest with the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation		29,500.00
To amount at interest with the Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London, and China		35,000.00
		$92,000.00

Cr.
By amount at credit	$92,000.00
	$92,000.00

E.E.
Audited and found correct.

(Signed) M. P. JUKES, EDWARD J. SAGE, } Auditors.

Hong Kong, 31st October, 1869.

AUGUSTINE HEARD AND CO., General Agents.

Digitized by Google

THE CHINA AND JAPAN MARINE INSURANCE COMPANY.

CAPITAL,

1,500,000 Taels Shanghai Syeee, in 3,000 Shares of 500 Taels each.

PAID-UP CAPITAL,

Tls. 300,000, or Tls. 100 per Share.

COURT OF DIRECTORS.

F. A. Groom, Esq., of Messrs. Glover, Dow, and Co.
W. Jackson, Esq., of the Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London, and China.
R. W. Little, Esq., of Messrs. Little, and Co.
T. Probst, Esq., of Messrs. William Pustau and Co.
J. B. Robertson, Esq., of Messrs. Bull, Purdon, and Co.
J. F. H. Trautmann, Esq., of Messrs. Trautmann & Co.

HEAD OFFICE.—SHANGHAI.

The Company will commence business in January, or as soon after as the Directors shall have been enabled to allot the Shares.

The Company will be a permanent one.

The Net Profits will be divided every year as follows:—30 per cent. will be returned as bonus to all contributors of business, rateably in proportion to the amount of net premia contributed. Interest at the rate of 12 per cent per annum on the paid-up Capital will be paid to the Shareholders, and the balance of the Net Profits carried to the Reserve Fund.

When the Reserve Fund shall have reached Tls 300,000, the Net Profit will be divided as follows:—80 per cent. to all contributors of business, 20 per cent. to the Reserve Fund, and 50 per cent to the Shareholder

When the Reserve Fund shall have reached Tls. 500,000, the Net Profits will then be divided as follows:—30 per cent. to all contributors of business, and 70 per cent. to the Shareholders.

ROBERT BENSON AND CO.,
LONDON AGENTS,
10. King's-arms-yard, Moorgate-street

Jan. 24, 1870.

COMPTOIR D'ESCOMPTE DE PARIS.

Incorporated by National Decrees of 7th and 8th March, 1848, and by Imperial Decree of 20th July 1854, and 31st December, 1866.

Recognised by the International Convention of 30th April, 1862.

CAPITAL, fully paid up, £3,200.000.

Reserved Fund ... ... f 20,000,000 ... £800,000

HEAD OFFICE.—14, Rue Bergere, Paris.

AGENCIES AT—Lyons, Marseilles, and Nantes (France), Alexandria (Egypt), Calcutta, Bombay, Hong Kong, Shanghai, Saigon (Cochin China), Bourbon (Reunion), and Yokohama (Japan).

LONDON BANKERS.—The Union Bank of London.

LONDON AGENCY.—13, Leadenhall-street, E.C.
MANAGER.—G. Pietsch.
SUB-MANAGER.—Theod. Dromel.

The London Agency grants Drafts and Letters of Credit, and purchases or collects Bills payable at the above-named places.

The Agency will conduct Banking business of every description with the Continent India, China, &c., upon terms to be ascertained at the Office.

UNION INSURANCE SOCIETY OF CANTON.

DIRECTORS IN HONG KONG.
W. NISSEN, Esq.,
J. P. DUNCANSON, Esq.,
P. RYRIE, Esq.,
W. KESWICK, Esq.,
A. A. D SASSOON, Esq.,
E. A. HITCHCOCK, Esq.,
W. LEMANN, Esq.,
W. H. FOSTER, Jun., Esq.

AGENTS FOR LONDON.
Messrs. DENT, PALMER, and Co.

Marine Risks are accepted by the above Society on goods by first class vessels from the United Kingdom to India, China, Japan, Melbourne, and Sydney, at the current rates of premium.

Claims for Losses and Averages are payable in London, or at the Port of destination, as may be desired.

OFFICES:—
Nos. 9 AND 11, KING'S ARMS YARD,
MOORGATE STREET, E.C.

Liebig Company's Extract of Meat.

AMSTERDAM EXHIBITION, 1869, FIRST PRIZE, being above the Gold Medal. Supplied to the British, French, Prussian Russian, Italian, Dutch and other Governments. One pint of fine flavoured Beef-tea at 2½d. Most convenient and economic "stock."

CAUTION. Only sort warranted genuine by the Inventor, Baron Liebig, whose signature is on every genuine Jar.

Ask for LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT, and NOT for Liebig's Extract of Meat.

HONG KONG AND SHANGHAI BANKING CORPORATION.

Capital, 5,000,000 dols Paid up, 3,000.00 dols.

COURT OF DIRECTORS AND HEAD OFFICE IN HONG KONG.

LONDON MANAGER—W. H. Vacher, 32, Nicholas-lane BANKERS.—London and County Bank.

BRANCHES AND AGENCIES:

Hong Kong	Hankow	Singapore
Shanghai	Japan (Yokohama)	Bombay
Foochow	Manila	Calcutta
Ningpo

The Bank grants DRAFTS upon and negotiates or collects BILLS at any of its Agencies or Branches; also receives DEPOSITS for fixed periods, at rates varying with the period of deposit.

CAUTION.

THE GROSS FRAUDS which continue to be practised by obscure manufacturers, more particularly in Germany, by imitating the labels attached to JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s PERFUMERY, render it imperative upon the Proprietors to Caution the public against such nefarious proceedings, and to request their friends and patrons to purchase only of respectable dealers, who import direct from JOHN GOSNELL and Co., and invite special attention to the address, ANGEL-PASSAGE, 93, UPPER THAMES-STREET, late of 12, Three King-court, Lombard-street, London, E.C.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s SELECT PERFUMES—Ess Bouquet Royal Yacht Club Bouquet, Jockey Club Perfume, Essence of Wood Violet, Victoria Bouquet, Garibaldi Bouquet, Frangipanni, Military Bouquet, The Bride's Bouquet, Tea Rose, Russian Leather Perfume.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Toilet Vinegar, Inexhaustible Salts, Aromatic Vinegar, Aromatic Eau de Cologne.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Prince of Wales Perfume

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Princess Alexandra Perfume.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s La Noblesse Perfume.
JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s La Noblesse Pomade.
JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s La Noblesse Soap.
JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Real Old Brown Windsor Soap.
JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Golden Oil—Moelline—Macassar Oil, Bear's Grease, &c., for the Hair.
JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Extra Highly Scented Toilet and Nursery Powder.
JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Stereodesmic or Dentist Tooth Brushes and Trichosaron Hair Brushes, warranted to purchasers.
JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Instantaneous Hair Dye.
JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Cherry Tooth Paste is greatly superior to any tooth powder, gives the teeth a pearl-like whiteness, protects the enamel from decay, and imparts a pleasing fragrance to the breath.

Orders executed on receipt of 10 per cent. of the amount in cash, the balance being drawn for through a Banker.

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES.

THIS UNIVERSAL REMEDY now stands the first in public favour and confidence; this result has been acquired by the test of fifty years' experience. These lozenges may be found on sale in every British colony; and throughout India and China they have been highly esteemed wherever introduced For COUGHS, ASTHMA, and all AFFECTIONS of the THROAT and CHEST, they are the most agreeable and efficacious remedy; they do not contain opium or any other deleterious drug and may therefore be taken with perfect safety by the most delicate constitution.

Sold in boxes, tins, and bottles of various sizes.

KEATING'S CHILDREN'S WORM TABLETS.

The great remedy for these disorders in Adults and Children can now be administered in the form of A PURELY VEGETABLE SWEETMEAT, at once agreeable and effective.

TESTIMONIAL.

"Batley, Jan 26, 1869.

"SIR,—One of my children, aged two years and four months, being troubled with worms, I was induced to try your Bon Bons. I purchased some from Mr. B. Whitaker, chemist, of Batley, and after taking two only she voided nine large worms. Two days after another dose, she again voided three more; three of them, the worst, measuring from 8 in. to 9 in. each in length I consider them a most invaluable remedy, and should be tried by all suffering from worms.

(Signed) "JOHN STENSON.
"Witness, B. WHITAKER.

"To Mr. Keating, London."

Sold in tins and bottles of various sizes.

KEATING'S INSECT DESTROYING POWDER.

This Powder is QUITE HARMLESS TO ANIMAL LIFE, but is unrivalled in destroying Fleas, Bugs, Cockroaches, Beetles Musquitos, and every other species of insect.

Sold in packets, tins, and bottles of various sizes.

☞ The public are particularly requested to observe that all the above preparations bear the Trade Mark as herein shown.

TRADE MARK.

Sold in Hong Kong and Shanghai by Watson and Co; Singapore, Little and Co and Woodford and Schreeder; Ceylon, Piters and Co. and Mailland and Co.; Penang, Gazette office.

NOTICE.

MORRIS'S DIRECTORY for CHINA, JAPAN, and the PHILIPPINES, &c., to be published on the 1st Jan., 1870, contains a Revised List of the Foreign Residents at all the open Ports of the China Sea, including Saigon, which has never yet been included in any similar work; together with the Time Tables of the different Steamship Companies, Rates of Postage, Local Ordinances, and such other matter as will be useful to all interested in the China trade. No trouble or expense has been spared to make this the most accurate publication of the kind ever offered to the public.

Price, complete in one volume, 14s.

Orders received by the Publisher of the "London and China Telegraph," 2, Cowper's-court, Cornhill, E.C.

PRICE'S BENZODYNE AN

INTERNAL STYPTIC of great value. In Cholera, Diarrhœa, and Dysentery this medicine far surpasses any other, having a peculiar mechanical power of putting a sudden stop to wasting diseases. Chronic Cough and blood-spitting are immediately relieved by it, as well as pain and debility of every kind. Prepared by Mr. PRICE, Analytical Chemist, 2, Lower Seymour-street, and 30, Duke-street, Portman-square, London; and sold by Chemists all over the world, in bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., 11s., and 22s., or in dispensing bottles at 5s., 10s., and 20s. each.

ROBERT COCKS and Co.'s MUSICAL BOX. A Caprice for the Pianoforte. Composed by I. LIEBICH, and performed by him at the Queen's Concert Rooms, Hanover-square, and twice encored. 3s.

MEDICINE JACK (Comic Song, Illustrated.) Music and words by A S GATTY. "Replete with genuine fun and humour."—Sun. Free by post, 19 stamps

THE SMILES OF THOSE WE LOVE. Song. By W. F. Taylor. "One of the most elegant songs of the day." "The air is simplicity itself, and will be caught up at once, and the pretty and harmless character of the words renders it peculiarly appropriate as a song for the home circle."—Vide Orchestra. 3s.

THE MOST REFINED and AMUSING COMIC SONGS of the DAY. Composed by Mr. A. S. GATTY.

I Really am so Sleepy	I'll Not Try it Again.
Put it Down to Me	Medicine Jack.
Bobbie! Bobbie!	B. R. A. G.
Not so Bad for Me.	A Lady's Song.

These songs may be sung in any drawing-room. 3s. each.

"I REALLY AM SO SLEEPY." By Alfred Scott Gatty.

"Mr. Alfred Scott Gatty is getting quite a reputation for his comic songs, and deservedly so. They possess far more real humour than the popular songs of the music halls, and we need hardly say are far above them in every respect. Mr. Gatty's words are funny without being vulgar, and there is not one of his songs but what has a hearty and legitimate laugh in it 'I Really am so Sleepy' is a very simple melody, set to clever racy words, and will be sure to be a favourite amongst those who enjoy an honest comic ballad."—Vide Midland Illustrated News, Jan. 8.

London, COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

THE SAIGON ADVERTISER & SHIPPING GAZETTE.

A SUMMARY of Commercial and Shipping Reports from SAIGON, and a Record of Progress in COCHIN CHINA.

Subscription, £5 per annum, exclusive of postage.

London Agency: THE LONDON AND CHINA TELEGRAPH Office, 2, Cowper's-court, Cornhill, London, E.C

THE MONEY MARKET REVIEW

A WEEKLY JOURNAL OF THE HIGHEST CLASS.

EXCLUSIVELY DEVOTED TO THE DISCUSSION COMMERCIAL AND FINANCIAL TOPICS.

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

PAYABLE IN ADVANCE.

Single Paper ... ... 6d. early ... ... £1 6s.

BY POST.

Sinle Paper ... ... 7d. Yearly ... ... 10s.

 Post-office Orders to be made payable to FRANCI FISHER, 2, Castle-court, Birchin-lane, Cornhill, London E.C.

MORRIS AND CO.,

COMMISSION AGENTS, AUCTIONEERS AND NEWS AGENTS.

SPECIAL AGENTS FOR THE

LONDON AND CHINA EXPRESS.

HONG KONG.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—These Pills are better for strengthening a debilitated constitution than any other medicine in the world. Persons of a nervous habit of body, and all who are suffering from weak digestive organs or whose health has become deranged by bilious affections, disordered stomach, or liver complaints should lose no time in giving these admirable Pills a fair trial. Coughs, colds, asthma, or shortness of breath are also within the range of the sanative power of this remarkable medicine. The cures effected by these Pills are not superficial nor temporary, but permanent and complete. They are as mild as they are efficacious, and may be given with confidence to delicate females and young children.

Digitized by Google

OVERLAND ROUTE.—

The PENINSULAR AND ORIENTAL STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY book Passengers and receive Cargo and Parcels by their steamers for—

	From Southampton.	From Marseilles.
GIBRALTAR ...	Every Saturday, at 2 P.M.	—
MALTA.....	,, ,,	—
ALEXANDRIA.	,, ,,	Every Sunday, at 7 A.M.
ADEN	,, ,,	,, ,,
*BOMBAY	,, ,,	,, ,,
GALLE.....	Saturday, Feb. 5, 2 P.M. And every alternate Saturday thereafter.	Sunday, Feb. 13, 7 A.M. And every alternate Sunday thereafter.
MADRAS.....
CALCUTTA ...
PENANG.....
SINGAPORE ...
CHINA
JAPAN
AUSTRALIA ...	Saturday, Feb. 19 2 P.M. And every fourth Saturday thereafter.	Sunday, Feb. 27, 7 A.M. And every fourth Sunday thereafter.

And all ports touched at by the British India Steam Navigation Company's steamers.

* The following reduced rates will be charged to Bombay:—

From Southampton... £72 first class; £45 second class.
From Marseilles ... 70 ,, 43 ,,

exclusive of transit through Egypt. A corresponding reduction will be made in the rates from Bombay to Europe.

For further particulars apply at the Company's Offices, 122, Leadenhall-street, London; or Oriental-place, Southampton.

OVERLAND ROUTE VIA MARSEILLES.—SERVICES MARITIMES DES MESSAGERIES IMPERIALES OF FRANCE.—

FRENCH MAIL STEAM PACKETS LEAVE MARSEILLES AS FOLLOWS:—

22 January 19 February 19 March 16 April 14 May	For	Alexandria, Aden Mauritius, Seychelles Reunion, Point de Galle (Ceylon), Pondicherry, Madras, Calcutta, Singapore, Batavia, Saigon, Hong Kong, Shanghai, and Japan.

9th, 19th, and 29th of every month for Alexandria.

For Passage, Freight, and information, apply to B. W. and H. HORNE, 4, Moorgate-street, London; G. H. FLETCHER and Co., Liverpool; at the offices of the Services Maritimes des Messageries Imperiales in Paris, Lyons, Bordeaux, and Marseilles; or to Smith and Co., Rotterdam

*, Passengers eastward of Suez securing their berths in London are entitled to the conveyance of their luggage free to Marseilles

MAIL ROUTE FOR CALIFORNIA, JAPAN AND CHINA, VIA PANAMA.

THE PACIFIC MAIL STEAM SHIP COMPANY despatch their splendid side-wheel steamers from NEW YORK on the 5th and 21st, and from PANAMA on the 13th and 29th of every month for SAN FRANCISCO (calling at ACAPULCO and MANZANILLA en route), thence to YOKOHAMA, HIOGO, NAGASAKI, SHANGHAI, and HONG KONG, on the 1st of every month. Passengers from England may connect with this line at New York by any of the various lines of steamers from Liverpool, Glasgow, Southampton, or Havre.

Passengers by this line are less than ten days in the tropics.

SANDWICH ISLANDS and BRITISH COLUMBIA.—The steamers of the North Pacific Transportation Company leave San Francisco at regular intervals for those countries.

H. STARR and Co., Agents, 22, Moorgate-street, London.

UNION PACIFIC RAILWAY.—

THROUGH LINE from NEW YORK to SAN FRANCISCO.

San Francisco, in 18 days from England.
Japan ..... in 38 ,, ,,
China ..... in 44 ,, ,,

Passengers for California and intermediate points on this road may now be booked through from England at the established rates of fare; and from San Francisco to Japan China, &c., by the magnificent steamers of the Pacific Mail Company.

For Rates, Tickets, &c., apply to H. STARR and Co., Agents, 22, Moorgate-street, London.

ROYAL MAIL

ROUTE, via PANAMA, for NORTH and SOUTH PACIFIC, Central America, Japan, and China.—The ROYAL MAIL STEAM PACKET COMPANY'S ATLANTIC STEAMERS now run through from Southampton to Colon (Aspinwall), by which arrangement passengers for the above localities will be conveyed to the Isthmus of Panama in the vessel in which they embark at Southampton.

Passengers and goods are booked

For the South Pacific, Central America, West Coast of Mexico, California, British Columbia	By steamer from Southampton on 2nd and 17th of each month.
Japan and China... ...	17th of each month.

For further particulars apply to
J. M. LLOYD, Secretary.

Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, 55, Moorgate-street London, E.C.

NEW ROUTE TO CHINA AND JAPAN, VIA LIVERPOOL.

THE WEST INDIA AND PACIFIC STEAM SHIP COMPANY (Limited) sign through bills of lading for goods to Yokohama Nagasaki, Hong Kong, and Shanghai, via San Francisco, by the Pacific Mail Steam Ship Company's new line of mail steamers from that port.

Passengers will find excellent accommodation, and the fares more reasonable than by any other route.

For terms, &c., apply to the Agents, J. M. CURRIE, Esq., 21, Quai d'Orleans, Havre, or 7, Rue Scribe, Paris; or at the Company's Offices, 117, Leadenhall-street, London, and The Temple, Dale-street, Liverpool.

ARTHUR B. FORWOOD, Managing Director.

SINGAPORE, CHINA, AND JAPAN.

ROBERTSON and CO. will despatch the following first-class clipper VESSELS:—

Destination.	Ships.	Class.	Dock.	Last Shipping Day.
Singapore, Hong Kg. Shanghai Yokohama	Erl King, s.s. (via Suez Cnl	B. A1 ...	E.I.D.	Feb. 12
Shanghai	Juanpore ...	Brklebnk	W.I D	With des.
Do.	Hindostan ...	AA1.....	W.I.D.	With des.
Hong Kong. Amoy, and Foochowfoo	Devana	A1 13 yr.	W.I.D	With des.
Yokohama (Kanagawa)	John Milton	A1 14 yr.	W.I.D.	With des.
Yokohama & Hiogo.....	Pegasus	A1 13 yr.	W.I.D.	With des.

For Freight and Passage apply at 5, Newman's-court, Cornhill, London; or York Chambers, 55, King-street, Manchester.

CHINA and JAPAN.—The following splendid first-class SHIPS will be despatched as under:—

Port	Ship.	Class.	Dock.	Last Shipping Day.
Shanghai ...	Geraint	A1 14 yr.	E.I.D.	Feb 19
Hong Kong	Wm. Fruing	A1 13 yr	W.I D.	With des.
Do.	Sir H. Parkes	A1 13 yr.	W.I D.	With des.
Foochow ..	Wylo	A1 16 yr.	E.I.D.	Feb. 10
Yokohama, Kanagawa.	Lota	A1 13 yr.	E.I.D.	With des.

For Freight or Passage apply to KILLICK, MARTIN, and Co., 10, George-yard, Lombard-street, E.C.

CHINA AND JAPAN.

THE following high-classed Clipper VESSELS will be despatched as under:—

Port.	Ship.	Class.	Dock.	Last Shipping Day.
Yokohama (Kanagawa)	Espiegle	A1 14 yr	E.I.D.	With des.
Nagasaki & Chefoo ...	Zohrab (new)	A1 9 yr.	E.I.D.	With des.

For Freight or Passage apply to NORRIS and JOYNER, 60, Cornhill, E.C.

JAVA AND JAPAN.

MORS LE BLANCH and CO. intend despatching the following first-class clipper VESSELS:—

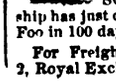
Destination.	Ships.	Class.	Dock.	Date.
From LONDON.
Yokohama and Hiogo.	Harbottle ...	A1	E.I.D.	Feb. 10
Batavia and Sourabaya	Vesta	A1	Lond.	Feb. 10

For Freight, &c., apply at 19 to 21, The Albany, Liverpool; or 7, East India-avenue, Leadenhall-street, London.

FOR SHANGHAI, the well-known clipper CLARA, A1 13 years, 938 tons register; THOMAS POWER, Commander; East India Docks Has a full poop, with superior accommodation for passengers.

For Freight or Passage apply to SHAW, MAXTON, and Co., 2, Royal Exchange-buildings, London, E.C.

With Quick Despatch.



FOR SHANGHAI, the splendid new Aberdeen clipper GLENAVON, AA1 830 tons register; JAMES HENDERSON, Commander: East India Docks. This ship has just completed her first voyage from Foo-Choo-Foo in 100 days.

For Freight apply to SHAW, MAXTON, and Co., 2, Royal Exchange-buildings, London, E.C.

Regular Line of Packet Ship—With Despatch.

FOR HONG KONG, the well-known favorite clipper INVINCIBLE, A1 13 years, 657 tons register; CHARLES BEECHING, Commander; East India Docks. Has excellent accommodation for passengers.

For Freight or Passage, apply to SHAW, MAXTON, and Co., 2, Royal Exchange-buildings, London, E.C.

"THE CHINA MAIL,"

No. 2, WYNDHAM-STREET, HONG KONG.

NOTICE.—THE BUSINESS heretofore carried on under the style of "Shortrede and Co," was this day purchased by the undersigned, in whose name and by whom it will henceforth be conducted, and to whom all outstanding accounts owing to the said business are to be paid.

Hong Kong, Aug. 15, 1867. CHAS. A. SAINT.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS.

THE DAILY CHINA MAIL.—SIX pages; published every evening (except Sunday). Subscription, 24 dols. per annum Circulates in Hong Kong and along the China and Japan coasts. Terms of advertising:—Ten lines and under, 1 dol.; each additional line, 10 cents; one-half of these charges for repetitions. In Chinese, 2 cents per character for any number of days during the current week.

THE OVERLAND CHINA MAIL.—Compiled from the Daily China Mail, is published twice a month on the morning of the English mail's departure, and is a record of each fortnight's current history of events in China and Japan, contributed in original reports and collated from the journals published at the various ports in those countries. It contains, besides, a Shipping List for Shanghai, Hong Kong, Canton, and Macao, and a complete Commercial Summary.

Subscription, 12 dols per annum, payable to any of the undermentioned agents Postage added. Terms of advertising:—Same as in Daily China Mail.

AGENTS.—London: F. Algar, 11, Clement's-lane, Lombard-street, E.C San Francisco: White and Bauer, 518, Clay-street, San Francisco. Swatow: Drown and Co. Amoy: Giles and Co. Foochow: Thompson and Co. Shanghai: H. Fogg and Co Manila: Karuth, Heinzen, and Co. Australia: Gordon and Gotch, Melbourne and Sydney. Singapore: Locke. Hongghee, and Co. Batavia: H. Van Dorp.

THE STRAITS TIMES.—Daily, weekly, and fortnightly editions; published in Singapore, for circulation throughout the STRAITS SETTLEMENTS, JAVA, BORNEO, SIAM, FRENCH COCHIN CHINA, CHINA, and JAPAN.

This paper, which is the oldest in Singapore, and the most widely circulated throughout the FAR EAST, offers an excellent medium for the advertisements of shipbuilders, machinists, manufacturers, patentees, &c., in the United Kingdom.

Advertisements to be forwarded through an Agent in Singapore, or GEORGE STREET, 30, Cornhill, London.

THE LONDON & CHINA TELEGRAPH.

THE TWELFTH Volume of this JOURNAL commenced on the 10th of January, 1870 The Subscription for three numbers per month is 30s. per annum, including Postage, and to the Export Supplement 12s. extra. Terms for advertising, 2s. 6d. per five lines, and 6d. for each additional line.

Subscriptions and Advertisements received abroad by the following Agents:—

Paris	G. W. YAPP, 4, Place Wagram, Boulevard Pereire.
Brindisi	AGENTS FOR BRINDISI STEAMERS.
Hamburg	Mr. ONCKEN.
Holland (Rotterdam and Amsterdam)...	COLONIAL AGENCY, Delftschevaart, 6.328, Rotterdam.
New York.....	WM. H. FOGG & Co., 32, Burling Slip.
San Francisco	WHITE & BAUER, 413, Washington-street.
Alexandria	DAVID ROBERTSON & Co., The Square.
Aden	COWASJEE DINSHAW.
Point de Galle	J. GIBSON, THOMSON, & Co. FREDR. PITERS.
Colombo	J. MAITLAND & Co.
Singapore, Labuan, and Sarawak	JOHN LITTLE & Co., Singapore.
Penang	SANDILANDS, BUTTERY, & Co.
Saigon	RIBEIRO & Co.
Batavia.....	HUNTER, HOUGHTON & Co.
Samarang.....	DE GROOT, KOLFF, & Co.
Sourabaya.....
Anjer — Straits of Sunda.....	G. SCHUIT, Anjer Hotel.
Manila	MICHELL, BARNARD, & Co.
Hong Kong, Canton, Macao and Swatow	MORRIS & Co., Hong Kong.
Amoy	BROWN & Co.
Foochow	HEDGE & Co.
Shanghai	H. FOGG & Co.
Tien-Tsin	JAMES HENDERSON
Nagasaki—Japan ...	PIGNATEL & Co.
Yokohama	E. C. KIRBY & Co.
Osaka and Hiogo ...	E. C. KIRBY & Co.

OFFICE 2, COWPER'S-COURT, CORNHILL, E.C.
(Over the JERUSALEM.)

CANADIAN NEWS, every Thursday, contains all the latest news from the New Dominion

Price 2d., post free, 3d.

Office: 8. Clement's-lane. Lombard-street, E.C

Digitized by Google

TANJONG PAGAN DOCK COMPANY

(LIMITED).

VICTORIA DOCK, SINGAPORE.

This Company's Granite DRY DOCK, 450 feet in length, 65 feet width of entrance, and 20 feet depth of water on the sill, was OPENED on the 17th October, 1868. In the high tides of the North-East Monsoon there is a foot to eighteen inches more water.

In connection with the Dock is a complete range of workshops, fitted with steam machinery, driving all descriptions of engineers' tools required in the construction and repair of vessels and machinery, and a foundry for iron and brass castings.

The Company's extensive Wharves and Godowns for receiving and storing cargo immediately adjoin the Dock.

Having an efficient European staff in each department, the Company is in a position to guarantee the best workmanship, executed with every possible despatch, as well as low rates of charges.

These advantages, and the great facilities which the proximity of the Dock to the town offers for the transport of materials, &c., enable this Company to adopt a very low scale of charges for ships' work of all classes.

LONDON AGENTS.

Messrs. MACTAGGART, TIDMAN, and CO., 34, Great St. Helens.

E. M. SMITH, Manager.

GELLE FRERES' PERFUMERY.

CHIEF ESTABLISHMENT, 35, RUE D'ARGOUT, à PARIS.

THE house of GELLE FRERES, celebrated for the superiority of its Perfumery, addresses itself to the fashionable world as much for its essentially hygienic, refreshing, and tonic preparations as for its delicate and distingué perfumes.

STEAM WORKS AT NEUILLY SUR SEINE

SILVER EXHIBITION PARIS 1867 MEDAL

DEPÔT BLUMBERG & Cº 55, Cannon Street West LONDRES.

DÉPÔT H. BRULÉ 27, Rue de l'Hopital BRUXELLES.

1ST CLASS LONDRES 1851 EXHIBITION MEDAL

COMMISSION ARTICLES SPECIALLY RECOMMENDED EXPORTATION

REGENERATEUR GELLE FRERES, a superior pomade for preserving, beautifying, and reproducing hair.
EAU D'ALBION for the toilet, an exquisite production from the juice of flowers and aromatic plants.
ARBOQUINA ROSE, superior tooth-powder, composed of carbon, quinine, and Provins roses.
CUCUMBER SOAP for softening the skin, the best of all toilet soaps.
LAIT PROPHYLATIC to remove frekcles and improve the appearance of the skin.
COMPOSITION ZOUAVE, for the instantaneou dyeing of the whiskers and moustache.
COLD CREAM, AU LOTUS DE LYBIE, to soften and refresh the skin.
NIGRITINE VEGETALE, an incomparable dye for the hair and beard, not staining the skin.
IOLET ESSENCE and VIOLET WATER for the handkerchief.
CONCENTRATED EAU DE COLOGNE for the toilet.

PERFUME ESSENCES OF ALL KINDS.

SPECIAL PERFUMERY WITH A BASIS OF GLYCERINE.

SOAP, TOOTH-PASTE AND ELIXIR, POMADE, CREAM FOR THE COMPLEXION AND SKIN, EAU DE TOILETTE.

GLYCERINE ANTI-PELLICULAIRE. DULCIFIED CREAM OF SOAP WITH GLYCERINE FOR THE BEARD.

To be obtained of all the principal Perfumers and Hairdressers in Europe and other parts of the world.

TRADE MARK ON CAPSULES & CASES

PARTICIPATION CHARENTAISE

LA GRANDE MARQUE COGNAC

LONDON OFFICES (for the trade only)—22 and 23, Great Tower-street.

Mr. V. JOUANNET, Managing Director, Cognac. | Mr. E. VIGNIER, Manager for the U.K., London.

The largest holders of Vintage 1865, and old Brandies of the first growths; which can be obtained from all Wine and Spirit Merchants, or can be procured by them, as large consignments have been lately shipped to all the principal ports of China, Japan, Java, Singapore, and Ceylon.

Blue Label, 6 years; Yellow Label, 11 years; Red Label, 14 years; White Label, from 18 to 40 years.

Samples forwarded free, by Overland Route, to Merchants giving satisfactory references in London.

OSLER'S CRYSTAL GLASS CHANDELIERS.

WALL LIGHTS and LUSTRES for Gas and Candle
CHANDELIERS in Bronze and Ormolu
MODERATOR LAMPS and LAMPS for INDIA,
TABLE GLASS of all kinds.
ORNAMENTAL GLASS, English and Foreign
Mess, Export, and Furnishing Orders promptly executed.
All articles marked in plain figure
OXFORD STREET, W.
MANUFACTORY AND SHOW ROOMS.—Broad Street, Birmingham.
Established 1807.

PRICE ONE SHILLING AND SIXPENCE.

OUR RELATIONS

WITH THE COLONIES

AND

CROWN COLONIES,

AN

ATTEMPT OF THE PASSAGE BETWEEN SCYLLA AND CHARYBDIS; WITH SOME REMARKS ON PILOTS.

LONDON:
EDWARD STANFORD, 6 and 7, Charing-cross, S.W.
MANN NEPHEWS, 39, Cornhill.
HENRY SOTHERON and Co., 10, Little Tower-street.

Colombo: MAITLAND AND CO.
Singapore: JOHN LITTLE AND CO.
Hong Kong: MORRIS AND CO.

C. KRAMER begs to inform the public that he has established himself at this place as NURSERYMAN and SEEDSMAN, and is fully prepared to execute any orders for Japanese plants, bulbs, or seeds for any part of the world.

An experience of four years in this business in foreign parts, two of which has been gained in this country, may ensure the confidence of customers.

Orders must be accompanied by remittances or references, and letters must be addressed to

C. KRAMER,
No. 63, BLUFF, YOKOHAMA.

Printed for the Proprietors by WOODFALL and KINDER, Milford-lane, Strand, W.C., and published by JAMES WEST, at the Office of the "LONDON AND CHINA TELEGRAPH," 2, Cowper's-court, Cornhill, in the parish of St. Michael's, in the City of London.—Monday, Feb. 7, 1870.

Digitized by Google

FRENCH MAIL EDITION.

The London and China Telegraph.

新聞紙

JAPAN HERALD, AND JOURNAL OF THE EASTERN ARCHIPELAGO.

PUBLISHED ON THE ARRIVAL OF THE FORTNIGHTLY ENGLISH, AND MONTHLY FRENCH MAILS FROM CHINA JAPAN &c.

IN CONNECTION WITH THE "LONDON AND CHINA EXPRESS. A SUMMARY OF NEWS FOR THE OUTWARD MAILS.

VOL. XII.—No. 342.] LONDON, MONDAY, FEB. 14, 1870. [Price 9d., with Sup., 1s. 3d.—Snb. 30s. per ann., postage included. Sup. 12s. extra.

Latest Advices.

PORTS.	OUTWARD. From London	OUTWARD. Arrived out.	HOMEWARD. Received this day.
JAPAN — Yokohama	—	—	Dec. 26
Yedo
Osaka and Hiogo
Hakodadi
Nagasaki
CHINA — Peking
Tien-tsin	—	—	Dec. 20
Chefoo
New-chwang
Hankow
Kiu-kiang
Chin-kiang
Shanghai	Nov. 5	Dec. 24	Dec. 29
Ningpo
Foochow	—	—	Dec. 28
Formosa
Amoy
Swatow
Hong Kong	Nov. 19	—	Jan. 4
Canton
Macao
PHILIPPINES—
Manila
COCHIN-CHINA—
Saigon	Nov. 25	—	Jan. 10
SIAM — Bangkok
BORNEO—Labuan	—	—	Jan. 6
Sarawak
JAVA — Batavia	—	—	Jan. 7
Samarang	—	—	Jan. 6
Sourabaya	—	—	Jan. 4
MALACCA STRAITS—
Singapore	Dec. 3	Jan. 7	Jan. 12
Penang	Dec. 3	Jan. 5
CEYLON—Galle	Dec. 23	Jan. 17	Jan. 20
Colombo	Dec. 23	Jan. 18	Jan. 20

THE MAILS, &c.

The Southampton portion of the last mail arrived on the 11th inst.

The next inward mail is that with Hong Kong dates to Jan. 11, due here on the 21st inst. Telegrams in advance of the mail of Jan. 25, from Hong Kong, were received on the 11th, via Galle, 16 days en route. This, we are glad to observe, shows that the lines are working better since the opening of the Indo-European line.

List of Passengers.

PASSENGERS INWARD.

Per French mail, arrived at Marseilles Feb. 11.—List not to hand.

PASSENGERS OUTWARD.

Per P. and O. steamer Ripon, from Southampton, Feb. 5.—To Shanghai: Mr. J. Hind. To Hong Kong: Mr. G. F. Johnson. Mr. and Mrs F. W. White, Mr. Middleship, Mr. P. R. Smith, Mr. Dupont, and two second-class passengers. To Ceylon: Miss Allen, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Brownrigg, two children, and servant, Miss King, and one second-class passenger.

Per P. and O. steamer Nyanza, from Marseilles, Feb. 13.—To Shanghai: Mr. and Mrs. J. Crawford, Mr. Gubbins. To Hong Kong: Mr. J. Lachlan, Rev. Dr. Legge, Dr. Wang, Mr. Patterson, Mr. Porter. To Singapore: Rev. Mr. Copland. To Penang: Mr. D. C. Presgrave. To Batavia: Mr. S. Higginson. To Ceylon: Mr. G. Goodeve, Mr. A. Wiggin.

Per P. and O. steamer Bangalore, from Southampton, Feb. 19.—To Hong Kong: Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Pirkis. To Singapore: The Bishop of Labuan, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. J. Kemp, Mrs. Chambers, Miss Woolley. To Ceylon: Mr. Jeffery, Capt. Sharpe, Mr. F. Murray.

Per P. and O. steamer Tanjore, from Marseilles, Feb. 27.—To Shanghai: Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Parker. To Hong Kong: Mr. T. H. Ballance, Mr. R. A. Houston, Mr. H. de Sombreuil, Miss Findlay, Mr. A. W. G. Rusden. To Singapore: Mr. and Mrs. Brooke. To Penang: Mr. F. Straatman.

Per French mail, Feb. 19.—For Saigon: Mr. and Mrs. Caswell.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

We have no later news by the present mail than 31st Dec., received via San Francisco, and published in our last.

CHINA.

PEKING AND TIENTSIN.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Mr. Wade made good his journey to Peking before the ice set in, and is now settled down as our representative.

The Peking University is defunct; but in its place has arisen the "Tung Mun Quan"—a school, or college, of which Dr. W. A. P. Martin has been instituted president. Affairs in connection with this have not gone on smoothly, and are not yet settled. The new members have been appointed to the Tseng ti Yam—believed to be foreigners. One is Shen Kwei Fen. He was a Cabinet Minister, and lately Governor of Shansi. Another is Mau-chang-Hu, a superintendent of one of the boards. The third is Chung-lin, formerly a subordinate in the Tsung-li-Yamen. Weansing still remains poorly, and, it is said, wishes to resign office.

Sir Rutherford Alcock, although he has got for us little or nothing by his new Convention—rather less than nothing in my opinion—yet deserves well of his country and of his countrymen. When left to himself he has acted nobly on several occasions both as Consul and Minister in Japan and in China, and I feel assured, would yet do so if left to himself; but the Foreign-office having bound his hands they are to blame for his present failure. Many of his countrymen would have thought more of him if he had refused to be a party to any such Convention or Treaty, and rather have resigned than be compelled to accept it. I trust, should he not come back, he will be entitled to a full retiring allowance.

We lately had a visit from a transport built for the Chinese by M. Giquel at Foochow; she is evidently about 600 tons, a good model of French shape, barely finished inside, with very bare pine decks. Her two brass guns are too light in the breech, and always recoil as far as they can when being fired; two iron guns are good. Her engines, also of French make, are too small for her, being only about 90-horse power; they should at least have been 150-horse power. Some part of the engines has given way on several occasions, and a casting is now being made for her here. All on board are Chinese, captains and engineers. There are two captains, first and second, and several mates. Neither of the captains or officers understand navigation, but they have some boys on board who were taught at Foochow. One of the captains, No. 2, came up and introduced himself to me as an old coolie of mine, and said that No. 1 captain was also an old coolie of mine, but afterwards turned pilot, and is now a small mandarin, and gets Tls. 200 a month. The vessel is said to have cost about Tls. 5,250,000, and Giquel's establishment at Foochow has cost in all about three million taels. The Chinese are buying their information at a dear rate, and it will only be poor at the best. If the Chinese are really anxious to improve, they must send home to Europe or America intelligent young men, after they have received a preliminary education at the college here; then let them get a thorough school education in the West, and afterwards be apprenticed out to the different professions there, such as engineering in all its branches, shipbuilding, mining, &c., &c. This is what China requires, and without which she will do little good for herself

Digitized by Google

SHANGHAI.

Dates by this mail are to Dec. 29. The outward mail of Nov. 5, arrived on Dec. 24, with telegrams to Nov. 25.

The following summary of news is from the North China Herald:

We hear that the visit of the French Chargé d'Affaires to Nanking has been in every respect satisfactory; that he was most courteously received, and that all his demands connected with the late missionary troubles were readily acceded to. Count Rochechouart intended shortly to continue his journey up the river, with the naval expedition which accompanies him.

Steps are being taken by the Governor-General to relieve the distress apprehended among the farmers whose fields were laid waste by the overflow of the Yangtsze, and a proclamation has already been issued notifying the people that provision will be made for their draught cattle during the winter, and a small advance of money be given to each tenant who lodges his buffalo in the official stalls; such cattle to be redeemed on the opening of the spring by the repayment of the amount advanced thereon at the time they entered the stalls.

The result of the election of general officers for the Shanghai Fire Department during 1870 is as follows:—C. P. Blethen, Chief Engineer; John Thorne, Engineer for district No. 1; F. E. Gwyn, do do., No. 2; and M. Teillot, do. do., No. 3.

We mentioned some time ago that a list of transit charges was again prepared by order of the Inspector-General. We have now to acknowledge the receipt of a book of sixty-three pages, containing very full "returns of the native charges, as far as they can be ascertained, levied on the principal imports and exports, at and near the different Treaty Ports in China." A computation is also given of the quantities of goods on which such charges are levied, as compared with the quantities paying the transit dues specified by treaty. We have not yet had time to analyse the information given, but shall take an early opportunity of doing so.

We hear that the school for the instruction of Chinese in English, which has been lately carried on under official auspices in the city, is shortly to be removed to the Arsenal, where premises are being built for its accommoda ion.

At the auction sale of the copyright and plant of the Shanghai Recorder and of the Supreme Court and Consular Gazette, the first was bought in at Tls. 1,000 and the latter at Tls. 400.

Dr MacGowan delivered the first Temperance Society Lecture for the year at the Masonic Hall, on "the Correlation and Conservation of Forces." It was well attended, and seemed to be much appreciated.

The following letter has appeared with reference to the new Coal Tariff:—

"In the export tariff, according to the new treaty, I notice the following:—

		m. c.
Coals, Native—at Southern Ports per 100 catties	...	0. 5
do at Northern Ports per 100 catties	...	4. 0

"The ton equals about 16.8 piculs; I think the above figures would therefore represent 84c. and Tls. 6 72 respectively per ton. The former just equals the price of coal at the pit's mouth in England; the latter is altogether prohibitive; that it should be so is a great pity, as from specimens forwarded me some time ago from the neighbourhood of Tientsin for analysis, I find the coal of that district is very superior, varying from moderately bituminous to anthracite. This latter variety (whose specific gravity is no less than 1.603) would be of great value for use in propelling steamboats, where space is so valuable.

"On the other hand, Keelung coal is a light, highly bituminous quick-burning coal,—qualities that greatly reduce its value for steamboat use. Loping coal, as geographically so geologically, stands between that of Keelung and Tientsin. It would seem thus, that by the new treaty, the best coal will be shut out of the market.

"Although this matter is not perhaps one of general interest, I hope I may be excused taking up your valuable space, as the matter affects foreign affairs in China more than would appear at first sight; for cheap coal means cheap freights, and cheap freights mean increased imports and exports, which mean, though not quite so logically, I fear, increased profits."

Messrs. Rainbow, Lewis, and Co., Nagasaki, have been adjudicated bankrupts on their own petition.

An order has been made by the Court, on behalf of Messrs. Russell and Co., against the British barque Miseltoe, at Foochow, under arrest.

The present mail bring over 300 bales of silk from Shanghai. The French Admiral Luciniere was conveyed to Saigon by this mail to assume the Government, as announced in our issue of Jan. 17.

The following items are from the Courier of Dec. 29:—

Since the English mail left, on the morning of the 22nd, there have been few occurrences interesting to readers at a distance. The prevalence of small pox in the settlement has led to some discussion on the advisability of preventing the Chinese from practising innoculation which it is their custom to perform extensively at this time of the year.

The Chamber of Commerce will hold a meeting on Friday, the 31st, for the purpose of considering a draft of a memorial to the British Foreign-office on the Revised Treaty.

The Inspector-General of Customs has published a set of Tables, giving the Inland charges on produce, so far as these have been ascertained by the various Commissioners at the Ports. The pamphlet shows many heavy taxes, and includes some notes of the "squeezes" levied at the Ports themselves, in addition to the stipulated duties. A writer in the Supreme Court and Consular Gazette points out many omissions and inaccuracies in the statements.

UNION STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY.

The half-yearly meeting of this company was held at the offices of Messrs. Glover, Dow and Co., on the 22nd Dec.; F. A Groom, Esq, in the chair. The report will be found in our advertising columns in full.

After the minutes of the last meeting had been read and passed, the Chairman said that the object of the meeting was to lay before the shareholders the half-yearly report which had been prepared. As the report was already in the hands of the members, and spoke for itself, he would make very few remarks in addition. It was merely a half-yearly report, and it was not usual to write off anything for depreciation except once a year. The report was merely to show the earnings of the company, and what the steamers had been doing, and it would be seen that, notwithstanding the depression in freights, the result compared favourably with the corresponding half of last year. The most important matter which the directors had in consideration was the sale of the Rona. They had used every endeavour to dispose of it without sacrifice, but had been unable to do so. It could be sold in Japan only at a loss, owing to the depreciation of the currency, which amounted to a discount of 25 per cent. As would be seen by the report, it was proposed to pay an interim dividend of 6 per cent., and a return of 5 per cent. to the contributing shareholders. He would be glad to answer any questions.

Mr. R. S. Gundry noticed that sundry debtors were put down for Tls. 10,000, freights outstanding Tls 20.000, and cash in hands of agents Tls. 35,000, and should like some explanation of the cause of these large amounts being outstanding.

The Chairman explained that a large amount had been earned from freight during September, the Tunsin having taken up Tls. 4,000 and brought down Tls. 5,000 worth, which was not collected when the accounts were made up, but was got in immediately afterwards. It was not considered necessary to publish a detailed statement, but one had been prepared, which any shareholder could see. As to the amount from sundry debtors, there were several shares which had been transferred, not paid up, and it was considered unwise to push for payment, as it might place the individuals in an awkward position, and lose freight to the company. Some of them had since been paid up. In regard to the sum in the hands of the agents, there is Tls. 20,000 in the hands of the agents at Kiukiang, a large sum being required for the half duties. He considered the amount was not excessive.

Tong King Sing asked if interest was received on the shares not paid up, to which the Chairman replied that 12 per cent. had been received.

Mr. Robertson asked if an offer of any kind had been made for the Rona. The Chairman stated that no offer whatever had been received. They had put it in the hands of their own agents, and another firm in Japan as well, and if there was any chance she would be sold. In answer to an inquiry by Mr Gundry as to the result of the working of the steamer Rona, he pointed out that although she was apparently losing, she brings up through freight to the company which they would not otherwise obtain, so that at the time she was making a loss she was assisting the company very considerably.

Mr. Robertson still thought that there was a limit at which it was advisable to run the Rona, as by doing so they were coming into contact with Messrs. Heard and Co, and others who might support them, and were thereby driving them off. The Chairman said that the directors had considered that, but as it would likely be necessary to lay up one of the steamers before the new season, the Rona would be required to take her place, and it was better to keep her running in the meantime, so that she would not require to get new officers and crew or to be refitted.

It was then proposed by Mr. Gundry, seconded by Mr. Robertson, and carried:—

That the report and accounts as presented to the meeting be passed.

Mr. Ashton said that there was an important question which he wished to bring forward the matter of the agency. The three years for which Messrs. Glover, Dow, and Co. were appointed would terminate on June 19th, and he would propose that they be reappointed for another three years from that date, dependent on a satisfactory arrangement being made as to godown accommodation.

The Chairman stated that the godown room was provided by Glover, Dow, and Co., to whom they belonged. They had no idea at first that so much would be required. They have to reserve a large amount of room, as a steamer might come in late with 2,000 tons of the tea, and require at once to be reloaded. The S.S.N. Company make no charge for the storage of cargo going up, an arrangement which his firm were not aware of when they took the agency; and as seaweed and sugar took up a great deal of room, they actually made a loss on such freight. As might be generally known, they own nearly all the godown accommodation on the French bund, but were willing to transfer a portion to the company. They would like to see the company possess godowns of their own.

Digitized by Google

Messrs. Glover, Dow, and Co. had it in contemplation to establish bonded warehouses and to erect screw-pile wharves, although the scheme was not sufficiently worked out to lay it before the meeting, but they hoped to do so at the next meeting.

Mr. A. Robinson considered that sufficient notice had not been given for those who wished to discuss the question of the agency. It ought to be considered at the annual meeting. The Chairman said that notice had been given at the last annual meeting. Mr. Robinson believed that nothing had been then said about the godown accommodation. By the clause of the Deed of Settlement the appointment of agents had to be made at an Extraordinary General Meeting held after the 19th of June. Mr. Ashton said that he did not bring the question forward so much as a resolution as to have the matter discussed. Mr. Robinson said that with regard to the renewal of the agency and the question of godowns Messrs. Glover. Dow and Co., could put themselves into communication with the leading shareholders before the time that their appointment terminated.

The Chairman remarked would that it be very inconvenient for the agents not to know before the busy season. The position of the company would be greatly improved if an alteration were made. Theirs had been the first deed that had been drawn up for a steamer company in Shanghai, and there were consequently several of its provisions which it was found could not be carried out; for instance, they could not return exactly one third of the profits to contributing shareholders. There were other clauses which had been found to prevent their working with the S. S. N. and N. C. S. Companies. They could not make arrangements for a transfer of the agency in one day.

It was ultimately decided that a meeting be called in a month hence, to take the question into consideration, and that before the meeting the directors lay before the shareholders the alterations which they propose.

The Chairman, in answer to a shareholder's enquiry as to whether arrangements were being made for the purchase of a new steamer, said that the directors had not considered themselves justfied in buying one until the Rona is disposed of. They had carefully considered the matter, and thought it would be unwise to do so. They had an example of how easy it is to reduce the income. At the next annual meeting a proposal might be brought forward to increase the capital, but in the meantime it was considered inexpedient to do either. With a vote of thanks to the chairman the meeting terminated.

HONG KONG.

Sir Rutherford Alcock, with Lady Alcock, are passengers by this mail (French) to Calcutta, from whence they will proceed to Bombay overland and thence to London.

While in Hong Kong Sir Rutherford was waited upon by two deputations, one from the Chamber of Commerce, and the other from a public meeting, to express the dissatisfaction felt with the terms of the new treaty. The Hong Kong Daily Press gives the following account of the interview:—

A deputation, consisting of a large number of members of the Hong Kong Chamber of Commerce, and of the committee appointed at the public meeting, waited by appointment upon his Excellency Sir Rutherford Alcock, K.C.B, Her Majesty's Minister Plenipotentiary to China. to respectfully address him with reference to the convention as to the revision of the Treaty of Tientsin, agreed to on the 23rd of October, 1869.

After the deputations had been introduced, his Excellency said that he thought the best mode of procedure was for him to commence by explaining as far as he was able the circumstances under which the negotiations had been concluded, and then hear the views which the deputations wished to express, and answer such questions as they desired to address to him. He pointed out in the course of the proceedings that it was not to be forgotten that he was the agent of Her Majesty's Government, and that he was bound to carry out its views, which were strictly for negotiating with China as with a nation on an equality, and for abstaining from forcing from her any concessions that might either be dangerous to the power of the Government in China, or might tend to bring about political complications. The Chinese took the ground that they were not unwilling to place foreigners upon the same trading footing as natives, but could not place them on a better.

With respect to inland navigation, they were willing to remove the restriction as to the class of boats that foreigners could use, whenever the natives themselves were willing to employ steamers, in which case foreigners would equally be at liberty to do so. The Tug on the Poyang Lake had on this account an importance. it being the commencement of a system that might be developed in the course of time. With respect to residence, the home Government was of opinion that present concessions were all that were required, and generally were against demands for any new privileges.

Upon the question of the security for the carrying out the terms as to non-imposition of duties on foreign goods, H.E. said that there was as good security as could be obtained in the fact that the Chinese Customs were bound to at once despatch an officer to investigate any case of squeezing, and that the Customs officials were responsible to their central authorities. He called attention to the important fact that the present revision is not for another period of ten years, but leaves the Treaty open to further revision at any time. With respect to the non-application of the transit dues clause to native produce shipped from Hong Kong to a Treaty port, he held that injustice would be done to China if that stipulation were not made, and in regard to the colony, he was of opinion that this could not be refused if we proposed to recognise in China the same right and independence that was recognised in dealing with other nations.

Respecting the extra duty upon opium, H. E. considered that it was a very small amount in comparison with the whole duty levied by the Chinese on the article, and that it would have been unwise to refuse it, when doing so might have jeopardised the whole of the Indian Revenue of £9,000,000. The Hon. J. B. Taylor addressed the questions to H E., on behalf of the Chamber of Commerce, and Mr. Pollard, Q.C., did so on behalf of the committee appointed at the public meeting.

COCHIN CHINA.

SAIGON.

The following is the report of Messrs. W G. Hale and Co.:—

RICE.—The demand for China and Japan has ruled comparatively quiet during the month, and as supplies for some time continued to reach us freely, prices, as anticipated in our last, went further in favour of purchasers, and contracts were made of 75,000 piculs round grain at from $1.42 to $1.36 per picul. Arrivals of grain then suddenly decreased, and for the last two weeks supplies have been coming forward very scantily; the market, consequently, rallied, and recent contracts are to be noted of 25,000 piculs, at $1.40 to $1.42 per picul. To-day $1.45 (=5s. 11½d. per cwt. f.o.b.) is asked, which we give as our closing quotation; however, although our market this moment still seems to tend for a further advance, we hardly doubt that shortly a considerable reaction will take place, as stocks which are now heavily accumulating up-country will soon need an outlet to this market. The quality of the new round grain now shows pretty fair already; old rice has entirely disappeared. The new long grain has come to market very early this season, and is in full supply; some 20,000 piculs were taken for Mauritius at prices receding from $1 35 to $1.26, and we would still be able to-day to buy at only a slight advance upon this figure, say $1.28 per picul.

Exports from this have been as follows:—For month, 169,853 piculs. Total exports since January 1, 1869, 2 638.235 piculs.

FREIGHTS.—Tonnage has been in good demand for Singapore, Hong Kong, and especially for Japan, and rates show an advance upon those quoted in our last. During the last few days, however, the supply of disengaged Tonnage has been rather heavy, and a decline may be looked for. Home-charters are not offering, the high value of our article still precluding for the present almost every chance of business with Europe.

EXCHANGE rules much as last quoted and money continues dear; we quote: London, 6 months, with documents, 4s. 7½d.; Paris, 6 months, do. f5; Mauritius, 60 days, do f6.02½; Hong Kong, 30 days, do. 3½ per cent. discount; Singapore, 3 days, do. par.

Messrs Hale and Co. have also issued an annual statement of Exports, Shipping, &c., showing a large increase in the trade at Saigon.

SIAM.

BANGKOK.

The Siam Weekly Advertiser of Dec. 23 gives the following items of the burning of the body of the late Minister:—

The remains of the Chow Praya P'olat'ape were burned on the afternoon of the 16th. Their Majesties the First and Second Kings of Siam visited the scene. The First King reached the spot about five P.M. and H.M. the Second King soon after. About 300 soldiers dressed in European style were present in honour of H.M. Most of the noblemen were in attendance upon his Majesty as well as in deference to the respected dead. His Highness the Chief Minister, by many Europeans styled the Regent, was present also.

No formal invitation was sent to Europeans to be present, but many were there to witness the ceremony. H.B.M.'s Consul General was there in uniform. H.I.M.'s Consul, Mons. Dillon, was present, and being a new comer, was specially noticed by H.M. the Supreme King. Chinese and Siamese plays were being performed for the entertainment of the assembled masses of the people. The mourners were dressed in white and had their heads shaved. The usual distribution of money, by scattering limes among the crowd took place after the arrival of H.M. the King.

After H.M. had been on the ground about a quarter of an hour H.M. applied the fire. fastened to the end of a long stick, to the fuse, the moment it ignited, flash and a stream of fire ran to the coffin filled with combustibles which ignited and burned. The friends and others then each added candles and combustibles to the already ignited pile, and soon all that remained of the Minister of Agriculture were ashes and a few charred bones to be preserved by the bereft and admiring relatives of the deceased.

Dr. Hoogenstraaten, the Netherlands East Indian Government Surgeon, performed operations on the eyes of his Lordship Chow

Digitized by Google

Phya Tipa Karawongsa Mahakosa Dhipati, the vice president of the great Siamese council, usually known as the Senabawdee. The confidential priests of his Lordship having fixed upon the propitious day and hour, the operations were performed on Dec. 9, five P.M. The first tests as to the prospective nature of the results of the operations were made on the 19th inst. at seven A.M, and we learn are very satisfactory. We hope that for the good of his Lordship and the satisfaction of the celebrated surgeon, the desired result will be fully realised, and be as complete a success as was the operation performed by the same surgeon upon his Royal Highness Prince Kroma Mum Pomin in 1867.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

The London mail of Dec. 3 arrived out on the 7th Jan. Dates are now down to the 12th. The following items are from the Straits Times:—

It is whispered about in official quarters that Mr. C. J. Irving, the Auditor-General, is to go to Malacca as Acting Lieutenant-Governor, in place of Captain Shaw, and that Mr. Irving's place will be filled by his brother, the newly-appointed Assistant Colonial Secretary expected here by the steamer Achilles. Mr. Plow will continue Acting Assistant Colonial Secretary.

The British steamer Bangkok, Captain Haffenden, from Glasgow, 4th Oct., has arrived here. The Bangkok is the property of Messrs. C. P. Lalla and Co., of this place, and is intended to ply regularly between this and Bangkok. She was expected here on the 15th Dec., but the length of her passage is attributable to a foul bottom.

The Peiho towed the light vessel Torch from the North Sands, Malacca Straits, to Singapore for repairs, and she was taken to dock at once, meantime the steamer Rainbow does duty as a light-ship The Rainbow will relieve the Torch on the 10th inst., and the Torch will be towed to Singapore by the Peiho, and will arrive here about the 14th inst.

The following steamers have arrived:—The P. M. S. S. Co.'s steamer Ariel, Capt. Timmermann, from New York 14th Oct., St. Vincent 2nd Nov., Table Bay 1st Dec., and Mauritius 18th Dec.; arrived on 5th Jan.

The M. I. steamer Thabor, Captain de Rivals, from Marseilles 6th Nov., and Suez 6th Dec., via Aden and Galle, having passed through the Suez Canal, arrived on 6th Jan.

The British steamer Appin, Captain Russell, from Glasgow, 30th Sept., St. Vincent 20th Oct., and Mauritius 11th Dec. arrived here on the 5th.

The British steamer Sin Nanzing, Captain Drage, from Glasgow, 11th Nov., via the Suez Canal and Bombay, arrived here also on the 5th.

Thomas Dunman, Esq., Commissioner of Police, has been granted twelve months' leave.

The circulation of the Banks is given at — Oriental Bank, $239,500, Chartered Bank, $183,100.

The municipal rate for 1870 is fixed at 10 per cent. on houses, and 5 per cent. on land.

Commercial Report.

—o—

(For dates see First Page.)

IMPORTS.

SHANGHAI.—Piece Goods: Business was still on a small scale. Grey Shirtings: Since the departure of the English mail, the demand for these goods had as usual at the time of the year been limited. About 40,000 pieces had been sold at rather lower rates, principally by speculators. The advices from Hankow being better the market closed rather firmer. 7 lbs., Tls. 1.95 to Tls. 1.98; 8¼lbs., Tls. 2.16 to Tls. 2 19. T-Cloths: Cheap goods only enquired for, and there was very little change in rates. 6 lbs. Tls. 1.45 to Tls. 1.61; 7lbs., Tls. 1.65 to Tls. 1.75: 8 lbs., Tls. 1.90 to Tls. 2.14. White Shirtings; About 2,000 pieces only had been sold at former rates. Drills, Jeans, and Sheetings continued very dull; no change in quotations. Metals: Lead was quiet, importers being firm holders at 5.25 to 5.30 mace for L B; news from Hankow of considerable improvement on that market had still further strengthened orders at this port. Coals: No arrivals; no sales of any importance to note; market weak for most descriptions, and prices quite nominal. The current quotations were as follow:—White Shirtings, per piece, Tls. 2.1.0 to Tls. 2.8.5; American Drills, 40 yards, Tls. 3.7.5 to Tls. 3.8.0; American Jeans, 30 yards, Tls. 2.9.5; American Sheetings, 40 yards, Tls. 3.5.0; English Drills, 40 yards, Tls. 3.4.5 to Tls. 3.6.5; Dutch Drills, 40 yards, Tls. 3.4.5 to Tls. 3.5.8; Handkerchiefs, Blue, per dozen, Tls. 0.6.0.; Brown, Tls. 0.5.0.; White Figured Shirtings, per piece, Tls. 2.1.0. to Tls. 2.1.5; Dyed, Tls. 2.7.0. to Tls. 2.7.5.; Brocades: White, 40 yards, Tls. 2.2.0. to Tls. 2.2.5.; dyed, Tls. 3.1.5 to Tls. 3.2.5.; Damasks, dyed, 40 yards, Tls. 4.2.5 to Tls. 4.5.0; Gentian Shirtings, Tls. 2.9.0. to Tls. 3; Chintz, Tls. 1 6.0 to Tls. 1.7.5; Turkey Reds, 24 yards, Tls. 2.2.0 to Tls. 2.3 5; Velvets, per yard, Tls. 0.1.8 Tls. 0.1.9; Velveteens, Tls. 0.1.5. to Tls. 0.2.3.; Camlets, English, SS, per piece, Tls. 11.5.0 to Tls. 12; Spanish Stripes, per yard, Tls. 0.5.0. to Tls. 0.8.0.; Medium Broad and Habit Cloth, Tls. 0.9.5 to Tls. 1.6.0; Long Ells, per piece, Tls. 6 to Tls. 6.2.0; Iron: Nail Rod, per picul, Tls. 1.9.0. to Tls. 2; Hoop, Tls. 1.6.0. to Tls. 1.7.0.; Flat and Round, Tls. 2.1.0 to Tls. 2.2.0.; Lead, Tls. to 5.2.5. to Tls. 5.3.0.; Tin Plates, per box, Tls. 5 to Tls. 5.2.0.; Steel, per tub, Tls. 3 to Tls. 3.1.5.

SAIGON.—The market had been very quiet, and as holders were pressing sales rates were weaker. A better feeling was looked for as soon as supplies of rice came in more freely. The quotations were:—Grey Shirtings, 8¾ lbs. $2.95; 7 lbs. $2.50; Grey T-Cloth, 6 lbs. $1.75; 5½ lbs. $1.65; 5 lbs. $1.60; 4½ lbs. $1.55; White Irishes, $2.20.

EXPORTS.

—o—

TEA.

SHANGHAI.—Black: There had been but little business during the interval, and there was nothing to report worthy of notice; the stock of 11,000 chests consisted almost entirely of Teas of the lowest grades. Supplies were almost at an end, so far as country Teas were concerned, but spurious kinds could still be produced, should a demand arise; this, however, was not probable. Green Teas had been taken to the extent of 12,500 half-chests, at Tls. 25 for Fychows, Tls. 31½ to 40 for Moyunes and Teenkais, and Tls. 30 to 36 for Pingsueys. Prices for good medium and lower kinds were in favour of buyers, and if statistics were more encouraging these Teas would present a favourable appearance. Some of the recent settlements showed good value for America. Stocks: Fychow, Moyune, and Teenkai, 50,000 half-chests; Pingsuey, 8,400 half-chests; Shanghai-packed, 3,000 half-chests. Total, 56,400 half-chests.

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—Nearly two hundred bales were settled on the day the English mail left; since then there had been a fair demand, and an advance of Tls. 10 to 15 had been paid on last mail rates; this advance, and the intervening holidays, had restricted business at the close, and settlements (including the above named quantity settled but not shipped by last mail) only reached 400 to 500 bales. Stock, 1 500 to 2,000 bales.

SAIGON PRODUCE.

The following is from Messrs. Kaltenbach, Engler, and Co.'s report, dated Jan. 8:—

RICE.—Stocks of old grain have become very insignificant of late, and enjoying no further attention by European exporters, the supplies which came still to the market were directed for Chinese account to Singapore or Hong Kong, and prices were therefore nominal. New Rice: According to the expectation expressed in our last issue prices declined as far as $1.35 for round, and $1.26 for long grain, and would no doubt have experienced a still more important reduction if, owing to more or less founded reports by which our native population has been alarmed, supplies from the interior had not almost entirely ceased. In consequence thereof, our market followed again an upward tendency, and some small contracts passed for round rice at $1.40½ to 1.42, for delivery within twenty days, were followed yesterday by another one at $1.48, deliverable within thirty-five days. We therefore may quote to-day round rice $1.48 and long grain $1.30 to 1.32 Paddy: We have heard of no new contracts, and quote nominally 85 cents per picul.

COTTON.—Owing to small arrivals very little business has been done and last prices have been almost maintained. We quote $6.15 for uncleaned, $20 for cleaned No. 1, and $18 for cleaned No. 2. The monthly exports amount to 1,070 piculs.

HIDES.—Buffalo have been in less enquiry for Singapore, and consequently prices have given way to $8 to 8.25 per picul. Cow are offered in very small lots only, and prices are unchanged, $11 per picul.

HORNS.—Buffalo enjoy a good demand, and $8¾ per picul for heavy and middle sized horns are willingly allowed.

BLACK PEPPER.—The season has not yet commenced, but there are offers in the market to buy at $9 per picul delivery within three months.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—Our market being without supplies we have to report a new advance in value. We quote $10 per picul.

GAMBOGE.—No stocks. Prices nominal; $59 per picul.

SHANGHAI LIST OF SILK SHIPPERS TO SOUTHAMPTON AND MARSEILLES.

From June 1st to Dec. 11th, 1869.

	Bales.		Bales.
Adamson, Bell, and Co. ...	70	Helbling and Co.	820
Ashton and Co.	—	Hogg Brothers	615
Barnet and Co.	2,094	Holliday, Wise, and Co. ...	10
Birley, Worthington, & Co.	983	Jardine, Matheson, and Co.	502
Birt, W.	104	Jarvie, John, and Co. ...	732
Bland, J.	190	Meynard and Co.	20
Borneo Company	109	Milsom and Tod	853
Borntraeger and Co. ...	400	Nachtrieb, A., and Co. ...	750
Bourjau, Hubener, and Co.	224	Parsees	87
Bovet, Brothers and Co. ...	593	Pustau, Wm., and Co. ...	92
Bower, Hanbury and Co....	1,504	Reid and Co.	54
Brand, Monro, and Co. ...	2,507	Reiss and Co.	154
Bradwell, Bloor, and Co. ...	75	Russell and Co.	1,588
Bull, Purdon, and Co. ...	8	Remé, Wm., and Co. ...	740
Carter and Co.	1,529	Sassoon, D., Sons, and Co.	366
Chapman, King, and Co. ...	401	Sassoon and Co., E.D. ...	45
Chinese	64	Scheibler, Matthai, and Co.	270
Coutts and Co.	65	Shaw Brothers and Co. ...	622
Cumine and Co.	378	Siemssen and Co.	511
Dickinson and Co. ...	213	Skeggs and Co.	1,011
Fogg and Co.	50	Smith, Archer, and Co. ...	231
Framjee, Hormusjee and Co.	25	Textor and Co.	803
Gamwell, F. R.	1,193	Thorne Brothers and Co....	231
Gibb, Livingston, and Co...	983	Trautmann and Co. ...	229
Gilman and Co.	716	Westall, Brand, and Co. ...	125
Glover, Dow, and Co. ...	204	Sundries	2,392
Gutschow and Co.... ...	210
Heard, Augustine, and Co.	596	Total bales... ...	29,865

Digitized by Google

TEA SHIPS EXPECTED.

FROM SHANGHAI.

Date Sailed.	Ship's Name.	lbs.
Oct. 2 ...	Rollo	676,060
„ 18 ...	Ornate	682,800
„ 22 ...	Lorton	886,300
„ 26 ...	Dollerah	1,367,500
„ 28 ...	Lizzie Iredale	942,100
„ 30 ...	Tavistock	640,200
Nov. 4 ...	Taunton...	954,800
„ 20 ...	John Lidgett	1,044,000
„ — ...	Annesley	1,171,000
„ — ...	Fluellin	678,500
„ 24 ...	Corea	717,100
„ 27 ...	Dundonald	756,200
„ 30 ...	Araby Maid	1,067,000
Dec. 2 ...	Dora	526,700
„ 4 ..	Barbadian	942,500
„ 6 ...	Nyassa	987,000
„ 7 ...	Aracan	935,200

FROM FOOCHOW.

Aug. 16 ...	Chusan	1,122,800
Sept. 13 ...	Empress	599,900
„ 29 ...	E. P. Bouverie...	1,321,800
Oct. 22 ...	George Shotten	808,200
„ 26 ...	Osprey	789,000
Nov. 4 ...	Polar Star	323,800
„ 5 ...	England's Glory	1,094,200
„ 8 ...	Albert Victor	1,189,700
„ 12 ...	Carmarthenshire	1,062,500
„ 16 ...	Ceylon	760,000
„ 30 ...	Tyburnia	1,237,600
Dec. 8 ...	Beemah	1,134,000
„ 11 ...	Valkyrien	707,900
„ — ...	Glamorganshire	605,300
„ 15 ...	Earl Dalhousie	1,391,500

FROM CANTON.

Oct. 1 ...	Chetah	921,000
„ 22 ...	Gauntlet	768,700
Nov. 13 ...	Pakwan...	676,500
Dec. 8 ...	Petchelee	862,900
„ 22 ...	James Shepherd	1,138,900

EXCHANGES, &c.

[For dates, see first page.]

ON LONDON.

At	Bank Bill's.	Credits.	Documentary.
Yokohama, 6 m. s. ...	4s. 5½d.	4s. 6d.	4s. 6¼d.
Shanghai „ „ ...	6s. 0¼d.	6s. 0¾d.	6s. 1d.
Canton „ „	4s. 5¾d.	4s. 6d.	4s. 6¼d.
Hong Kong „ „
Macao „ „
Singapore „ „ ...	4s. 5¼d.	4s. 6d.	4s. 6¼d.
Manila „ „ ...	4s. 5d.	4s 5¼d.	4s 5½d.
Colombo „ „ ...	par	1 to 2 dis.	1 to 2 dis.

MISCELLANEOUS.

—	At Shanghai.	At Hong Kong.
Bills on India	300	222½ to 223
„ Hong Kong	25¼ to 26 dis.	—
Bar silver	111.6.0	9 prem.
Mexican dollars	74.8.0	¼ prem.

Bons, at Yokohama, 338 to 346 per 100 dols.

Shipping Intelligence.

ARRIVALS.

At SHANGHAI.—From London, Dec. 21, Lonidoun Castle, Bainan (reported by telegram).

At HONG KONG and CANTON.—From London, Everest, Fairleader; from Clyde, Grace Piele; from Liverpool, Nestor (str.), (reported by telegram.)

At SINGAPORE.—From London, Jan. 11, Hopeful; from Shields, 8, Edith; from Cardiff, 5, George Green; from Glasgow, Jan. 4, Bangkok (steamer); 5, Appin (steamer), Sin Nanzing (steamer; from London, Belle of Southesk, Achilles (steamer); from England, Sairs Belle, Loch Ken (reported by telegram).

At BANGKOK.—From Bordeaux, Diane.

At SAIGON.—From Bordeaux, Dec. 28, Eve; from Havre, 30, Lucie.

At HONG KONG.—From London, Dec. 27, Geologist; Jan. 1, Borealis.

DEPARTURES.

From SHANGHAI.—For London (cleared), Dec. 29, Figaro.

From SINGAPORE.—For London, Jan. 12, Coldingham, for Liverpool; 6, Mount Vernon, for Marseilles; 5, Georges and Mathilde.

From BANGKOK.—To Europe, Dec. 29, Ocean Bride.

From HONG KONG.—For Falmouth, Dec. 31, Esmeralda.

From SHANGHAI—For London, Omba, Fontenayer (by telegram).

From HONG KONG.—Neville (reported by telegram).

SHIPPING POSTSCRIPT.

ARRIVALS NOT IN THE TABLES.—Feb. 11, at Motherbank, from Samarang, for Rotterdam, Krusebjorn, blown back from within five miles of her destination by a strong gale.

DEPARTURES.—Feb. 10, from London, for Yokohama and Hiogo, Harbottle; for Cardiff and Singapore, John Worcester; —, from Rotterdam, for Batavia, Medea; Jan. 29, from Penarth Dock, for Hong Kong, Frederick Tudor; Feb. 11, from London, for Foochow, Wylo; for Singapore, Hong Kong, Shanghai, and Yokohama (via Suez Canal), Erl King (str.); 10, from Yarmouth, for Singapore, St. Antonie; 12, from London, for Shanghai, Cutty Sark; 10, from Falmouth, for Singapore, Lizzy, after repairing.

LAID-ON.—At Liverpool, for Singapore, via Cardiff, Midnight; at Glasgow, for Hong Kong, Kildonan.

SPOKEN.—Pak Wan (ship), Canton to London, forty-six days out; Norge, Cardiff to Galle, Nov. 14, 3 N., 26 W.; Nuevo Lantaro, Cardiz to Manila, Nov. 30, 47 days out, 39 S., 9 E; Alma, Cardiff to Singapore, Dec. 13, 73 days out, 37 S., 35 E.; Janet Fergusson, Yokohama to New York, Dec. 23, 43 days out, 20 S., 73 E.

CASUALTIES.—The following telegram has been received:—"Elleray, Liverpool to Yokohama, wrecked in China Sea, crew at Hong Hong." The Glendura, from Java to Rotterdam, went ashore, 13th inst., between Walmer and Kingsdown.

MISCELLANEOUS.—At Mauritius, Dec. 15, Gironde (bq.), Ducan, from Bangkok, for Belle Isle; 13, Vera Cruzana (bq.), Despleis, from Bangkok, for Marseilles; 31, Hilja (ship), Blomberg, from Batavia, for Amsterdam, for repairs.

LATEST TELEGRAMS.

(RECEIVED JAN. 11, 1870.)

CHINA.

HONG KONG, JAN. 25.—A memorial signed by numerous English merchants, is sent home by the present mail, urging the British Government not to ratify the Commercial Treaty recently concluded at Peking by Sir Rutherford Alcock.

Grey Shirtings, 6½ catties, 8¼ lb., $2.80. Water-twist, 16-24, $1 45. Cotton, Bengal, fair medium, $19. Tea quiet. Total export (China and Japan), 180,000,000 lbs. Exchange on London, Bank bills, six months, 4s. 5¼d.

SHANGHAI, JAN. 19.—Grey Shirtings, 6½ catties, 8¼ lb., $2.22. Cotton: Shanghai, $9. Tea,quiet. Silk, fair inquiry, unchanged; No. 3 Tsatlee, 550 taels. Settlements since departure of last mail, 2,900 bales. Export to date (China and Japan), from commencement of season, 46,000 bales. Exchange on London, Bank bills, six months, 6s. 0¼d. Freights: Tea, £2.

(PRIVATE TYLEGRAM.)

HONG KONG, JAN. 25.—Tea: Nothing doing for want of stock. Export for one month, 3,000,000 lb.; total export, 130,000,000 lb.

SHANGHAI, JAN. 19.—Hankow and Shanghai tea supplies exhausted.

SINGAPORE, FEB. 2.—Grey Shirtings, 8¼lb., $2.95.; White Cambrics, $32. Exchange, 4s. 5¾d.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, AND DEATHS.

BIRTHS

BRYAN—On the 9th Jan., at Colombo, the wife of William Bryan, Esq., Public Works Department, of a daughter.

FRASER—On the 26th Dec., at Cattaratenne Estate, Ceylon, Mrs. John Fraser, of a daughter.

GILFILLAN—On the 18th Dec., at Shanghai, Mrs. J. Gilfillan, of a son.

HOARE—On the 10th Jan., at Kandy, the wife of Arthur Calvert Hoare, Esq, of a daughter.

MONGAN—On the 10th Dec., at Tientsin, the wife of J. Mongan, Esq, H.B.M. Consul, of a son, stillborn.

PAUL - On the 25th Dec., at Cotanchina, Colombo, the wife of Mr. William Paul, of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

ALLEN—DARE.—On the 8th Jan., at St. Andrew's Church, Singapore, by the Rev. J Alleyne Beckles, Colonial Chaplain. Whitworth Allen, Esq., son of the late J. E. Allen, Esq., of Leytonstone, Essex, to Anne Maria, fourth daughter of the late George Julius Dare, Esq., of Singapore. No cards.

BIRD—MYBURGH.—On the 1st Feb., at St. Peter's, Kensington, by the Rev. J. Lamb, M.A., Fellow of Caius College, Cambridge, Robert Wilberforce Merttins Bird, of the Middle Temple, barrister-at-law, eldest son of Major R. W. Bird, of Barton House, Warwickshire, to Katharine Sophia, eldest daughter of the late Francis Myburgh, Esq, of the Civil Service, Cape of Good Hope.

DE LEVERA - MORGAN.—On the 27th Dec., at Trinity Church, Colombo, by the Rev. A. P. Lovekin, Gerald Fredrick de Levera, Esq., Deputy Queen's Advocate of Kornegalle, eldest son of the late F. de Levera, Esq., C.C.S., to Harriet Josceline, fourth daughter of the late C. A. Morgan, Esq.

DIAS—JAYETILEKE.—On the 28th Dec., at Christ Church, Kornegalle, Ceylon, by the Rev. W. Ellis, William Dias, Esq., M.D., to Eugenia Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Samuel Jayetileke, Modliar of the Governor's Gate and J.P., Kornegalle.

GARDNER—ROWNSON.—On the 10th Feb., at St. Mary's Church, Henley-on-Thames, by the Rev. A. Field, brother-in law of the bride, assisted by the Rev. J. G. Gardner, brother of the bridegroom, Christopher Gardner, Esq. F.R.G.S., F.E.S., of H.M.'s Consular Service, China, fourth son of John Gardner, Esq., M.D., to Sophia Mary, daughter of J. Rownson, Esq., Henley-on-Thames.

DEATHS.

ELPHINSTONE—On the 28th Jan., at Logie-Elphinstone Aberdeenshire, suddenly, in the 88th year of her age, Græme, widow of the late Sir Robert Dalrymple Horn Elphinstone, Bart., of Horn and Logie-Elphinstone, and daughter of the late Col David Hepburn, of Keith-Marischal, East Lothian

GILFILLAN—On the 26th Dec., at Shanghai, Agnes, the beloved wife of James Gilfillan, aged 25.

HELBLING—On the 24th Dec., at Shanghai, Mr James Charles Helbling.

JAMIESON—On the 21st Dec., at Hankow, Colin Francis, the infant son of Robert and Kate Jamieson, aged fifteen months.

JONES—On the 23rd Dec., at Shanghai, Walter Ahmuty Treasure, second son of Charles Treasure and Selina Fanny Jones, aged two years.

MORRISON—On the 10th Dec., at Peking, the Rev. William T. Morrison, of the American Presbyterian Mission.

PASLEY—On the 29th Jan., at Mylnbeck, Windermere, Thomas Malcolm Sabine Pasley, Esq., Captain R.N., aged 40, eldest son of Admiral Sir Thomas Sabine Pasley, Bart., R.N.

TOWSE—On the 1st Feb., at Fishmongers' Hall, Walter Bruce, aged two years and five months, eldest and dearly-loved son of William Beckwith and Rosetta Towse.

Digitized by Google

BURMAH AND WESTERN CHINA.

(LEEDS MERCURY.)

It is with almost breathless interest that tidings from Dr. Livingstone in Africa are read in this country. A certain romance attaches to the great explorer, and the country in which he pursues his researches has been invested by the Geographical Society with an interest which, as long as the "fit is on," it seems vain to hope that we can attract to other parts of the earth's surface, though to our countymen the field of enterprise is, as well in a philanthropic as in a geographical and commercial sense, vastly more important; and, moreover, scientifically, quite as instructive as any discoveries which may be made in the interior of Africa, even when the true source of the Nile shall be at length discovered. Except the southern skirt of that continent, the Cape and Natal colonies, Africa has small interest for Englishmen. But with Asia some of our deepest interests are bound up. Fields of commercial enterprise are there open to us—countries waiting to be explored which lie in our path—at our doors, in fact, with population, products, and surroundings to which nothing in Africa can pretend, and yet we neglect exploration; nay, as a Government, we positively decry the efforts of those persons who, in their private capacity, are eager to inquire and explore. In this point of view we know of no more urgent demand at the present moment than the solution of a practical trade route between Great Britain and Western China across British Burmah, from Rangoon. Surely it is possible to arrive at some satisfactory resolve upon this subject. A great deal of very interesting information has recently been published at Shanghai in respect to the rich country lying, south and north, at the head of the Upper Yangtze. The explorers to whose reports we refer, were Mr. Consul Swinhoe, and Messrs. Michie and Francis, deputed by the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce to accompany Mr. Swinhoe. Their testimony as to the fertility and value of the rich provinces of Szechuen and Yunan, however it may be calculated to excite the commercial envy of the Shanghai merchants, is but confirmatory of our previous knowledge of this part of China. But Shanghai is not the natural outlet for the provinces of Szechuen and Yunan. The course of the great river renders it impossible that it should ever be so. The shipping which is destined to supply the wants and carry away the produce of those regions must now pass to and fro across the Bay of Bengal from the Suez Canal, and we will hope that it cannot be long before we see the port of Rangoon thus become almost a second Shanghai. But this rests with our Government. We say our Government, because, though the steps should be taken by the Government of India, the latter is now so deeply absorbed with its financial deficiency that we fear nothing short of an "Imperial" reminder will prove an incentive to action; though here again we are from indulging over much hope. The most doughty champion of the project of opening an overland commercial way between Rangoon and China—Captain Sprye—appears each session, map in hand. Leading representatives of the manufacturing districts who support him challenge the Treasury Bench upon the subject. Survey, Survey, Survey, they cry, and the subject is "mentioned;" but the season is, just then, hardly opportune for its discussion. A disturbance is expected in Cork; the Premier is anxiously preparing a reply to a deputation from a monster meeting held the previous Sunday in Hyde Park; or perhaps, failing these grounds of Ministerial excitement, the venerable fathers of "the Council of India" have shaken their heads, have assured their Ducal President that India has trade enough and to spare, and that no more trading facilities are wanted—on the contrary, that there are too many means of commercial communication already, that railways are the curse of the land, and telegraps the invention of Belial himself! We can easily fancy that a Secretary of State so peaceably disposed as the Duke of Argyll may be loth to provoke the ire of these Indian leviathans of his Council Chamber; and rather than disturb them in their grim state, or overrule their "Indian Service" minds, would neglect the wealth of rich Szechuen and Yunan, which, like bunches of ripe and juicy grapes, temptingly hang within reach, ready to be plucked; but which, through circumstances connected either with Ireland, with Hyde Park, or the Council Chamber of the India Office, are kept, year after year, beyond the grasp of our unemployed manufacturers.

THE CHINESE COOLIE TRADE.—The Times announces that the Department of State at Washington has received from the United States Consul at Amoy a copy of an important order from the Foreign Board of Peking, which order had not been generally promulgated, but communicated to the Commissioners of Customs of the Treaty Ports The Consul expresses the opinion that under this order the lawful emigration of Chinese to our Pacific coast will be confined to Hong Kong, and it will be unprofitable from other ports on the following account:—"1. Non-Treaty Power merchants are not permitted to open emigration agencies. 2. Non-Treaty Power ships are not permitted to carry coolie emigrants. 3. Coolie emigrants are not permitted to proceed under contract to Non-Treaty Power countries. 4. Only Treaty Power merchants can open emigration agencies; only Treaty Power ships can carry such emigrants, and it is only to Treaty Power countries such contract emigrants can proceed. 5. The coolie traffic is prohibited at Macao."

A telegram from St. Petersburg announces the arrival of the Chinese Embassy in that city.

BREAKFAST.—EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—The very agreeable character of this preparation has rendered it a general favourite The Civil Service Gazette remarks.—"The singular success which Mr. Epps has attained by his homœopathic preparation of cocoa has never been surpassed by any experimentalist. By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills." Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in tin-lined packets, labelled—JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London.

OPIUM VERSUS CHRISTIANITY.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

Of late we have had in the Chinese Recorder, from the pens of the missionaries, several articles on Opium. The first is headed "Opium Smoking in China," and after referring to an excellent and most thorough review of this subject published in the North China Herald of April 1, 1868, in the shape of a reply to the memorial of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson, and Co., it calls attention to the testimony of D. B. McCarter, M.D., for twenty-five years a medical missionary of the American Presbyterian Church at Ningpo. In a letter to the editor of the Recorder he says:—

It would be difficult to estimate accurately the extent to which opium smoking prevails in and about Ningpo; I should judge that it has increased threefold since I came to Ningpo, twenty-five years ago. The number of low dens for smoking opium has fearfully increased since the legalisation of the sale of opium was forced upon the Chinese. As to the effects of opium on the smokers—1st. Physically, it enervates them, gradually undermines their constitution, and very frequently, either from their inability to procure the drug, or from its losing its effects upon them, or (as in several instances that have come under my observation), owing to a resolute endeavour to break off the habit, an incurable opium diarrhœa sets in, and carries off the victim in a short time. 2. Morally it not only undermines the physical constitution, it also blinds the moral senses, and in aggravated or over-confirmed cases there is no depth of meanness or depravity to which the poor wretches will not stoop to stop the insupportable craving for the drug. Two instances have come under my own personal observation where young men who had contracted the habit of opium smoking were constantly involving their friends and relations in disgrace and trouble by their petty thefts and other scandalous expedients to obtain the means of procuring opium, that their own parents with the consent of the — — (here follow two Chinese characters without explanation), caused them to be sewed up in mats, carried down the river, and while the relatives sat down on the banks to witness the deed, had the poor shrieking wretches, begging for life at the hands of their own parents, deliberately placed under water, and, after the lapse of half-an-hour or less, caused the corpse to be taken out and carried off to be buried.

Let us hope that Dr. McCarter, for the sake of humanity, took some steps to prevent the double murder of which he was witness. We must give the testimony of the Rev. Robert Grover, M.D., of the American Southern Baptist Board in Canton; he writes:—

In your note of Sept. 21 you ask my views on the following points:—(1) To what extent opium smoking prevails in the region under my observation? and (2) what is the effect of opium upon those who use it? For the last seven or eight years I have travelled on an average over 1,000 miles a-year by native boats. Never but once have I been on a passage boat on which no opium was smoked. In that boat there were but eight passengers, and two of these confessed that when not travelling they smoked opium twice daily. We may feel safe in saying that at least 30 per cent. of the mercantile class indulge in opium. These men form the bulk of the passengers on the native boats, of which traveller class, though connected with the Yamen, we may say that opium smoking is almost universal among them. I do not think that 90 per cent. would be too high a figure for this class of men. As to soldiers, I should think the opium smokers among them amount to 40 or 50 per cent. The farmers smoke less than any other part of the population; but I am informed that in many places where native opium is cultivated its use is almost universal among the labouring classes. The native drug is said to be much weaker and less injurious in its effects than the imported article. On the whole, I think we should be below rather than above the mark in saying that one-fourth of the adult male inhabitants of China are addicted to the use of opium.

The effects of opium smoking are (1). Physiologically: excitement, caused by nervous restlessnes and talkativeness, sleep, and as one becomes more and more addicted to the habit, loss of appetite, emaciation, a dull leaden hue, stiff movements and gait, obstinate constipation, and occasionally skin diseases. (2) Socially: late rising and loss of time, resulting from the time required for smoking and the subsequent sleep, expense, gradually exhausting a man's means, and driving him to the greatest shifts to satisfy his craving, such as the neglect of his family, pawning all the furniture and clothes, and selling the children, the gradual sapping of the strength and vigour, rendering a man more and more unfit for the duties of life. (3) Morally: testiness and manifestation of anger under provocation, like that noticed in several nervous persons, and I may add that the Chinese say, and not, I am persuaded, without reason, that as the use of alcoholic stimulants tends to make men hot-tempered and violent, so that of opium makes them given to lying, duplicity, and trickery. The habit of opium smoking is more dangerous than that of taking alcohol, on account of the insidiousness of its approach, and the difficulty of escaping from its clutches. This vampire seems to suck all the moral courage out of a man. As to deeds of violence opium must yield the palm to alcohol.

The next article, on the Extent of, and some of the Evils of Opium Smoking, is by J. Dudgeon, M.D., Peking, who writes:—

Ever since the introduction of opium into China, its consumption has been steadily increasing. Previous to 1767 the quantity imported from India did not exceed 200 chests, of 100 cutties each, but in that year it rose to 1,000 chests; in 1800 the importation had reached 2,000 chests; it was in this year that the determined opposition of the China Government commenced. In 1836 the number of chests was 36,000, in 1866, we learn from your journal, it reached over 81,000 chests. These figures tell their own sad tale.

The name Antipien, which is supposed to be of foreign origin, occurs in the Pen Tsuo, and is traceable to the reign of Wan-lich (1596), at which time it is mentioned by one writer under this name. It is thus seen that the drug was well-known in China before the Portuguese and the East India Company tea traffic, the Chinese had long ago discovered its general properties, and had found it of benefit in chest complaints, dysentery and diarrhœa. My own experience is limited to a few years' residence in the capital, where the most stringent regulations exist, and where it is occasionally punished, as e.g., when a great crime or calamity occurs, an atrocious murder or a great conflagration takes place, or when new officials succeed to office. Out of the 18,510 patients, of all classes and both sexes, seen at the hospital of the English Mission, Peking, during five years, 634 were opium smokers, with one or two exceptions, all men who applied solely to be cured of the constant habit. Upon careful enquiry and comparison of statements I find the following may be taken as approximinately true. Among small officials forty per cent are opium smokers, merchants twenty per cent., their courage is not great—apprentices, for the most part from the neighbouring provinces, living with their employers, and who dare not be found neglecting business ; seventy to eighty per cent. of the followers, attendants, and male servants of mandarins. By far the largest number who have applied for relief belong to this class ; the vice stood in the way of their promotion, or their continuance in office ; thirty to forty per cent. of the female attendants of officials ; twenty to thirty per cent. of the fighting soldiery, and the same per centage among the literary class ; fifty per cent. of the eunuchs in the palace, and one of that class who applied for relief told me there were over 3,000, and that they had an opium shop in the palace, at the foot of the throne. They lately set fire in this way to the Imperial Repository, which is just now being rebuilt ; thirty to forty per cent. of the Reserve Military Force or bannersmen ; four or five per cent. of agriculturists and field labourers ; from forty to sixty per cent. in places where it is grown, as in Shansi. The maximum quantity is two taels, or ounces, in twenty-four hours, and the minimum five candareens to begin with. One mace costs here 600 cash, or nine cents ; in 100 smokers the per centage is about the following : thirty smoke from three to four mace or drams, twenty smoke from two mace, twenty smoke from one mace, twenty smoke from five to twenty or thirty grains, ten smoke one tael or more and upwards.

Digitized by Google

In this article we have a great many extracts, all of the strangest description possible. I annex a few : Sir. R. Inglis quoted the following in the British Parliament, April 4, 1843. in the opium debate, from the Batavia Gazette, being an account by an individual who has visited one of the opium houses. He describes what he saw in what he calls "this anti-chamber of Hell." He saw Malays, Chinese, men and women, old and young, in one house, in mass, in one common horde, wallowing in their filth, beastly, sensual, devilish, and that under the eye of a Christian Government. All speak of its immoral and demoralising effects. They steal, sell property, children, wife, and finally commit murder to obtain it. There is one point of difference, as one observes, between the intoxication of ardent spirits and that of opium. and that is the tenfold force with which any argument against the former applies to the latter. There is no slavery on earth to compare with the bondage into which opium casts its victims. An extract from the letter of an opium smoker says, "The evils of opium are great. Those who love it lose their property, waste their time, destroy their morals, and injure their reputation ; those who have abilities become dull and stupid, their strength and vigour change into weakness and frailty, they fall into a low stage, and sink into the rank of demons. All the bamboos growing on the Southern Mountains would be insufficient to describe all the evils of opium. It would take all the water of the North Sea to wash away the stains of opium from the heart."

A literary man from Nanking, in 1836, said, "Sleeping smokers are like corpses, lean and haggard as demons. It throws whole families into ruin, dissipates every kind of property, and destroys man himself. The youth who smoke shorten their days ; those in middle life hasten the termination of their years. It wastes the flesh and blood until their skin hangs down like bags, and their bones are as naked as billets of wood. When he has pawned everything in his possession, he will pawn his wife and sell his daughters." What did the distinguished Lin write to Queen Victoria ? "In the ways of Heaven no partiality exists, and no sanction is allowed to the injury of others for the advantage of one's self ; and in man's natural desires there is no diversity—all seek life. . . . To seek one's own advantage by other men's injury is abhorrent to the notion of man, and utterly opposed to the ways of Heaven." Hundreds of quotations of this sort might be adduced. Tan-Kwang, the present Emperor's grandfather, said, "It is true I cannot prevent the introduction of the floury poison ; gain-seeking and corrupt men will, for profit and sensuality, defeat my wishes, but nothing will induce me to derive a revenue from the vice and misery of my people." What a noble declaration, when he was urged, in 1844, to legalise the traffic, &c., &c.

If these arguments have no weight with our merchants, I am afraid the pecuniary, social, political, moral and religious interests of millions of inhabitants of China and the Eastern Archipelago will have none.

Further "Notes on Opium ;" by G. J. Dudgeon, M.D.—The following is the substance of a Memorial which appeared in the Peking Gazette, 13th and 14th February, 1869, from a censor, in which he prays that the production of the drug may be done away with, as destroying the means of subsistence, and hence the lives of the people. "It is the duty of the State," he says, "to provide for the wants of the people, and this opium is destroying the very foundation on which the State rests. Food is like heaven to the people ; planting opium is like nourishing disease. It entered the country first at Kanliang, and then it spread to Shensi, where it now grows everywhere in abundance. There are in each hsein more than 10,000 mow of land, and in the provinces more than one million mow, under cultivation ; and, allowing three mow of land for one man for a year, which is the calculation, there is therefore in each province a deficiency of food sufficient to support some 10,000 men. The root must be removed, if opium smoking is to be abolished ; and in this way only can the people have plenty and life be nourished.

"In Kansah and Shensi, where it was first planted, the people made money, and the mandarins also made much gain from the duty licence ; and this plan they adopted to increase the revenues of a poor appointment. It would be easy to forbid its cultivation if the yamen did not make so much by it. If the great officers of the Government took the matter up in earnest, their action would resemble the sea ; darkness flies away at his rising ; so would it be with opium ;" &c., &c. The Emperor has received this memorial.

Some relate that opium smoking was first practised in the year 1666, but it is only since the commencement of the present century that it has become so widely known and used, and a knowledge of the regular cultivation of the plant and inspissation of the juice has obtained. It has been known as a drug for three hundred years. Its medicinal properties and qualities, botany, and preparation, are described quite minutely by the early writers. Opium is now the staple production of Souchow, the so called garden of China. Formerly the adjoining province of Yunan supplied itself and the neighbouring districts with this drug. In Souchow the poppy has found a genial and well-watered soil ; and by reason of the great internal trade and means of communication a ready market also. The opium produced in this province now supplies all the Western Provinces ; corroborative proof of this may be found in the fact that, compared with other articles imported into the great emporium of Hankow, which is the limit (so to speak) of the foreign drug, it is said that there is a comparatively small import of opium. The native drug is finding its way down the great rivers travelling eastward.

From the observation of several Europeans who have travelled in Manchuria it would appear that the drug is even there, in that remote region, extensively grown. There, as in Szechun, the whole country for miles looks white with the poppy flowers. Since the opening of the Yangtsze to foreign trade it appears that the native drug in the interior has become one-half cheaper, and the number of smokers has been trebled. An acre, at one place, is said to yield 200 taels weight of the drug, and is 20 per cent. cheaper than Indian opium. At another place, also in Manchuria, which is sown on a larger scale, an acre yields only 100 taels weight. At Kirin the cultivation of the poppy is still vaster. About 300 piculs are yearly brought to the market, and some of it is said to be offered for sale in Newchwang ; the native drug is milder, and more highly flavoured than Indian.

The whole of this large native trade is the growth of the last five years. The corruption, indifference, and weakness of the officials and Government permit this ; and, with a soil and climate well adapted for its growth, it threatens to overrun the land. Its cultivation has been unsuccessfully tried in some of the seaboard provinces, owing to the resistance of some of the officials, who found that sufficient land would not be left to produce food for the people. With depopulation rapidly increasing, from famine, poverty, disease, misrule, and the drug itself, the culture of the plant is likely to increase in other parts of China, and strengthen its hold where it now exists. The great increase in its cultivation and consumption is the natural result of its legalisation. Now, opium smokers are free from all risk of decapitation, punishment, or banishment. It is now so much cheaper that the very poorest smoke. Formerly it was confined to the "upper ten."

We wish, for the sake of Christianity and China, merchants and missions, humanity and British honour, philanthropy and population, commerce and capital, that we might see the end of this nefarious traffic. Foreign merchants must look more and more to their manufactures. The opium trade will some day soon pass out of their hands if the Chinese Government take no active measures to put down native cultivation. They will then have cause to regret ever having forcibly introduced an article which has depopulated and impoverished the country, and ruined their own market, the largest in the world, for cotton goods.

The next article is named "A Parable," by some one who is, apparently with reason, ashamed to give his name. He commences, Reader, did you ever hear of the Thugs of India, the ferocious worshippers of the goddess Kali ? Since A.D. 1810, British power has been rigorously exerted to exterminate them. . . . I used to think that I had never seen a Thug, but a dream I had the other day has occasioned horrible suspicions in my mind that these sanguinary devotees are not confined to India, and taught me lessons which I shall leave you to find out for yourself, as I did. In my dream, then, I found myself living in a land where Thuggism prevailed, and was rapidly extending. The tenets and practices of the sect, though of course multiplied by circumstances, were essentially the same as those just described. But poison was substituted for the rope, and with a squeamishness singular enough in men who set so small a value on human life, any other method of violently taking it was regarded as criminal.

(To be continued.)

Digitized by Google

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS, CORRESPONDENTS, &c.

No notice can be taken of anonymous correspondence. Whatever is intended for insertion must be accompanied by the name and address of the writer, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith.

A REGISTER is kept of the addresses of all persons connected with the FAR EAST, and reference can be made to the same by personal application at the Office or by letter.

Any Information required by Subscribers in reference to Commercial or general matters in CHINA, JAPAN, SINGAPORE, and other parts of the FAR EAST, will be supplied on application at the Office, where files may be seen of the Journals published in those Countries.

The "LONDON AND CHINA TELEGRAPH" is published on the arrival of the fortnightly English mail, and the monthly French mail. Subscription, 30s. per annum: with Export Supplement, £2 2s.

The "LONDON AND CHINA EXPRESS" is published on the day of departure of the mails, and contains a Summary of English, Continental, and American, News-Commercial and Shipping Reports, &c. Subscription, 54s. per annum; with Export Supplement, 66s.

JAMES WEST, PUBLISHER,
2, COWPER'S-COURT, CORNHILL, LONDON.

The London & China Telegraph.

LONDON: MONDAY, FEB. 14, 1870.

THE NEW CONVENTION.—MEMORIAL TO LORD CLARENDON.

THE Memorial of the Committee appointed at the meeting of China merchants, held on the 13th ult., with reference to the revision of the Treaty, has been forwarded to Lord CLARENDON, with a request for an appointment for a deputation to wait upon his lordship as early as possible after the arrival of Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK. The Memorial commences with an allusion to the fact that, in anticipation of the revision of the tariff and commercial articles of the Treaty, a variety of information was supplied to Her MAJESTY'S Ministers by the British merchants in China, which it was expected would form the basis of any alterations effected in the Convention; and much disappointment was experienced when it was found that the suggestions made to the Minister were not in any way embodied in the new Treaty. It would have been preferable, the Memorial continues, to have left matters in statu quo, as the alterations now proposed constitute no improvement upon the original Treaty. Although in some minor matters concessions have been granted by the Chinese, these are only an equivalent to concessions of much greater importance on the other side. The Memorial next proceeds to consider the results accruing from the opening of new ports, where, it observes, merchants, warned by past experience of land purchases, are hardly likely to settle; and it goes on to say:—

Tea and Silk can hardly be expected to desert their accustomed channels for these new outlets. British manufactures will in all probability be taken to an even less extent than at the adjoining ports, Kiukiang in the one case, and Ningpo in the other; while such traffic as may exist will fall far short of those extensive and regular transactions which alone can repay the cost of foreign establishments. So long as access to China can be procured only by resorting to specific ports, every new one that is opened must be reckoned as something gained, even though the commercial results should prove insignificant. But your memorialists entertain a decided opinion that the object to be aimed at by British diplomacy is less to multiply the number of these fixed resorts than to obtain a general right of travel and settlement for the peaceful trader. How little this desideratum is accomplished by the Convention is sufficiently shown in the somewhat humiliating provisions of Supplementary Rule 7. It must be remembered that besides the expensive Consular and foreign Custom House establishments called for by the opening of a Treaty Port, foreigners commencing business there are practically obliged to purchase land, and build houses and warehouses at a heavy outlay, since they are restricted to a special concession of ground on which such conveniences rarely exist, or where from the absence of competition to sell or let the native owners soon learn to exact excessive prices. This property it becomes difficult or ruinous to abandon, should the trade prove unsuccessful, as has already been the case at several Treaty Ports. Whereas, if British subjects were permitted to trade with their goods from point to point as openings offered, they might avail themselves of native buildings, establish inexpensive agencies, and enjoy facilities for fostering the small beginnings of trade in promising localities. Consular establishments and Foreign Inspectorates at the leading centres of business could then be made to suffice; and if the desire to extend peaceful intercourse really existed on the part of the Chinese Government, it ought not to be difficult to settle the regulations required to work it successfully.

Allusion is next made to the remaining concessions so called, which in many cases the memorialists regard more in the light of restrictions. If the bonded warehouses now permitted to be established are to be owned by the Chinese Government, few would think of leaving their merchandise in the custody of native officials, leaving out the question of a difficulty in obtaining insurance against fire. The remaining stipulations are summed up in the following brief remarks:—

British subjects are already permitted to visit "all parts of the interior under passports," and may "build or open houses, warehouses, churches, &c." Article XIV. of the old Treaty authorises them to hire boats and coolies without restriction of place. On the other hand, the present Convention prohibits steam vessels (perhaps the most effectual agency in opening up China), as well as the use of any private or national flag in the interior, and restricts residence to renting for short periods inns or private houses, on which merchants are not even at liberty to display their business, name, or designation. Shipbuilding materials of foreign origin have hitherto been admitted free of duty, under the heading of "ship's stores," specified in the Treaty of Tientsin, though now to be restricted to such as are used for repairs only—a restriction likely to lead to much difficulty and dispute. The reduced duties on such small matters as watches, tin plates, pepper and timber may perhaps relieve foreign trade to the extent of £3,500 per annum; while the remission of all duty on foreign coal and guano may involve an amount of £3,200 per annum. The provisions designed to develop the production of Chinese coal may gradually become of service, although hitherto the coal has been found of very inferior quality. Foreign grain (i.e., rice) is already admitted duty free under the Treaty of Tientsin, and its re-exportation without paying export duty rectifies a practical injustice, which could only have brought in an inappreciable sum to the Custom-house. Such, on a careful examination of the Convention, are all the articles which your memorialists can discover as professing to confer benefits upon British trade.

The Memorial then enters upon a new branch of the subject, and proceeds to the consideration of the additional restrictions upon British trade which are imposed by the supplementary convention. Passing by the Opium Duty question, the increased export and transit duty on Silk and the new provisions with regard to the payment of duties upon Cotton and Woollen manufactures are alluded to; and from the observations upon these heads we extract the following:—

Your Memorialists cannot but regard it as an economic mistake to have assented to the artificial raising in price of this important raw material, at a time when exceptional causes have for some years past lessened the supply and enhanced its cost. From these unforeseen causes manufacturers in this country and on the continent have been conducting their business at a disadvantage, which would be increased by any further addition to the cost of raw silk. It has been alleged that the duty is raised because it had fallen materially short of the 5 per cent. ad valorem, which is the basis of the tariff. It can hardly be considered equitable, however, that the present exceptionally high prices should govern a readjustment of the duty. In former years silk ruled at a price which made the 10 taels duty a much nearer approach to 5 per cent. ad valorem, and should the disease now prevailing among the silkworms in Europe disappear, prices may revert to their old standard. It may fairly be demanded too that if the silk duty is to be revised because it is proportionally too low, the tea duty ought to be revised because it is proportionally too high, being at present something like 12½ per cent. upon its cost. The addition to the Imperial revenue from the extra 10 taels duty on silk may be estimated at £140,000 per annum. Assuming that the inland charges have hitherto amounted to only half the export duty, the extra five taels to be levied under the name of transit duty would amount to £70,000, making a total benefit of £210,000 per annum conceded to China by this one article of the Convention. In the preceding remarks a comparison has alone been made between the duties strictly leviable under the existing treaty, and the increased charge proposed by the new Convention. But it is well known that silk is already burdened with a much higher scale of taxation than the recognised tariff; and the illusory character of the remedy promised by the Convention for such exactions—namely, a return of the amount upon sufficient proof—may be estimated by the following particulars. Mr. Fitzroy, formerly Commissioner of Customs at Shanghai, in his official report, dated March 15, 1867, says that silk coming from the interior to Shanghai pays more than 30 taels per bale (equal to 37·50 taels per picul) as transit dues. Foreigners, to escape this excessive levy, took out transit passes at 5 taels per picul. It now appears that the Chinese have met this move by taxing the native dealers in silk instead of their produce; and licences to trade are issued to them at the rate of 26 dollars on every bale of raw silk, and 86 dollars on every bale of thrown silk passing through their hands, or equal to about 18·6 taels and 26·8 taels respectively per picul.

Of even greater interest to this country, and especially to our manufacturing districts, is the provision which enacts that cotton, linen, and woollen goods and cotton mixtures are henceforward to pay import duty and transit duty together to the Custom-house at the time of importation, instead of the former system, by which import duty alone was paid by the importer, and the transit duties adjusted as the goods passed on to the marts of the interior. If it could be shown, as the even probable operation of this change, that foreign manufacturers, from the simple fact of their being foreign, could pass freely and untaxed throughout the eighteen provinces of China, freed by the one extra payment at the port of entry, the new system would be a real boon to trade, and would be most cordially welcomed by your Memorialists. But a twofold objection here presents itself: first, that the Convention does not profess to do so much as this; and, secondly, that there is no guarantee offered, nor even provision suggested, for the effective fulfilment of what it does profess to accomplish. The Convention simply provides that the goods are to circulate freely in Treaty Port Provinces without certificates; but it appears that whenever they leave such province, and reach their declared destination, they become subject to any imposts that the local authorities may think proper to levy. The Treaty Port Provinces are only eight (or with the new port of Wuhu, nine) in number, and the effect of the regulation will be to discourage the use of British manufactures in one-half of China. Instead of being a step in advance, this stipulation is a distinct forfeiture of a former treaty privilege, for the Treaty of Tientsin provided that British subjects desiring to convey goods to an inland market might exercise the option of paying a transit duty of 2½ per cent. "on payment whereof a certificate shall be issued which shall exempt the goods from all further inland charges whatsoever." It is true that the bad faith of the Chinese has made this article generally inoperative; but it will not be denied that the object of British policy should be rather to ensure a better observance of existing privileges than voluntarily to abandon them when once acquired. The second objection above referred to is that a compulsory payment of transit duty by the importer will fail to protect the goods so charged from further exactions, even in the Treaty port provinces. The chief markets of the interior are found in the regions watered by the two great rivers, the Hoang-ho and the Yang-tsze with their tributaries, amid which exists the most extensive system of waterways in the world. These serve to irrigate an area of five hundred thousand square miles, and afford the principal means of communication to a population exceeding one hundred millions. British manufacturers have hitherto done little more than reach the outskirts of this vast territory. To the people beyond, their heavy cost becomes nearly prohibitory, owing partly to charges of transmission, but mainly to multiplied local transit dues levied at successive barriers on the way from the port to the interior, and to other internal taxation. This system of taxation is deeply rooted in the usages of the country; and its main evils consist in the excessive amount of duties repeatedly paid in the course of a lengthened journey, and in the mode of levy, which is often capricious, arbitrary and uncertain, not regulated by the central authority at Peking, but by the edicts of provincial governors, or even of subordinate local authorities. The convention in stipulating for the additional compulsory payment of 2½ per cent. at the port of entry makes no practical arrangement whatever for the abatement of these evils, and offers no system of redress in the certain event of their continuance. Merchants are invited to rely upon an engagement of the same Government which has so signally failed in keeping previous promises; and they may be pardoned for showing some suspicion that the new article will not be better observed than the old. Indeed, it has always been feared by your memorialists that even if the Central Government really desired to abolish all internal dues in the Treaty port provinces, they would have difficulty in doing so. The provincial authorities have to provide their own revenues without subsidies from Peking, and it will not be found an easy matter to make them forego a convenient and accustomed method of raising funds by taxing foreign commodities. If your Lordship were able to assure the mercantile community that Government possessed or were prepared to exact effectual guarantees for the fulfilment of this stipulation, the case would be altered; but the mere written engagement of the Chinese Government can scarcely be considered of more value now than in 1858, or than in all the years that have intervened up to the present time.

Digitized by Google

For the foregoing reasons your Memorialists look upon the compulsory payment at the port of entry of the 2½ per cent. transit duty as likely to prove an additional impost on British manufactures in the nine Treaty provinces, while the right of exemption which we now possess from further exactions in excess of the transit duty throughout the rest of China is relinquished. On reviewing the whole of the foregoing fiscal alterations, it will be seen that while the concessions yielded by the Chinese amount to only £6,700 per annum, those granted to them amount to £790,000 per annum, or, omitting the tax on Indian opium, to £380,000 per annum, the great bulk of which will have to be borne by the trade of this country.

After a brief allusion to the provisions of the new Convention referring to tonnage dues, joint courts in Custom-house cases, and the cashing of drawback duty certificates, the memorial proceeds to show the disadvantages which would accrue from the proposed establishment of Chinese Consulates. It is maintained that a recognised Chinese consul resident either in Hong Kong or any other British colony would more probably take advantage of his position to "squeeze" and annoy rather than to protect his fellow-subjects, and in this he would be aided by the circumstance that their families and connections in China would be entirely under the control of Chinese officials. Thus the effect of the stipulation would be to give the Chinese Government undue control over the native merchants of Hong Kong. The memorial then proceeds to notice the probable operations of the alteration in the "most favoured nation clause," with reference to which it observes:—

> For the first time, it is proposed to give back to China a portion of its former concessions, as the price of new privileges; and in this policy the concurrence of other nations has to be sought. But the negotiators have overlooked the consideration that while on this occasion it is Great Britain that fixes the terms of the new arrangement, on the next revision of a Treaty it may be some other Power, and that Power possibly unfriendly or at least indifferent to our interests. Yet by its own act Great Britain would not be free to claim the privileges obtained by its neighbour, unless it took them with all the accompanying disabilities and restrictions. The case will be made more intelligible by an illustration or two. Let the instance be taken of a Treaty Power largely interested in the silk trade with China, but with a very trifling interest in tea. Its Government might think it advantageous to arrange with the Chinese that there should be no export duty on silk, allowing them as a compensation to double the duty on tea. The subjects of this power would then get their silk free of duty, but when British subjects claimed the same privilege, Article I. of this Convention would be quoted by the Chinese to show that if they wished to enjoy it, the accompanying condition must be that they pay double duty on tea. And as this condition could not possibly be assented to, the entire silk trade must pass into the hands of other countries, with whose merchants British buyers would be unable to compete. Or take the case of another Treaty Power which has no trade with China, but is mainly anxious for a political standing and influence in that country. Supposing such a power were to negotiate the right of audience from the Chinese Emperor, abandoning in return the right of access to the Yangtsze and the whole of the interior, which is of no practical importance to its subjects. Great Britain with its vast trading interests could not assent to such a sacrifice, and yet without it could not enjoy the privilege conceded to its neighbour, which would thenceforward possess an undoubted pre-eminence at Peking, and in the estimation of native politicians occupy the first place among other nations. It might even suit the policy of Chinese statesmen to take up some of the smaller Powers and grant them exclusive privileges in return for their abandoning Treaty rights of great moment to others, though of none to themselves. In short, in this article may be discovered the germs of much present embarrassment and of eventual disagreement of the most serious nature, both with China and with those Western Powers whose friendly and united action has hitherto been a guarantee for peace and security to residents in China, and has become essential to the permanence and development of their trade.

In conclusion, the Committee's views upon the Convention are summarised in the following remarks which, it will be noticed, fully bear out our own observations made at the time when the provisions of the revised treaty were first published:—

> Your memorialists desire respectfully to state that in their opinion the benefits proposed to be conferred upon British trade by this Convention are wholly inadequate to counterbalance the disadvantages involved in the withdrawal of rights and privileges secured by former treaties, and the imposition of the additional duties to which we have taken exception. We have shown that the concessions to China are either in the form of a money payment, or they are the relinquishment by this country of valuable commercial or political privileges; while the equivalents offered, with the trifling exception of the duty on some minor articles, are either nominal, or they are plainly of equal advantage to the subjects of both nations. The Convention forms the first distinct evidence of a retrograde policy in China, than which nothing can be more unwise, looking to the pains and sacrifices with which our present commercial position has been attained. In this labour of a generation Great Britain has ever taken the foremost place; and as she has sought no special privileges for herself, all Foreign nations have reaped the benefits of her enterprise. To abandon any of the advantages thus acquired seems to your memorialists most suicidal; to hold them at the pleasure or subject to the intrigues of possibly unfriendly neighbours, not less so. In these considerations your memorialists find additional and cogent reasons for urging a reconsideration of much that has a place in the Convention. They will be glad to have the opportunity of explaining in personal conference any point on which it may be possible to give fuller or more distinct expression to their views. They must repeat, however, that if alteration is found impossible, they are convinced it would prove more advantageous to the interests of this country to fall back upon the Treaty of Tientsin, while requiring a better observance of its provisions.

THE "SPINDRIFT" AGAIN.

MORE correspondence about what The Times calls "The shameful wreck of the Spindrift." The term is a strong one, but not too strong; the loss of this fine vessel was as shameful to those responsible for her safety as the subsequent proceedings have been disgraceful to the tribunals on whom devolved the duty of investigating into and punishing the neglect it arose from. When the result of the inquiry became known, we expressed a hope that English shipowners and underwriters would not allow this mockery of judicial inquiry to pass unchallenged; nor have they. The Committee of LLOYD'S have addressed a letter to the Board of Trade, asking for an explanation of the grounds on which the captain and pilot had been so leniently dealt with, inasmuch as all the inquiries that had taken place had failed to elicit one reasonable excuse for the loss of the ship. This letter was forwarded to the Elder Brethren to be answered, and their reply is a model of self-sufficient imbecility. "Elder Brethren," indeed! far advanced, we should say, in their second childhood. They presume, in the first place, to lecture the Committee of LLOYD'S for interfering at all, on the ground that "parties interested in a question ought not to constitute themselves its judges," and go on to insinuate that the Committee are actuated by revengeful feelings in consequence of the magnitude of the loss sustained. Then, relapsing from impertinence into puerility, the Elder Brethren state that they have ascertained that the night was not so fine as it had been represented, but, on the contrary, was "a very deceiving one;" and that although it was a starlight night, and clear to seaward, there was some haze or mist about the Dungeness light. The Committee of LLOYD'S naturally decline to receive these as satisfactory reasons for acquitting the captain and pilot of a serious charge, but we suppose they are powerless to do more than express their dissent. Our own impression is, that the sooner these Elder Brethren are superannuated, and their duties entrusted to more competent hands, the better.

WE understand that the owners of Hong Kong property intend to memorialise Earl GRANVILLE specially on the subject of the second article of the new Convention, which provides that "China may appoint Consuls to reside at all British ports." In the case of Hong Kong it is deemed to be a most injurious step, and would tend to subvert the authority of the English Government in that island, and also be injurious to the trade of the port generally. It will be remembered that Mr. WALKINSHAW was very urgent in deprecating this measure at the meeting of China merchants on the 13th ult., and we think that the force of his remarks was not sufficiently appreciated at the time.

Digitized by Google

Monetary and Commercial.

The prospectus of the Colombo Gas and Water Company has been issued with the following influential list of directors:—Sir Samuel Canning, C.E., F.R.G.S., Arthur Pratt Barlow, Esq., Director of the Great Western Hotel Company; Thomas Glen, Esq., Director of the Hong Kong and China Gas Company; Lieut.-Col. Alfred Pearson, Junior United Service Club; Major W. S Suart, R.E., Director of the Hong Kong and China Gas Company, and the Bombay Gas Company. Committee in Colombo: Alfred Wise, Esq. (Messrs. Geo. Stewart and Co.), G. S. Duff, Esq., Oriental Bank, Colombo; John Thomas White, Esq. (Messrs. J. M. Robertson and Co), Robert Dawson, Esq. (Messrs R. Dawson and Co.). The capital is fixed at £75,000, in shares of £10 each, of which £10,000 has been subscribed in Ceylon, being a good guarantee of the success of the company. The attention of the directors will be first directed to gas, a grant having been obtained from Government of exclusive rights. Other advantages have also been secured from the Municipal Council of Colombo. Contracts for laying down the works have been made with Messrs. Laidlaw and Son, Glasgow, within eighteen months. The scheme has been well and carefully considered, and the estimate of customers is moderate, considering that the levelling of the old Fort walls at Colombo will largely increase the number of houses requiring gas. The local committee in Colombo, comprising members of first-class firms, is a security to the shareholders in looking after the interests of the company on the spot.

The Marseilles, Algiers, and Malta Telegraph Company (Limited) has been announced in connection with the Anglo-Mediterranean and the system of submarine telegraphs in alliance with that company's route. The capital is £200,000 in 20,000 shares of £10 each, of which 18,000 shares are for subscription. The object of the company is to establish and work a direct line of telegraph from Marseilles, Algeria, and Malta, in accordance with a concession granted by the French Government under Imperial decree, and which has been assigned to the company. The company's lines, it is stated, will afford to the traffic between France, Egypt, India, the French colony of Cochin China. China, and Australia (which would otherwise have to traverse 1,300 miles of land through Italy), the same reliable communication with those places as Great Britain will possess by means of the Falmouth, Gibraltar, and Malta Telegraph. With termini at Falmouth and at Marseilles, and with the duplicate lines of the Anglo-Mediterranean Company already existing between Malta and Egypt, it is believed that the system of direct submarine telegraphs between England and France and the East will be placed in a position to completely satisfy the wants of the public. The subscription list has been closed, and the applications are said to have been to a satisfactory extent.

It is stated that the Board of the British Indian Extension Telegraph Company have under consideration the question of altering the Indian terminus of their cable to Singapore, and that the line will probably be laid from Madras to Singapore, instead of from Ceylon to Singapore, with the object of availing themselves of the superior telegraph communication existing between Madras and the other Presidencies.

The question of division of Brokers' Commission in the tea trade has not yet been brought to a settlement. A few more dealers have joined the compact for not paying the half commission, which now includes the following firms:—Messrs. Peek, Winch and Co., Travers, Staines, Moffatt, Harrisons, Mears, Rowley, Wilson, Edwards. A meeting has been called for to-day to endeavour to settle this vexata quæstio.

The amount of bullion by the P. and O. Company's steamer Ripon, from Southampton on the 5th inst., was, in gold, to Galle, £425; to Bombay, £500; to Madras, £1,121; to Alexandria, £10,000; in silver, to Penang, £8,990; to Singapore, £56,323; to Shanghai, £179,150; total in gold, £12,046; in silver, £244,463.

In consequence of the sudden death of Mr. Thornton the following circular has been issued by Mr. Homan, his partner in the firm of Thornton. Homan, and Co., Bradford:—

"It is my painful duty to announce the death of my esteemed friend and partner Mr. Charles Hermon Thornton, which occurred on Sunday, the 23rd inst. It is due to the memory of one who was justly esteemed as a prudent, upright, and honourable merchant, to say that during my recent visit to America and subsequently, nothing whatever transpired either in the business of the firm or in Mr. Thornton's private affairs to cause the deep despondency he laboured under, and the aberration of mind that ultimately led to his sudden death. The business will be continued as heretofore. Mr. Emile Weile, who has for several years held a confidential position in our house, is authorised to sign the name of the firm by procuration."

The joint liabilities of Messrs. William Clare and Sons, cotton brokers, of Liverpool, who were made bankrupts on the 28th Dec., are stated to be £89,490; those of Mr. W. L. Clare £34,175; and of Mr. J. L. Clare £37,907. A resolution has been passed to suspend further proceedings in bankruptcy, but needs confirmation.

The failure is announced of Messrs. Scott and Gilmour, coal masters, of Glasgow. The liabilities are said to be about £150,000. The assets are not yet known.

Messrs. Leveson, Lewis, and Co. have issued an elaborate series of tables, showing the exports from Singapore and Penang for the past ten years.

The Crown Agents for the Colonies have accepted tenders for £25,000 in bills on the Government of Ceylon, at 1s. 11 9-16d. per rupee, showing no alteration from the last tenders.

Telegrams from Hong Kong announce that the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation will distribute a dividend of 6 per cent. for the half year, $100,000 added to the reserve fund and $40,000 carried forward.

With reference to the China Submarine Telegraph Company (Limited), it is announced that the transfer books will be closed from the 14th until the 17th inst., for the issue of the further capital of £300,000, authorised by the general meeting, held on the 7th ult., for the construction of the Hong Kong and Shanghai section of the line.

The Ceylon Company (Limited) invite applications for £150,000 of Five per Cent. Debentures, being the issue for this year. They will be granted in sums of £100, and be made payable to bearer or order. The uncalled capital of the undertaking actually subscribed amounts to £421,580, to which sum the Debentures to be issued are restricted.

The following circular has been issued by the directors of the Oriental Hotels Company (Limited), who expect to reconstitute the Company and carry on the hotels at Galle, &c.:—

"The directors regret to inform you that they have, after serious consideration, and under legal advice, found it necessary to apply to the Court of Chancery for an order to wind up the Company. In the last annual report it was stated that, owing to 'increased expenditure and diminished receipts, the board have been unable fully to meet the instalments due to the contractor at their due dates.' Having, however, made large reductions in the London expenditure, Mr. Perry, the contractor, having continued to act with the forbearance and good feeling which has all along characterised his conduct, and looking forward to considerable profit during the coming season in Egypt, they had hoped to have been able to meet current liabilities as they occurred, and to see their way to pay a portion, at any rate, of their principal debt. These hopes have, however, proved fallacious; the Egyptian season, although not yet concluded, and not profitless, has failed to yield the amount anticipated; and finding themselves unable to meet the interest due on the 1st instant to debenture-holders, together with various other charges, they have reluctantly come to the conclusion that in the interest of all concerned they have no other resource but to wind up. In announcing this conclusion, the board desire me to state that they trust, with the consent of the various parties interested, it may yet be so arranged that no loss may fall on the debenture-holders and creditors, and that possibly some portion of the original share capital may be saved."

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

Messrs. A. Capel and Co. report as follows:—

The market has been much quieter during the fortnight. The arrivals have been very large, and the trade have held aloof from buying, waiting to see whether importers would give way in price, but the Teas generally have been very firmly held, especially the grades above good common, as it is evident that the exports from China have been raised to the present point by the shipment of a large quantity of low Teas, some portion of which will, we think, be found to be too low for use for home consumption. Prices have on the whole been steady, the only reduction being a fractional decline in the prices of low and common congous, of which there have been large quantities in the recent arrivals. The official returns of duty-paid and exports published by the Customs authorities for the year 1869 give a total of 146,459,178 lbs., 111,852,396 lbs. being duty-paid, and 34,606,782 lbs. being export. The stock in the United Kingdom on the 31st ultimo was estimated at 89,800,000 lbs. against 101,366,000 lbs.; the quantity afloat at 47,440,000 lbs. against 29,898,000 lbs.

Digitized by Google

The following is from Messrs. Shepard Harrison, and Rehden's Circular:—The heavy arrivals within the past fortnight have offered a poor selection, the bulk consisting of low to good common Congou; this has caused increased attention to the better grades, and a further advance of 1d. per lb. has taken place in fine Congou; medium to good medium is also firmer, many importers having withdrawn their teas. Latest advices from China report supplies at the shipping ports to consist of unusually low quality. For export to the Continent there has been little or no buying; to Canada orders have come in slowly. Deliveries for the month are most satisfactory, as follows:—

	1870.	1869.
Home consumption for London from 1st to 31st Jan.	6,523,000	6,838 000
Export do. do.	1,520,000	2,085 000
Sent coastwise do.	4,180,000	2,703,000
Total,	12.223 000	11,626,000

BLACK.—Of the grades below common the quantity offered has been very large, chiefly of black leaf. Siftings, of red leaf, with all faults, have sold at 5½d. to 6d., leafy kinds at 9d. to 10d. per lb.; siftings of Tayshan leaf at 6d., and leafy to ordinary common at 9d. to 10½d. per lb.; leafy kinds black leaf, low quality (re-dried Shanghai packed), 7d. to 9d. per lb. Inferior to good flavory red leaf kinds, as well as brisk Saynne and Kaisow kinds rule at 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 1d. per lb., and it would appear little regard is paid to relative value, demand continuing "for price;" medium to fine Kaisow has been more inquired for, and a few parcels of early import have sold at 3d. to 4d. per lb. more than was obtainable during December. Finest Kaisow commands extreme rates, 2s 4d. being refused for the well known Kum Chune chop. Tayshan-leaf: The bulk of supplies to hand has been below the grade of common. Black leaf: Good common, in public sale, sold at 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 0½d per lb., which is the ruling quotation; for preferable to medium there has been a better selection at 1s. 0¾d. to 1s. 3d. per lb.; good medium, with Pekoe flavour, at Ooanfa kinds, at 1s. 5d. to 1s. 7d., still show good value, and fine and finest have further improved, as the supply is now very moderate. Souchong has sold at a further decline; good common to fair at 1s. 1d. to 1s. 2d; medium kinds, 1s. 3d. to 1s. 4d.; good medium to fine, 1s 5d. to 1s. 7d.; fineat, 1s. 8d. to 1s. 10d. per lb. Oolong: Demand has been limited for export. Scented Teas: Canton Orange Pekoe has been heavy of sale. Caper: Transactions have been on a more extended scale, at further reduced prices, and clean quality is now obtainable at 10d., fair to good at 11d. to 1s. per lb.; of good medium to finest the market is barely supplied. Foochow Orange Pekoe: Fine and finest have been in request at full prices.

GREEN.—There have been further heavy arrivals, including the Teen Mok, and other well-known Chops of Moyune. The limited business has been at 3s. to 3s. 4d. per lb. for No. 1 Gunpowder, 2s. 2d. to 2s. 4d. for No. 1 Imperials, 2s. 6d. to 2s. 10d. for No. 1 Young Hysons, 2s to 4s. for No. 1 Hysons, other grades in proportion. For Shanghai packed, mostly Japan and Fychow leaf, the invoices offered at public sale on 1st inst. sold at lower prices. Ping Sueys have been in smaller supply, and the few invoices free from woody smell have maintained the late rates.

Messrs. Kinnear, Hawes, and Hertz report as follows:—The very heavy imports we have had within the last fortnight induced dealers to try to establish a lower market, but nearly all bids under former quotations for teas of quality have been refused by holders, who seem disposed to wait out such temporary disorganisation—a very natural consequence of these large arrivals. Common Black-leafs and other common Shanghai kinds command very little confidence in the face of large quantities already at hand, and in anticipation of further reported heavy shipments of these sorts from China; they slowly decline in price. In Red-leafs the commonest grades are more difficult of sale, and about ¼d. per lb. easier.

SILK.

The following is from Messrs. Kilburn, Kershaw, and Co.'s Circular:—The market has become rather quiet, and the trade appear disposed to pause awhile after their large purchases of the preceding two months; at the same time, prices which stiffened during January under the daily activity and excitement of the market, have in no way shown weakness, and so far as China Silk is concerned, are certainly as high, and desirable qualities as much sought after, as at any period during the rise. There is now an advance from the lowest moment in October of 3s. to 4s. on China Silk, 4s. to 5s. on Japans, and 1s. to 1s. 6d. on Cantons. The demand for Chinas has been and still is more general than for any other class, and Taysaams especially, which have been exceedingly scarce all through the season, still commanded extreme rates. The quotations are:—Tsatlees, 30s. 6d. to 31s 0d. for best chops 3's.; 27s. 0d. to 28s. 0d. for best chop 4's; 26s. 6s. for Red Peacock; 23s. 6d. to 26s. 0d for common 5 to good 4. Taysaams, 24s. 6d. to 26s. 6d. for good to best No. 1 Kahings; 23s. 0d. to 25s. 0d for 9, 12 Moss and Taikai. Hainin, 27s., 26s., 25s., for No. 1, 2, and 3 Fatmows. Japan Silk is the only Silk showing easier rates, speculators who supported Mybash to the high rates of last month having now neglected it again, sales are only possible at 1s. to 1s. 6d. decline; but holders are very disinclined to make any concession at all. In Canton Silk there has been less doing during the last two or three weeks, and the article is just now decidedly quiet, but prices are fully maintained. Deliveries of all Silks were very satisfactory in January, being 3,351 bales China, 643 bales Canton, 603 bales Japan, 493 bales Bengal; total, 5,090 bales. And from 1st to 8th inst., 965 China, 127 Canton, 189 Japan, and 161 Bengal; together, 1,442 bales.

COFFEE.

The supplies of Plantation Ceylon at the public sales have been somewhat more extensive than of late, but still have not exceeded the requirements of buyers; the market has therefore exhibited throughout a moderate degree of activity, and prices have shown but little variation from those current for last mail. The quantity afloat is 38,355 cwt. less than at the same time last year, and 16,880 cwt. less than in 1868. The latest prices paid at the auctions were: Triage, 47s. to 54s.; ordinary, 57s. to 58s.; fine ordinary gray 64s. to 65s. 6d.; small. 64s. to 67s.; low middling dull, 71s. to 72s.; bold gray, 73s. to 74s. 6d.; middling bright colourv, 76s 6d. to 79s.; bold ditto. 80s. to 85s.; Peaberry, 79s. 6d. to 84s. By private contract 150 casks are reported sold at full prices. For native Ceylon there was a very active enquiry for some days following the date of our last report, but it has since subsided and there is now little doing; holders are, however, firm, and previous rates are well maintained; the prices realised have been garblings, 15s. 6d. to 25s.; ordinary and small, 48s. to 53s. 6d.; barely good to good ordinary, 54s. to 57s.; fine ordinary, 59s.; good bold, 60s. to 60s. 6d.; fine ordinary bright yellowish, 60s.; fine bold ditto, 83s. 6d. to 65s.; pea-berry 58s. to 61s. By private contract we note sales of about 2,500 bags, good and fine ordinary at 56s. to 58s., and 25 casks bold at 60s. For arrival 1,000 cwt. have been sold at 59s., and 500 bags at 58s. The quantity afloat is 43,374 cwt. less than at the same time last year, and 32,416 cwt. less than in 1868. The market for East India descriptions, other than Ceylon, has been quiet, and the only sales reported consist of 245 bags mixed Singapore out of 387 bags offered at 40s., and 520 bags by private contract on private terms. Of Manila, 988 bags greenish were offered and bought in at 57s. to 58s.

The quantity of Ceylon Coffee afloat for Great Britain on the 7th Feb. was as follows:—Plantation, 150,570 cwt., against 188 905 cwt. at the corresponding date of 1869; Native, 13 699 cwt., against 57,073 cwt. The quantity afloat for the Continent was—nil, in both years. The quantity of Coffee landed in the five weeks ended Feb. 5, 1870, was of Ceylon, 2,713 tons, against 1.855 tons during the corresponding period of 1869; of all descriptions, 3.198 tons, against 3,591 tons. The quantity entered for home consumption was, of Ceylon, 974 tons, against 1,088 tons; of all descriptions, 1,751 tons, against 1,853 tons. The quantity exported was, of Ceylon, 2.339 tons, against 1,633 tons; of all descriptions, 4,103 tons, against 3 306 tons. The stock on Feb. 5, was, of Ceylon, 13,199 tons, against 10,129 tons; of all descriptions, 21,316 tons, against 17,652 tons.

SUGAR.

Following our last report, a better inquiry was experienced, and the trade being short of stock, a more general demand was looked for; this has not, however, been the case, and the market is now extremely dull at prices rather in favour of the buyer, especially for grainy sorts, of which the supply has much increased. The transactions comprise 2,000 bags Penang, strong brown 34s. to 34s. 6d., soft greyish yellow 36s. to 36s. 6d.; and 74,000 bags Manila Muscovado 25s. to 26s. 6d., clayed 28s. 6d. to 30s. per cwt.

The quantity of Sugar landed in the five weeks ended Feb. 5. 1870, was, of Penang, 67 tons, against 674 tons in the corresponding period of 1869; of Manila, Java, and China, 3,469 tons, against 3 838 tons; the quantity entered for home consumption was of Penang, 407 tons, against 138 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 3 474 tons, against 987 tons. The quantity exported was, of Penang. 19 tons, against 9 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 175 tons, against 10 tons. The stock on Feb. 5 was, of Penang, 1,971 tons, against 856 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 35,610 tons, against 33,801 tons.

CINNAMON.—Owing to the approach of the periodical sales, which are announced for the 28th inst., there is not much disposition to buy. Only 50 bales in auction were all disposed of, fourth sort at 2s. 1d. to 2s. 2d.; third; 1s. 2d. to 2s. 6d.; second, 1s. 5d. to 3s. 2d.; first, 3s. 4d., superior 3s. 6d. per lb. Of Chips, 721 bags sold, bark 2¾d. to 3¼d., ordinary mixed chips and pieces 3½d., good pale thin 6¼d. to 6¼d. per lb.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—There has been a moderate business in Ceylon during the interval at unchanged rates, the quotation being still £42 to £42 10s. The quantity of Ceylon afloat for Great Britain on Feb. 5 was 38 801 cwt., against 53,957 cwt. at the corresponding date last year, and 33 320 cwt. in 1868.

CUTCH.—The dulness in the market for this import continues; the only business during the interval has been some small private sales at 26s. 6d. per cwt., 164 boxes having been offered at public sale, and bought in at 27s.

CAMPHOR.—About 100 cases China have been sold at 82s. 6d. to 85s., showing no alteration from our last quoted rates. In Japan there has been no business on the spot, but transactions afloat are reported at 87s. 6d.

COIR GOODS.—The last sales were moderate and went off with better competition at firmer prices. 131 tons Ceylon Yarn in dholls nearly all sold, very common to common £22 to £26, good common to medium £27 to £29 5s., good medium to good £30 5s. to £35 5s, 14 bales sold, good £35 5s., fine £42 10s. 20 tons Ceylon Fibre sold. good £27 5s., medium £20 10s., common £15, chiefly damaged at £8 15s to £9, fourth class £4 to £5 10s., 350 bundles brush and bristle sold at £25 to £26 5s., 12 bales Singapore sold at £28 5s.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Of 18 cases Cassia, 6 cases sold at 5s. 1d. to 5s. 2d.; the remainder bought in at 5s. 3d. to 5s. 6d. Of 8 cases fine pale Nutmeg, 2 cases sold at 9d.; 10 cases Star Aniseed chiefly bought in at 9s., and 2 cases common Cinnamon at 1s. 2d. Of 57 cases Citronella, 31 cases sold at 2¾d. to 2¼d.

GAMBIER.—The improved demand noted in our last has been maintained, and prices have again stiffened. On the spot 1,000 bales common block have sold at 17s. 3d. to 17s. 6d., and 250 bales 800 baskets 3,500 bags Cubes at 18s. 6d. to 20s. 6d. per cwt. For arrival 500 tons are reported without guarantee of quality at 17s. 1½d. to 17s. 6d. ex ship, and 17s. 6d. landed.

GUMS.—Benjamin: Of 19 cases good Sumatra seconds rather streaky 11 cases sold at £9 10s. to £9 15s.; of 150 cases brown thirds 100 cases fair, stained with sea water, sold on account of underwriters at £4 5s. to £4 10s. Copal: 23 cases soft Manila sold at 35s. 6d. Damar: 17 cases and barrels 27 Ceylon withdrawn.

HEMP.—The absence of any important business in Manila again forms the feature of the market; small sales of fair roping, amounting in all to about 500 bales, have been effected privately, while at auction 100 bales fair roping were bought in at £59, and of 344 bales damaged,

Digitized by Google

200 bales sold—first class, fair to good quality, at £57 10s. to £59 5s.; ordinary, £50 5s.; second class, £49 to £57 10s.; third, £45 5s. to £55.

HIDES.—Ox and Cow: 1,537 Penang sold, light 6⅜ lb. at 9d., heavy 9⅛ lb. at 8¼d., extra 15¼ lb. 8d., thirds 5¼d. to 6¼d. Buffalo: 2,773 Singapore and Penang were nearly all bought in, best heavy 31⅛ to 40⅛ lb. at 5¼d. to 5¾d., seconds 24¾ to 33½ lb. at 4⅝d. to 5d., only 430 being sold, first heavy 35¾ lb. at 5¾d., light 13¾ lb. at 6½d.

INDIA-RUBBER.—There has been no business since we last reported; 70 baskets Borneo were offered at public sale, and bought in at 1s. 3d. per lb.

JAPAN WAX.—At auction, 7 cases fine quality in cakes were bought in at 78s., and 443 cases saucers at 70s. to 80s.; 13 bales ordinary from Shanghai sold at 57s.

MUSK.—Of 25 caddies Tonquin 18 caddies sold, good first pile 33s. to 33s. 6d., bally and skinny with some fair shaped pods 20s. to 21s. Of 8 tins Grain 4 tins sold at 46s., good 50s. 6d.

PLUMBAGO.—Of 658 barrels Ceylon offered, 385 barrels sold—good bright lump at 24s.; good fair flake, 22s.; fine small, chiefly chips, 18s.; chips, fine, 16s. 6d.; good, 15s. 9d.; fair small, 12s. 9d.; ordinary, 8s. 6d.; dust, fine, 15s. 6d.; fair, 8s. 9d.; good middling, 8s. 3d. to 8s. 6d.; ordinary and low middling, 6s. to 7s.

PEPPER.—Black: The demand has been large, and holders have been enabled to make a decided advance. Singapore especially is scarce, and has realised 5d.; Penang, though more plentiful, has realised 4¼d. for good West Coast, and 4⅜d. for Acheen; privately, some 8,000 bags have been sold; and in auction, 7,787 bags, mostly salvage Penang, ex Dharwar, which brought 3⅜d. to 4⅜d. White has continued firm at 6¼d., at which some 1,500 bags have been disposed of. 200 bags Penang, and 144 bags Singapore offered at auction, and the former only sold at 6¼d. per lb.

RICE.—Extreme dulness has characterised the market since the date of our last report, there having been no sales except for actual requirements; prices exhibit a slight decline. On the spot only 10,000 bags soft grain have been sold, low Necransie at 6s. 6d. ex quay, and Rangoon at 8s. 6d., and 5,000 bags Bengal, cargo, 7s. to 9s. per cwt. For arrival, further sales of fine white Bengal, January shipments, have been made at 13s. 3d. to 13s. 6d. per cwt.

RATTANS.—The sales have been 19,000 bundles Penang at 2s. 9d. to 3s. 11d. per hundred.

RHUBARB.—The last auctions of China comprised 152 cases, mostly of parcels offered before, and nearly all common and mixed quality, for which demand was languid, and only about half was disposed of; a few lots bright fracture at 3s 10d. to 4s., mixed pale and wormy at 1s. 2d. to 1s. 8d., very dark and rough at 9d. to 11d.

SPICES.—Mace: 7 cases Penang realised 3s. 1d. to 3s. 2d. per lb. for middling to fair red, rather palish. Nutmegs: 20 cases sold, 119 to the lb., at 1s. 9d. per lb. Cloves have advanced ¼d. to ⅜d. per lb., about 2,500 packages Zanzibar selling at 3¼d. to 3⅜d.

SAGO.—The market shows 3d. to 6d. improvement, with private sales to a fair extent; 713 bags in auction, all sold at 17s. 6d. to 18s., and there are buyers thereat; 1,033 boxes retired. Flour: Dull, but well held.

SHELLS.—Mother-o'-Pearl: Both Singapore and Manila are scarce and high; 62 cases good fresh Macassar sold at £12 10s.; 74 cases Manila were withdrawn at £9 10s.; private sales at former value of £9. Tortoise: Quiet and plentiful; Hoof and Yellow-belly in diminished demand, and cheaper; 19 cases Singapore offered, only part sold; good fair at 14s. to 16s., inferior at 10s. to 13s. 6d.

STICKLAC.—The market is steady at previous rates.

STAR ANISEED.—The market is firmer, and 50 cases have realised £6.

TAPIOCA.—The market continues quiet, 150 bags Singapore sold, good white at 2⅞d., superior bright at 3⅜d. per lb.; 40 bags damaged Penang at 2¼d.; and 263 bags salvage from fire, ex Dharwar, at 4s. 6d. to 9s. 6d. per cwt.—Pearl Tapioca: 20 bags sold; large, 25s.; very large, 28s. Flour: 515 bags damaged Penang, ex Dharwar, bought in at 1¼d. to 2d.

TIN.—A few days after our last report Straits gradually rose until sales were effected at £116; there has since been a reaction, and business can now be done at £113 to £114 per ton.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.

—o—

TEA.

There is a fairly active inquiry at firm prices; the private business reported from first hands includes 1,000 half-chests Oolong, to arrive by the Jeanie; 1,000 half-chests Oolong, 926 do. green, per steamer; 300 do., in English order; 400 half-chests Oolong; 5,200 do., to arrive; 2,700 do., to arrive by Resolute, 2,000 do., ex Ada; 1,400 half-chests green, ex Argonaut; 3,800 do. Oolong, ex Apenrade; 800 do., to arrive by Queen of the Seas; 3,400 do. green, to arrive per N. B. Palmer; 1,800 do., Souchong, ex Samuel Russell. For these parcels the prices realised were about on a par with those given in our last report. The result of a sale by auction was unsatisfactory. About 1,200 half-chests green were sold, the prices obtained being 5 cents lower than offered on same goods in regular way a few days previously. Of the Oolongs 2,300 half chests were catalogued with 800 half-chests sold. We give the range of the figures obtained: Hyson, 61c. to $1.24c.; young Hyson, 59c. to $1.6c.; gunpowder, 84½c. to $1. 49c.; Imperial, 61c. to $1.25c.; Twankay, 50c. to 55c.; Oolong, 60c. to 65c.; and 100 half-chests Souchong at 69c. to 85½c.

The total receipts of Tea from China and Japan at the port of New York from Jan. 1 to Jan. 12, 1870, were as follows:—Greens, 655.126 lbs.; Japans, 33.548 lbs.; Souchongs, 145,322 lbs.; Oolongs, 358 849 lbs.; other sorts, nil; total, 1,192 845 lbs. The stock on Jan. 1, 1870, was 9,866,167 lbs.; which, added to the above total, gives a result of 11,059,012 lbs. Subtracting from this total the exports from Jan 1 to Jan 12, 15.502 lbs., and the withdrawals for home consumption during that period, 894,268 lbs., there remains a total of 10,149,242 lbs., representing the stock on the last-named date. The total receipts of Tea from China and Japan at the port of New York for the year 1869 were as follows:—Greens, 20,609,168 lbs.; Japans, 10,413,335 lbs.; Souchongs, 2,102,847 lbs.; Oolongs, 10,461,739 lbs.; other sorts, 419,333 lbs.; total, 44,006.422 lbs. The stock on Jan. 1, 1869, was 9,577,014 lbs., which, added to the above total, gives a result of 53,583,436 lbs. Subtracting from this total the exports 5,022,767 lbs., and the withdrawals for home consumption, 38,694.502 lbs., there remains a total of 9,866,167 lbs., representing the stock on the 1st January, 1870. The total receipts were in 1869, 44,006,422 lbs.; in 1868, 37,370,851 lbs.; in 1867, 35,889.995 lbs.; the exports were in 1869, 5,022,767 lbs.; in 1868, 1,913.924 lbs.; in 1867, 3.149,874 lbs.; the withdrawls for home consumption were in 1869, 38,694,502 lbs.: in 1868, 34,305,898 lbs.; in 1867, 33,949,711 lbs.; the stock on the 1st January was in 1869, 9,577,014 lbs.; in 1868, 8,425,985 lbs.; in 1867, 9,635,575 lbs.

COFFEE.—There is not quite so active a demand for East India as at the date of our last report, but there is a fair business doing at steady prices. The current quotations rule as before: Java (mats), 22c. to 22½c.; do. (Government bags), 21½c. to 22c.; Manila, 16c. to 18c.; Singapore, 19c. to 20c.; Native Ceylon, 17½c. to 19½c. gold (duty paid). The stock of Manila on the 1st Jan. was estimated at 2,627 bags, against 5,955 bags on Jan. 1, 1869; of Java (Government) at 1,315 bags, against 2,931 bags; of Java (mats) 26,857 mats, against 13,000 bags; of Ceylon 4,151 bags, against 8,500 bags; of Singapore nil. We note sales of 9,145 mats Java, and 1,344 bags Native Ceylon at the current rates.

CHINA MATTING.—The market is quiet at the following prices:—4-4 white, 32½c.; 5-4 white, 37½c.; 6-4 white, 42½c.; 4-4 red checked, 37½c.; 5-4 red checked, 45½c.; 6-4 red checked, 45c. to 50c.

CAMPHOR.—China is quoted 18c. gold (in bond).

GAMBIER.—The current quotation is 3½c. to 4c. gold (duty paid) stock, small.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is quoted $2.12½; Cassia, $1.25 gold (in bond).

HEMP.—The stock has been increased by the arrival of 6,870 bales, of which 570 bales had been previously disposed of; out of the remaining portion 1,200 bales have been taken at 14½c. gold, and in addition 1,000 bales have been sold to arrive on private terms. The stock of Manila on the 1st Jan. was estimated at 12,757 bales, against 17,951 bales at the corresponding date of 1869, and 21,863 bales in 1868.

INDIGO.—There is no change to report.

PRESERVED GINGER.—China is quoted $10 to $10.50 currency (duty paid).

RHUBARB.—The quotation for China is $1.50 to $2.50 currency (duty paid).

RICE.—Prices for East India are without change, but a slight improvement has taken place in the enquiry for Rangoon, resulting in he sale of 1,170 bags in bond, at $3 to $3.25 and 70 bags, duty paid, at $6 gold. The stock of East India on the 1st Jan. was 7,829 bags, against 10,316 bags at the corresponding date last year, and 2,652 bags in 1868.

SAPANWOOD.—Quotation, $30 currency; stock, 300 tons.

SUGAR.—The market continues very dull, without change in prices. The stock on the 1st Jan. was of Java 810 baskets, against 310 baskets at the corresponding date last year; of Manila 940,560 bags, against 17,404 bags; of China 1.911 bags, against 1,000 bags.

SILK.—There has been a good business doing both in Canton and China at firm prices. Import since the 1st. Jan., 288 packages. Total Raw Silk entered per Custom-house, from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31, 1869, 5,862 packages, valued at $2,873,749; same time, 1868, 5 316 packages, valued at $2,803,812. Quotations (duty free):—Tsatlee, Nos. 1 and 2, per lb., $10 to 10.25; Tsatlee, No. 3, $9.25 to 9 50; Tsatlee, Nos. 4 and 5, $8.75 to 9; Tsatlee, re-reeled, Nos. 1, 2, and 3, $9 to 10; Taysaam, Nos. 1 and 2, $8.50 to 9; Taysaam, Nos. 3, 4, and 5, $6.50 to 7.50; Taysaam, re-reeled, Nos. 1, 2, and 3, $8 50 to 9; Haineen, Nos. 1, 2, and 3, $9.25 to 10.25; Canton, re-reeled, extra fine, $8 to 8 50; Canton, re-reeled, good, No. 1, $7 to $7.25; Canton, re-reeled, fair to medium, No. 2, $6.75; Japan, Mybash, Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4, $10 to 10.50; Japan, Ida, Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4, $7.25 to 9; Japan, Sodai, Nos. 1, 2, and 3, $8 to 9; Japan Oshio, re-reeled, Nos. 1, 2, and 3, $10; Japan, Koshu, No. 1, 2, and 3, $8.50 to 9.

SPICES.—There has been considerable business at full prices, with an upward tendency on Pepper, Nutmegs, and Cloves. The sales are 2,500 packages Nutmegs, on the spot and to arrive, 3.500 bales Cloves, including an invoice afloat, on private terms; 3,000 bags Pepper, in lots, 25½c.; and 50 to 60 packages Mace, $1.25 to $1.27½ for cases, and $1.20 to $1.22½ for casks, all gold.

TIN.—The improvement in Straits has not been maintained, sales being effected with difficulty at 31c., gold, showing a decline of 1½c. on our last quotation. Banca is without change, being still quoted 32½c. to 32½c., but no business is reported. The stock on the 1st January was, of Straits, 5,500 slabs, against 7.400 slabs at the corresponding date last year, and 5,000 slabs on the 1st January, 1868; of Banca 1,500 slabs, against 2,000 slabs in 1869, and 1,200 slabs in 1868.

BOSTON MARKET REPORT.

COFFEE.—There is no change in the market, the transactions having again consisted exclusively of Java, sales being reported to the extent of 5,000 pockets at 21½c. to 22c. gold.

HEMP.—The market for Manila is quiet, and no business is reported, the nominal quotation is 14½c to 14½c. gold.

SPICES.—Small sales of nutmegs at $1 gold.

TEA.—Japans still continue scarce, and prices of lower grades are gradually hardening. We quote ordinary at 62c. to 72c.; common to fair 78c. to 85c.; good 92c. to $1; fine $1.10 to $1.25. Oolongs are in good request, and prices without change. We quote common to fair at 65c. to 75c.; good to superior, 80c to 95c.; fine, $1 to $1.25; finest, $1.35 to $1.45. Souchongs: Sales, 1,000 half-chests common in bond. We quote common to fair at 60c. to 70c.; good to superior, 75c. to 90c.; fine, $1 to $1.20. In Greens but little doing, prices of low grades receding, while fine grades bring full prices. We quote Young Hyson common to fair at 65c. to 80c.; good to superior, 95c. to $1.15; fine, $1.35 to $1.50.

Digitized by Google

SHIPPING.

ARRIVALS.—Jan. 27, at Fortress Monroe, from Batavia, Gustav Adolph; at Boston, from Batavia, Sharpsburg.

DEPARTURES.—Jan. 12, from San Francisco, for Yokohama, Galveston; 13, for Hong Kong, North Star.

LOADING.—At San Francisco, for Yokohama, Catalina; at New York, for Shanghai and Hong Kong, Gamecock, Samuel Russell; for Hong Kong, Endeavour.

Shipping Intelligence.

ARRIVALS.

Date.	Ship	Captain.	From	At
Feb. 4	Nordsflag	—	Batavia, for Amstdm.	Motherbank
— 4	Barham	—	Rangoon	Waterford
— 3	Strathblane	Poe	Batavia	Brouwershaven
— 7	Rosendael	Faucompre	Saigon	Gironde
— 8	Wimmera	Cooper	Shanghai	London
— 7	Glanduror	Warland	Java, for Rotterdam	Deal
— 3	Euphrosyne	Christio	Padang	Texel
— 4	Finella	Murray	Pasaroeang	Do.
— 5	Johannes	Kramer	Do	Do.
— 5	Celeste Clark	Foster	Batavia	Brouwershaven
— 5	Vier Gezusters	Otto	Bata', for Middelburg	Flushing
— 6	Peri	Irving	Batavia	Texel
— 3	Pepita	Lizarza	Manila	Cadiz
— 9	Medway	McFadzean	Singapore	Deal
— 8	Veronica	Greener	Batavia, for Hambrg.	Off Falmouth

DEPARTURES.

Date.	Ship.	Captain.	For	From
Feb. 5	Otterburn (str.)	Stevenson	Colbo, via Suez Canal	London
— 2	Casti	Collineau	Yokohama	Marseilles
— 2	Johanna Antonio	—	Singapore	Shields
— 5	Fiery Cross	Middleton	Hong Kong	London
— 7	Scawfell	Thomson	Do.	Do.
— 5	Robert Rickmers	Rothfoss	Shanghai	Plymouth*
— 8	Melbrck	Taggart	Do.	London
— 5	Golden Age	Thomas	Hong Kong	Cardiff
— 7	Tuisko	Thulen	Do.	Do.
— 3	St. James	Hatfield	Yokohama	Liverpool*
— 9	Vesta	Bakker	Batavia & Sourabaya	London
— 8	Endymion	Bannister	Yokohama	Cardiff

* After repairing.

(See Commercial Postscript and Correspondents' Letters.)

LOADING.

At LONDON.—For Yokohama (via Suez Canal): Tszrw (str.). For Yokohama: John Milton, Lota, Espiegle. For Yokohama and Hiogo: Harbottle, Pegasus. For Shanghai: Juanpore, Geraint, Clara, Cutty Sark, Hindostan, Glenavon. For Foochow: Wylo. For Hong Kong: William Fruing, Invincible, Sir Harry Parkes, Joseph Sprott, Silver Stream. For Hong Kong, Amoy, and Foochow: Devana. For Singapore: Kingdom of Belgium, Windermere. For Singapore, Hong Kong, Shanghai, and Yokohama (via Suez Canal): Erl King (str.). For Penang: Eleanor. For Colombo: Shooting Star, A.O.A.

At LIVERPOOL.—For Yokohama: Singapore, Floris. For Shanghai: W. G. Russell. For Hong Kong: Veronica. For Manila: Aurora, Hong Kong. For Singapore: Ellen Lamb, Knight Templar. For Batavia and Sourabaya: Konigin Augusta. For Penang, Singapore, Hong Kong and Shanghai (via Suez Canal): Diomed (str.).

At GLASGOW.—For Manila and Ilo Ilo: Aureliana. For Singapore: Bothwell Castle. For Batavia and Sourabaya: County of Lancaster.

SPOKEN.

PIETER ADOLPH, Amsterdam to Batavia, Nov. 15, 8 S., 32 W.
GERARD PIETER SERVATIUS, Amsd. to Batavia, Dec. 29, off Pernambuco.
FIDELIA, Hamburg to Nagasaki, Dec. 26, 20 S., 31 W.
NANTIB, Amoy to New York, Nov. 24, 19 S. 83 E., with loss of sails.
CARDIGANSHIRE, Canton to Monte Video, Jan. 23, off Algoa Bay.
GAUNTLET, Macao to London, Jan. 26, 34 N., 50 (?) W.
PRECEPTOR, Ilo Ilo to New York, Nov. 11, off Anjer.
PEERLESS (of Liverpool), Batavia to Falmouth, Dec. 2, 22 S., 26 E.
OXAMOVER, Bangkok to Falmouth, Dec. 7, 25 S., 56 E.
TAUNTON, Shanghai to London, Jan. 7, 23 S., 2 E.
JACOBA and CHRISTINA, Batavia to Amsterdam, Jan. 5, 24 S., 1 E.
PRECIOSA, Bangkok to Falmouth, Dec. 26, off Algoa Bay.
ELFIN (barq.), Ceylon to London, Dec. 29, 35 S., 23 E.
ORION, Philippine Islands to Liverpool, Nov. 23, 20 S., 85 E.
ANGELA, Manila to Plymouth, Dec. 18, 30 S., 35 E.
ANNA, Batavia to Rotterdam, Dec. 30, 34 S., 26 E.
PASSOVER, Ceylon to London, Dec. 28, 35 S., 23 E.
TAVISTOCK, Sarawak to London, Nov. 16, in the Straits of Sunda.
ELIZABETH, Java to Amsterdam, Dec. 17, 27 S., 48 E.
TOWNLEY, Penang to London, Dec. 27, 33 S., 28 E.
WILDERMAN, Padang to Boston, Dec. 25, 33 S., 35 E.
MARY LEE (of Maryport), Japan to New York, Dec. 29, 32 S., 13 E.
NIEUWLAND (Dutch barq.), Rotterdam to Singapore, Dec. 22, 6 N., 25 W.
AINIO, Batavia to Amsterdam, Dec. 14, 35 S., 23 E.
BRITIUS, Java to Amsterdam, Dec. 20, 35 S, 23 E.
WILLY RICKMERS, Shanghai to New York, Dec. 22, 35 S., 23 E.
NORVA, Batavia to Falmouth, Dec. 23, 35 S., 22 E.
ALLAHABAD, Samarang to Amsterdam, Jan. 1, 28 S., 9 E.
COUNTY OF LANARK, Sourabaya to Rotterdam, Jan. 3, 24 S., 4 E,
AQUILA, Colombo to London, Jan. 14, 13 S., 8 W.
ROYAL MINSTREL (barque), London to Japan, Dec. 14, 16 S., 33 W.
E. P. BOUVERIE, Foochow to London, Dec. 18, 35 S., 20 E.
ARCHER, Manila to Boston, Dec. 15, 34 S., 21 E.
SOLIDE, Bangkok to Falmouth, Dec. 5, 30 S, 36 E.
MARYEN HILLEGONDA, Batavia to Rotterdam, Dec. 12, 34 S., 26 E.
DHOLLERAH (ship), Shanghai to London, Dec. 13, 35 S., 22 E.
P.K.S.D. (Dutch bq.), Lombock to Amsterdam, Nov. 24, 25 S., 54 E.
HOLLANDSTROUW, Batavia to Amsterdam, Nov. 29, 29 S., 46 E.
SYDNEY, Batavia to Amsterdam, Dec. 14, 36 S., 24 E.
INGLEWOOD, from Batavia, Nov. 30, 34 days out, 29 S., 46 E.
MARIA CHARLOTTA, Japan to New York, Dec. 30, 32 S., 14 E.
CHALLENGE, Batavia to Rotterdam, Jan. 2, 27 S., 6 E.
QUEEN OF THE SEAS, from China, Dec. 24, off the Cape of Good Hope.
PRINCE ARTHUR, Batavia to Liverpool, Dec. 2, 35 S., 25 E.
ÆGIDIUS, Formosa to Gibraltar, Jan. 9, 16 S., 5 E.
FRENCH SHIP, 014, 1st d. p., bearing the Havre flag, Cochin China.
SHIP, 0257, 1st d. p., Foochow to London, 67 days out, Nov. 10, 27 S., 40 E., to Belle Isle, 96 days out, Dec. 31, 20 N., 32 W.
BARQUE, 093, 2nd d. p., Foochow to Boston, Nov. 25, 36 S., 16 E.
EMMA (brig) of Dunkirk, Singapore to Marseilles, Nov. 29.
APOME, Manila to Boston, Dec. 6, 29 S., 41 E.
DRAINE (for. ship), Bordeaux to Bangkok, Oct. 27, 31 S., 91 E.
DOUNE CASTLE, Liverpool to Shanghai, Feb. 2, 48 N., 8 W.
SOURABAYA PACKET, Bali to Amsterdam, Dec. 20, 35 S., 21 E.
RAINBOW, Penang to Boston, Dec. 12, 34 S., 28 E.
TWEE CORNELISSEN, Java to Rotterdam, 35 S., 24 E.
REME, Hong Kong to New York, Dec. 18, 36 S., 23 E.
NORMA, Batavia to Falmouth, Dec. 24, 35 S, 22 E.
CATHARINA, Hamburg to Hong Kong, 4 S., 30 W.
WESTWARD HO! Cardiff to Singapore, Nov. 29, 17 S., 30 W.
BENGALEE, Bordeaux to Singapore, Dec. 26, 7 N., 26 W.
FREDERICK TUDOR, Cardiff to Hong Kong, Feb. 1, 51 N., 9 W.
No. 1,225 4th d.p. (ship), Batavia to Rotterdam, Jan. 27, 50 N., 10 W.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS.

Freights to the Eastern ports still continue dull and rates do not improve; in coal freights for the Northern outports there is but little doing.

Current rates of freight for vessels on the berth:—To Yokohama: 32s. 6d. weight, 35s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 120s. weight, 110s. meast. To Shanghai: 40s. weight, 30s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 90s. weight, 80s. meast. To Hong Kong: 35s. weight, 30s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 80s. weight, 70s. meast. To Batavia: 25s. weight, 30s. meast. To Penang: per steamer, via Suez Canal, 80s. weight, 70s. meast. To Singapore: 30s. weight, 25s. to 30s. meast.; per steamer via Suez Canal, 70s. weight, 60s. meast. To Ceylon: 20s. to 25s. weight, 20s. meast; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 60s. meast. At New York to China; $12 to $15 per ton of 40 cubic feet.

The current quotations for coal, &c., are as follows:—From Wear or Tyne per keel.—For Yokohama: £38. For Shanghai: £41. For Hong Kong: £30. For Singapore: £26. For Galle: £27. From Newport, Cardiff, or Swansea per ton.—For Yokohama: £1 15s. For Shanghai: £2 2s. For Hong Kong: £1 12s. 6d. For Saigon: £1 5s. For Galle: £1 7s.

CASUALTIES.

The Ravensworth (barq.), Spence, from Bangkok to Falmouth, with rice and sugar, sprang a leak Nov. 18, and was abandoned in a sinking state, 21; mate and one seaman drowned; the remainder of the crew were picked up, 24, and landed at St. Helena by the Mikado.

The Dos Hermanos, Monasterio, from Macao to Havana, put into St. Helena Jan. 13, with loss of mizen mast, boats, sails, &c., which had been carried away during a hurricane, Nov. 19 and 20, 19 S., 84 E.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Port Said, Feb. 4, Shun-Tung (str.), Wells, from the Clyde, for China, left for Suez; 8, Chu Kiang (str.), Warden, from London, for Penang, Singapore, &c. (drawing 16 feet) left for Suez; Suez, Feb. 3, Afrique (str.), Rolland, from the Clyde, left for Colombo, &c., having passed through the Canal.

At ASCENSION.—Dec. 26, Vinergee, (?), from Macao, for Liverpool.

Off ASCENSION.—Jan. 6, George Shotton, from Foochow, for London: 12, Rome, from Hong Kong, for New York; 4th d.p., 1468 (Eng. bq.), from Shanghai, for London.

At ST. HELENA.—Dec. 29, Empress, Cooper, from Foochow, and sailed, 30, for London; 30, Cedric, Stapleton, from Yokohama, and sailed, 31, for New York; Jan. 1, Enrique, Orcult, from Canton, and sailed, 3, for New York; 2, Prinses Amalia, Van Bentveld, from Batavia, and sailed, 3, for Rotterdam; 5, Insulinde, Jollie, from Batavia, and sailed for Amsterdam; 7, Rollo, Taylor, from Shanghai, and sailed for London; Noach II., Hoefman, from Batavia, and sailed, 8, for Rotterdam; Lizzie Iredale, Wilding, from Shanghai, and sailed for London; 9, Christian Rankin, Higgins, from Bangkok, and sailed, 10, for Marseilles; Mina, Van Bruggen, from Batavia, and sailed, 10, for Rotterdam; Mikado, Ilberry, from Shanghai, and sailed for New York; 10, Schelde, Hoffman, from Batavia, and sailed for Middelburg; 11, Helen Finlayson, Seaton, from Ceylon, and left for London; 12, Taffarette, Racher, from Hong Kong, and sailed for Havre.

Off ST. HELENA.—Jan. 4, Kvik, Lorange, from Amoy, and sailed for London; 6, Waalstroom, from Padang, and sailed for New York; 10, Imperatrice, Forbes, from Shanghai; 11, Adrian, from Shanghai, and sailed for London; Inglewood, from Batavia, and sailed for New York.

At TABLE BAY.—Dec. 19, Menam, Wilson, from Sunderland, for Galle; Jan. 1, Oriana, Lund, from Manila; 3, Wildeman, Driest, from Padang; Dec. 18, Achilles (steamer), Russell, left for Singapore, China, &c.

At SIMON'S BAY.—Dec. 26, Vampyr, Noelcke, from Nagasaki to London, with damage to rudder.

At ALGOA BAY.—Dec. 23, Lizzie Otten, from Hong Kong.

SUEZ.—The Chukiang (str.), Warden, from London to Penang, Singapore, &c., has arrived at Suez through the Canal.

Digitized by Google

COLOMBO GAS AND WATER COMPANY

(LIMITED).

Incorporated under the Companies Acts of 1862 and 1867, with Limited Liability.

CAPITAL, £75,000, IN 7,500 SHARES OF £10 EACH.

OF WHICH £10,000 HAS BEEN ALREADY SUBSCRIBED IN CEYLON, WITH POWER TO INCREASE THE CAPITAL TO £200,000.

Deposit on application £1 per share, and £2 on allotment, the subsequent calls not to exceed £2 per share, and at intervals of not less than three months. Unless the necessary capital is subscribed, no allotment will be made, and the deposits will be returned in full.

DIRECTORS.

Sir SAMUEL CANNING, C.E., F.R.G.S.
ARTHUR PRATT BARLOW, Esq., Director of the Great Western Hotel Company.
THOMAS GLEN, Esq., Director of the Hong Kong and China Gas Company.
Lieut.-Col. ALFRED PEARSON, Junior United Service Club.
Major W. S. STUART, R.E., Director of the Hong Kong and China Gas Company, and the Bombay Gas Company.

COMMITTEE IN COLOMBO.

ALFRED WISE, Esq. (Messrs. Geo. Stewart and Co.)
G. S. DUFF, Esq. (Oriental Bank, Colombo).
JOHN THOMAS WHITE, Esq. (Messrs. J. M. Robertson and Co.)
ROBERT DAWSON, Esq. (Messrs R. Dawson and Co.)

Solicitors—Messrs. COPE, ROSE, and PEARSON, 26, Great George-street, Westminster.

Bankers—THE ORIENTAL BANK CORPORATION, London and Colombo. | Engineer—EDWARD WOODS, Esq., C.E., 3, Storey's-gate, Westminster.

First Auditors—ALFRED HERSEE, Esq. Secretary of the Oriental Gas Company; WILLIAM MARSHALL, Esq., Secretary of the Bombay Gas Company.

Secretary—C. E. WALDUCK, Esq.

Registered Office—11, OLD JEWRY-CHAMBERS, E.C.

The immediate object for which the Company is established is to supply the town of Colombo, in Ceylon, with gas. Power is also taken in the Articles of Association for water supply and drainage, and hereafter to extend the Company's operations to other towns and places in Ceylon; but these works are not to be undertaken without the sanction of the shareholders in general meeting.

The population of the town of Colombo is now about 55 000 persons, and is rapidly increasing, while the commerce and civilisation of which it is the centre are largely extending.

A contract has been entered into with the Municipal Council for lighting the town with gas, of which the following are the principal provisions, viz :—

1. The grant to the company of the exclusive right of supplying gas within the town of Colombo for three successive periods, amounting together to a period of twenty-one years from the date of the contract.

2. The Company to enjoy the privilege of importing the materials for the works duty free

3 An immediate order of 600 public lamps, to be supplied with gas, and paid for by the Council at the rate of 13s. 3d. per 1 000 cubic feet, in addition to 9 per cent. per annum on the outlay involved in the erection of the lamps.

4. Power to the Company to supply gas to the general public at prices varying from 17s. 3d. per 1,000 feet to small consumers to 15s. 3d per 1,000 feet to large consumers.

The Municipal Council have assisted the Company to secure a very desirable site for the works, containing nearly three acres of land, at a moderate cost, in the centre of the town, on low ground and with easy water communication for the delivery of coals.

A contract has been entered into with the eminent firm of Messrs. Laidlaw and Son, of Glasgow, to supply all the materials for the construction of the Gas Works at Colombo, at prices which have been fixed by Mr. Woods, C.E., the company's engineer, and to complete and open the works within eighteen months from the date of signing the contract.

The Company will thus be in a position to earn dividends from the sale of gas secured to them as soon as the works can be opened, and the profits will be increased by the sale of coke, tar, ammoniacal liquor, and other products, for which there is likely to be a large demand.

It has been ascertained, by careful estimates, that £60 000 will be quite sufficient to establish the Gas Works, and leave a working capital of £9,000 or £10,000.

Assuming that the amount of gas supplied to private consumers equals only that supplied to the public lamps, the Directors have satisfied themselves that the profit earned by the Company will be sufficient to provide a dividend of upwards of 12 per cent. on the outlay.

With a view to test the feeling of the colony, and in accordance with the wishes of the Municipal Council, one-third of the capital has been offered for subscription in Ceylon. At the date of the last advices shares to the amount of £10 000 had been already taken, with an assurance of further subscription.

No outlay for concession nor promotion money will be made, and the preliminary expenses are, in the directors' opinion, of reasonable amount. The directors confidently hope that their experience in similar undertakings may be regarded as a guarantee that the works will be economically and efficiently constructed, and that the management of the company will be conducted in such a manner as to satisfy all parties.

A copy of the Memorandum and Articles of Association, and of the several contracts after mentioned, can be seen at the Offices of the Company's Solicitors, from whom, as also from the Engineer or Secretary of the Company, further information may be obtained.

The following is a list of all the contracts entered into by the Company, as the promoters, directors, or trustees thereof, before the issue of this prospectus:—

Date.	Parties
21st January, 1869	The Municipal Council of Colombo of the one part, and the Company of the other part.
24th April, 1869	David Laidlaw and Robert Laidlaw of the one part, and the Company of the other part.
28th April, 1869	The Company of the one part, and Edward Woods of the other part.

Prospectuses and forms of application for shares may be obtained at the Offices of the Company, 11, Old Jewry-chambers, and through any respectable broker.

THE BEST ROOFING MATERIAL.

BRABY & CO. ALSO MANUFACTURE SHEET AND PERFORATED ZINC, ROOFING FELT, GALVANIZED BUCKETS AND ALL OTHER ZINC AND GALVANIZED IRON GOODS, ILLUSTRATED LISTS OF WHICH WILL BE SENT FREE ON APPLICATION.

F. BRABY & Co.

(LIMITED),

BRABY'S GALVANIZED IRON HOUSES.

FITZROY WORKS, EUSTON ROAD, LONDON · AND AT IDA WHARF, DEPTFORD, S.E.

TRADE MARK ON CAPSULES & CASES

PARTICIPATION CHARENTAISE

LA GRANDE MARQUE COGNAC

LONDON OFFICES (for the trade only)—22 and 23, Great Tower-street.

Mr. V. JOUANNET, Managing Director, Cognac. | Mr. E. VIGNIER, Manager for the U.K., London.

The largest holders of Vintage 1865, and old Brandies of the first growths; which can be obtained from all Wine and Spirit Merchants, or can be procured by them, as large consignments have been lately shipped to all the principal ports of China, Japan, Java, Singapore, and Ceylon.

Blue Label, 6 years; Yellow Label, 11 years; Red Label, 14 years; White Label, from 18 to 40 years.

Samples forwarded free, by Overland Route, to Merchants giving satisfactory references in London.

C. KRAMER begs to inform the public that he has established himself at this place as NURSERYMAN and SEEDSMAN, and is fully prepared to execute any orders for Japanese plants, bulbs, or seeds for any part of the world.

An experience of four years in this business in foreign parts two of which has been gained in this country, may ensure the confidence of customers.

Orders must be accompanied by remittances or references, and letters must be addressed to

C. KRAMER,
No. 63, BLUFF, YOKOHAMA.

Liebig Company's Extract of Meat.

AMSTERDAM EXHIBITION, 1869, FIRST PRIZE, being above the Gold Medal. Supplied to the British, French, Prussian Russian, Italian, Dutch and other Governments. One pint of fine flavoured Beef-tea at 2½d. Most convenient and economic "stock."

CAUTION. Only sort warranted genuine by the Inventor, Baron Liebig, whose signature is on every genuine Jar.

Ask for LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT, and NOT for Liebig's Extract of Meat.

CHINA SUBMARINE TELEGRAPH COMPANY (Limited).

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that the TRANSFER BOOKS of this Company will be CLOSED from MONDAY, the 14th, until THURSDAY, the 17th Feb. instant, both days inclusive, for the Issue of the Further Capital of £300,000, authorised by the General Meeting of the Company, held 7th January 1870, for the construction of the Hong Kong and Shanghae section of the Line.

Dated 11th February, 1870.

By order. THOMAS PULLER, Secretary.

95, Palmerston-buildings, Bishopsgate-street.

COWASJEE DINSHAW

Close to the Landing Place, Depot of

EUROPEAN CHINA AND INDIAN WORK.

WINE, BEER, CHAMPAGNE, and SPIRITS of the best quality. Bombay-made Soda Water and Lemonade Perfumery, Confectionery, Oilman's Stores, and Stationery of every description. Sola Topees and Canvas Shoes, &c., &c., &c.

STEAMER POINT, ADEN.

Drawing and Reading-room free to Passengers.

THE London and China Express ON SALE.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS. — In variable temperature, cold, wet weather, and damp, foggy atmospheres, what is to be done to keep the human body healthy, to protect the weak, to renovate the diseased? The reply is—Supplant the suppressed action of the skin through an alterative like these Pills, by a free action on the bowels, liver, and kidneys This will preserve the delicate internal structures from congestion, irritation and inflammation, and carry off those noxious matters, ordinarily transmitted through the integument. A course so natural must commend itself, and must elicit the unqualified approbation of all who think and understand how nature invariably aids a defective organ by accomplishing its unperformed functions by means of increased activity elsewhere.

Digitized by Google

UNION STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY, SHANGHAI.

ESTABLISHED 1867.

CAPITAL—Tls. 204,000.
RESERVE FUND—Tls. 31,000.

DIRECTORS.

John Ashton, Esq. (Messrs Ashton and Co.).
R. Francis, Esq. (Messrs. R. Francis and Co.).
Francis A. Groom, Esq (Messrs. Glover, Dow, and Co.).
W. Jackson, Esq. (Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London, and China)
T. Probst, Esq. (Messrs. W. Pustau and Co.).
Hip Mow Kong.
Amook.

GENERAL AGENTS—Messrs. Glover, Dow, and Co.
MANAGER—L. H. Stoddard, Esq.
AGENTS IN HANKOW—Messrs. Drysdale, Ringer, and Co.
AGENTS IN KIUKIANG—Messrs. R. Francis and Co.
AGENT IN CHINKIANG—W. Bean, Esq.
COUNSEL TO THE COMPANY—R. W. M. Bird, Esq., Barrister-at-law.

HALF-YEARLY REPORT for presentation to the SHAREHOLDERS of the COMPANY, at a meeting held at the Offices of Messrs. GLOVER, DOW, and Co., Shanghai, on THURSDAY, 23rd December, 1869.

The Directors have much pleasure in laying before the shareholders a satisfactory report of the working of the Company for the half-year ended 30th Sept., 1869.

Notwithstanding the depression in the river trade, caused by the heavy floods, the accounts show a profit of Tls. 38,692.12, as compared with Tls. 37,563.55 realised during the half-year ended the 30th Sept., 1868.

The Directors beg to recommend that an interim dividend of 6 per cent. on the paid up capital be declared, and that a return of 5 per cent on freight contributions be made, both payable on 15th Jan. next.

The steamer Glengyle has proved in every way a satisfactory purchase, her consumption of coal being far less than was at first expected.

The first instalment of her purchase money, Tls. 25,000, has been paid

The steamers Tunsin, Rona, and Glengyle have been working well, and are in a thoroughly efficient state, and are fully insured against all risks.

The Directors have not lost sight of the desirability of selling the Rona, but up to the present time have found it impossible to obtain an offer for her which they could accept; meantime she is paying her expenses, and is of considerable assistance to the other steamers in the way of through freight.

Mr. R. B. Baker having left for England, and Mr. James Hogg having resigned his position on the board, the Directors have appointed Mr. W. Jackson, of the Chartered Mercantile Bank, and Mr R. Francis, of Messrs. R. Francis and Co as Directors ad interim, and would suggest that these appointments be confirmed by the shareholders.

Shanghai, 14th Dec., 1869.

COMPTOIR D'ESCOMPTE DE PARIS.

Incorporated by National Decrees of 7th and 8th March, 1848, and by Imperial Decree of 20th July 1854, and 31st December, 1866.

Recognised by the International Convention of 30th April, 1862.

CAPITAL, fully paid up, £3,200.000.

Reserved Fund ... ... f 20,000,000 ... £800,000

HEAD OFFICE.—14, Rue Bergere, Paris.

AGENCIES AT—Lyons, Marseilles, and Nantes (France), Alexandria (Egypt), Calcutta, Bombay, Hong Kong, Shanghai, Saigon (Cochin China), Bourbon (Reunion), and Yokohama (Japan).

LONDON BANKERS.—The Union Bank of London.

LONDON AGENCY.—13. Leadenhall-stre t, E.C.
MANAGER.—G. Pietsch.
SUB-MANAGER.—Theod. Dromel.

The London Agency grants Drafts and Letters of Credit, and purchases or collects Bills payable at the above-named places.

The Agency will conduct Banking business of every description with the Continent India, China, &c., upon erms to be ascertained at the Office.

UNION INSURANCE SOCIETY OF CANTON.

DIRECTORS IN HONG KONG.
W. NISSEN, Esq.,
J. P. DUNCANSON, Esq.,
P. RYRIE, Esq.,
W. KESWICK, Esq.,
A. A. D SASSOON, Esq.,
E. A HITCHCOCK, Esq.,
W. LEMANN, Esq.,
W. H. FOSTER, Jun., Esq.

AGENTS FOR LONDON.
Messrs. DENT, PALMER, and Co.

Marine Risks are accepted by the above Society on goods by first class vessels from the United Kingdom to India, China, Japan, Melbourne, and Sydney, at the current rates of premium.

Claims for Losses and Averages are payable in London, or at the Port of destination, as may be desired.

OFFICES:—
Nos. 9 AND 11, KING'S ARMS YARD, MOORGATE STREET, E.C.

HONG KONG AND SHANGHAI BANKING CORPORATION.

Capital, 5,000,000 dols Paid up, 3,000 00 dols.

COURT OF DIRECTORS AND HEAD OFFICE IN HONG KONG.

LONDON MANAGER—W. H. Vacher, 32, Nicholas-lane
BANKERS.—London and County Bank.

BRANCHES AND AGENCIES:

Hong Kong	Hankow	Singapore
Shanghai	Japan (Yokohama)	Bombay
Foochow	Manila	Calcutta
Ningpo

The Bank grants DRAFTS upon and negotiates or collects BILLS at any of its Agencies or Branches; also receives DEPOSITS for fixed periods, at rates varying with the period of deposit.

CAUTION.

THE GROSS FRAUDS which continue to be practised by obscure manufacturers, more particularly in Germany, by imitating the labels attached to JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s PERFUMERY, render it imperative upon the Proprietors to Caution the public against such nefarious proceedings, and to request their friends and patrons to purchase only of res ectable dealers, who import direct from JOHN GOSNELL and Co., and invite special attention to the address. ANGEL-PASSAGE, 93, UPPER THAMES-STREET, late of 12, Three King-court, Lombard-street, London, E.C.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s SELECT PERFUMES —Ess Bouquet Royal Yacht Club Bouquet, Jockey Club Perfume, Essence of Wood Violet, Victoria Bouquet, Garibaldi Bouquet, Frangipanni, Military Bouquet, The Bride's Bouquet, Tea Rose, Russian Leather Perfume.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Toilet Vinegar. Inexhaustible Salts, Aromatic Vinegar, Aromatic Eau de Cologne.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Prince of Wales Perfume
JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Princess Alexandra Perfume.
JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s La Noblesse Perfume.
JOHN GOSNELL and Co's La Noblesse Pomade.
JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s La Noblesse Soap.
JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Real Old Brown Windsor Soap.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Golden Oil—Moelline—Macassar Oil, Bear's Grease, &c., for the Hair.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Extra Highly Scented Toilet and Nursery Powder.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Stereodesmic or Dentist Tooth Brushes and Trichosaron Hair Brushes, warranted to purchasers.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Instantaneous Hair Dye.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Cherry Tooth Paste is greatly superior to any tooth powder, gives the teeth a pearl-like whiteness, protects the enamel from decay, and imparts a pleasing fragrance to the breath.

Orders executed on receipt of 10 per cent. of the amount in cash, the balance being drawn for through a Banker.

ROBERT COCKS and Co.'s MUSICAL BOX. A Caprice for the Pianoforte. Composed by I. LIEBICH, and performed by him at the Queen's Concert Rooms, Hanover-square, and twice encored. 3s

MEDICINE JACK (Comic Song, Illustrated.) Music and words by A. S. GATTY. "Replete with genuine fun and humour."—Sun. Free by post, 19 stamps

THE SMILES OF THOSE WE LOVE. Song. By W. F. Taylor. "One of the most elegant songs of the day." "The air is simplicity itself, and will be caught up at once, and the pretty and harmless character of the words renders it peculiarly appropriate as a song for the home circle."—Vide Orchestra. 3s.

THE MOST REFINED and AMUSING COMIC SONGS of the DAY. Composed by Mr. A. S. GATTY.

I Really am so Sleepy	I'll Not Try it Again.
Put it Down to Me	Medicine Jack.
Bobbie! Bobbie!	B. R. A. G.
Not so Bad for Me.	A Lady's Song.

These songs may be sung in any drawing-room. 3s. each.

"I REALLY AM SO SLEEPY." By Alfred Scott Gatty.

"Mr. Alfred Scott Gatty is getting quite a reputation for his comic songs, and deservedly so. They possess far more real humour than the popular songs of the music halls, and we need hardly say are far above them in every respect. Mr. Gatty's words are funny without being vulgar, and there is not one of his songs but what has a hearty and legitimate laugh in it. 'I Really am so Sleepy' is a very simple melody, set to clever racy words, and will be sure to be a favourite amongst those who enjoy an honest comic ballad."—Vide Midland Illustrated News, Jan. 8.

London, COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

PRICE'S

BENZODYNE AN INTERNAL STYPTIC of great value. In Cholera, Diarrhœa, and Dysentery this medicine far surpasses any other, having a peculiar mechanical power of putting a sudden stop to wasting diseases. Chronic Cough and blood-spitting are immediately relieved by it, as well as pain and debility of every kind. Prepared by Mr. PRICE, Analytical Chemist, 2, Lower Seymour-stree , and 30, Duke-street, Portman square, London; and sold by Chemists all over the world, in bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., 11s., and 22s., or in dispensing bottles at 5s., 10s., and 20s. each.

CANADIAN NEWS, every Thursday contains all the latest news from the New Dominion

Price 2d., post free, 3d.
Office: 8, Clement's-lane, Lombard-street, E.C.

OSLER'S CRYSTAL GLASS CHANDELIERS.

WALL LIGHTS and LUSTRES for Gas and Candles
CHANDELIERS in Bronze and Ormolu
MODERATOR LAMPS and LAMPS for INDIA,
TABLE GLASS of all kinds.
ORNAMENTAL GLASS, English and Foreign
Mess, Export, and Furnishing Orders promptly executed.
All articles marked in plain figure
OXFORD STREET, W.
MANUFACTORY AND SHOW ROOMS.—Broad Street, Birmingham.
Established 1807.

PRICE ONE SHILLING AND SIXPENCE.

OUR RELATIONS WITH THE COLONIES AND CROWN COLONIES,

AN ATTEMPT OF THE PASSAGE BETWEEN SCYLLA AND CHARYBDIS; WITH SOME REMARKS ON PILOTS.

LONDON:
EDWARD STANFORD, 6 and 7, Charing-cross, S.W.
MANN NEPHEWS, 39, Cornhill.
HENRY SOTHERON and Co., 10, Little Tower-street.

Colombo: MAITLAND AND CO.
Singapore: JOHN LITTLE AND CO.
Hong Kong: MORRIS AND CO.

RE-ENGAGEMENT WANTED, as BOOKKEEPER AND ENGLISH CORRESPONDENT, by a GENTLEMAN having six years' experience in China and Japan. Satisfactory testimonials as to integrity and ability.

Address, YANGTZE, 13, Buckingham-street, Strand.

NOTICE.

MORRIS'S DIRECTORY for CHINA, JAPAN, and the PHILIPPINES, &c., to be published on the 1st Jan., 1870, contains a Revised List of the Foreign Residents at all the open Ports of the China Sea, including Saigon, which has never yet been included in any similar work; together with the Time Tables of the different Steamship Companies, Rates of Postage, Local Ordinances, and such other matter as will be useful to all interested in the China trade. No trouble or expense has been spared to make this the most accurate publication of the kind ever offered to the public.

Price, complete in one volume, 14s.

Orders received by the Publisher of the "London and China Telegraph," 2, Cowper's-court, Cornhill, E.C.

"THE CHINA MAIL,"

No 2, WYNDHAM-STREET, HONG KONG.

NOTICE.—THE BUSINESS heretofore carried on under the style of "Shortrede and Co," was this day purchased by the undersigned, in whose name and by whom it will henceforth be conducted and to whom all outstanding accounts owing to the said business are to be paid.

Hong Kong, Aug. 15, 1867. CHAS. A. SAINT

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS.

THE DAILY CHINA MAIL.—Six pages; published every evening (except Sunday). Subscription, 24 dols. per annum. Circulates in Hong Kong and along the China and Japan coasts. Terms of advertising:—Ten lines and under, 1 dol.; each additional line, 10 cents; one-half of these charges for repetitions. In Chinese, 2 cents per character for any number of days during the current week.

THE OVERLAND CHINA MAIL.—Compiled from the Daily China Mail. Is published twice a month on the morning of the English mail's departure, and is a record of each fortnight's current history of events in China and Japan, contributed in original reports and collated from the journals published at the various ports in those countries. It contains, besides, a Shipping List for Shanghai Hong Kong, Canton, and Macao, and a complete Commercial Summary.

Subscription, 12 dols per annum, payable to any of the undermentioned agents Postage added. Terms of advertising:—Same as in Daily China Mail.

AGENTS.—London: F. Algar, 11, Clement's-lane, Lombard-street, E.C San Francisco: White and Bauer, 518, Clay-street, San Francisco. Swatow: Drown and Co. Amoy: Giles and Co. Foochow: Thompson and Co. Shanghai: H. Fogg and Co. Manila: Karuth, Heinzen, and Co. Australia: Gordon and Gotch, Melbourne and Sydney. Singapore: Locke, Hongghee, and Co. Batavia: H. Van Dorp.

THE SAIGON ADVERTISER & SHIPPING GAZETTE.

A SUMMARY of Commercial and Shipping Reports from SAIGON, and a Record of Progress in COCHIN CHINA.

Subscription, £5 per annum, exclusive of postage.

London Agency: THE LONDON AND CHINA TELEGRAPH Office, 2, Cowper's-court, Cornhill, London, E.C

Digitized by Google

PORT OF AMOY.

SHIPOWNERS, AGENTS, and COMMANDERS are informed that the Dock Company's establishments at the above port afford every facility, at moderate charges, for REPAIRING and SPARRING VESSELS, cleaning and painting iron ships and steamers.

Their large Granite Dock has 286 feet length on the blocks, and at average spring tides can receive vesse's of 16 to 17 feet draught. It has a caisson-gate and a powerful centrifugal steam pump, and an engineer's workshop fitted with lathes and tools, driven by steam; iron and brass foundries, boiler-makers' shop, a large smithy and carpenters and boat-builders' sheds, superintended by resident Europeans.

Their two smaller GRANITE DOCKS can receive, at spring tides, vessels drawing 12 feet.

Spars, timber, and other Dockyard material kept in stock.

Quarters for officers and a DRY GODOWN for stores of vessels under repair.

SINGAPORE Ddocks.

THE PATENT SLIP AND DOCK COMPANY execute SHIPS' REPAIRS of all descriptions in the most efficient manner, under the supervision of European Engineers and Shipwrights.

The DRY DOCK (opened in March, 1859) admits two Vessels at the same time, being over 400 feet in length, with a depth of water ranging to 15½ feet. A second DRY DOCK of larger dimensions will shortly be completed, and available for the heaviest Steamers.

Adjoining the above there is extensive WHARF WAREHOUSE, and other accommodation, including every convenience for coaling Steamers, discharging cargo, and storing goods, together with ample MACHINERY and appliances for repairing iron steamers, &c.

Apply at the offices of Messrs. PATERSON, SIMON and Co., Singapore; or 21, St. Swithin's-lane, Cannon-street, London, E C.

WM. CLOUGHTON, Managing Director.

New Harbour, Singapore, June, 1868.

FOOCHOW DOCK.

RIVER MIN.

THE above granite floored DOCK, of the following dimensions, viz., Length, 300 feet, breadth at bottom, 40, is capable of receiving vessels drawing 13 to 16 feet, as the state of the tides will allow. The Dock runs dry to the blocks, and is pumped out by steam.

The above premises comprise a large Machine Shop containing a

WHITWORTH'S 12-INCH SCREW CUTTING GAP LATHE, DRILLING AND SCREWING MACHINES, A LARGE SMITHY, &c., &c., &c.

Large Godowns are on the premises for STOWAGE OF CARGO, &c., &c. A large stock of Woods, Metal, &c., &c., always on hand.

The Dock steam tug Woosung is available at all times to tow vessels to or from sea.

JOHN C. SKEY, Superintendent.

OVERLAND ROUTE.—The PENINSULAR AND ORIENTAL STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY book Passengers and receive Cargo and Parcels by their steamers for—

	From Southampton.	From Marseilles.
GIBRALTAR ...	Every Saturday, at 2 P.M.	—
MALTA	,, ,,	—
ALEXANDRIA.	,, ,,	Every Sunday, at 7 A.M.
ADEN	,, ,,	,, ,,
*BOMBAY	,, ,,	,, ,,
GALLE	,, ,,	,, ,,
MADRAS	Saturday, Feb. 5, 2 P.M.	Sunday, Feb. 13, 7 A.M.
CALCUTTA ...	And every alternate Saturday thereafter.	And every alternate Sunday thereafter.
PENANG
SINGAPORE ...
CHINA
JAPAN
AUSTRALIA ...	Saturday, Feb. 19 2 P.M. And every fourth Saturday thereafter.	Sunday, Feb. 27, 7 A.M. And every fourth Sunday thereafter.

And all ports touched at by the British India Steam Navigation Company's steamers.

* The following reduced rates will be charged to Bombay:—

From Southampton... £72 first class; £45 second class.
From Marseilles ... 70 ,, 43 ,,

exclusive of transit through Egypt. A corresponding reduction will be made in the rates from Bombay to Europe.

For further particulars apply at the Company's Offices, 122, Leadenhall-street, London; or Oriental-place, Southampton

NEW ROUTE TO CHINA AND JAPAN, VIA LIVERPOOL.

THE WEST INDIA AND PACIFIC STEAM SHIP COMPANY (Limited) sign through bills of lading for goods to Yokohama Nagasaki, Hong Kong, and Shanghai, via San Francisco, by the Pacific Mail Steam Ship Company's new line of mail steamers from that port.

Passengers will find excellent accommodation, and the fares more reasonable than by any other route.

For terms, &c., apply to the Agents, J. M. CURRIE, Esq., 21, Quai d'Orleans, Havre, or 7, Rue Scribe, Paris; or at the Company's Offices, 117, Leadenhall-street, London, and The Temple, Dale-street, Liverpool.

ARTHUR B. FORWOOD, Managing Director.

OVERLAND ROUTE VIA MARSEILLES.—SERVICES MARITIMES DES MESSAGERIES IMPERIALES OF FRANCE.—FRENCH MAIL STEAM PACKETS LEAVE MARSEILLES AS FOLLOWS:—

22 January
19 February
19 March
16 April
14 May
} For { Alexandria, Aden, Mauritius, Seychelles, Reunion, Point de Galle (Ceylon), Pondicherry, Madras, Calcutta, Singapore, Batavia, Saigon, Hong Kong, Shanghai, and Japan.

9th, 19th, and 29th of every month for Alexandria.

For Passage, Freight, and information, apply to B. W. and H. HORNE, 4, Moorgate-street, London; G. H. FLETCHER and Co., Liverpool; at the offices of the Services Maritimes des Messageries Imperiales in Paris, Lyons, Bordeaux, and Marseilles; or to Smith and Co., Rotterdam

. Passengers eastward of Suez securing their berths in London are entitled to the conveyance of their luggage free to Marseilles

MAIL ROUTE FOR CALIFORNIA, JAPAN AND CHINA, VIA PANAMA.

THE PACIFIC MAIL STEAM SHIP COMPANY despatch their splendid side-wheel steamers from NEW YORK on the 5th and 21st, and from PANAMA on the 13th and 29th of every month for SAN FRANCISCO (calling at ACAPULCO and MANZANILLA en route), thence to YOKOHAMA, HIOGO, NAGASAKI, SHANGHAI, and HONG KONG, on the 1st of every month. Passengers from England may connect with this line at New York by any of the various lines of steamers from Liverpool, Glasgow, Southampton, or Havre.

Passengers by this line are less than ten days in the tropics.

SANDWICH ISLANDS and BRITISH COLUMBIA.—The steamers of the North Pacific Transportation Company leave San Francisco at regular intervals for those countries.

H. STARR and Co., Agents, 22, Moorgate-street, London.

UNION PACIFIC RAILWAY.—THROUGH LINE from NEW YORK to SAN FRANCISCO.

San Francisco, in 18 days from England.
Japan ..... in 38 ,, ,,
China ..... in 44 ,, ,,

Passengers for California and intermediate points on this road may now be booked through from England at the established rates of fare; and from San Francisco to Japan, China, &c., by the magnificent steamers of the Pacific Mail Company.

For Rates, Tickets, &c., apply to H. STARR and Co., Agents, 22, Moorgate-street, London.

ROYAL MAIL ROUTE, via PANAMA, for NORTH and SOUTH PACIFIC, Central America, Japan, and China.—The ROYAL MAIL STEAM PACKET COMPANY'S ATLANTIC STEAMERS now run through from Southampton to Colon (Aspinwall), by which arrangement passengers for the above localities will be conveyed to the Isthmus of Panama in the vessel in which they embark at Southampton.

Passengers and goods are booked

For the South Pacific, Central America, West Coast of Mexico, California, British Columbia ... ... } By steame from Southampton on 2nd and 17th of each month.
Japan and China... ... 17th of each month.

For further particulars apply to
J. M. LLOYD, Secretary.

Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, 55, Moorgate-street London. E C.

CHINA, AND JAPAN.

ROBERTSON and CO. will despatch the following first-class clipper VESSELS:—

Destination.	Ships.	Class.	Dock.	Last Shipping Day.
Shanghai.....	Hindostan ...	AA1.....	W.I.D.	With des.
Hong Kong, Amoy, and Foochowfoo	Devana	A1 13 yr.	W.I.D.	With des.
Yokohama & Hiogo.....	Pegasus	A1 13 yr.	W.I.D.	With des.

For Freight and Passage apply at 5, Newman's-court, Cornhill, London; or York Chambers, 55, King-street, Manchester.

CHINA and JAPAN.—The following splendid first-class SHIPS will be despatched as under:—

Port.	Ship.	Class.	Dock.	Last Shipping Day.
Shanghai ...	Geraint	A1 14 yr.	E.I.D.	Feb. 19
Hong Kong	Wm. Frning	A1 13 yr	W.I.D.	With des.
Do.	Ld. Macaulay	A1 13 yr.	E.I.D.	With des.
Yokohama, Kanagawa.	Lota	A1 13 yr.	E.I.D.	With des.

For Freight or Passage apply to KILLICK, MARTIN and Co., 10, George-yard, Lombard-street, E.C.

CHINA AND JAPAN.

THE following high-classed Clipper VESSELS will be despatched as under:—

Port.	Ship.	Class.	Dock.	Last Shipping Day.
Yokohama (Kanagawa)	Esplegle	A1 14 yr.	E.I.D.	With des.
Nagasaki & Chefoo ...	Zohrab (new)	A1 9 yr.	E.I.D.	With des.

For Freight or Passage apply to NORRIS and JOYNER, 60, Cornhill, E.C.

Steam via the Suez Canal.

Will be positively despatched o. 26th February, 1870. All Goods must be alongside two days previously, having the greater portion of her cargo engaged.

DIRECT for COLOMBO, with leave to proceed to Beypoor and Calicut, the magnificent new screw steamer SURBITON, ABI, 91 gross, 607 net register tonnage; horse power, 110 nominal, 450 effective; E. MARSHALL, Commander; West India Docks. This splendid vessel, built last year, under special survey, offers the best opportunity to shippers of fine goods.

For Freight or Passage apply to JOHN C. CAMPBELL, 22, Great St. Helen's, Bishopsgate-street, E.C.; or to LIVINGSTON, HOLDING and BRIGGS, 31, Great St. Helen's, Bishopsgate-street, E.C.

To Sail Feb. 17.

FOR SHANGHAI, the well-known clipper CLARA, A1 13 years, 938 tons register; THOMAS POWER, Commander; East India Docks. Has a full poop, with superior accommodation for passengers.

For Freight or Passage apply to SHAW, MAXTON, and Co., 2, Royal Exchange-buildings, London, E.C.

With Quick Despatch.

FOR SHANGHAI, the splendid new Aberdeen clipper GLENAVON, A a1, 830 tons register; JAMES HENDERSON, Commander; East India Docks. This ship has just completed her first voyage from Foo-Choo-Foo in 100 days.

For Freight apply to SHAW, MAXTON, and Co., 2, Royal Exchange-buildings, London, E.C.

Regular Line of Packet Ship—With Despatch.

FOR HONG KONG, the well known favorite clipper INVINCIBLE, A1 13 years, 657 tons register; CHARLES BEECHING, Commander; East India Docks. Has excellent accommodation for passengers.

For Freight or Passage, apply to SHAW, MAXTON, and Co., 2, Royal Exchange-buildings, London, E.C.

THE LONDON & CHINA TELEGRAPH.

THE TWELFTH Volume of this JOURNAL commenced on the 10th of January, 1870. The Subscription for three numbers per month is 30s. per annum, including Postage, and to the Export Supplement 12s. extra. Terms for advertising, 2s. 6d. per five lines, and 6d. for each additional line.

Subscriptions and Advertisements received abroad by the following Agents:—

Paris	G. W. YAPP, 4, Place Wagram Boulevard Perεire.
Brindisi	AGENTS FOR BRINDISI STEAMERS.
Hamburg	Mr. ONCKEN.
Holland (Rotterdam and Amsterdam)...	COLONIAL AGENCY, Delftsche-vaart, 6.323, Rotterdam.
New York	WM. H. FOGG & Co., 32, Burling Slip.
San Francisco	WHITE & BAUER, 413, Washington-street.
Alexandria	DAVID ROBERTSON & Co., The Square.
Aden	COWASJEE DINSHAW.
Point de Galle	J. GIBSON, THOMSON, & Co. FREDK. PITERS.
Colombo	J. MAITLAND & Co.
Singapore, Labuan, and Sarawak	JOHN LITTLE & Co., Singapore.
Penang	SANDILANDS, BUTTERY, & Co.
Saigon	RIBEIRO & Co.
Batavia	HUNTER, HOUGHTON & Co.
Samarang	DE GROOT, KOLFF, & Co.
Sourabaya
Anjer — Straits of Sunda	G. SCHUIT, Anjer Hotel.
Manila	MICHELL, BARNARD, & Co.
Hong Kong, Canton, Macao and Swatow	MORRIS & Co., Hong Kong.
Amoy	BROWN & Co.
Foochow	HEDGE & Co.
Shanghai	H. FOGG & Co.
Tien-Tsin	JAMES HENDERSON.
Nagasaki—Japan ...	PIGNATEL & Co.
Yokohama	E. C. KIRBY & Co.
Osaka and Hiogo ...	E. C. KIRBY & Co.

OFFICE 2, COWPER'S-COURT, CORNHILL, E.C

(Over the JERUSALEM.)

Printed for the Proprietors by WOODFALL and KINDER Milford-lane, Strand, W.C., and published by JAMES WEST, at the Office of the "LONDON AND CHINA TELEGRAPH," 2, Cowper's-court, Cornhill, in the parish of St. Michael's, in the City of London.—Monday, Feb. 14, 1870.

Digitized by Google

The London and China Telegraph.

JAPAN HERALD, AND JOURNAL OF THE EASTERN ARCHIPELAGO.

PUBLISHED ON THE ARRIVAL OF THE FORTNIGHTLY ENGLISH, AND MONTHLY FRENCH MAILS FROM CHINA JAPAN &c.

IN CONNECTION WITH THE "LONDON AND CHINA EXPRESS." A SUMMARY OF NEWS FOR THE OUTWARD MAILS.

VOL. XII.—No. 343.] LONDON, MONDAY, FEB. 21, 1870. [Price 9d., with Sup.. 1s. 8d.—Sub. 30s. per ann., postage included. Sup. 12s. extra.

Latest Advices.

PORTS.	OUTWARD. From London.	OUTWARD. Arrived out.	HOMEWARD. Received this day.
JAPAN — Yokohama	Nov. 5	Dec. 26	Jan. 2
Yedo
Osaka and Hiogo
Hakodadi
Nagasaki
CHINA — Peking
Tien-tsin	—	—	Dec. 26
Chefoo
New-chwang
Hankow	Oct. 28	Dec. 22	Dec. 28
Kiu-kiang
Chin-kiang
Shanghai	Nov. 5	Dec. 24	Jan. 4
Ningpo
Foochow	Nov. 5	Dec. 25	Jan. 4
Formosa
Amoy
Swatow
Hong Kong	Nov. 25	Jan. 6	Jan. 11
Canton
Macao
PHILIPPINES — Manila	Nov. 5	Dec. 23	Jan. 3
COCHIN-CHINA — Saigon
SIAM — Bangkok
BORNEO — Labuan
Sarawak
JAVA — Batavia	Dec. 3	Jan. 12	Jan. 12
Samarang	—	—	Jan. 9
Sourabaya	—	—	Jan. 7
MALACCA STRAITS — Singapore	Dec. 3	Jan. 7	Jan. 18
Penang	Dec. 3	Jan. 5	Jan. 20
CEYLON — Galle	Dec. 31	Jan. 25	Jan. 26
Colombo	Dec. 31	Jan. 26	Jan. 25

THE MAILS, &c

The next mail, due on March 7, will bring dates from Yokohama, Jan. 16; Shanghai, Jan. 19; Hong Kong, Jan. 25; Singapore, Feb. 1.

The Japan mails of Dec. 31, via San Francisco, were received on the 16th inst. Telegrams of the succeeding mail of Jan. 23, by this route, were received on the 17th inst.

Telegrams in advance of the French mail from Hong Kong, of Feb. 1, have been received.

The Brindisi service has been working well lately, and despatches by that route were delivered on Saturday, or two days in advance of the Marseilles route.

List of Passengers.

PASSENGERS INWARD.

By this mail, to Marseilles, per P. and O. steamer Tanjore, arrived Feb. 18.—From Shanghai: Mr. Ridge. From Hong Kong: Mr. W. Sterry, Mr. P. de Aranburn, Mr. von Berger. From Batavia: Mrs. Von Ketrich, child, and servant, Miss W. D. Bosch. From Penang: Sir W. and Lady Huckett, Mr. and Mrs. Watson and child. From Galle: Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell, child, and servant. Mr. Cochrane.

To Southampton, per P. and O. steamer Delhi, expected to arrive Feb. 25.—From Hong Kong: Mr Moonley, R.N., Mr. Ramsay, Mr. Stocks, Mr. R. Blackburn. From Singapore: Mr. Ansell, Capt. Brown. From Galle: Mr. Howard. Mr. Seymour.

By last Bombay mail, to Marseilles, per P. and O. steamer Syria, arrived Feb. 11.—From Hong Kong: Mr. Walters.

By last mail, to Southampton, per P. and O. steamer Poonah, arrived Feb. 11.—From Shanghai: Mr. Wood, Mr. Sikkes. From Hong Kong: Mr. J. Wards, Mr. A. Symes From Singapore: Captain Elmslie. From Galle: Mrs. Ashton and four children

By last (French) mail, to Marseilles, arrived Feb. 11.—From Yokohama: Messrs. Ayomin Orengo. Meilingue Wittenbach, Koozki, Kolsan, Montblanc, Madame Mercier. From Shanghai: Messrs. Peyrable, Huillion, Itre. From Hong Kong: Mr. Borchard, Mrs. Millsch From Saigon: Messrs. de Montabey. Sohier, Marc, Chandiere, Didot. From Batavia: Messrs. Hoogerwaard, Thurman, Spree, Sweeten, Sicano, Schuylinberg. Kroel, Paque, Holman, Dekereto, Horman, Gathare, Hutlen. From Galle: Messrs Armitage, Samson.

Per Earl King, Capt. Steele.—For Hong Kong, &c.: Mr. and Mrs. Greig, Mrs. Handley and three children, Mr. F. Hague, Mr. E. Atkin, Mr. W. J. Holmes, Mr. A. Bachem, and Mr. E. Byrne.

PASSENGERS OUTWARD.

Per French mail steamer Said, from Marseilles, Feb. 19 (booked from London).—To Saigon: Mr. and Mrs. Caswell.

Per P. and O. steamer Bangalore, from Southampton, Feb. 19.—To Hong Kong: Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Pirkis. To Singapore: The Bishop of Labuan, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. J. Kemp, Mrs. Chambers, Miss Woolley, Mr. and Mrs A. Velge and child. To Ceylon: Mr. Jeffery, Capt. Sharpe. Mr. F. Murray, Mr. W. H. Green.

Per P. and O. steamer Tanjore, from Marseilles, Feb. 27.—To Shanghai: Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Parker, Mr. L. J. Mullins, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. M. Bird. To Hong Kong: Mr. T. H. Ballance, Mr. H. de Sombreuil, Miss Findlay, Mr. A. W. G. Rusden. Mr. R. Macqueen. To Singapore: Mr. and Mrs. Brooke. To Penang: Mr. F. Straatman. To Batavia: Mr. F. A. T. Dorrepaal. To Ceylon: Mr. and Mrs. Northway, Mr. Stewart.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

From this port we have advices to the 2nd Dec., but a great portion of the news has been anticipated by the Pacific mail, which last week brought files of newspapers to Dec. 30. The outward mails of Oct. 28 and Nov. 5 were received on the 20th and 26th Dec. respectively. The following items of news are from the Japan Times:—

We have to announce a most important event, which will do more to revolutionise this country than even the change of government which has destroyed a system 600 years old, but an event that under that system would have been long delayed, and for which those who will profit by it have to thank the enlightened Government of the Mikado. A contract for the construction of a railway has been concluded by Mr. H. N. Lay, C.B., who has been for some months past negotiating it. He repre ents a few capitalists who have entrusted him with large sums of money to be lent to the Japanese Government for the construction of re-productive public works, and of this he advanced one million sterling to the Japanese Government for the construction of a line from Yedo to Kioto, to be built by English engineers of high standing. The railway will be the property of course of the Government, and a lien on its receipts will be the guarantee for the interest of the loan. There was an apparent obstacle in the way, which has however been removed without difficulty. The Government of the Shiogoon it was said had made engagements with an American company; but on examination it appeared that all that had been promised was that, if any foreign company was allowed to build a railway for its own profit and on its own account, this company should have the preference. Under the arrangement just concluded, it is the Government itself which will be the proprietor of the line, and all future lines will necessarily also belong to it. In such a country as Japan the establishment of this principle is evidently essential; we are beginning to recognise the advantages of the system even in England.

The Currency Question, which has remained so long in apparent abeyance, has been advanced a stage, and discussion on it must recommence. The Japanese Government has officially advised the Foreign Ministers of its intention to issue a new coin, the Japan Dollar, with its subsidiaries, models for dies for which we mentioned some months ago had been sent to England. The Ministers are now told that the Government is prepared to commence the issue of the new coin immediately on the arrival of the experts whom it is engaging in England for the service of their Mint. But it will not, at present, make it a legal tender, or recall the coin now in circulation at its nominal, or any fixed value. The new dollar will be put in circulation side by side with the boo and in competition with the Mexican. Should the people fancy the new coin, the Government anticipates that the old will gradually disappear, its absorption being assisted by the payment in it of Customs duties, and, we may assume, all other taxes and dues. This communication the Ministers have made known to those interested in it, and it remains to be seen how it will be received. We cannot, ourselves, see in the announcement any solution of the difficult and dangerous question before us.

But public interest, locally, has had other and more disagreeable matter to occupy it during the last fortnight. A murder has been committed, evidently by Japanese, the victim being Mr. H. E. Hoey, who had long been a resident of Yokohama, and was living on his means here, pursuing no occupation. The coroner and his jury have had to bring in a verdict of "Wilful murder by Japanese unknown," no one having yet been discovered by which to trace the assassins. The murder was committed, according to the evidence of a native servant, the only person in the house with Mr. Hoey, about two A.M. on the 28th inst.; he was bound hand and foot, and a guard kept over him by one man while another committed the crime. We have also to note the discovery of the bodies of two drowned sailors, a man belonging to H.M.S. Ocean, and the other a Dane, belonging to a merchant ship. This is the third case within the month, and though it is very true that men, drunk or sober, may either fall into the ill-fenced creek, or from one of the dangerous little passenger-boats in use here, into the harbour, it is equally true that nothing is easier for Japanese boatmen than to push a man, helpless from drink, into the water after rifling his pockets, that the boatmen, as a class, are by no means incapable of such crime. Without either land or water police, neither life nor property have the least safeguard either ashore or afloat.

Digitized by Google

We regret also to have to record two outrages, one of them, particularly, a most insolent defiance of law and constituted authority, committed by men who pretend to the title of gentlemen, and who certainly ought to know better. The one is an assault by an Englishman of the name of Ewart on a lawyer of notoriety here and elsewhere in the East, of the name of F. J. Barnard. The other grew out of this: Ewart having been, the morning after the assault, most righteously sentenced to imprisonment, without the option of a fine, some sympathisers with him collected the same night and attacked Barnard's house. We wish we had no more to say on the subject, but we should fail in our duty did we not point out that this second assault on Barnard was evidently suggested by another made upon him a few weeks back, in judging which Sir Edmund Hornby made a most injudicious and improper remark, which we reproved when reporting the case. Ewart evidently thought that he would get off with a fine, to be paid for him by his friends in the Court-room, as did Urquhart (the former offender), and his counsel actually quoted in his defence Sir Edmund's words as an excuse for his client's deed.

Sir Harry Parkes left us on the 21st Dec. in the P.M.S.S. Oregonian on a trip of inspection of the Southern ports. From Kobé we hear of his having settled a long standing dispute between the Custom-house and merchants affecting the duty on coals used by coasting steamers. No duty is to be paid in future. We hear with pleasure that Lady Parkes is expected to return to Yokohama immediately.

From the Japan Gazette we gather the following items:—A new Masonic Hall, built under the superintendence of Messrs. Whitfield and Dowson, architects and civil engineers, was inaugurated on St. John's-day. The Fusiyama brings up from Hong Kong the staff of a Chinese theatrical company, consisting in all of about eighty persons. The American ship Ellen Hood has been sold by public auction by the Marshal of the United States Consulate to Messrs. J. D. Carroll and Co. for the sum of $8,100.

The local press at this port exhibits a further marked improvement. We note that the Japan Herald has now a morning and evening edition, and the Weekly and Overland issues have greatly improved. The edition for the Pacific mail is also very useful.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

Dr. Willis, of the Consular Service, who was placed at the disposal of the Japanese by Sir Harry Parkes in the time of war, has we hear left the charge of the hospital at Yedo, and gone to the Satsuma districts. Dr. Willis having been so long absent from his consular duties as Vice-Consul, it would be only right for him to resign, as he stops the way for others rising.

At last the Japanese Government have agreed to carry out an effectual scheme of draining the foreign settlement. The cost it is said will be about $40,000. With this step we hope the residents will also apply a vigorous course in sweeping off the wretched grog shops and other receptacles of vice, filth, and sickness, as recommended by Judge Hornby. The introduction of gas should also be effected while the roads are turned up for drains.

There is no more talk of war, much to the chagrin of some foreigners who trade in arms, powder, steamers, &c.

The Chinese are largely increasing in the settlement, and are now great house builders; the lower part of the settlement will soon become a "Chinese town." They are far too cunning in trade for the Japanese.

In consequence of large importations of rice the price is now lower, but provisions generally are very high.

Sir Harry Parkes is off on a visit to the ports. The "flying squadron" is expected here in February, and Admiral Kellett is expected from Hong Kong daily.

There is a large increase in the shipping at this port. We have to-day eleven merchant steamers and forty-two sailing vessels in harbour.

(FROM ANOTHER CORRESPONDENT.)

The Japanese Government continues to move on in the path of progress; hesitatingly, of course, at first, but still making good strides. The telegraph wire between Yokohama and Yedo is now complete, and arrangements are in progress for a railway, which is naturally our chief subject of talk just now. I am not sure that matters are quite settled with Mr. Lay yet, and there seems to be some difficulty about the capital, but no doubt it will be worked in the end. Many people who had been making overtures to the Government on the subject of railways are disappointed at Mr. Lay's stepping in, but doubtless he has high interest. At any rate, however accomplished, the laying of the first rail will mark a new and important era in Japanese progress.

In the mean while the road between here and Yedo is in fine order, and from fifty to a hundred vehicles ply on it daily with full loads of passengers. The iron bridge is completed, and toll on carriages (to pay its expenses) has come into force—more iron bridges are spoken of. The large works of reclamation at Benten are proceeding rapidly, and the drainage of Yokohama is fairly commenced at last.

The club I hear is likely to pass into the management of Mr. P. S. Smith, who will doubtless retain all his former popularity—he is one of our oldest residents, and knows well the wants of the community, so I think most people will be glad to see him once more in the position he formerly held to the general satisfaction. The residents have subscribed liberally to the Fire Brigade, and in respect to what penny-a-liners term "the devouring element," Yokohama may now be considered very safe, for excellent arrangements are in force for encountering a fire on its first outbreak, and the department is under good management. The Insurance offices ought now to reduce their rates of premium.

I hear that branches of the Oriental and Hong Kong Bank are to be opened at Hiogo.

Niboos are now being shipped in large numbers to Hong Kong, and will pay at $400 to $100 to be melted down (400 is the quotation in boos, the niboo is the gold piece, so 200 of them are equal to $100 50c. each). Foreigners in Yokohama always stated that niboos at 800 would not pay—that they were worth nothing, but John Chinaman is able to squeeze something out.

The Austrian Consulate is established in Yokohama, and a Vice-Consul lives in Yedo. The American Consul for Yedo lives at the Hotel, and hoists his flag-staff in the garden.

The Commercial Department is in full existence, and doing business in Yedo, Yokohama, and Osaka. A branch of this department is for cattle business, and they have opened a butcher's shop, and sell large quantities of meat, milk, and make butter and condensed milk.

FIRE AT YOKOHAMA.

Telegrams via San Francisco from Yokohama Jan. 23 report that an outbuilding of the Chartered Mercantile Bank of India had been burnt down. The bank escaped entirely. A fire at Yedo is also announced, and the deportation of 700 native Christians from Nagasaki, which we take to be about as truthful as the statement last year of throwing them into the sea.

CHINA.

—o—

SHANGHAI.

Dates by this mail are to the 4th January, outward London dates were up to 5th Nov., and by telegrams by Kiachta to 30th.

The North China Herald, which has incorporated the Supreme Court Gazette, has the following:—

We must first say a few words to-day regarding ourselves. As we announce elsewhere, by advertisement, we have acquired the copyright and goodwill of our weekly contemporary, the Supreme Court and Consular Gazette, which we have incorporated with the North China Herald, and publish this afternoon the first of the new series, under the title North China Herald and Supreme Court and Consular Gazette. Subscribers to the North China Herald have generally expressed to us satisfaction with its compilation, and have admitted its value, both for purposes of record and as a home newspaper. We can affirm that in no respect shall the new paper derogate from its former standard, and that they will have no cause to regret the change.

The only event of local interest since the date of our last has been a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, held on the 31st Dec., when a very able letter to Earl Clarendon, which had been prepared by the committee in regard to the new treaty, was agreed to. A suggestion to increase the number of committee-men to ten was carried, as was a resolution raising the rate of subscription from Tls. 25 to Tls. 50. A proposal to admit individual members—other than representatives of firms—at a subscription of Tls. 20, was negatived. A proposal for the collection of statistics of stocks of manufactured goods was agreed to.

A further investigation has been held at the U. S. Consulate, before Dr. Jenkins and the Che-hien, into the death of the pilot Stevens, who, it will be remembered, was reported murdered by pirates while cruising off the Ruggeds. The Chinese who were serving on board his boat at the time were examined separately, but all adhered to their previous story, and the magistrate said he could find no inculpatory evidence against them. He advised, however, that the men should be sent in to the Taoutai, with a request that evidence against the alleged pirates might be sought out. This course was resolved on.

Small-pox has been very prevalent among the natives of late, and several cases have occurred among foreigners. It is worth consideration how far the frequent small pox epidemics which break out in Shanghai are caused by the innoculation of infants, which usually takes place about this time of the year. The disease thus originated is, of course, as infectious as an attack contracted in a natural way, and we have heard intelligent natives attribute the extensive prevalence of small-pox at present mainly to this origin.

Digitized by Google

We are glad to state that the Soochow Bridge has at length been thrown open to foreigners, and only regret that Chinese are not to share the privilege of free passage. The sum of Tls. 1,500 per annum, to be paid in commutation, is rather a dear bargain.

We are sorry to have to record the demise, with the old year, of our morning contemporary the Shanghai Recorder. We have always found our contemporary a frank and courteous rival, and regret his disappearance from the field.

The preliminary examination of the charge of murder against Captain Blanch, of the Newcastle, was held at the Supreme Court. The case was remanded until Thursday the 20th Dec., to enable the defendant to procure his witnesses from Foochow. In the meantime he is released on his own recognisance of £300, and those of two sureties of £150 each.

The highest prize of the Manila Lottery has again fallen to subscribers in China, two gentlemen of this settlement being the fortunate winners of the $25,000 in the December drawing.

We hear that a party of gentlemen who have just returned from an excursion to the neighbourhood of the Tai-hoo Lake, report that they were fired on by the natives five times. We have been unable to get further particulars, but as we understand a representation of the case is likely to be made to H. B. M.'s Consul the facts will probably become fully known.

The Chamber of Commerce memorial to Lord Clarendon goes by this mail.

Mr. Hart, it is said, considers the new Convention a great improvement on the old; we presume he means in the interest of the Chinese.

FOOCHOW.

THE FOOCHOW ARSENAL.

A correspondent of the North China Herald, who has visited the Foochow Arsenal, gives an interesting account of it, from which we extract the following :—

The contract for the building of the Arsenal, the construction of gunboats, the instruction of native workmen, and the preparation of young Chinamen for service in the gunboats, was made between Mr. P. Giquel and the Viceroy Tso in August, 1866 ; but the details of the contract were not arranged until the December following. Mr. D'Aguibelle was originally associated with Mr. Giquel as second director, but has recently taken position as Head of the Naval Training department—Mr. Giquel being left as sole director. On the completion of the contract, Mr. Giquel immediately left for Europe, to engage teachers for the schools, workmen for the shops and other necessary persons ; and the foreign employés of the Arsenal now number fifty-seven in all —including the director, one civil engineer, one surgeon, five professors (or teachers), two secretaries, two accountants, two draughtsmen, thirteen foremen, and twenty-eight artisans. Five of these are English, the remainder French.

The objects of the establishment are not only the constructing and arming of vessels of war, but the instruction of native pupils in shipbuilding, navigation, and engineering. It is expected in five years to build nine engines, which, with seven brought from Europe, will supply sixteen steamers—eleven of which are to be transports, carrying a few guns, and capable of conveying 600 tons of rice ; the other five are to be gunboats. It is also expected that by the end of five years native foremen will be sufficiently instructed to build ships and engines of ordinary descriptions, and that some will be ready to act as coasting masters in the navigation department. Mr. Giquel, however, intends to do more than this, and to have some ready to act as full sea masters, capable of navigating a ship anywhere as well as on the coast.

The schools comprise one school of theoretical navigation with thirty pupils, one school of practical navigation with twelve pupils, and one of engineering, with twelve pupils, the two last to be increased. These schools are all taught in English by English professors, assisted by Chinese monitors. The schools taught in French are a school of naval construction, with forty pupils, two French professors, and two assistant professors, a designing school of thirty pupils, with two French professors, a chronometer school of thirty pupils, with two French professors ; and an apprentices' school of 100 pupils, composed of the apprentices in the various workshops, and taught by French workmen from eight to 9.30 P.M., who get extra pay for this service.

The preparation of the ground was an immense work, and in order to give some immediate result, and allow time to erect large permanent buildings, a temporary arsenal was started at once, in buildings and sheds which were rapidly constructed. It comprises a workshop, in which models are made, with several steam saws, a machine shop, a foundry, a forge with thirty-one fires, and a boiler and copper-ware manufactory. The forge produces every week, on an average, 6,000 pieces of iron work for ships, including bolts, &c. The foundry casts every week from thirteen to fifteen tons of metal. It casts all the brass-ware of the ships built and under construction, and made sixty tons' weight of iron chests for holding moulds. It is now engaged in making columns of three tons weight for the permanent buildings. Besides thes there is a lathe-shop, and a great forge, with two furnaces, and steam hammer of two tons weight There is also a brick factory which can now make 50,000 bricks per month, and when completed will be able to make 100,000. A rolling-mill is soon to be added.

There are four slips for ship-building, residences for the director and foreign teachers, godowns, buildings for the foreign and Chinese labourers, &c. The first transport was launched on the 10th of June last. It is called the Wannien-tsing. Its length on the surface of the water is 223 feet. and on deck 234 feet ; depth at the middle beam, 17 2-5ths feet ; average draught, 13 feet. Chung How, the Superintendent of Trade for the three Northern ports, was deputed by the Emperor to examine the vessel. Word has just reached here that Chung How has declared her entirely satisfactory, and that the Emperor has given his sanction to the name she bears, which is that of the ruling dynasty. On the 6th Dec. a gun boat was launched from the Arsenal—the foreign residents of Pagoda Anchorage and a large number of Chinese being in attendance. The dimensions of the vessel are as follows :— Length, 183 feet ; breadth, 22 feet ; draught of water aft, 9 feet ; do. forward, 6½ feet. She will carry one 50-pounder rifled gun, and two smaller ones. Her construction has occupied eight months' working time. At eight A.M. of the same day the keel of the third vessel, with bow and stern posts, was laid upon the blocks. She is to be precisely similar to the gunboat just launched. Further shipbuilding will now be suspended until the permanent buildings are completed.

There are employed in the Arsenal 500 Chinese carpenters, 500 iron smiths, and 500 coolies. When extra assistance is required about the works, 500 soldiers are detailed from the camp near by ; and 120 Chinese sailors are also in service. The Chinese official staff is composed of one Imperial Commissioner (Shen), a Committee of four mandarins of high rank, a number of secretaries, &c. The average expenditure of the Arsenal is Tls. 50,000 per month, which, to insure promptness of payment, is paid originally from the customs revenue ; but is repaid by the provinces of Kwangtung, Chehkiang, and Fookien—Tls. 10,000 from each of the former, and Tls. 30,000 from the latter. When the permanent buildings are all completed, next year, the director expects to furnish three ships and three engines every year. A splendid slip, bought in France, is now being put together, on which ships are to be hauled broadside, and which will be able to take in ships of 3,000 tons.

When I visited the English school, a recitation in grammar was going on, which involved the nice distinctions of the personal pronoun in its different numbers and genders. I looked over the writing books of the boys, and their examples in algebra and geometry ; and was surprised at their rapid advancement. Mr. Chan Laisun, of Shanghai, did most excellent service in the preliminary training of these boys. In this school the best scholar is a professing Christian, and a graduate of the M. E. Mission school. One of the monitors is also a Christian, and a graduate of the school of the American Board Mission. An incident occurred in this school not long since which is worth mentioning. Mr. Carroll requested the boys each to write an English composition, selecting the theme themselves. One wrote about as follows :—" The foreign teachers have come here to instruct us in foreign languages. The object is to enable us to understand naval tactics, and become prepared to command the gunboats. When the gunboats are finished and equipped, and we are able to command them—then we shall be able to dispense with the foreigners !"

In the navigation school of Mr. Swainson I saw some pretty hard problems on the black-board, which had been given to the pupils as their morning work. They were working away at them —some with countenances betokening success, others apparently quite in despair. In the chronometer school, I saw a brass axiometer about to be silver-plated, and some delicately made watch-hands just being finished by some of the Chinese workmen. The blacksmith shop presented a scene of great activity, with its numerous forges in full blast, and its scores of workmen busily employed. One of the most pleasing things connected with my visit was a view of the night school in full session. Here were 140 Chinese apprentices, giving an hour and a half each evening to the study of the French language. It sounded oddly enough to be addressed in French by young Chinese. They seemed to be doing well, and certainly manifested the greatest animation and zeal in their studies. I could not help thinking that, for practical use in years to come, these boys might far better be learning English ; but while in the Arsenal, under French instructors, of course the French language is what they most need.

Mr. Giquel gave me every facility for examining the various departments of the Arsenal, and kindly furnished information in regard to all points upon which I required it. I imagine that he frequently has his hands full in managing the concern, especially when foreigners and Chinese disagree with each other. But from what I saw and heard I conclude that his management is popular and successful. The Imperial Commissioner, Shen, a native of this province, is one of the most earnest in the prosecution of the Arsenal work. He is invested with high powers, and not long ago tried, convicted, and executed a coolie for stealing brass—all within the space of half an hour.

From Messrs. Hedge and Co's. weekly shipping report it appears that the vessels now loading for London are :—Red Riding Hood

Digitized by Google

Portland, Westburn (reported by telegram lost) Coutnakyle; for New York, Homer, Avon.

SWATOW.

On the proposed departure of Mr. Consul Alabaster for Shanghai, the English community presented him with a testimonial of plate, and a complimentary address, expressing their appreciation of his ability, skill, and energy. In reply Mr. Alabaster said:—"I trust always to find the missionary and mercantle communities united as theyare on this occasion, convinced as I am that so long as their courses lie side by side, it will be to the mutual advantage of each that, as the mercantile community advance the missionary body will have greater security and freedom of action, and as their teachings s.read and take root, the merchant will have greater facilities for his operations. Ignorance and prejudice are the greatest enemies with which both have to contend, and these each in turn and in different manner attacks and dispels."

The Community have addressed Sir R Alcock on the New Convention, and we extract the following:—

"Were the Customs here less strict, or a trustworthy coastguard organised, no complaint could stand, but constituted as is the one and absent as is the other, nothing but disappointment can result to the simplest commercial calculations."

The treatment of claims against Chinese is also a subject which calls for improvement, if not indeed total reform. Payment of the best-founded claims, acknowledged by the defaulters as such, is subject not to meet their ability, but to their willingness to meet them; and reference to the Chinese authorities is of so little avail as to be practically valueless, owing to the venality which pervades all the Yamuns, their professions of bringing pressure to bear on the delinquents being of course at variance with fact. The vexation, the delay, and time uselessly spent in periodically bringing such claims to their notice through the Consul are almost effectual barriers against pressing them at all, and a premium is thus being placed more and more on dishonesty. We submit with deference that where such a condition of things prevails H.M.'s Consul should have it in his power to hold the Chinese authorities responsible for such miscarriage of justice, which so greatly adds to the usual risks of trade.

The disadvantage under which the British flag, as compared with that of other nationalities, labours in the traffic with our own possessions at the Straits can only, we should think, require to be known to our Government, when a remedy would at once be found.

It will be seen by the following extract from the Foreign-Office list that Mr. Alabaster has rendered varied and important services since 1855:—

Was appointed a student interpreter in China, June 14, 1855, and on arrival was employed in the Superintendency of Trade at Hong Kong. Was attached to Admiral Sir M. Seymour during the operations in the Canton River, from October 30, 1857, till the capture of Canton, for which service he received the China medal with Canton clasp. Was appointed to attend Commissioner Yeh, January 5, 1858, whom he accompanied to Calcutta, and remained there till the commissioner's death. Returned to China, and was appointed interpreter at Foo-Chow-Foo, and attached to the Chinese secretary's department of Mr. (now Hon. Sir Frederick) Bruce's mission, May 11, 1859. Was attached as interpreter to the Consulate at Canton, June 9, 1859, at Amoy, April 7, 1860; and at Swatow, May 28, 1860, accompanying, whilst at the latter place, as interpreter, various expeditions against piratical villages. Was appointed interpreter at Shanghai, January 23, 1861. Accompanied, as interpreter, various expeditions against the rebels, and was present at the storming and capture of Nah-ding, and other places, for which services he was favourably mentioned in the despatches of the late Brigadier-General Staveley. Was lent to the Chinese Government, August, 1862, to assist in the reorganisation of the Sung-Kiang force, and was nominated for the first-class of the Order of the Star of China, for that and other services. Was appointed acting Vice-Consul at Shanghai, October 1, 1864. Proceeded on a mission to Nanking to congratulate the Viceroy on the capture of the city; afterwards accompanied the Russian Consul-General to Soochow, to investigate the case of certain Europeans murdered in that city; and has sat as a joint magistrate in the Mixed Court ever since its establishment. Was Acting Consul at Swatow from September 1, 1868, till November 18, 1869, when he was appointed Vice-Consul at Shanghai.

HONG KONG.

The London mail of 25th Nov. arrived out on the 7th Jan. with telegrams to the 6th Dec. Dates are now down to the 11th Jan The following summary is from the China Mail:—

Sir R. Alcock arrived here on the 31st Dec., and left by the French mail of the 4th of Jan. A meeting of the Chamber of Commerce and a public meeting took place on the 3rd. H.E. received deputations from both, to whom he explained his own position and the so-called policy of the British Government. The results were in the main unsatisfactory, H.E. refusing to acknowledge the arguments put forth by the spokesmen of both deputations as to matters affecting Hong Kong interests.

Shek Aluk and the three other men, who were sentenced to death for the murder of Sergeant Mahoney at Sowkewan, it has been found, were convicted on the evidence of three or four perjurers Tang Pak Foo, and an ex-policeman named Tsoy Assam, the movers in the attempt, have been found guilty of conspiracy, the former having been convicted of perjury besides. The three other witnesses (Chinese) have been convicted also of perjury The Chief Justice, the prosecutor and the jury joined in a strong censure on the police for the part they had taken in the case. It would appear, therefore, that the real murderers of Mahoney are still at large.

Baron Richthofen left Canton on the 30th Dec., on his overland tour northwards; he has abandoned his intention of entering Yunan, and goes to Peking through Hunan, Hupeh, &c.

The Hong Kong Chamber of Commerce are favourably disposed to an independent project for commercially exploring Western China. The matter is still under discussion.

The Chief Justice of Macao, Sr. Pinto, having been promoted to the post of Presidente da Relagao of Goa, took his departure from Macao in the brig Concordia. We hear that about two hundred persons accompanied his Lordship to the wharf, and the clergy sang a Te Deum in the cathedral for his safe arrival at his destination.

We learn that the steam ship Titana was sold on Dec. 28, by Mr. J. M. Armstrong, for the sum of $35,000. Captain Sands was the purchaser. The little Fizz was not sold.

The river is regaining the old reputation for insecurity. On the 3rd, while the steamer White Cloud was on her way from Macao hither, when near Chun-chow, three Chinamen were observed apparently in the water, and waving for assistance. A boat was lowered and sent to them, when it was found that they were on the bottom of a boat, which was capsized. They were brought on board the steamer, and related that their boat belonged to Tamsui. On the previous day, when about four miles from Macao, they were attacked by pirates, who robbed them and their boat of every movable article, cut away the boat's masts, and stove two large holes in her bottom. The three men had been on the boat drifting all night. They were brought to this colony, and handed over to the Registrar-General to be cared for. On the way over a subscription for their benefit was raised among the passengers on the steamer, which amounted to $28.

We notice with pleasure an account of the visit of H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh to Hong Kong, illustrated with photographs by Mr. Thomson. The compilation is very neatly done by the Rev. W. R. Beach, Colonial Chaplain, and, we observe, is published in London by Messrs. Smith, Elder, and Co. This publication is calculated to spread general information as to Hong Kong, its Government and society, and is well worthy a perusal.

A new peal of bells, the gift of Mr. Perry, an old Hong Kong resident, have been erected at the Cathedral, and were rung for the first time on New Year's-eve.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

Dates from this port are to the 18th Jan. The London mail of Dec. 3 arrived out on Jan. 7, with telegrams to 28th.

The Straits Times has the following:—

The first Criminal Session of this year opened on the 5th and closed on the 11th; there were twenty-four cases on the calendar, but they were mostly for the lighter offences—principally for petty burglary and larceny—and were very easily disposed of. There was one case of counterfeiting, where the prisoner was sentenced to transportation for life; and one for murder, in which the grand jury threw out the bill against two of the prisoners, and the petty jury found the third not guilty.

The fortnight has been bare of political interest. The Governor still remains at Penang, and has been making a tour in Province Wellesley. He will spend some days at Malacca on his return trip, and may not be expected here before the end of the month. Among the passengers by the Achilles, from Liverpool, was Mr. C. Irving, the newly appointed Assistant Colonial Secretary; it is rumoured, however, that official changes are contemplated which will give Mr. Irving for a time the appointment of Acting Auditor General—Mr. C. J. Irving, the Auditor General, going to Malacca as Acting Lieutenant Governor, in the room of Capt. Shaw, that office being vacant since Capt. Shaw's acting appointment to the place of the late Col Macpherson.

The Java news during the fortnight has been more than usually interesting. Heavy floods have occurred on the West Coast of Sumatra, doing considerable damage to the rice fields, and destroying the roads and bridges, so that, unless aided by the Government, the poor natives there will suffer great privations.

From Saigon, also, news has been received, which has had a very sensible effect upon the rice market. There appears to be no scarcity of grain, but a panic had seized upon the women—the real labourers—throughout the country, and they would not bring their grain to market—a story having by some means got abroad that Government agents were forcibly seizing and carrying off women either to settle another part of the country or for sale. It is needless to state that the story was untrue, and no doubt in a short time the panic will have subsided. Among the passengers by the French mail steamer was Sir Rutherford Alcock, the British Minister Plenipotentiary to China, who had taken passage for Calcutta en route to Europe.

The rainy weather still continues, though at last there are signs of a break-up. During the past three months scarcely a day has passed without rain, and sometimes for days the sun has hardly made its appearance. The roads are all but impassable, and the municipal officers have been unable to effect temporary needed repairs, owing to the impossibility of obtaining carts to convey road material.

Digitized by Google

The performance of the Tom Thumb Troupe at the Town Hall Theatre was one of the most pleasing and unique entertainments that has ever been afforded the public of Singapore. The four little men and women, Tom Thumb and his wife, Commodore Nutt, and Miss Minnie Warren, appeared in character, and the audience were highly amused by their humorous and laughable impersonations. Commodore Nutt was singing an Irish song, pacing up and down the stage, when he caught the eye of a stalwart gentleman in the audience, and immediately threw off his coat and challenged him to combat a la fisticuff, squaring off in the most approved style. This "brought down the house." The entertainment throughout was a very pleasant one, and at its close those of the audience who felt so inclined had an opportunity of conversing with the lilliputians, who were found conversant with the leading topics of the day, and take a lively interest in passing events. We are sorry not to have another opportunity of witnessing their amusing and wonderful performance.

PENANG.

Dates are down to the 20th January. The following are from the Penang Gazette:—

The state of our relations with the East Coast of Sumatra is at present very unsatisfactory. The Dutch have occupied the greater number of the ports, and, we presume, hold that by right of possession they have power to deal with them as they choose. The English Government has not recognised this proceeding of the Dutch, and declines to hold correspondence with the Dutch officials on any matter of complaint which may arise between traders from Penang and any of the chiefs, and hence for any act of oppression or injustice committed by the latter there is practically no redress to be had. The Dutch Government assert that the States of Delli, Assahan, Langkat, &c., are all dependencies of Siac, and as they have taken that state into their entire management, they say that the dependencies follow as a matter of course. This, however, is denied by our Government, on the ground that all these states have long been virtually independent of Siac, and in proof of this it appeals to the engagements for trade entered into by them with the Penang Government, and which engagements, in fact, were made with the express consent of the Sultan of Siac.

It is reported that his Honour the Judge will proceed to England on a short leave of absence by an early steam r. The Chief Justice will of course hold the February Criminal Session and Civil Sittings.

CEYLON.

—o—

GALLE.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

A few months will inaugurate a new state of affairs. Thanks to England's great ship, the Great Eastern, the Bombay and Suez cable will be laid, and then we see no reason to doubt that communication with England will be practicable in a few hours. Add a few months and the thin band that more than half encircles the globe will have received an extension—a most important stride towards its ultimate perfection, and one that will be appreciated all over the East. It will connect Galle and Singapore. Col. Glover has already taken up his quarters in Galle, with the view of making the necessary arrangements.

Busy preparations are being made for commencing the long-talked of Lighthouse on the Great Basses, a most dangerous and deceitful rock to the south-east of Ceylon. Begun years ago, and more money having been expended on the preliminary work than the entire fabric should have cost, the costly stones intended for its construction were allowed to line the edges of the Galle roads, and the plan fell into abeyance. The Trinity-house has now taken the matter up, and has put the affair into the hands of a gentleman of great experience, Mr. Douglas, who is now here personally superintending operations.

Commercial Report.

—o—

(For dates see First Page.)

STRAITS, JAVA, CHINA, AND JAPAN IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—The arrival of large supplies had had a depressing effe upon the market. Prices for Shirtings and Yarns were lower, while other Cotton Goods were in but limited inquiry, although prices were nominally unchanged. Woollens were very dull. The following were the current quotations:—Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., $2.63 to 2.68 per piece; 8¼ to 8½ lbs., $2.95 to 3; 9 lbs., $3 40 to 3.45; White Shirtings, 56 to 60 reed, $2.65 to 2.85; 64 to 72 reed, $2.90 to 3.05; T-Cloths, 6 to 7 lbs., $1.90 to 2.30. Cotton Yarn, 16 to 24, $53 to 53 75 per picul; 28 to 32, $53 to 53.75; 38 to 42, $62 to 64. Woollens and Mixtures: Camlets, BBB, $13.50 to 14.50 per piece; SS, $13 to 13.50; SSS, $9.50 to 10.50; Cloth, medium and broad, 54 in., $0 80 to 1.60 per yard; Spanish Stripes, $0.750to 1; Long Ells, Scarlet and Black, $8 to 8.75 per piece; Blankets, $0.35 to 0.39 per lb. Metals—Iron: bar, $3 to $3.50 per picul; Nail-rod, $2.70 to 3.50; Lead, $6 to $6.25.

HIOGO AND OSAKA.—Grey Shirtings were dull. Only the finer qualities of Cotton Yarn were saleable. Black Velvets and Turkey Reds were in fair inquiry. In Woollens, good assortments of Camlets sold readily, and a fair business had been done in Orleans and Mousselines. Cloth was improving. Blankets were dull of sale. Metals neglected.

SHANGHAI.—The transactions in the chief Grey Staples had been mainly from second hands, and only to a limited extent. Woollens had commanded rather more attention on account of their comparative cheapness, and the dealers seemed to think a further reduction in value unlikely. Grey Shirtings: Sales and re-sales had been made to the extent of about 70 to 75,000 pieces, and the market was steady. There had been very few first-hand sellers, they generally preferring to wait for the re-opening of the Northern trade. Quotations:—7 lbs., Tls. 1.96 to Tls. 2; 8-4 lbs., Tls. 2.18 to Tls. 2.20; and 9-10 to 9-12 lbs., Tls. 2.35 to Tls. 2.85. Stock estimated at 925,000 pieces. T-Cloths: Several sales had been effected from second hands at very low rates, but, as with Grey Shirtings, the prices gave no true idea of importers' demands; 6 lbs., Tls. 1.45 to Tls. 1.65; 7 lbs., Tls. 1.60 to Tls. 1.80; and 8 lbs. to 8¼ lbs., 36-inch, Tls. 1.95 to Tls. 2.15; XX., Tls. 2.40 per piece. White Shirtings: A few small sales quoted at about former values:—56 reed, Tls. 2.05 to Tls. 2.12.5; 60 reed, Tls. 2.15 to Tls. 2.25; 64 reed, Tls. 2.30 to Tls. 2.35; and 66 reed, Tls. 2.40 to Tls. 2.45 per piece. Drills—More inquiry for cheap goods of E glish make, and several parcels had changed hands at low rates for immediate delivery. In other classes there was little alteration. Fancy Goods, small enquiry, but partially met by holders. Values showed a heavy loss on cost, and a large proportion of the stock was held off the market. Woollens: Long Ells exhibited a decline in price, and were not much sought for. There had been some speculative demands for Camlets, and several sales were quoted of good assortments. Badly assorted parcels were still very difficult to place even at reduced figures. Figured Orleans very dull even at lower quotations. Fancy Woollens also dull. Lead was a shade weaker; shipments on a large scale had been made to the river and other ports. For Iron there was very little demand, a few sales of best Nail Rods to speculators had been effected at low rates Quotations are unaltered. Imports for the fortnight—Lead 400 tons, Iron 950 tons. Coals: The market continued very dull, with but few sales. Cardiffs a little weaker. English and American without sales or inquiry. Arrivals of all kinds for December, 1869, 6 459 tons, against the same month 1868, 13.110 tons. Quotations (duty paid):—American Drills, Tls. 3.6.0 to 3.7.0; American Jeans, Tls. 2.9.5 to 3; American Sheetings, Tls. 3.5.0 to 3.5.5; English Drills, Tls. 3.4.2 to 3.6.0; Figured Shirtings, per piece, Tls. 2.1.0. to 2.7.0; Brocades, Tls. 2.1.5 to 3.2.0; Damasks, dyed, Tls. 4.2.5 to 4.5.0; Gentian Shirtings, Tls. 2.8.0 to 2.9.0; Chintz, Tls. 1 5.0 to 1.9.0; Turkey Reds, 24 yards, Tls. 2.1.0 to 2.4.0; Camlets, English, SS, per piece, Tls. 11.5.0 to 12; Spanish Stripes, per yard, Tls. 0.5.0. to 0.8.0.; Medium Broad and Habit Cloth, Tls. 1 to 1.4.5; Long Ells, Scarlet, Tls. 6 to 6.1.0; Assorted, Tls. 6.1.0 to 6 2.0; Lastings, Tls. 11.1.2; Crape Lastings, Tls. 7·5.0 to 8; Iron: Nail Rod, per picul, Tls. 1.9.0 to 2; Hoop, Tls. 1.6.0. to 1.7.0.; Lead, per piece, Tls. 5.2.5.; Steel, per tub, Tls. 3 to 3.1.5.

HANKOW.—The Chamber of Commerce Circular gives the following report:—The demand for Piece Goods has been dull, with the exception of Grey Shirtings and T-Cloths, which have continued in good inquiry. Woollens are without improvement. Grey Shirtings: A fair amount of business has been done during the fortnight at an advance of 2 candareens on last quotations, the Szechuen dealers being the principal operators. During the last few days holders have not been so firm, and prices are now rather lower. Closing quotations are Tls. 1.97 to Tls. 2.01 for 7 lbs., and Tls. 2.16 to Tls. 2.21 for 8¼ lbs. goods. White Shirtings: Low counts have been in some request at previous rates. T-Cloths: There has been a good inquiry, and prices are without change, notwithstanding heavy arrivals during the fortnight. The present high cost of native cloth has a favourable influence on the consumption of these goods. Good 7 lbs. makes are quoted Tls. 1.77 to Tls. 1.80 per piece; 8 to 8½ lbs., Tls. 2.08 to Tls. 2.13 per piece. Drills have been dull of sale, and prices are weak. Fancy Cottons have not been wanted. Woollens and Worsteds—Camlets: A moderate business has been done at previous rates. Lastings: A few retail sales have been effected. Long Ells continue without improvement; and have changed hands to a very small extent. Spanish Stripes have been in little inquiry. In Medium and Broad Cloths nothing has been done. Figured Orleans: Inquiry has fallen off, and prices are weaker. China Crapes have not been asked for. Metals: Lead moves off very slowly at last rates, and there is no general inquiry. Quicksilver has not been asked for; quotation nominally the same. The following are the current quotations:—White Shirtings, 56 to 60 reed, Tls. 2.0.5 to Tls. 2.2.0 per piece; 64 to 66, Tls. 2.2.5 to Tls. 2.3.5 per piece; 68 to 72, Tls. 2.4.0 to Tls. 2.5.0 per piece; Handkerchiefs, Tls. 0.5.3 to Tls. 0.6.2 per dozen; Spotted Shirtings, Tls. 2.2.0 to Tls. 2.7.5 per piece; Brocades, Tls. 2.0.5 to Tls. 3.1.5 per piece; Damasks, Tls. 4.3.5 to Tls. 4.4.8 per piece; Chintz, Tls. 1.6.0 to Tls. 1.7.5 per piece; Spanish Stripes, Tls. 0.5.5 to Tls. 0.5.8 per yard; Cloth, Tls. 0.9.0 to Tls. 1.6.0 per yard; Camlets—English, S., Tls. 12.8 0 to Tls. 13.3.0 per piece; S.S., Tls. 12.0 to Tls. 12.4 0; Common, Tls. 10.5.0 to Tls. 11.0 per piece; Lastings, Tls. 10.1.5 to Tls. 11.3.0; Long Ells, Tls. 6.1.0 to Tls. 6.2.5 per piece; Lead, Tls. 5.4.0 to Tls. 5.6.0 per picul; Quicksilver, Tls. 50.5.0 to Tls. 50.7.5 per picul.

FOOCHOW.—The following are the transactions reported:—1,400 pieces 7 lbs. Grey Shirtings, at $2.72½ per piece; 120 pieces Scarlet Camlets, at $16.50 per piece; 210 piculs Leads, at $7.50 per picul.

HONG KONG.—We extract the following from Messrs. Olyphant and Co.'s report dated 10th January:—Cotton Yarn: Full arrivals of Nos. 16-24 and 28-32 have taken place of late, and, with an increased slackening of the demand, no business has resulted in these numbers of English Yarn, beyond a few bales placed at auction, by which method sales can now only be made. The quotations given show a decline of $2.50 per bale, but even at these figures nothing can be done at private. Piece Goods: The business of the fortnight is comprised in a very small aggregate, and, as prices have been steadily sustained, these small transactions may be accounted for mainly by the disinclination of the native dealers to enter into extended operations at a time so near the turn of their New

Digitized by Google

Year, and their expectation of considerable damaged parcels being put up for sale at public auction, from which they could supply their present wants. Grey Shirtings of all weights are unchanged in value, and 7lb. and 8.4lb. are easy of sale at the minimum quotations, but holders are firm for the highest rates. White Shirtings are still readily saleable "to arrive," but importers have displayed such increased firmness that settlements to the extent of only a few hundred pieces have resulted. Drills are still neglected, and there is no outside demand to strengthen in the least the position of holders. 6lb. common T-Cloths are enquired for at unchanged prices; 6lb. Mexican are held for higher figures, but are not wanted; values of 7lb. are unchanged: 8lb. goods are quoted 5 cents dearer, and in moderate request. Brocades exhibit a marked rise in rates, and favourite chops command an advance of from 10 to 40 cents. Spotted Shirting are also much dearer. Turkey Reds are weak, but prices are unchanged. An advance of 5 to 10 cents per piece is noticeable in Chintzes. Woollens: Some demand continues for Scarlet Long Ells at former prices; Assorted are neglected. Scarlet Spanish Stripes are somewhat firmer, whilst Assorted are weak. Blankets are dull, and not wanted. Inquiry keeps up for superior Lastings. Crape Lastings are weak, and difficult to place. Camlets have fallen 25 cents. Metals: Nail Rod Iron, under pressure of heavy supplies, has given way in value 5 to 10 cents. Soft Bar Iron is easy of sale at a slight advance. Hoop is firm, as the supplies offering are almost nil. Steel is firmer. Lead has been actively taken, and an advance of 5 to 10 cents per picul has been established; at the rise the article is still in demand "to arrive," as the late settlements have very much reduced supplies in first hands. Tin has been moderately dealt in at slightly easier rates. Tin Plates are weaker. Fair transactions have resulted in Quicksilver, and the quotations now made are 50 to 75 cents higher; holders of Californian are demanding $65. Coal: Receipts have been 5,620 tons Cardiff, about half of which comes to consumers; 900 tons Sydney, 1,550 tons Anthracite, and 800 tons English to consumers. Sales have been: 440 tons Cardiff, at $8.20, with certain advantages and privileges to purchasers; 900 tons Sydney, at $5.60 per ton, and 320 tons West Hartly at $7 per ton. The following were the current quotations:—Cotton Yarn, per bale, Nos. 16 to 24, $140 to 145; 28 to 32, $142.50 to 150; 38 to 42, $175 to 185; Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., $2.45 to 2.50 per piece; 8.4 lbs., $2.75 to 2.80; 9 to 10 lbs., $3 to 3.70; White Shirtings, $2.55 to 3.70; finer qualities, $4.05; T-Cloths, 6 lbs., $1.90 to 2; 7 lbs., $2.15 to 2.22½; Mexicans, $2.30 to 2.45; 8 to 8.4 lbs., 36-inch, $2.65 to 2.80; Grey Twills, English, 14 to 15 lbs., $4.65 to 4.75; American, 15 lbs., $5 to 5.10; Dutch, 14.8 lbs., $4.70 to 4.85; Spotted Shirtings, White $2.50 to 2.80; Brocades, $2.60 to 3.50; Damasks, $4.50 to 5; Turkey Red Cambrics, $3.60 to 2.75; Chintzes, $2 to 2.30; Long Ells, Scarlet, $7.50 to 7.70; Assorted, $7.30 to 7.50; Blankets, Assorted, $0.43 to 0.50; Camlets, SSS, Assorted, $13.50 to 14; SS, $15.25 to 16; S, $17.25 to 17.75; Dutch, $24 to 26.50; Iron Nail Rod, $2.30 to 2.50; Lead, $6.40 to 6.45; L.B., $6.50; W.B., $6.65 to 6.75.

BATAVIA.—Grey Shirtings, 39 inch 7 lb., saleable to a moderate extent; stocks very light, value firm. All other descriptions neglected, 8¼ lbs. being unsaleable even at f.8. Supplies of 3 lb. Medapollams exhausted, and for a small quantity f.3¼ might be made. The lighter weights not inquired for. Dutch Drills of prime quality obtainable at f.9; demand very trifling, and reduction must be submitted to in order to effect sales. White Shirlings of all descriptions continue very difficult of sale; no change to note in value. Coarse Madapollams find buyers at f.3½; good imitation Dutch, 5 by 4 width, at f.5 to f.5.05; 6 by 4, at f.5¼. Good 24s Cambrics saleable at f.3½, but all other marks and qualities are out of favour. Dyed Goods in very little request; values lower. Woollens attracted no attention, sales being of quite a retail nature. Copper in no inquiry. Yellow Metal and Zinc also out of demand. Market overstocked with Iron, and sales impracticable. Tin Plates seldom inquired for.

SINGAPORE.—The publication of the quarterly stock lists had caused an increased inquiry to be manifested for a few staples shown to be in small supply; but except upon 8¼ lbs. Shirtings no advance in price had been established, and on these only about 2¼ cents per piece, $2.90 to 2.92½ being the rates at which holders had nearly cleared out. The Chinese were preparing for their new year festivities, and until these were over transactions would be very limited. 7 lbs. and 6 lbs. Shirtings had been placed to a moderate extent at about previous rates. Grey Madapollams in small demand, but prices steady. T-Cloths, transactions very few; prices without alteration. Drills out of request. White Shirtings very dull, easier rates submitted to fair sales of imitation of Irish Linens, but at lower rates. White Cambrics in less inquiry; prices maintained. White Figured Shirtings $2.90 to $3 per piece. Spool and Ball thread slightly lower. No improvement in the demand for Dyed Cottons. The only sale in Shirtings was of Pink Figured. Turkey Red Cambrics altogether out of inquiry; only one or two trifling sales reported. T. R. Mulls placed at previous rates. Prints very dull. Sarongs of the better descriptions moving off, but at low prices; for Handkerchiefs no demand Stocks of Grey Yarn very much reduced, but prices without improvement. No. 40s, $150, at which there had been sales on the spot and to arrive. Turkey Red Yarn in better request; sales of Glasgow Dye reported. Other Coloured Yarns very dull. Metals of all descriptions in over supply and unsaleable. Iron sold as low as $2.10 to 2.20 for Common flat and Square bar, and $2.45 for Govan. Yellow Metal had been bought more freely. Spelter sold at better rates. Gunpowder no improvement. No importations of Coals had been sold ex ship, and sales were only for consumption at low rates.

PENANG.—Owing to the Chinese holidays but little business had been done. Grey Shirtings: Inquiry moderate; 6 lbs. sold at $44 to 43½; 7 lbs. at $51½, 8¼ lbs. to $59 to 60 per corge; no sales of 45 inch. Long Cloths:—Few buyers, and only for 10 lb. goods, which had been disposed of at $67½ per corge. In other weights no transactions. Madapollams: Short stock; sales of 3 lbs. at $22 per corge. T-Cloths of light weights, say 5 lbs., in more request, but with a bare market; 6 lbs. disposed of at $37½ to 38¾; 7 lbs. at $43 to 44½ per corge. White Shirtings remained difficult of disposal; unimportant sale of Medium at $63½, of Fine at $83 to 88 per corge. No sales of 45 inch goods. White Cambrics. Small quantities taken, Low at $22, Nos. 15 to 16 at $32½ per corge. Grey Sheetings, $84 to 88 per corge, according to quality. Drills dull. Dyed Goods weaker, with increase of stocks. Pink Prints sold at $50 to $56, but only in small lots. Turkey Red Cambrics: Few buyers at $45 and 44 per corge. Yarn: The principal demand had been for No. 30 Grey Mule, of which sales had taken place at $141 to $142 per bale; there had also been sales of No. 40 at $150 per bale. Turkey Red not in request; a few sales reported No. 20 at $136, No. 44 at $144 per bale. Small sales of Imperial Red, No. 40, at $79 and $78, and of Green at $82 per bale. Coloured Yarns all very dull. Metals in very limited request; small sales reported of Iron, assorted, at $2.57½ per picul, Lead at $6 for Pig and $7 for Sheet per picul. Yellow Metal at $22½ per picul, and Anchors and Chains at $4 per cwt.

STRAITS, JAVA, CHINA, AND JAPAN EXPORTS.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—The improved demand noticed in our report of the 7th inst. had continued, and prices consequently had again risen slightly. Settlements amounted to about 5,000 piculs, making the settlements for the month 13,000 piculs, consisting chiefly of medium to fine grades; common teas continued scarce. Arrivals had nearly kept pace with settlements, and stocks were somewhat reduced. The Grenadier for New York had sailed with 613,381 lbs. The Crest of the Wave, 776 tons, the Westbury, 329 tons, and Havelock, 454 tons, were loading for New York; the Southern Belle had been taken off the berth. Quotations: Common, $20 to $21 per picul, nominal; Good Common, $22 to $23 ditto; Medium, $27 to $30 ditto; Good Medium, $31 to $33 ditto; Fine, $34 to $37 ditto; Finest, $38 to $42 ditto; Choice, nominal.

HIOGO AND OSAKA.—About 2,000 piculs had been settled at irregular prices; teamen having shown more disposition to effect sales, it was expected that prices would decline; fine sorts were held for high rates. The stock was estimated at 5,000 piculs.

SHANGHAI.—Black: Next to nothing had been done, a few hundred chests only having been purchased. The stock was insignificant, and was not likely to be added to by arrivals of useful descriptions; the only additions to it to any extent would probably be parcels of very low packed leaf. The season was nearly closed. Settlements for the fortnight, 698 chests; reshipments on owners' account, 531 chests; stock, 43 chops, or 12,530 packages. Quotations (duty paid, exchange at 6s. 1d., freight at £2 sterling):—Oonam, common, Tls. 19; Oopack, common, Tls. 20. Green: Transactions had been on a more moderate scale; the settlements, amounting to 28,000 half-chests, had been made chiefly for the American market. A few chops of fine Moyune and Teenkai had been taken at very full prices; medium grades had brought quite previous prices, in some cases common to fair descriptions had sold at rather easier prices, but no quotable decline was noticed. Supplies continued to come forward freely, and receipts were 12,000 half-chests in excess of last year. Quotations: Moyune and Teenkai, Tls. 31 to Tls. 41½; Fychow, Tls. 26 to Tls. 36; Pingsuey, Tls. 30 to Tls. 31; Shanghai packed, Tls. 25 to Tls. 30. Settlements for the fortnight, 28,669 half-chests; re-shipments on owners' account, 1,717 half-chests; stock, 129 chops, or 63,091 half-chests.

HANKOW.—There had been no settlements during the interval.

KIUKIANG.—There had been no business worth reporting in either Black or Green; quotations were nominal.

FOOCHOW.—Messrs. Odell and Co. report as follows:—Congous have continued in active demand, both on English and Australian accounts, settlements amounting to about 23,400 chests. Stocks being reduced into so small a compass, the teamen have been enabled to obtain an advance in price of about one Tael per picul. Souchongs have also been in good request, and the small stock on offer at the date of our last has been settled at previous quotations. Oolongs: In the absence of supplies there is no business to advise. Scented Teas are in more inquiry, and a few settlements are reported. Settlements during the fortnight have been:—Congou, 23,408 chests, at Tls. 8.8 to Tls. 24.8 per picul ship off; Souchong, 2,960 chests, at Tls. 17.3 to Tls. 20.8 per picul ship off; Scented Teas, 2,304 boxes, at Tls. 20.3 to Tls. 24.8 per picul ship off; Flowery Pekoe, 87 chests, at Tls. 25.8 to Tls. 26.8 per picul ship off.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—The pretensions of silkmen were so little abated that business was still curtailed by their extravagant demands. The best Hanks were held from $760 upwards; good Medium from $720 upwards; and it was only on common grades that they had been ready to make any concessions. Oshus were without change, and excepting a few Coshus and Sodais, other sorts were wanting. Settlements about 300 bales. Stock unchanged. The current quotations were—Hanks, Mybash and Sinchu, best, 30s. 6d. to 32s. 9d.; medium, 27s. 6d. to 29s. 8d.; inferior, 23s. 8d. to 26s. 9d.; Oshu, extra, 33s. 11d.; best, 30s. 10d. to 32s. 9d.; medium, 28s. 3d. to 30s. 6d.; inferior, 22s. 6d. to 26s. 8d.; Coshu, best, 26s. 9d. to 28s. 3d.; medium, 24s. 5d. to 26s. 8d.; Sodai, best, 27s. to 28s. 3d.; medium, 24s. 5d. to 26s. 3d.

HIOGO AND OSAKA.—There is no business reported from these settlements.

SHANGHAI.—The following is from Messrs. C. J. Skeggs and Co.'s Circular:—At the close of last English mail a few hundred bales were settled hurriedly at an advance of about Tls. 10, and this was maintained in transactions for the French steamer, which took away 307 bales, leaving 300 to 400 bales already settled to go forward by the present opportunity. Business since then has gone on very quietly, and as buying has been in the hands of comparatively few operators, combined with the desire of some holders to realise before Chinese New Year, the market is now decidedly weaker, although without quotable alteration in prices. The total settlements for the fortnight are estimated at about 1,200 bales, including the following chops:—"Worm and Leaf" and Yakee, Tls. 545, equal to 28s. 8d.; "Cock and Worm," Tls. 540, equal to 28s. 5d.; Red Peacocks, Tls. 457½, equal to 24s. 2d. Common descriptions have increased their already comparatively high cost, 21s. 6d. being now the lowest quotation for very inferior Tsatlees and Taysaams, which are still scarce, and have again fetched longer prices.

Digitized by Google

JAVA AND STRAITS PRODUCE.

BATAVIA.—Arrack: Business insignificant; f.95 per leaguer had been the nominal quotation throughout; no buyers over f.90. Coffee: Locally a few petty transactions in secondary Palembang at about f.25 per picul reported. The event of the month had been the Government auction of Coffee at Padang on the 31st Dec., when 37,400 piculs prime quality fetched f.35.47 per picul on the average, and 2,000 piculs second quality, f.18.11 per picul on the average.

SINGAPORE.—Gambier again slightly firmer; some small purchases had been made at $3.02½; but dealers held off and refused to sell under $3.05—only about 250 tons had been engaged in all. Bontyne Coffee though in full supply maintained its price. Black Pepper: About 4,000 to 5,000 piculs had been taken at $7.30 to $7.35 for Singapore. White had been bought in small quantities at $10¾ per picul. Sago and Sago flour: Transactions small; prices unchanged. Tapioca slightly lower; very little done Purchases reported of Camphor, Cassia Vera, Horns, Hides, Gutta-Percha Nutmegs, and Mace. Tin, $28¾ to $29 per picul for best Malacca brands

PENANG.—Tin opened at $26.80, and gradually declined to $26; the quantity actually offering was small. Pepper: The first arrival of West Coast, about 3,400 piculs, was offering at $7.75 per picul, but there were no transactions to report. Cloves: Zanzibar had been nearly cleared at from $6¾ to $7¼ per picul, and a lot of Penang offered was secured at $19¼ per picul. Catch taken at $4.40 per picul in boxes. Hides in meagre supply; arrivals of Cow purchased at $14, and of Buffalo at $9.90 to 10¼, according to quality. Horns $9.70 to 10, according to size. Purchases of Mace, No. 1, at $70 to 76 per picul, of Nutmegs at $61½ for 75 nuts per lb., $49½ for 110 per lb., and $50 for 115 nuts per lb.

EXPORT OF TEA AND SILK, SEASON 1869-70.

TO GREAT BRITAIN.

Date.	From Yokohama & Nagasaki.	From Shanghai and Hankow	From Foochow.	From Amoy.	From Canton, Macao, &c.	Total lbs.	SILK Total Bales & Cses
From June 1 to Dec. 31, 1869	74573	67441165	46726884	1349918	13045128	128637668	32478
Corresponding period last season	751407	65565678	49583375	...	12129197	127969657	49022

Shipments Since;

Dec. 29 per Figaro (via Foochow)	From Shanghai	...	202,807*
1870.
Jan. 4 ... Donnai (Fr. ml. str.)	... Do., &c.	...	—	399
— 11 ... Madras (ml. str.)	... Do.	...	—	1,376

* Included in above total.

TO THE CONTINENT.

							Bales.
From June 1 to Dec. 31, 1869	...	...	...	...	...	2049417	11330
Corresponding period last season	...	...	...	...	...	3476339	16617

Shipments Since;

Dec. 31 per Esmeralda	From Hong Kong	... 29,590*
1870.
Jan. 4 ... Donnai (Fr. ml. str.)	... Shanghai, &c.	... —	475
— 11 ... Madras (ml. str.)	... Do.	... —	232

* Included in above total.

TO UNITED STATES.

							Pcls.
From June 1 to Dec. 31, 1869	...	...	...	...	...	27097311	834
Corresponding period last season	...	...	...	...	...	24489775	1,318

Shipments Since;

Dec. 18 per Horatio	From Shanghai	... 468,827*
— 20 ... Grenadier	... Yokohama	... 613,381*
— 22 ... Costa Rica	... Shanghai	... 163,924*
— 25 ... Springfield	... Foochow	...1,029,400*
— 30 ... Avonvale	... Shanghai	... 354,013*
1870.
Jan. 4 ... Homer	... Foochow	... 505,400
— 5 ... Alexandra	... Amoy	... 169,720

* Included in above total.

TO AUSTRALIA.

From June 1 to Dec. 31, 1869	... 11,112,391 lbs.
Corresponding period last year	... 15,714,349

Shipments Since;

1870.
Jan. 6 per Fullerton	... 226,640

TO GREAT BRITAIN.

				Tea—lbs.	Silk bales China & Japan.
From 1843 to 1844	...	...	...	51,022,600	...*
,, 1845 to 1846	...	...	...	57,334,200	18,604
,, 1850 to 1851	...	...	...	63,972,000	22,143
,, 1853 to 1854	...	...	...	77,327,800	61,280
,, 1855 to 1856	...	...	...	92,240 300	50,481
,, 1857 to 1858	...	...	...	76,990,255	68,315
,, 1858 to 1859	...	...	...	65,789,792	83,134
,, 1859 to 1860	...	...	...	85,560,452	64,169
,, 1860 to 1861	...	...	...	90,066,160	76,644
,, 1861 to 1862	...	...	...	109,854,040	79,199
,, 1862 to 1863	...	...	...	121,273,580	72,887
,, 1863 to 1864	...	...	...	117,463,586	46,603
,, 1864 to 1865	...	...	...	121,236 870	32,313
,, 1865 to 1866	...	...	...	118,383,042	62,890
,, 1866 to 1867	...	...	...	118,423,290	50,052
,, 1867 to 1868	...	...	...	116,890,430	57,449
,, 1868 to 1869	...	...	...	142,789,804	70,917

* Including the Continent.

EXCHANGES, &c.

[For dates, see first page.]

ON LONDON.

At	Bank Bills.	Credits.	Documentary.
Yokohama, 6 m. s. ...	4s. 5½d.	4s. 6d.	4s. 6¼d.
Shanghai ,, ,, ...	6s. 0¼d.	6s. 0¼d.	6s. 0¾d.
Canton ,, ,, }
Hong Kong ,, ,, }	4s. 5½d.	4s. 5¾d.	4s. 5¾d.
Macao ,, ,, }
Singapore ,, ,, ...	4s. 6½d.	4s. 6¾d.	4s. 7d.
Manilla ,, ,, ...	4s. 3d.	4s. 3½d.	4s. 3¼d.
Colombo ,, ,, ...	par	1 to 2 dis.	1 to 2 dis.

MISCELLANEOUS.

—	At Shanghai.	At Hong Kong.
Bills on India	299 to 300	221½
,, Hong Kong	25½ to 26 dis.	—
Bar silver	111.6.0	9½ prem.
Mexican dollars	74.7.5	¼ prem.

Bons, at Yokohama, 337 to 346 per 100 dols.

SHARES AT HONG KONG.

Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank, New, 17½; Old, 31 to 32 per cent. premium.
Hong Kong Gas Company, 44 dols. per share.
Hong Kong and Whampoa Dock, 6 to 7 per cent. discount.
Union Dock Company, 45 to 50 per cent. discount.
China Traders' Insurance, 1,400 dols. premium.
Hotel shares, 50 to 60 per cent. discount.
Hong Kong and Macao Steamboat Company, 29 per cent. premium.

SILK SHIPPERS FROM YOKOHAMA.

To 26th Dec., 1869.

	Bales.		Bales.
Aspinall, Cornes, and Co. ...	541	Prato and Co....	59
Aymonin and Co.	387	Ravel, Blanc, and Co. ...	391
Bernard, E., and Co.]... ...	97	Ross, Barber, and Co. ...	343
Bavier and Co.	219	Reiss and Co....	251
Comi, V.	241	Sitwell, J. A.	42
Davidson, James	99	Schultz, Reis, and Co. ...	198
Fraser, J. C., and Co. ...	77	Shaw, Winstanley, and Co. ...	188
Gilman and Co.	182	Seyd, E., and Co.	28
Grosser and Co.	18	Siber and Brennwald... ...	161
Gutschow and Co.	365	Smith, Baker, and Co. ...	44
Heard, A., and Co.	110	Stephenson, Dallas, and Co.'...	18
Hecht, Lilienthal, and Co. ...	103	Strachan and Thomas ...	685
Hooper Bros.	75	Textor and Co.	217
Hudson, Malcolm, and Co. ...	84	Thorel and Co.	74
Jacquemot, J. M.	8	Valmale, Schoene, and Milsom	229
Jardine, Matheson, and Co. ...	15	Wilkin and Robison	415
Knifler, L., and Co.	34	Walsh, Hall, and Co. ..	39
Leggatt, C. E., and Co. ...	79	Ziegler and Co.	37
Macpherson and Marshall ...	221	Sundries	114
Morf, H. C., and Co.... ...	6
Netherlands Trading Company	60	Total	6,490
Petrocochino, P. E., and Co....	41

Shipping Intelligence.

ARRIVALS.

At HIOGO.—From London, Nov. 26, Eastern Chief; Dec. 10, Johanna Maria.

At OSAKA.—From London, Dec. 6, Sampan.

At YOKOHAMA.—From London, Dec. 20, Rockliff; from Liverpool, 22, Finzell; from Cardiff, 18, Assyrian; from Bordeaux, 25 Minerva.

At SHANGHAI.—From London, Dec. 30, Dartmouth; Jan. 1, Sir William Wallace.

At HONG KONG and CANTON.—From London, Dec. 27, Geologist; 30, Lauderdale; Jan. 1, Borealis; 6, Sophie; from Cardiff, 1, Killarney, Ferdinand, Niagara; 6, Rangoon; 9, Agathe, Johanna; from Liverpool, 6, Vistula; from Hamburg, 1, Pallas; 10, Bertha; from New York, 4, Witch of the Wave.

At MANILA.—From Liverpool, Jan. 2, Juliana; from Glasgow, Dec. 29, Marie de C.; from Cadiz, 24, Tutuan.

At SINGAPORE.—None.

At PENANG.—From London, Jan. 16, Alvington; from Liverpool, 13, Achilles (steamer).

At BATAVIA.—From Rotterdam, Jan. 5, Cornelis, W. Edouard; 6 Triton; from Bordeaux, 5, Henri Joseph; from Newcastle, Annie Storey.

DEPARTURES.

From HIOGO.—For New York, Dec. 5, Ravensbourne.

From YOKOHAMA.—For New York, Dec. 20, Grenadier.

From SHANGHAI.—For London, Dec. 31, Figaro, for New York; 31, Avonvale, Elizabeth Nicholson.

From FOOCHOW.—For Amsterdam, Jan. 1, Ensign; for New York, Dec. 25, Springfield; Jan. 4, Homer.

From AMOY.—For New York, Jan. 5, Alexandria.

From HONG KONG and CANTON.—For Falmouth, Dec. 31, Esmeralda; for Hamburg, Jan. 1, Guaymas; for Havana, 7, Neva.

From MANILA.—For London, Dec. 22, Doriga, for Liverpool, &c., Gloria.

Digitized by Google

From SINGAPORE.—For Hamburg, Jan. 11, Margot.
From PENANG.—None.
From BATAVIA.—For Holland, Dec. 39, Imperator Alexander II.; for America, Jan. 9, (via Penang) Auburn.

VESSELS LOADING.

At YOKOHAMA.—For Marseilles, Paris Port de Mer; for New York, Westbury, Rockoff, Havelock (put back), Crest of the Wave.
At SHANGHAI.—For London, Omba, Callisto, Fontenaye; for New York, Good Hope, Harlow, Sarah Nicholson, City of Perth.
At FOOCHOW.—For London, Red Riding Hood, Coulnakyle, Portland, Westburn (since reported by telegram as lost); for New York Avon.
At HONG KONG and CANTON.—For London, Neville, Dudbrook; for New York, Music.
At MANILA.—For London, Victoria; for Copenhagen, Havfruen; for Cadiz, Elena; for New York via Boston, Adelina.
At SINGAPORE.—For London, Staffa, Glenlyon; for Liverpool, M. C. Nelson; for Falmouth, Edith.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS.

At HIOGO.—To New York, £2 5s. to £2 10s. per ton of 40 cubic feet
At YOKOHAMA.—To New York, £2 to £2 5s. per ton, per P. M steamer, $45.
At SHANGHAI.—To London, £2; to New York, £2 10s.
At FOOCHOW.—To London, £2 to £2 10s.
At HONG KONG and CANTON.—To London, £2.
At MANILA.—To London, Sugar, £2 10s.; Hemp, £3. To New York, $8 to 9.
At SINGAPORE.—For England, rates remain unaltered, say £2 2s. 6d. to £2 10s. To New York, £2 10s. dead weight, £2 15s. light freight
At BATAVIA.—To Continent, Sugar f.45 50c.

VESSELS PASSED STRAITS OF SUNDA.

Date.	Ship.	From	To.
Dec. 23	Alieor	... Hong Kong	... Hamburg
„ —	Siam	... Singapore	... Boston
„ —	Barbadian	... Shanghai	... Falmouth
„ —	A. C. Otis	... Manila	... New York
„ 26	Mille	... Marseilles	... Saigon
„ —	Jedo	... Batavia	... Rotterdam
„ 27	Rifleman	... Yokohama	... Boston
„ —	Ravensbourne	... Hiogo	... New York
„ 30	st. Bangkok	... Glasgow	... Singapore
Jan. 2	Arracan	... Hong Kong	... New York
„ —	Earl of Dalhousie	... Foochow	... London
„ —	Bunker Hill	... Manila	... Boston
„ —	Henri Joseph	... Bordeaux	... Batavia
„ —	Polly Lewis	... Singapore	... Boston
„ —	Etha Rickmers	... Shanghai	... New York
„ 7	Cosmopolita	... Manila	... Cadiz

CASUALTIES.

YOKOHAMA.

The British barque Finzel left Liverpool July 31, 1869, bound to Yokohama. Experienced fine weather and moderate breezes until making the coast of Japan, when she encountered strong gales of wind from N. and N.N.E. On Nov. 10 spoke the barque Martha Kay in lat. 4.6 S., long. 125.30 E. from Liverpool to Yedo 138 days out; all well. In the early part of the passage a stowaway was lost overboard.

HONG KONG.

The Lauderdale, from London to Shanghai, put into this port on the 30th ult. in distress. She is a total wreck, but her cargo is not so badly damaged as to necessitate the whole of it being sold by auction in this market, as was at one time feared.

The steamer Fusiyama left Hong Kong for Yokohama on Dec. 5, with full cargo, chiefly of rice. On the 7th and 8th, experienced terrific weather near the Pescadores, it being the intention to pass to the eastward of Formosa. The cargo shifting, it was necessary to put about, and make for the port of Amoy. Boats and deck-houses were swept away, and the decks flooded extensively during the gale, while much more damage was done to the furniture of the ship. With some difficulty they fetched to Amoy on the evening of the 10th, and repairing damages left again on the 13th. Experienced strong winds and heavy weather all the way to this port, which reached at 1 A.M. on the 23rd. Passed the French frigate Venus at anchor on the coast of China, from stress of weather, and apparently labouring very much.

COMMERCIAL POSTSCRIPT.

The report and accounts of the Indo-European Telegraph Company to the 31st Dec. have been issued. The report says:—With the opening of the line winter weather of extraordinary severity set in in Persia and the south of Russia, commencing with sleet and heavy falls, followed up by intense cold, indicated by a fall of the thermometer of from 20° to 30° Reaumur below zero. The wires being weighted by a thick coating of sleet were drawn tight by the cold, and broke in hard places or at defective joints. Considering the length of the line wire exposed to these causes exceeds 5000 miles, the number of these casualties has been extremely small, and would not have caused any sensible interruption of the service, notwithstanding the intense cold and the circumstance that the ground was deeply covered with snow, had not no other disturbing cause presented itself.

SHIPPING.

DEPARTURES.—From Shields, for Java, Lord of the Isles; Feb. 18, from Plymouth, for Sourabaya, California, after repairing; 17, from Cardiff, for Manila, Auguste; 19, from Liverpool, for Batavia, Konigin Augusta; 20, for Manila, Aurora.

LAID ON.—At London, for Singapore, Hong Kong, Shanghai, Nagasaki, and Yokohama (via Suez Canal), Nile (steamer); for Shanghai Jungfrau, Black Adder.

SPOKEN.—County of Ayr, Padang to Rotterdam, Dec. 16, 13 S., 10 W.

MISCELLANEOUS.—The Glenduror was towed off the main on the morning of the 19th inst., making but little water, and was safely docked in the Victoria Docks the same day. Advices from Vannees received at Nantes Feb. 17, state that great anxiety was felt there concerning the Behrend (Ger. ship), Nagel, which sailed from Bordeaux Jan. 28, for Yokohama; a case, the marks and contents of which are said to have been perfectly recognised as those of one shipped by that vessel, having been found ashore near Vannes.

LATEST TELEGRAMS.

CHINA.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS, RECEIVED FEB. 18, 1870.)

HONG KONG, FEB. 1.—Grey Shirtings, 6¼ catties, 8¼ lb., $2.82½; quiet. Water-twist, 16-24, $1 40; quiet, prices drooping. Cotton, Bengal, fair medium, $19. Tea, Canton quiet and unchanged; Foochow, unchanged. Exchange on London, Bank bills, six months, 4s. 5¼d.
Latest date received from London Jan. 8.

SHANGHAI, JAN. 26.—Grey Shirtings, 6¼ catties, 8¼ lb., 2.25 taels, steady. Cotton: Shanghai, 19 taels. Tea, Hankow, nothing doing. Shanghai, black, active but unchanged. Green, fair demand. Silk, firm, but less active; No. 3 Taatlee, 550 taels. Settlements since departure of last mail, 800 bales. Stock, Shanghai, 1,000 bales. Japan, 1,500 bales. Export to date (China and Japan), from commencement of season, 47,000 bales. Exchange on London, Bank bills, six months, 6s. 0¼d. Freights: Tea, £2. Latest date received from London, 3rd Jan.

JAVA.

BATAVIA, JAN. 25.—Java Coffee, f.30 to f.31; Sugar, No. 16, f.16 to f.16½; Rice, 1st quality, f.165 to f.175; 2nd quality, f.140 to f.150; Rattans, f.13; Arrack, f.90 to f.95; Madapollams, Dutch bleached, f.53¾ to f.66; Drills, Dutch bleached, f.8¾; to f.9. Freight, f.55 to f 60; Change on Holland, f.101 to f.102.75. Arrivals: Admiraal de Ruyter, Aldebaran, Bellatrix, Jacoba Cornelia, Maria Adriana, Padang Packet, Waterloo. Departures: Doelwyk, Voorlichter.

SINGAPORE, FEB. 10.—A private telegram quotes 8¼ lbs. Grey Shirtings, $8; Mule Twist, 40's, $150.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, AND DEATHS.

BIRTHS.

LOUREIRO—On the 22nd Dec., 1869, at Nagasaki, Japan, the wife of Pedro Loureiro Esq., Shanghai, of a son.
MOULE—On the 5th Jan., at the Church Mission House, Hong Kong, the wife of the Rev. George E. Moule, of a son.
RAWLING—On the 16th Feb., at Beaumont House, Stoke, Devonport, the wife of S. B. Rawling, Esq., of a son.
SANGSTER—On the 15th Feb., at Weybridge, Surrey, the wife of Charles F. A. Sangster, of Hong Kong, China, of a daughter.
WILKINSON—On the 16th Dec., at the British Legation, Yokohama, the wife of H. S. Wilkinson, Esq., of a son.

MARRIAGES.

ALLEN—DARE.—On the 8th Jan., at St. Andrew's Church, Singapore, by the Rev. J. Alleyne Beckles, Colonial Chaplain, Whitworth Allen, Esq., son of the late J. E. Allen, Esq., of Leytonstone, Essex, to Annie Maria, fourth daughter of the late George Julius Dare, Esq., of Singapore. No cards.
CROSS—GARDINER.—On the 15th Feb., at the Manchester Cathedral, by the Rev. J. Troutbeck, M.A., William Bowyer Cross, Esq., solicitor, Bradford, to Ada, youngest daughter of the late Lot Gardiner, Esq., of Bradford. No cards.
KEMP—DAVIS.—On the 10th Feb., the Rev. John Kemp, M.A., Chaplain of Sarawak, Borneo, eldest son of Capt. Kemp, Cavalry Staff, to Ellen Hobbes, third daughter of the Rev. Thomas Davis, M.A., Vicar of Roundhay.
KING—MORRIS.—On the 26th Jan., at Zion Church, New York, by the Rev. C. D. Jackson, D.D., assisted by the Right Rev. Horatio Southgate, D.D., LL.D., David King, jun., of China, to Helen Van Cortlandt, daughter of Richard L. Morris, M.D., of Pelham, N.Y.
LITTLE—MILLER.—On the 31st Dec., at the British Consulate, Shanghai, Louis Stromeyer Little, M.D., to Rosetta Annie Miller, daughter of the late James Miller, M.D., of London.
MACCALL—TROTTER.—On the 17th Feb., at Musselburg, N.B., by the Rev. Wm. Wilson, Edward Maccall, of the Agra Bank (Limited), Shanghai, China, to Alice Jane, second daughter of the late John Trotter, Esq., Edinburgh Academy. No cards.

DEATHS.

HOEY—On the 28th Dec., at Yokohama, Henry Edmund Hoey, murdered by Japanese assassins.
JAMIESON—On the 21st Dec., 1869, at Hankow, Colin Francis, the infant son of Robert and Kate Jamieson, aged fifteen months.
OVERWEG—On the 29th Dec., at Shanghai, Mr. C. W. Overweg.
WALLER—On the 1st Jan., at Bachelor's Hall, Penang, Harriet, relict of the late George Waller, Esq., R.N., aged 63 years.

STEAMER "FAR EAST."—This handsome little steamer, lately launched by Messrs. Blackwood and Loudon, is nearly ready to proceed to Singapore, via Suez Canal. She will be the first steamer from Glasgow which has proceeded East by this route.

STEAMER "PRIAM."—On the 18th instant Messrs. Scott and Co. launched from their building yard a handsome screw steamer of 2,000 tons, which was named Priam. Engines on the compound principle will be supplied by the Greenock Foundry Company. The Priam, which is owned by Mr. Alfred Holt, Liverpool, is intended for the China trade. The new steamer is a very handsome vessel, and it is expected she will attain a high rate of speed.

Digitized by Google

OPIUM VERSUS CHRISTIANITY.

(Continued.)

The article in the Recorder proceeds :—

"Many of the adherents were natives of the country, but some were of foreign extraction, and these I soon discovered to be the most wealthy and powerful. The organisation of the sect, while far simpler than that adopted by the worshipper of 'Kali,' was even more terribly effective. Though all the members owned allegiance to a deity called 'Sycee,' which was probably only the Indian deity under a new name, they were nominally of all races, castes, and religions — this fearful occupation has a bond of union, the profits of which were large enough to make them loth to leave it. . . . But the greatest surprise was yet to come: a friend informed me that there was another organisation established in the land, the professed object of which was the extinction, not merely of murder, but of every other form of wrong-doing, and the encouragement of benevolence and love. Now, then, thought I, there is a gleam of hope for this unhappy country. There are some who stand aloof from Thugs of every class, and who are bonded together in the sacred interests of human life and happiness, and though in a minority as yet, and doubtless often vilified and despised, their cause will one day triumph, for it would be a libel upon humanity to believe that such crimes against God and man can go on unchecked for ever. With such feelings I attended one of their most solemn meetings, determined to join them heart and soul. Over the door, as I entered the room, I read these words, 'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength; and then thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.' Imagine my astonishment then on finding myself at once surrounded by the very men whom I had supposed would be the last to come there. 'What! do you receive Thugs here?' said I, turning to one who held a prominent position in this anti-murder association. 'How do you reconcile this with your principles? Have these persons relinquished their evil habit?' 'Oh!' was the reply, 'we insist upon a general recognition of the evil of murder, but avoid pushing things to extremes,' &c., &c." The gist of this parable is that the writer, as you see, calls all Thugs who have in any way connection with opium, and whose God is Sycee; the "other organisation" were missionaries in another city—his elders, and let us hope, his betters; they had more charity at least—who held that under certain circumstances, smokers of opium might be admitted members of the Church; for so doing, the writer of this article calls them an anti-murder association, and considers them as guilty as any Thug.

Next follows "Opium and other Narcotics," by J. G. Kerr, M.D., who says, "With regard to the extent of opium smoking, there are no data from which to make a reliable statement. It is indeed a matter of no consequence to have the accurate statistics on this point. It is sufficient to know that in addition to native product, $58,200,000 worth of opium is annually imported, all of which is consumed—partly by smokers, and partly as a poison for self destruction. Hundreds, and perhaps thousands, of lives are lost annually in this province by suicides, and many of them merely because the poison is so easily obtained. Perhaps, for all China, 10,000 deaths annually would not be too high an estimate. Whether the number who use opium is more or less than any given estimate is a matter of entire indifference, as far as the morality of the question is concerned. If there is any wrong or guilt on the part of those who supply it to the Chinese, the wrong and the guilt will insure the penalty, whether there be one thousand or ten thousand who suffer."

The effects of opium smoking are physical and moral; acting through the body, it reaches the soul. While the one wastes away, the other is corrupted and degraded. While the appetite for the fascinating poison grows stronger and stronger, the moral perception becomes blunted, the sensibilities hardened; and finally the gratification of the morbid appetite becomes the controlling motion of every purpose and act. The effects of opium have been observed and described by many authors, and a short residence in China will enable any one to study them for himself. I purpose here only to point out these effects, and the order in which they occur. In doing this it will be useful to compare it with other drugs which are more or less similar in their action on the human system, and which are in common use in some parts of the world more civilised than China. Indeed, there is reason to believe that some persons who are very anxious to put a stop to the trade in and use of opium in China, give their influence to encourage the production, sale, and use of one or both of these articles. In medical books opium is called a stimulant narcotic, and the order of its action on the chief organs of the body may be stated as follow :—

Opium affects, 1st, the brain; 2nd, the heart; 3rd, the stomach.
Whisky, do. do. do.
Tobacco, do. do. do.

From the brain, the whole nervous system is affected; and through the heart, the entire circulation of the blood; and through the stomach, the entire digestion and assimilative apparatus is influenced.

The effects of opium on these organs are divided into various stages, and the order of their succession is as below :—

Opium, 1st, excites; 2nd, depresses; 3rd, deranges.
Whisky, do. do. do.
Tobacco, do. do. do.

The excitement and depression are temporary; but the derangement of the nervous, circulating, and digestive functions of the body are paramount in cases of habitual indulgence.

The effects on the mind may be stated as follows :—

Opium excites the intellectual faculties.
Whisky do. do.
Tobacco do. do.

The use of stimulants to excite the intellectual faculties is often resorted to, when it is desired to put forth a special effort. They are also used to commit deeds from which the mind would otherwise shrink. It will no doubt be admitted that the excessive use of Opium depraves the moral sensibilities.

Whisky do. do.
Tobacco do. do.

And the ruin of the physical, moral, and intellectual nature of man from intemperance is too frequent a sight to call for evidence here. But some may not be ready to admit that the habitual use in moderate quantities of stimulant narcotics depraves the moral sensibilities. Of such an one, I would ask what conclusion he could deduce from the facts stated above, or such parts of them as he admits to be fact? Can he avoid the conclusion that the use of Opium is useless, injurious, and therefore sinful?

Whisky do. do. do.
Tobacco do. do. do.

Or will he contend that he can indulge in the habitual use of drugs which are of no use, but are positively injurious, without depraving his moral sensibilities, and hardening his conscience? To any one who is of this opinion, it is a matter of indifference which of the three articles referred to he prefers.

But if he indulges in one, and I choose another, I aver that he has no right to come to pull the beam out of my eye until he has got rid of the mote in his own eye. Or if he is a church officer, I contend that he with his cigar in his mouth, or the wine bottle on his table, has no right to exclude a poor Chinese brother from the church because he has a weakness for his opium. There are other considerations which may help to decide doubtful questions concerning stimulants and narcotics.

Opium leads to excess; whisky ditto, ditto; tobacco ditto, ditto. While a given person may not be led on to excessive indulgence, his example will lead others who have less firmness, or may be exposed to more powerful temptations. The question of the use of money is one which often comes up in connection with habits of indulgence, which depraved moral sensibilities are often insufficient to overcome. In some cases it takes the form of food or no food for wife and children. In others, of the use and abuse of means given to men to be used for God's glory. The statement will, no doubt, be admitted by most persons that the use of opium causes waste and tends to poverty; whisky ditto, ditto; tobacco ditto, ditto. This cannot be otherwise; there is waste of land and of labour in producing articles which are injurious, and there is waste in consuming articles which are both useless and injurious, and which corrupt man's moral nature. Poverty and crime are the natural offspring of indulgence in drugs which vitiate the normal state of the body and its relations to the soul. The reason why these three articles are similar in their effects on the human system is made clear by the researches of modern chemistry. The family likeness is seen in the fact that Opium contains a powerful poison ... Morphia.

Whisky ... ... Alcohol.
Tobacco ... ... Nicotine.

The above consideration will, I trust, aid somewhat in giving a clear idea of the nature of that poison which has so fascinating a charm for the Chinese, and which in many thousands of instances presents an insuperable obstacle to their acceptance of Christian
It is a subject of solemn importance to all who seek by precept and example to enforce the truth upon the heathen.

The next, and so far as yet published, the last article of the series, is on "The Evils of Opium Smoking," by the Rev. W. H. Collins, M.D., Peking. He says: "It is some months since I was asked by your agent in Peking to send you the results of my experience of the evils of opium smoking. I have hitherto refrained from so doing, for the subject is a painful one, on which I would rather not speak or write. I feel, however, that it is a duty incumbent on me to add my testimony to the accumulated evidence of others. I am specially drawn to write at this present moment, because I fear that Kerr's well-intentioned paper will be productive of harm to the cause. That letter is calculated to lead, rather than to arouse, the conscience of those implicated in the trade. If we class opium, tobacco, and spirits together, as being equally injurious to the human constitution, we either cast discredit on our own powers of observation, or we convince those who are only too willing to believe that the use of opium is not more injurious in its effects than the use of the other two articles, which are very generally believed to be innocuous if taken in moderation . .

"Opium smokers are, as a rule, excluded from Christian communion, and that with the approbation of the native converts, but I think no one would continue to exclude all who either use tobacco or spirits in moderation. In the remarks which I make on this curse of China, I desire to confirm the observations of others, but will avoid, as far as possible, going over the same ground. As regards the number of opium smokers in China, no estimate that I have seen can be regarded as an over-statement.

Digitized by Google

"While in the country a few days since, a man of wealth of about sixty years of age came to me for medical treatment. I asked him if he smoked opium. He replied, 'No. I had a brother who died of opium smoking, and, would rather live a few years longer.' After this gentleman's departure, I was told he had seven sons, five of whom smoked; one of these sons has since become a patient. Another man, himself a smoker, told me that his sister had smoked herself to death. She smoked an ounce daily. Such cases are frequent. I have frequently seen it (opium) on the Kang, and been urged to partake. My refusal has often been received with surprise, and the question has been asked, 'Does not opium come from your country?' .This, of course, I deny; but unfortunately am obliged to admit that both my Sovereign and my fellow-countrymen are deeply implicated in the trade, and that in pursuit of gain they ignore the terrible evils which result from such unrighteous traffic. One evil incidental to opium smoking, which I have heard denounced by a victim, is the great loss of time involved. An ordinary amount of opium—two candarins—occupies in smoking, one to two hours daily; so that the higher amounts—one ounce and upwards—must take a large portion of the available time in a day. However, an opium smoker's day is very short. In the country a large part of a Chinaman's working day passes before breakfast; but an opium smoker is unable to do anything until after his first dose, which he takes after breakfast; then before daylight is gone he must take his dinner, and the dose which comes after it, even if he does not take a mid-day pipe, as many do. In what I have said I have simply related my own experience. I have not drawn upon my imagination, nor do I wish to call that of my readers' into exercise. I do not wish to prejudice any reader by what may appear exaggeration. Accusations of misstatement have been made against those who plead against the opium trade, but only by those who have but a superficial or limited acquaintance with these people."

The writer of this is not in favour of the opium trade, and would gladly see it done away with both in India and in China, there being no doubt that opium is injurious if taken in any quantity, and the natives of China seem so weak as to be unable to resist the use of it. Such being the case, would it not be well for the rulers in China to put a stop to its growth in China, and when they have shown the British Government that they were really in earnest in putting a stop to in China to ask them as a favour to humanity to put a stop to its importation from India into China.

Such a request, I feel sure, would at once meet with the attention it would so well deserve from the British Parliament and Government. The duty has just been increased on Indian opium with the consent of our Government, makes it still higher, so that it might be almost prohibited. There would not be another Opium War to force it on the people, as they said the last war did, when they compelled foreigners to deliver up some 29,000 chests of opium, and then destroyed it.

But does any one acquainted with the doings of the rulers in China for one moment think that these rulers will put a stop to the growth of opium so long as it puts anything into their pockets? and that it adds largely to the revenue of the provincial rulers there can be no doubt. See Cousin's memorial in Dr. Dudgeon's second paper, and others. On the other hand, is the Government of China really able to put a stop to its growth in all the fifteen provinces in which it is grown? So long as the mandarins farm the revenue of their posts, as they do at present (for they get but a nominal salary), throughout the length and breadth of the land, we may rest assured that the Government will not be able to put a stop to the growth of opium in China; the utmost they will likely do will be to issue edicts against it, to which little or no attention is ever paid, and, judging by effects, it would seem as if it was not intended that any attention should be paid to them. Should this extra duty of twenty taels per picul be imposed on foreign opium, as proposed by the new treaty, we only add so much as a revenue to the Chinese Government, and as a protection to the native growers, and against the Indian growers of the drug. This protective duty of twenty taels per picul amounts to about £350,000 a-year.

LICENSED GAMBLING IN HONG KONG.

IN the House of Commons last session it will be remembered that Colonel SYKES asked for copies of all correspondence, memorials, and other papers relating to the ordinances of the Hong Kong Legislative Council establishing gambling-houses in the colony under Government control. These papers have at length been issued, after a delay of nine months, and their perusal affords a complete history of the discussion between Sir RICHARD MACDONNELL on the one side and the numerous objectors to his scheme on the other. These dissentients argued that a Government had no right to increase its revenue by means which rendered necessary the sanctioning and encouragement of vice, while, on the other hand it was shown that it was impossible to raise an effectual check against the practice of gambling in the colony, and that the Ordinance would have the effect of keeping the gambling-houses under inspection and control thereby mitigating an evil which it was impossible completely to eradicate. Many of the documents contained in the present series have been noticed in previous issues of this journal; for instance, in the London and China Telegraph of the 22nd February last we gave the text of a memorial of the Social Science Association on the question, and reported the proceedings of a deputation received by Earl GRANVILLE. These documents and reports are reproduced, and in addition there are copies of correspondence between Sir RICHARD MACDONNELL and the SECRETARY of STATE—not hitherto made public—which show the favourable working of the Ordinance in the decrease of crime among the Chinese. There is likewise a despatch from Sir RICHARD, calling attention to some charges made against Mr. CALDWELL, and commenting thereupon; and this we subjoin:—

Government House, Hong Kong, July 3, 1869.

My Lord,—I have the honour to acknowledge receipt of your Lordship's despatch, covering a communication dated 16th April last from the Secretary of the National Association for Promotion of Social Science. In that letter Mr. Pears, by direction of the Association's standing Committee, draws your Lordship's attention to an article in the Overland China Mail of the 23rd February last, of the correctness of which "they are assured there is no doubt." The paragraph in question is the report of proceedings before the police magistrate, in connection with the examination of witnesses against certain Chinese prisoners accused of being implicated in the murder of Mr. Holworthy last January. The Crown solicitor appeared for the prosecution, and the paragraph alluded to states that "Mr. D. Caldwell watched the case on the same behalf."

There is absolutely no foundation for such a statement. Mr. Caldwell had no authority or instructions from this Government, nor, so far as I am aware, from any one else, to "watch the case;" but as the information which led to the arrest of the prisoners had been given to him in the first instance, and there was a large reward in the event of a conviction, he was no doubt anxious to watch what passed, especially as his thorough knowledge of the colloquial Chinese enabled him to perceive any misinterpretation of the evidence. I believe Mr. Caldwell is often employed by private parties for this purpose, and certainly, if I thought it likely that his aid would enable me to trace the murderers of Mr. Holworthy, it would be a singular course for the Social Science Association, or any individual, to attempt to prevent Mr. Caldwell's knowledge of the language being availed of for such a purpose. As a matter of fact, however, the statement in the newspaper had no foundation, and the Government had nothing whatever to do with Mr. Caldwell beyond taking proceedings or information which his informer had supplied, as would have been done on equally probable information furnished through any other party. I have, however, already so fully placed before Her Majesty's Government the actual position of Mr. Caldwell that I need not repeat myself here. It is sufficient to state that, so far from Mr. Caldwell being an agent of this Government, the despatches referred to show that he has, if anything, been dealt with more severely than otherwise by the executive here.

Opinions of Members of Council and leading persons of this community, in other words, of persons highly competent to judge, as well as the general feeling of confidence in Mr. Caldwell entertained by the native population, receive from me simply their due share of respect, but no more. If, however, the Social Science Association expects Her Majesty's Government can be induced to countenance a renewed persecution of Mr. Caldwell by Messrs. Anstey and Murrow, I hope such expectations will be disappointed. There is a strong opinion here that Mr. Caldwell has been hardly dealt with and overborne by the superior ability of his enemies and the power wielded by Mr. Murrow as proprietor of a local journal. I am, however, satisfied that his indiscretion in former years laid him fairly open to charges, for the result of which, even though they were probably untrue, he has no one but himself to blame. Meantime I venture to hope that the honour and character of the Queen's service are quite as safe in my hands as of those who have most antipathy to Mr. Caldwell.—I have, &c., (Signed) RICHARD GRAVES MACDONNELL, Governor.

The Right Hon. Earl Granville, K.G., &c., &c., &c.

From the reply of Earl GRANVILLE to the above despatch we extract the following:—

Downing street, October 7, 1869.

Sir,—I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your despatches relating to the licensing of Gaming Houses in Hong Kong, and the disposal of the funds derived from that source, and I now proceed to inform you of the decision at which I have arrived in regard to the several points raised in that correspondence. After a full consideration of your two despatches of the 6th March, and of your further despatch of the 28th April, with the opinions of the members of your Executive Council on the best mode of issuing licences, I am of opinion that it will be desirable as soon as possible to adopt such means in regard to the allotment of licences as will prevent the recurrence of such a very questionable transaction as that in which Mr. Caldwell was concerned, and that the surest way of attaining that end will be by an alteration of the present method of issuing them. If the present agreement with the Gambling House lessees is for a determinate term, it must, therefore, in accordance with my opinion, be allowed to expire at the end of that term; but if it is virtually at will, it should be allowed to run on for so long as may be considered fair to the licensees, but not longer than for six months from the receipt of this despatch. At the expiration of that period I have to instruct you to adopt a new system of issuing licences which does not leave it in the power of the Governor to choose the licensee without rule from among competing tenderers. I am of opinion, nevertheless, that before proceeding to open tenders or draw lots it should be within the power of the Governor, with the advice of his Executive Council, to exclude tenderers who are apparently not proper persons to receive a licence. The reasons for such rejection should, however, be always recorded. It is only due to you, in desiring that such alterations should be made, that I should express my belief that by continuing to the present time the system which has been in force you have been actuated by a desire to do what was for the best as regards the interests of the colony.

I cannot admit that any difficulty whatever need exist in keeping a clear account of the receipts of the Gambling Licence Fund and the disbursements from it, though I fear that difficulty may be found in showing those disbursements to have been duly authorised.—I have, &c.,

(Signed) GRANVILLE.

Governor Sir R. G. MacDonnell, C.B., &c., &c., &c.

Digitized by Google

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

THE CONVENTION WITH CHINA.

(Feb. 15th.) Mr. AKROYD asked the Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs whether he was aware of the strong objections raised by the China merchants, both in China and in this country, to the terms of the supplementary convention to the Treaty of Tientsin, negotiated by Sir Rutherford Alcock, Her Majesty's Ambassador in China; and, whether or not the Government would delay the ratification of that Convention until the opinions of British merchants engaged in the trade had been fully ascertained.

Mr. OTWAY was understood to say that the Government were certainly anxious to have the opinions of the Chinese merchants both here and in China on so important a matter as the supplementary convention to the Treaty of Tientsin. One of the articles of the Convention provided for its ratification at Peking; and the Government would have an opportunity of learning the opinions of the merchants before the ratification occurred.

THE CONSULAR SERVICE.

(Feb. 18th.) Mr. HOLMS called attention to the present position of the Consular Service. After reviewing the labours of various committees on the subject, he analysed closely the financial arrangements of the service, quoting numerous instances in which the expenses of the Consul outweighed the trade done. He advocated strongly the restriction of the Consuls to commercial duties, and moved two resolutions declaring that the expenditure on the department is capable of reduction, and that the control of it should be transferred to the Board of Trade.

Mr. EASTWICK seconded the motion, pointing out that the political zeal of Consuls had more than once brought us to the verge of war, and arguing that the separation of the Diplomatic and Consular Services would be beneficial to both.

Mr. R. SHAW, on the other hand, was of opinion that the House, having just appointed a committee on this very question, ought not prematurely to pronounce an opinion.

Mr. OTWAY, on behalf of the Government, took the same line, and protested against fettering the committee by an abstract resolution. The increase in the cost of the Consular Service was caused by the extension of trade, and, doubting the expediency of placing it under the Board of Trade, he maintained that there had been no complaint of hindrance of trade arising from the action of the Foreign-office.

After some observations from M. S. BEAUMONT, who dissented from the transfer of the Consuls to the Board of Trade, and from Mr. KINNAIRD, the motion was withdrawn.

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY.

RE GEORGE MELBOURN.

The bankrupt was described as a merchant, of Leadenhall-street, and traded in partnership as "Morgan, Melbourn, and Co.," in England and Java. The liabilities upon the joint and separate accounts are estimated at about £600,000, and the assets at present in hand exceed £3,000. The former sitting for examination and discharge was adjourned in consequence of the bankrupt's illness, and it was now stated that certain requisitions which had been tendered to the bankrupt remained unanswered. Mr. Bagley appeared for the assignees; Mr. Robertson Griffiths for creditors for £4,870; Mr. Albert Turner for the bankrupt's wife, who claimed to be a creditor for £7,000; and another learned gentleman for the bankrupt.

Mr. Bagley suggested that there must be an adjournment to enable the bankrupt to answer the requisitions, and to hold a private sitting to investigate the claims against the estate. This was strenuously objected to by the solicitor for the bankrupt. Mr. Griffiths, as far as his clients were concerned, desired no further adjournment. He stated that their claim had been filed as far back as June last, and he could not conceive that any reasonable objection could now be made to the admission of the claim by way of proof. He was now in a condition to examine the bankrupt upon the subject. Mr. A. Turner objected to parts of the requisitions being answered by the bankrupt, as that would involve the filing of joint accounts which he had been informed by the accountant employed would cost £500. His payment would come out of the joint estate, and thereby diminish his client's dividend.

The Registrar thought that, as Mr. Commissioner Holroyd had ordered the bankrupt to answer certain requisitions, he had no power to review that Commissioner's decision. He thought it better that the sitting should be adjourned, and that a private meeting should be held to investigate the two large claims tendered by Mr. Griffiths and Mr. A. Turner. The bankrupt's solicitor gave notice of his intention to appeal to the Lords Justices.

A NEW DEER IN CHINA.—The Secretary of the Zoological Society has received from Mr. Swinhoe a description of a new deer from China, which Mr. Swinhoe regarded as constituting a new genus of the family Cervidæ, distinguished by the large canines, and the entire want of horns in both sexes; this deer, common on the islands on the lower part of the river Yangtsze-Kiang, near Ching-Kiang, is often brought into the market of that city, but appeared hitherto to have escaped the observation of naturalists; and Mr. Swinhoe proposed to call it Hydropotes inermis.

Colonel T. W. Milward, R.A., has been appointed to the post of Superintendent of the Royal Laboratory, vacant by the retirement of Major-General Boxer. Colonel Milward served during part of the Crimean campaign, and in the expedition to China in 1860, when he was present at Sinho, Tangku, and the capture of the Taku forts as captain of one of the first batteries of rifled Armstrong's sent on active service.

GRANT'S LINE VIA KIACHTA.—By the circular on the last page of this issue it will be seen that the time of transit for the couriers has been reduced to ten days and a-half. The service is now open until the 29th November.

Foreign Intelligence.

RUSSIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 8.

Important reforms in the administration of the Government in Siberia and the Amoor country are about to be introduced, at the suggestion and according to the proposals of General Skolkoff, who spent some time in those provinces last year. The office of Governor-General of Western Siberia is to be abolished, and the government of Tobolsk raised to the rank of a separate province, under the immediate administration of the Minister of the Interior, whilst the present Government of Tomsk is to be incorporated with the Governor-Generalship of Eastern Siberia. With regard to the two Kirghese districts, forming hitherto part of Western Siberia, nothing definite is yet settled; but it is proposed and under consideration to unite them under the administration of the Governor-General of Orenburg. The Governments of Irkutzk, Jenesselsk, and Tomsk, as well as the districts of Jakutzk, the Baikal Lake, the Amoor, and the sea coast, hitherto forming the Province of Eastern Siberia, are to be united and form a new Governor-Generalship, with the seat of government either at Strietensk or Blagovitchensk, and to this the central administration of the military department of Eastern Siberia will be removed. With special regard to the Amoor country, I may add that a part of the project is to abandon the present port of Nicolayefsk and transfer the Government establishments there to Vladivostock, on the Muravieff-Amoorsky promontory in Victoria Bay, of which the Rev. W. Lloyd, chaplain of H.M.S. Scylla, gave such a graphic account in 1867 to the Royal Geographical Society, which interesting paper (with a map) is to be found in the Journal of that Society (Vol. XXXVII., p. 212-231). The Governor-General of Eastern Siberia has written to the Central Government here asking permission to send back to their former homes, at the expense of the Government, the widows and orphans of deceased Poles who voluntarily followed their husbands and fathers in their banishment, and are now deprived of all means of support.

The Golos publishes a supplement containing a report on the proposed Siberian Railway, read on the 27th ult. at a meeting of the Society for Promoting Russian Industry and Trade. The large attendance of members and their friends is a proof of the importance attached to the subject by the public in this metropolis. M. Poletika, after reading the report, made a speech, in which he expressed himself in favour of the Northern line, and was supported by two other speakers. On the other hand, the Southern line was warmly defended by a merchant of Kiachta, Noskoff by name, in which he stated that he not only expressed the wishes and opinions of the great majority of the inhabitants of Siberia, but that it was also the shorter and cheaper of the two competing projected lines. A warm discussion ensued, but no conclusion was arrived at that evening, and the subject was allowed to stand over till the next meeting.

HOLLAND.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ROTTERDAM, Feb. 14.

The Utrechtsch Dagblad states "upon good authority" that the project to establish a direct steam line between Holland and Java, via the Suez Canal, has at length been realised. The Dagblad goes on to say that, according to the report of the Commission of Inquiry (whose members are Prince Henry of the Netherlands and Messrs. G. J. Boelen, J. G. Bunge, and J. Boissevain), after a consultation with the Dutch Trading Company, the Minister of the Colonial Department has entered into a contract with the proposed steam line company. The principal stipulations of this contract are that the state will charter during the next four years each year ten steamers of 480 lasts in average, against a minimum freight of f.97.50. On the other hand, preference is to be given by the company to the state for the transport of goods and soldiers to the East. The Commission has stipulated that steamers of very large tonnage must be built for the line, that the voyage is to be made within six weeks, and that the harbours from whence the steamers start in Holland are to be fixed. It will be necessary to organise lighter services for Rotterdam and Amsterdam. The vessels will be screw-steamers of 2,000 tons, with engines of 325-horse power, and the company has contracted with one of the principal shipbuilders on the Clyde for the construction of the first five steamers. Within a year the service will be opened, and measures have been taken in such a manner that even if the depth of the Suez Canal is not increased a regular and punctual service will be ensured. Prince Henry has taken the greatest interest in this undertaking, and will be appointed president of the council of management. Three directors are to be appointed, amongst them the ex naval officer, Mr. Ch. J. Vichoff, who for some years has been engaged with the French Transatlantic Packet lines. The prospectus of the new company will be very shortly issued. The Nieuwe Rotterdamsche Courant confirms the important communication of its Utrecht contemporary in every detail.

To-morrow (Tuesday) the sitting of the Second Chamber will be opened. Mr. J. C van Reenen has been elected M P. for Amsterdam; he received 1,039 votes, and the Liberal candidate, Professor Asser, 939 votes. The Government has replied to the section report of the Second Chamber on the Agrarian Bill for Java. Some alterations have been made in the original measure. The most important among them is that the Government will not dispose of land owned by natives, either for sugar cultivation or for other purposes, without compensation being rendered.

Several English engineers have memorialised our Government to grant them a concession for laying telegraph cables between Java, British India, and Australia. According to the Vaderland the minister of the financial department will very soon lay before the member of Parliament a Bill for the introduction of a penny post system. We have had very cold weather; the canals and rivers are covered with ice, and communication is suspended.

Digitized by Google

Some papers speak of difficulties which have arisen between our Government and that of Luxembourg with regard to a monetary question. If even these rumours should prove to be true, it will be but "a storm in a tea-cup." According to a correspondence, published by the Independance, we claim a certain number of millions of francs, while the Luxembourg Government maintains that it does not owe us a sou.

H.M. the Queen will start in a few days for England, and will pass some time at Torquay. The French papers have put in circulation a rumour to the effect that Prince Frederic is dangerously ill at Cannes, which on dit is as much without foundation as that with reference to the Prince of Orange, who was said to be about to contract an alliance with a certain princess. Prince Henri returned in good health from his trip to Egypt.

The Chamber of Trade at Oldenzeel (Twenthe) has forwarded an address to the Minister of Foreign Affairs urging upon him the necessity of establishing a diplomatic mission to China, which the Chamber demonstrates of the greatest importance to the interests of commerce.

From Munchen I have received news that the well known engineer, Mr. F. W. Conrad, on his return from Egypt, died on the 1st inst. He was born in 1800 at Sparendam. Our important public works, which have been under his superintendence since 1825, are the best and most durable testimonials of his capacities.

In well informed circles it is asserted that the Minister of the War Department intends to resign. Several names circulate as those of his successor, but nothing is known with certainty.

At last the Radical paper—Het Noorden—has been published at Amsterdam. Its aim is to establish a new Liberal, or rather Radical party.

His Majesty has appointed Commander of the Order of the Netherlands Lion the Chargé d'Affaires of the German League at Japan.

COMMERCIAL.

The Staats Courant of the 4th inst. published a review of the trade and shipping of Java and Madura for 1868, from which I extract the following particulars:—The private import into Java and Madura amounted to f.46,795,158, and the Government import to f.16,159,283; together, f.59,954,441—that is, f.13 798,612 less than in 1867. The private export amounted to f.63,349,487, and the Government export to f.43,386,356; together, f.106,735,843, being f.11,370,838 less than in 1867. From Holland were imported, for private account, f.19,302,955; from England, f.7,640,661; from France. f.578,036; from America, f.263,074; from China, f.896,923; from Manila, f.407,864; from Japan, f.42,553; from Australia, f.603,927; from the Indian Archipelago, f.13,340,425. The Government imported from Holland f.15,382,546; from Bengal, f.764,975; from Borneo, f.1,062; from Sumbawa, f.10,700. The principal private imports consisted of—Cotton manufactures, f.14 586,979; provisions. f.2,709,124; wines and spirits, f.2,227,847; ironworks and engines, f.601,475. The exports included f.40 208,967 to Holland, f.722,375 to England, f.828,124 to America, f.830,166 to China, f.2,231,615 to Australia. The principal articles of export were:—

	Government Account.	Private Account.
Indigo	f.64 965 ...	f.2,650,671
Coffee	25,501,029 ...	4,386,440
Spices	101 003 ...	169,153
Sugar	10,030,502 ...	22,510.286
Tobacco	— ...	2,638,187
Tea	— ...	306,793
Tin	4,299,253 ...	1,891,118

From Holland there arrived 119 vessels, measuring 48,736 lasts; from the other countries in Europe, 111 vessels, measuring 39,424 lasts; from America, 15 vessels, measuring 5,089. The departures from Java and Madura for Holland were 573 vessels, measuring 207,566 lasts; to other European countries, 9 vessels, measuring 2,576 lasts. The Customs duties (import and export) amounted in 1868 to f.5,425,791.54, against f.6,897,895.17 in 1867.

The colonial produce markets have shown some tendency towards improvement, and there has been partial revival of speculative demand. Prices have, consequently, in several instances, experienced a slight recovery.

COFFEE.—In waiting for the particulars of the forthcoming auction of the Dutch Trading Company, which will take place on the 16th inst., when 98,400 bags Java, Macassar, and Menado will be offered, only a trifling business has been done, and the market is very dull. Holders, however, decline to operate without a further advance. Good ordinary Java is quoted 35c The transactions include 1,500 bags Java, ex Madura, at 32c.; 500 bags ditto, ex Royal Sovereign; 1,336 bags Java, ex Electric, at 39½c. to 40½c.; 400 bags ditto, ex Vesta, at 34½c. to 44¾c.; 1,380 bags ditto, ex Gutenberg, at 36c. to 39½c.; 1,650 bags Padang, ex Jan van Brakel, at 36½c. to 41½c. The total unsold stock of the Trading Company is 258,800 bags; stock on warrants, 177,600 bags; the private stock, 32,600 bags.

TEA.—The auction on the 10th inst. of the cargo of China Tea, ex Deerfoot, from Foochow, has given the following result:—

Chests.		Chests.		Sold at.	Lots bght. in.
806/4 and	1,024/12	Superfine Kyshow Congo		86c. to 111c.	...
943	,, 909	Extra Superfine Kyshow Congo ...		100c. to 114c.	... 7
268	,, 1,461	Extra Superfine Lapseng Souchong...		100c. to 157c.	... 14
165	,, —	Finest Flowery Pecco		230c. to 246c.	... 8
920	,, 800	Extra Superfine Kyshow Congo ...		92c. to 111c.	... 57
1,207	,, 978	Superfine Kyshow Congo		85c. to 90c.	... 54

In private auction 90/4 chests Java Congo, and 816/4 chests Java Souchong realised the following prices:—

40/4	chests	Congo, Mark Nangoeng	81c.
311	,,	Souchong, Mark Nangoeng	90c. to 91c.
23	,,	Congo, Mark Singa Nangoeng ...	85c.
356	,,	Souchong, Mark Singa Nangoeng ...	105c. to 107c.
7	,,	Congo, Mark Dramaga	87c.
85	,,	Souchong, Mark Dramaga	93c. to 95c.
20	,,	Congo Mark Madjo	81c.
64	,,	Souchong, Mark Madjo...	80c. to 82c.

A public auction is announced for the 11th March, at which 62928/4, and 136/12 chests Java will be offered.

SUGAR (RAW).—The market is very dull, and the transactions only include 1,394 mats Passaroeang, floating, per Finella, No. 13, at f.35½; 365 mats Batavia, ex Euphrosyne, No. 9/10, at f.32½; 1,300 mats Passaroeang, ex Strathblane, at secret prices; 523 mats Passaroeang floating, per Glenduror—which vessels ran ashore at Kingsdown—No. 14½. The stock of Raw Sugar was on the 31st ult. 23.839,268 kilo.

JAVA TOBACCO.—The following parcels were sold in public auction:—834 bags Java Djarit, at 59½; 1,127 bags Java G.P., at 29¾; 1,273 bales Java, mark BJDL, in average 32c.; 193 bales Java, mark AM, in average 25½c.; 78 bales Java, mark N, in average 21½c.; 1,773 bales Java, mark LC, in average 31c.; 992 bales Java, mark DTP, 28¾c.; 626 bales Java, mark ETB/Kota, in average 27c.; 246 bales Java, mark ETB/Gedek, in average 37½c.; 1,890 bales Java, mark JC & HVR, in average 32¾c.; 461 bales Java, mark Birit, in average 343-5ths c.; 346 bales Sumatra, mark Paya Combo, in average 36¾c.; 52 bales Sumatra, mark S, A, in average 31c. The largest quantity was taken for account of English houses.

SPICES.—131 mats and 936 bales Java Cinnamon, ex Argo, Aeroliet, and Zephir sold in auction; the mats at 170 to 189c.; the bales at 40 to 59c.

ARRACK.—The market is firmer, and prices are advancing. 75 casks, ex Johann, from Passaroeang, 100 casks, ex Atlas, from Batavia, 110 casks, ex Haamste, have been sold at prices that did not transpire.

INDIGO.—An important business might be done, but holders decline to operate without a further advance. The transactions include about 100 chests.

MANILA SEGARS.—350,000 Manila 2a cortados were partly sold at f.34½, the remainder being bought in at f 35 to f.36.

DRUGS.—Camphor without transactions. Holders decline to operate except at an advance. The quotation of Japan is nominal at 53c. to 54c.

JAPAN WAX.—The value of A is f.46; of B, f.44.

CASSIA VERA.—270 bales, ex Julee, from Padang, sold at secret prices. Gutta Percha: In good demand, but there is want of stock.

RATTANS.—235 piculs, ex Gutenberg; 110 piculs, ex Zephir; and 100 piculs, ex Royal Sovereign, sold.

BANCA TIN.—A favourable condition of the markets has given place to dullness. The closing price is f.68.

TERRA JAPONICA.—390 mats and 70 kranjangs are offered at f.13.

SHIPPING.

There have been no arrivals or departures since my last letter. The Trading Company has chartered the following vessels to convey produce from Java:—To Amsterdam: Antjie, P. van der Hoog, at f 78.45; Petronella, J. Rotgans, at f.78.76; Gerard Pieter Servatius, G. de Joode, at f.78.78; Gesina, B. Ordeman, at f.78.95; Vesta, C. A. Bakker, at f.78.95; Amstelstroom, S. W. F. Kretschmer, at f.79.80; Henriette, J. R. Brouwer, at f.79.85; Gezina Maria, J. C. Rolff, at f.79.85; Aletta Augusta, J. A. Tinholt, at f.79.97; Jonge Cornelia, G. J. Goekoop, at f.80; Bastiaan Pot, J. D. P. Zetteler, at f.81.81; Petronella, W. F. Leicher, at f.82; Ferdinand and Louis, J. Vogelsang, at f.82.40; Galilei, B. S. van der Meij, at f.82.68; Flevo, J. C. Strootman, at f.82.68. To Rotterdam: Nieuwe Waterweg I., E. von Lindern, at f.75.74; Helena, J. van Leeuwen, at f.75.74. To Dordrecht: Anna Margaretha, F. W. A. v. Munchen, at f.75.74. To Middelburg: Maasnymph, P. Vogelezang, at f.79.95. To Schiedam: Honigbij, J. van der Valk, at f.78.77.

DENMARK.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 12.

In my letter of January 11 I gave you some particulars respecting the arrangements made between the Danish Government and the new China Telegraph Company, and am now enabled to add some further details. The Tordenskjold, the vessel selected for the service of laying the cable, is a first class frigate of the Danish navy; but as the heavy guns of her main deck battery have been removed, only the upper tier remain, and for this expedition she will be manned with a less numerous crew, and take official rank pro tempore as a corvette. The Government will bear the expense of the alterations to adapt her for taking on board the telegraph cable, estimated at 15,000 rix dollars, as well as the 20,000 rix dollars for fitting her out. On the other hand, the company have agreed to pay all the other charges, which are calculated to come to about 100,000 rix dollars, including 30.000 rix dollars for steam fuel. The expenses of a screw corvette on an exercising cruise are about 5,600 rix dollars per month, and that is about what the expedition of the Tordenskjold will cost. With the cable on board stowed away in her hold she will draw 18 ft. 8 in. of water forward and 21 ft. aft, so that on the outward voyage she will be unable to pass through the Suez Canal, but must go by the old route round the Cape of Good Hope.

BREAKFAST.—EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—The very agreeable character of this preparation has rendered it a general favourite. The Civil Service Gazette remarks:—"The singular success which Mr. Epps has attained by his homœopathic preparation of cocoa has never been surpassed by any experimentalist By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills." Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in tin-lined packets, labelled—JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London.

Digitized by Google

RUSSIAN AGGRESSION.

NOT many years since the English public was seized with quite a panic of fear for the safety of our Indian possessions. "Russian Aggression" was the key-note, and a party of alarmists hammered at it until they persuaded themselves that there was indeed imminent danger that the Colossus of the North was about to swallow British India at a mouthful. Of course these fears were absurdly exaggerated, and good service was done by those who urged a more temperate view of the situation, pointing out that the operations of Russia in an Eastern direction that had excited all this commotion, might well be accounted for by the necessity of securing her outlying provinces, and of protecting and fostering a legitimate trade. But we have often had reason to doubt whether the pacification was not too complete, and whether after all there were not some grounds for those suspicions which, under the influence of sneers at "Russophobia" and so forth, have given place to what may not improbably prove a false sense of security. In a paper read by M. TCHICKATCHEF before the British Association last year, that gentleman endeavoured to prove, not only that Russia had no hostile designs on India, but that even if she had, they would be rendered impracticable by various insurmountable obstacles, the chief of these being the independent states lying between the Russian possessions and our own. He argued, in effect, that any attack on India was impossible, because the Indian frontier was guarded by a belt of territory, either of such a nature as to prohibit military operations, or peopled by nations friendly to Great Britain; and, further, that even were it not so guarded, the accumulation of sufficient forces and warlike materiel in those wild and distant regions was impossible. And these views were, to all appearance, readily accepted by M. TCHICKACHEF'S hearers.

To us they appear somewhat less convincing. It is indisputable that during the past few years Russian dominion has made rapid strides in Central Asia, but these are of even less importance to England than her repeated encroachments on China. We have good reason to believe that a further cession of territory from China to Russia has just been secretly accomplished, and that it includes a large tract that actually borders on British India. Should this prove true—and if not true already, it may become so at any moment—the alleged safeguard of foreign states intervening between Russia and India is swept away at one blow. We announced some time since that a new Convention had been concluded between Russia and China; it was taken by M. VLANGALI from Peking to St. Petersburg for ratification, in the summer of last year. To this Convention, we now learn, some secret articles are atttached, whereby the Russians become masters of a considerable portion of Chinese Turkestan, in close proximity to, if not in actual contact with, our Indian frontier, as well as Yarkand, with the cities of Kashgar and Khotan. Until lately, the secret was admirably kept, but at last it has oozed out among the Chinese, and is naturally received among them with indignation. The Russians at Peking do not deny it altogether, but while admitting the acquisition by their Government of a territory on the borders of India, they affect to regard it as of trifling importance, describing it as a moderate-sized tract of "steppen" land, like that of Persia. We learn also that the other foreign Ministers at Peking have been kept quite in the dark as regards this transaction, and have as yet vainly endeavoured to obtain either particulars or proofs, although they have reason to believe that a Russian officer of engineers who recently arrived at Peking came for the special purpose of defining the new frontier line. It is known to a correspondent of ours at Peking that a member of the Russian Legation has for the last two or three years made the outlying Mahometan possessions of China his especial study, and that not long ago the Russian War-office sent him a map of those provinces for revision and correction; at this very time the Indian Government had applied to our Minister at Peking for information on the same subject—but he was in complete ignorance, and could afford none.

It is matter of history now, that the Emperor NICHOLAS was encouraged in his designs on Turkey by a belief that the "peace party" was too strong in England to admit of our going to war in defence of the Porte. The result showed that he had deceived himself, and Russian aggression, at any rate in that quarter, received a severe check. But who shall say that these stealthy movements to the Far East are not made with the view of approaching India from another quarter? Does it not seem as if Russia, like a serpent foiled in its first direct attack, was gradually coiling itself round the body of its victim, so that it should be powerless to avert the next stroke? The idea gains strength if you spread out a map of Asia before you, and note the conquests Russia has made in Central Asia, the territory she has taken from China, and her advance southwards in the Island of Saghalien, not forgetting either the attempt made only a few years ago to occupy the Tsusima group, so temptingly situate midway between Japan and Korea. There is reason to apprehend that the next steps will be the annexation of Mongolia, Manchuria and Korea; these occupied, the Northern Chinese provinces of Chih-li, Shan-si, and Shan-tung would fall an easy prey, and the Yellow River would become the boundary line. The conquest of these Northern provinces would not be at all difficult; the Mongols detest the Chinese, looking on them as an inferior race, and would be glad to be led against China. These Mongols, too, are a warlike race, and when once they had been led to victory by Russian generals, would furnish the material for a formidable army to invade India.

To many readers all this may seem chimerical, or at any rate too far off to be worth a moment's serious anxiety. But we submit that the contingency against which we ought to be on our guard is not so very remote. This secret Convention—for that there is one is certain, though our description of it may not be precisely accurate; the absence of all confidence between the Russian Minister at Peking and the other foreign representatives, and the solicitude of the Russian War-office about the outlying states under Chinese rule, are all evidences of this; and recent advices from St. Petersburg tell us that a new province is about to be formed in Eastern Siberia, including the districts of Baikal, Amouria, and Yakoutsk, of which the seat of Government (and of course the chief military station) will be at Strjetensk, on the Chinese frontier (See London and China Express, of Feb. 11). But it is idle to point out the danger to our present Government. The party of peace—peace at any price, even the price of national humiliation and disgrace, is again in power, and more rampant than ever. What matters it that England's best and richest possessions are endangered, so long as Lord CLARENDON can claim credit for preserving peaceful relations with all the world, and Mr. LOWE is enabled to point triumphantly to a surplus? Unfortunately, there is a strange sort of apathy regarding Indian affairs, not only among the general public, but even in the House of Commons. It is just the same too with colonial affairs. An old story says that the ostrich, when pursued, hides his head in the sand, or in a bush, under the impression that as he can't see his pursuers, they can't see him—but it is obvious that his brief dream of security is likely to be rudely dispelled. Comparisons are odious, but—is not our present Government, in regard to these matters, very much like an ostrich?

RAILWAYS IN JAPAN.

ONCE more we have occasion to comment on the marked contrast exhibited between the hostile spirit with which civilisation is viewed in China and the eager welcome it receives in Japan. The news brought by this mail of the conclusion of an arrangement with Mr. LAY for constructing a railway is most satisfactory proof of the willingness of the Japanese to advance in the path of progress. They don't send a "mission" to Europe to make long-winded assertions of their intentions to do what is right, but they set to work to do it in a business-like manner. We can see no objection whatever to the Government undertaking the construction of railways on its own account, instead of leaving them to joint-stock enterprise; the materials and the engineering skill must come from Europe, and the work, when finished, must lead to other similar ones; while every mile of railway opened in Japan must help to reconcile the natives to European innovations, and bring their ideas more into concord with our own. We heartily wish Mr. LAY a larger measure of success with this scheme than attended his attempt to establish an Anglo-Chinese fleet.

Digitized by Google

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS, CORRESPONDENTS, &c.

No notice can be taken of anonymous correspondence. Whatever is intended for insertion must be accompanied by the name and address of the writer, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith.

A REGISTER is kept of the addresses of all persons connected with the FAR EAST, and reference can be made to the same by personal application at the Office or by letter.

Any Information required by Subscribers, in reference to Commercial or general matters in CHINA, JAPAN, SINGAPORE, and other parts of the FAR EAST, will be supplied on application at the Office, where files may be seen of the Journals published in those Countries.

The "LONDON AND CHINA TELEGRAPH" is published on the arrival of the fortnightly English mail, and the monthly French mail. Subscription, 30s. per annum; with Export Supplement, £2 2s.

The "LONDON AND CHINA EXPRESS" is published on the day of departure of the mails, and contains a Summary of English, Continental, and American, News-Commercial and Shipping Reports, &c. Subscription, 54s. per annum; with Export Supplement, 66s.

JAMES WEST, PUBLISHER,
2, COWPER'S-COURT, CORNHILL, LONDON.

The London & China Telegraph.

LONDON: MONDAY, FEB. 21, 1870.

GOVERNOR ORD AND THE STRAITS ASSOCIATION.

IN September last Sir HARRY ORD, Governor of the Straits Settlements, indited a despatch to Earl GRANVILLE in answer to certain representations made to the Colonial-office by the Straits Settlements Association. A copy of this despatch was very properly forwarded by Lord GRANVILLE to the Association; a committee was appointed to draw up a reply to it; and the two documents are now before us. The Association have caused the Governor's despatch to be printed, not as it was written, but with the various clauses bearing on each subject grouped together, interpolating their own comments on each group; and this analysis is prefaced by a short letter addressed to Earl GRANVILLE, wherein Mr. GUTHRIE (Deputy Chairman of the Association) combats the assertion of Governor ORD that the actions of that body have been based on erroneous and unsound views, and that they have in fact been actuated by the most selfish motives. Indeed, the Governor's despatch exhibits, from beginning to end, greater power of invective than of argument, and its tone shows that the writer was more eager to discredit the Association with Earl GRANVILLE, by impugning their motives, than to convict them of error. His statements, which are voluminous and complicated, are classed for purposes of analysis, under twelve heads; but of these we need only notice a few of the more important ones.

On the subject of the Supreme Court Bill—that attack on judicial independence so strongly protested against by the colonists—Sir HARRY ORD asserts that it was introduced by desire of Her MAJESTY'S Government, to supply a long-acknowledged defect in the law; and he totally denies the truth of the statements, that it has undermined the confidence of the Asiatic population in the Judges. In fact, he goes so far as to assert that "the native population neither "know nor care anything about the relations between the "Governor and the Judges, nor would it be easy to make them "understand it." The Association say they find the language of this paragraph confusing. So it is; as confusing as a reckless defiance alike of facts and of LINDLEY MURRAY can make it. The "rod of iron," not the goose-quill, is evidently Sir HARRY'S proper weapon, so we will forgive him his bad grammar; but he should be careful of his facts. The Association furnish copies of three petitions, numerously signed both at Singapore and Penang, showing that the Asiatic colonists, as well as the European, do clearly appreciate the importance of preserving the independence of the judges. To quote their own words, they "deem it essential that this "independence should be preserved intact, and that the "judges should never be in a position in which they might "be suspected of being under the influence of the Exe-"cutive." So Governor ORD'S defence of this point—a very weak one indeed—is demolished. It is a point too that he need not have troubled himself to defend, for if it be true that the Bill was introduced into the Colonial Legislature under pressure from the Home Government, to remedy an alleged defect in the law, the blame rests not with him, but with the Colonial-office. The alleged defect consisted solely in the fact that the Constitution of the Straits Settlements Court, as it then stood, was not precisely identical with the Courts of all other Crown Colonies; and (as the reply of the Association broadly hints) it is most unjust that a regulation quite unsuitable to one particular colony, and in fact most injurious, should be forced on it for the sake of mere uniformity.

Passing over Sir HARRY ORD'S explanation of his views regarding the raising of revenue by import and export duties, which views, he says, have been quite misunderstood (it is a pity he did not state them more clearly at first), and passing over also the quarantine and pilotage questions, we come to the cardinal subject of colonial expenditure; and this we are surprised to find rather slightingly treated in the Governor's despatch, considering that financial extravagance is one of the most serious charges brought against him by the Association. He contents himself, in effect, with saying that he is not sure the annual expenditure exceeds that under the old régime, but that if so, it has been met by an increased revenue. To this the Association reply that their strictures on the accounts of the colony cannot have been unjustified, for even before they were put forth the Colonial-office had already written to the Governor demanding an explanation of the said accounts. The Association might have added that Governor ORD'S own despatch convicted him of inconsistency here. In this paragraph (32) he says, "It is doubtful "whether the annual expenditure exceeds that under Indian "rule," while in an earlier one (9) he writes: "Although I had "but recently assumed the administration, I had seen enough "of its working to satisfy me that it was likely to be more "costly in some respects than it had been under Indian "rule. . . . I felt that prudence dictated my reminding the "Council, and through them the public, of the possibility of "further demands being made upon them to support the "Government of the Settlements." Of course this is not English, but its meaning is pretty clear; Sir HARRY decided, at a very early period, to keep up his dignity according to his own magnificent ideas, at any cost to the colony—even, if need be, at the cost of its character as a free port.

Another important point is the constitution of the Legislative Council, and the proposals made for its reform. On this head the Governor complains (in para. 28), that while the community find fault with the composition of the Council, they themselves show great indisposition to furnish Government with any assistance in conducting the public business. The fact is, that the position of the unofficial members at the Council board is so humiliating (they being mere nonentities in the presence of an overpowering force of official members), that when in April last two seats fell vacant, no gentlemen could be found to accept them, and they went begging until September, when the present occupants accepted them, on finding that, unless they did so, men unfitted for the position would be appointed. But the question of the Legislative Council has been exhaustively discussed, and there is nothing new either in the Governor's statements regarding it, or the reply of the Association. Passing, then, to another section, we find that Sir H. ORD maintains that there has been no openly expressed opposition to his rule in the Colony itself, from which reflection he seems to derive the comforting assurance that the colonists are rather fond of him than otherwise. But here, again, he is at fault. "Openly expressed opposition" can be manifested in only two ways—through the press, and by means of public meetings. As regards the former, both the chief Straits papers (the Times and the Observer) have loudly and persistently condemned him—the latter sometimes with more vigour than discretion. And as for public meetings, what need of them, with an Association here always working for the benefit of the Colony, and in constant communication with a similar organisation at Singapore? But Sir HARRY, it seems, won't be convinced of his unpopularity by anything short of tumultuous meetings, abusive harangues, and banners inscribed "Death to the Tyrant!"

And now we come to the last of the sections into which this wonderful despatch has been divided;—and it comprises fifteen paragraphs, all filled with recriminations and imputations of unworthy motives to the Association! With a laudable desire to avoid the "tu quoque" line of argument, the Association pass all these with very slight notice, save one, wherein Sir HARRY accuses the European colonists of a desire to escape taxation by "disingenuous statements," which, in plain language, means falsehood. He flatly denies the statement of the Association that European house property is heavily taxed; but they adduce figures to prove that they are right, and he once more wrong. And again, he tries to make out that taxes on business premises do not fall on the merchants at all, because they can fully recoup themselves by charging their constituents warehouse rent, &c., on the goods consigned to them; to which the Association reply that an exactly parallel statement would be, that an extra assessment on a London shopkeeper would be no burden on him, because he could put an extra price on his wares, and so make it fall on his customers. Altogether, Governor ORD's justification must be pronounced a failure. He has decidedly the worst of it on almost every point, and this must be manifest to Lord GRANVILLE. In this correspondence it will be noticed that the matters of the yacht and the palace are not touched on. Both these demand further investigation, and the true position of the colonial accounts has yet to be ascertained.

Digitized by Google

SIR R. ALCOCK ON THE NEW CONVENTION.

ALL who are interested in the subject of our relations with China must have felt a strong desire to hear what Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK had to say about his own Convention. That desire has now been doubly gratified, for the Minister has, in the first place, given a brief verbal explanation regarding his work to a deputation of merchants in Hong Kong, and, in the second place, has addressed a long despatch to the Foreign-office, which we publish in full in another part of our paper. His address to the Hong Kong merchants was of comparatively slight importance—a mere exculpation of himself, on the ground that he had acted simply as the agent of the home Government, who considered the present concessions made by the Chinese "were all that were required." As far as that point is concerned, no more need be said—it is sufficiently plain that no man can act vigorously while his hands are tied. One statement, however, made by Sir RUTHERFORD on this occasion demands explanation; on the question of security held by us for the due fulfilment of the agreement not to impose inland duties on foreign goods, his Excellency said, "There was as good security as could be obtained in the "fact that the Chinese Customs were bound to at once de-"spatch an officer to investigate any case of squeezing." Now, this is distinctly at variance with the terms of the Treaty, as published. Neither in the document itself, nor in the supplementary rules appended to it, is there any such stipulation as Sir RUTHERFORD here describes. We have no evidence whatever that the Chinese are "bound" to send an officer to investigate any case of inland "squeezing"—and if they were, what sort of officers would be appointed, what influences brought to bear on them, and what would be the practical value of such "investigation?" The entire absence of any guarantee for the good faith of the Chinese in this respect remains a serious blot on the revised Treaty.

In his despatch to Lord CLARENDON, Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK assumes quite a different tone. In his Hong Kong speech he was rather apologetic than otherwise, and depricated criticism on the score of his stringent instructions from the Foreign-office. On the other hand, in addressing the authority whence these stringent instructions emanated, he becomes confident, and almost triumphant. He starts by saying that his new Convention "secures advantages far in advance of the objects contemplated," and proceeds to enumerate what he calls "innovations of great prospective importance." These are a "revision of the tariff"—which being directed entirely against British interests, and in favour of China, certainly possesses importance of a very disagreeable nature; "opening new ports"—a questionable benefit, seeing that we have already quite a sufficient number of external points of contract, and that some of the ports opened by the Treaty of Tientsin have proved nothing better than expensive incumbrances to our trade; "establishing bonded warehouses"—which, after all, are only to be granted at such ports as the Chinese think proper, and which, in such a country as China, will never be regarded as a safe depository for foreign goods unless their control is placed in foreign hands: "The right of navigating the inland waters in foreign-owned vessels," that is, provided those foreign-owned vessels are virtually native boats; "of renting places for storage, and temporary residence in the interior"—but only on condition of complying with restrictions perfectly childish in their nature. Of course it is easy by suppressing all unfavourable details or objectionable restrictions, and by entirely ignoring the ruinous concessions made on our side, to make these provisions look quite handsome—on paper; but when subjected to a close examination, Sir RUTHERFORD'S virtuous self-congratulations are seen to be quite gratuitous.

Some of the assumptions in Sir RUTHERFORD'S despatch are perfectly ridiculous. "The transit pass system," he says, is now superseded by conditions which "secure the foreign "merchant from all surcharge over the tariff rate for transit "of 2½ per cent. more effectually than any system of pro-"tection by transit passes could do." We again ask, how is this secured? The only substantial guarantee would be a stipulation that unless English goods were effectually protected from inland squeezes, the additional 2½ per cent. collected with the import duty should at once cease to be paid; but the treaty contains no such stipulation. Passing over some points of minor importance, we come to that part of Sir RUTHERFORD'S despatch wherein he alludes to the increased import duties on silk." "For these various advances in the "path of progress," he says, we have to pay the price of "a "small increase in the duty of two products, one Indian and "the other Chinese." A small increase! one hundred per cent. on one, and nearly seventy on the other! "As to silk," says our Minister, "the argument on the Chinese side was "irresistible. It was an article of so much value that it "could well bear a heavy duty"—and a little further on, "considering that they desired to double the duty on tea, silk, "and opium, I think they showed great moderation in being "finally content with so little"—that is, with receiving only two-thirds of their outrageous demand. But these, and other concessions on our side, Sir RUTHERFORD regards as trivial. He asks the plain, though somewhat ungrammatical question, "Have we paid too dear?" and hastens to reply, with the utmost self-complacency: "The advantages we have gained "so far preponderate over the little (!) that has been yielded, "as to leave no doubt on the subject." Just so. We, ourselves, do not entertain a particle of doubt on the subject; but for all that it is to be feared that a comparison between our views and those of the Treaty-maker himself would exhibit a very marked discrepancy!

MAILS VIA SAN FRANCISCO.

THE mistaken policy of the American Post-office authorities in declining to renew the contracts with the Cunard and Inman Companies for the performance of the Atlantic mail services has been exemplified in the delivery of the last China and Japan mails via San Francisco. The despatches were due on Saturday, the 12th inst., on which day the Cunard steamer arrived with the usual punctuality, but with "no mails." On Wednesday, the 16th, the newspapers were delivered, and on Friday—two days later—we received our letters and other despatches, nearly a week beyond the date at which, under the old regime, the delivery would have been effected. This circumstance has been the occasion of much annoyance, not only to ourselves, but to the important section of the mercantile community having relations with the Far East, and we trust that measures will be taken to avoid a repetition of the delay. The adoption of the slow steamers has not confirmed our belief in the smartness of the American people. While on the subject we may state that the Pacific Mail Company (we presume by sanction of the POSTMASTER-GENERAL) have ordered their steamers to leave Yokohama for San Francisco on the 23rd instead of the 30th of the month. This is very much complained of, as the outward steamer is due on the 27th, and letters therefore cannot be answered by that route until the 23rd of the following month. What is the U.S. POSTMASTER about?

OUR friends at Foochow, Amoy, and Hong Kong occasionally forward to us their circulars, &c., via San Francisco, but they never anticipate the P. and O. route. From Shanghai they do so occasionally, and from Japan always.

THE time for the deputation of China merchants to wait on Lord CLARENDON has not yet been fixed, owing to the non-arrival of Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK.

Digitized by Google

THE NEW CONVENTION.

—o—

CORRESPONDENCE OF SIR RUTHERFORD ALCOCK.

Sir R. Alcock to the Earl of Clarendon.

PEKING, October 28, 1869.

MY LORD,—A Supplementary Convention to the Treaty of Tientsin was signed in quadruplicate, on the 23rd instant, by his Imperial Highness the Prince of Kung and the Ministers of the Yamun, as the Plenipotentiaries of his Imperial Majesty the Emperor of China, and by me on the part of Her Majesty.

One of the four copies I have now the honour to enclose for ratification; should it be approved by Her Majesty's Government, as I trust, I believe it will be found to secure advantages far in advance of the objects contemplated in the XXVIIth Article of the Treaty. A revision of the tariff and commercial articles is all that is there provided for; but the present Convention goes much beyond this, opening new ports, establishing bonded warehouses, giving the right of navigating the inland waters in foreign-owned vessels, of renting places for storage, and temporary residence in the interior; these are all innovations of great prospective importance.

The Convention will also be found to have effected all that was contemplated as desirable by the Board of Trade in their report of the 19th of May last, and otherwise to be in general conformity with the instructions conveyed in your lordship's despatches, dated respectively the 21st of May and the 4th of June.

I shall best economise your lordship's time, I believe, in reference to details and the bearing of the different articles by enclosing a copy, with the marginal notes attached to each article, which Mr. Hart supplied at my request. This, taken with the inclosed copy of my explanatory despatch to M. de Rehfues, as the Doyen of the Corps Diplomatique, leaves me but little to add by way of explanation.

I look upon the arrangements entered into for the collection of transit dues and the total exemption of all foreign textile fabrics in the nine provinces in which are Treaty ports, as the most important advantage gained by the Convention, and, if ratified and carried into operation, I have very little doubt that the end proposed, a total exemption from such charges or exactions, will be fairly secured.

Of course this, and other stipulations, involves of necessity the concurrence of the other Treaty Powers, not only because a compulsory payment of the half-import duty at the time and place of importation has been substituted for the existing rule, which left it optional, but also from the fact that the Convention stipulates, in return for this, the reduction of duties on articles of foreign trade, and other considerable advantages. An increase in the duty on opium and on silk; the former to the amount of 2½ per cent. ad valorem, and the latter a fraction over one per cent. One part of the Convention cannot be taken, and the other rejected. It must be accepted or rejected by all the Treaty Powers, as a whole; and it is easy to see that there may be considerable difficulty in obtaining such a consensus of opinion as will be required to that end. France has always refused to be bound by any conditions attaching to concessions made to other Powers, while claiming, under the "most favoured nation" clause and two special articles, the full enjoyment of any advantages so gained. This is expressly stipulated in the IXth Article of the French Treaty, signed at Tientsin; and by the XLth Article it is still farther provided for, in the following words:—

"Il est d'ailleurs entendu que toute obligation non consignée expressément dans la présente Convention ne saura être imposé aux Consuls ou aux Agents Consulaires non plus qu'à leurs nationaux, tandis que, comme il a été stipulé, les Français jouiront de tous les droits, privilèges, immunités, et garanties quelconques qui auraient été ou qui seraient accordés par le Gouvernement Chinois à d'autres Puissances."

Were China strong enough to assert her international rights in defiance of any foreign Power, her Government could, of course, refuse to allow a right conceded to one country, under certain conditions, to be enjoyed by another irrespectively of these. They would be perfectly entitled to say, "We have engaged to give you the treatment of the most favoured nation, and are ready, in letter and spirit, to fulfil our engagement; but that does not warrant your claiming advantages without conditions which have only been conceded to another on their acceptance."

But China is scarcely in a position to assert her rights, in this or any other direction, when contested by foreign Powers. And, on the other hand, France and Prussia, and the Treaty Powers in general, may with ome reason maintain, "We have treaties with China by which we are entitled to import and export certain goods according to a tariff mutually agreed upon; consequently, no understanding between China and another Power can affect our rights in this respect without our consent." This no doubt is true; and, as it is impossible to consent that goods imported or exported under the British flag should pay a higher duty, or be bound by any restrictions or conditions not equally applicable to all nations, it naturally follows that every Treaty Power has a veto on the revision which any one may find it advantageous to make. For, assuming that it could be plainly demonstrated on the whole to be greatly to the advantage of all Treaty Powers that certain arrangements entered into by any one Power with China should come into operation, it still would rest with each Government to act upon their own opinion on such a subject, and refuse if they saw fit. This creates a very serious difficulty in the way of any revision with single Powers.

In anticipation of this difficulty, an official note, herewith enclosed, was exchanged at the signature of the Convention between the Prince of Kung and myself, distinctly recognising the necessity of deferring the giving effect to the instrument, even after the exchange of ratifications (except by mutual consent of the high contracting parties) until a common understanding had been arrived at with the other Treaty Powers, and their acceptance of the articles of the Convention, as binding upon their respective subjects, had been obtained. To this end it was farther agreed that both should invite the several Treaty Powers to give their adherence to the Convention as a whole, and applicable alike to all. The inclosed copy of the reply of M. de Rehfues to my communication on the subject merely acknowledges receipt, pending the transmission of the text of the Convention by the Tsunli Yamun.

I do not know that any explanation of each particular Article, and the objects to be attained by them is needed beyond what the inclosed documents will supply. But in a matter of so much importance it may be better, at this distance too, that any error should be on the side of excess than deficiency; and I therefore will submit a few remarks in elucidation of the chief objects which I believe to have been secured by the signature of the Convention.

It will be seen that I succeeded in part, by the omission of any stipulation as to time, in carrying out my instructions to avoid a revision for another decade. It was impossible, however, to obtain any of the concessions negotiated for last year without making it a formal revision in the sense contemplated in Article XXVII. of the Treaty of Tientsin, with the understanding that no farther demand should be made upon them on the ground of no revision having been effected. Even this was only agreed to, I believe, in consequence of my intimation that the Audience and Coolie emigration questions must be fully gone into if any definite period were fixed during which any revision to be effected now should run. As a mutual compromise, the Yamun then agreed to leave out all specification of a fixed period, and I consented, on my part, to withdraw the two questions from the list of those included for immediate settlement, and to discuss them separately.

This, however, was only the first step towards a satisfactory termination. More than once in the last six weeks the negotiations were interrupted, and to all appearance broken off altogether, in consequence of the obstructiveness which the Chinese members of the Mixed Commission displayed, and their opposition to any satisfactory measures for the relief of our trade from leking, and other charges, far in excess of the transit due of 2½ per cent., and fatal to all progress.

It became apparent, at last, that the only chance of arriving at any better result must lie in more direct negociations with the Yamên; and Mr. Hart having offered himself as a medium of semi-official communication between myself and his Excellency Wên-hsiang and the rest of the Yamun, I availed myself of his services. I believe it was mainly through his active intervention that they were at last led to see the expediency, if not the advantage, of ceding many points previously insisted upon, and offering me terms I felt justified in accepting.

I have expressed myself so strongly on many former occasions, as to the paramount importance, in any revision, of relieving our trade from the burden laid upon it by a wholly irresponsible power of taxation exercised by the local and provincial authorities, that I need not farther insist upon it here. I have only to add my conviction that the proposed arrangements hold out fair promise of the removal of long-standing abuses in this direction, and I see in them a practical solution of the difficulties caused by the exactions of the local authorities to the serious prejudice of trade.

The great objects specified under this head by the Board of Trade, I believe, will be fully secured by the measures contemplated; and the transit-pass system, liable to such grievous abuse by foreign merchants, has, at the same time, been almost entirely superseded—entirely so for the bulk of the imports in the nine provinces, and in native produce for export, in all—under conditions which, by dispensing with all distinction between native and foreign trade, leave to the provincial authorities the rights they are accustomed to exercise of inland taxation, and an interest in the increase of foreign trade, while it secures the foreign merchant from all surcharge over the tariff rate for transit of 2½ per cent. more effectually than any system of protection by transit passes could do in such a country as China. This part of the scheme thus meets the suggestion of the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce, so far as leaving the proceeds of taxation in the hands of the provincial authorities, while it gives them better protection against surcharges, and puts an end to the foreign traffic in transit dues, which was a public scandal.

The opening of two new ports in populous districts, and centres of distribution as well as consumption, in exchange for a port in Hainan, which has never been deemed worth opening, cannot fail to be a gain to commerce. Wuhu, on the Yang-tsze, has much to recommend it on its own account, but, independent of this, it was necessary to obtain it in order to bring the central Province of Anhui within the arrangement for free goods stipulated in the first Article of the Convention.

It is within such easy reach of Chinkiang that the Consular establishment there can, if necessary, provide for its wants, by detaching, temporarily or permanently, a senior assistant, if the development of trade should necessitate any surveillance on the spot. Wen-chow will, no doubt, require a small Consular establishment as soon as it is declared open; and there seems an entire concurrence of opinion as to its value in a commercial point of view. Tchang, in the Upper Yang-tsze, would have been very desirable as a Treaty Port, but I found it quite impossible to get the Yamun to accept any proposal for extension farther inland.

There was a great stand made by the Chinese for a limitation of one year for drawbacks, but they finally consented to three years—amply sufficient, I believe, for all mercantile purposes, with payment in cash for any current quarter. In both directions this will prove very advantageous to merchants, for a limitation of one year had been de facto established at Shanghai, the chief port where drawbacks are in request.

I made a final effort to obtain the admission of foreign salt, as will be seen by the inclosed correspondence. I believe the objections might not have proved so insurmountable had the Yamun felt they had to deal with Great Britain only; but to grant to England a right to import one shipload every month was to concede the same right to every other Treaty Power, and twelve times twelve ships every year would not have left much monopoly in the hands of the Salt Commissioners.

The working of coal mines at three points in the vicinity of ports, or two or three on the mainland, by foreign machinery, together with the abolition of all duty on foreign coal, as well as a reduction of duty on the native produce, will have very beneficial effects, and were desirable in themselves.

Digitized by Google

The conditional and qualified right of temporary residence, and inland navigation in foreign-owned vessels, if judiciously and quietly worked, will, I am satisfied, give foreign merchants all they can reasonably desire, and quite as much as they are in a position to turn to any good account for the present. It is too much to expect, however, that they will think so.

The introduction of a steam-tug for their use on the Poyang Lake may not be very valuable as a means of towing cargo-boats of tea, but as the first step towards familiarising the Chinese authorities and people with steam-vessels in the inland waters I think the concession far from unimportant.

The adoption of a written code of commercial law, in like manner, is more important for what it may lead to than for any immediate results. From a commercial to a civil and criminal code, founded on European principles, and an international court for its administration in all mixed cases between foreigners and natives, there are but two steps; and these once gained, extra territoriality may be dispensed with, and the greatest impediment to inland residence and unwillingness on the part of the Chinese officials to see the foreigner located in the provinces will disappear.

For these various advances in the path of progress and other concessions we have had to give something in return. A small increase in the duty of the two products, one Indian and the other Chinese, which, from their great value, can best bear it, has been the price paid. It is very certain, however distasteful to the merchants any increase may be, that not a pound less of either opium or silk will be in demand, even if it increase the price by that amount. And the 2½ per cent. in the one case, and 1 per cent. in the other, cannot, in any perceptible degree, diminish the profits of those who deal in them. Moreover, it was a case in which the British Representative could not, as the Lords of the Committee of Privy Council for Trade remark in regard to another article, tea, refuse a revision on any ground of reason or equity. On opium it is a matter of great indifference what import duty is levied while the Chinese Government has the acknowledged right to lay on any tax they please the moment it leaves the foreign importers' hands. Indeed, in the interest of India and our Indian revenue, anything calculated to give the Chinese Government an interest in the importation of the foreign article is by so much an advantage to the trade, as supplying a motive for checking the growth of the native produce, which has recently extended so greatly as to threaten the whole Indian trade, as I more particularly explained in my despatch No. 122 of the 13th instant, inclosing a reply to the Indian Government on the subject.

As to silk, the argument on the Chinese side was irresistible. It was an article of so much value and in such great demand that it could well bear a heavy duty. The present duty was actually below the scale of 5 per cent. adopted as the average for all exports and imports, and for both these reasons they were well entitled to demand an increased rate to bring it up to that average. Considering that they desired to double the duty on tea, silk, and opium, and had a direct interest in doing so, I think they showed great moderation in being finally contented with so little. Indeed the total prohibition of opium, the restriction of missionaries from inland residence, and the abolition of all extra-territoriality being the three cardinal points and chief objects of desire with the Chinese Government and all the official hierarchy, it must be matter of congratulation that they have not insisted upon any one of these as a condition of revision; that is, a revision in the sense which we alone contemplated or desired.

Besides the small increase in duty on these two articles, nothing has been conceded on our part but the plainest of all international rights, if there is to be any principle of reciprocity recognised in our relations with China, viz., the right to appoint Consuls in the British dominions. I have not for a moment forgotten the expressed wish of the Board of Trade that there should be no increase in the scale of duties, and the last instruction conveyed in your lordship's despatch No. 141 of the 4th of August, indicating a doubt as to the expediency of allowing a Chinese Consul to be appointed at Hong Kong; but this last could hardly be refused with any show of reason or justice; and as to the inconveniences to be anticipated—even supposing this Government should be prompt to avail themselves of the privilege, which is doubtful—I believe these will be found on experience to be more or less chimerical. Hong Kong is confessedly a great smuggling depôt; and the Chinese revenue, it is calculated, lose more than a quarter of a million annually in Customs revenue from its proximity to the main land. It is natural, therefore, that they should desire to put a stop to it; and, as your lordship's despatch of Aug. 20 last, with its enclosures, plainly shows, they are prepared to take as determined measures to check it as the Chinese smugglers are taking to carry it on by force. These things being so, it is much better, I conceive, that we should aid them, by legal and peaceable means, to control the smuggling proclivities of their own subjects sailing and trading from our Colony where there is a free port, than compel them to plant taxing stations, farmed out to unscrupulous guilds or Companies, and arm European-built ships of war to run "amuck" on all native vessels leaving the harbour of Hong Kong. Indeed, this course is so clearly laid down in the above-cited despatch of your lordship that I may congratulate myself on having, as I trust, fully anticipated the wishes of Her Majesty's Government by providing in the Convention for more satisfactory arrangements than those hitherto existing between the Chinese and the British Colonial authorities.

If the Consul appointed by the Chinese Government should, by controlling the smuggling propensities of his own countrymen in league with the foreign merchant, inflict any injury on Hong Kong by greatly diminishing illicit traffic, the concession contained in the Vth Article of the present Convention, giving to Hong Kong the much-desired privileges of a Chinese port in matters of transhipment, will go far to counterbalance any damage from effective action on the part of the Chinese authorities against smuggling. The legitimate trade can only gain by the measures proposed, and the suppression of that which is illicit will go far to put an end to the hostile feeling, of the existence of which as your lordship justly remarks, there can be no doubt.

Finally, these three concessions constituted the price demanded for all the Chinese were willing or could be induced to grant in the interest of foreign trade. Have we paid too dear? I think the advantages we have gained so far preponderate over the little that has been yielded as to leave no doubt on the subject.

I cannot close this review of the long-protracted negotiations and their result in the Convention without bringing to the notice of Her Majesty's Government the valuable assistance I have received from Mr. Frater, Second Secretary attached to this Legation, and Mr. Adkins, the Acting Chinese Secretary. The latter has officiated as interpreter throughout, both in the Commission and at the Yamên. Much of the labour of the whole has devoted upon these two gentlemen, and I cannot speak too highly of their unwearied zeal and assiduity.—I have, &c.

(Signed) RUTHERFORD ALCOCK.

Sir R. Alcock to M de Rehfues.

PEKING, October 20, 1869.

M. le Ministre et cher Doyen,—Referring to a previous correspondence on the subject of Treaty revision, and more especially to my last letter of December 7, 1868, addressed to M. Vlangaly, as the Doyen at that time, I have now the honour to inform you that the terms of a Convention have been agreed upon after a protracted negotiation, and will shortly be reduced to writing, preparatory to signature.

This Convention will secure all the concessions enumerated in the report of the Board of Trade under fourteen heads. As a printed copy of this document is already in your hands I need not recapitulate them here.

Something additional has been conceded on both sides, involving changes in the tariff on a few articles, and also some modifications in the mode of collecting transit-dues, and in the commercial rules, which can only take effect by common consent.

It follows indeed of necessity, from the most favoured nation clause in all the treaties, that no revision can be carried into effect without such general concurrence. Privileges or advantages cannot be unconditional, or without corresponding obligations; and these must be equally binding upon all who share the advantages in accordance with the declared object of such a clause.

For this reason amongst others, Her Majesty's Government would have preferred that no formal revision should take place until the right accrued to the other Treaty Powers, in order that all might enter into the negotiation at one time, and act in concert. The Chinese Government did not concur in this view, however, and it became necessary therefore either to waive all right to claim a revision, or enter singly into the necessary negotiations.

My instructions under these circumstances were to accept what the Chinese Government were willing to concede, though it might be only an instalment, in the hope that better terms may be obtained hereafter, either through the negotiations with which other Powers under their present Treaties will be entitled to open in successive years with the Chinese Government, or from the increasing disposition of the Government and people of China to improve their relations with foreign countries.

Her Majesty's Government have been as unwilling to remain at a standstill as to have recourse to measures of coercion, by the adoption of which the valuable trade with China would be put in jeopardy. It has seemed to them that the most prudent course would be to accept the concessions which have been obtained from the Chinese Government by fair argument and amicable representation, and to wait, as regards all other matters, the development which in the natural course of things may be looked for, and which the experience of late years gives good reason to expect will attend our future trade with China.

Such being the line of policy laid down for my guidance, I have both accepted and made concessions of more or less importance, keeping in view the material condition of the Empire, the actual situation of the Government, and the true interests of both countries. I had already last year announced to Prince Kung that I held nothing was to be gained by negotiating for the exclusive advantage of either nation to the prejudice of the other; and my conviction that the interests of both must be consulted.

I am persuaded that on no other basis can permanent relations of amity and commerce be maintained. There must be reciprocity of benefits as well as a spirit of fairness and desire for mutual accord. We may not get all that could be desired by strictly adhering to such a policy, nor obtain the most reasonable concessions even as promptly or as fully as we desire. But such as are obtained will be more willingly upheld by the Central Government, and therefore less likely to be evaded by the provincial authorities, or rendered nugatory by indirect means. A practical solution to the difficulty created by the persistent exactions of the local authorities, hitherto invested with a perfectly irresponsible power of local taxation, may thus be found when all privileges only to be extorted or maintained by force would fail.

It was not to be expected that China, for the first time in a position to negotiate as an independent and sovereign State, without preface or coercion would be disposed to concede everything and ask far nothing in return, or that the Chinese Government would not desire to avail themselves of the opportunity afforded by a revision to secure some modification of the terms which were originally imposed upon them without any choice on their part.

I think, however, a simple enumeration of the concessions made on both sides will show that there is a large balance of advantage in favour of foreign nations and their commerce. I feel sure that many existing obstacles will be removed by their aid, and increased facilities afforded for its steady development.

The chief stipulations may be briefly summed up as follows:—

It has been agreed that all provinces in which there are Treaty ports shall be thrown open to foreign textile fabrics on condition that the payment of the half-tariff transit duty shall be made simultaneously with the import duty and not left optional. Whether in foreign or native hands, in transit or going into consumption, they will, under this arrangement, be held exempt from all taxation whatsoever, from leking, and every other charge. No transit passes will be required for their protection—their foreign origin, easily ascertained, sufficing to establish immunity. In the other provinces they will have the protection as heretofore in transit to any point of destination designated by a transit certificate.

Digitized by Google

As regards native produce or merchandise for export to foreign countries, the transit certificate is to be dispensed with, and all inland duties will be paid by natives and foreigners alike without distinction; the several amounts of duties so levied being, however, entered by the officer levying the same at the different barriers or Custom-houses, on a blank form, to be supplied in advance to the merchant. The forms so filled are to be given up at the nearest barrier to the port of shipment, and on the owner or shipper applying for a permit of exportation to any foreign port, Hong Kong excepted, any excess over the half tariff duty paid will be refunded at once by the Customs. If less than the amount has been levied, the deficiency will in like manner be made up by the exporter.

In reference to these changes in the present system, some fears have been expressed that means will still be found of surcharging goods or produce entering into foreign trade. Such is the ingenuity and inveterate habit of Chinese officials, it is said, that no efficacious protection can be afforded by this or any other Treaty stipulation against such abuses. The half-tariff duty will be scrupulously collected at the port of entry, and will be so much added to the exactions hitherto enforced.

I can only say that I myself believe the system now proposed will, in the main, be successful, and greatly check, if not entirely put an end to, all such abuses. The Board of Trade, as you will have seen, approve it as perfectly equitable, and in accordance with what their lordships believed to have been the intention of the stipulation to which they relate.

There is yet another argument in its favour not to be overlooked. By the present arrangements, as above described, the provincial authorities are given what they had not before, a direct interest in the whole of the foreign export trade, inasmuch as they retain in their own hands whatever taxes they levy upon it in transit. If the collective amount of these prove in excess of the half-tariff duty the merchant is reimbursed out of the Imperial Customs.

Lastly, the argument of the faithlessness of Chinese authorities to their engagements, and their ingenuity in finding pretexts for extortion, or the arbitrary levy of taxes, if carried to its logical conclusion, woud be equally valid against any system that could be devised; and should lead to the total abandonment of all effort to remove what is defective in the existing state of things, or any farther endeavour to relieve foreign trade from the greatest obstacle to its extension and prosperity. The absolnte abolition, by Imperial decree, of all inland taxation would be just as valueless on this supposition; some of them would still be assumed to be likely to find means of evading the law and levying taxes.

Immunity from all inland taxation, but more especially the oppressive form it takes in leking duties, often levied within the ports as well as in transit, has long been felt to be the great, if not the only, desideratum in our trade with China. If this can be effected merely by making the payment of the transit commuted duty of 2½ per cent. at the time of importation, instead of a few days or weeks later, never was a great and material advantage gained at smaller cost. Even assuming the attainment of the end to be more problematic than I see reason to believe, what does the merchant risk? Paying a small transit duty at once, which, as a rule, is now paid within a few days or weeks after importation on the great bulk of foreign goods (since these, for the most part, go into the interior under transit certificates, which too often fail in securing the protection they are supposed to purchase), or paying what otherwise might be avoided for goods sold on the spot for local consumption. But even in this latter case the foreign merchants would still be largely the gainers if, by the system now contemplated, his goods are relieved from all liability to leking charges, often amounting at Amoy, not to 2½ per cent. ad valorem, but to 20, 50, and even 90 per cent., largely enhancing the cost to the native purchaser, and thus restricting, if not altogether arresting, the sale. To emancipate foreign trade from such an incubus as this our foreign merchant would gladly risk a great deal more than 2½ per cent.; and wisely, too, since such taxation as this must narrow the area of consumption when it does not destroy the market altogether.

I believe, therefore, that the balance of advantage, viewed from the least favourable point, will still be found largely in favour of a trial; and this is, perhaps, as much as can be secured in the first instance by any treaty stipulations with a country like China.

All other concessions are, comparatively speaking, unimportant, if this one advantage can be secured, immunity from local and irresponsible taxation; and I think the arrangements now contemplated offer a fair hope of all foreign texile fabrics, which form the great bulk of the import trade, being so emancipated.

Taken in connection with this, however, it was still desirable to facilitate access to inland markets, as well as the means of transport and accommodation for agents and their goods in the interior. This has accordingly been attempted under the following heads:—

1. By securing a right of navigating the inland waters, without limitation as to distance, in foreign-owned vessels of a Chinese type, under Custom-house licences and regulations.

2. A right of renting, for short but undefined periods, eithers hotels or private houses, where they might dwell and store their merchandise, though not exhibit their hong, name, or the style of their firm.

The first of these gives a right of trading along the whole coast between the Treaty ports, under Custom-house licences and regulations.

I consider that these two privileges, limited as they are, and far removed from steam navigation and right of permanent residence which the merchants demanded, make no inconsiderable advance in opening up the country. If British and other merchants will only act on what they allow quietly and judiciously, as do the Russian merchants in some of the tea districts, giving no trouble to the authorities, and exciting no alarm or hostile feeling among the people, they will have little cause to complain that the privileges fall far short of their wants.

3. The duty has been either entirely remitted or greatly reduced on watches, pepper, tin-plates, timber, coal, both foreign and native, and guano.

4. The right of re-exporting foreign grain has been conceded.

5. A steam-tug is to be placed on the Poyang Lake, for the purpose of towing British-owned vessels on the lake, and between it and Kiu-kiang. This is chiefly valuable, I conceive, as a step towards the general introduction of steam on the inland waters.

6. Bonded warehouses are to be established where they are desired by the majority of merchants.

7. A revised list of duty-free articles for personal consumption is to be made, enlarging the scope of the existing rules.

8. Dock stores are to be admitted free.

9. Drawbacks for foreign goods re-exported in any current quarter to be paid in cash; and drawbacks to be given and received in payment of dues at any time within three years of importation.

10. Tea bonds at the river ports are to be provisionally discontinued as an experiment.

11. The amount of fine to be inflicted for a false manifest is fixed by Treaty at 500 taels. It is agreed that, in future, the amount shall be determined according to the special circumstances in each case, the maximum not exceeding 500 taels. A discretionary power will thus be given to the Consuls to levy any smaller amount which may be deemed adequate upon inquiry into the merits of each case, the present high rate often defeating the purpose in view, either by being far beyond the means of masters of small vessels to pay, or disproportioned to the offence in view of extenuating circumstances.

12. It is agreed that a commercial code shall be drawn up for acceptance by all foreign Powers, based on European principles.

This I consider chiefly valuable as a first step, rather than for what it immediately secures. From a commercial code, derived from European systems of commercial law, to a civil and criminal code, such as has been long adopted in Turkey in mixed cases, there is but a short step; and this obtained, international Courts for its administration with fixed rules of procedure, such as are now in contemplation for Egypt by common consent, will follow in natural course, and prepare the way for either the modification or total abolition of extra territorial rights in China, and the gradual assimilation of two races in their laws and administration. This will remove, at the same time, one of the greatest obstacles to improved relations with the Chinese Government, and more free access to the interior.

13. Coal mines are to be opened at Kien-yung in Che kiang, Loping on the Poyang Lake, and Kelung in Formosa, with an understanding that they shall be efficiently worked with the aid of foreign skill and machinery.

14. Two new ports are to be opened—Wen-chow, in exchange for Kiung-chow, in Hainan, which has never been thought worth opening; and Wuhu on the Yang-tsze, between Chin-kiang Kiu-kiang.

The first is equivalent to subsidising a line of steamers between Foochow and Shanghai, both of which places desire a rapid and regular communication. It will also afford a ready exit for a kind of tea that reaches Foochow only after a long, circuitous, and expensive route; and it is the port of a comparatively wealthy and populous district.

The latter port is more especially valuable in connection with the arrangements made for the collection of the transit dues at the port of entry, as it adds the province of Anhui to the other eight maritime provinces, in which foreign textile fabrics are to pass free without any transit pass.

15. The right of transhipment at Hong Kong for the Chinese ports, so much desired by the British and foreign merchants, has been conceded.

16. A rule has been framed by which vessels trading to Batavia, Bangkok, Singapore, Malacca, and Penang will share the privilege of only paying tonnage dues once every four months, now limited to vessels going to Japan, the Amoor, Hong Kong, Manila, and Saigon.

17. It is agreed that the Customs shall draw up rules fixing the touch of sycee to be received on the payment of duties by the bank at each port, and thus determine in some definite manner, in the absence of coinage, what relation local sycee bears to the Customs standard.

These are the chief concessions on the Chinese side; in return for which additional rights and privileges beyond what has been secured by any antecedent treaty, neither few nor unimportant in my conception, it has been agreed that the following changes of tariff, &c., shall take place:—

1. An increased rate of duty on opium and silk. On the first an increase from 30 to 50 taels per 100 catties, equivalent to an increase of 2½ per cent. ad valorem. On silk, raw and thrown, a duty of 20 taels per 100 catties; on yellow silk from Szechuen 10 taels; making an increase of a little over one per cent on both kinds (say 1 1-7th), both still being taxed somewhat under the general scale adopted on the signature of the Treaties, of 5 per cent. ad valorem.

In both articles, opium and silk, considering their high value, so small an increase of duty is unlikely to diminish by a single ounce, or in any sensible degree, the profits of those who deal in them.

2. Passports and transit papers are to be valid only for twelve months, and to be returned within thirteen. This merely gives authority for what has already been practised.

3. The right is conceded to China of appointing Consuls in the British dominions.

4. British merchant-vessels shall report to the Customs their port of destination, and shall hand in export manifests when about to clear. The Treaty had not provided for this; and there is no reason for refusing it, as it entails no sacrifice on the merchant.

The principal points of the Convention, to which will be annexed supplementary rules and tariff, as affecting the articles named, either for reduction or increase, have now been passed in review. Considering how much has been conceded by the Chinese, and how few and unimportant the changes which they have insisted upon in return, either n grounds of reciprocity or expediency, I think it is a subject for congratulation that they have been so moderate in their demands, and rested content with so much less than they are well known to desire.

Digitized by Google

It is very true that the utmost to be obtained from their concessions falls very far short of the demands and wishes of the Memorialists. Steam navigation on the inland waters, railroads, and telegraphs, rights of domicile inland, and the working of mines by foreigners, have all been refused as impracticable or inexpedient at present; and Her Majesty's Government have concurred in this view, and withdrawn all demands for any one of them. At the same time, several of the concessions made tend in this direction, and, if used judiciously, will certainly prepare the way, at no distant period, for farther progress. I think that it is from this point of view their value will be most fairly tested.

On the other side, if we bear in mind the undisguised desire of the high authorities and of the whole body of educated Chinese, including the literati and gentry, as well as the officials of every grade throughout the provinces, for the restriction of foreign intercourses to the sea-board, if not, indeed, to a single port, as of old, and the withdrawal of any privileges which would only have been extorted at the cannon's mouth, and by superior force, I think they deserve some credit for their moderation during the present negotiations. The Tsungli Yamun did not indeed disguise their dislike to all the phases of extra-territoriality, the domiciliation of missionaries in the interior, the importation of opium, and the appointment of merchant Consuls; yet they have not pressed demands on any of these points, or sought to make concessions a condition of revision.

A right to appoint Consuls, which they may be very slow to exercise, and a trifling increase of duties on two articles that may yield them some additional Customs revenue, is about the sum of what they have rested content with. That these are neither unreasonable, nor in any sense inequitable, must, I think, be freely admitted; and I confess to a conviction that few European Governments would have contented themselves with so little in the revision of a Treaty containing much that was objectionable to them, more especially when expected to concede still more to the foreigner's advantage.

I shall be glad if you and my other colleagues concur in this view, which, in any case, I felt it to be due to all parties to submit, frankly and freely, for your appreciation.

After devoting the best part of two years to the discussion of the various questions at issue, and the endeavour, by friendly negotiations, to bring the Tsungli Yamun to see the expediency of chances favourable to the progress of trade and less restricted intercourse, I can only trust that, upon a review of the whole, the balance of advantages will appear to you, and to my other colleagues, such as to recommend the Convention for general acceptance.

You will, no doubt, hear from the Tsungli Yamun, and be invited to co-operate to that end, as soon as the instrument shall have been signed by the Prince of Kung and myself, it having been agreed that the High Contracting Parties shall mutually invite each of the Treaty Powers to promote, by their adhesion, its being speedily carried into execution.—I avail, &c., (Signed) RUTHERFORD ALCOCK.

The Tsungli Yamien to Sir R. Alcock.

(Translation.) October 28, 1869.

The Prince of Kung, Pao, President of the Board of Revenue; Tan, President of the Board of Punishment; Wen, President of the Board of Civil Office; Tung, President of the Board of Revenue; and Chung, President of the Colonial Office, make a communication.

It is distinctively stipulated in the XVIth Article that the ratification of Convention this day signed shall be exchanged in Peking.

It is also understood that effect shall not be given to the several Articles except with mutual consent, until a common understanding with the other Treaty Powers has been come to, that their respective subjects in becoming entitled to the rights and advantages therein conceded to British subjects shall in like manner as these be bound by the conditions thereto attaching. And to promote this end, with the least possible delay, it has been agreed that each of the high contracting parties shall communicate the Convention to the other Powers, and invite their adhesion to its terms and conditions.

It is further agreed that, for the present, Article III., stipulating for the compulsory payment of transit dues on certain British products, shall not take effect at the port of Niu-chuang. It is further agreed that, at the ports of Wenchow and Wuhu, which are open to British trade by Articles VI. and X., British subjects shall enjoy the same advantages and immunities as they enjoy at the ports already opened to trade.

It is also understood that, in connection with the pilotage arrangements in Article X., China will take such measures as may be necessary for the lighting, buoying, and policing of the coast, rivers, and ports, and for the conservation of the same, the tonnage dues being charged with the outlay.

A general statement of such measures, with the amounts expended, will form a part of the returns made public each year by the Inspector-General.

The Chinese Government is declared to have complete jurisdiction along its coasts and rivers, and the British Government will insure due respect on the part of British shipmasters and others to such rules and regulations as shall be found, necessary for the effective conservance of the ports and rivers open to trade.

This despatch, supplementing the Convention this day signed by the High Contracting Parties, is addressed on the same day to his Excellency the British Minister.

M. de Rehfues to Sir R. Alcock.

PEKING, ce 25 Octobre, 1869.

M. le Ministre et cher Collègue,—J'Al recu la note que vous avez bien voulu m'adresser relativement à la conclusion des négociations pour la révision du Traité de Tien-tsin, et je me suis empressé de la porter à la connaissance de nos collègues. Je vous félicite d'avoir enfin mené à bon port ces négociations laborieuses, et je ne doute pas que mon Gouvernement ne preuve un intérêt vif au résultat; mais avant d'adresser à cet égard un rapport circonstancié à Berlin, il faut attendre, ainsi que vous le comprendrez, le moment où je serias mis à même d'examiner le texte même de la Convention signée le 23 courant entre vous et le Gouvernement Chinois.—Je saisis, &c.

(Signé) REHFUES.

Sir R. Alcock to the Prince of Kung.

PEKING, Oct. 6, 1869.

Sir,—I have been instructed to represent to the Government of his Imperial Majesty the expediency of some relaxation of the rules by which the British merchant is at present prevented from importing salt into China.

The relaxtion contemplated is this:—That the Chinese Government allow the British merchants to import into the port of Shanghai a limited number of cargoes of salt, say a cargo per month, or twelve cargoes a year, for the period of five years. An import duty would, of course, be levied on the article, and by means of the foreign collectorate the trade could be put on a satisfactory footing.

It must be well known to your Highness that a supply of good and cheap salt for the people is a most important consideration, second only, indeed, to that of grain, quantities of which China is glad to receive from foreign countries.

Fifteen years ago the import of salt to British India was prohibited, and the salt trade generally in that country was on much the same footing as is that of China. Year after year the restrictions on its import have been gradually removed, and foreign salt is now admitted on payment of a fixed duty like other goods.

The results have been advantageous to Government and people; the salt revenue in India has doubled; the people can get good salt at a cheap rate; the duty is collected in one payment at the port of entry, so that the salt smuggler has ceased to exist. The labourer who produced the native salt now produces jute for the English market, rice, and a variety of oil-bearing plants, working for a much higher rate of wages than he did previously, and becoming a producer instead of a consumer of food.

I submit the above consideration to your Imperial Highness, and am satisfied that the experiment suggested will be highly advantageous both to the British salt merchants and to the revenue and people of China, while such an experimental concession would be received with satisfaction by Her Majesty's Government.—I renew, &c.,

(Signed) RUTHERFORD ALCOCK.

The Prince of Kung to Sir R. Alcock.

(Translation.)

The Prince of Kung makes a communication in reply.

On the 6th inst. his Highness received a despatch from the British Minister requesting that, as an experiment during five years, one foreign ship per month—during the year twelve in all—might be permitted to bring a cargo of salt to the port of Shanghai. the duties to be charged on the article being made the subject of arrangement between the two Powers, &c.

The Prince has to observe that, with regard to the import of foreign salt, memoranda exchanged while the Treaty was under revision were very explicit as to the impossibility of removing the prohibition; for there is a certain amount of salt produced in China which is divided into a fixed number of lots; and if, in addition to this quantity, foreign salt were to be introduced, some of the native article must cease to circulate.

The amount receivable as duty on the foreign salt would not indemnify the losses of the salt gabelle.

Moreover, the (number of) licensed merchants, the number of licences issued for each locality, and the quantity of salt saleable under these, is by law prescribed. If the native article ceases to circulate in any district, then the permits issued there are bought to no purpose, and the licences are subjected to very serious losses.

There are hundreds of thousands of the population, too, who make their living out of the salt, being either engaged in its manufacture or in its transport. Simple as the people of China are, these would certainly not submit to be, as the British Minister's despatch suggests, turned into cultivators of jute, abandoning a certain means of livelihood for wages in prospective, nor is there any quantity of vacant ground for them to till.

There is a Treaty provision prohibiting [trade in] salt, and it will be inexpedient to modify the regulations in this respect.

During the course of this present year, an Australian merchant was detected bringing a cargo of salt to Tien-tsin. This case was leniently dealt with, by the confiscation of the salt only; the merchant was not punished, as this was his first visit to China, and he was not familiar with the Treaty. But, for the future, clandestine trade in salt by any and every foreign merchant will be punished as the Treaty requires.

Foreign salt cannot be put on the same footing as foreign grain, as the despatch under acknowledgment suggests. As in duty bound the Prince addresses his Excellency the British Minister.

SIR RUTHERFORD ALCOCK'S EXPLANATIONS.

(THE TIMES.)

No time has been lost in placing before Parliament and the public the materials for estimating the merits or demerits of the new Convention with China, now awaiting ratification. It is impossible to exaggerate the importance of the interest this measure involves. If our national commerce is to be maintained or increased; if trade is to be encouraged and artisans are to find employment, it must be by the opening of new markets, and in China, above all countries in the world, are such markets to be found. Practically speaking, there could be hardly a limit to our dealings with the Chinese, if they understood their own interests, and were allowed to follow their own desires. That, however, is not the case Sir Rutherford Alcock, whose despatch upon the subject has just been printed, freely acknowledges and plainly describes the difficulties in the way of foreign trade in China, and the circuitous or doubtful routes by which it is necessary for us to proceed. His own conclusion is that, upon the whole, we shall be decidedly gainers by the new bargain, and that we could not, under the circumstances, have expected a better one; but the very earnestness of his arguments shows how much difference of opinion was anticipated.

Digitized by Google

By the Treaty of Tientsin, bearing date June 26, 1858, it was provided that a revision of its conditions might be demanded by either party at the expiration of ten years from that period, and this "Supplementary Convention," as it is called, now represents the result of such revision. It is necessary to observe that in the interval which has elapsed the relations of the contracting Powers have been materially modified. Ten years ago the Chinese Government had no option but to accept the terms proposed to it. The Treaty of Tientsin expressed so many concessions extorted by force and unwillingly granted; but the Supplementary Convention, on which, according to the terms above described, we have been compelled to enter, was discussed with far greater independence on the part of the Chinese. As our readers are aware, the rights of the Government of Peking have recently received a new and more liberal recognition from European States, and, Sir Rutherford observes, "It was not to be expected that China, for the first time in a position to negotiate as an independent and Sovereign State, without preface or coercion, would be disposed to concede everything and ask for nothing in return, or that the Chinese Government would not desire to avail themselves of the opportunity afforded by a revision to secure some modification of the terms which were originally imposed upon them without any choice on their part." This is plain language, and we quote it because it describes a situation of affairs which has not been sufficiently understood. We have distinctly apprised the Chinese rulers that they may consider themselves their own masters, and under those conditions they have been enabled to require that the commercial relations between ourselves and them should be reconsidered. That there may be no doubt about the disposition in which they would probably approach the work, we may add that Sir Rutherford unhesitatingly credits them with the traditional policy of the Empire, unchanged and unforgotten. The "high authorities," he tells us, "and the whole body of educated Chinese, including the literati and gentry, as well as the officials of every grade throughout the provinces, desire the restriction of foreign intercourse to the seaboard, if not, indeed, to a single port, as of old," and he adds that the Ministers or Councillors with whom he negotiated "did not disguise their dislike to all the phases of extra-territoriality, the domiciliation of missionaries in the interior, the importation of opium, and the appointment of merchant Consuls." These statements go far to settle a question recently debated, and may be taken, indeed, to prove that the Chinese Government is in its heart rather reactionary than progressive, and that its Liberalism is more the fruit of salutary fear than genuine conviction. At the same time, Sir Rutherford Alcock discerns clearly enough that Europeans in China are inclined to be unreasonable in their demands, and unlikely to be satisfied even with as much as is good for them; so that the difficulties of an agreement may be readily conceived.

Such being the case, the revision of the Treaty—to which, be it again observed, we had no power to object—was taken in hand, and if under such conditions we have actually got a better bargain than before, it should certainly be matter of satisfaction to the country and credit to our representatives at Peking. Rejecting details, we may, perhaps, describe the substance of the proposed Convention as consisting first of a financial compromise, and next of certain fiscal concessions balanced by commercial boons. Hitherto our goods—principally textile fabrics—have paid first an import duty on arrival, and then transit duties on their passage up the country. It is now proposed to add 2½ per cent. to the import duty, and to abolish all transit dues whatever; nor does anybody deny that such a change is for our benefit, if it could be thoroughly carried out. What is apprehended is, that after the Imperial authorities have levied their extra tax to begin with, the provincial and local authorities will still find some means of extorting their own taxes, as before, so that the imposition of 2½ per cent. may be only so much additional burden. As to the fiscal changes, the Chinese have desired to increase the import duty on opium and the export duty on silk—the former by 2½, the latter by a little more than 1 per cent. In return they offer twelve concessions, so directly as compensation, indeed, that in the text of the Convention six of these are appended as a counterpoise to the article on opium, and as many more to that on silk. They include not merely the opening of a new and, as it is believed, important port to our trade, but a variety of privileges calculated to facilitate our intercourse with the population of the interior. Perhaps we shall give the best idea of them by observing that, whereas our countrymen desired to obtain "steam navigation on the inland waters, railroads, and telegraphs, rights of domicile inland, and the working of mines by foreigners," the concessions granted amount to an imperfect and partial advance in those directions. We are allowed to ascend the rivers in our own vessels, though they must not be steamers, but native-rigged craft; and on certain waters we are even allowed a steam-tug. Coal mines are to be opened in two or three places, bonded warehouses permitted, and reductions of sundry dues effected. That, in substance, is the footing on which we are to be placed.

If it be now asked what prospects this change opens, it is obvious that the answer can be neither definite nor decisive. We cannot disguise from ourselves that, whereas the Chinese will certainly obtain all we have undertaken to give, it is by no means certain that we shall be equally fortunate in return. If the Convention be ratified, the new import duty will infallibly be levied, and opium will pay more in going in and silk in coming out; but the concessions in our favour do not admit of such compendious and certain application. Even Sir Rutherford Alcock himself employs guarded language on the point. He argues that the Convention, "if quietly and judiciously worked," must prove advantageous to us, and that the ends proposed may be expected to be "fairly" secured. In point of fact, his reasoning comes to this:—That as the Chinese authorities have now, for the first time, had a fair share of discretion in arranging the terms of the bargain, they may be expected to carry it out with better faith and will than before; and that, if we, on our part, make due allowances for them—if we are reasonable in our expectations and moderate in our behaviour, every step now taken will assuredly lead to further progress. The ground gained may be very little, but it is in the right direction, and it must help us to gain more. Once habituate more numerous classes of the native population to our trade, and their interest will prevail against the prejudices of their rulers. The terms now granted can hardly fail of giving us improved access to the interior of the country, and when we have got that we hold the great engine of progress in our hands. Such, in brief, is the character of the question to be debated. It has been feared by our merchants at home, and is suspected abroad, that the Chinese may have over-reached us; but the despatch before us is sufficient to show that the prospect may fairly be regarded in a more favourable light, and that, except by a return to the agency of force, better terms were hardly to be obtained.

(ECONOMIST.)

In a long despatch to Lord Clarendon Sir R. Alcock has explained his view of the Convention which he has negotiated. He is not very sanguine—attaching most value to the circumstance that the Treaty is the first voluntary concession of the Chinese, and for that reason, he believes, more likely to be honestly worked. We fear that if the Treaty can be defended on no better ground it is perfectly indefensible. Sir Rutherford Alcock has the advantage of knowing the Chinese, but from what he himself tells us, there is not enough known to warrant the trial of the experiment. The literati—in other words, the governing class in China—are as hostile to our presence there as ever; and it seems the most probable view that they will consider the Treaty an abandonment of some of our privileges—the yielding of the inch which may induce them to take the ell. It is enough however that there is very great doubt to make us refrain from the trial. We fear moreover that the despatch contains evidence of our Envoy not having correctly appreciated the bearing of the stipulations. On nearly every point he is at issue with the merchants. The substitution of the transit duty at the ports in lieu of all other inland duties is after all only to apply to the Treaty-port provinces; elsewhere in China the inland duties may be levied as before; but the trade with the non-Treaty-port provinces, which will thus be affected for the worse, is perhaps more important than the rest. Sir Rutherford Alcock, again, reckons the new duty on silk as a one per cent. duty ad valorem; but according to general testimony it may often be very much more, and it is not so certain, as he assumes, that silk can bear it without much damage to extensive interests. The enhancement of price, applying as it will to all silk, will be a fresh injury to a depressed trade, necessitating an increase of capital, and diminishing greatly the margin of profit. The miscalculation regarding opium is more serious. The effect will be, it is said, to give the Chinese Government an interest in the duty, "a motive for checking the growth of the native produce," and so be an advantage to the trade and the Indian Government; but this is manifestly a hollow speculation. Even if it is quite certain that the Chinese Government will look on the matter in the way supposed, it does not follow that they will have the power to check the native growth, upon which the new duty will plainly have the effect of a bounty. Of this there is no doubt, though there is necessarily much doubt of the will or the power of the Chinese Government whenever we count upon their action. A final objection is, that the Treaty will place our trade at a disadvantage, unless other Powers assent, and there is no evidence that they will negotiate similar treaties; while there is a most mischievous clause binding us not to take the benefits of any concession to other Powers under the most favoured nation clause, unless on the conditions accompanying the concession. Sir Rutherford Alcock argues for the equity of the latter stipulation; but as the memorial of the London merchants points out, it would place our interests at the mercy of other Powers who have different interests,—who might willingly, for instance, concede an enormous duty on goods which they do not export to China in exchange for the abolition of export duties on Chinese products, by which, as the condition would be hurtful to us though not to them, they would secure the exclusive privilege of export from China. Altogether, our relations with China require to be delicately handled, and we had better do nothing unless we are sure of doing good, which is far enough from being the case with the present Treaty.

(STANDARD.)

Mr. Otway gave a very equivocal answer on Tuesday night with respect to the new Treaty of Tientsin. He said that Government were anxious to know the opinions of the mercantile community upon the subject, and that the Treaty to be ratified at Peking would depend in a great degree upon the opinion of the China merchants. Now, has not this opinion been already expressed clearly and definitely enough? Sir Rutherford Alcock has made, tentatively, a distinct and disastrous sacrifice of British interests. The Anglo-Chinese commercial community at home and the Anglo-Chinese merchants in China itself have broadly declared that the new stipulations of Tientsin are injurious, and may even be ruinous to them. Their view is perfectly reasonable. Before the documents were published it was evident that an arrangement contrived by Chinese chicanery had been concluded, and that our minister had been made a dupe. Now, however, that the correspondence is public, we are simply left to wonder how a representative of Great Britain could have been found so infirm of purpose and so easily to be cajoled. The admissions now made, however, are worth the trouble which has been taken in evoking them, although Mr. Otway's assurance that they will be kept in mind at Peking will not be regarded as ample security by the China merchants. The existing doubt is, whether or not we are shutting, against ourselves, the gates of an immense and teeming empire, peopled by millions who are desirous of our trade. It is very true that the Chinese do not aim at self-seclusion; they depend upon the manufactures of Europe, and are principally anxious for the prosperity of their own agriculture. It is their husbandry which makes their wealth. They can never be, in the proper sense of the term, a manufacturing people. Their inclination is, in fact, to buy as well as to sell, and we are putting obstacles in the way of them and of ourselves by a totally uncalled-for convention. Sir Rutherford Alcock pleads his difficulties. We think he might have found them less, had he gone to more experienced authority for counsel, and consulted the merchant, who understands his business, in preference to the mandarin, who is simply a transmitter of selfishness and prejudice. It is obvious, however, that, after concluding the additional treaty, he had his doubts about it; and beyond question the Government is disinclined to undertake its defence.

Digitized by Google

FRENCH NOTIONS OF CHINESE DIPLOMACY.

At the present time, when the philo-Chinese are so rampant, it is well to record the impressions of other Europeans as well as our own; we therefore give as verbatim a translation as far as possible of an extract from the Paris Gaulois:—

"We have some difficulties with the Chinese. Mon Dieu! but diplomacy is difficult with these people.

"They are far from being so simple as some people would make us believe.

"The Catholics are attacked; a school, a church are pillaged at Nanking. Our minister, M. Lallemand, complains and sets enquiry on foot. No result as yet.

"When the Minister complains to Prince Kung—'What have they taken from you?' said the Prince; 'it is a very small affair. When you and the English came to Peking we saw wealth enough disappear to indemnify your fellow religionists for all the annoyances they have submitted to or are ever likely to suffer in future.'

"The matter is left to be settled, says the writer, by the future Marshal of Palikao."

The paragraphs, like many of those penned by our neighbours on serious matters, is drawn up in the tone of the laughing philosopher, but all the germs of the argument are there, and the conclusion is perfectly sound. Complaints of gross insults are met by insolence and contemptuous special pleading, which, if passed over, can have no other result than that of being eventually paid off in the mass by the sword.

TRADE IN CHINA.

(TO THE EDITOR OF THE STANDARD.)

SIR,—In common with every one interested in the progress of trade in China, I watch at this time with more than usual anxiety the news brought by each successive mail, and the comments thereon made by the press and by politicians in this country.

A fluent writer, whose knowledge of the subject upon which he discourses so glibly it is not difficult to rightly appreciate by actual experience of the remarkable people whose government he eulogises, has recently announced in the columns of The Times that no heed must be given to the criticism of the various foreign communities in China, because all such strictures are based upon an evidently false supposition, viz., that the Government of that country is reactionary or anti progressive.

There is, it is true, the somewhat curious fact that all parties and classes of European residents are united in sentiment; and those who can speak from equal experience, though from various standing-points agree in a conclusion; and that merchant and missionary, consul and law officers, are one in mind with the very employes of the Chinese Government itself, and denounce as preposterous the wild assurances of the chief of the Chinese mission. All this may, it appears, be put aside, and on the strength of a speech delivered at a banquet by an officer of the Hong Kong garrison, the communities there and at Shanghai may be branded as people complaining because not "permitted to attack the Chinese whenever they think fit." This view is so completely the opposite of fact that no opportunity should be lost of showing its unfairness and untruth.

The remarkable paper, published some time since, with annotations of his own, by the Hon. Ross Brown, late United States Envoy at Peking, containing the views of Mr. Hart, the able chief of the Chinese Foreign Service, has been alluded to by Sir Charles Dilke in terms which would lead any casual reader to suppose it a simple private letter, instead of what its author evidently intended it to be—a semi-official statement of his ideas. It is much to be regretted that this document has not found its way in extenso into our journals; it would, I believe, do much, in conjunction with the plain-spoken utterances of our own Minister, to clear away the cloud of ignorance enveloping the present aspect of the question, and would prove the truth of Sir Rutherford Alcock's warning, that "there is no evidence of the desire of progress here" (at Peking).

In the newspapers to hand by the last mail is another communication from the Hon. Ross Brown, repeating most emphatically his former assertions, and making public extracts from letters received later from Mr. Hart, which bear so fully upon the point at issue, and testify so plainly to the truth of the views held by the communities on the spot that I venture to repeat them here:—"Leaving aside what has been said about Mr. Burlingame, the addresses presented to you (by the American and British merchants at Shanghai) are reasonably truthful matters of fact, and to the point. Your reply is a fair resume of history and a just exposition of the situation. I cannot see anything to disagree with." And again—"The Yamen (Foreign Office) is more illiberal every day."—The North China Herald and Market Report, Dec. 11, 1869.

Surely, Sir, such direct evidence from the chief of the foreign employes of the Chinese Government, from its resident confidential officer, will not be disregarded. His utterances, at any rate, are no after-dinner speeches, but the calm and deliberate opinions of a man pre-eminently fitted to review the matter without undue prejudice. That he has thus spoken, and with no uncertain voice, is an immense gain to the cause of truth and progress, and I feel that you will allow me thus to trespass upon your space, for, although differing in most points from the principles you advocate, I, in common with many who think as I do on political subjects, believe the Standard to have shown a clearer appreciation of the China question than any of its contemporaries.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant, A LIBERAL.

London, Feb. 14.

Monetary and Commercial.

The Manila and Hong Kong Submarine Telegraph Company has been announced, with a capital of £350,000, in 35,000 shares of £10 each, of which £70,000, in fully paid-up shares, will be taken by the contractors. The object is to establish telegraphic communication between Manila, the adjacent islands, Hong Kong and Singapore, through an exclusive concession from the Spanish Government for forty years. It is arranged that interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum will be paid by the contractors on the paid-up capital of the company, until the opening of the line. The capital proposed to be raised will complete the first section, which will be laid from Hong Kong to Manila, a length of about 650 nautical miles, together with the necessary cable for connecting the principal places in the adjacent islands with Manila, estimated at a further length, including land lines and cables, of 470 miles. The company, as far as present arrangements are intended, will be able to avail itself of the three existing competitive routes for communication with the United Kingdom, Europe, and America. The second section contemplated by the concession—viz., from Manila to Singapore, touching at Labuan and Sarawak—will form an alternative second or through line between Singapore and Hong Kong. The construction of this section is, nevertheless, reserved for the consideration of the shareholders, who will, within a short time, be called upon to decide when the wants of the through traffic and the requirements of this company's concession will demand the extension. Large returns are anticipated, and the Spanish Government will assist the objects of the directors with ships from the navy as far as the service will permit. A tender has been accepted from Mr. W. T. Henley, of North Woolwich, which provides for the manufacture and laying of the cables and for the erection of the overland wires within twelve months, at a cost of £297,000. The share list closes to-morrow.

A company has been formed to take over the well-known telegraph works of Mr. Hooper, at Mitcham. The capital is fixed at £250,000, in shares of £10. These works at present are for the manufacture of india-rubber core, and it is now proposed to add to this the business of covering the core for submarine cables, and also that of submerging and maintaining them. Mr. Hooper was the manufacturer of the core of the Persian Gulf Cable and several others, and is now the contractor for the cables of the Great Northern Telegraph, China and Japan Extension, Company, 2,300 miles in length, for £396,000, two-thirds of all profits from which are to belong to the company. The works at Mitcham are to be taken over for £65,000 and the consideration for patents and good-will is to consist of one-half of the net profits of each year after 7½ per cent. per annum has been paid to the shareholders, thus being entirely contingent on the success of the company—an arrangement limited to ten years, after which the whole of the profits are to accrue to the shareholders. The company, it is added, although possessed exclusively of the right to use the Hooper process for the manufacture of india-rubber core, will be prepared also to contract for cables with gutta-percha core.

A company has been formed in Paris for banking and commercial operations in and with Japan. It takes the name of Société Franco-Japonaise, and its capital is 500,000f. in 1,000f. shares. M. Herpin, Director of the Société Générale, is one of the founders, and associated with them are some eminent bankers and merchants.

At a meeting of tea-brokers on the 14th instant to receive the report of the committee on the subject of division of commissions alluded to in our last, it was decided to meet again on the 21st The committee propose that in lieu of the ½ per cent. and lot-money, there shall be ¼d. in the pound sterling charged upon all first-hand teas, i.e., teas when originally sold, to be charged alike to brokers and dealers, and to be collected at the time the deposit is charged; for example, if a weight note amounts to £100 sterling, there will be a charge of 4s. 2d. made, and no lot-money or commission; this the "buying brokers" object to urging that it will ruin their business.

At an extraordinary general meeting of the shareholders of the Oriental Hotels Company (Limited), held on the 16th inst., it was resolved that the company be wound up voluntarily under the supervision of the Court, and Mr. Arthur Cooper, of Cooper Bros and Co., was appointed liquidator.

It is intimated that the directors of the Calcutta and Singapore Telegraph Company have decided upon returning the deposits of the applicants for shares, pending important negotiations with reference to the construction of this line, which may take some weeks to mature.

Digitized by Google

The importers of sugar and sugar refiners on the Clyde recently memorialised the Chancellor of the Exchequer that in the event of a reduction of the sugar duty being effected, a drawback should be allowed on all refined sugar lying in the premises of refiners Mr. Lowe has declined to make any announcements which might appear, even inferentially, to anticipate his regular financial statement, and which if made might lead to misconception; but he sees no reason why the memorialists should anticipate any injustice to their interests.

The Council of India have offered £5,000 premium for the invention of machinery which will successfully work up China grass.

The tenders for Rs. 38,75,000 in bills on India were received last week at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were—to Calcutta, Rs. 35,25,000; to Madras, Rs. 3,50,000. The minimum price was fixed, as before, at 1s. 11d. on Calcutta and Madras. Tenders on those presidencies at 1s. 11¼d. will receive about 35 per cent.; those above that price in full.

The steamer Erl King, which left for Hong Kong, via Suez, took a general cargo at £3 to £5 per ton, and £900,000 in silver and dollars.

The market for bar silver is flat, at 5s. 0⅜d. per ounce, but Mexican dollars are still in demand for China; the quotation is 4s. 11⅜d.

We understand that the Agra Bank will be opened at Shanghai under the management of Mr. Maccall, late of the Chartered Bank. At Hong Kong Mr. Hughes, formerly at Melbourne, opens the branch. The National Bank opens at Hong Kong under Mr. Sherwood.

The amount of bullion by the P. and O. Company's steamer Bangalore, from Southampton on the 19th inst., was, in gold, to Alexandria, £16,000; to Bombay, £500; to Madras, £9,156; in silver, to Madras, £1,500; to Singapore, £19.938; to Hong Kong, £12,422; to Shanghai, £125,430; total in gold, £25,656; in silver, £159,290.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

The following is from Messrs. W. J. and H. Thompson's Circular, dated 16th inst:—The market has been dull and quiet since the date of our last, and business has been on a small scale. Foochow Congous: Dust and Siftings have been neglected; good ordinary has been sold at 10¾d. to 11¼d. per lb.; and good common at 1s. 0¼d. per lb. Fair at 1s. 0¾d. to 1s. 1½d., which prices show a slight reduction. In medium and fine transactions have been trifling. Black Leaf Congous: Further sales of low Shanghai packed Congou have been made at 5¼d. to 7¾d., showing a reduction in these kinds of fully 1d. per lb. Common Congou has been sold at 1s., and good common at 1s. 0¾d. per lb.; fair at 1s. 1d. to 1s. 1¼d. per lb. Several parcels of fair to medium grades, "with all faults," have been sold at the auctions at 1s. 1d. to 1s. 4d. per lb. All good to fine are firmly held for full fates. Tayshan Congous. Very common sold at 9d. per lb. Souchongs: Common, in boxes, sold at the auctions at 1s. 0¼d. per lb., fair at 1s. 1d. to 1s. 2d. per lb., prices being again easier. Oolongs: Very few good to fine remain on offer. All desirable parcels continue in demand for export. Scented Orange Pekoes: Fair Foochow kinds sold at the sales at 1s. 2d. to 1s. 2½d. per lb.; medium Canton at 1s. 4¼d. per lb.; finest grades command full rates. Scented Capers: Some breaks of good common to medium sold at the auctions at 11¼d. to 1s. 3d. per lb.; the only kinds that meet with ready sale at full prices are the finer grades Green Teas: Sales continue to be made at fair prices for Gunpowders, and Imperials at 2s. to 3s. for export purposes; also in the finer grades of Young Hysons from 1s. 10d. to 2s. 7d. per lb.; but common qualities sold at low prices at the auctions. The China auctions that commenced yesterday, and concluded to-day, consisted of 18,273 packages. Prices have been irregular, but often in favour of buyers.

SILK.

There is no change to report in the tone of the market. Prices continue very firm, but there is but little business doing. The public sales will be held this week, and will probably lead to some revival of activity. The deliveries continue good.

COFFEE.

There has been somewhat less enquiry for Ceylon since the date of our last report, but the quantities brought forward having been moderate, and holders exhibiting no pressure to effect sales, previous rates have been firmly maintained, and no alteration from those of last mail can be reported. The offers of Ceylon at the auctions have comprised only 60 casks, 2 tierces, 6 barrels, and 44 bags. Plantation, of which only 4 casks and 2 barrels have been sold, realising 64s. 6d. to 71s. for ordinary, and 78s. for pea-berry. Of native the offers have only amounted to 91 bags garblings, all of which were bought in at 20s, but a private sale is reported of 500 bags at 58s. to 59s. Of other East India the only parcel brought forward has been 508 bags Singapore (Campar), of which 65 bags good quality sold at 53s. to 53s. 6d., the remainder being bought in at 53s. per cwt. Sales of Manila at 56s. 6d. to 58s. 6d. The Dutch sale went off at an advance of 1c. to 3c. on valuations; good ordinary 35½c.

The quantity of Ceylon Coffee afloat for Great Britain is estimated as follows:—Plantation, 150,570 cwt., against 188,905 cwt. at the corresponding date of 1869; Native, 13,699 cwt., against 57,073 cwt. The quantity afloat for the Continent is nil, in both years. The quantity of Coffee landed in the six weeks ended Feb. 12, 1870, was of Ceylon, 2,719 tons, against 1,904 tons during the corresponding period of 1869; of all descriptions, 3.321 tons, against 4,094 tons. The quantity entered for home consumption was, of Ceylon, 1,129 tons, against 1,265 tons: of all descriptions, 2,024 tons, against 2 153 tons. The quantity exported was, of Ceylon, 2,695 tons, against 2,001 tons; of all descriptions, 4.789 tons, against 3 898 tons. The stock on Feb. 12, was, of Ceylon, 12.694 tons, against 9,633 tons; of all descriptions, 20,580 tons, against 17,263 tons.

SUGAR.

The extreme dulness in this market still continues; scarcely any business has been done, and prices are slightly lower than at the date of our last. Manila: At public sale 7,665 bags clayed of superior quality were all bought in, duty 9s. 7d., at 31s. to 32s.; duty 8s., at 30s. 6d.; but 540 bags, duty 9s. 7d., since sold at 31s., and 3,000 bags unclayed Taal are also reported sold at 24s. 3d. By private contract 12,200 bags good unclayed Zebu have been sold at 25s. 6d., and 2,700 bags superior clayed, duty 8s., at 30s. Penang: 1,411 bags were offered, and all bought in, good and fine soft yellow (duty 9s. 7d.) at 38s. to 39s., low to middling grey and yellow at 35s. to 36s. 6d. Java, China and Siam: No sales.

The quantity of Sugar landed in the six weeks ended Feb. 12, 1870, was, of Penang, 269 tons, against 709 tons in the corresponding period of 1869; of Manila, Java, and China, 3,469 tons, against 4,823 tons; the quantity entered for home consumption was, of Penang, 502 tons, against 191 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 4.248 tons, against 1,152 tons. The quantity exported was, of Penang, 24 tons, against 13 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 175 tons, against 10 tons. The stock on Feb. 12 was, of Penang, 2,073 tons against 834 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 34,836 tons, against 34,621 tons.

COIR GOODS.—The last sales were unimportant; only small quantities, chiefly damaged, were offered and partly taken off at about previous rates for Yarn, Fibre, and Rope. 10 tons Ceylon Yarn in dholls partly sold at £23 10s. to £24 10s.; 8 tons Ceylon Fibre were bought in at £23, except 2 tons, which sold at £16 5s. It has been resolved that for the future sales of Coir Goods shall take place once a fortnight, on every alternate Friday. The catalogues are to be out on the preceding Wednesday, and all goods on show and ready for inspection on the Thursday.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—There is still a fair business doing in Ceylon at £42 to £42 10s., the prices previously current. 33 casks Ceylon yellow to good offered by auction sold at £42; 49 drums from Singapore bought in at £41; of 42 casks Padang 3 casks sold at £40. The quantity of Ceylon afloat for Great Britain is estimated at 38,801 cwt., against 53,657 cwt. at the corresponding date last year, and 33,820 cwt. in 1868.

CINNAMON CHIPS.—803 bags Ceylon met little demand, and only 250 bags sold; common bark 3¼d., good common 3¾d., middling chips 6½d., one lot 7½d.

GAMBIER.—At the public sales 264 bales fine Rhio pressed Cubes were bought in at 20s., and 50 baskets fine pale tree Cubes sold at 20s. 6d. to 20s. 9d. By private contract about 1,500 bags good pale Cubes have been sold at 20s. 6d. About 300 tons have been sold for arrival at 17s. 7½d. to 17s. 9d. ex ship, and 17s. 10½d. landed, without guarantee.

GALLS.—A sale is reported of 300 cases China at 49s. 6d. per cwt.

HEMP.—Manila, fair roping, £58; common £53.

MACE sold at 1d. to 2d. decline, 14 cases Penang chiefly sold, middling 3s. to 3s. 1d., good middling 3s. 4d. to 3s. 5d. 53 casks 4 cases Java chiefly bought in at 2s. 7d. to 2s. 11d., only 12 casks 4 cases low and ordinary selling at 2s. 4d. to 2s. 7d.

NUTMEGS.—8 casks 2 cases limed Java from Singapore sold, 100 nuts to the lb. at 1s. 9d, 118's to 130's at 1s 6d. to 1s. 8d.

PRESERVES.—155 cases China Ginger bought in at 7½d. to 8¼d., 20 casks at 6½d. and 30 cases Cumquats at 1s. 2d. per lb.

PEPPER.—Black: The advanced prices are maintained, and the demand still continues good; considerable business is reported in Penang at 4½d. on the spot and afloat. White: There has been a better demand, and higher prices have been paid, the sales being about 850 bags Singapore at 6⅝d. to 6¾d.

PLUMBAGO.—Of 285 barrels Ceylon offered at auction one-third sold, fine bright small lump at 26s., good middling at 20s. to 22s., middling small at 18s. to 18s. 6d., fine bold bright chips at 18s. 6d., small ditto at 17s., good chips at 14s. 6d. to 15s. 6d., good dust at 11s. 6d., ordinary at 7s.

RATTANS.—5,554 bundles Penangsold at 2s. 3d. to 4s. 3d. per 100 canes.

RICE.—The dulness which prevailed at the date of our last report still continues, and there has been no private business; at auction 4,631 bags of indirect import, from Penang, sold at some decline, 1,976 bags Moulmen, good middling at 8s. 6d., middling at 8s., the remainder mixed and broken Rangoon at 7s. 6d. to 8s. In addition the landed cargo of 6,000 bags Necranzie Arracan per P. M. Vittoria sold at 9s.

SAGO.—A good supply, amounting to 1,299 boxes 578 bags, offered by auction were held firmly and mostly bought in, good small pearl at 19s. to 19s. 6d., only 240 boxes good small selling at 19s., and 400 bags good small 18s. 6d., large 22s. 6d., large brown Borneo 18s. 6d. to 19s.

SAGO FLOUR.—We note the sale of 150 bags Singapore at 14s. cash. In auction 678 bags Singapore partly sold at 14s. Privately business has been done in Borneo on fully previous terms.

TIN.—A slight improvement has taken place in the market fo Straits, and without any great amount of activity a moderate business is being done at £114 to £115 per ton.

TAPIOCA.—260 bags very fine Singapore sold 3¼d. to 3¼d., 486 bags fair Penang chiefly sold at 2¼d. to 2¼d.

TOBACCO.—The market is bare of stocks, and the small quantity here is held for high prices; consequently although a good demand exists there is little or no business doing.

Digitized by Google

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.

—o—

TEA.

There is but little doing, the enquiry being limited, but as there is little pressure exhibited to effect sales, prices are steadily maintained. The only sales reported are—227 half-chests green per steamer; 880 half-chests do. ex Argonaut; 700 half-chests Oolong and 400 half-chests Japan, per steamer. Most parcels offered at auction were withdrawn. The following are the currency prices for jobbing lots:—Greens, common to fair Hyson, 78 to 90c.; good to fine do., 95c. to $1 10; extra fine to finest do., $1 15 to $1 40; common to fair young Hyson, 70 to 80c.; good to fine do., 85c. to $1 10; extra fine to finest, $1 20 to $1 55; common to fair gunpowder, 78c. to $1; good to fine do. $1 05 to $1 20; extra fine to finest ditto, $1 35 to $1 70; common to fair Imperial, 78c. to $1; good to fine do., $1 05 to $1 20; extra fine to finest do., $1 30 to $1 50; common to fair Twankay, 62 to 68c.; good to fine, 70 to 80c.; common to fair uncoloured Japan, 75 to 85c.; good to fine, do., 90c. to $1 05; extra fine to finest do., $1 10 to $1 30; common to fair Oolong, 65 to 70c.; good to fine do., 75c. to $1; extra fine to finest do., $1 10 to $1 50; common to fair Souchong, 75 to 80c.; good to fine do., 90c. to $1 10; extra fine to finest, $1 25 to $1 50.

COFFEE.—The market for East India continues to present an inactive appearance, and the only sales have been 250 bags Ceylon and 150 bags Java on private terms. The current quotations rule as before: Java (mats), 22c. to 22½c.; do. (Government bags), 21½c. to 22c.; Manila, 16c. to 18c.; Singapore, 19c. to 20c.; Native Ceylon, 17½c. to 19½c. gold (duty paid). The stock of Manila on the 1st Feb. was estimated at 2,627 bags, against 6,769 bags on Feb. 1, 1869; of Java (Government) at 1,385 bags, against 2,451 bags; of Java (mats) 18,857 mats, against 27,808 bags; of Ceylon 2,000 bags, against 7,000 bags; of Singapore nil, against 2,270 bags.

CHINA MATTING.—The market is quiet at the following prices:—4-4 white, 32½c.; 5-4 white, 37½c.; 6-4 white, 42½c.; 4-4 red checked, 37½c.; 5-4 red checked, 45½c.; 6-4 red checked, 45c. to 50c.

CAMPHOR.—China is quoted 18c. gold (in bond).

GAMBIER.—The current quotation is 3½c. to 4c. gold (duty paid) stock, small.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is quoted $2.12½; Cassia, $1.25 gold (in bond).

HEMP.—A dull tone continues to pervade the market for Manila, and there are no transactions to report; the nominal quotation is still 14c. to 14½c. gold. The stock of Manila on the 1st Feb. was estimated at 17,813 bales, against 6,214 bales at the corresponding date of 1869, and 19,546 bales in 1868. The imports into the United States during the month of February were 4,875 bales, against 15,829 bales during February last year, and the quantity afloat on the 1st February was 37,931 bales, against 18,968 bales at the same date last year.

INDIGO.—The market for Manila is quiet; we note limited business at $1.22½ to $1.35 currency.

PRESERVED GINGER.—China is quoted $10 to $10.50 currency (duty paid).

RHUBARB.—The quotation for China is $1.50 to $2.50 currency (duty paid).

RICE.—Sales are reported of 800 bags Rangoon in bond at the price previously ruling, viz., $3 to $3.25 gold. The stock of East India on the 1st Feb. was 7,506 bags, against 12,816 bags at the corresponding date last year, and 4,342 bags in 1868.

SAPANWOOD.—Quotation, $30 currency; stock, 300 tons.

SUGAR.—The market continues very dull, without change in prices. The stock on the 1st Feb. was of Java 810 baskets, against 310 baskets at the corresponding date last year; of Manila 230,253 bags, against 78,808 bags; of China 614 bags, against 1,000 bags.

SPICES.—The demand is merely to meet immediate wants. There is a full stock of most descriptions, Pepper excepted, but prices are firm; 100 bags Pimento sold on private terms. We quote Cassia at 43½c. to 44c.; Ginger, 11½c.; Mace. $1.25; Pepper, 25½c.; Nutmegs, 95c. to $1.02½; Pimento, 17½c. to 18½c.; Cloves, 26c., gold.

TIN.—The dull tone of the market for Straits continues, and there is a further decline of half a cent, 300 slabs having been sold at 30½c., gold. The nominal quotation for Banca is 32c. gold, but no business is reported.

SHIPPING.

ARRIVALS.—Feb. 3, at San Francisco, from Manila, Shirley; 17, at New York, from Yokohama, Cedric; 18, from Shanghai, Mikado.

DEPARTURES.—Feb. 4, from New York for Hong Kong, Endeavour.

LOADING.—At San Francisco for Yokohama, Catalina, Nightingale; for Hong Kong, Clothilde, S. G. Reed. At New York, for Hong Kong and Shanghai, Samuel Russel; for Shanghai, Game Cock.

Shipping Intelligence.

—o—

ARRIVALS.

Date.	Ship	Captain.	From	At
Feb.11	Krusebjorn	Fougt	Samarang, for Rotdm	Motherbank
— 15	Dhollerah	Sergent	Shanghai	Plymouth
— 14	Northam Castle	Marshall	Singapre., for Liverpl	Holyhead
— 14	Royal Arthur	Hingston	Java, for Rotterdam.	Motherbank*
— 12	Roslin Castle	Alexander	Singapore, via Livrpl.	Glasgow
Jan.11	Landwursten	—	Hong Kong	Cailao
Feb. 2	Gustav. Adolf	Larsen	Batavia	Baltimore
— 15	Emma	Elie	Singapore	Marseilles
— 17	Chetah	—	Canton	Off Scilly

* Compelled to put back after making Brouwershaven Light.

DEPARTURES.

Date.	Ship.	Captain.	For	From
Feb.10	Harbottle	Wood	Yokohama and Hiogo	London
— 10	John Worster	Knowles	Cardiff & Singapore.	Do.
Jan.29	Frederick Tudor	Bradford	Hong Kong	Penarth Dock
Feb.11	Wylo	Browne	Foochow	London
— 14	Erl King (str.)	Steele	Singap.,H.K.,Shang., & Y. ko., via Suez C.	Do.
— 10	St. Antonie	—	Singapore	Yarmouth
— 12	Cutty Sark	Moodie	Shanghai	London
— 10	Lizzy	Williams	Singapore	Falmouth
— 15	Tszru (str.)	Wake	Yoko., via Suez Cnl.	London
— 15	Veronica	Haldane	Hong Kong	Liverpool
— 16	William Clowes	Tatlock	Hong Kong	Plymouth
— 16	Midnight	—	Singapore	Liverpool
— 17	Juanpore	Haldan	Shanghai	London
— 17	John Milton	Le Boutillier	Yokohama	Do.
— 15	Mohican	Sartan	Galle	Cardiff
— 16	Glenain	Shilston	Hong Kong	Do.
Jan.15	Agnes	Rendale	Batavia	Rio de Janeiro
—	California	Deinum	Sourabaya	Rotterdam
— 4	Saml. G. Reed	Winsor	Hong Kong	San Francisco
Dec 20	Willem Kronprins der Nederlanden	Zetteler	Batavia	Monte Video
Feb.17	Sirius	Lange	Shanghai	Cardiff
— 4	Endeavour	Warland	Hong Kong	New York

(See Commercial Postscript and Correspondents' Letters.)

LOADING.

At LONDON.—For Yokohama: John Milton, Lota, Espiegle. For Yokohama and Hiogo: Pegasus. For Shanghai: Juanpore, Geraint, Clara, Hindostan, Glenavon. For Hong Kong: William Fruing, Invincible, Sir Harry Parkes, Joseph Sprott, Lord Macaulay. For Hong Kong, Amoy, and Foochow: Devana. For Singapore: Kingdom of Belgium, Windermere. For Penang: Eleanor. For Colombo: Shooting Star, A.O.A.

At LIVERPOOL.—For Yokohama: Singapore, Floris. For Shanghai: W. G. Russell. For Manila: Aurora, Hong Kong. For Singapore: Ellen Lamb, Knight Templar. For Batavia and Sourabaya: Konigin Augusta. For Penang, Singapore, Hong Kong and Shanghai (via Suez Canal): Diomed (str.).

At GLASGOW.—For Hong Kong: Kildonan. For Manila and Ilo Ilo: Aureliana. For Singapore: Bothwell Castle. For Batavia and Sourabaya: County of Lancaster.

SPOKEN.

BENGALEE, Bordeaux to Singapore, Jan. 4,, 8 S., 24 W.
PAK WAN (ship), Canton to London, forty-six days out.
NORGE, Cardiff to Galle, Nov. 14, 3 N., 26 W.
NUEVO ANTARO, Cadiz to Manila, Nov. 30, 47 days out, 39 S., 9 E.
ALMA, Cardiff to Singapore, Dec. 13, 73 days out, 37 S., 35 E.,
JANET FERGUSON, Ykma. to N. York, Dec. 23, 43 days out, 20 S., 73 E.
SUMATRA (Dut. barq.), Batavia to Rotterdam, Jan. 24, 32 N., 55 W.
KIN SIN, Rotterdam to Japan, Dec. 21, 5 N., 25 W.
BENEFACTOR, New York to Shanghai, Dec. 26, 16 S., 31 W.
ORIANA, Manila to Liverpool, Nov. 14, 8 S., 100 E.
EDWARD P. BOUVERIE, Foochow to London, Dec. 1.
ELIZABETH CUSHING, Philippine Islands to London, Feb. 14, 49 N., 9 W.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS.

There is not much tonnage disengaged, but berth freights to the Eastern ports still continue dull; we have no change to note in coal freights from the Northern outports.

Current rates of freight for vessels on the berth:—To Yokohama: 32s. 6d. weight, 35s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 120s. weight 110s. meast. To Shanghai: 40s. weight, 30s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 90s. weight, 80s. meast. To Hong Kong: 35s. weight, 30s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 80s. weight, 70s. meast. To Batavia: 25s. weight, 30s. meast. To Penang: per steamer, via Suez Canal, 80s. weight, 70s. meast. To Singapore: 30s. weight, 25s. to 30s. meast.; per steamer via Suez Canal, 70s. weight, 60s. meast. To Ceylon: 20s. to 25s. weight, 20s. meast; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 60s. meast. At New York to China: $12 to $15 per ton of 40 cubic feet.

The current quotations for coal, &c., are as follows:—From Wear or Tyne per keel.—For Yokohama: £38. For Shanghai: £41. For Hong Kong: £30. For Singapore: £26. For Galle: £27. From Newport, Cardiff, or Swansea per ton.—For Yokohama: £1 15s. For Shanghai: £2 2s. For Hong Kong: £1 12s. 6d. For Saigon: £1 5s. For Galle: £1 7s.

CASUALTIES.

Advices from Rotterdam, dated Feb. 9, state that the Anna Margaretha, Van Munchen, from that port to Samarang, which grounded Jan. 18, near Zierikzee, had discharged at Dordt, and was placed on the patent slip for repairs, but capsized during the last gale, and must have received considerable damage.

The Eudora, Geach, from Samarang to Rotterdam, put back to Plymouth from the Downs, having slipped from two anchors and chains Feb. 13.

The Hilja, Blomberg, from Batavia to Amsterdam, put into Mauritius, Dec. 31, and reported having experienced a cy lone 16, in 20 S., 82 E., during which she lost her fore and maintopgallantmast, jibboom and sails, and sprung foreyard. She was making very little water and would repair afloat.

The following telegram has been received:—"Elleray, Liverpool to Yokohama, wrecked in China Sea, crew at Hong Hong."

The Glenduror, from Java to Rotterdam, went ashore between Walmer and Kingsdown, during a heavy gale on the 13th inst.; the weather has since moderated, and on the 15th about thirty tons of cargo had been discharged from her; hopes are entertained of ultimately getting the vessel off, and should the weather continue fine, the discharging of her cargo will be proceeded with.

Advices from Rotterdam, dated Feb. 16, state that the Indian Empire, from Batavia, parted her chains in Brouwershaven Roads, and got adrift in the ice; a tug was in readiness in case assistance should be required.

Digitized by Google

The William Poelman, Kettler, from Batavia to Rotterdam, with a general cargo, which struck on rocky ground at Scilly, Jan. 27, and was afterwards assisted off, leaky, and with rudder unshipped, has been surveyed by a diver, who reported that the vessel had not sustained any damage, except that the woodlark was displaced, and the second brace or put knocked up and bent; the rudder was uninjured, and would be reshipped, and the vessel towed to her destination.

The Dhollerah, Sargent, from Shanghai, which arrived at Plymouth Feb. 15, reported having experienced severe gales from S.W. and W., from the 5th to 7th Feb., during which she carried away maintopgallant-yard and mizintopsails.

The following telegram has been received:—"Westburn, Foochow to London. Total loss off Pescadores; crew arrived at Amoy."

MISCELLANEOUS.

At Suez, Jan. 29, Arrow (str.), Laing, having passed through the Canal in two days, and left 30, for Galle. At Mauritius, Dec. 15, Gironde (bq.), Ducan, from Bangkok, for Belle Isle; 13, Vera Cruzana (bq.), Despleis, from Bangkok, for Marseilles; 31, Hija (ship), Blomberg, from Batavia, for Amsterdam, for repairs: 30, Achilles (str.), Russell, from Liverpool, and left 31, for Penang, Singapore, &c.; 31, Boscq, Meriais, from Monte Video, and sailed, Jan. 1, for Penang; 25, Rota, Hanschell, sailed for Batavia, after repairing.

At St. Vincent (C.V.), Jan. 30, Eastern Isles (str.), Knight, from the Clyde, and left Feb. 2, for Singapore, China, &c.

The Alfred, Gronow, from Singapore to Bremen, was reported ninety miles E.N.E. of Yarmouth.

At low water on the 11th inst. there was nothing whatever to be seen of the wreck of the Spindrift.

We understand that Messrs. George Smith and Son, of Glasgow, have contracted with Messrs. Barclay and Curle and Messrs. Charles Connel and Co. to construct for them four full-power screw steamers, of 1,500 tons register, for their East India trade, via the Suez Canal.

THE BEST ROOFING MATERIAL.

BRABY & CO. ALSO MANUFACTURE SHEET AND PERFORATED ZINC, ROOFING FELT, GALVANIZED BUCKETS AND ALL OTHER ZINC AND GALVANIZED IRON GOODS, ILLUSTRATED LISTS OF WHICH WILL BE SENT FREE ON APPLICATION.

F. BRABY & Co.

(LIMITED),

BRABY'S GALVANIZED IRON HOUSES.

FITZROY WORKS, EUSTON ROAD, LONDON · AND AT IDA WHARF, DEPTFORD, S.E.

TRADE MARK ON CAPSULES & CASES

PARTICIPATION CHARENTAIS

LA GRANDE MARQUE COGNAC

LONDON OFFICES (for the trade only)—22 and 23, Great Tower-street.

Mr. V. JOUANNET, Managing Director, Cognac. | Mr. E. VIGNIER, Manager for the U.K., London.

The largest holders of Vintage 1865, and old Brandies of the first growths; which can be obtained from all Wine and Spirit Merchants, or can be procured by them, as large consignments have been lately shipped to all the principal ports of China, Japan, Java, Singapore, and Ceylon.

Blue Label, 6 years; Yellow Label, 11 years; Red Label, 14 years; White Label, from 18 to 40 years.

Samples forwarded free, by Overland Route, to Merchants giving satisfactory references in London.

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES.

THIS UNIVERSAL REMEDY now stands the first in public favour and confidence; this result has been acquired by the test of fifty years' experience. These lozenges may be found on sale in every British colony; and throughout India and China they have been highly esteemed wherever introduced. For COUGHS, ASTHMA, and all AFFECTIONS of the THROAT and CHEST, they are the most agreeable and efficacious remedy; they do not contain opium or any other deleterious drug, and may therefore be taken with perfect safety by the most delicate constitution.

Sold in boxes, tins, and bottles of various sizes.

KEATING'S CHILDREN'S WORM TABLETS.

The great remedy for these disorders in Adults and Children can now be administered in the form of A PURELY VEGETABLE SWEETMEAT, at once agreeable and effective.

TESTIMONIAL.

"Batley, Jan. 26, 1869.

"SIR,—One of my children, aged two years and four months, being troubled with worms, I was induced to try your Bon Bons. I purchased some from Mr. B. Whitaker, chemist, of Batley, and after taking two only, she voided nine large worms. Two days after another dose, she again voided three more; three of them, the worst, measuring from 8 in. to 9 in. each in length. I consider them a most invaluable remedy, and should be tried by all suffering from worms.

(Signed) "JOHN STENSON.

"Witness, B. WHITAKER.

"To Mr. Keating, London."

Sold in tins and bottles of various sizes.

KEATING'S INSECT DESTROYING POWDER.

This Powder is QUITE HARMLESS TO ANIMAL LIFE, but is unrivalled in destroying Fleas, Bugs, Cockroaches, Beetles, Musquitos, and every other species of Insect.

Sold in packets, tins, and bottles of various sizes.

☞ The public are particularly requested to observe that all the above preparations bear the Trade Mark as herein shown.

KEATING, 79, ST. PAUL'S CHURCHYARD

TRADE MARK.

Sold in Hong Kong and Shanghai by Watson and Co.; Singapore, Little and Co. and Woodford and Schreeder; Ceylon, Piters and Co. and Mailland and Co.; Penang, Gazette office.

ROBERT COCKS and Co.'s MUSICAL BOX. A Caprice for the Pianoforte. Composed by I. LIEBICH, and performed by him at the Queen's Concert Rooms, Hanover-square, and twice encored. 3s

MEDICINE JACK (Comic Song, Illustrated.) Music and words by A. S. GATTY. "Replete with genuine fun and humour."—Sun. Free by post, 19 stamps.

THE SMILES OF THOSE WE LOVE. Song. By W. F. Taylor. "One of the most elegant songs of the day." "The air is simplicity itself, and will be caught up at once, and the pretty and harmless character of the words renders it peculiarly appropriate as a song for the home circle."—Vide Orchestra. 3s.

THE MOST REFINED and AMUSING COMIC SONGS of the DAY. Composed by Mr. A. S. GATTY.

I Really am so Sleepy	I'll Not Try it Again.
Put it Down to Me	Medicine Jack.
Bobbie! Bobbie!	B R. A. G.
Not so Bad for Me.	A Lady's Song.

These songs may be sung in any drawing-room. 3s. each.

"I REALLY AM SO SLEEPY." By Alfred Scott Gatty.

"Mr. Alfred Scott Gatty is getting quite a reputation for his comic songs, and deservedly so. They possess far more real humour than the popular songs of the music halls, and we need hardly say are far above them in every respect. Mr. Gatty's words are funny without being vulgar, and there is not one of his songs but what has a hearty and legitimate laugh in it. 'I Really am so Sleepy' is a very simple melody, set to clever racy words, and will be sure to be a favourite amongst those who enjoy an honest comic ballad."—Vide Midland Illustrated News. Jan. 8.

London, COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT and PILLS. RHEUMATIC PAINS.—Many thousands of martyrs from rheumatism have found human life one long disease, and after consulting all the most eminent medical men in vain, and trying all sorts of supposed remedies without relief, have grown weary of existence, and have ceased to hope for comfort on this side of the grave, until some lucky accident has called their attention to Holloway's Pills and Ointment. These are genuine remedies indeed. Persons bedridden for months with rheumatic pains and swellings, after the Ointment has been well rubbed into the parts affected, and the blood purified by a course of these Pills, have found themselves restored in an incredibly short time to perfect health and ease.

C. KRAMER begs to inform the public that he has established himself at this place as NURSERYMAN and SEEDSMAN, and is fully prepared to execute any orders for Japanese plants, bulbs, or seeds for any part of the world.

An experience of four years in this business in foreign parts two of which has been gained in this country, may ensure the confidence of customers.

Orders must be accompanied by remittances or references, and letters must be addressed to

C. KRAMER,

No. 63, BLUFF, YOKOHAMA.

THE STRAITS TIMES.—Daily, weekly, and fortnightly editions; published in Singapore, for circulation throughout the STRAITS SETTLEMENTS, JAVA, BORNEO, SIAM, FRENCH COCHIN CHINA, CHINA, and JAPAN.

This paper, which is the oldest in Singapore, and the most widely circulated throughout the FAR EAST, offers an excellent medium for the advertisements of shipbuilders, machinists, manufacturers, patentees, &c., in the United Kingdom.

Advertisements to be forwarded through an Agent in Singapore, or GEORGE STREET, 30, Cornhill, London.

THE SAIGON ADVERTISER & SHIPPING GAZETTE.

A SUMMARY of Commercial and Shipping Reports from SAIGON, and a Record of Progress in COCHIN CHINA.

Subscription, £5 per annum, exclusive of postage.

London Agency: THE LONDON AND CHINA TELEGRAPH Office, 2, Cowper's-court, Cornhill, London, E.C

COWASJEE DINSHAW.

Close to the Landing Place, Depot of

EUROPEAN CHINA, AND INDIAN WORK.

WINE, BEER, CHAMPAGNE, and SPIRITS of the best quality. Bombay-made Soda Water and Lemonade Perfumery, Confectionery, Oilman's Stores, and Stationery of every description. Sola Topees and Canvas Shoes, &c., &c., &c.

STEAMER POINT, ADEN.

Drawing and Reading-room free to Passengers.

THE London and China Express ON SALE.

Liebig Company's Extract of Meat.

AMSTERDAM EXHIBITION, 1869, FIRST PRIZE, being above the Gold Medal. Supplied to the British, French, Prussian Russian, Italian, Dutch and other Governments. One pint of fine flavoured Beef-tea at 2½d. Most convenient and economic "stock."

CAUTION.—Only sort warranted genuine by the Inventor, Baron Liebig, whose signature is on every genuine Jar.

Ask for LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT, and NOT for Liebig's Extract of Meat.

CANADIAN NEWS, every Thursday contains all the latest news from the New Dominion

Price 2d., post free, 3d.

Office: 8, Clement's-lane, Lombard-street, E.C.

Digitized by Google

THE MANILA AND HONG KONG SUBMARINE TELEGRAPH COMPANY (LIMITED).

Incorporated under the Companies' Acts, 1862, 1867.

TO ESTABLISH TELEGRAPHIC COMMUNICATION BETWEEN MANILA, THE ADJACENT ISLANDS, HONG KONG, AND SINGAPORE.

By virtue of an exclusive Concession from the Spanish Government for Forty Years.

CAPITAL, £350,000, IN 35,000 SHARES OF £10 EACH,

OF WHICH £70,000 IN FULLY PAID-UP SHARES WILL BE TAKEN BY THE CONTRACTOR.

Deposit on Application £1 per Share, and on Allotment £1 per Share. Further Payments—On the 1st April, 1870, £2; on the 1st May, 1870 £2; on the 1st July, 1870. £2; and on 1st September, 1870, £2. Interest at the rate of Five per Cent. per Annum will be paid by the Contractors upon the Paid-up Capital of the Company until the opening of the Line.

DIRECTORS.

CHAIRMAN—WILLIAM T. MERCER, Esq., late Colonial Secretary and Acting Governor of Hong Kong.

JOHN B. DARVALL, Esq., C.M.G., Director of the Bank of Australasia.
CHARLES K. DYER, Esq., Lloyd's, Director of the British and Irish Magnetic Telegraph Company.
WILLIAM MAITLAND, Esq., formerly of Mackillop, Stewart, and Co., Calcutta, and President of the Bengal Chamber of Commerce.
WM. T. MARTEN, Esq., late of Martin, Dyce, and Co., Java, Singapore, and Manila.
WENTWORTH STURGEON, Esq., 25 Gloucester-place, Portman-square.
JAMES WHITLOW, Esq., late of Holliday, Wise, and Co., China.
ROBERT DE LA CONDAMINE, Esq., late of Ker and Co., Manila; Syme and Co., Singapore; Pitcairn, Syme, and Co., Batavia.

Engineers.—Sir SAMUEL CANNING (Consulting Engineer); ROBERT SABINE, Esq., C.E.

Bankers.—For London: Messrs. ROBARTS, LUBBOCK, and CO. For China; THE HONG KONG AND SHANGHAI BANKING CORPORATION.

Solicitors.—Messrs. STEVENS, WILKINSON, and HARRIES, Nicholas-lane, Lombard-street.

Auditors.—Messrs. JOHNSTONE, COOPER, WINTLE, and EVANS. (And one to be appointed by the Shareholders.)

Brokers.—Messrs. SEYMOUR and ELWYN. | Secretary.—GEORGE ARMSTRONG, Esq., late of Hong Kong.

Temporary Offices—GRESHAM HOUSE, 23, OLD BROAD STREET.

This Company has been formed to purchase and carry out the exclusive concession, granted for forty years by the Spanish Government, dated the 24th November last, to establish telegraphic communication between Manila, the Phillippine Islands, Hong Kong, and Singapore.

The proposed line and its connections are marked upon the Map accompanying the Prospectus.

The capital now proposed to be raised will be to complete the first section, which will be laid from Hong Kong to Manila, a length of about 650 nautical miles, together with the necessary cable for connecting the principal places in the adjacent Islands with Manila, estimated at a further length, including land-lines and cables, of 470 miles.

Communication with Europe, England, and America will be established by means of the following routes:—

First. Through the lines now in the course of construction by the British-Indian Extension Company, the British-Indian, the Anglo-Mediterranean, the Falmouth, Gibraltar, and Malta Telegraph Companies.

Second. Through the proposed cable between Singapore and Calcutta, and thence through the Indian and Indo-European Company's lines, or the lines of the British-Indian, Anglo-Mediterranean, the Falmouth, Gibraltar, and Malta Telegraph Companies.

Third. Through the Great Northern Company's lines, from Hong Kong via Possietta.

This Company will thus be enabled to avail itself of the advantages of three competing lines of communication with the United Kingdom, Europe and America, whilst it may be added, that the through route, by way of Russia to England, will be almost immediately completed by means of the section now in course of construction between Kiakhta and Shanghai, two competing lines being about to open communication between Shanghai and Hong Kong.

The second section contemplated by the concession, viz.:—From Manila to Singapore, touching at Labuan and Sarawak, will form an alternative, second, or through line, between Singapore and Hong Kong, which must obtain a fair share of the vast business between two points of contact, that represent on the one side the large and increasing trade of China and Japan, and on the other, the Indian, Australian, European and American messages.

The construction of this section is, however, reserved for the consideration of the shareholders, who will within a short time, be called upon to decide when the wants of the through traffic and the requirements of this Company's concession will demand this extension.

The traffic of the Phillippine Islands through the chief city, Manila, with Hong Kong, and the various treaty ports of China, the Straits Settlements, Java, Australia, India, Europe, the United Kingdom, and America, has been for years past of great and increasing importance, which telegraphic communication will largely develop.

The great depot, and port of call, Singapore, to which place large numbers of "seeking ships" annually resort for information and freight, will, beyond doubt, contribute substantially to the revenue of the Company, for the shipping entered and cleared at Singapore and the Straits Settlements in 1858 amounted to 13,246 vessels, representing 1,917,633 tons; and the annual trade amounts to nearly £20,000,000.

Telegrams connected with the considerable trade between Spain and her colonies in the Phillippine Islands would pass over this line when the through traffic is established.

The local traffic of Manila with the adjacent Islands, which have a large and increasing Chinese population, and which are the principal producing districts of the Phillippines, renders inter-telegraphic communication indispensable, and this branch of the Company's business will, it is anticipated, yield a highly profitable return.

The islands and ports to which it is proposed to carry a line, by land and sea, are—Sual in the north-west of Luzon; Zebu in the island of Zebu; Ylo Ylo, and other places; which are centres of districts producing largely hemp, sugar, tobacco, rice, coffee, gutta percha, &c.

Calculations have been made as to the probable results likely to accrue to the shareholders by the operations of this Company, and there is reason to believe that taking the messages between Hong Kong and Manila, the messages which will be sent to Manila from the port of Singapore, by way of Hong Kong, and those which will be sent to Manila from Shanghai, Amoy, Swatow, and the various Ports of China and Japan; and taking also into consideration the through messages from Europe, India, America, Australia, and the Dutch Settlements, and further calculating the increasing intermediate traffic of Manila with the rest of the Phillippines, the results will eventually show, allowing 300 working days in the year, an annual income which will yield large dividends on the capital after deducting £12,000 per annum for working expenses and £10,000 per annum to form a reserve fund for the repairs of the Cables, &c.

The Spanish Government will assist the objects of the concession with ships of the navy, as far as the service will permit.

A tender has been accepted from Mr. W. T. Henley, of North Woolwich, which provides for the manufacture and laying of the cables, and for the erection of the overland wires within twelve months, at a cost of £297,000. Until the Submarine Cable has been completely laid £45,000 will remain unpaid, and of this sum £25,000 will remain in the Company's hands until the line has been maintained in good working order for thirty days.

The contract also provides for the payment of interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum upon the paid-up capital by the contractors, payable half-yearly, until the opening of the line; and the contractor takes £70,000 in fully paid-up shares.

The copy of the concession published officially in the "Madrid Gazette," with the notarial translation; and copies of the agreement with the Concessionaires for the purchase of their interest, also of the Memorandum and Articles of Association, and of the Contract with Mr. W. T. Henley, can be seen at the Offices of the Company.

Application for shares, to be made in the accompanying form, must be left at the Company's London Bankers.

In all cases where no allotment is made the deposit will be returned without deduction of any kind.

The following contracts have been entered into:—

1870. February 14.—Tender of Mr. W. T. Henley, accepted by William T. Mercer, Esq., Chairman of the Company, on behalf of the Company.

1870. February 5.—Agreement between David Hean, and Charles William Graham; and William Thomas Mercer, William Maitland, and Wentworth Sturgeon, Esquires, on behalf of the Company.

THE MANILA AND HONG KONG SUBMARINE TELEGRAPH COMPANY (Limited).

No.....

FORM OF APPLICATION.

To be retained by the Bankers.

To the Directors of the Manila and Hong Kong Submarine Telegraph Company (Limited).

Gentlemen.—Having paid to your Bankers the sum of £ , being a deposit of £1 per Share, I request you will allot me Shares of £10 each in your Company, upon the terms of the Prospectus and Memorandum and Articles of Association; and I hereby agree to accept the said Shares, or any smaller number which you may allot to me, and to become a member of the Company, and I request you to place my name on the Register of Members in respect of the Shares which may be allotted to me.

I am, Gentlemen, your obedient servant,

Name in full .....
Address in full.....
Date 1870

No. .....

BANKERS' RECEIPT.

To be retained by Applicant.

Received the day of , 1870, on account of the Manila and Hong Kong Submarine Telegraph Company (Limited) from the sum of pounds, being a deposit of £1 per Share on application for Shares of £10 each.

.....

£ ..... For the.. .....

(Copy.)

MEMORANDUM of ASSOCIATION of the MANILA and HONG KONG SUBMARINE TELEGRAPH COMPANY (Limited).

1. The name of the Company is "The Manila and Hong Kong Submarine Telegraph Company (Limited)."

2. The Registered Office of the Company will be situate in England.

3. The objects for which the Company is established are the contracting for, constructing, acquiring, leasing, maintaining, dealing with and working lines of Telegraph between Manila, Hong Kong, Singapore, and the Islands of the Eastern Archipelago or some of such places, and between such places or some of them, and any other places or points adjacent thereto, or forming or intended to form part or parts of any telegraphic route or routes between those places, or any of them, and (as and when authorised by Extraordinary Meeting of the members) branches from and extensions of any of those lines to such countries or places as the Company think fit; the establishment of telegraph stations, and, generally, carrying on the business of a telegraph company; the applying for, acquiring, selling, leasing, using, and disposing of such lands, telegraph lines, vessels, concessions, leases, privileges, licences, and letters patent, and any shares or interest therein respectively, as may be useful or desirable for the purposes aforesaid, or any of them; the doing of all or any of these matters or things in conjunction with any other company or person; the registration or constitution of the Company abroad as a Société Anonyme or otherwise; the subscribing for and acquiring shares of, or amalgamating with and sharing in the business or undertakings of any other telegraph company or companies, and the making and carrying into effect of working traffic and other agreements with Governments, railway, postal, steamboat, telegraph, and other companies and authorities, and the doing of all such other things as are incidental or conducive to the attainment of the above objects.

4. The liability of members is limited.

5. The capital of the Company is £350,000, divided into 35,000 shares of £10 each.

Digitized by Google

PORT OF AMOY.

SHIPOWNERS, AGENTS, and COMMANDERS are informed that the Dock Company's establishments at the above port afford every facility, at moderate charges, for REPAIRING and SPARRING VESSELS, cleaning and painting iron ships and steamers.

Their large Granite Dock has 286 feet length on the blocks, and at average spring tides can receive vessels of 16 to 17 feet draught. It has a caisson-gate and a powerful centrifugal steam pump, and an engineer's workshop fitted with lathes and tools, driven by steam; iron and brass foundries, boiler-makers' shop, a large smithy and carpenters and boat-builders' sheds, superintended by resident Europeans.

Their two smaller GRANITE DOCKS can receive, at spring tides, vessels drawing 12 feet.

Spars, timber, and other Dockyard material kept in stock.

Quarters for officers and a DRY GODOWN for stores of vessels under repair.

SINGAPORE DOCKS.

THE PATENT SLIP AND DOCK COMPANY execute SHIPS' REPAIRS of all descriptions in the most efficient manner, under the supervision of European Engineers and Shipwrights.

The DRY DOCK (opened in March, 1859) admits two vessels at the same time, being over 400 feet in length, with a depth of water ranging to 15½ feet. A second DRY DOCK of larger dimensions will shortly be completed, and available for the heaviest Steamers.

Adjoining the above there is extensive WHARF WAREHOUSE, and other accommodation, including every convenience for coaling Steamers, discharging cargo, and storing goods, together with ample MACHINERY and appliances for repairing iron steamers, &c.

Apply at the offices of Messrs. PATERSON, SIMON and Co., Singapore; or 21, St. Swithin's-lane, Cannon-street, London, E.C.

WM. CLOUGHTON, Managing Director.

New Harbour, Singapore, June, 1868.

FOOCHOW DOCK.

RIVER MIN.

THE above granite floored DOCK, of the following dimensions, viz., Length, 300 feet, breadth at bottom, 40, is capable of receiving vessels drawing 13 to 16 feet, as the state of the tides will allow. The Dock runs dry to the blocks, and is pumped out by steam.

The above premises comprise a large Machine Shop containing a

WHITWORTH'S 12-INCH SCREW CUTTING GAP LATHE, DRILLING AND SCREWING MACHINES,

A LARGE SMITHY, &c., &c., &c.

Large Godowns are on the premises for STOWAGE OF CARGO, &c., &c. A large stock of Woods, Metal, &c., &c., always on hand.

The Dock steam tug Woosung is available at all times to tow vessels to or from sea.

JOHN C. SKEY, Superintendent.

COMPTOIR D'ESCOMPTE DE PARIS.

Incorporated by National Decrees of 7th and 8th March, 1848, and by Imperial Decree of 20th July 1854, and 31st December, 1866.

Recognised by the International Convention of 30th April, 1862.

CAPITAL, fully paid up, £3,200.000.

Reserved Fund ... ... f 20,000,000 ... £800,000

HEAD OFFICE.—14, Rue Bergere, Paris.

AGENCIES AT—Lyons, Marseilles, and Nantes (France), Alexandria (Egypt), Calcutta, Bombay, Hong Kong, Shanghai, Saigon (Cochin China), Bourbon (Reunion), and Yokohama (Japan).

LONDON BANKERS.—The Union Bank of London.

LONDON AGENCY.—13, Leadenhall-stre t, E.C.

MANAGER.—G. Pietsch.

SUB-MANAGER.—Theod. Dromel.

The London Agency grants Drafts and Letters of Credit, and purchases or collects Bills payable at the above-named places.

The Agency will conduct Banking business of every description with the Continent India, China, &c., upon erms to be ascertained at the Office.

ORIENTAL BANK CORPORATION.

Incorporated by Royal Charter, August 30, 1851.

PAID-UP CAPITAL, £1,500,000.

RESERVED FUND, £444,000.

The Corporation grant Drafts and negotiate or collect Bills payable at Bombay, Calcutta, Colombo, Foochow, Hong Kong, Kandy, Madras, Mauritius, Melbourne, Point de Galle, Shanghai, Singapore, Sydney, and Yokohama, on terms which may be ascertained at their office. They also issue Circular Notes for the use of Travellers by the Overland Route.

They undertake the agency of parties connected with India, the purchase and sale of Indian and other Securities, the custody of the same, the receipt of Interest, Dividends, Pay, Pensions, &c., and the effecting of remittances between the above-named dependencies.

They also receive deposits of £100 and upwards for fixed periods, the terms for which may be ascertained on application at their office.

Office hours, Ten to Three; Saturdays, Ten to Two.

Threadneedle-street, London, 1870.

UNION INSURANCE SOCIETY OF CANTON.

DIRECTORS IN HONG KONG.

W. NISSEN, Esq.,
J. P. DUNCANSON, Esq.,
P. RYRIE, Esq.,
W. KESWICK, Esq.,
A. A. D. SASSOON, Esq.,
E. A. HITCHCOCK, Esq.,
W. LEMANN, Esq.,
W. H. FOSTER, Jun., Esq.

AGENTS FOR LONDON.

Messrs. DENT, PALMER, and Co.

Marine Risks are accepted by the above Society on goods by first class vessels from the United Kingdom to India, China, Japan, Melbourne, and Sydney, at the current rates of premium.

Claims for Losses and Averages are payable in London, or at the Port of destination, as may be desired.

OFFICES:—

Nos. 9 AND 11, KING'S ARMS YARD, MOORGATE STREET, E.C.

HONG KONG AND SHANGHAI BANKING CORPORATION.

Capital, 5,000,000 dols Paid up, 3,000,00 dols.

COURT OF DIRECTORS AND HEAD OFFICE IN HONG KONG.

LONDON MANAGER—W. H. Vacher, 32, Nicholas-lane

BANKERS.—London and County Bank.

BRANCHES AND AGENCIES:

Hong Kong	Hankow	Singapore
Shanghai	Japan (Yokohama)	Bombay
Foochow	Manila	Calcutta
Ningpo

The Bank grants DRAFTS upon and negotiates or collects BILLS at any of its Agencies or Branches; also receives DEPOSITS for fixed periods, at rates varying with the period of deposit.

CAUTION.

THE GROSS FRAUDS which continue to be practised by obscure manufacturers, more particularly in Germany, by imitating the labels attached to JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s PERFUMERY, render it imperative upon the Proprietors to Caution the public against such nefarious proceedings, and to request their friends and patrons to purchase only of respectable dealers, who import direct from JOHN GOSNELL and Co., and invite special attention to the address, ANGEL-PASSAGE, 93, UPPER THAMES-STREET, late of 12, Three King-court, Lombard-street, London, E.C.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s SELECT PERFUMES—Ess Bouquet, Royal Yacht Club Bouquet, Jockey Club Perfume, Essence of Wood Violet, Victoria Bouquet, Garibaldi Bouquet, Frangipanni, Military Bouquet, The Bride's Bouquet, Tea Rose, Russian Leather Perfume.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Toilet Vinegar. Inexhaustible Salts, Aromatic Vinegar, Aromatic Eau de Cologne.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Prince of Wales Perfume

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Princess Alexandra Perfume.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s La Noblesse Perfume.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s La Noblesse Pomade.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s La Noblesse Soap.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Real Old Brown Windsor Soap.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Golden Oil—Moelline—Macassar Oil, Bear's Grease, &c., for the Hair.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Extra Highly Scented Toilet and Nursery Powder.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Stereodesmic or Dentist Tooth Brushes and Trichosaron Hair Brushes, warranted to purchasers.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Instantaneous Hair Dye.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Cherry Tooth Paste is greatly superior to any tooth powder, gives the teeth a pearl-like whiteness, protects the enamel from decay, and imparts a pleasing fragrance to the breath.

Orders executed on receipt of 10 per cent. of the amount in cash, the balance being drawn for through a Banker.

PRICE'S

BENZODYNE AN

INTERNAL STYPTIC of great value. In Cholera, Diarrhœa, and Dysentery this medicine far surpasses any other, having a peculiar mechanical power of putting a sudden stop to wasting diseases. Chronic Cough and blood-spitting are immediately relieved by it, as well as pain and debility of every kind. Prepared by Mr. PRICE, Analytical Chemist, 2, Lower Seymour-street, and 30, Duke-street, Portman-square, London; and sold by Chemists all over the world, in bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., 11s., and 22s., or in dispensing bottles at 5s., 10s., and 20s. each.

THE MONEY MARKET REVIEW:

A WEEKLY JOURNAL OF THE HIGHEST CLASS.

EXCLUSIVELY DEVOTED TO THE DISCUSSION COMMERCIAL AND FINANCIAL TOPICS.

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

PAYABLE IN ADVANCE.

Single Paper ... ... 6d. early ... ... £1 6s.

BY POST.

Sinle Paper ... ... 7d. Yearly ... ... 10s.

 Post-office Orders to be made payable to FRANCIS FISHER, 2, Castle-court, Birchin-lane, Cornhill, London E.C.

OSLER'S CRYSTAL GLASS CHANDELIERS.

WALL LIGHTS and LUSTRES for Gas and Candles
CHANDELIERS in Bronze and Ormolu
MODERATOR LAMPS and LAMPS for INDIA,
TABLE GLASS of all kinds.
ORNAMENTAL GLASS, English and Foreign
Mess, Export, and Furnishing Orders promptly executed.
All articles marked in plain figure
OXFORD STREET, W.
MANUFACTORY AND SHOW ROOMS.—Broad Street, Birmingham.
Established 1807.

RE-ENGAGEMENT WANTED, as BOOKKEEPER AND ENGLISH CORRESPONDENT, by a GENTLEMAN having six years' experience in China and Japan. Satisfactory testimonials as to integrity and ability.

Address, YANGTZE, 13, Buckingham-street, Strand.

NOTICE

MORRIS'S DIRECTORY for CHINA, JAPAN, and the PHILIPPINES, &c., to be published on the 1st Jan., 1870, contains a Revised List of the Foreign Residents at all the open Ports of the China Sea, including Saigon, which has never yet been included in any similar work; together with the Time Tables of the different Steamship Companies, Rates of Postage, Local Ordinances, and such other matter as will be useful to all interested in the China trade. No trouble or expense has been spared to make this the most accurate publication of the kind ever offered to the public.

Price, complete in one volume, 14s.

Orders received by the Publisher of the "London and China Telegraph," 2, Cowper's-court, Cornhill, E.C.

"THE CHINA MAIL,"

No 2, WYNDHAM-STREET, HONG KONG.

NOTICE.—THE BUSINESS heretofore carried on under the style of "Shortrede and Co," was this day purchased by the undersigned, in whose name and by whom it will henceforth be conducted, and to whom all outstanding accounts owing to the said business are to be paid.

Hong Kong, Aug. 15, 1867. CHAS. A. SAINT

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS.

THE DAILY CHINA MAIL.—Six pages; published every evening (except Sunday). Subscription, 24 dols. per annum. Circulates in Hong Kong and along the China and Japan coasts. Terms of advertising:—Ten lines and under, 1 dol.; each additional line, 10 cents; one-half of these charges for repetitions. In Chinese, 2 cents per character for any number of days during the current week.

THE OVERLAND CHINA MAIL.—Compiled from the Daily China Mail, is published twice a month on the morning of the English mail's departure, and is a record of each fortnight's current history of events in China and Japan, contributed in original reports and collated from the journals published at the various ports in those countries. It contains, besides, a Shipping List for Shanghai, Hong Kong, Canton, and Macao, and a complete Commercial Summary.

Subscription, 12 dols. per annum, payable to any of the undermentioned agents. Postage added. Terms of advertising:—Same as in Daily China Mail.

AGENTS.—London: F. Algar, 11, Clement's-lane, Lombard-street, E.C. San Francisco: White and Bauer, 518, Clay-street, San Francisco. Swatow: Drown and Co. Amoy: Giles and Co. Foochow: Thompson and Co. Shanghai: H. Fogg and Co. Manila: Karuth, Heinzen, and Co. Australia: Gordon and Gotch, Melbourne and Sydney. Singapore: Locke. Hongghee, and Co. Batavia: H. Van Dorp.

THE LONDON & CHINA TELEGRAPH.

THE TWELFTH Volume of this JOURNAL commenced on the 10th of January, 1870. The Subscription for three numbers per month is 30s. per annum, including Postage, and to the Export Supplement 12s. extra. Terms for advertising, 2s. 6d. per five lines, and 6d. for each additional line.

Subscriptions and Advertisements received abroad by the following Agents:—

Paris	G. W. YAPP, 4, Place Wagram, Boulevard Pereire.
Brindisi	AGENTS FOR BRINDISI STEAMERS.
Hamburg	Mr. ONCKEN.
Holland (Rotterdam and Amsterdam)	COLONIAL AGENCY, Delftschevaart, 6.323, Rotterdam.
New York	WM. H. FOGG & Co., 32, Burling Slip.
San Francisco	WHITE & BAUER, 413, Washington-street.
Alexandria	DAVID ROBERTSON & Co., The Square.
Aden	COWASJEE DINSHAW.
Point de Galle	J. GIBSON, THOMSON, & Co.
Colombo	FREDK. PITERS.
	J. MAITLAND & Co.
Singapore, Labuan, and Sarawak	JOHN LITTLE & Co., Singapore.
Penang	SANDILANDS, BUTTERY, & Co.
Saigon	RIBEIRO & Co.
Batavia	HUNTER HOUGHTON & Co.
Samarang	DE GROOT, KOLFF, & Co.
Sourabaya
Anjer — Straits of Sunda	G. SCHUIT, Anjer Hotel.
Manila	MICHELL, BARNARD, & Co.
Hong Kong, Canton, Macao and Swatow	MORRIS & Co., Hong Kong.
Amoy	BROWN & Co.
Foochow	HEDGE & Co.
Shanghai	H. FOGG & Co.
Tien-Tsin	JAMES HENDERSON
Nagasaki—Japan	PIGNATEL & Co.
Yokohama	E. C. KIRBY & Co
Osaka and Hiogo	E. C. KIRBY & Co.

OFFICE 2, COWPER'S-COURT, CORNHILL, E C

(Over the JERUSALEM.)

Digitized by Google

NAGASAKI PATENT SLIP.

THIS SLIP IS NOW AVAILABLE FOR DOCKING SHIPS OF 1,200 TONS OR UNDER.

ALL WORK CONNECTED THEREWITH, AS ALSO IN THE

SHIPWRIGHTS, JOINERS, BOAT BUILDERS, SPAR MAKERS', AND GENERAL DEPARTMENTS

IS UNDER

THE SUPERINTENDENCE OF EXPERIENCED EUROPEANS.

The Slip has been most substantially built, in a perfectly landlocked and secure position, and has been pronounced by competent authority to be equal to any existing construction of the same kind.

Charge for three days' use of the Slip, $1 per ton, and all labour, material, &c., supplied on moderate terms. For further information apply to

GLOVER AND CO., MANAGERS,
NAGASAKI, JAPAN.

OVERLAND ROUTE.—The PENINSULAR AND ORIENTAL STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY book Passengers and receive Cargo and Parcels by their steamers for—

	From Southampton.	From Marseilles.
GIBRALTAR ...	Every Saturday, at 2 P.M.	—
MALTA.....	,, ,,	—
ALEXANDRIA.	,, ,,	Every Sunday, at 7 A.M.
ADEN	,, ,,	,, ,,
*BOMBAY	,, ,,	,, ,,
GALLE.....
MADRAS	Saturday, Feb.	Sunday, Feb. 13,
CALCUTTA ...	5, 2 P.M.	7 A.M.
PENANG	And every alter-	And every alter-
SINGAPORE ...	nate Saturday	nate Sunday
CHINA	thereafter.	thereafter.
JAPAN
AUSTRALIA ...	Saturday, Feb. 19. 2 P.M. And every fourth Saturday thereafter.	Sunday, Feb. 27, 7 A.M. And every fourth Sunday thereafter.

And all ports touched at by the British India Steam Navigation Company's steamers.

* The following reduced rates will be charged to Bombay:—
From Southampton... £72 first class; £45 second class.
From Marseilles ... 70 ,, 43 ,,
exclusive of transit through Egypt. A corresponding reduction will be made in the rates from Bombay to Europe.

For further particulars apply at the Company's Offices, 122, Leadenhall-street, London; or Oriental-place, Southampton.

MAIL ROUTE FOR CALIFORNIA, JAPAN AND CHINA, VIA PANAMA.

THE PACIFIC MAIL STEAM SHIP COMPANY despatch their splendid side-wheel steamers from NEW YORK on the 5th and 21st, and from PANAMA on the 13th and 29th of every month for SAN FRANCISCO (calling at ACAPULCO and MANZANILLA en route), thence to YOKOHAMA, HIOGO, NAGASAKI, SHANGHAI, and HONG KONG, on the 1st of every month. Passengers from England may connect with this line at New York by any of the various lines of steamers from Liverpool, Glasgow, Southampton, or Havre.

Passengers by this line are less than ten days in the tropics.

SANDWICH ISLANDS and BRITISH COLUMBIA.—The steamers of the North Pacific Transportation Company leave San Francisco at regular intervals for those countries.

H. STARR and Co., Agents, 22, Moorgate-street, London.

UNION PACIFIC RAILWAY.—THROUGH LINE from NEW YORK to SAN FRANCISCO.

San Francisco, in 18 days from England.
Japan ..... in 38 ,, ,,
China ..... in 44 ,, ,,

Passengers for California and intermediate points on this road may now be booked through from England at the established rates of fare; and from San Francisco to Japan, China, &c., by the magnificent steamers of the Pacific Mail Company.

For Rates, Tickets, &c., apply to H. STARR and Co., Agents, 22, Moorgate-street, London.

NEW ROUTE TO CHINA AND JAPAN, VIA LIVERPOOL.

THE WEST INDIA AND PACIFIC STEAM SHIP COMPANY (Limited) sign through bills of lading for goods to Yokohama Nagasaki, Hong Kong, and Shanghai, via San Francisco, by the Pacific Mail Steam Ship Company's new line of mail steamers from that port.

Passengers will find excellent accommodation, and the fares more reasonable than by any other route.

For terms, &c., apply to the Agents, J. M. CURRIE, Esq., 21, Quai d'Orleans, Havre, or 7, Rue Scribe, Paris; or at the Company's Offices, 117, Leadenhall-street, London, and The Temple, Dale-street, Liverpool.

ARTHUR B. FORWOOD, Managing Director.

OVERLAND ROUTE VIA MARSEILLES.—SERVICES MARITIMES DES MESSAGERIES IMPERIALES OF FRANCE.—FRENCH MAIL STEAM PACKETS LEAVE MARSEILLES AS FOLLOWS:—

22 January, 19 February, 19 March, 16 April, 14 May — For — Alexandria, Aden, Mauritius, Seychelles, Reunion, Point de Galle (Ceylon), Pondicherry, Madras, Calcutta, Singapore, Batavia, Saigon, Hong Kong, Shanghai, and Japan.

9th, 19th, and 29th of every month for Alexandria.

For Passage, Freight, and information, apply to B. W. and H. HORNE, 4, Moorgate-street, London; G. H. FLETCHER and Co., Liverpool; at the offices of the Services Maritimes des Messageries Imperiales in Paris, Lyons, Bordeaux, and Marseilles; or to Smith and Co., Rotterdam.

 Passengers eastward of Suez securing their berths in London are entitled to the conveyance of their luggage free to Marseilles

---

ROYAL MAIL ROUTE, via PANAMA, for NORTH and SOUTH PACIFIC, Central America, Japan, and China.—The ROYAL MAIL STEAM PACKET COMPANY'S ATLANTIC STEAMERS now run through from Southampton to Colon (Aspinwall), by which arrangement passengers for the above localities will be conveyed to the Isthmus of Panama in the vessel in which they embark at Southampton.

Passengers and goods are booked

For the South Pacific, Central America, West Coast of Mexico, California, British Columbia ... ... — By steame from Southampton on 2nd and 17th of each month.

Japan and China... ... 17th of each month.

For further particulars apply to

J. M. LLOYD, Secretary.

Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, 55, Moorgate-street London, E.C.

CHINA, AND JAPAN.

ROBERTSON and CO. will despatch the following first-class clipper VESSELS:—

Destination.	Ships.	Class.	Dock.	Last Shipping Day.
Shanghai.....	Hindostan ...	AA1.....	W.I.D.	With des.
Hong Kong, Amoy, and Foochowfoo	Devana ...	A1 13 yr.	W.I.D.	With des.
Yokohama & Hiogo.....	Pegasus.....	A1 13 yr.	W.I.D.	With des.
Singapore, Hong Kong, Shanghai, Yokohama, & Nagasaki	Nile.....	A1 18 yr.	E.I.D.	March 18
Chefoo	Chingtoo ...	A1 13 yr.	W.I.D.	With des.

For Freight and Passage apply at 5, Newman's-court, Cornhill, London; or York Chambers, 55, King-street, Manchester.

CHINA and JAPAN.—The following splendid first-class SHIPS will be despatched as under:—

Port	Ship.	Class.	Dock	Last Shipping Day.
Shanghai ...	Jung Frau ...	A1 16 yr.	E.I.D.	March 5
Hong Kong	Wm. Fruing	A1 13 yr.	W.I.D.	With des.
Do.	Ld. Macaulay	A1 13 yr.	E.I.D.	With des.
Yokohama, Kanagawa.	Lota	A1 13 yr.	E.I.D.	With des.

For Freight or Passage apply to KILLICK, MARTIN, and Co., 10, George-yard, Lombard-street, E.C.

Regular Line of Packet Ship—With Despatch.

FOR HONG KONG, the well known favorite clipper INVINCIBLE, A1 13 years, 657 tons register; CHARLES BEECHING, Commander; East India Docks. Has excellent accommodation for passengers.

For Freight or Passage, apply to SHAW, MAXTON, and Co., 2, Royal Exchange-buildings, London, E.C.

CHINA AND JAPAN.

THE following high-classed Clipper VESSELS will be despatched as under:—

Port.	Ship.	Class.	Dock.	Last Shipping Day.
Yokohama (Kanagawa)	Espiegle	A1 14 yr.	E.I.D.	With des.
Nagasaki & Chefoo ...	Zohrab (new)	A1 9 yr.	E.I.D.	With des.

For Freight or Passage apply to NORRIS and JOYNER, 60, Cornhill, E.C.

Steam via the Suez Canal.

Will be positively despatched on 26th February, 1870

All Goods must be alongside two days previously having the greater portion of her cargo engaged.

DIRECT for COLOMBO, with leave to proceed to Beypoor and Calicut, the magnificent new screw steamer SURBITON, ABI, 91 gross, 607 net register tonnage; horse power, 110 nominal, 450 effective; E. MARSHALL, Commander; West India Docks. This splendid vessel, built last year, under special survey, offers the best opportunity to shippers of fine goods.

For Freight or Passage apply to JOHN C. CAMPBELL, 22, Great St. Helen's, Bishopsgate-street, E.C.; or to LIVINGSTON, HOLDING and BRIGGS, 31, Great St. Helen's, Bishopsgate-street, E.C.

With Quick Despatch.

FOR SHANGHAI, the splendid new Aberdeen clipper GLENAVON, AA1, 830 tons register; JAMES HENDERSON, Commander; East India Docks. This ship has just completed her first voyage from Foo-Choo-Foo in 100 days.

For Freight apply to SHAW, MAXTON, and Co., 2, Royal Exchange-buildings, London, E.C.

NOTICE.

THE interest and responsibility of Mr. WILLIAM PROBST in our firm ceased on the 31st of December, 1868, and Mr. OTTO CHRISTIAN BEHN and Mr. JOHANNES F. CORDES are admitted Partners therein from this date.

Mr. F. LANCKEN and Mr. C. W. SIEGFRIED have been authorised to sign our Firm per procuration.

WM. PUSTAU and CO.

China, 1st January, 1870.

THE CHINA & JAPAN AGENCY.

For the Purchase and Shipment of Goods of all kinds to Ports in China, Japan, the Straits Settlements, &c. Orders for Furniture, Stores, Books, and Personal Requirements of every description promptly executed, either by Overland Route or Clipper Sailing Vessels. The articles in all cases are carefully selected by persons who have had personal experience of the wants of residents in China and Japan. Orders should be accompanied either by a remittance, or a reference for payment in London. All communications to be addressed, and remittances made payable, to

THE MANAGER,
CHINA & JAPAN AGENCY
2, COWPER'S-COURT, CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C.

Digitized by Google

A.D. 1870.

GRANT'S TRANS-MONGOLIAN TELEGRAMS

VIA KIACHTA.

TELEGRAMS FROM EUROPE.

TELEGRAMS for CHINA or JAPAN may be despatched from any Telegraph Station in Europe on any Tuesday, commencing from the 22nd February, to Tuesday, the 29th November, inclusive.

Telegrams must be addressed "Grant, Kiachta."
If Express, "Grant, Kiachta, Express."

Express Telegrams may be Despatched on any day. They are forwarded by Special Couriers within Half-an-Hour of their delivery at Kiachta.

CHARGES FROM KIACHTA.

Twenty words or under ... . Taels 12
And for every additional ten words or under 4
Express Telegrams—Tls. 150 plus Tls. 2 for every Ten Words.

The charges are payable by the receiver to the Agents within THREE DAYS of delivery; otherwise 20 per cent. will be added to the above rates.

The Sender is responsible for the payment in case the receiver fails.

Agents at Shanghai . . . Messrs. Hall and Holtz.
„ Tientsin . . . „ J. Livingston and Co.
„ Yokohama . . . Mr. E. L. B. McMahon.
„ Kagan . . . Messrs. Matrinski and Kayantzoff.

Telegrams for Ports South of Shanghai are forwarded by Messrs. HALL and HOLTZ.

Head Office—KIACHTA, ORIENTAL SIBERIA.

C. MITCHELL GRANT, Proprietor.
WILLIAM HAGEMANN, Secretary.

LONDON AGENCY,
"LONDON AND CHINA TELEGRAPH" OFFICE, 2, COWPER'S COURT, CORNHILL.

REDUCED TO TEN AND A-HALF DAYS.

I have the pleasure to announce that I have succeeded in reducing the contract time for this year by TWELVE HOURS.

Telegrams from Kiachta to Tientsin, and vice versa, will be delivered in

TEN DAYS AND A-HALF.

I have made an engagement to pay a Tael for every hour a Courier arrives in advance of the time, and I think that many Despatches will be transmitted in Ten Days.

I take this occasion to thank the Gentlemen who subscribed their names to establish Grant's Trans-Mongolian Telegraph Service. Having now repaid the whole of the Capital advanced to me, I have reduced the charges on Telegrams, to prove that I am not unmindful of the confidence they showed me.

C. MITCHELL GRANT.

Kiachta, January 10, 1870.

Printed for the Proprietors by Woodfall and Kinder, Milford-lane, Strand, W.C., and published by James West, at the Office of the "London and China Telegraph," 2, Cowper's-court, Cornhill, in the parish of St. Michael's, in the City of London.—Monday, Feb. 21, 1870.

Digitized by Google

The London and China 新聞紙 Telegraph.

JAPAN HERALD, AND JOURNAL OF THE EASTERN ARCHIPELAGO.

PUBLISHED ON THE ARRIVAL OF THE FORTNIGHTLY ENGLISH, AND MONTHLY FRENCH MAILS FROM CHINA JAPAN &c.

IN CONNECTION WITH THE "LONDON AND CHINA EXPRESS." A SUMMARY OF NEWS FOR THE OUTWARD MAILS.

VOL. XII.—No. 344.] LONDON, MONDAY, MARCH 7, 1870. [Price 9d., with Sup. 1s. 3d.—Sub. 30s. per ann., postage included Sup. 12s. extra.

Latest Advices.

PORTS.	OUTWARD. From London	OUTWARD. Arrived out.	HOMEWARD. Received this day.
JAPAN — Yokohama	Nov. 19	Jan. 10	Jan. 15
Yedo	—	—	Jan. 14
Osaka and Hiogo	—	—	Jan. 10
Hakodadi
Nagasaki	Nov. 19	Jan. 11	Jan. 15
CHINA — Peking
Tien-tsin
Chefoo
New-chwang
Hankow	Nov. 25	Jan. 14	Jan. 15
Kiu-kiang	—	—	Jan. 16
Chin-kiang
Shanghai	Nov. 25	Jan. 12	Jan. 19
Ningpo	—	—	Jan. 17
Foochow	Nov. 25	Jan. 15	Jan. 17
Formosa
Amoy	—	—	Jan. 19
Swatow	—	—	Jan. 20
Hong Kong	Dec. 3	Jan. 16	Jan. 25
Canton	—	—	Jan. 24
Macao	—	—	Jan. 24
PHILIPPINES — Manila	Nov. 25	Jan. 10	Jan. 18
COCHIN-CHINA — Saigon
SIAM — Bangkok	—	—	Jan. 15
BORNEO — Labuan	—	—	Jan. 24
Sarawak
JAVA — Batavia	Dec. 17	Jan. 24	Jan. 26
Samarang	—	—	Jan. 24
Sourabaya	—	—	Jan. 22
MALACCA STRAITS — Singapore	Dec. 23	Jan. 25	Feb. 1
Penang	Dec. 23	Jan. 23	Feb. 3
CEYLON — Galle	Jan. 14	Feb. 6	Feb. 9
Colombo	Jan. 14	Feb. 7	Feb. 8

THE MAILS, &c.

The next inward mail (French), due on Monday next, should bring the following dates:—Yokohama, Jan. 23; Shanghai, Jan 26; Hong Kong, Feb. 1; Singapore, Feb 9; Galle, Feb. 17 The Hooghly, with this mail, is reported as passing through the Suez Canal

The latest Hong Kong telegrams are those in advance of the succeeding mail (Feb 8), and were received on Feb. 28. Shanghai telegrams by Grant's Kiachta service are expected about the 20th instant. Outward messages by this line are despatched every Tuesday.

Correspondence from Japan to 23rd Jan., via San Francisco, is due on the 9th inst. Telegrams of the succeeding mail (Feb 23) due on the 18th.

The British Indian cable between Bombay and Aden has been successfully laid, and the Red Sea section was to commence on the 5th.

List of Passengers.

PASSENGERS INWARD.

By this mail, to Marseilles, per P. and O. steamer Ripon, arrived March 4—From Yokohama: Mr. Joha. From Shanghai: Mr. Seare Mrs He ling, and one second-class passenger. From Hong Kong: Mr. Wood. From Singapore: Mr. Campbell. From Ceylon: Mr. Woods.

To Southampton, per P. and O. steamer Syria, expected to arrive March 12.—From Shanghai: Mrs. Overweg, two children, and two servants, Mr. Gilfillan and three children From Hong Kong: Mrs. Grant three children, and servant, Mrs. Hughes and three children, Mrs. Duncanson, Capt. Johnson, Mr. McGregor, Mr. Hebden and two second class passengers. From Singapore: Mr. and Mrs. Wells and three children. From Ceylon: Mr and Mrs. Molesworth and six children, Mrs. Mainwaring, Mr. Hayster, Mrs. Parsons, and one second-class passenger.

By last Bombay mail to Marseilles, per steamer Massilia, arrived Feb. 26.—From Singapore: Mr. Zurhellen.

To Southampton, per P. and O. steamer Nyanza, arrived March 5.—From Hong Kong: Capt. Brougham.

PASSENGERS OUTWARD.

Per Pacific mail steamship America, from San Francisco, Feb. 1.—His Excellency Gov. Lowe, Minister to China and family, Mr. Cornwall, Rev. Henry Blodgett, wife and daughter, Miss Diamond, Mr Mendson, Henry Murray, Bernard Harrold and wife, B. Castenda, Richard Lindau, W. M. Codlingham, Jas. H Little. G. Wallis, Geo. Baker, M. Mulcahy, T M. Tacquemont, Henry W. Livingston, jun., H. M. Blanchard, W. N. Toonll and wife, Charles Vogel, H. King, Com. Cleveland, R.N., Capt. Moore. Alice McDonald.

Per P. and O. steamer Pera from Southampton, March 5.—To Yokohama: Mr E. Fraser. To Hong Kong: Mr. Alexander, R.E., Commodore J. A. P Price. Mr. W. J. S. Cannon, Mr. G. Bishop. To Ceylon: Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Thomson, Mr. T. Farr, Capt. Harris.

Per P. and O steamer Ripon, from Marseilles March 13—To Yokohama: Capt. and Mrs. Kinder, Mr. Tookey, Miss Tookey. To Shanghai: Mr. J. B. Bromley, Mr. A. Hickling, Mr. and Mrs. Dow, Miss Dow, Mr. and Mrs. Beazley, Mr. W. Pugh, Miss Aspinwall, Mr. A. Schroers, Mr. Baker, Mr. F. S Deacon, Mr. F. W. Lodge. To Hong Kong: Mr. T. Merry, Mr. E. Deacon, Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Crawford and two children, Mr. R. A. Houston Mr. James Whittall, Mr. H. Hickling, Mr. H. Hughes, Mr. Wilson. To Ceylon: Mr. F. J. Brown.

Per P. and O. steamer Nyanza from Southampton, March 19.—To Hong Kong Mr. H. K. Jones. To Ceylon: Capt. Sharpe, Mr. D. H. Freeland.

Per P. and O. steamer Bangalore from Marseilles, March 27.—To Shanghai: Mr. Skeggs, Mr. J. G. Weston, Mr. T. G Paget, Mr. Dyce, Mr. Drysdale, Mr. E. Wheeley. To Hong Kong: Mr. and Mrs Patterson, Mr. and Mrs Wild, Mr. and Mrs. Galton, Mr. E. P. Galton.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

From this port we have advices to the 15th January. The outward mail, with London dates to Nov. 25, was received on the 12th January. The news is extremely meagre; we take the following few items from the Japan Times.

The special meeting of the members of the Yokohama United Club, called to consider the advisability of wholly transferring the assets and liabilities to Mr. W. H. Smith, and adjourned until the 3rd Jan., was held on that day. The meeting was very thinly attended. After a few remarks made by one or two members, the motion was put and carried, a number present not voting either for or against the resolution. Trusting Mr. Smith will be able to carry out his ideas, and that it will be a prosperous undertaking we leave him to his task.

This meeting was followed by another, called to transact business matters connected with the Church. The only changes made were the election of Messrs. Dalziel and Dallas as trustees in place of Messrs W. H. Smith and Simpson, Mr. H. Boyle being again appointed treasurer.

The recent murder, the several suspicious deaths by drowning, the late assault case and the scandalous midnight outrage which followed it—these all show us that from offences against property Japanese criminals have been encouraged to advance to offences against the person, that our streets are safe neither by day nor night, that the silent highway of our harbour is as insecure a road as ever was the Canton river, that others than rowdies require to be reminded that the law is to be feared, not mocked, that impunity has given use to licence, that, to sum up, a strong police force is for Yokohama an absolute necessity.

Legal matters have, of late, occupied the time of the British and American Consuls to a great extent. A case was tried in the United States Consular Court recently, in which the Japanese Government charged an American subject with unlawfully shipping, and attempting further to ship, sundry hides, without having first obtained the Custom's permit. The case being clearly proved, his Honour, with the assent of the assessors, very properly condemned the defendant to forfeit all the hides, about 800, seized by the authorities, and to pay a duty of five per cent on the hides actually shipped, together with the costs of the action.

We regret to find in this number of the Japan Times Overland Mail, an announcement that it is the last, owing to the health of the proprietor and editor having broken down. A report has been current in London that Mr. Lay had purchased the Japan Times, and that it would be edited by Mr. Howell.

The Japan Gazette has the following:—"The loan that has been effected to the Government by Mr. Lay, for the construction of railways, is so far an accomplised fact, that the first draft, to the amount of $500 000, has been actually paid to them. It is understood that engineers to superintend the works will be her in a very short time, and that they will commence the necessary surveying, levelling, &c, at once. The line between Yedo and Osaca will not be all plain sailing, as there is at least one mountain range to be crossed, and many large rivers. In fact, we do not think the present loan of one million pounds sterling will be anything like sufficient for the work that is to be done. It is a good beginning, however, and must certainly prove a profitable investment for the Government, if it be properly carried out.

Digitized by Google

The threatened scarcity of rice, which we alluded to in former issues as probable, is unfortunately verified. Already in some of the western districts it is so scarce that an order against its export has been put forth. The very large importations by foreigners, however, have already prevented the distress reaching the extent it might have done; and the large quantity still on the way, with the yet unfulfilled orders to come forward, will do much to stave off anything like actual famine, and even famine prices.

The Government are about to sell to foreigners a further considerable quantity of land on the Bluffs above Yokohama, on the 17th inst. The lots already sold are now generally occupied by residences of greater or less pretensions, and the authorities have doubled the upset price. Shortly after this sale of country lands the land reclaimed from the swamp at back of the settlement will be sold, and no doubt will bring good prices. It seems hard, however, for those who want land for business purposes now, that they should have to pay for it in addition to the annual ground rental, as the first 176 lots were leased without any payment and most of the best lots fell into the hands of the richest firms without any preliminary mulct whatever.

The event that was most on the minds of our residents at the departure of the last mail was the murder of an English subject, Mr. Hoey, in cold blood. The Japanese authorities profess to be after the murderers, and are said to have secured one of them. We doubt their having the true murderers at all. But the English authorities have taken the matter very quietly. No reward has been offered for the apprehension of the culprits, and it looks as if the affair would be allowed to blow over as usual.

The first messages between Yokohama and Yedo have passed along the wires to-day (Jan. 7). It will be some little time before the arrangements are complete for the general use of the telegraph by the public, but it will be managed as soon as possible.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

NAGASAKI, Jan. 13.

The P. and O. steamer Cadiz brought the English mails of Oct. 22nd, and Nov. 5th and 19th, all of which came to hand on the 11th instant, the two former mails having been lying in Shanghai awaiting a British steamer to bring them over to this. Formerly Messrs. Adrian and Co.'s steamers performed the service for us, but owing to depression in freights the whole of the steamers have been recently sold to the Japanese, with the exception of one, the Orissa, and this vessel has been under repairs at this port for some time past, but has now recommenced running again. The P. and O. steamer Cadiz is the only spare one the company have on this side to perform the loop line service between Shanghai and Yokohama, viz., Nagasaki and Hiogo, and she deranged her machinery last trip to Shanghai, and was detained there, or we might have received the 22nd Oct. and 5th Nov. mails some ten days sooner than we did. The P. M. S. S. Company formerly brought our mails, but owing to some cause or other the postmasters on board those vessels received instructions from Washington not to carry the English mail box, and the result is we are in an awkward fix just now; so that until the P. and O. Company run steamers every fourteen days I should recommend all important letters to be addressed to some person in Shanghai, who would send them on to this.

We are no better off with the French Mail, as the M. I. C. send the Nagasaki mail to Yokohama, and the London and China Express published per that chance takes ninety to one hundred days to reach me; that of the 28th October is not yet to hand.

By some persons it is thought that Nagasaki was quite overlooked when the mail contract was made, but my opinion is that the Government took the Board of Trade Returns to guide them, which however correctly compiled will not give you an idea of the trade of Nagasaki to and from England. In order to show you clearly I will give you a few facts which may be of some service to you: Nearly the whole of the tea prepared by foreign firms here for the English market is sent by steamer to Shanghai, and there transhipped into clipper vessels or steamers bound for England, and as these are generally large powerful vessels, the passage is generally made in less time than by vessels direct; in a like manner we get most of our imports, as vessels loading in England for this generally do so, viâ Yokohama, and find their way to this six or eight months out from England, and the time occupied is so long that it is generally found to be cheaper to incur the additional expense and save interest, to say nothing about the risk of losing a market for your goods.

The most important news I have to communicate to you this mail is the persecution of the native converts by the Japanese Government, who, it is said, do this at the instigation of the Japanese priests. At the northern end of this harbour lies the village of Ourakami, in which place the French Catholic missionaries have succeeded in making a large number of converts to their faith, and it is from this village that about 4,000 men, women, and children have been apprehended during the past week and placed in godowns, and on Sunday, the 9th inst., they were sent away from this port, but their fate or destination no one seems to know at present; but the prevailing opinion is that they will be destroyed by drowning, not singly, but by sinking the junks, into which they were packed like sheep.

In addition to the junks, several steamers were employed in this inhuman work, and I am informed by good autho ity that we only saw a very small number leave, and that a far greater number were marched overland to Tookeetz, where several vessels were ready to receive them. I hear that the Japanese authorities do not charge them with any crime, or with resisting any of the laws of Japan, beyond that they are Christian converts, for which the local officers had received instructions to take the steps they have. During the interviews which took place between M. Dury, French Consul, and the Governor of Nagasaki, respecting the prisoners, the latter is reported to have said that so far as he was concerned he was perfectly indifferent as to what religion his subjects profess, but that he was compelled to execute his orders, however much his feelings might be to the contrary. These smooth-tongued remarks are nothing but diplomacy, at which the Japanese are great adepts, and do not agree with the manner in which the orders were carried out; for the subordinate officers, who behaved with much cruelty, acted more the part of African savages than like Japanese, who I always thought were of a more noble nature. I could give many illustrations which will cause much indignation to be felt in England, but will confine myself to three cases. One is where a woman gave birth to a child the previous night, was dragged next day more dead than alive to the vessel, together with the infant one day old; another, a poor old woman, between eighty and ninety years of age, too feeble to walk, and who could not possibly live in this world much longer, she, too, was carried off. The other cases I will put in one. Little children, varying in age from children at the breast to those of four or five years old, being locked up together in godowns, separated from their mothers. Now, if the governor was sincere in his assurances, he could have found a way to carry out orders with as little cruelty as possible. Sir Harry Parkes, H.B.M. Minister, while here endeavoured to induce the governor to postpone carrying out the order for twenty days, which would have given him time to confer with his colleagues at Yedo, but without effect.

Sir Harry Parkes left this by P.M.S. Oregonian on the 4th inst., for Hiogo and Yokohama; previous to his departure he paid a visit to the Takasima coal mine, which is worked with English capital and machinery, under the supervision of English engineers, and raises about 200 tons per day; competent judges say this can be easily increased to 500 tons with the present appliances. The coal discovered at Amax is said to be anthracite, and compares very favourably with American! The Japanese now work their coal mines with more energy than formerly, and the produce is shipped on native account to Shanghai through the medium of foreigners, and it is a noticeable fact that not only is the quantity increasing, but the quality is improving; it is now becoming a question whether the Japanese mines worked by foreigners will not interfere with the coal from England, and whether that branch of business will not be made unprofitable, as the Takasima can, at the present rate of freight, be delivered from a vessel's side at Shanghai at $7½ to $7¾ per ton, which price gives a very good profit to the mine owner.

Messrs. Underwood and Co., auctioneers of this place, yesterday sold by public auction the household furniture, &c., of the late Col. Von Siebold, but the sale did not include his collection of fossils and plants, which I hear will be sold privately.

The local authorities here are doing their utmost to make retrograde movements; they propose that the Consuls agree to their removing one of the Bund jetties, also the landing stage up the creek which separates Oura from Sagromatz; the latter, if agrees to, will be the means of almost rendering the rear lots of the settlement next to valueless. They are also endeavouring to induce the Consuls to prohibit the residents from visiting the parts of the country adjacent to Nagasaki; both proposals I hope will be rejected by the foreign representatives; the latter especially, as one of the places proposed to be made forbidden ground is no less than Tokeez, which is known to almost every visitor to this place, as the road leading to it is the only flat one to be found near to this, suitable for riding on.

The British barque Eastern Chief is loading tobacco and general cargo for London; the rate of freight has been reduced to £2 16s. 6d per fifty feet. Exchange on London 4s. 6d. per $; Niboes 420 to 425 per $100.

The corvette Iho Sho Maru, last from Galway, arrived here 7th instant.

The Nagasaki Patent Slip has been sold to the Japanese Government, I hear.

LATER ADVICES VIA SAN FRANCISCO.

By the steamer Japan, Capt. Freeman, which arrived at San Francisco on 16th Feb., we have dates from Yokohama, 24th Jan.; Hiogo, 20th; Nagasaki, 18th. The items which we have received have been partly anticipated by Atlantic Cable telegrams, and reported in our issue of 21st Feb.

Extensive fires at Yokohama, burning down an out-building of the Chartered Mercantile Bank and part of premises of Sitwell, Schoyer and Co. A fire at Yedo also is said to have burnt Government offices.

The Government of the Mikado had enforced the departure from the main land of 700 native Christians, against the unanimous protest of the foreign representatives.

The rice crop of several provinces a total failure, and the Government has prohibited the exportation of rice from Hiogo, except by special license, as provided by the treaties with foreign Powers. Large imports from Saigon, Bangkok, &c.

The telegraph lines between Yedo and Yokohama have been completed, the first message having been sent over the wires on the 7th of January. The line will be thrown open to mercantile purposes very soon.

Digitized by Google

The Daimios are constantly making large purchases of arms and munitions of war. They also exhibit much enterprise in the development of their mineral resources, employing experienced foreigners to engineer the mines. The new year, which begins on the 1st of February, is expected to bring important political changes. Yedo is quiet, but the city is strongly guarded by Satsuma's men.

An embassy will be sent next summer by Japan to the United States, France, and England. The new American Minister to Japan is complimented for his prompt attention to the wants of his countrymen and the interests of his Government.

The Oneida, which left Yokohama for Hong Kong on the 23rd Jan., was struck by the P. and O. steamer Bombay, and sunk with the loss of 120 lives. The Bombay not much damaged.

CHINA.

—o—

SHANGHAI.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SHANGHAI, Jan. 18.

The English mail of the 19th Nov. arrived here on the 7th inst. The French mail, with London dates to the 25th Nov., to hand on the 12th inst. The first brings telegrams, via Galle, dated London 6th, the last to the 16th Dec.; the telegraphic advices by the former were anticipated by Kiachta. The Madras took out the mail leaving on the 4th inst. Admiral Sir Henry Kellett arrived here in the Salamis on the 8th; he is now up country shooting. Mr. Hart has left for Hankow; he did not appear to trouble the Customs establishment much at this port; he has decided that promotion in the junior grades will be mainly confined to those possessing a knowledge of Chinese. The Asiatic Society have had a meeting, at which there was a debate; Mr. Goodwin has been elected President. A Naval Court of Inquiry has acquitted Captain Broadbear of all blame in the loss of the Ada. The case of the native poor is engrossing the attention of the foreign residents; a "refuge," supported by contributions from foreigners, has been opened. The Philharmonic Society held their annual meeting on the 11th inst.

The Chamber of Commerce at this port has addressed a communication to Lord Clarendon on Sir Rutherford Alcock's new Convention, the tone of which is by no means favourable to that diplomatic achievement. The letter fills some six pages of the North China Herald, and is published as a supplement to that paper, so that it will probably reach most people at home who are interested in the matter. The letter points out that the Chamber's memorial urged—1, A further development of those principles of the old Treaty which had been proved by experience to be productive of benefit to the populations of foreign countries, the population of China, and the respective Governments; but above all—2, It urged that more efficient measures should be adopted to secure the implicit observance of these Treaty stipulations.

The Secretary shows that in both these objects Sir R. Alcock has been unsuccessful, his most conspicuous failures being in the attempt to deal with the question of inland duties, and in procuring any satisfactory improvement in means of communication with the interior. Great disappointment is expressed that no port is opened higher up the Yangtsye than Hankow; and the Chamber has no faith in the fulfilment of the ambiguous hopes held out about the working of coal-mines. On the whole, the Chamber is of opinion that the so-called "concessions," made or promised by the Chinese are no equivalent at all to those on our side, and the increased silk and opium duties are exacted by the Chinese as pure and simple concessions:—

"And, indeed, taking the Treaty as a whole it is plain that the concessions it secures to the Chinese, or, more correctly speaking, the burdens it imposes on trade, are of the most substantial character, amounting in money alone to the sum of three million taels annually; whereas the counter-balancing concessions to trade are, as far as can be judged, of comparatively little value."

The North China Daily News has the following remarks in regard to an interesting case which was tried on the 14th inst., before the Supreme Court, in which Messrs. Lane, Crawford, and Co. sought to recover from Messrs. Glover and Co. the sum of $17,686, being the balance of purchase-money due on a contract made by Messrs. Lane, Crawford and Co, with Mr. Porter, of Hakodadi, to sell the latter certain arms and ammunition; the remainder, $20,000, having been paid as bargain money. Messrs. Glover and Co. come into the case as Mr. Porter's agents, he having written from Hakodadi requesting them to act as such. They accordingly took delivery of the arms and shipped them to Hakodadi, where the British senior naval officer would not permit them to land. They were returned to Shanghai; Mr. Porter failed to pay the balance of the purchase-money, and Messrs. Lane, Crawford, and Co. requested Messrs. Glover and Co. to redeliver the arms. The latter are willing to do so if the former will refund the $20,000 bargain money. This Messrs. Lane, Crawford, and Co. decline, and sue Messrs. Glover and Co. for the balance of the purchase-money. They were nonsuited.

The Racquet Club have had a meeting, and for a Shanghai institution for recreation holds the enviable position of being in debt to the extent of only Tls. 800. The new land regulations for the port are being printed, and will shortly be issued to the rate-payers. A fire occurred on the 15th in the Surzah village, close outside the settlement, by which some huts were destroyed. The Customs now regularly make up a mail for Peking, which is sent overland.

There is not any news from the northern ports, which are all frozen in, except Chefoo.

At the riverine ports everything is dull; trade almost stagnant. The water is very low in the Yangtsze, just allowing the steamers to run.

Little or nothing will be done for the next month here, on account of the Chinese New Year. The natives devote the fortnight preceding New Year's-day to settlement of their accounts, and the fortnight after to jollity.

(FROM ANOTHER CORRESPONDENT.)

The expedition of the French minister up the Yang-tsze, and his success in every particular of his demands for satisfaction in reference to the persecution of French missionaries at Ngan-King has produced a profound impression here, as well as upon the Chinese authorities, and will, it is hoped, tend to show again to the good people at home how necessary it is to speak sternly and resolutely to officials such as the Chinese, if any good results are to be looked for. The documents already published here, which will go home by this mail, will show the satisfactory nature of the amends obtained by M. de Rochechouart for the Ngan-King outrages; but it would be a mistake to suppose that this formed the grounds for his expedition up the Yang-tsze. On the contrary, the expulsion of the missionaries, both French and English, from Ngan-King, was an unlooked for episode at the time of M. de Rochechouart's journey being decided upon; he having left Peking for the purpose of visiting Hankow, and if necessary, proceeding to Sechuen, in connection with other causes of complaint. He is understood to have presented an ultimatum to the Chinese Government early in November, demanding the degradation of the Governor-General of Sechuen, besides satisfaction for the murder of missionaries in that and other Provinces, and he required in addition that Li Hung-Chang, the Governor-General Hu-Kwang, to whom the arrangement of the missionary complaints had been entrusted, should meet him at Hankow and give him ample guarantees for future immunity from disturbance, failing which, it is his intention to proceed to the interior himself.

In any case, it is understood, a survey of the Upper Yangtsze between Hankow and Chungking, in Szechuen, will be undertaken by officers of the French squadron. A small portion of the task was accomplished by British naval officers last year; but as the whole river stands greatly in need of a survey, without which the question of its navigability by steamers beyond Ichang cannot be set at rest. Admiral de Luciniere is understood to have sanctioned the undertaking. It seems a pity that a task in which British interests are so pre-eminently engaged should have been abandoned by our own officers, though there is no doubt that it will be worthily executed by their French companions in arms.

PEKING.

A correspondent writes that Wensiang, the second member (in rank) of the Tsungli Yamen, who has been seriously ill, is better, and likely to be able soon to resume his duties. This is a matter for congratulation, as Wensiang was the most agreeable and intelligent member of the Cabinet in his intercourse with Foreign Ministers, and the most favourably disposed towards progressive views. One other member of the Board, Siu, has recently died at his home, in Shansi; and a third, Chung-lun, now 77 years old, is unable to do much public work. These circumstances have led to the appointment of three new members—Shen-kwei-fen and two men whose names have not reached us.

HANKOW.

We extract the following interesting passages from Messrs. Edward Townend and Co.'s Annual Report, dated Jan. 8:—

The great drawback to the advancement of this port to its natural position as one of the principal outlets for Manchester goods in the East is the very unsatisfactory mode of receiving all imports indirectly from Shanghai. Transhipping charges, as is well known to all shippers, come very heavy, and when to these has to be added a high rate of freight by expensive steamers, it can readily be believed that charges on Plain Cottons are (upon present relative high cost) 1½ to 2½ per cent. in excess of what they would be by direct imports, while on Metals the difference is as much as 7½ to 20 per cent

The increasing interest shown by the Home and Indian press in the proposal to open up Western China, with the ultimate intention of connecting this port with Rangoon by railway and thus drawing to an English port the bulk of the teas of these districts, at the same time shortening the sea voyage most materially; has attracted much attention here, although it is feared many years must elapse before this scheme can be carried out. In the meanwhile there is no reason why ocean steamers should not load direct for this port, and an additional freight of ten shillings per ton should be ample remuneration, more especially as several sailing vessels and steamers proceed here annually in ballast to load home with Teas. During the past twelve months four hundred steamers passed up and down the river without casualty.

Digitized by Google

At present all advantages of this port are reaped by natives and speculators who make purchases in Shanghai for re-sale here, thus creating more middlemen between the manufacturer and consumer. There is hardly any limit to be placed upon the quantity of Manchester goods which might be consumed here, if such could be imported at a low cost and of good wearing material. Native cloth is manufactured in these provinces to an enormous extent, and it is estimated that on an average 50,000,000 lbs. of cotton per annum are worked up into cloth. The past year opened under very favourable auspices for imports, as the bulk of the goods had been bought cheap at home, while China cloth had been manufactured from cotton costing 20 Taels per picul.

While upon this subject we may notice that under the auspices of the British Government the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce appointed delegates to proceed into Szchuen and advise upon the expediency of opening more ports higher up the river. From their official report they appear to confirm all that had been written by previous writers of the wealth of Szchuen; however, for the present they only recommend Ichang as another port of entry, it being the furthest point to which steamers could reach. This town is simply a place for transhipping goods from the large boats of the river to the lighter craft of the upper stream, and has no trade, so the only advantage to British interests for the expenses of maintaining a Consular establishment would be enabling one or two steamers to carry goods to and from this town solely upon Chinese account, and would be availed of principally to avoid the legitimate taxes en route. While objecting to Ichang as unnecessary we look with favour upon Chunking, in Szchuen, being opened, as from its well-known trade and favourable position at the bifurcation of the Upper Yangtsze it would not only tend to increase the consumption of Manchester and Yorkshire fabrics, but be also the means of making the strong, rough teas (thought to be the Indian variety) available for export, which from their almost unlimited quantity might reduce the price of all teas considerably, and thus confer a boon upon our own working classes at home. Much of this tea grows wild, as only sufficient is cultivated for consumption in the province.

We consider it the more important that means should be found to develop this trade with Szchuen in teas in consequence of the increasing requirements of Russia, which already govern the prices here for finest, and in a more or less measure that of the lower grades, for as year by year the vast network of railways now being carried out in that empire become completed bringing teas within the reach of millions at moderate prices, there will be such an increase in demand that the present districts will not be able to supply. There is no lack of enterprise on the part of the Russian hongs, and steamers are now building to load from this port direct for Odessa via the Suez Canal. From Odessa they will readily procure grain freights to London, and thence to Shanghai and Hankow with general cargoes. From a political standpoint Chungking is important as being so much nearer to India, and from whence the intrigues of the French in Yunan and of the Russians among the fributary tribes of the West may be baffled. In reference to Yunnan it may not be out of place to notice well accredited reports that the French made an offer through the Jesuit priests to send a certain number of troops into that province, find officers for so many thousand Chinese to be raised by the Viceroy, and at the same time sustain and arm them for three years, while in return the Viceroy should give the French a lien upon the province for all expenses. Negotiations were broken off through the Viceroy making it a sine qua non that the three years' pay of all the troops he was to raise should be paid him at once before he enlisted a single soldier.

HONG KONG.

From Hong Kong our advices are to Jan. 25. The outward mail of Dec. 3 was received at that port on the 17th Jan. There is little local news, except that two important memorials are forwarded by this mail to Lord Clarendon on the new China Convention. The following items are from the Overland China Mail:

Notice has been given that the Government is prepared to receive tenders for the houses to be licensed for public gambling in the colony. The monthly fees are fixed at $13,340, and the licencees will be bound by the rules and regulations made by the Governor in Council on and since the 12th Sept., 1868.

Mr. James P. Duncanson died very suddenly this morning (21st), and the announcement of the fact cast an air of sincere sadness over the entire community. Not only was the deceased gentleman greatly respected and much esteemed as an active and public-spirited resident, but his large heartedness, liberality, and geniality had won for him the love of many friends, the gratitude of many who were in need, and the respect of all. He was recovering from an attack of illness, but succumbed instantaneously to the bursting of a blood-vessel, caused by severe coughing.

A comparative statement has been published showing the amount of Stamp Duties collected in 1868-69. There is a total decrease on the latter year of $6,081.69; the respective totals being $101,894 20 against $95,812.51. The decrease is of course stated after allowing for increase on certain items. The largest item of increase is on bank-notes, $1,325.40, but on bills of exchange and promissory notes there is a decrease of $210.45. Stamps on mortgages are represented by a decrease of $1,561.25.

The Hong Kong Canton and Macao Steam-boat Company have declared a dividend at the rate of 16 per cent. per annum. This company is most flourishing.

The Gazette contains a calendar of probates and administrations granted by the Court of Probate, Hong Kong, during 1869. Among the larger values of effects set forth in the commissions of appraisement are the following: Douglas Lapraik, $350,000; H. D. Margesson, $59,000; Chun Tye Choong, $40 000; W. Gaskell, $20,000; N. R. Masson, $8,000. The calendar contains thirty-three names of deceased persons whose estates have come before the Court during the past year.

The four men convicted of the murder of a police sergeant at Sowkewan have been pardoned. The witnesses against them have been convicted of perjury, and sentenced to imprisonment for periods of from two to nine years.

Much discussion and correspondence is taking place regarding the amalgamation of the local dock companies. A pamphlet has been published giving full details of the proposed commercial expedition to the south-west of China. The yacht Naiad was the winner of the Garrison Cup. The Club Cup was taken by the Mosquito.

The following are from the Overland Trade Report:—

The half-yearly meeting of the Hong Kong, Canton, and Macao Steamboat Company took place on the 14th instant. The accounts showed a net profit for the half-year of $85,068.51, which, with $2 969 87 brought forward from last statement, made $89,038.38 available for division. $35,000 was placed to depreciation fund, and, $2,273.54 preliminary expenses and $48.25 bad debts being deducted, $45,000, or at 16 per cent per annum on the paid up capital, was declared as dividend, $2,500 going as remuneration of directors, and $4,216.59 being brought forward to new account.

The arrival in China of the first vessel via the Suez Canal has attacted attention to the effects which are likely to be produced upon the trade with China by the opening of the new route The steamer Sing Nanzing, built on the Clyde for the North China Steam Navigation Company, completed the voyage via the Suez Canal to Hong Kong in 45 days and 7 hours under steam, and it is considered that had her full steaming power been put into play, she might have performed it in two or three days less.

A serious outrage has been committed by the mandarins on two British merchants in Formosa. A reward was offered for the head of one, and the other was placed in irons, while his godown was robbed.

THE HONG KONG MEMORIAL.

The memorial of the Hong Kong Chamber of Commerce, which was placed in the hands of Sir R. MacDonnell to be forwarded to Lord Clarendon, has not been published in full, but the China Mail gives the concluding paragraph as a specimen of its tenour:—

"We believe that the important changes we have recommended to your Lordship would, if introduced, be attended with the most beneficial results; and could easily be effected by the proper exercise of the influence which Great Britain still possesses in China, and of which we earnestly hope she will not soon be deprived. On the other hand, we greatly apprehend that if she any longer permits her Treaty rights to be violated with impunity, she will not merely be looked on with increasing contempt by the Chinese themselves, but will rapidly sink in the estimation of foreign Powers, who, by the adoption of more vigorous action than she can be induced to use in China, have recently succeeded in obtaining immediate and ample redress for injuries inflicted on their subjects, while they have at the same time added to their political influence in the East."

The other memorial is the result of a public meeting, and was framed by a committee consisting of Mr. Pollard, Q C. (chairman), the Hon. P. Ryrie, Messrs. T. Pyke, A. Heard, W. H. Forbes, J. C. Whyte, R. S. Walker, H. B. Lemann, J. dos Remedios, and N. B. Dennys (hon. sec) On the 22nd January the memorial was handed to the governor by a deputation, to be forwarded to the Home Government. His Excellency promised to use his influence for the benefit of the colony and observed that he believed it would be in his power to back the representations of the community. He had not read the memorial, but presumed that it must be much the same as that forwarded by the Chamber of Commerce, a copy of which he held in his hand. Mr Pollard said that he believed H.E. would find them much the same, except that the present memorial dealt more particularly with matters peculiarly affecting local interests. H.E., on glancing over the memorial, said he was glad to see that one or two points which were, in his opinion, inadequately dealt with in the Chamber memorial, were fully treated of in that before him. H E then stated that he had a good opportunity of having these questions, especially that regarding the appointment of a Consul, before him, as he had correspondence from home which had not been made public, but which showed that the question had been very particularly considered by the Government.

The document is far too long to be reprinted here, as it fills over three columns of the China Mail. It consists chiefly of a series of arguments showing the inexpediency of allowing a Chinese Consul at Hong Kong. In support of their views the memorialists adduce some instances of international usage as regards Consuls; an opinion given by Lord Clarendon himself to Sir George Bonham, and opinions of Law Officers of the Crown. They point out the unfairness of the second clause, which says that "China having agreed that England may appoint Consuls to reside at every port open to trade," it is then further agreed that "China may appoint Consuls to reside at all ports in the British dominions." The reciprocity which alone entitles a nation to ask for international concessions is singularly wanting here. The exceptional circumstances wherein Hong Kong differs from other English colonies are dwelt on, and the certain consequences of the proposed step on the Chinese population are explained at considerable length. The abandoning of the port of Kiung-chow is condemned as a grave error After a short clause containing an opinion that the interests of the colony will suffer by the increased duty on opium, the memorial concludes as follows:—

Digitized by Google

Your memorialists trust their earnestness with regard to these matters will secure for their remarks an attentive consideration by your Lordship, and that you will thereupon be enabled to advise Her Majesty that in any revision of the Treaty the objections now put forward must prevent those clauses (2, 4, 5, and 6) being agreed to.

We have received Morris's Directory for China, Japan, &c. for 1870, printed at the China Mail office. It contains a calendar and mail time-table for the year, the usual comprehensive list of foreign residents in the Far East alphabetically arranged, separate directories for all the ports in China, Japan, the Philippines, &c., besides that for the colony itself An appendix comprises information about postages, stamp duties, river steamers, and the Chinese Customs tariff. It appears to be an improvement on last year's edition.

SIAM.

—o—

BANGKOK.

The Summary of the 15th Jan. has the following:—

By advices from Petchaburee we learn that in that vicinity the rice crop is almost a failure. The water dried up so soon that a considerable part of the paddy did not fill out, and of that which did fill out the grains are very small and imperfect, but in those parts where the land is lower and where they consequently had more water, the crop promises to be a good one.

The son of the Government officer who was sent to conduct the Rev. Messrs. Macdonald and George through to Cheangmai brought us this morning letters from those gentlemen, dated December 10, stating in substance that they had waited most anxiously for the Government officer nine days before he came along; that the Governor of Rahaang was very kind in his attentions to them; that he had ordered eighty men, twenty elephants, and four horses to be an escort to the party to Cheangmai; and that they were about to leave.

The Siamese Government is stated to have given orders for the suppression of gambling. A proclamation has been issued from the throne ordering that all gambling houses in the vicinity of the Royal palace are to be shut up.

An embassy from the Spanish Government arrived at Bangkok on the 10th inst. in the Spanish sloop of war Vincedora.

We have it on good authority that the day for the commencement of the funeral obsequies of his Majesty the late Supreme King of Siam has at length been appointed by the Government, and that it is Tuesday, the 8th day of next March. The Royal remains will then, as we suppose, on the early morning of that day be conveyed from their present resting place in the Maha Prasat to the Pramene. This act is denominated chak pra sop, literally the drawing of the sacred corpse. Foreigners who have never witnessed that part of the ceremonies which appertains to the funeral of a Supreme King of Siam, may well determine thatthey will, if possible, have a view of it. The whole of the funeral services will probably occupy not less than fifteen days.

JAVA.

—o—

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

BATAVIA, Jan. 25.

The steamer Vice-President Prins arrived here yesterday with the English mail of Dec. 17.

The political news is very dull, and as the Nieuw Bataviaasch Handelsblad says, the correspondents are in despair because not one political fact occurred during the last fortnight worth mentioning. The general health was satisfactory at Batavia. The cases of small-pox are few, and only a very trifling number of persons were attacked by cholera. The horrible fever epidemic at Samarang has somewhat improved.

From the West-coast of Sumatra it is reported that the cattle disease still prevails there. Not less than 1,600 cattle died, and this caused the greatest distress to prevail amongst the population.

On the 17th inst. a total eclipse of the moon was observed; the weather was not rainy during the last few days. The west monsoon has not been inconvenient at Batavia. There are no inundations to regret here; from Samarang, however, several baudjirs are reported. The river has been filled up with sand and mud by these overflows of water, so that the deepest part is only 1½ feet. Of course the communication with the sea is as good as interrupted. Several boats (prauwen) loaded with produce from vessels anchored in the roads have been lost. Besides these bad changes are the costs to bring a general cargo from the roads to the town, equal to the freight paid for the transport from Holland. The Government does not do the least thing in order to make the river navigable, and this is a question of to be or not to be for Samarang.

The preliminary works in behalf of the railway from here to Buitenzorg are made with the greatest speed. It is said that a concession is asked for the construction of a railway from Sourabaya to Passaroeang. It creates much astonishment that this right has not been claimed by the Dutch India Railway Company.

The Chinese at Solo have established a club there, where they play at billiards, and where they are served quite a l'Europiene. In one point, however, they differ from the Europeans—they only drink tea, and no spirits.

The Padang Chamber of Trade has, according to the Sumatra Courant, pressed the Government to grant permission to vessels with foreign flags trading between Java and Sumatra.

According to the official Java Courant, 450,000 piculs of Government sugar are to be offered for sale in the months of July, August, September, and October; whilst 50,000 piculs of coffee will be sold in April and December.

From Siam I hear that Dr. Hoogenstraaten has made an operation on both the eyes of Chow Phya Tipa Karawongsa Mahakosa Dhipati, Vice-praeses of the great Council of Siam. The operation has had the best result. This fact has some importance, because the population of Siam are trusting now the "celebrated" doctor, and are willing to ask his advice. You know that the number of eye-patients is very large in that country, and that medical aid never was attended to.

COFFEE.—The crop of 1869 is quite exhausted; no transactions to report, and the nominal quotation is f.31 to f.32. Raw Sugar: Some small parcels changed hands at f.16 50 for No. 14. For delivery out of the forthcoming crop some transactions were made at f.15 for No 14. There are, however, but very few buyers. Rice: With some transactions for direct wants, f.165 to f.180 is paid for first quality, and f.125 to f.145 for second quality Batavia. Arrack was paid with f.95. Gutta Percha: The disposable quantity is very small. The quotation is from f.60 to f.120, according to quality. India-rubber is very scarce, and f.95 to f.105 is willingly paid. Gum Damar was sold at f.42 to f.43. Nutmegs met with much demand at f.115 per picul. Mace: The stock is nearly exhausted, and even at f.150 nothing can be bought. Cloves: No attention is paid to this article, and the rather nominal quotation is f 28. Black Pepper: f.17.50; white, without quotations. Cowhides: 35c. to 40c., and buffalo, 23c. to 28c. per lb. Borneo Rattans were paid with f.10.50 to f.13, and Padang, f.8 to f 9. On the 10th February 5,000 piculs Billiton Tin will be sold in public auction. Manufactures: The market was in general very dull, and most inactive, and the quotations are rather nominal. Madapollams: 5-4 met with some demand, and from f.5.30 to f.5 40 was paid; 6-4, f.5.90 to f.6 05; 7-4, dull and impossible to sell. Calicuts, inactive; 5-4, f.5 to f.5.15; 6-4, f.5.95 to f.6; 7-4, f.6.70 to f.6.95. English Madapollams without the least business, and the prices are unaltered. Shirtings: The demand for Dutch has again decreased, and 5-4 are selling with difficulty at f.8 to f.8.25; 6.4, f.9 to f.9.40; English Bleached are impossible to sell; for 36 inch, 40 yards good quality, the quotation is f.9.0 to f.9.25; 40 inch, f.9.20 to f.9.50; 45 inch, f.10.25 to f10.75; Unbleached. 7 to 39 inch, can be sold at f.7 to f.7.25; 8 to 45 inch are worth f.8. Drills, Unbleached, without stock, but the demand is very small; the nominal quotation is f.8.75 to f.9. Cambrics: No. 24 met with a good demand, and much business was done at f.3.50 to f.3.75. Prints: Notwithstanding they are out of season, the prices were well maintained. Mule Twist: Lower in price; the stock, however, is not large; No.20-24 were sold at f.3.15 to f.3.55; No. 30 at 3.55, and No. 40 at f.4.20.

ARRIVALS.—At Batavia, Jan. 18, Cyclone, King, from Singapore; Jan. 20, Lanercost, Eaton, from Samarang; Jan. 21, Gladiator, Little, from London; Jan. 22nd, Maranon, Gibb, from Liverpool. At Banjoewangie, Jan. 5, County of Argyle, Miller, from Probolingo, departed for Rotterdam. At Padang, Jan. 3, Rockitt, Dill, from Paelo Pinang, departed for Boston.

DEPARTURES.—From Batavia, Jan. 13, Courser, Dickey, for Holland; Jan. 19, Lieutenant, Peters, for Rangoon via Samarang; Jan. 20, Balnaguith, Nankwell, for Padang and America; Waverley, Forsayth, for Australia; Etha Rickmers, Davidson, for Singapore; Jan. 4, from Banjoewangie; Aberdeen, Law, for New York.

PASSED SUNDA STRAITS.—Jan. 8, Otter, Croscombe, Sarawak, to Samarang; Jan. 15, Ensiger, Duncas, from Foochow to Amsterdam.

The English ships Auburn and Balnaguith are loading at Padang for New York; the freight is not known. The Syringa has been chartered for London, the County of Elgin, for Rotterdam, and the Launceston, for Amsterdam. The Annie Story is bound to the Channel for orders. The Lanercost, Gladiator, and Maranon were at the departure of this mail unchartered.

Change on Holland.—Private bills 102 to 102¼ per cent.; Bank bills, 101½ to 102 per cent. London private, f.11.67½; bank bills, f.11.75 to f.11.77½.

Digitized by Google

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

Dates from this port are to the 1st Feb. The English mail of Dec. 17, and the French of Dec. 23, arrived out on the 20th and 25th Jan. respectively; the latter brought London telegrams to Jan. 10.

The following is from the Straits Times of 1st Feb.:—The fortnight like its predecessor has been a very dull one, and there is little of general interest to note. The rumour mentioned in our last summary of intended official changes has proved well founded. Mr. Edward Irving, the newly-arrived Assistant Colonial Secretary, assumed the duties of his office on the 17th January, but on the 20th the Honourable C. J. Irving was appointed Acting Lieutenant Governor of Malacca, Mr. Edward Irving—Acting Auditor General, and Mr. F. H. Plow—Acting Assistant Colonial Secretary, as before.

The light-vessel Torch has completed her repairs, and resumed her station on the North Sands, Malacca Straits, having been towed back by the Peiho.

H. E. the Governor has completed his visit to Penang, Province Wellesley, and Malacca, and returned here in the Peiho yesterday. The Legislative Council will probably be opened very shortly, and resume its labours; with the increased number of unofficial members, and the infusion of new blood in the official element, there is a prospect, if not of increased interest, at least of a little variety in the debates.

Copies of the despatch of his Excellency the Governor to Earl Granville, in vindication of his administration, are expected to reach this by next mail from England, and the document is looked forward to here with very general interest. Some particulars of its contents have reached this at second hand, and so far as they enable us to judge, we fear Sir Harry Ord will find he has raised a hornet's nest about his ears. Not content with the defence of the various acts of his administration against the somewhat rabid criticism which they have encountered, he would appear to claim that there never really has been any adverse criticism of his administration, which was at the same time honest and competent. The public press here, he sets down, not as the representative, but as the misrepresenter of the feelings of the community, and the few individuals who speak out for themselves, here and at home, he says, are actuated by the most sordid and selfish motives.

The Civil Session commenced on the 24th Jan. The chief case of interest is a suit brought against the proprietors of the powder hulk Statesman, for the value of gunpowder transferred at the time that vessel had sprung a leak, into the hulk Princess Royal, and lost when the latter ship foundered, in February, 1868. The point relied upon for the plaintiffs is that the powder was transferred without their consent; but, on the other hand, the condition of the Statesman was one of imminent danger, and the removal to the Princess Royal was made for the safety of the gunpowder and in the utmost bona fides, and there is no doubt had the assent of the owners been sought it would have been obtained;—in fact, there was no other place to which the powder could have been transferred. The case is, altogether, one of considerable interest.

The Chinese New Year festivities began yesterday, and will last fourteen days, during which time, as usual, the noise of crackers and the din of gongs will be heard instead of the bustle and activity of the rest of the year. Business will, of course, be very limited.

The rains have evidently broken up, and though we have occasional showers, the weather is more favourable.

With the new year appeared the second number of "Straits Produce," enlarged to twenty-eight pages, and filled with humourous articles and sketches quite as good in quality, and more profuse in quantity than last year. Further notice we must reserve for next week.

PENANG.

Captain Alfred Robert Ord, Police Magistrate and Commissioner of the Court of Requests, Malacca, will arrive here in February and assume the appointments of Police Magistrate and Commissioner of the Court of Requests, Penang, and Mr. W. E. Maxwell will embark for Malacca immediately after the arrival of Captain Ord, and take up his appointments there.

Gambling is said to be very prevalent amongst the Chinese community at present. It is not pursued in houses in town but at places in the country, where the police are not so likely to be on the look-out. As it seems impossible to suppress this vice altogether, the Government would do well to follow the example of the Hong Kong authorities and introduce licensed gambling-houses. The revenue derived from this source would no doubt be large, and might be applied to some special purpose, such as the support of the Leper Hospital, and other charitable institutions, or in carrying out municipal improvements which at present are beyond the means of the commissioners.

Commercial Report.

—o—

(For dates see First Page.)

STRAITS, JAVA, CHINA, AND JAPAN IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—Some small transactions had taken place in Cotton Yarn and Grey Shirtings at about last mail's rates. These, with a few sales of Turkey Reds and Velvets, constitute almost the sole business of the fortnight in piece goods. The depression in Woollen manufactures was unabated, and the quotations were almost entirely nominal. Metals, with the exception of small sized Nail Rod Iron, were almost unsaleable. Quotations:—Cotton Yarn, 16 to 24, $53 to 53 75 per picul; 28 to 32, $53 to 53.75; 38 to 42, $59 to 61. Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., $2.60 to 2.65 per piece; 8 lbs., 4 to 6, $2.97½ to 3. Black Velvets, $9 to 9.65 per piece. T. R. Cambrics, $1.05 per lb. Taffachelass, $2.30 to 3.40. Nail-rod Iron, $2.70 to 3.50; Lead, $6 to 6.25; Tin Plates, $6.25 to 8 per box; Coal, $8.50 to 9 per ton.

SHANGHAI.—There had been a large business in Grey and White Shirtings and T-Cloths at prices showing a marked improvement. Sales for the most part had been for delivery after China New Year, and importers had been the principal sellers. Grey Shirtings: 7lb. makes, owing to their scarcity, had been more sought after, and rates ruled high in consequence. Sales of ordinary chops, to arrive in six weeks, were effected at Tls. 2.05 per piece. For 8-4lb. the quotations were Tls. 2.21 to Tls. 2.23 per piece for ordinary delivery, and Tls. 2.24 to Tls. 2.25 for delivery in four weeks. The demand for 9lb. and 9.10/12lb. had been active, and rates show an improvement of 5 to 9 cents. Sales of all weights estimated at 170,000 pieces. At the close dealers were offering lower prices for 8.4lb. goods, but importers showed no sign of giving way. White Shirtings had changed hands to extent of 50,000 pieces, and holders had succeeded in establishing an advance. Best 64 reed firmly held for Tls. 2.40 per piece. T-Cloths: The low rates ruling attracted the attention of speculators, and sales from first and second hands were estimated at over 100,000 pieces. The market was rather irregular; but although stocks were known to be heavy, an impression obtained that higher prices will be got after China New Year. 6lb. goods scarce, and in some demand. Drills: Beyond sales at auction of damaged goods ex late arrivals, nothing had been done. Fancy Cottons: Some descriptions had been in good request, but the business done had been on a limited scale; the kinds most in demand, such as White and Dyed Spotted Shirtings, were in light supply, and holders generally were very firm for higher values. The Woollen Goods market had shown little or no change. About 4.000 pieces of Figured Orleans and 1,500 pieces of Crape Lustres, held by speculators, are said to have been sold at lower rates. Metals: Transactions amount to 7,000 Bars Nail Rod Iron at Tls. 2.15 to 2.75, which had been taken on speculation. Owing to the advance quoted in the cost of Iron at home, Importers were asking higher prices, and were very firm in their demands. Quotations were altered. Lead: A decline on this market was looked for; advices from Hankow showed a slight decline and a probability of lower rates, the imports being on a very large scale. Coals: The Coal market had remained very inactive, and, as usual at this season, the demand had almost ceased. Cardiff, no arrivals on the market or sales to report. English, sales of a small cargo at Tls. 6 per ton. American, without transactions. Australian, sales at Tls. 5.80 per ton Newcastle. Japan, without sales to report. Formosa, Cardiff 1,200 tons (to order). Quotations (duty paid): Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., per piece, 2.0.4 to 2.0.6; 8.4 to 8.6 lbs., 2.2.1 to 2.2.5; 9 to 9.12 lbs., 2.5.0 to 2 9 7; White Shirtings, per piece, 2.1.0 to 2.7.0; T. Cloths, 6 lbs., per piece, 1.4.0 to 1.6.5; 7 lbs., 1.6 5 to 1.8.5; 8 to 8.4 lbs., 2.0.0 to 2.1.5; XX 2.4.0; American Drills, 40 yards, 3.5.5 to 3.7.5; American Jeans, 30 yards, 2.8.0 to 2.9.0; American Sheetings, 40 yards, 3.4.5 to 3.7.5; English Drills, 40 yards, Tls. 3.4.0 to 3.6.0; Dutch Drills, 40 yards, Tls. 3.3.0 to 3.5.0; Figured Shirtings, per piece, Tls. 2.1.5 to 2.7.5; Brocades, per piece, Tls. 2.1.5 to 3.2.5; Damasks, per piece, Tls. 4.2.0 to 4.4 5; Gentian Shirtings, per piece, Tls. 2.8.0 to 3.0.0; Chintz, per piece, Tls. 1.4.5 to 1.9.0; Turkey Reds, 24 yards, per piece, Tls. 2.0.0 to 2.5.0; Camlets, English, SS, per piece, Tls. 12.0.0 to 12.2.5; SSS, Tls. 11.5.0 to 12.0.0; Spanish Stripes, per yard, Tls. 0.5.0 to 0.5.5; Medium Broad and Habit Cloth, Tls. 1.0.0 to 1.5.0; Long Ells, Scarlet, per piece, Tls. 6.0.5 to 6.2.0; Iron: Nail Rod, per picul, Tls. 1.9.0 to 2.2.0; Lead, per picul, Tls. 5.2.5 to 5.3.0

HANKOW.—Cotton Goods: Grey Shirtings 8¼ lbs. had ruled 1 to 2 candareens over the closing quotations of last mail, but sales had been on a smaller scale, as the Szechuen dealers were drawing their supplies from Shanghai direct. 7 lbs. cloth scarce, and much wanted at an advance. Some enquiry for heavy Shirtings at higher rates. Closing quotations Tls. 2.00 to 2.03 for 7 lbs., Tls. 2.17 to 2.22 for 8¼ lbs., and Tls. 2.80 to 2.90 for 9¼ lbs. goods. White Shirtings: 64/66 reed goods in moderate enquiry, at Tls. 2.25 to 2.37 per piece. T-Cloths: Demand fallen off, sales less easily effected at a decline of 2 to 3 candareens per piece. Drills: Sales at low rates, little demand. Fancy Cottons, very little enquiry. Woollens and Worsteds—Camlets dull of sales, stocks increased. Lastings not wanted. Long Ells again lower, hardly any business reported. Spanish stripes and medium cloths taken in retail quantities only. Figured Orleans: Few enquiries, at lower prices. China Crapes: Not asked for. Lead: Business very limited, but there was a slight advance to note. Quicksilver: Unchanged; small sales at quotations. Tin: No stock. The quotations ruled as follows:—T-Cloths, 6 to 6½ lbs., $1.4 to 1.6; 7 lbs., $1.6.5 to 1.7.8; 8 to 8¼ lbs., $2.0.2 to 2.1.3. Drills, American, $3.6.5 to 3.7.5; English, $3.4 to 3.6. Spotted shirtings, per piece, $2.2. Brocades, $2.0.5 to 3.1.5; Spanish stripes, per yard, $5.5 to 5.8; medium cloth, per yard, $0.9 to 1.16; habit cloth, per yard, $1.2.5 to 1.4.0; broad cloth, per yard, $1.3 to 1.6. Camlets, English, S, per piece, $12.8 to 13.3; S. S. per piece, $12. 9 to 12.4; lastings, $1.1.5 to 11.3; long ells, $6.0.5 to 6.2.5; Lead, per picul, $5.5.0 to 5.7.0; Quicksilver, per picul, $50.5 to 50.7.5.

FOOCHOW.—The sales during the interval had comprised 1,000 pieces 7 lbs. Grey Shirtings, at $2.72½ per piece; 500 pieces 7 lb. T-Cloths, at $2.40 per piece; 100 pieces Scarlet Long Ells, at $8.30 per piece; 280 piculs Lead, at $7.52 per picul.

HONG KONG.—Messrs. Olyphant and Co.'s Report, dated 24th January,

Digitized by Google

contains the following:—Raw Cotton: With a continued good demand throughout the fortnight a steady business has resulted in Indian staple, and the market closes very firm. Cotton Yarn: The stock of Nos. 16-24 in native hands having become reduced to a very small compass, the dealers have displayed an increased desire to supply themselves, and moderate sales have resulted, holders having been enabled to advance their asking figures $2.50 per bale for English, and $2.50 to $5 for Bombay kinds. The inquiry for Nos. 28-32 has not strengthened, and, without anything of moment having transpired, former quotations are repeated. Nos. 38-42 are in small supply, and are still held at high rates. Piece Goods: Transactions have been upon an increased scale, and the business of the fortnight has been much larger than might have been expected at the date of the despatch of last mail. The Chinese, however, are sanguine of a good demand after the turn of their year, and have therefore bought fairly, even at the advanced rates quoted. 7 and 8.4 lb. Grey Shirtings have been moderately taken at an advance of 2 to 5 cents per piece, and at this increased figure holders are very firm; 8.8 lb. to 9.12 lb. are all nominally 5 cents dearer; 10 lb. goods are in demand, for shipment to the North, and a rise of fully 10 cents per piece is quoted. White Shirtings of all counts are dearer, with an upward tendency, and the common kinds are sought after whilst the supply on offer is very small. Some small sales of English and Dutch Drills have been made upon easier terms, and holders have offered considerable parcels at public sale, at which bids were so low as to occasion the withdrawal of most of the goods. Quotations for American Cottons are nominally unaltered. Settlements of 6 and 7 lb. T-Cloths have been made to a moderate extent, and common 6 lb. goods display an increase in value of 2 to 5 cents per piece, whilst prices of all other weights remain unchanged; 8 lb. goods, however, meet with ready sale. Assorted Brocades and Spotted Shirtings have advanced, whilst White are unchanged. Turkey Reds are in full supply and are lower. Chintzes are quoted dearer, and good are wanted. Woollens: Scarlet Long Ells are weaker, and Assorted unchanged, but neglected. Spanish Stripes are somewhat firmer. Blankets continue dull, and can only be placed at public sale. The supply of superior Lastings is very small, and in consequence the demand is steady. Camlets have been parted with upon slightly easier terms. Dutch Camlets are, however, more firmly held. Metals: Nail Rod, Bar, and Hoop Iron are unaltered in value. Lead is held rather above buyers' ideas. Tin is less inquired for, and has fallen $1 to 1.50 per picul. Quicksilver is held for higher rates. Coal: Arrivals have been 4,234 tons Sydney and 1,483 tons of Cardiff. Sales have been 908 tons of the former at $5 to 5.70 per ten, and 532 tons of the latter at $7 per ton. The cargo of Anthracite coals, some 1,500 tons, brought by the Witch of the Wave, has been offered unsuccessfully at $7, ex ship while it is reported that even a lower figure is difficult to obtain. Ginseng: No business has been reported, and the market remains quiet. The current quotations were:—Cotton Yarn, per bale, 16 to 24, Tls. 140 to 145; 28 to 32, Tls. 142.50 to 150; 38 to 42, Tls. 175 to 185; Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., Tls. 2.45 to 2.55; 8.4 lbs., Tls. 2.80 to 2.85; 9 to 10 lbs., Tls. 3 to 3.90; White Shirtings, 54 to 72, Tls. 2.55 to 3.75; fine, Tls. 4.20; T-Cloths, 6 lbs., Tls. 1.95 to 2; 7 lbs., Tls. 2.15 to 2.20; Mexicans, Tls. 2.30 to 2.40; 8 to 8.4 lbs., Tls. 2.65 to 2.30; Grey Twills, per piece, English, Tls. 4.65 to 4.75; American, Tls. 5 to 5.10; Dutch, Tls. 4.70 to 4.85; Spotted Shirtings, Tls. 2.60 to 3.20; Brocades, White, $2.70 to $3.50; Long Ells, per piece, Scarlet, Tls. 7.40 to 7.60; Assorted, Tls. 7.30 to 7.50; Blankets, Tls. 0.43 to 0.50; Camlets, SSS, Tls. 13 to 13.50; S.S., Tls. 15.25 to 15.75; S., Tls. 17 to 17.50; Iron Nail Rods, Nos. 1 to 6, Tls. 2.30 to 2.50.

BATAVIA.—Business in Cotton Goods had been on a most limited scale. Cambrics, 45 inch by 12 yards, all makes and qualities neglected; sales only effected at reduced rates; superior, 15/16's, f.5 to f.10; medium, f.4.75 to f.4.85; ordinary, f.4.60 to f.4.70 per piece; 24s., f.3 to f.3.25; 30's and 36's, nominal. White Shirtings, 40 yards, 36 inch 64 reed valued at f.8.50 to f.8.75, although in no inquiry; 40/41 inch taken at f.9 to f.9½; 45 inch very quiet; good medium, f.10.50 per piece. Grey Shirtings, 38½ yards, sales of 39 inch 7 lb. are reported at f.7 to f.7⅛ per piece; and of 8¼ lb. at f.8 per piece, both at one month. Maddapollams, 24 yards, transactions in Dutch restricted to actual requirements; White, 33/34 inch f.5.25 to f.5.35; 40.41 inch, f.6 to f.9.25. Grey, 34.35 inch, f.5 to f.5.25; 43.44 inch, f.6 to f.6.25. English Grey, 32 inch, sold at f.3½ per piece cash. In English White, doing nothing. Prints, 9.8 by 24 yards: Season closed. Twist, grey, No. 40's placed, at f.400 to f.410 per bale, one month. Nos. 20, 24, and 30, without demand. Iron, ample supplies; sales at f.9.50 to f.9.75 per picul; English, difficult of sale at f.6 to f.6.50 per picul.

PENANG.—Owing to the Chinese New Year holidays, business in imports had been very dull, buyers only purchasing for immediate wants. Grey Shirtings, 6 lbs., had been disposed of at $45 and 44 per corge, with a very small inquiry for the heavier class of these goods. Grey Long Cloths not asked for; prices nominal. Grey Madapollams: Stock cleared. Grey T-Cloths: Moderate demands; sales of 6 lbs. at $37½, of 7 lbs. at $43½ to 43 per corge. White Shirtings continued very dull; small quantities of medium sold at $60 and 63, fine at $82 and 84 per corge. White Cambrics: Small demand for low; medium bought at $27, and Nos. 15-16 at $32¼ per corge. Yarn very dull; prices somewhat weaker.

STRAITS, JAVA, CHINA, AND JAPAN EXPORTS.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—The demand for good medium to finest teas had continued brisk, and settlements had been made to the extent of about 6,000 piculs, almost entirely for the New York market. The native dealers had been firm, and prices again showed an advance of from $1 to $2 per picul on those last quoted, and the market closed firm. Supplies as usual at this period of the season were falling off, and stocks, therefore, were much reduced. The America had taken 79,173 lbs. for San Francisco, and 88,467 lbs. for New York; and the Westbury 320,700 lbs. for New York. Quotations: Common, $22 to 24 per picul, nominal; Good Common, $25 to 27 ditto; Medium, $28 to 31 ditto; Good Medium, $32 to 34 ditto; Fine, $36 to 38 ditto; Finest, $39 to 44 ditto; Choice, nominal.

SHANGHAI.—Black: An unimportant business had been transacted. Prices showed no great change, but were, perhaps, a shade lower. Supplies had been very small, and the stock was slightly reduced. Settlements for the fortnight, 2,157 chests; stock, 37 chops, or 9,697 packages. Quotations (duty paid):—Hohow, common to fair, Tls. 17 to 20; Oonam, common, Tls. 19; Ningchow, common, Tls. 19; Shanghai-packed, Tls. 16. Green: In the early part of the fortnight the market was quiet, but subsequently a demand had sprung up, and purchases amounted to 24,700 half-chests. Price for good medium to fine Teas had advanced from one to two taels per picul on last mail's quotations; common kinds had also commanded full rates. Quotations: Moyune and Teenkai, Tls. 31 to 41; Pychow, Tls. 26 to 36; Pingsuey, Tls. 30 to 31; Shanghai packed, Tls. 25 to 30. Settlements for the fortnight, 24,700 half-chests; re-shipments on owners' account, 760 half-chests; stock, 115 chops, or 50,276 half-chests.

FOOCHOW.—The business done since the departure of last mail had left the market almost bare of stock. Prices were unchanged. Supplies, as compared with last season, showed a falling off as follows: Congou, 25,094 chests; Souchong, 4,171 chests; Oolong, 35,817 half-chests; and Scented Teas, 38,770 boxes. In Flowery Pekoe there was an increase of 2,410 chests, and Green Teas of 4,800 packages. Congou: In the early part of the fortnight a further advance was tried by the teamen, but after learning of the unfavourable advices from all quarters, previous rates were accepted. Souchong: The settlements show no change. Oolong, Flowery Pekoe, Scented Teas: No business. Green: One parcel of 2,427 packages had been settled at Tls. 22½, a proportion which may be considered moderate as compared with Shanghai rates. The remainder of the stock had been shipped off on Chinese account.

CANTON.—There had been more doing, teamen being anxious to realise, and close their accounts before China New Year. A reduction of 1 to 2 taels had been the result, but holders, as a rule, were not disposed to sell at this decline. It was said that some of the settlements will be forwarded on native account. The Gunpowders are reported as going forward to the colonies, and under Continental orders. Prices unchanged. Canton settlements from 6th and 20th January, 1870:—Country Congous, nil; Canton District Congous, nil; Scented Orange Pekoe, 2,700 boxes at Tls. 20 to 25; Scented Caper, 8,000 boxes at Tls. 12 to 16; Canton Greens, Gunpowder, 3,600 boxes at Tls. 14 to 23; Young Hyson, Country Greens, nil.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—An improved demand had imparted more activity to the market, and settlements had reached 750 bales. The prices of the lower grades of Hanks attracted attention first chiefly to these classes, but as they became less abundant, silkmen daily advanced their pretensions, and a rise of fully $30 to 40 has to be noted. Other Hanks and Oshus had shared the effect of the general improved tone, though in a smaller degree; and silkmen had assumed such extravagant pretensions for all sorts that business was again checked; even the desire to settle for the new year seemed to have little influence. The quotations were—Hanks, Mybash and Sinchu, extra, 34s. 6d.; best, 31s. 10d. to 33s. 9d.; medium, 29s. 1d. to 31s.; inferior, 25s. 7d. to 27s. 11d.; Oshu, extra, 34s. 11d.; best, 31s. 10d. to 33s. 9d.; medium, 28s. 9d. to 31s.; inferior, 24s. to 26s.; Coshu, best, 27s. 2d. to 28s. 9d.; medium, 24s. 10d. to 26s. 9d.; Sodai, best, 27s. 7d. to 28s. 9d.; medium, 24s. 10d. to 26s. 9d.

SHANGHAI.—The following is from Messrs. Skeggs and Co.'s Circular, dated 18th January:—"Immediately after the departure of last mail business was again commenced and has steadily progressed, reaching at the close a much larger amount than had been anticipated. Settlements are estimated at about 2,200 bales, and the present stock is reduced to about 700 bales. As might be expected with such large transactions, prices have been forced up and show an advance of Tls. 5 on chops, and Tls. 5 to 10 on other descriptions of Tsatlees; Choopings and Koo-fong sings having been sold at Tls. 560, equal to 29s. 6d. Dragons, Tls. 555, equal to 29s. 3d.; and Red Peacocks, Tls. 462½, equal to 24s. 5d. Hainins have been in better request, sharing the rise to the extent of Tls. 10; No. 2 Fatmow fetching Tls. 465, equal to 24s. 7d., and a quantity of medium sorts have been taken at from Tls. 430 to 450. Taysaams are much wanted, and realise equally high prices. A considerable portion of the business has been in barter for Woollen Goods otherwise unsaleable at this period of the year. These high prices will, no doubt, bring fuller supplies to the market than has hitherto been expected, and the export will probably reach about 39,000 bales."

JAVA AND STRAITS PRODUCE.

BATAVIA.—Arrack: f.95 per leaguer; sales. Cloves: f.28 per picul; dull. Coffee: Java, none in the market; 1,000 piculs Pamanoekan sold at f. 43.09 per picul. Cubebs: f. 14.50 per picul; sales. Gutta Percha: f. 60 to f.120 per picul, according to quality; small supplies. Gum Damnar: f.42 to f.43 per picul; sales. Hides: Cow, 35c. to 40c.; Buffalo, 23c. to 28c. per pound, according to quality. India Rubber: f.95 to f.105 per picul; sales, and scarce. Indigo: Sales at Samarang, f.5.25 to f.5.30 per lb. for first quality. Mace: f.150 per picul; sales, and scarce. Nutmegs: f.115 per picul; sales, and scarce. Pepper: Black, f.17.50, sales; white, no stocks. Rice: First quality, f.165 to f.180 per coyang; second, f.125 to f.145 per coyang; cargo, f.110 to f.115 per coyang. Rattans; Borneo, f.10.50 to f.13 per picul, none; and Padang, f.8 to f.9 per picul, sales. Sapanwood: Manila in bond, none; Java, f.3 to f.3.50 per picul: sales. Sugar: No. 14 and lower, f.16.50 per picul, sales; No. 15/20, f. 15.50 f.to 15.75 per picul, sales.

SINGAPORE.—The following is from the Borneo Company's report:—The usual preparation by our dealers for the Chinese New Year have interrupted business, and we have had a very limited demand for goods generally, with the exceptions, perhaps, of Grey Shirtings and fine Yarns, which are in reduced stock and continue to be sought after; holders have shown little eagerness to force sales, and our quotations for the most part are fully maintained. Grey Shirtings, 39 inch: The inquiry for 7 and 8¼ lb. keeps moderately active, and prices have slightly improved 45 inch Shirtings of 9 and 10 lb. weight continue in request, and in their absence 8 lb. have been moving more freely. Present value is:—6 lb., $2.10/17; 7 lb., $2.50/52½; 8¼ lb., $2.92½/95 per piece. Grey T-Cloths are firmer, though sales have been restricted to some extent by the advanced prices holders now demand. There are buyers of 4 lbs., $1.35/40; 4½ lbs., $1.45/50; 5 lbs., $1.55/60; 6 lbs., $1.82½/87½; 7 lbs., $2.10/15 per piece. Grey Madapollams: Stocks reduced, and value advanced to $21¼ to 21⅞ per corge for 2¾ lbs., and $22 to 22½ for 3 lbs. Grey Drills continue neglected; quotations nominal. White Shirtings: Transactions limited; no improvement can be noticed in prices, which remain at, 45/50 reed, $2.20/25; 56/58 reed, $2.60/70; 64/66 reed, $3.12½/17½; 70/72 reed, $3.55/65 per piece. White Madapollams inquired for at $22½ to $23½ per corge, and few remain in first hands. Grey Twist: The lower numbers are still slow of sale, and the transactions reported in No. 30 are also small. No. 40 is in request and supplies recently to hand, having been cleared, purchases for arrival have taken place at $147½ to 150 per bale. We quote: Nos. 16-24, $125 to 127½ por bale; No. 30, $137½ to 140; No. 40, $150 to 152½. Woollens: The market continues inactive. 30 lb. Camlets, assorted colours, are quoted $16½ to 16¾ per piece, but no sales are reported. Spanish Stripes have been placed to a small extent at 77½c. to 80c. per yard, and Bombazettes at $3.20 to 3.30 per piece. 12 lb. Scarlet Long Ells are without enquiry at $7⅞ to 8 per piece. Iron is in heavy stock and the demand is extremely small at $2.40 to 2.45 per piece for Govan bolt and bar; and $2.35 to 2.40 for nail-rod. Swedish Steel is also difficult to move at $3.60 to 6.65 per tub. Pig Lead is in request, and small parcels afloat have been taken for arrival at $6 to 6¼ per icu.

Digitized by Google

PENANG.—There had been little business of importance. Only one purchase of Tin was reported at $26 per picul, but for India and China native merchants had paid as high as $26¾ to 26.80, credit. No Pepper had come forward, and a former arrival of 3,000 piculs had been disposed of at $7.25 to 7.50 per picul to native merchants for the Indian and Chinese markets. Cloves, Penang growth, had met buyers at $18¼ per picul. There was still a little Cutch on the market. Fish Maws had been very scarce; there had only been a small arrival during the fortnight of some whole, which was taken at $74 per picul. Arrivals of Gum Benjamin No. 1 had been purchased at $50, and of No. 2, T. T. and Co., of medium quality, was secured at $19¾ per picul. There was very little left on the market. Very little Gutta Percha had come forward, and the small lots that arrived were taken at $70 to $80¼ per picul, according to quality. There had been a fair supply of Buffalo Hides, which had had ready buyers at $10 and 10½ per picul. Cow Hides had been very scarce, and purchased at $14¼ for picked skins. Horns had sustained former rates, and arrivals were taken at $10 and 10¼ per picul, according to size. India Rubber had come forward in small quantities, and bought at $36 and 36¼ per picul. Sugar in improved demand, prices somewhat firmer.

EXPORT OF TEA AND SILK, SEASON 1869-70.

TO GERAT BRITAIN.

Date.	From Yokohama & Nagasaki.	From Shanghai and Hankow	From Foochow.	From Amoy.	From Canton, Macao, &c.	Total lbs.	SILK Total Bales & Cses
From June 1 to Dec. 31, 1869	74573	67441165	46726884	1349918	13045128	128637668	32478
Corresponding period last season	731407	65565678	49533375	...	12129197	127959657	43022

Shipments Since;

1870.

Jan. 6 per Omla	From Shanghai	...	1,136,538
— 8 ... Fontenaye	... Do.	...	670 780
— 13 ... Westburn	... Foochow	...	702.100
— 14 .. Red Riding Hood	... Do.	...	961,800
— 25 ... Ellora (ml. str.)	... Shanghai, &c.	—		2,525

TO THE CONTINENT.

							Bales.
From June 1 to Dec. 31, 1869	...	...	...	...	...	2049417	11330
Corresponding period last season	...	...	...	...	...	3476339	16617

Shipments Since;

1870.

Jan. 1 per Ensign	From Foochow	...	482,100
— 15 ... Figaro	... Do.	...	192,000
— 17 ... Diamond	... Do	...	557,500
— 25 ... Ellora (ml. str.)	... Shanghai, &c.	...	—	630

TO UNITED STATES.

							Pcls.
From June 1 to Dec. 31, 1869	...	...	...	...	...	27097511	834
Corresponding period last season	...	...	...	...	...	24489775	1,313

Shipments Since;

1870.

Jan. 1 per Elizabeth Nicholson	From Shanghai	...	1,086,140
— 1 ... America	... Yokohama	...	88,467
— 9 ... Wesbury	... Do.	...	320,700
— 12 ... Margarita	... Amoy	...	356.636
— 14 ... City of Perth	... Shanghai	...	56,075
— 15 ... New York (str.)	... Do.	...	465,207	4
— — ... Japan	... Do.	...	—	24

TO AUSTRALIA.

From June 1 to Dec. 31, 1869	... 11,112,391 lb
Corresponding period last year	... 15,714,349

Shipments Since;

1870.

Jan. 15 per Onward	From Hong Kong	...	38,440
— 20 ... G. H. Peake	... Do	...	279,220

TO GREAT BRITAIN.

	Tea—lbs.	Silk bales China & Japan.
From 1843 to 1844	51,022,600	.. *
,, 1845 to 1846	57,334.200	18,604
,, 1850 to 1851	63 972.000	24,143
,, 1853 to 1854	77,327,800	61,280
,, 1855 to 1856	92.240 300	50 481
,, 1857 to 1858	76,990,255	68,315
,, 1858 to 1859	65.789,792	83,134
,, 1859 to 1860	85,560,452	64,169
,, 1860 to 1861	90,066,160	70,644
,, 1861 to 1862	109,854,040	79,199
,, 1862 to 1863	121.273.580	72,887
,, 1863 to 1864	117,463,586	46,603
,, 1864 to 1865	121,236 870	32.313
,, 1865 to 1866	118,333 042	62,890
,, 1866 to 1867	118.423,290	50 052
,, 1867 to 1868	116,890,430	57,449
,, 1868 to 1869	142,789,804	70,917

* Including the Continent.

EXCHANGES, &c.

[For dates, see first page.]

ON LONDON.

At	Bank Bills.	Credits.	Documentary.
Yokohama, 6 m. s.	4s. 6½d.	4s. 7d.	4s. 7d.
Shanghai ,, ,,	6s. 0¼d.	6s. 0¼d.	6s. 1d.
Canton ,, ,,	4s. 5½d.	4s. 5½d.	4s. 6d.
Hong Kong ,, ,,
Macao ,, ,,
Singapore ,, ,,	4s. 5½d.	4s. 6d.	4s. 6½d.
Manila ,, ,,	4s. 3d.	4s. 3½d.	4s. 3½d.
Colombo ,, ,,	par	1 to 2 dis.	1 to 2 dis.

MISCELLANEOUS.

—	At Shanghai.	At Hong Kong.
Bills on India	300 to 301	222½
,, Hong Kong	26 to 26¼ dis.	—
Bar silver	111.6.0	9½ prem.
Mexican dollars	73.7.0	¼ prem.

Bons, at Yokohama, 335 to 350 per 100 dols.

SHARES AT HONG KONG.

Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank, New, 20; Old, 36 to 37 per cent. premium.
Hong Kong Gas Company, 44 dols. per share.
Hong Kong and Whampoa Dock, 9 per cent. discount.
Union Dock Company, 45 to 50 per cent. discount.
China Traders' Insurance, 1,400 to 1,500 dols. premium.
Hotel shares, 50 to 60 per cent. discount.
Hong Kong and Macao Steamboat Company, 26 per cent. premium.

Shipping Intelligence.

ARRIVALS.

At YOKOHAMA.—From Shields, Jan. 3, Peter Joynson; 6, James Watt; from London, Jan. 15, Napier.

At SHANGHAI.—From Glasgow, Jan. 17, Melrose Abbey; from Sunderland, 11, Aldebaran. Reported by telegram, from London, &c., Princess of Wales, Titania, Caliph, Hertfordshire, Achilles (str.).

At HONG KONG and CANTON.—From London, Jan. 14, Conchita (str.), Everest, 22, Fairleader; from Glasgow, 20, Grace Peile; 21, Appin (str.); from Portland, 14, Hathie C. Besse; from Swansea, 12, Fort Regent; from Newcastle, 16, Jules Dufaure, Ambassador; from Hamburg, 10, Bertha; 12, Panama 22, Formosa; from Bremen, 19, Willy; from New York, 21, Golden Star; from Callao, 22, America. Reported by telegram, from Cardiff, Canada.

At MANILA.—From Liverpool, Jan. 5, Amigos, 18, Panama; from Cardiff, Chica.

At SINGAPORE.—From London, Jan. 20, Arabia; 26, Antipodes; 27, Belle of Southesk; from Dundee, 19, Early Morn; from Glasgow, 21, Loch Ken; from Cardiff, 24, Jorgen Bruhn; 30, Constantine; from Hamburg, M. W. Sass. Reported by telegram as having arrived previous to Feb. 15, Hydecoper(?), Banda, Wemys Castle, Modane.

At PENANG.—From Hull, Feb. 2, Ystarat.

At BATAVIA.—From London, Jan. 21, Gladiator; from Liverpool, 22, Maranon; from Amsterdam, 11, Aldebaran, Admiraal de Ruyter; 21, Waterloo; 24, Peter Adolph; from Rotterdam, 22, Jacoba Cornelia; 24, Maria Adriana.

At BANGKOK.—From Bordeaux, Dec. 18, Diana; from Hamburg, 12, Palma.

DEPARTURES.

From YOKOHAMA.—For New York, Jan. 8, Westbury; for United States, Havelock.

From SHANGHAI.—For New York, Jan. 15, City of Perth, Nestor Princess of Wales.

From FOOCHOW.—For London, Jan. 12, Westburn; 14, Red Riding Hood; for Falmouth, 15, Figaro; 17, Diamond.

From HONG KONG and CANTON.—For Liverpool, Jan. 13, Camana; for London, 18, Neville; for Falmouth, 15, Empress; for Callao, 14, Mahela.

From MANILA.—For Copenhagen, Jan. 13, Havfruen; for Cadiz, 8, Elena.

From SINGAPORE.—For London, Jan. 26, Staffa; 28, Glenlyon: for Liverpool, 29, M. C. Nelson; for Falmouth, 30, Edith; for New York, 30, Abbie Clifford, Clydesval.

From PENANG.—For London, Jan. 24, Parana.

From BATAVIA.—For Holland, Jan. 13, Courser, Doelwyk; 24, Robertus Hendrikus; for United States (via Padang), 20, Balnagurth.

From BANGKOK.—For Europe, &c., Dec. 31, Benmore; Jan. 8, Macedon, Venus; 11, British Empire.

VESSELS LOADING.

At YOKOHAMA.—For New York, Crest of the Wave, Benefactress, Havelock, Rockliff; for Boston, Alphonsine.

At SHANGHAI.—For London, Callisto, Loudoun Castle, Dartmouth, Nestor (st.); for New York, Good Hope, Sarah Nicholson, Harlow.

At FOOCHOW.—For London, Portland, Coulnakyle; for Continent, Joseph Hombro; for New York, Avon.

At HONG KONG and CANTON.—For London, Dudbrook; Princess of Wales; for New York, Music.

At MANILA.—For London, Victoria; for New York, Adelina, Samuel Larrabee

At SINGAPORE.—For London, Carmarthenshire, Dilbhur, Tartar;

Digitized by Google

for Glasgow, Hermon; for Liverpool, Loch Ken; for New York, George Green; for Boston, Nabob Rosina; for Bordeaux, Louise, Collet, Pallas, Yvone.

At PENANG.—For London, James Paton, Albuera.

At BATAVIA—For Europe, Anita, Flora, George Crashaw, Kate Swanton, Krimpen van der Lek, Landdrost Brann, Penrith.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS.

At YOKOHAMA.—To London, there is no vessel loading; to New York, £2 to £2 5s. per ton, of 40 cubic feet.

At SHANGHAI.—To London and New York rates remain at £2 to £2 10s. per ton respectively.

At FOOCHOW.—To London, £2 to £2 5s.; to New York, £2 10s.

At HONG KONG and CANTON.—To London, £2 10s.; to New York, £2 per ton.

At MANILA.—To London, Sugar, £2 10s.: Hemp, £3. Nominal.

At SINGAPORE.—For United Kingdom, £2 2s. 6d. to £2 10s.; and £3 Hides.

At PENANG.—To London, £2 5s. dead weight; £2 10s. light weight.

VESSELS PASSED STRAITS OF SUNDA.

Date.	Ship.	From	To.
Dec. 28	Barbadian	... Singapore	... Boston
,, —	Siam	... Shanghai	... Falmouth
,, —	A. C. Otis	... Manila	... New York
,, 26	Mille	... Marseilles	... Saigon
,, —	Jedo	... Batavia	... Rotterdam
,, 27	Rifleman	... Yokohama	... Boston
,, —	Ravensbourne	... Hiogo	... New York
,, 30	Str. Bangkok	... Glasgow	... Singapore
Jan. 2	Arracan	... Hong Kong	... New York
,, —	Earl of Dalhousie	... Foochow	... London
,, —	Bunker Hill	... Manila	... Boston
,, —	Henri Joseph	... Bordeaux	... Batavia
,, —	Polly Lewis	... Singapore	... Boston
,, —	Etha Rickmers	... Shanghai	... New York
,, 7	Cosmopolitan	... Manila	... Cadiz
,, —	Jurgen	... Amoy	... New York
,, —	Medina	... Hong Kong	... London
,, —	Nyassa	... Shanghai	... London
,, —	Haze	... Hong Kong	... New York
,, —	Horatio	... Shanghai	... New York
,, 7	D' Maria Pia	... Macao	... Havana
,, 8	Ocean Bride	... Bangkok	... Falmouth
,, 9	Antipodes	... London	... Order
,, —	Elizabeth Dongall	... Shanghai	... New York
,, —	Dorige Meauria	... Manila	... London
,, —	M. W. Sass	... Hamburg	... Singapore
,, 10	Aldebaran	... Rotterdam	... Batavia
,, —	Sophia K. der Nederl.	... Amsterdam	... Singapore
,, 12	Pellatrix	... Amsterdam	... Sourabaya
,, —	Georges and Mathilde	... Singapore	... Marseilles
,, —	Huydecoper	... Rotterdam	... Singapore
,, —	Grenadier	... Yokohama	... London
,, 13	Vinqaine Victoria	... Ilo Ilo	... Cork
,, 14	Mount Vernon	... Singapore	... Liverpool
,, —	Hadone	... Bordeaux	... London
,, —	Elizabeth Nicholson	... Shanghai	... London
,, 15	Ensign	... Foochow	... Amsterdam
,, —	Esmeralda	... Hong Kong	... Falmouth
,, 17	Coldinghame	... Singapore	... London
,, 18	Neva	... Macao	... Havana

CASUALTIES.

HONG KONG.

The American ship Golden State reports experiencing heavy gales on leaving, and afterwards light winds to the Equator, which was crossed in long. 31 W. on Nov. 1st. Had light winds to 30 S., and from Nov. 15th fresh westerly winds. Passed the meridian of the Cape of Good Hope on Nov. 26th, in lat. 43 S., and experienced fresh wind till reaching the Eastern Passage. Lay fifteen days becalmed in the Gilolo Passage, during which time she spoke the following vessels:—The Dutch ship Bilderdyke, from Batavia, to California; Dutch barque Amberwitch, from Batavia, to Amoy; Dutch barque Ida, from Samarang, to Sourabaya; American barque Kate Alleine. Experienced on nearing the China coast light N.E. monsoon, which continued until arrival.

The British barque Grace Peile reports having experienced fine weather on leaving to as far as the line, and crossed in 24 W. on Oct. 1st. Passed the meridian of the Cape of Good Hope, in lat. 39 S., on Oct. 27; came by the Eastern Passage, and experienced on nearing the China Coast N.E. gales and very heavy sea. Spoke Agamemnon, from London, bound to Melbourne on Sept 5; the British ship Bakamian, and the British barque Anne Buckham, from Iquique, bound to Haverford West, 90 days out, on Sept. 16; British barque Crusader, from Tillicherry, bound to Havre, France, 106 days out, on Sept. 17; on Sept. 20 the Taitsing, from Shanghai, bound to London, 96 days out; Oct. 14, the British ship Whittington, from West Coast of Peru; British barque Stevers, from Sunderland to Singapore, 97 days, on Nov. 17; Dec. 13, British barque Brave, of Jersey, from Cardiff, bound to Japan, 104 days out; Dutch barque Theresa, from Cardiff to Chefoo, 108 days out.

SINGAPORE.

The Sarawk steamer Royalist brought to this port the chief officer and crew of the British barque Sunshine, Captain Probyn, which vessel was wrecked off the Maratabas entrancee to the Sarawak river. The Sunshine was bound from Manila to Singapore, in ballast. Captain Probyn and the third officer remained behind to endeavour to save something from the wreck.

The Dutch steamer Koning Willem III, Captain de Jong, from Batavia 19th inst., arrived here, having in tow the North German ship Etha Rickmers, which vessel had been aground, in the Straits of Sunda, on the voyage from Shanghai to New York. She will go into dock here, and be surveyed in a day or two.

SHIPPING POSTSCRIPT.

ARRIVALS NOT IN THE TABLES.—March 5 at Plymouth, from Batavia, Sourabaya Packet; 3, at Brouwershaven, from Batavia, Sumatra; Minister F.v.d. Putten, Anna.

DEPARTURES.—March 3, from Cardiff, for Shanghai, J. Wishart; 6, from Liverpool, for Colombo, &c. (via Suez Canal), Statesman (str.).

SPOKEN.—Cameilla (?) (Eng. ship), Shanghai to London, Dec. 6, 25 S., 56 E.; Constanza, Bangkok to Falmouth, Dec. 18, 32 S., 30 E.; Burdwan (Eng. ship), London to Hong Kong, Jan. 28, 3 N., 25 W.; a Dutch ship, Amsterdam to Batavia, Jan. 4, 2 N., 24 W.

CASUALTY.—The Eleanor, Norrie, which sailed from London Feb. 28, for Penang, is reported to have slipped her cable in Prince's Channel.

MISCELLANEOUS.—At Suez, Mar. 5, Erl King (str.), from London for Singapore, &c., having passed through the Canal.

LATEST TELEGRAMS.

COLLISION BETWEEN THE "ONEIDA" AND THE "BOMBAY."

(RECEIVED BY THE P. AND O. COMPANY.)

GALLE, FEB. 22.—About fifteen miles from Yokohama, bound in, the Bombay (Peninsular Oriental Company's steamship) came into collision with American corvette Oneida. Latter ship sunk soon after, with loss of about 120 men. The Bombay not much injured.—W. MACAULAY, Supt. P. and O. S. N. Company, Hong Kong.

GALLE, FEB. 22.—The American corvette Oneida, when run into by the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company's steamship Bombay, had on board 176 men, of whom 56 were saved.

The P.O. Company having telegraphed to their superintendent at Bombay for further particulars, received the following reply:—

"BOMBAY, 3rd, 4.5 P.M.—Collision between the Bombay and the Oneida occurred 24th of January, about twenty miles from Yokohama, at 7 P.M., quite dark, the Oneida being under all sail and steam, going thirteen knots; the Bombay steaming head to wind, going eight knots. The Bombay ported her helm, shutting in the Oneida's green lights; the Oneida starboarded her helm, crossing the Bombay's bows, rendering collision unavoidable. The Bombay felt the shock so little that Captain Eyre did not think the Oneida could have been much damaged, and continued his voyage on to Yokohama. The Oneida was cut down on the quarter and soon sank, with one hundred and fifteen (115) men. Two of her boats with sixty-one men (61) escaped. Do not know names of officers drowned.

"Saved: Yates, master; Suddard, surgeon; Coninghield, captain's clerk; and fifty-seven (57) sailors and marines. The Bombay not damaged."

(VIA SAN FRANCISCO AND NEW YORK.)

NEW YORK, March 2.

Full particulars have arrived at San Francisco of the loss of the United States corvette Oneida, through a collision with the Peninsular and Oriental steamer Bombay. The latter vessel never stopped after the collision, though the Oneida's guns were instantly fired. Great indignation is manifested against the captain of the Bombay. The Oneida's boat saved fifty-six of the crew. One hundred and twenty perished.

CHINA.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS, RECEIVED FEB. 28, 1870.)

HONG KONG, FEB. 8.—Grey Shirtings, 6¼ catties, 8¼ lb., $2.82½; firm. Cotton yarn, 16-24, $1.25; more business doing. Tea, quiet; total export China and Japan, 133,000,000lbs. Exchange on London, Bank bills, six months sight, 4s. 5½d.

Latest London date January 16.

SHANGHAI, FEB. 8.—Grey Shirtings, 6½ catties, 8¼ lb., 2.25 taels, quiet. Cotton: Shanghai, 11 taels. Tea, unchanged. Silk, firm, but less active; No. 3 Tsatlee, 5.50 taels. Settlements since last mail, 800 bales. Total export (China and Japan), 48,000 bales. Exchange on London, Bank bills, six months' sight, 6s. 0¼d. Freights: Tea, £2.

JAVA.

BATAVIA, FEB. 3.—Coffee nominal; Sugar, No. 14, f.16½; Rice, 1st quality, f.165 to f.170; 2nd quality, f.130 to f.140; Gummi Elastic, 100f. to f.105; Arrack, f.100; Freight to Holland, f 60; 'Change on Holland, f.102 to f.102¾; Manufacturers somewhat firmer in price. Arrivals: Friesland, Jacoba Helena. Departures: Goede Verwachberg, Isabella Johanna, Kosmopollet, Landbouw.

BATAVIA, FEB 8.—(Point de Galle, Feb. 22), Sugar, No. 14, f.15; Rice, 1st quality, f.155 to f.170; 2nd quality, f.125 to f.145; Arrack, f.90; Freight to Holland, f.60 to f.65; 'Change on Holland, f.101.75 to 102.75.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, AND DEATHS.

BIRTHS.

ANDERSON—On the 23rd Feb., at Ettrick Bank, Roxburghshire, the wife of Graham Anderson, Esq., of a daughter.

HEYDE—On the 15th Feb., at the Hotel, Beau Rivage, Ouchy, Switzerland, Mrs. P. von der Heyde, of Singapore, of a daughter.

LOUREIRO—On the 22nd Dec., 1869, at Nagasaki, Japan, the wife of Pedro Loureiro Esq., Shanghai, of a son.

PARKER—On the 24th Jan., at Hong Kong, the wife of Mr. James Parker, of the Hong Kong and China Gas Company, of a son

WALSH—On the 13th Jan., at 23, Queen's road, Hong Kong, the wife of William J. Walsh, of a daughter.

TIETZEL—On the 7th Jan., at Shanghai, Mrs. E. Tietzel, of a daughter.

SETH—On the 29th Jan., at Singapore, the wife of Mr. P. J. Seth, of a son.

COLLINS.—On 23rd Dec., at Tientsin, the wife of G. W. Collins (of Taku), of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

ELLIOTT—SMITH.—On the 22rd Feb., at St. Patrick's, Waterford, by the Rev. J. Bamforth, assisted by the Rev. W. Godfrey, B.A., Edward Elliott, Esq., Ceylon Civil Service, and eldest son of the late Dr. Elliott, to Mary Emily, only child of the late W. Burke Smith, Esq., of Calcutta.

KESWICK—DUBEUX.—On the 19th Jan., at St. John's Cathedral, by the Ven. Archdeacon Gray, M.A., assisted by the Rev. Canon Beach, M.A., the Hon. William

Digitized by Google

Keswick M L.C. of Hong Kong, and of Beech Grove, Dumfriesshire, Scotland, to Amelie Sophie, only daughter of the late Jean H. Dubeux, Esq., of Paris.

PATERSON - STARKEY.—On the 24th Feb., at Wrenbury, Cheshire, by the Rev. Arthur Starkey, rector of Bygrave, Herts, uncle of the bride, John Paterson, Esq., Amoy, China, to Alice, second daughter of Major Starkey, of Wrenbury Hall, Nantwich.

REISS—BLYTHMAN.—On the 24th Feb., at the parish church of Wath, Yorkshire, by the Rev. A. Blythman, rector of Sherrington, Oxfordshire, assisted by the Rev. R H. Baynes, vicar of St. Michael's, Coventry, and the Rev. H. Partington, vicar of the parish, the Rev. Frederick Augustus, second son of the late Leopold Reiss, Esq., of Broom House, Eccles, Manchester, to Edith Susan, third daughter of Robert Otter Blythman, Esq., of Swni on, Yorkshire.

EDWARDS—CLOW.—On the 1st March, at Trinity Church, Marylebone, by the Rev. Henry Harris, vicar of Horbling, Lincolnshire, James Lyon Edwards, Esq., of 83, Great Tower-street, and 7, the Avenue, Belsize Park, Hampstead, to Katherine Mary Clow, second daughter of Leonard Clow, Esq., of 9, Fitzroy-street, Fitzroy-square, W.

DEATHS.

HAMILTON—On the 2nd Jan., at Bangkok, W. H. Hamilton, of Buffalo, N. Y., aged 36 years.

KEATING—On the 23rd Feb., at Bayswater, Thomas Keating, Esq., of 79, St. Paul's-churchyard, in his 85th year.

TURING—On the 21st Feb., at Cambridge, Jane Stenart Turing, widow of the late John R Turing, Esq., formerly of Batavia.

TILLSON—On the 28th Feb., at his residence, Haydon Hill, Bushey, Herts, and late of Manila, Philippine Islands, Frederick Tillson, Esq., aged 48 years, deeply lamented by all his friends.

THOMPSON—On the 20th Dec., at Hankow, Frederick William Thompson, a native of Leroy, N. Y., U. S. A.

NAVAL AND MILITARY.

THE NAVY ESTIMATES.

The total of the Navy Estimates for the year 1870-71 is £9,250,530, the least that any Government has required for years past. For the year 1869 70 it was £9,996,641, and for 1868-9 it was nearly eleven millions, besides nearly three millions for the Abyssinian War. From the £9,250,530 of the present year we have to abate an estimated amount of extra receipts and repayments of £440,000 and the amount to be contributed by the Indian Government on account of the expense of the fleet on the Indian station is £70,000. These two together amount to £510,000, which, deducted from the total we have mentioned, leaves a net amount of £8,740,530. The net amount for last year was £9,530,862. Amongst the items of reduction are £5,974 in the scientific branch; 300,897 on steam machinery; and £207,652 on dock and naval yards at home and abroad. The decrease in the number of seamen is 2,000.

In those estimates which refer especially to China, Japan, and Singapore a considerable reduction has been made, but of the exact extent to which this has been effected it is difficult to judge, as many charges formerly merged into the estimates for foreign naval stations generally now appear among the specific sums to be voted for the various stations, thus showing an apparent increase where there has in reality been a reduction. This is especially the case with the estimate for the Hong Kong Naval Yard, for which a sum of £21,400 will be required as against £17,547 last year; for the victualling yard at the same station the estimate is the same as last year's, £964, but in the maintenance of the Melville hospital ship there is again an apparent increase, the figures being £3,738 against £3,679. The Shanghai Naval establishment appears in the estimates for the first time, being set down at £1,651. The expenses for "new works, buildings, machinery, and repairs" are estimated as follows:—Singapore, £100; Hong Kong, £400; Shanghai, £200, and under the same heading appears a sum of £5,150 for the permanent of hospital at Yokohama, which will leave £2,800 to complete the building. For maintaining the existing medical establishment at that station a vote of £1,130 will be required. Among the miscellaneous estimates we find grants of pensions to the following officers for services rendered in China:—£300 to Vice-Admiral Sir L. T. Jones, K.C.B.; £150 to Captain Sherard Osborn, C.B.; £150 to Captain J. M Hayes, C.B.; £150 to Captain M. S. Nolleth, and £100 each to Sir David Deas and Dr. Burn, Inspectors General of Hospitals. An estimate is likewise set down of £2,500 for "rewards for services against pirates," which is to be distributed to commanders, officers, and crews of Her Majesty's gunboats—Haughty, for services rendered on 8th May, 1865; Janus, 18th July, 1867; Bouncer and Leven, between 20th July and 16th August. 1867; Haughty and Opossum, between 28th August and 2nd September, 1868; and Bouncer, between 12th and 18th June, 1869.

The following war vessels have been offered at Lloyds:—Fortitude, bought in for £2,050; Philomel, £1,600; Mutine, £8,000; Assurance, £3,500; Hyæna, £1,250; Algiers, £12,000; Cæsar, £10,000. The Penguin, for £1,750, was the only sale.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS ASSOCIATION.

A general meeting was held on the 18th inst., and was numerously attended. The petition received from Singapore in favour of the Independence of the Judges was read, and adopted by the Association. It was ordered to be printed and circulated previous to its presentation to Parliament. Article No. 2 of the proposed new China Treaty, which allows the appointment of a Chinese Consul in any British possession, was considered, and resolutions condemnatory of it were ordered to be drawn up. The following resolutions were approved at a special meeting on the 22nd:—

1st. It is well known that officials of the Chinese Government act under a system, which, if it does not tolerate, is certainly attended with the practice of extortion and the most flagrant abuse of authority.

2nd. The Chinese system and usage unfortunately admits of such malpractices being carried out, not only against the individual, but upon his family and connections resident in China; and the threats of a Consular officer in this direction would seldom fail of effect, and make his office a source of anxiety and dread to all within the reach of his authority.

3rd. The number of Chinese in the Straits who are British Subjects is large and steadily on the increase, and it would be a manifest injustice to allow of such undue influence being exerted over them, as might be exercised in the way described.

4th. The Chinese inhabitants of the Straits Settlements are fully alive to the advantages they enjoy under the British Government, and the Association believe that they would deprecate the appointment of a Chinese Consul, on the grounds that it would materially interfere with their personal security and social comfort.

THE AMERICAN TREATY WITH CHINA.

President Grant issued a proclamation on Feb. 6, announcing the ratification of the Treaty concluded by Mr. Burlingame in July, 1868. On this subject the New York Times says:—

The President's proclamation, officially publishing the addition to the Chinese treaty, is certainly pro tanto a certificate of Mr. Burlingame's treaty-making authority—a matter which has excited so much controversy. In this document Mr. Burlingame is named as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary, and it is announced by President Grant that its articles have been "duly ratified on both parts, and the respective ratifications exchanged." It is evident, therefore, that this diplomatic action has been submitted to the Emperor of China, and has received his approval. When, however, we come to the Treaty itself, its importance hardly justifies, perhaps, the discussion to which it has given rise. Its purport has long been known, and the official copy discloses that no material new concessions are made by China. So far as privileges are accorded or explanations given, they come mainly from us. Perhaps something is gained in the very mention of China and the United States on equal terms, as modern nations, and in the very discussion of "constructing railroads, telegraphs or other material internal improvements" in China. It is to be noted, however, that the Emperor "reserves to himself the right to decide the time and manner and circumstances of introducing such improvements within his dominions," which is not what a certain class of our diplomatists desire. On the other hand, it is provided that "Chinese subjects visiting or residing in the United States shall enjoy the same privileges, immunities and exemptions in respect to travel or residence as may there be enjoyed by the citizens or subjects of the most favoured nation." With this provision, it is clear that legislation is called for to protect the Chinese on the Pacific from the annoyances to which they are subjected.

CAPTAIN SPRYE'S ROUTE TO CHINA.

At a meeting held on the 24th of February the Associated Chambers of Commerce of the United Kingdom, after a discussion, in which the representatives of the Leeds, Birmingham, Huddersfield, Dewsbury, and other Chambers took part, unanimously voted the following resolution on Captain Sprye's project for opening up trade with the West of China and intermediate Shan States of Burmah, by the direct land route from Rangoon to Kiang-Hung:—"That this association, being anxious that no opportunity should be lost of facilitating the extension of British commerce, and believing that the vast provinces of Western and Central China present an important field for commercial enterprise, memorialise the Secretary of State for India in favour of the completion of the survey of the route from Rangoon to Kiang-Hung, on the Upper Cambogia River, proposed by Captain Sprye, that route being, in the opinion of this association, the most direct and practicable, and the least likely to lead to political complications of the many which have been suggested."

The following letter appeared in the Pall Mall Gazette of March 3rd:—

Sir,—I observe that at a meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce, held a few days ago, it was resolved to address the Secretary of State for India on the subject of prosecuting the survey of Captain Sprye's route from Rangoon to Kiang-Hung. Being conversant with what has been said in India regarding the advantages to be gained by supporting Captain Sprye's suggestions, and the encouragement which has been accorded in England to that gentleman's propositions, I do think that the Associated Chambers of Commerce would be in a better position to memoralise the Secretary of State on the subject if they possessed Major Sladen's official report on the desirability of opening the "old" trade route to the western districts of China.

Major Sladen was accompanied by engineers, and no doubt the communications which were made to the Indian Government by them will in course of time be published in England, and thus give the British public an opportunity of considering the practicability of reopening the "old" route, or lending its support to the formation of a railway in accordance with Captain Sprye's ideas.

Major Sladen's report has been commented upon by Indian journals, and I cannot understand why it has not been circulated in England. The questions involved are of the greatest magnitude when calmly considered, and, as a true well-wisher of British Burmah, that richest province of our Eastern Empire, I do trust that the public of England may be afforded the fullest information on such an important subject.—I am, Sir, yours obediently,

NOMAD.

ANOTHER sharp shock of earthquake was experienced in San Francisco on the 18th ult., about noon, but no lives were lost. A general desertion of the houses followed the first indication, and almost before it was over the streets were thronged by the panic-stricken people. The midday recess in the public schools had not ended, but no serious panics occurred. The effect on the buildings was to widen the cracks produced by the shock of last year.

BREAKFAST.—EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—The very agreeable character of this preparation has rendered it a general favourite. The Civil Service Gazette remarks.—"The singular success which Mr. Epps has attained by his homœopathic preparation of cocoa has never been surpassed by any experimentalist By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills." Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in tin-lined packets labelled—JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London.

Digitized by Google

SPURIOUS TEA.

We observe with satisfaction that on Friday next Mr. Stapleton, M.P., will ask the Secretary for the Board of Trade whether his attention has been called to the importation from China of large quantities of impure tea. Public notice has been again attracted to the subject by a paragraph in The Times, which with singular propriety came under the heading of "Commission of Sewers;" and verily the sewer is the only fit receptacle for the wretched stuff, which has already been described in our columns under the title of "Maloo Mixture." The exporters of this rubbish from Shanghai have inflicted an injury on the trade which cannot easily be atoned for. The following is the report, in which it will be seen that Dr Letheby quotes verbatim the extract from a correspondent's letter which first appeared in our issue of Feb. 7:—

Dr. Letheby, the medical officer of health, presented a most important report on the sale of spurious tea in the City. He stated that, in consequence of information which he had received, he visited the bonded tea warehouses in Cooper's-row, Crutchedfriars, and at Nicholson's Wharf, Lower Thames-street, where a large quantity of the tea in question was stored, and he had obtained samples from the chests in bond. The tea was described as "fine Moning Congou," from Shanghai, and he had ascertained from analysis that it consists of the re-dried leaves of exhausted tea. The leaves, in fact, are for the most part quite rotten from putrefactive decomposition, and do not contain more than a trace of the active principle of tea. The odour of them is very offensive, and when infused in boiling water they produce a nauseous, unwholesome liquid. He had been informed that many thousands of pounds of the article had been imported to this country, and that it would be used for the adulteration of genuine tea. It was, in his opinion, quite unfit for human consumption, and the further sale of it should be prevented, if possible. The sale of it in the City was referred to in the trade report of The Times of the 16th of February, thus:—"A chop of very common spurious Shanghai-packed tea brought 5½d. per lb., and three breaks of better quality 7¾d. per lb.;" and in Messrs. Townend Brothers and Bovet's Monthly Tea Market Report it was stated that the large deficiency in the total imports of serviceable tea this season was only "brought near our requirements by about 7,000,000 lbs. of the spurious, stinking matter recently sold at public sale at 5½d., and which is likely to recede to the value of former years—say 1¾d. or 2¼d. per lb. There was no doubt of the spurious and unwholesome quality of the material, and Dr. Letheby recommended that the subject should be placed in the hands of the Solicitor, with the view of stopping the further sale of the article in the City, in accordance with the provisions of the Act of Parliament for preventing the adulteration of articles of food and drink—28 and 24 Victoria, cap. 84.

This recommendation met with the general approval of the Commissioners, and the matter was placed in the hands of the Solicitor (Mr. Under-Sheriff Baylis), to be dealt with as might appear advisable in the public interest.

The following comments on the subject are from the Produce Markets Review:—

Some few weeks ago we drew attention to the large shipments which had been forwarded to this country of an extremely low article, which was to be passed off as tea—that is, unless it were condemned by the Excise officers, as many expected it would be. Several chops of this spurious article have lately been sold in the Mincing-lane Sale-rooms, and we understand that some millions of pounds more have to arrive. A correspondent describes this rubbish as the re-dried leaves of tea that have already been used in the native tea-shops. We are glad to notice that Messrs. Lloyd, Matheson and Co. fully endorse our opinions on this subject. We say emphatically that such rubbish ought never to be sold as tea; it must certainly bring the trade into disrepute, and any retail dealer who sells it to the public runs a risk which he will do well to bear in mind.

THE SUEZ CANAL.

The Suez Canal, it is stated, has now a uniform depth of nineteen feet, and an outlay of £800,000 will make it navigable for vessels of the heaviest draught. Steamers are now leaving almost daily for the ports of India, China, and Japan, at freights of £3 to £4 per ton. The steamer Brazilian, from Bombay, has passed through the Canal on her return voyage, with one of the largest cargoes ever shipped at that port in one bottom, viz., 13,000 bales of cotton and 2,500 bales of wool. The Erl King from London to Hong Kong, with a general cargo, reached Suez through the Canal on the 5th instant; her draught on leaving here was 20 feet. The Messageries Imperiales steamer Hooghly, with the next homeward French mails, is also coming through. From Aden we hear of the arrival of the steamer Shantung, from Glasgow for Shanghai, after an excellent run of 23 days, including the passage through the Canal, which occupied 44 hours.

A conference on the prospects of the Canal was held last week at the Society of Arts, Sir Bartle Frere in the chair. Captain Sherard Osborn, Sir T. Bazley, and Sir Frederick Arrow, Deputy-Master of the Trinity House, were among those present, and the general opinion was strongly in favour of the Canal being ultimately a success. Capt. Richards, R.N., who was recently sent to survey the Canal, and Colonel Clarke, R.E., who accompanied him, have fulfilled their mission, and returned to this country; their report to the Admiralty, it was said, would be "confidential;" but Mr. Childers stated the other night in the House of Commons that it would be published as soon as it could be got ready. A letter has appeared in the Standard, signed "F.R.G.S.," containing some interesting and thoroughly practical remarks on the condition and utility of the Canal, rom which we extract the following:—

The Canal has repeatedly been designated "a highway of nations," but at present it is certainly no more than a by-path, and may be aptly compared to a single line of railway. There is no doubt that a steamship drawing eighteen or nineteen feet can pass through, but she must not only have her way clear, she must also steer as straight as an arrow, or she will inevitably get fast on the banks—a casualty which befel every vessel which I had the opportunity of observing.

Should two vessels of the draught of eighteen or nineteen feet attempt to pass each other, except at one of the wider sections of the Canal, the channel would of course be blocked up until they could be extricated, but the uncertainty attending the time of any two ships reaching one of these sidings appears to me likely to increase delay in the passage. My own estimate of the time requisite for passing through is three to four days for each ship, and I hear that the India has taken five days.

These results furnish little evidence as to the facilities for the free and expeditious passage of a number of vessels to and from the East, which alone can entitle the Canal to rank as an actual success. Unless this object can be effected by means of the block system (possessing far less certainty in the case of a canal than on a railway), it can only be done by doubling the width of deep water in the Canal, and of this I saw no signs; in fact, there seems a downright lifelessness about the whole affair at present; both money and impulse seem exhausted; while at the same time there are agencies at work which will certainly diminish the capabilities of the Canal if not actively counteracted. I cannot pretend to divine what motives may influence the Khedive or the Canal Company to move, but until they do the Canal is certainly a "limited" success.

THE DEATH OF MR. BURLINGAME.

The following, from a St. Petersburg correspondent, is, we believe, the most circumstantial account of Mr. Burlingame's death that has yet appeared:—

Mr. Burlingame, the head of the Chinese Mission to Europe, died here, after a very short illness. He caught cold during the severe weather prevailing in Russia on his arrival about a fortnight before his death; and, absorbed in the duties and cares of the great Mission into which he had thrown all the energies of his mind, he paid no attention to his slight indisposition until it had entirely mastered his vigorous nature. On Wednesday, the 16th ult., he had his solemn audience of the Emperor, who was pleased to respond in the most sympathetic language to Mr. Burlingame's able address. Buoyed up by the more than ordinary encouragement which he had received in a country whose friendly disposition was of the utmost importance to China, Mr. Burlingame thought nothing of his cold, and considered it his duty to take the members of his Mission the next day to the Hermitage, at the invitation of the Emperor, and to make his official call on Sir Andrew Buchanan, the British Ambassador, with whom he was to have dined the following day. On returning to his hotel, however, he was compelled to take to his bed, and to call in the services of Dr. Carrick, physician to the British Embassy, who at once pronounced him to be suffering from severe congestion of the left lung, aggravated by an inflammation of the liver. The most energetic remedies were at once applied to check the disease, which, however, continued to make such rapid progress that two other medical men of eminence were called in. The Emperor also sent his own physician, but all was unavailing. His sufferings became very great, and during the five days that preceded his death he was obliged to remain in a sitting posture. Yesterday—the anniversary of Washington's birthday—when he was to have dined with his Excellency Governor Curtin, the American Minister, the bulletin of his health became less favourable, for the right lung had likewise become somewhat affected. The hope, however, was not abandoned that his strong constitution would triumph over the malady that finally proved fatal to him at half past seven this morning. His bodily sufferings appeared to be much aggravated by his mental anxiety and distress respecting the completion of his mission. He spoke of it incessantly to Mrs. Burlingame and his son, and continually asked whether intelligence had been received from Mr. Brown. Two or three days before his death he spoke to his son of the probability of his being cut off, and of the pain which the thought of his mission remaining uncompleted gave him; and on Tuesday, when he must have felt his end approaching, he warmly pressed the hand of his secretary, and said, "Good bye, Deschamps."

SILKWORMS' EGGS AND COCOONS.—The importance of the trade of France in the eggs and cocoons of the silkworm is shown by the following figures:—In 1869 the total value of eggs imported for home use was 11,956,000f., received as follows: From Japan, 9,436,000f.; Egypt, 1,232,000f.; China, 560,000f. The total value of cocoons was 39,366,195f. From Turkey, 19,505,400f.; Italy, 5,851,620f.; United Kingdom, 2,286,650f.; China, 1,647,490f.; Greece, 1,242,505f. The total export of eggs of French produce was 3,378,700f.; being chiefly to Italy, 3,183,351f.; of cocoons it was 8,306,781f., as follows:—To Italy, 2,657,333f.; to Switzerland, 5,321 867f. The comparative import of eggs was for 1867, 11,325,000f.; 1868, 29,751,000f.; 1869, 11,956,000f. Of cocoons for 1867, 27,930,786f.; 1868, 43,879,668f.; 1869, 39,366,195f. The whole import and export trade may be taken in our money for 1867 at £2,069,620; 1868, at £3,331,127; 1869, at £2,520,300.

Digitized by Google

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS, CORRESPONDENTS, &c.

No notice can be taken of anonymous correspondence. Whatever is intended for insertion must be accompanied by the name and address of the writer, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith.

A REGISTER is kept of the addresses of all persons connected with the FAR EAST, and reference can be made to the same by personal application at the Office or by letter.

Any Information required by Subscribers, in reference to Commercial or general matters in CHINA, JAPAN, SINGAPORE, and other parts of the FAR EAST, will be supplied on application at the Office, where files may be seen of the Journals published in those Countries.

The "LONDON AND CHINA TELEGRAPH" is published on the arrival of the fortnightly English mail, and the monthly French mail. Subscription, 30s. per annum; with Export Supplement, £2 2s.

The "LONDON AND CHINA EXPRESS" is published on the day of departure of the mails, and contains a Summary of English, Continental, and American, News-Commercial and Shipping Reports, &c. Subscription, 54s. per annum; with Export Supplement, 66s.

JAMES WEST, PUBLISHER,
2, COWPER'S-COURT, CORNHILL, LONDON.

The London & China Telegraph.

LONDON: MONDAY, MARCH 7, 1870.

THE DEPUTATION TO LORD CLARENDON.

IT will be seen from our report in another column that the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs was astonished at the formidable dimensions and influential character of the deputation that waited upon him to explain the objections of the merchants in this country to Sir R. ALCOCK's new China Convention. Thirty-four members of Parliament, several City magnates, and a number of influential merchants and manufacturers — in all upwards of ninety —represented the general feeling entertained in the City that the Convention is, from beginning to end, a mistake, and that our commercial interests in China would be worse off under this new arrangement than if the Treaty of Tientsin had remained unaltered. The larger portion of Lord CLARENDON'S reply was embodied in a written document that had been prepared in anticipation of the interview; it is throughout weak and illogical, but that is of little consequence, as we shall presently show.

At the outset, his Lordship candidly owned that he had not been prepared for so powerful an opposition, so unqualified a condemnation of the Convention; and this was an avowal of no slight significance. He then proceeded to defend Sir R. ALCOCK from the charge of having acted on slight or insufficient information. That is a charge which, as far as we know, has never been brought against Sir RUTHERFORD. So far from having acted on "slight and insufficient information," he asked for information and invited expressions of opinion from all quarters. His overtures were freely responded to, and the source of complaint is that he has made no profitable use of the mass of facts and opinions placed at his disposal. Lord CLARENDON next undertook to defend Mr. HART from the imputation of having had anything to do with the revision "in a sense hostile to English interests." He acknowledged, however, that Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK no doubt had received "information" from Mr. HART. Passing to the general question of the commercial relations between the two countries, his Lordship observed that concessions should be mutual, and in a rather obscure passage he implied that in the past we had made no such concessions to China. The recent reduction for instance in our import duty on tea conferred no benefit on the Chinese, and from this his Lordship seemed to infer that the increased export duty on silk would inflict no injury on us. This is by no means a logical conclusion. Our trade at the Chinese ports, both import and export, is carried on with English capital, by English merchants or their agents, on the spot; therefore any increase or decrease in the duties levied at those ports directly affects English interests. On this side the conditions are reversed; there are no Treaty ports in England to which Chinese vessels bring cargoes of produce, neither have Chinese merchants any settlements here to live and trade in. Owing to this peculiar feature in the trade both the export duties levied in China and the import duties here fall on the English capitalist. The Foreign Secretary brought his preliminary remarks to a close with an assurance that the interests of the Government were identical with those of the merchants, and that he was glad to be enlightened by an exposition of their views.

The written document which Lord CLARENDON then proceeded to read to the deputation commences by pointing out that there are "two sides" to the question, and that "Her Majesty's Government hold very different opinions" to those of the merchants. Taking this declaration in conjunction with the utterances that immediately preceded it, we are given to understand, firstly, that the interests of the Government and the merchants are identical; and secondly, that each party takes a precisely opposite view of what is good for those interests. It is obvious that both these views cannot be right; and if it is the merchants who are in the wrong, we are driven to the inference that the ninety members of Parliament and merchants who composed the deputation represent a body of men inconceivably ignorant and blind to their own interests, a conclusion we decidedly decline to accept. With this not very flattering opening, the Foreign-office reply proceeds to deal with the "re-adjustment" of the silk duty. The proposed increase, we are told, is only right and proper—the duty ought to be five per cent., and has hitherto been much less. Just so; but Lord CLARENDON, like Sir R. ALCOCK, omits to explain why if a five per cent. ad valorem duty is the true basis of the tariff, tea is still to continue paying more than twice five per cent. Then we come to the transit-duty question, and here the disagreement between the views of the merchants and those of the Government is exhibited in a very strong light. The merchants have always been under the impression that the extra duty of 2½ per cent. which under Lord ELGIN'S treaty is payable on English imports sent into the interior under transit passes, was intended as a commutation of the inland taxes or Lekim and all arbitrary "squeezes." It was, we are sure, intended by Lord ELGIN that this payment should cover all inland taxation, and were the payment to be made compulsory, as proposed by the terms of the new Convention, the merchants would naturally look for compensation in an entire immunity from such squeezes for the future. But the Board of Trade, which department we suspect has had more to do with this part of the reply than the Foreign-office, has discovered an entirely new reading of this clause, according to which the payment of 2½ per cent. was never intended to stand in lieu of inland taxation at all, but only represented such extra squeezes as the Chinese authorities might be pleased to impose specially on British merchandise! In other words, the payment of transit duty only places English on the same footing as Chinese goods; neither as regards imports nor exports (Lord CLARENDON says) can it be legally contended that there is anything to prevent the Chinese from charging on English goods whatever general municipal taxes are leviable on Chinese goods, either at the port or in the interior. If this is really the legal interpretation of the Treaty, so much the worse for us; but we cannot admire the avidity with which Her Majesty's Government seize on a legal quibble for the benefit of the Chinese, and to the discomfiture of our own merchants. The error of Lord CLARENDON'S allusion to "general municipal taxes" is transparent. Of course we have no right and no desire to attempt any unwarrantable interference with the internal administration of the Empire; but it requires an extraordinary stretch of the imagination to regard the squeezes levied by local mandarins to line their own pockets as legal municipal taxes, such as the octroi or town dues of European states. In this and all other respects Lord CLARENDON persists in comparing China with France, Austria, or any European nation with whom we have commercial treaties—a fallacy which of course receives the support of the radical press, and (to our surprise) even The Times continues to argue that China has now become a member of the family of nations, and must be in all respects treated as such. Unfortunately, she does not "behave as such," neither do her rulers show any disposition to treat England as a civilised nation, according to their own idea of civilisation. On the contrary, even to this day the official classes persist in regarding us as "outer barbarians" and lose no opportunity of manifesting their contempt. This fact (and that it is a fact the treatment received by the Duke of EDINBURGH at Peking, and more recently by Sir R. ALCOCK at Nanking, is ample proof) is steadily ignored by our Government. We may here remark—for the hundredth time perhaps, but it cannot be too frequently enforced—that with the Chinese people generally we have no quarrel. It is the official classes, the "Mandarins," who foster and stimulate a hatred of foreigners. There are none so blind as those who will not see. The real facts of this transit duty question (as Mr. BOWER pointed out) that for the last ten years English merchants have been the victims of extortion; that the Chinese now offer, in consideration of a handsome bonus, to cease robbing them; but no security is given that (when the bonus is paid) their sudden conversion to honesty will endure. The merchants, on their side, are willing to pay all fair and legal taxes on their goods — but object to paying them twice over. This the Foreign-office does not seem quite able to understand. "According to the construction," says Lord CLARENDON, "which Her Majesty's Government place upon the terms of the previous treaties, no change whatever will take place in the legal liabilities of British goods in transit in the non-treaty provinces, except that they will, in all cases, be charged with the 2½ per cent. transit duty upon importation as well as with the import duty of 5 per cent." Only 2½ per cent. extra duty, without any guarantee for corresponding benefits! Altogether, the Ministerial explanation of the effects of the new Convention, so far from being in any degree satisfactory, makes the matter worse than ever.

Digitized by Google

As we have already observed, this is not of very great importance, for Lord CLARENDON supplemented his formal reply with some words that give good ground for believing that the proposed Convention will not be ratified. His honest expression of surprise at the importance of the deputation, which of course was not lessened by the fact of its including a number of members of Parliament, mostly staunch supporters of the Government; his willing promise to reconsider the matter from the new point of view now presented to him; and his assurance that there was no intention to hurry the exchange of ratifications — all these circumstances tend to allay the serious apprehensions that the terms of the written reply is calculated to excite. A good deal of stress, too, is laid on the fact that even should the objectionable document be ratified it will not be irrevocable, and need not necessarily endure even for ten years; but this is a very negative sort of recommendation. The fact appears to be that Sir R. ALCOCK, having been strictly enjoined to abstain from even hinting at any "pressure," has made but a poor treaty, and the Government is trying to make the best of a bad bargain. But, in the name of common sense, why did Sir RUTHERFORD, when he found a beneficial treaty impossible, make any at all? And why should the Government be desirous to put in force a treaty the failure of which is so far a foregone conclusion that they proclaim, as its greatest recommendation, that it can be "revised" at any moment? It is avowedly an experiment, and obviously a dangerous one; why should it be tried at the sole expense of English mercantile interests?

"THE TIMES" ON BRITISH POLICY IN CHINA.

THOSE simple-minded, unsophisticated people who still pin their faith on The Times—and they are not a few—must sometimes find their trust in their "guide, philosopher and friend" rudely shaken by the sudden changes of opinion that its columns present. The Times, of course, never had any pretence to immovable constancy, but surely some degree of consistency is needful to the dignity of a first-class journal. Of late, however, The Times has treated a good many subjects with an entire defiance of both consistency and common sense, and of this the manner in which it deals with the question of our relations with China is an example. We can all remember the time when the leading journal approved of the measures taken by an energetic Government to bring the Chinese to reason, and compel them to respect their treaty obligations; and when those engaged in administering the punishment they had brought on themselves by bad faith and treachery were patted on the back by The Times. A little later, a GLADSTONE and a BRIGHT come into power, and lo! round goes The Times, like a weathercock on a gusty March day, and now we are told that the attitude and the policy which a little while ago were praiseworthy, and fitted to the dignity of a great nation, have suddenly become unjust, oppressive, and sinful! But this is not all; yet a little later, and we find this versatile journal blowing hot and cold almost with the same breath—one day giving a leading article praising the Chinese Government for its enlightened progressive spirit, flattering Mr. BURLINGAME, upholding Lord CLARENDON'S policy, and reviling merchants, missionaries, and all who do not admit the said policy to be the perfection of human reason; the next day inserting a letter from "Our Own Correspondent" enforcing views exactly the opposite of these! The motto audi alteram partem involves a principle which should never be overlooked, and we quite recognise the fact that no respectable journal refuses a hearing to the advocates on both sides of any disputed question; but an independent correspondent and "Our Own Correspondent" are two very different persons; the latter is always supposed to inculcate views in accordance with those supported by the journal he writes for, and therefore the disagreement we have here referred to involves a most absurd inconsistency. On the first of January, however, we had some reason to believe that the wind had again changed and settled in a more favourable quarter, for in its usual lengthy review of the events of the past year The Times devoted some space to China affairs, wherein the opinions of its Shanghai correspondent were fully endorsed. But this was only a momentary vacillation; since then there have been other articles expressive of entire satisfaction with Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK'S most unsatisfactory Convention, and this week there appears a letter (this time from "A Peking Correspondent") full of misrepresentations as to the real aspect of affairs in China, and of unmerited aspersions on the China merchants and missionaries. In August last The Times published a letter from one of its China correspondents, reviling the missionaries in terms so gross as to be an outrage on common decency. The same writer—or one of the same school—has now taken up his pen to attack mercantile interests.

The letter commences by setting forth the "vast changes" that have been at work in China during the last four years. In the first place, we are told "Peace and plenty are returning to a population which has not known those blessings for half a century." This is so far true; but why has not the writer the honesty to explain the reason? The TAE-PING rebellion filled the land with bloodshed, rapine, famine; by this time it would have entirely subverted the Tartar Dynasty, but by the timely help of Great Britain it was subdued, and the hand of the Imperial Government so strengthened that subsequent minor attempts at insurrection have been suppressed, and order ultimately re-established throughout the Empire. This material aid rendered by England to China, at a time when the fate of the Empire trembled in the balance, and the base treachery and ingratitude with which it has been requited, are circumstances that our philo Chinese writers find it convenient to ignore altogether. The next great change, we are told, is seen in the fact that the enormous foreign trade of China is altogether "lapsing into the hands of the native merchant." How is this exemplified? "A Chinese guild at Shanghai has already established its own agency in London, and a Chinaman has made his appearance in Mincing-lane, who may be accepted as the forerunner of the long-tailed race in the City" (one cannot resist the passing thought that the writer must be very familiar also with a certain long-eared race), "to the utter discomfiture of foreign merchants in China." Already the cloven foot peeps forth—in his very first paragraph the writer manifests that supreme contempt for trade which is too often characteristic of the official mind, and he glories in the anticipated ruin of British trade with China. With a sneer at the "disinterested" way in which foreigners in China are proposing to regenerate the country by introducing railways and telegraphs, our Peking correspondent passes to "that harbinger of strife, the missionary element," which, he says, would, if unchecked, "soon restore China to that internal chaos from which she has been steadily emerging for the last four years." These misguided preachers, it seems, are responsible for the Taeping rebellion, the Nien-fei revolt, brigandage, famine, and all the internal troubles from which China suffered until that universal panacea, the BURLINGAME mission, was invented! But we soon go back again to the merchants:—

> The opening up of the country is their cry; "progress" is their motto; war is their object. Trade is slack at present. It is necessary to live, and, Micawber-like, they hope for something to turn up in the general disruption it would infallibly produce. Nor is it wholly impossible that an Abyssinian expenditure in China might be to their advantage, while, at the same time, it is evident they would not have to contribute to it. House-rent would go up, old steamers be chartered, and older stores find a ready market; and the Chinaman would be treated like the dog they think him to be for presuming to imagine that his own country belongs to him.

Digitized by Google

"War is their object." Do not the Chambers of Commerce, the local papers, and all writers who represent the feelings and wishes of the merchants, deprecate the China policy of our present Government on the express ground that by encouraging the Chinese in a course of arrogance and bad faith it is likely to lead to war? Granted, there is a "rowdy" element in China, which, having all to gain and nothing to lose, would welcome war there, or anywhere else; but it is a malicious and wholly unfounded aspersion on our merchants thus wilfully to confound them with this class. Happily, says our writer, these wicked desires have been frustrated by Mr. BURLINGAME'S beneficent influence, and

Our Minister, Sir Rutherford Alcock, has been enabled to conclude a Convention in which the mutual interest of the English manufacturer and the Chinese consumer have been equally considered; and the only real ground of complaint we had against the Chinese Government has been removed, viz., the irregularity with which the transit duty clauses of the Treaty of Tientsin were carried into effect.

"The only real ground of complaint!" Well, we had fancied there were a few others; but it would be some satisfaction could we feel sure that this one really "had been removed." We have however already discussed this point, and shown that all our Minister has obtained is a promise on the part of the Chinese Government to remove the grievance, without the shadow of a guarantee that the promise will be fulfilled. Indeed, the writer of this letter seems somewhat doubtful himself, for a little further on he says, "A modification in the "mode of paying transit duty has been agreed to, which it is "hoped and believed will prevent the abuses so justly com-"plained of." This is rather weak, after stating so positively in an earlier paragraph that the said abuses "had been removed." Then we come to a piece of utter nonsense:—

In this arrangement a most important "concession" is obtained from the Chinese Government—namely, that foreign goods shall continue to be protected by the Treaty, even after they have passed by sale out of the foreigner's possession. That is to say, not only are foreigners and their property "extra-territorialised" in China, but foreign cottons and woollens have rights of "extra-territorialisation," even when they have become Chinese property, and are to preserve that sacred character until they reach the hands of the petty retailer, if not the back of the consumer. As it is a principle universally admitted in our relations with China that we should never ask for a privilege or concession the full recognition of which in practice we are not prepared to enforce, the wisdom of our representative in having asked for and obtained the foregoing privilege seems questionable. Carried out ad absurdum it would clothe with "exta-territorality" the loins of a Chinese coolie, while his naked back and legs remained under native jurisdiction.

Carried out ad absurdum indeed—but it requires no great effort on the part of the writer to accomplish that! In return for these magnificent concessions, he goes on to say, "Our "representative has consented to a slight increase in the "duties on opium and silk." We should be grateful for this information, and for the further explanation added, to the effect that "the former is an import, the latter an "export."

The increase in the duty on silk will raise the rate leviable on that commodity from 2½ per cent. to 3½ per cent. ad valorem, still leaving the duty 1½ per cent. below the 5 per cent. ad valorem basis upon which the tariff was originally drawn up. Considering the rate of duties levied on their trade by England and America and other Western nations, this tariff of 5 per cent. ad valorem which they have compelled China to accept is practically Free Trade.

On this it is only necessary to remark that the average percentage of the duty on silk is here understated—the practical effect of the new tariff will be to double it. And even supposing the silk duty were still somewhat under five per cent., that now levied on the other great staple, Tea, amounts on those common sorts which form the bulk of the export to above twelve per cent.

In like manner this veracious correspondent describes the remaining provisions of the Convention. The vague promise that certain coal mines may be worked by foreign appliances, but not by foreigners, and only at the discretion of a local magnate known to be inimical to foreign innovations, is spoken of as a valuable concession, and as "evidence of a wish to move in the right direction." One more quotation, and we have done with this letter:—

As regards the political horizon in this country, it may be safely asserted that it never was clearer than at the present moment, and, thanks to the Burlingame mission, a feeling of comparative confidence has established itself in the minds of its principal leading men, who are beginning to see that they may hope for more conciliatory and rational treatment from foreign Governments than they have hitherto done in many cases from foreign representatives.

Thanks to Mr. BURLINGAME, indeed! We can have little doubt, now, under whose inspiration this precious epistle was indited. But no more need be said on that head. It is idle to argue with a writer who is capable of crediting Mr. BURLINGAME'S proceedings in Europe with any beneficial effect on the relations between China and the Western States. For any benefits accruing from his mission we look in vain—the mischief done by it becomes every day more apparent. So far from the political horizon being clearer than ever, there is evident preparation for war on the part of China, and fear of it among foreigners resident there. No one who has any real knowledge of the course of events in China believes in any real desire for progress except in the way of arsenals, dockyards, powder-mills, and gunboats. The works of this nature at Foochow and elsewhere are being rapidly pushed forward; the Taku Forts are being once more renovated and heavily armed with large guns; and on all sides we hear of nothing but increased armaments and warlike appliances. To temporise at Peking, and keep the European Courts in good humour by deceitful blandishments, while they strengthen themselves for a contest; and then, when opportunity offers, to make one supreme effort to reduce foreigners in China to their former state of bondage and subjection—that seems to us the only path of progress on which the Chinese desire to enter. And in that aim our present Government, aided by The Times and the Radical press generally, is doing its utmost to encourage them.

THE DEBATE ON THE DIPLOMATIC AND CONSULAR SERVICES.

PROVERBIAL lore reminds us that "a new broom sweeps clean." Mr. HOLMS, the new member for Hackney, is anxious to verify the axiom, and in his capacity of a new broom he proposes to make a clean sweep of our Consular and Diplomatic Services; which, after careful study, he pronounces cumbrous, extravagant, and inefficient. The result of Mr. HOLMS'S "careful study" of a subject which he is quite incapable of understanding, is a comparison between the British and the United States Consular Services, very much to the disadvantage of the former. Mr. HOLMS has already learned the great secret that the surest way to obtain the favour of the GLADSTONE Cabinet is to praise American "institutions," and decry our own. Lest we should unhappily lay ourselves open to a charge similar to that which we venture to prefer against Mr. HOLMS—that of talking about things we knew nothing about—we will confine our comments to that one branch of the service of which we may fairly claim to have some knowledge. As regards China, Japan, and the Far East generally, it would be difficult to make any alteration in the Consular system that would not be for the worse. Mr. HOLMS compares the value—or his own estimate of the value—of our trade at certain ports with the cost of maintaining our Consulates at those places; and argues that in some cases the trade is so small that it does not "pay" to keep up the establishments. This is a most transparent fallacy, and shows the speaker's entire ignorance as to the true position and functions of our Consuls in China and Japan. Mr. HOLMS would put the entire Consular service under the Board of Trade, and abolish all its duties and uses except those of looking after ships' papers, settling disputes between masters and seamen, compiling returns of trade, &c. It is evident, indeed, that Mr. HOLMS thinks these powers are all that Consuls should be allowed to exercise. A very little practical experience in China or Japan would show him how utterly futile has been his "careful study" of the subject, and would lead him to very different conclusions. Mr. HOLMS declares that the same benefits that we obtain by a most costly and intricate machinery, are secured by the United States Government by the simplest organisation at a very trifling expense. Why, any one who knows China can tell Mr. HOLMS that the United States Consular service there was for years a standing disgrace to the nation—their Consuls being either merchants, who sought the office partly for the honour of flying the "stars and stripes," and the position it gave them among the foreign community, and partly for the trading advantages it carried with it—or by mere worthless adventurers who made such a living as they could by the exorbitant fees they would screw out of all who came within their clutches; in some cases it was almost an open levying of "black mail" on American subjects. So crying was the evil, that at last the United States Government was obliged to abandon its system for our own, and appoint properly qualified and fully paid Consuls, at least at the principal ports. The practice of appointing

Digitized by Google

"trading Consuls," not only by the United States, but by a number of minor European States, has been the origin of so great a scandal—bad enough in China, but worse in Japan—that a loud outcry has been raised against it; the Austrian Government, in concluding its recent treaty, wisely refused to appoint a single trader as Consul, and obtained permission for the British officials to act for Austria until a proper Consular staff could be sent out. This is a step in the right direction, and one that we hope will be followed up until (as we have said before) the hybrid race of trading-consuls is altogether extinct. From these, or Consuls supported by fees and extortions, may the Foreign-office deliver us! Mr. HOLMS's proposal to disestablish the Consular Service has been referred to a Select Committee, consisting of himself, Mr. OTWAY (Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs), Mr. BOUVERIE, Mr. WILLIAM HENRY GLADSTONE, Mr. RYLANDS, Mr. RICHARD SHAW, Sir HENRY LYTTON BULWER, Sir CHARLES WENTWORTH DILKE, Mr. KINNAIRD, Mr. WILLIAM CARTWRIGHT, Mr. ARTHUR RUSSELL, Mr. SCLATER-BOOTH, Viscount SANDON, Mr. EASTWICK, Mr. BARING, Mr. WILLIAM LOWTHER, Mr. CAMERON, Mr. FREDERICK STANLEY, Mr. BUTLER-JOHNSTONE, Viscount BARRINGTON, and Mr. FREDERICK WALPOLE. Some of the names, notably those of Mr. HOLMS, Mr. OTWAY, and Sir CHARLES DILKE, bode no good to the service; but, on the other side, the influence of an experienced diplomatist like Sir H. BULWER will be beneficial, and we trust any attempt to interfere with the present system will be defeated.

DEATH OF MR. BURLINGAME.

SINCE the above was written we have heard with regret of the sudden death of Mr. BURLINGAME, which occurred at St. Petersburg on the 23rd ultimo. However strong our doubts as to the good faith of the Chinese in sending Mr. BURLINGAME to Europe, and as to the possibility of any good resulting from his negotiations, we are sure all our readers will join in regretting this sad termination to them. It is singular that in the same issue in which we record Mr. BURLINGAME'S untimely death, we publish a proclamation by the PRESIDENT of the United States regarding the ratification of his Treaty. The news of Mr. BURLINGAME'S death has been received with deep regret in the United States, where he was very popular. It was announced to the House of Representatives by General BANKS, who pronounced a panegyric on the deceased diplomatist. The Legislature of Massachusetts and other political corporations have voted resolutions expressing the public regret for his loss. At Boston the ships in the roadstead hung their colours half-mast high. These manifestations of general sorrow are easy to understand, for Mr. BURLINGAME'S career, up to the time when he accepted the Chinese Mission, had been one of which his countrymen might well be proud. His conduct of this Mission we must always regard as a huge mistake; but at any rate he devoted his best energies to it, and the thought of leaving the work unfinished was one that made his last hours sad and restless. We presume that Mr. MCLEARY BROWN, his Chief Secretary, who has just passed through this country on his way from Washington to St. Petersburg, will wind up the affairs of the Mission.

THE opinion gains ground that the CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER will in the next Budget propose a reduction of the duty on Sugar and Tea. On the latter it is expected that it will be reduced to 2d. or 3d., payable on the discharge in dock, and thus the present system of bonded warehouses, &c., will be avoided. It seems that the policy of the present Government is eminently one of reducing the cost of collecting the revenues, and in this we give them hearty support. The financier who puts the largest proportion of taxation into the Treasury—nett—is undoubtedly rendering the greatest possible service to the public at large.

THOSE engaged in the naval actions at Kagosima have to thank Mr. W. C. PRICE, M.P., for an effort to procure some recognition of their services. Mr. PRICE thinks these operations in Japan at least as important and as creditable to all concerned as those in Abyssinia, Umbeyla, and New Zealand, for all of which medals have been granted, and on the 8th instant he will ask the First Lord of the Admiralty whether any medal is to be issued for Japan.

MR. HART'S memorandum on China affairs, which has been published with Mr. Ross BROWNE'S comments, has been brought to the notice of the House of Commons. Colonel SYKES asked the Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs whether his department was in possession of the document, and whether it would be laid before the House. Mr. OTWAY replied that he had seen the document alluded to in a China paper, but that it had not reached the Government in the form of an official communication.

WE understand that the proposal to enlist constables in England for the Hong Kong police force is abandoned, at least for the present. The plan will we suppose receive further consideration on the arrival at home of Sir R. MACDONNELL, who is expected in England in June next. During his absence the government of the colony will be administered by General WHITFIELD.

RUSSIA is turning her remote Eastern possessions to account. The Island of Saghalien, we learn, is to be forthwith converted into a penal settlement for Polish conspirators and other political offenders, who will certainly not be able to do much harm when safely landed there. Siberia, it seems, is becoming quite populous with political exiles, and further additions to their numbers is not considered safe.

MR. ALFRED WADDINGTON—whose pamphlets in support of the scheme for an interoceanic railway across British North America have been noticed in these columns—has arrived at Ottawa from London, on a mission to urge the Canadian Government to aid in the construction of such a line.

WE are glad to hear that Captain KINDER, who was Master of the Hong Kong Mint during its brief span of existence, proceeds by the next mail to Japan, to take charge of the new Government Mint at Osaka.

OWING to the unusual pressure on our space, the continuation of "Opium versus Christianity," and much other interesting matter, must stand over until our next issue.

CONSUL MARKHAM'S VISIT TO SHANTUNG.

At the meeting of the Royal Geographical Society on the 1st instant, Mr. R. B. Shaw, lately arrived in England after an adventurous journey in ci-devant Chinese Tartary, read a long and interesting paper, entitled "A Visit to Yarkand and Kashgar." Mr. Shaw, as the President reminded the meeting, was the first European since the days of Marco Polo who had penetrated to Yarkand, and been allowed to return from that wonderful country. The second paper was, "On a Journey through Shantung and Visit to the Tomb of Confucius," by Mr. J. Markham, Consul at Chefoo. The paper contained a most interesting account of the author's reception at Kio-foo, the city of Confucius, and his examination of the monuments and temples connected with the famous Chinese sage. The great majority of the inhabitants of the city are descendants of Confucius and bear his surname, and the magistrate's office is hereditary in the family. The chief representative bears a title equivalent to our "Duke;" he received Mr. Markham with the utmost kindness, and facilitated in a way he did not expect his visits to the temple and the tombs. The result of the author's experience, acquired in journies throughout the length and breadth of this important province, was that the middle and lower classes of China were, as a rule, inclined to be friendly to strangers, and that all acts of offence are instigated by the governing class of mandarins.

Literature.

THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH'S VISIT TO HONG KONG.*

It was fitting that the visit of Queen Victoria's son to Hong Kong should be chronicled in a more permanent form than that afforded by the local journals, and the want of a memorial of this interesting event has been well supplied by Mr. Beach in the volume before us. Of course it could only take the form of a simple record of the incidents that occurred during the brief stay of his Royal Highness in the colony, and afforded the author—or, as with becoming modesty he styles himself, the compiler—but

* Visit of H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh to Hong Kong in 1869. Compiled by the Rev. W. R. Beach, Colonial Chaplain. Hong Kong Noronha and Sons. London: Smith, Elder, and Co.

Digitized by Google

little scope for originality. His task however has been well performed, and the result is a pleasant narrative, which derives additional value from a sort of semi-official authority that attaches to it, the work having been produced at the request and with the aid of his Excellency the Governor. Another fact that is, or ought to be, a strong inducement to persons interested in China to buy the volume, is that the profits are intended to go towards the building fund for the new choir of St. John's Cathedral, of which the Duke himself laid the foundation-stone on the last day of his visit. The chief events having already been chronicled in the columns of the London and China Telegraph, we need not go over the ground again; but the photographs with which Mr. Beach's book is illustrated deserve a word of commendation. The portrait of the Prince, taken in Hong Kong, is we are assured an excellent likeness, though not a remarkably good specimen of photographic art. The others, comprising a panoramic view of Government House and the harbour, Queen's-road and a Chinese street prepared for illumination, the Praya, the City Hall, the Race-course and Happy Valley, are all excellent. The volume is stitched in a cover of blue paper, that gives it externally a rather poverty-stricken appearance, but it is well worth binding handsomely. In the copy before us the photographs are not so nicely mounted as they would be in a work published at home, but that can hardly be expected. We understand it is intended to have a few copies handsomely bound for presentation to the Queen and members of the Royal Family.

The Colonial-office List, and The Foreign-office List, for 1870. Harrison, 59, Pall Mall.—These two useful handbooks have appeared in their usual form, but in each case with some amplifications and improvements. Among other useful addenda to the usual matter, the Colonial office List contains a list of all Parliamentary papers in colonial affairs issued since 1864; the regulations as to pensions, cadetships, &c., for the Straits, Hong Kong, and Ceylon. The information regarding the present condition and government of all our Eastern Colonies is very full and accurate, and brought down to the latest possible date. The Foreign-office List presents the usual compact mass of information, and we have found it of great use in preparing our annual list of Consular officials at ports in China and Japan, which will appear in the next issue. We find one blot in that especially useful section, the "Statement of Services"—Mr. Hart, the present Inspector-General of Chinese Customs, is described as a "Deputy-Inspector at Canton." There is a long list of promotions and transfers in the China Department, and the obituary records two deaths—those of Consul Fletcher and Mr. Gibson.

Our Ocean Highways. — Under this title Mr. Stanford, of Charing Cross, has issued a useful hand-book of information for travellers, containing particulars regarding travelling, postal and telegraphic communication with all the chief ports, cities, and towns in the world—home, foreign and colonial. In so large and varied an accumulation of matter, it would be strange if there were no mistakes, and we find several in relation to ports in the Far East, but none of a very serious nature. The book is not very appropriately named—on opening it we find on the first page "Abbotsford"—and the question naturally suggests itself, what has the inland town famous as the residence of our great novelist to do with "Ocean Highways?" The same confused mixing up of little English towns with foreign ports is carried throughout, and is a defect arising from the alphabetic method of classification. This, however, might easily be altered, and other improvements made in the next yearly issue.

The Modern Buddhist; being the Views of a Siamese Minister of State on his own and other Religions. Translated, with Remarks, by Henry Alabaster. In this little book (published by Messrs. Trübner and Co., Paternoster-row) Mr. Alabaster, who holds the post of Interpreter in Her Majesty's Consulate-General in Siam, presents an instructive and thoroughly practical discourse on Buddhism as it exists in the present day, with many interesting reflections, not only on the points of difference as regards faith between Buddhism and other religions, but also on comparative morality and the varying social conditions arising out of different systems of theology. It will be found interesting by others besides students of Buddhism.

Wasps of the Ocean – Marlborough and Co., Ave Maria-lane—is a most charming little illustrated book of travel and adventures in China, Siam, &c., admirably suited for young readers. Anecdotes and Stories in French, by the same publishers, is also a very useful and instructive exercise for those who are acquiring or have a taste for the French language.

The Colonial Directory of the Straits Settlements, for 1870, is a comprehensive hand-book of information and statistics, which includes not only Singapore and Penang, but Labuan, Sarawak, and Saigon. It is carefully compiled, and published at the "Mission" Press, Singapore.

The Food Journal, March, 1870.—This publication shows in its second number a decided improvement, and promises to enlarge its sphere of usefulness. It contains, among much other interesting matter, an article on "The Economic Uses of Brick Tea," some notes on coffee adulteration (tea ought to come next), and, under the head of "Curiosities of Cookery, a copy of the bill of fare at a "regular mandarin supper" given by Sir R. MacDonnell, in 1867, to some French gentlemen visiting Hong Kong.

Journal of the Royal Asiatic Society, Vol. IV., Part 2.—This volume of the Society's journal is rich in papers of the kind that form the usual staple of its contents. There are contributions from Mr. Childers, late of the Ceylon Civil Service, Colonel Yule, C.B., Captain Sladen, Mr. Baillie, Professor Dowson, and others.

MEMORIAL OF HOUSE OWNERS AT HONG KONG.

The following is a copy of the memorial addressed to Earl GRANVILLE by owners of property in Hong Kong now residing in England. We understand that the Straits Association are also addressing his Lordship on the subject, in conformity with the resolutions, which will found in another column :—

That your Memorialists are owners of house property in the colony of Hong Kong, chiefly in the occupation of Chinese, of the annual rental of about £64,000, and are otherwise interested in its trade.

That such trade, and the value of this property, are to a great extent dependent on the residence in the settlement of the very large Chinese population which has been attracted to it by its being a free port, and a place in which, although heavily burdened by legal taxation, they have always hitherto been protected from irregular exactions.

Your Memorialists have lately learned with much apprehension that in article two of "the Supplementary Convention to the Treaty of Tientsin" it is agreed "that China may appoint Consuls to reside at all ports in the British Dominions," and although it may seem invidious and even illiberal to take exception to a provision which in the face of it may seem calculated to draw closer the bands of amity between Great Britain and China, yet warned by the experience they have gained by many years' residence in China, and an intimate knowledge of its Government and people, they cannot but consider this provision, if acted on in Hong Kong, as menacing the independence of the Colony so far as its Chinese population is concerned, and highly injurious, therefore, to its interests and to those of your Memorialists.

It must be borne in mind that the cession of the Island was to the Chinese Government perhaps the most unwelcome of all the conditions of the Treaty of Nanking, and as the chief seat of, and to them, the very embodiment of British Power in China, it has ever since been regarded by them with extreme jealousy. Hence efforts have from time to time been made to obstruct its trade, which have for the most part been frustrated by the vigilance of Her Majesty's Government. Your Memorialists consider this as another blow covertly, and dexterously, aimed at its prosperity and independence.

Your Memorialists by no means desire to speak with needless disrespect of the Chinese Government, but as its character is so essential an element in the consideration of the question, they can hardly avoid seemingly to do so. Under whatever name a Chinese official be established in Hong Kong, and however limited and innocent may appear to be his functions, he will by the natives be regarded as, and will assuredly assume to be, their ruler. He will be at once a tyrant and a spy, and will levy exactions* on them, which they will neither dare to resist nor complain of, because, although they may know the British authorities would, on appeal, afford them protection, their wives and families being resident on the main land are there in the grasp of the Chinese Government, and on them vicarious punishment would, according to its usage, be certainly inflicted.

That such evils would occur is nearly certain, and the efforts to repress them would assuredly not tend to promote friendly feelings between the British and Chinese Governments.

In illustration of these views, the case of the neighbouring Portuguese settlement of Macao may be adduced, wherein formerly Chinese officials were permitted to reside.

While these officers remained there, not only business affairs, but the smallest and commonest transactions in life were subject to their interference, so that even a house could not be built without their leave being obtained, and of course purchased.

In the year 1841, when all British subjects were driven out of Canton, they took refuge in Macao, but such a pressure was brought upon the settlement by the Chinese officers, by withdrawal of domestic servants, the stoppage of provisions, and threats of personal violence, that the Governor was compelled, most unwillingly, to intimate to the British residents that he could not continue to afford them protection, and they were obliged to leave the place, and to live on shipboard. Perpetual struggles and contentions between the Portuguese and Chinese, arising from the division of authority, still went on, and the assassination of Governor Amaral was one of the terrible consequences. This intolerable condition of affairs was only put an end to when the Portuguese Government, availing themselves of the opportunity afforded by the war between Great Britain and China, insisted on all Chinese officers leaving the settlement, which has ever since been peaceful, independent and prosperous. It can hardly be supposed that any Chinese officer would in Hong Kong dare to proceed to any such extreme lengths as are herein alluded to, but in the event of any threatened disturbance of the friendly relation now existing between the two countries, his presence might be a source of danger, while in any case as the corrupt exercise of power, and the habit of submission to it are ingrained in the Chinese nature, your Memorialists feel sure that the evils they have adverted to would more or less arise, and the apprehension of them would probably induce many of the most respectable Chinese to leave the Colony. Had sufficient time elapsed since the publication of the text of the New Convention in China for the residents in Hong Kong fully to comprehend its application to that place, it is almost certain that remonstrances against this provision would ere this have been made.

Your Memorialists have reason for believing that the views they take on the subject under discussion agree with those expressed in correspondence by the Governor of Hong Kong; if so, records of

*It is well known that offices of the highest importance in China are commonly either purchased or farmed, while those who hold such as are of less value are only nominally paid by the Government but are left to pay themselves as best they can.

Digitized by Google

them will no doubt be found in the Colonial-office; and in Sir Rutherford Alcock's letter to the Earl of Clarendon enclosing copy of the Convention, and commenting thereon, it is stated that his Lordship's despatch, No. 141, of the 4th August, "indicates a doubt as to the expediency of allowing a Chinese Consul to be appointed at Hong Kong." This wise doubt has been disregarded, and the reasons alleged are that it is better to permit that which is inexpedient, lest the Chinese should do what is manifestly contrary to the laws of nations, to which, however, unobservant of themselves they are to be allowed to appeal.

For these reasons your Memorialists respectfully request that the Supplementary Convention of the Treaty of Tientsin as respects Article 2 may not be ratified by Her Majesty.

SIGNATURES TO THE MEMORIAL.

JAMES WHITE, M P.
W H LUCE
G. OVERBECK
HARVEY BRAND.
GEO. and R. DEWHURST.
Estate of DOUGLAS LAPRAIK—JNO. G LAPRAIK.
Estates of WM A BOWRA and C. W. BOWRA—JNO. G. LAPRAIK.
R J. GILMAN.
N CRAWFORD, for Self and as Trustee for late T. A LANE.
LUDWIG WIESE.
R J. ASHTON.
W T. BRIDGES.
For G ANDERSON—A. RODGER
ALEXR RODGER.
JOHN FITZPATRICK.
WM. H VACHER.
J. C. BALDWIN.
H. H. KENNEDY.
LUDWIG WIESE, for the Widow of A. W. GROSVENOR.
C. T. WILLSON.
E R. MICHELL
Estate of W H. ROPER—W THOMPSON.
A. SCOTT.
M PESTONJEE SETNA.
G. T. SIEMSSEN, per LUDWIG WIESE.
JULIUS SAUER, per L. WIESE
W. WALKINSHAW.
G. H. HEATON.
R. D. SASSOON.

Monetary and Commercial.

At the meeting of the tea-brokers on the 21st ult. the proposition noticed in our last was negatived, and the matter now stands without settlement. At the next meeting (on 14th inst.) a motion is to be made by Mr. Sillar "To assimilate the 'trade customs' of selling tea to those of silk, viz., to sell for cash, with three months to complete the contract, no deduction being made from the purchase-money; to insist on the Queen's weights being taken by both buyer and seller, and to enforce the payment of the buying brokerage upon completion of the contract." This custom prevails also with rice, indigo, and saltpetre. Had the brokers made a firm stand in the first instance they would have certainly overcome the few dealers who wished to break down their old system. Now they are utterly disorganised, and once having attempted new customs, dissensions have arisen among themselves, and any settlement seems hopeless. They must now make the commission a matter of agreement in each bargain. Certainly the importer cannot pay more than 1 per cent.

It is to be regretted that Mr. H. H. Severs has had his discharge without opposition, for it would have been serviceable to know who is to blame, and by what process debts to the extent of a quarter of a million could be contracted by a firm of such insignificant proportions. Mr. Severs returned from China insolvent and opened business in London some three years since, ingratiated himself with the Manchester houses and the banks, and kept up a fire of bills until renewals would no longer go down. It is simply intolerable that Banks should give facilities for such trading. How is it possible for firms having capital and responsibility at stake to compete with such mushroom firms, and how can the reputation of firms in the China trade be maintained while the Banks are open to persons who should be bowed out of their doors?

The increasing importance of Malta since the opening of the Suez Canal has induced the formation of a company for erecting docks with hydraulic lifts, on the system of Mr. Edwin Clark, C.E. We understand that the Government of Malta not only take a number of shares, but have granted the valuable concession for ninety-nine years of a site for the purpose, together with about 5,000 square yards of land, 40,000 square yards of water area, and a portion of the wharves adjoining. The Government vote also a subsidy of £5,000 on condition that the works are completed within a reasonable time. It is estimated that if only one vessel in twenty of those already frequenting the harbour avail themselves of the new lift, the profits of the company upon the operations of lifting and repairing (taking the data supplied by the Victoria Graving Dock Company) may fairly be reckoned at not less than 25 per cent. on the proposed capital. A large profit is also expected from the business of examining and cleaning the bottoms of coasting steamers.

At the meeting at Liverpool of the West India and Pacific Steamship Company (Limited), a dividend was declared of 14s. per share, free of income-tax, making, with the interim dividend paid in August, 24s. per share, or at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum. The amount left to be carried forward is £6,867.

Some specimens of Sea Island cotton, grown at Manley-hall, Manchester, by Mr. Sam Mendel, were exhibited at the meeting of the directors of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce on the 17th inst. They consisted of a piece of the cotton in the raw state, and some manufactured into yarn and into grey and bleached cloth.

We understand that subscriptions to the Colombo Gas and Water Company have come in slowly, owing to their being subscribed by bona fide investors free of Stock Exchange influences. We may note that the shares of the Hong Kong Gas Company have advanced to a premium of £2 per share.

The stoppage is announced of Messrs. Pauw, Schneider, and Co., commission merchants, of Manchester, engaged in the China trade in connection with Mr. Siegfried. At the first meeting of creditors a committee was appointed to examine the accounts, &c.

The P. M. steamer America, which left San Francisco on the 1st Feb., took $560,000 in silver and Mexican Dollars.

The Salvage Association Staff have returned from the wreck of the P. and O. steamer Carnatic, the vessel having heeled off the reef. About £8,000 worth of treasure, &c., remained in her.

The tenders for £387,500 in bills on India were received at the Bank of England, when the amounts ailoted were—to Calcutta, £352,700, and to Madras £34,800. The minimum price was fixed, as before, at 1s. 11d., and tenders at 1s. 11¼d. will receive about 63 per cent. These results show a further diminution in the demand for means of remittance to the East.

At the meeting of the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company (Limited and Reduced) a dividend of 7½ per cent. was declared, making, with the interim payment of 2½ per cent., a total distribution of 10 per cent. for the year.

We understand that the intended issue of additional capital for the Shanghai Extension of the China Submarine Telegraph Company is deferred, the directors having decided to take no steps in the matter until the construction of the line from Singapore to Hong Hong is further advanced.

A prospectus has been issued of the National Telegraph Manufacturing Company (Limited), with a capital of £400,000, of which half is to be first issued in shares of £25 each, to purchase the telegraphic business and works of Messrs. R. S. Newall and Co., of London and Gateshead-on-Tyne.

The amount of bullion by the P. and O. Company's steamer Pera, from Southampton on the 5th instant, was, in gold, to Bombay, £500; to Madras, £1,365; in silver, to Hong Kong, £850; to Shanghai, £108,220; total in gold, £1,865; in silver, £109,070.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

Large arrivals have taken place, and with continued relatively small deliveries stocks have increased, sales being restricted to parcels for immediate use, owing to the uncertainty as to the coming Budget. Prices have a downward tendency, although no decided reduction can be quoted.

Public sales of China, comprising 12,922 packages, were held on the 1st and 2nd inst. of which 10,300 packages sold, all being without reserve. The sales went off without spirit, but as a rule without change on last sales' prices. Common to fair red-leaf Congou realised 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 1½d.. Some parcels of fair black-leaf Congou sold at 1s. 1½d to 1s. 1¾d. per lb., and two of fine Moning at 1s. 10½d. to 1s. 11d. per lb. A small invoice of Japan mixed green teas brought full rates. A break of green tea dust sold at 3d. per lb. Two breaks of common Canton Scented Orange Pekoe brought 8½d. to 10½d. per lb.

SILK.

Market very active, large business doing all the past week; prices of China and Japan are fully 6d. higher; we quote best chops 3 Tsatlee, 32s.; Red Peacock, 27s to 27s. 6d.; Japan Mybash, 30s. to 36s.; Canton Tsatlee, 21s. 6d. to 23s.

The following is from Messrs. Jacomb, Hogg, and Co.'s Monthly Circular, dated 1st inst.:—The past month opened with a comparatively quiet market for Asiatic Silk, but business was soon resumed on a fair scale, though of course, owing to the scarcity of silk, transactions have not been so extensive as during the months of December and January. In China Silk there has been a current demand for all descriptions at stiffening prices, and our quotations of to-day show an average advance of about 6d. per lb., though in medium and low Tsatlees the improvement has been greater. Chop Silk is now nearly exhausted, and one parcel of Koo-fong-Sing's Chun Tze has been sold as high as 32s. Japan Silk seems to be again out of favour, and consequently the business of the past month has been on a limited scale, though within the last few days there are symptoms of an improved demand; and looking at the moderate quotations for this class of silk as compared with China, it is only reasonable to expect that the attention of consumers must ere long be again directed to its use. The deliveries are 3,643 bales China, and 626 bales Japan.

According to Messrs. Arles, Dufour, and Co., a gradual increase of confidence has been observable in the Lyons silk market since the favourable turn in the home politics of France, and some important contracts for deliveries as late even as June and July have afforded evidence of the faith of buyers in the maintenance of prices, more particularly with regard to all classes of good silks, of which the stocks are insufficient to meet the wants of consumption. At the same time a fair current business has been done in Asiatic silks, especially in China sorts.

Digitized by Google

COFFEE.

The supplies of Plantation Ceylon at the public sales have been limited, but the small quantities offered have been readily taken, the ordinary and medium qualities at about our last quoted rates, and the good and fine sorts at higher prices. Native Ceylon is in fair inquiry. The quantity afloat, both Plantation and Native, is less than last year; the landings of Ceylon show an increase, and the deliveries a decrease on last year's figures, while the stock is considerably in excess. For the East India descriptions of Coffee other than Ceylon the sales have been confined to 185 bags pale greenish Manila at auction at 58s. and 180 bags Bonthyne Singapore at 60s. per cwt.

The quantity of Ceylon Coffee afloat for Great Britain is estimated as follows:—Plantation, 192,579 cwt., against 207,983 cwt. at the corresponding date of 1869; Native, 19,552 cwt., against 57,686 cwt. The quantity afloat for the Continent is nil, in both years. The quantity of Coffee landed in the seven weeks ended Feb. 19, 1870, was of Ceylon, 2,730 tons, against 2,176 tons during the corresponding period of 1869; of all descriptions, 3,334 tons, against 4,707 tons. The quantity entered for home consumption was, of Ceylon, 1,286 tons, against 1,448 tons; of all descriptions, 2,271 tons, against 2,464 tons. The quantity exported was, of Ceylon, 2,768 tons, against 2,117 tons; of all descriptions, 4,973 tons, against 4,641 tons. The stock on Feb. 19, was, of Ceylon, 12,875 tons, against 9,306 tons; of all descriptions, 20,365 tons, against 16,822 tons.

The Rio market at the date of the last advices was quiet, but owing to the anticipations which were entertained of a short crop great firmness was manifested.

SUGAR.

Supplies having been kept back by the prevalence of contrary winds, and the trade having shown a slightly increased disposition to purchase, the business has been to a larger extent than of late, but prices are lower. The sales of East India, on the spot, have been confined exclusively to Manila, of which 20,000 bags common to middling clayed, duty 8s., have been sold at 28s. 6d. to 29s. 6d., 3,500 bags superior clayed (chiefly 9s. 7d. duty) at 31s., and 5,000 bags unclayed Taal at 25s. The floating cargo, per Peerless, 3,780 baskets, No. 13 Java, has been sold at 29s., for delivery at Bristol.

The quantity of Sugar landed in the seven weeks ended Feb. 19, 1870, was, of Penang, 269 tons, against 782 tons in the corresponding period of 1869; of Manila, Java, and China, 3,469 tons, against 5,947 tons; the quantity entered for home consumption was, of Penang, 582 tons, against 255 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 4,694 tons, against 1,223 tons. The quantity exported was, of Penang, 24 tons, against 13 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 175 tons, against 12 tons. The stock on Feb. 12 was, of Penang, 1,993 tons against 843 tons; of Manila, Java, and China, 34,390 tons, against 35,556 tons.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—The offers of Ceylon since our last report have been 128 casks, of which 89 casks mostly good sold at £42, two lots at £41 15s. and £42 5s., the remainder being bought in at £42. The quantity of Ceylon afloat for Great Britain is estimated at 48 856 cwt., against 50,732 cwt. at the corresponding date last year, and 35,555 cwt. in 1868.

COIR GOODS.—The current rates are—Yarn, Ceylon, very fine and superior, £54 to £61; fine, £44 to £48; good, £35 to £36 10s.; low common to middling, £23 to £26. Fibre: Ceylon, good, £25 to £27 5s., medium, £20 10s., common £15.

CAMPHOR.—The market is quiet on the spot at 82s. 6d. to 87s. for China, with sellers of Japan at 92s. 6d. per cwt. Shipments continue to be made from China, with a stock of 5,569 packages, against 3,402 in 1869, 1,634 in 1868, and 2,009 in 1867; we can hardly yet look for improvement in price. Delivered in January last, 147 packages, against 1,937 packages in January 1869, and 171 packages in January 1868.

CUTCH.—The demand is without improvement, and prices are nominal at 26s. to 26s. 6d. for fine quality. At auction 980 boxes good Pegue were bought in at 27s. per cwt. The quantity afloat from Calcutta and Singapore to London and Liverpool is 544 tons, against 204 tons same time last year; from Rangoon, &c., 329 tons, against 661 tons.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed very dull at 8s. 9d. to 8s. 10d.; limited sales. Cassia: Very flat, small sales at 5s. 1d. Nutmegs: 51 cases white in sale retired, but sellers afloat cheaper.

GAMBIER.—The market is quieter again, after large sales on the spot and afloat, at 17s. 3d. to 17s. 9d. for lamp. 394 bales block sold at 17s. 3d. Cubes quiet; of 346 packages offered a few fine sold at 20s. 6d. to 20s. 9d.; common dull at 18s. to 19s.

GUMS.—Benjamin: Siam steady; Sumatra, 2nds firm; 37 cases half sold, fair white almond at £10 to £10 2s. 6d.; rather brownish, £8 10s. to £8 17s. 6d.; Palembang very dull. Copal still in demand, but large arrivals. Damar very dull, and lower; 73 packages retired. Gamboge steady; 19 cases clean pipe sold at £15 to £15 5s.

GALLS.—The market for China is firm, there being a good demand for export; 697 boxes were mostly placed at auction at 49s. to 49s. 6d. for good clean bold, with very little small; preferable 50s. per cwt.; 400 cases, part of a recent arrival, have been placed privately at 49s. 6d. Japan very steady, 261 cases retired from auction at 50s.

HIDES AND SKINS.—Messrs. Dyster, Nalder and Co.'s Monthly Report is as follows:—The sales East India Hides during the past month have been limited, owing to small stocks, and comprise 250,382 hides in the hair and tanned. The general demand has been good although exporters continue to be the most eager buyers, and in addition to their purchases at public sale have taken several parcels in original bales. Prices have been well sustained, and on the better qualites, which have been very scarce, a fractional advance has frequently been paid. Of Ceylon, 1,372 hides have been sold: Light and Heavy, 6¾d.; Extra Heavy, 5½d. to 6½d.; Thirds, 5d.; Fourths, 4½d.; Buffalo 5d. per lb. Singapore, Penang, &c., Ox and Cow: 13,306 hides have been sold at previous rates to ¼d. per lb. advance; Dry, Light and Small, 8½d. to 9½d.; Heavy, 8d. to 8½d.; Extra Heavy, 7⅞d. to 8⅛d.; Thirds, 7d. to 7½d.; Brined, Best Light and Best Small, 11⅞d.; Second Light, 4½d.; Best Heavy, 9¼d.; Second Heavy, 8½d; Extra Heavy, 8d.; Thirds and Fourths, 7½d. per lb. Buffalo: The demand is limited, and the bulk of those brought forward, being of indifferent quality, the sales are restricted to 2,066 hides, at about previous rates, viz., Prime Slaughtered av. 45½ lbs. at 7½d. per lb.; Fair to Good, Best Heavy, 5⅞d. to 6½d.; Seconds, 5½d.; Light, 6½d. to 6⅞d.; Thirds, 4d. to 5d.; Inferior, Best Heavy, 5d.; Seconds, 4⅛d. per lb.

ISINGLASS.—Both Penang and Manila have realised higher prices; 30 cases sold, pipe realising 3s. 4d. to 3s. 6d. per lb. for ordinary to fair; leaf, 3s. 5d. to 3s. 9d.; middling cake, 2s. 1d.

INDIA-RUBBER.—The demand continues good; sales reported of Singapore at 1s. 10d.; Borneo at 1s. 3d.; Assam at 1s. 1d. to 1s. 4d.

INDIGO.—The sales have been held, but have comprised no parcels of Manila.

JAPAN WAX.—Very quiet, and with a declining tendency. 839 boxes have been offered and partially sold at 70s. per cwt. for middling; extremely fine will not command 75s.

MUSK.—The recent improvement has continued; 20 caddies Pod sold fine flat thin at 32s. to 34s., mixed and bally at 20s. to 21s.; 3 tins Grain sold at 48s. 6d. to 50s. 6d. for middling to fine.

MOTHER-O'-PEARL SHELLS.—The market is firm, and the following parcels have been offered at auction:—Macassar: 62 cases sold at £12 10s. per cwt. for generally good mixed size shells. Manila: 74 cases from Singapore retired at £9 10s.

PLUMBAGO.—Ceylon has sold more readily, and at better prices, especially for any good qualities, 1,400 barrels in auction being mostly disposed of; fine and superior silvery lump, 23s. to 29s.; rather mixed, 18s. to 22s.; inferior dull, 14s. to 17s.; dust, fine clean, 11s. to 11s. 6d.; common and middling, 6s. 6d. to 8s. There is a good demand for export.

PEPPER.—Black: After the issue of our last, Black Pepper continued in strong demand, and a fair business was done both on the spot and for arrival; Acheen at 4½d., and West Coast at 4⅝d. per lb. Auctions have embraced 4,087 bags Penang, three-fourth of which were placed at 4⅝d. to 4¾d. for fair Acheen, and 4¼d. to 4⅝d. West Coast; and 470 bags Singapore retired above the value. White: A speculative demand having sprung up, business to the extent of between 2,000 and 3,000 bags has been transacted privately, commencing at 6¼d. and rising to 6⅝d., and even 7d. paid for small quantities; but the demand has since flagged, and prices at the close are lower. 913 bags Singapore and 58 bags Penang have been brought to auction, one-third of the former sold at 6¾d., with one lot at 6⅞d. per lb. for good quality; and the whole of the latter at 6¾d. for fair.

PRESERVED GINGER.—Dull of sale; 155 cases retired at 7½d. to 8½d. per lb. for rather dark to fine pale, Chylong brand; 20 casks at 6½d.; 81 cases low Chow Chow at 6½d.

RHUBARB.—The sales of China have comprised 343 cases, for which there was an active demand; 21 cases, new arrival overland, per Poonah, well trimmed bright pinky fracture sold with spirit at 4s. 9d. to 6s. 6d., being much dearer; previously 72 cases, per same steamer, good coat, fair even pinky fracture, sold at 3s. 11d. to 4s. 7d., being barely valuation; other parcels sold steadily at 1s. 2d. to 1s. 7d. for rough, part pinky fracture, but wormy, and 8d. and 10d. for very ordinary dark and rough.

RATTANS.—In fair demand, and auctions have embraced 5,554 bundles Penang, and 3,278 bundles Singapore, the former of which sold at 2s. 3d. to 4s. 3d. per 100 canes, and the latter at 3s. 7d. to 5s. 3d.

ROOTS.—Colombo: Quiet at 35s. to 37s. per cwt. for good fair sound root, bright but rather small. China: Without transactions; several parcels are now afloat, and prices will doubtless decline; nominal value, 45s. per cwt.

SPICES.—Mace is more plentiful, and prices have receded 1d. to 2d. per lb. for common quality; 22 cases Penang partly sold, fair to good fair 3s. to 3s. 4d.; 37 packages Java, partly sold at 2s. 3d. to 2s. 7d. for ordinary to common red. Nutmegs: 21 cases Penang partly sold, 85 to 84 to the lb. at 2s. 4d.; 12 cases Padang, 92 to the lb. sold at 2s. 2d.; 34 packages Singapore, partly defective, sold at 1s. 6d. to 1s. 8d. for 130 to 118, and 1s. 9d. for 100 to the lb.; sound in boxes, 118 to the lb. 1s. 9d., 83 2s. 4d. per lb. Cloves: The recent demand has subsided, and 491 bales in auction were bought in at 3¼d. to 3⅝d. per lb.

SAGO.—Shortly after the date of our last, a strong speculative demand sprung up, resulting in sales to the extent of 2,000 to 3,000 boxes fair small grain at 18s. 3d. to 18s. 6d., and good at 18s. 9d.; with 1,000 bags at 17s. 6d. to 17s. 9d. At auction, 913 bags middling to good small realised 17s. 6d. to 18s., but at the more recent sales, when 1,332 boxes and 520 bags were offered, only 340 boxes sound sold at 19s. for good white grain, the bags being held for 18s. to 18s. 6d. Large and medium Sago is very scarce, and 184 bags, per Empress of India, were strongly competed for, and brought 22s. to 22s. 6d. per cwt. for very good and fine medium grain TP in diamond LS under, and privately at 23s.; 58 bags very brown large sold at 18s. 6d. to 19s. Flour: With only 293 tons afloat to London against 1,236 tons last year, and with a marked falling off in the quantity afloat to Liverpool (381 tons against 2,010 tons); a speculative feeling has existed towards this article, and very large sales of Borneo have lately been effected privately at 14s. per cwt., and part of 678 bags Singapore by auction at same figure. The price is moderate, but the quantity afloat direct from Borneo is not generally known, and the stock in Liverpool is very heavy, being 33,806 bags.

STICLAC.—A new parcel of 378 boxes fine clean Siam sold well; very bold 57s. 6d. to 62s.; small and dusty, 54s.; 150 cases Calcutta part sold at 38s. 6d. to 50s.

SAPANWOOD.—Slightly firmer; considerable parcels of Siam and Ceylon Wood offered at auction but retired.

Digitized by Google

TAPIOCA.—Both Malacca and Penang have been more sought after, and prices (especially for good) are firmer. Of 1,318 bags Singapore at auction about one-half sold, viz., extra fine at 3⅝d.; fine, per Empress of India, at 3d. to 3¼d.; very good at 2⅞d., and good, 2¼d. to 2⅜d. per lb. No common offered. Of 526 bags Penang, about 250 bags were quitted, chiefly damaged, from ¾d. to 2d. per lb., with fair sound, per Mofussilite, NS, Alma under, at 2¼d. to 2½d. per lb., and about 500 bags privately at same figures, and more recently 400 bags at 2⅜d. per lb. Flour: 525 bags salvage from Dharwar, and very middling quality, retired at 1¾d. to 2d. per lb. Pearl Tapioca: Has been in strong inquiry, and privately a large quantity sold at 22s. 6d. to 23s. per cwt. At sale extra large grain sold at 25s., and bullets at 28s., and more recently 340 packages at 22s. 6d. for good, and fine medium. Extra large at 23s. 6d., and very middling medium in bags at 21s. to 21s. 6d. per cwt.

TORTOISESHELL.—Prices are steady; 16 cases Singapore have been offered at auction and about half sold; rather mixed in quality, generally good substance, little scabby, at 14s. to 14s. 6d.; more mixed with common red, at 13s. 6d.; thin red, at 11s.; medium shell and chicken, good clean 13s. 6d. Penang: 1 case very mixed, much common, at 8s. per lb.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.

—o—

TEA.

There is no change in the general features of the market. There is not much stock offering, and although buyers are scarce just for the moment, prices are held with confidence. We note sales of 5,100 half-chests Oolong, to arrive by the Craigie Lee; 400 half-chests Green, ex Chinaman; 841 half-chests do., ex Atina. The following are the currency prices for jobbing lots:—Greens, common to fair Hyson, 78c. to 99c.; good to fine do., 95c. to $1.10; extra fine to finest do., $1.15 to $1.40: common to fair Young Hyson, 70c. to 80c.; good to fine do., 85c. to $1.10; extra fine to finest, $1.20 to 1.55; common to fair Gunpowder, 78c. to $1; good to fine do., $1.05 to 1.20; extra fine to finest do., $1.35 to 1.70; common to fair Imperial, 78c. to $1; good to fine do., $1 05 to 1.20; extra fine to finest do., $1.30 to 1.50; common to fair Twankay, 62c. to 68c.; good to fine, 70c. to 80c.; common to fair Uncoloured Japan. 75c. to 85c.; good to fine do., 90c. to $1.05; extra fine to finest do., $1.10 to 1.30; common to fair Oolong, 65c. to 70c.; good to fine do., 75c. to $1; extra fine to finest do., $1.10 to 1.50; common to fair Souchong, 75c. to 85c.; good to fine do., 96c. to $1.10; extra fine to finest, $1.25 to 1.50.

The total receipts of Tea from China and Japan at the port of New York from Jan. 1 to Feb. 9, 1870, were as follows:—Greens, 1,854,803 lbs.; Japans, 22,813 lbs.; Souchongs, 990,660 lbs.; Oolongs, 1,403,564 lbs.; other sorts 14,000 lbs.; total, 4,285,840 lbs. The stock on Jan. 1 was 9,866,167 lbs.; which, added to the above total, gives a result of 14,152,007 lbs. Subtracting from this total the exports from Jan. 1 to Feb. 9, 302 658 lbs., and the withdrawals for home consumption during that period, 3,470,497 lbs., there remains a total of 10,378,252 lbs., representing the stock on the last-named date. The receipts from Jan. 26 to Feb. 9 amounted to 678,409 lbs.; the withdrawals for home consumption to 2,748,226 lbs.; and the exports to 131,602 lbs.

COFFEE.—There is a dull tone apparent in the market generally, and the only sales of East India have been a few lots Java at the current quotations, which rule lower, viz:—Java (mats), 19c. to 21c.; do. (Government bags), 12½c. to 21½c.; Manila, 16c. to 17c.; Singapore, 18c. to 19c.; Native Ceylon, 17½c. to 19½c. gold (duty paid). The stock of Manila on the 1st Feb. was estimated at 2,627 bags, against 6,769 bags on Feb. 1, 1869; of Java (Government) at 1,385 bags, against 2,451 bags; of Java, 18,857 mats, against 27,808 bags; of Ceylon 2,000 bags, against 7,000 bags; of Singapore nil, against 2,270 bags.

CHINA MATTING.—The market is quiet at the following prices:—4-4 white, 30c.; 5-4 white, 35c.; 6-4 white, 40c.; 4-4 red checked, 35c.; 5-4 red checked, 40c.; 6-4 red checked, 45c. There is a stock on hand amounting to about 2,00 rolls, while the quantity afloat is considerable.

CAMPHOR.—China is quoted 18c. gold (in bond).

GAMBIER.—The current quotation is 4⅛c. to 4½c. gold (duty paid); stock, small.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed is quoted $2.12½; Cassia, $1.25 gold (in bond).

HEMP.—Manila exhibits less depression than when we last reported, and sales have been effected of 1,000 bales at 14½c., and 2,000 bales superior at 14½c. gold, both sixty days prompt. At the close the price cannot be quoted over 14½c. at which quotation there are sellers but few buyers. The stock of Manila on the 1st Feb. was estimated at 17,813 bales, against 6,214 bales at the corresponding date of 1869, and 19,546 bales in 1868. The imports into the United States during the month of February were 4,875 bales, against 15,829 bales during February last year, and the quantity afloat on the 1st February was 37,931 bales, against 18,968 bales at the same date last year.

INDIGO.—The market for Manila continues very quiet, and the only sale reported has been 20 cases at $1.10 to $1.35 currency.

PRESERVED GINGER.—China is quoted $10 to $10.50 currency (duty paid).

RHUBARB.—The quotation for China is $1.50 to $2.50 currency (duty paid).

RICE.—East India is entirely out of demand, and there is no business to report beyond the sale of a few bags Rangoon for export at the figures previously ruling, viz., $3 to $3.25 gold. The stock of East India on the 1st Feb. was 7,506 bags, against 12.816 bags at the corresponding date last year, and 4,342 bags in 1868.

SILK.—These has been a slight accession of activity in the market, with moderate deliveries and small imports. In China and Canton descriptions fine qualities are scarce and command higher prices, good and common remaining steady; for Japans the inquiry is limited. The following are the current quotations:—Tsatlee, Nos. 1 and 2, none; Tsatlee, No. 3, $9.50 to 10; Tsatlee, Nos. 4 and 5, $8.50 to 9; Tsatlee, re-reeled, $9.50 to 10.25; Taysaam, Nos. 1 and 2, $8 to 8.75; Taysaam, Nos. 3 and 4, $6.75 to 7.25; Taysaam, re-reeled none; Haineen, $9 50 to 10.50; Canton, extra fine, $8.25 to 8 75; Canton, re-reeled, No. 1, $7.50 to 7.75; Canton, re-reeled, No. 2, $7 to 7.25; Japan, Mybash, nominal; Japan, Sodai, $8.50 to 9; Japan Oshio, re-reeled, $10; Japan, Koshu, $8.50 to 9. The imports from 31st January to 19th February were 536 bales.

SUGAR.—The market for West India is fairly active, but for East India there is an entire absence of inquiry, and prices are nominal. The stock on the 1st Feb. was of Java 810 baskets, against 310 baskets at the corresponding date last year; of Manila 230,253 bags, against 78,808 bags; of China 614 bags, against 1,000 bags.

SPICES are unsettled and inactive, owing to the proposed change in the tariff. We quote Cassia 43c. to 44c.; Ginger, 11½c.: Mace. $1.25 Pepper, 26c.; Nutmegs, 95c. to $1; Pimento, 17½c. to 18½c.; Cloves, 26c., gold. We note the sale of 10,000 mats Cassia, to arrive, at 23c., gold, in bond.

SAPANWOOD.—The current quotation is $30 currency, and the stock is estimated at about 300 tons.

TIN.—There has been an increased demand for Straits, resulting in sales of 600 slabs at 32c. gold, showing an advance of 1½c., and of 2,000 slabs, to arrive per Lorenzo, at 30½c. gold. Banca has likewise improved, being quoted 33½c. to 34c. gold. The stock in New York and Boston is estimated at 6,500 slabs Straits, with 13,000 slabs afloat.

SAN FRANCISCO MARKET REPORT.

COFFEE.—No business is reported in any description of East India.

OILS.—There is a good demand for China Nut Oil, and extensive sales are reported at $1.10 to 1.12½. The imports during the month of February were 860 boxes.

RICE.—Imports from Jan. 1st to Feb. 1st: China, 38,180 mats. There is a steady trade demand for China, with sales, in lots, of 2,500 mats, at 5¼c. to 5½c. Extra No. is held at 5¾c. to 6c.

SPICES.—Of Black Pepper, sales are reported of 40 bales, terms withheld; quotations, Cassia, $1.87½; Cloves, $1.50; Pepper, $1.25.

SUGAR.—We note sales of white China, to some extent, at 11c. to 11½c.; the import of China for February was 716 packages.

TEA.—Imports from Jan. 1st to Feb. 1st: China, 1,333 pkgs.; Japan, 3,481 pkgs. There is no special demand; the jobbing requirement is quite up to the average. "Basket" is held at 55c., though at auction 30 bales sold at 51c. We quote Japans at 65c. to 85c, according to quality and package.

SHIPPING.

ARRIVALS.—Feb. 4, at Boston, from Manila, Archer; 9, at New York, from Shanghai, Atma; 11, from Foochow, Mary Whitridge; 14, from Foochow, Queen of the Seas; 16, at San Francisco, from Hong Kong, Japan; at New York, from Ilo Ilo, Competitor; from Yokohama, Mary Lee; at Boston, from Manila, Mariano; 17, at New York, from Canton, Enrique; at San Francisco, from Batavia, Noord Brabant; 18, at New York, from Hong Kong, Willie Rickmers; from Singapore, Gemsbok; 23, from Shanghai, Everhard; March 2, from Amoy, Craigie Lee.

DEPARTURES.—Feb. 5, from San Francisco, for Manila, Daniel Mary; for Yokohama, Catalima; for Hong Kong, S. G. Reed; from Boston for Batavia, Fearless; 6, from San Francisco, for Manila, Asa Eldridge; 11, from New York, for Straits, Zephyr; from San Francisco, for Manila, Horatio Harris; 12, for Hong Kong, Clothilde; 14, for Yokohama Nightingale.

LOADING.—At San Francisco, for Hong Kong, North Star; at New York, for Batavia, W. A. Farnsworth; for Hong Kong and Shanghai, Samuel Russell; for Shanghai, Game Cock.

Shipping Intelligence.

—o—

ARRIVALS.

Date.	Ship	Captain.	From	At
Feb.22	Gauntlet	Sutherland	Macao, &c.	London
— 23	Elizabeth Cushing	—	Manila	Downs
Feb.22	Alfred	Gronow	Rangoon	Bremerhaven
— 23	County of Ayr	M'Nicol	Padang	Brouwershaven
— 25	Sarah Newman		Rangoon	Liverpool
— 23	Somerset	Hicks	Batavia for Amstdm.	Off the Lizard
— 16	Jourdain	Armandeau	Macao	Callao
— 28	Empress	Cooper	Foochow	London
— 28	Pak Wan	Shiell	Canton, &c.	Do.
— 28	Edward P. Bouverie	Tilly	Foochow	Do.
— 28	George Shotton	Bailly	Do.	Do.
— 28	Rollo	Taylor	Shanghai	Deal
— 28	Lizzie Iredale	Wilding	Do.	Do.
— 28	Vincenza	Bassich	Manila	Do.
Jan.17	Louisa Canevaro	Dimozo	Macao	Callao
— 13	Runnymede	Hore	Zebu	Coquimbo
— 28	Zeibendi (?)	Jollie	Batavia for Amstdm.	Off Falmouth
Mch. 1	Kvik	Lorange	Amoy	London
— 2	Taffarette	Rocher	Hong Kong	Havre
Feb.28	Wynand	Jones	Colombo	Off the Lizard
— 27	Noach II.	Hoefman	Batavia	Brouwershaven
— 27	Willem Poelman	Kettler	Do.	Do.
— 27	Krusebjorn	Fongt	Samarang	Do.
Mch. 1	Solide	Schmidt	Bangkok	Falmouth
— 2	Taunton	Hogg	Shanghai	London
Feb.28	Aimo	Engberg	Batavia	Texel
— —	Ridderkirk	Bunk	Pasaroeang	Brouwershaven
Mch. 2	Passover	Pearson	Colombo	London
— —	Sumatra		Batavia, for Rottrdm.	Deal
— —	Eurydice	Betts	Do., for Amsterdam	Off Dungeness
Feb.28	Insulinde	Jollie	Batavia, for Rottrdm.	Off Falmouth*
Mch. 2	Senior	V. Det	Do., &c.	Texel
— 2	Sydney	Poe	Samarang	Do.
— 3	Christian Ranken		Bangkok	Marseilles

* With loss of iron foreyard.

Digitized by Google

DEPARTURES.

Date.	Ship.	Captain.	For	From
—	Lord of the Isles	Petrie	Java	Shields
Feb. 18	California	Deinum	Sourabaya	Plymouth*
— 17	Auguste	Bach	Manila	Cardiff
— 19	Koningin Augusta	Pritzen	Batavia	Liverpool
— 20	Aurora	Basterrechea	Manila	Do.
— 21	Kingdom of Belgium	Smith	Singapore	London
— 20	Zuid Holland	—	Batavia	Shields
— 22	Clara	Power	Shanghai	London
— 19	Far East (str.)	Swaffin	Singapore, via Suez C.	Port Glasgow
— 22	Floris	Ellis	Yokohama	Liverpool
— 22	Diomed (str.)	Crompton	Penang, Sing, China, &c., via Suez Canal	Do.
— 22	Golden Hind	—	Anjer	Do.
— 23	Devana	Thomson	Hong Kong	London
— 21	Ringleader	Hamilton	Do.	Cardiff
— 21	Ferdinand Brumm	Voss	Singapore	Do.
— 24	Belle Marguerite	Dusaussay	Cardiff and Galle	London
— 23	Ellen Lamb	Braithwaite	Singapore	Liverpool
— 22	Bothwell Castle	Stewart	Do., &c.	Glasgow
— 25	Geraint	Watt	Shanghai	London
— —	Fuhlee	Gibbons	Do.	West Hartlepool
— 26	Shooting Star	McKenzie	Colombo	London
— 27	W. G. Russell	Jewett	Shanghai	Liverpool
— 28	Eleanor	Norrie	Penang	London
— 26	Fortuna	Gautschow	Singapore	Cardiff
— 28	Singapore		Yokohama	Liverpool
Mch. 2	Surbiton (str.)	Marshall	Colombo, &c., via Suez Canal	London
— 4	William Fruing	Chevalier	Hong Kong	Do.

* After repairing.

(See Commercial Postscript and Correspondents' Letters.)

LOADING.

At London.—For Nagasaki and Chefoo: Zohra. For Yokohama: Lota, Espiegle, Rollo, Pak Wan. For Yokohama and Hiogo: Pegasus. For Tientsin and Newchwang, George Shotton. For Shanghai: Hindostan, Glenavon, Jungfrau, Blackadder, Northampton, City of Hankow: Lizzie Iredale, Taunton. For Hong Kong: Invincible, Sir Harry Parkes, Joseph Sprott, Lord Macaulay, Lufra. For Singapore: Windermere. For Singapore, Hong Kong, Shanghai, Nagasaki and Yokohama (via Suez Canal): Nile (str.). For Colombo: A.O.A., Gauntlet, Wynaud.

At Liverpool.—For Nagasaki, Hiogo and Yokohama: Oberon. For Shanghai: Jumna. For Manila: Hong Kong, Maria Fidela. For Singapore: Knight Templar, Malacca. For Batavia, Sourabaya and Samarang: Spirit of the Day. For Colombo, &c. (via Suez Canal). Statesman (str.).

At Glasgow.—For Hong Kong: Kildonan. For Manila and Ilo Ilo: Aureliana. For Singapore: Roslin Castle. For Batavia and Sourabaya: County of Lancaster.

SPOKEN.

Marle, Hong Kong to Havre, Dec. 16, 27 S., 54 E.
Tavistock, Shanghai to London, Dec. 6, 22 S., 70 E.
City of Dublin (?), Ceylon to London, Dec. 8, 22 S., 68 E.
Christina Margaretha, Batavia to Amsterdam, Dec. 12, 25 S., 62 E.
Cecilia, Hong Kong to Falmouth, Jan. 8, 25 S., 3 E.
Martha Kay, Liverpool (?), to Japan, 138 days out, Nov. 10, 4 S., 125 E
Taeping (ship), London to Shanghai, Dec. 28, 33 S., 19 W.
Albert Victor, China to London, Jan. 3, 33 S., 32 E.
Bestevaer (Dutch vessel), Java to Amsterdam, Jan. 13, 35 S., 22 E.
Peter Mann (Dutch vessel), Canton to New York, Jan. 15, 35 S., 17 E.
British Crown, Shields to Singapore, 106 days out, Dec. 3, 7 S., 104 E.
County of Ayr, Padang to Rotterdam, Dec. 16, 13 S., 10 W.
Buston Vale, London to Penang, Dec. 18, 30 S., 26 W.
Wild Rover, Manila to Boston, Dec. 20, off the Cape of Good Hope.
Royal Visitor, Cardiff to Galle, Jan. 5, 12 S., 33 W.
Belted Will, London to Hong Kong, Dec. 31, 28 S., 27 W.
Elien (brig), Batavia to Rotterdam, Jan. 22, 14 N., 36 W.
Polar Star (brig), from Foochow, Jan 21, 4 S., 19 W.
Betty, Amsterdam to Batavia, Jan. 4, 21 S., 32 W.
Glance, Plymouth to Ceylon, Dec. 31, 27 S., 31 W.
Diana, Bordeaux to Hong Kong, Nov. 14, at entrance of Gaspar Straits.
Emma David (N. G. barq.), Bangkok to Falmouth, Jan. 21, 1 N., 23 W.
Dutch Ship, Amsterdam to Batavia, Jan. 4, 2 N., 24 W.
English Vessels, No. 2938 or 2908, Ldn. to Shnghi, Feb. 22, 38 N., 19 W.
Maas Nymph, Cardiff to Galle, Dec. 28, 20 S., 30 W.
Thyatira (Eng. sh.), Lndn. to Shnghi., strg. S.W., Feb. 13, 38 N., 21 W.
Duncan, London (?) to Shanghai, Feb. 22, 38 N., 19 W.
Adriana, Rotterdam to Batavia, Dec. 12, 38 S., 25 E.
Amstelstroom, Amsterdam to Batavia, Dec. 27, 11 S., 33 W.
Ellen Hunter, Batavia to Rotterdam, Jan. 22, 14 N., 36 W.
Amadies (Dutch schr.), China to Falmouth, Dec. 29, 34 S., 63 E.
Osceana (?) (Dutch), Bangkok to Falmouth, Jan. 6, 46 S., 56 E.
Rainbow, Penang to Boston, Jan. 4, 24 S., long. —.
Panama, Liverpool to Hong Kong, Nov. 16, in Banca Straits.
J. W. A. Lorenzen, Singapore to Boston, Jan. 12, 12 S., 11 W.
Jacoba and Christina, Batavia to Amsterdam, Jan. 19, 5 S., 17 W.
Benvenue, Penang to London, Dec. 33, 35 S., 23 E.
Dalhousie, Batavia to Amsterdam, Feb. —, 47 N., 13 W.
Perceptor, Ilo Ilo to New York, Nov. 13, in the Straits of Sunda.
Rome, Hong Kong to London, Jan. 12, off Ascension.
Burdwan, London to Hong Kong, Jan. 21, 4 N., 22 W.
Adler (N. G. brig), Canton to Hamburg, Feb. 7, 58 N., 31 W.
Tavistock (brig), Shanghai to London, Jan. 17, 6 S., 17 W.
Bride, Sunderland to Galle, Dec. 24, 36 S., 13 W.
Chinaman, London to Shanghai, Dec. 5, 2 N., 26 W.
Queen's Own, Sunderland to Singapore, Dec. 30, 34 S, 1 E.
Westward Ho, Cardiff to Singapore, Dec. 5, 29 S., 26 W.
Batavia, Rotterdam to Batavia, Jan. 25, 1 N., 22 W.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS.

There have been a great many arrivals since our last issue, and the berths to the Eastern ports are well filled; rates remain about the same coal freights from the Northern outports are without improvement.

Current rates of freight for vessels on the berth:—To Yokohama 32s. 6d. weight, 35s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 120s. weight 110s. meast. To Shanghai: 40s. weight, 30s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 90s. weight, 80s. meast. To Hong Kong: 35s. weight, 30s. meast.; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 80s. weight, 70s. meast. To Batavia: 25s. weight, 30s. meast. To Penang: per steamer, via Suez Canal, 80s. weight, 70s. meast. To Singapore: 30s. weight, 25s. to 30s. meast.; per steamer via Suez Canal, 70s. weight, 60s. meast. To Ceylon: 20s. to 25s. weight, 20s. meast; per steamer, via Suez Canal, 60s. meas t. At New York to China: $12 to $15 per ton of 40 cubic feet.

The current quotations for coal, &c., are as follows:—From Wear or Tyne per keel.—For Yokohama: £35. For Shanghai: £41. For Hong Kong: £30. For Singapore: £26 For Galle: £25. From Newport, Cardiff, or Swansea per ton.—For Yokohama: £1 15s. For Shanghai: £2 2s. For Hong Kong: £1 7s. For Singapore: £1 4s. For Saigon: £1 5s. For Galle: £1 5s.

CASUALTIES.

The Engineer, which put into Pentewan, Feb. 21, reported that on the 17th, 50 miles S.W. of Scilly, she boarded the County of Ayr, of Glasgow, McNicol, from Padang to Rotterdam, with loss of bulwarks, some of the crew sick, and short of provisions, and supplied her with bread and potatoes.

The Crown, Aubin, from Yokohama to London, which arrived at St. Helena, Jan. 26, reported having experienced a hurricane on the 14th and 15th Dec., 22 S., 71 E., during which she lost sails, water-casks, &c.

The Clara, Power, from London to Shanghai, was in collision off Southend, Feb. 24, and parted from an anchor and 35 fathoms of chain; she was in consequence detained there, and arrangement had been made to recover the anchor.

Advices from Alexandria, dated Feb. 25, state that the Otterburn (str.), from London to Colombo, via Suez Canal, had stranded, Feb. 23, at the entrance of Aboukir Bay, near Rosetta (mud bottom), and the H.M.S. Himalaya, accompanied by a tug, had left to assist in getting her off.

The Fuh Lee (str.). Gibbons from West Hartlepool to Shanghai, arrived at Gravesend Feb. 28; was in collision with a brig during the night of Feb. 24, and lost foretopmast and a part of bulwarks.

The Enrique, Orcutt, which arrived at New York, Jan 17, from Canton, had experienced heavy gales, during which she sprung foremast and sustained other damage.

The Menam, Wilson, from Sunderland to Galle, which put into Capetown, Dec. 19, was discharging.

There are rumours of the Nell Gwyn, from Java to Holland, being lost, as several bales of tobacco with marks of her cargo have been picked up and landed at Havre, Dieppe, and Trouville, on the French coast.

MISCELLANEOUS.

At Table Bay, Jan. 4, Daphne, Osuldsen, from Frederickstad, and sailed 6 for Shanghai; 8, Cataluna (str.), Exzodello, from Macao and left 11, for Havana; 16, County of Forfar, Lamont, from Sourabaya; 19, Manila (str.), Rochford, from Waterford, for Manila; 6, Wilhelmina Emma (str.), Donaldson, from Glasgow, left for Yokohama.

At St. Helena, Jan. 13, Ida Elizabeth, Dooren, from Batavia, and sailed 14 for Rotterdam; Angela, Onate, from Manila, and sailed 15 for Plymouth; 14, Hollandia, Niewenhuijs, from Macassar, and sailed for Amsterdam; Nantib, Prentice, from Amoy, and sailed 15 for New York; 15, Elizabeth, Feenstra, from Batavia and sailed for Amsterdam; Catharina Maria, Van Aurerangen, from Tjilatjap, and sailed 16 for Schiedam; Asphodel, Bayfield, from Colombo, and sailed for Boston; Jeannie, Cromwell, from Foochow, and sailed 16 for Boston; 16, Affghan, Fisher, from Singapore, and sailed for Liverpool; 17, Indiana, Cooper, from Bangkok, and sailed for the Channel; 18, Koning Willem II., Besseling, from Batavia, and sailed 19 for Amsterdam; 23, Annie Fleming, Garrick, from Samarang, and sailed 24 for Clyde; 26, Dordrecht II., Rotgans, from Padang, and sailed for Amsterdam; Crown, Aubin, from Yokohama, and sailed 27 for London; Ceylon, Davie, from Foochow, and sailed for London; Panuco, Beattie, from Foochow, and sailed 28 for London; 28, Wilhelmina and Clara, Van Herwerden, from Batavia, and sailed for Amsterdam; 29, River Eden, Valder, from Canton.

Off St. Helena, Jan. 14, Polar Star, from Foochow, for London; Minister Fransen van der Putte, from Batavia, for Rotterdam; Southern Cross, from Colombo, for London; Stad Dokkum, from Java, City of Paris, from Colombo, for London; 26, Messenger, from Manila, for Boston.

At St. Vincent, C.V.—Feb. 6, Merrie England, M'Mahon, from Cardiff, and sailed 7 for Yokohama.

At Suez.—Feb. 11, Chu Kiang (str.), Warden, from London, for Singapore, Penang, &c.

At Malta.—Tszree (str.), from London, for Japan (via Suez Canal), ten days from Plymouth.

At Port Said.—March 3, Erl King (str.), Steele, from London, for Singapore, China, &c., would partly coal and proceed on 4th.

The Salvage Association have issued a report relating to the wreck of the Spindrift, in which the following paragraph occurs:—"There is hanging about the broken iron, ribs, and beams, a very large quantity of calico, velvet, and all sorts of stuff out of the broken cases, spun up like ropes by the action of the sea and tied into innumerable knots, so that it is sometimes dangerous for the divers to go down amongst it."

The Glenduror was towed off the main on the morning of the 19th ult., making but little water, and was safely docked into the Victoria Docks the same day.

Advices from Vannes received at Nantes Feb. 17, state that great anxiety was felt there concerning the Behrend (Ger. ship), Nagel, which sailed from Bordeaux Jan. 28, for Yokohama; a case, the marks and contents of which are said to have been perfectly recognised as those of one shipped by that vessel, having been found ashore near Vannes.

Digitized by Google

A.D. 1870.

GRANT'S TRANS-MONGOLIAN TELEGRAMS
VIA KIACHTA.

TELEGRAMS FROM EUROPE.

TELEGRAMS for CHINA or JAPAN may be despatched from any Telegraph Station in Europe on any Tuesday, commencing from the 22nd February, to Tuesday, the 29th November, inclusive.

Telegrams must be addressed "GRANT, KIACHTA."

If Express, "GRANT, KIACHTA, Express."

Express Telegrams may be Despatched on any day. They are forwarded by Special Couriers within Half-an-Hour of their delivery at Kiachta.

CHARGES FROM KIACHTA.

Twenty words or under ... ... Taels 12
And for every additional ten words or under 4
Express Telegrams—Tls. 150 plus Tls. 2 for every Ten Words.

The charges are payable by the receiver to the Agents within THREE DAYS of delivery; otherwise 20 per cent. will be added to the above rates.

The Sender is responsible for the payment in case the receiver fails.

Agents at Shanghai . . . Messrs. HALL and HOLTZ.
„ Tientsin . . . „ J. LIVINGSTON and Co.
„ Yokohama . . . Mr. E. L. B. MCMAHON.
„ Kagan . . . Messrs. MATRINSKI and KAYANTZOFF.

Telegrams for Ports South of Shanghai are forwarded by Messrs. HALL and HOLTZ.

HEAD OFFICE—KIACHTA, ORIENTAL SIBERIA.

C. MITCHELL GRANT, Proprietor.
WILLIAM HAGEMANN, Secretary.

LONDON AGENCY,

'LONDON AND CHINA TELEGRAPH" OFFICE, 2, COWPER'S COURT, CORNHILL.

REDUCED TO TEN AND A-HALF DAYS.

I have the pleasure to announce that I have succeeded in reducing the contract time for this year by TWELVE HOURS.

Telegrams from Kiachta to Tientsin, and vice versa, will be delivered in

TEN DAYS AND A-HALF.

I have made an engagement to pay a Tael for every hour a Courier arrives in advance of the time, and I think that many Despatches will be transmitted in Ten Days.

I take this occasion to thank the Gentlemen who subscribed their names to establish GRANT'S TRANS-MONGOLIAN TELEGRAPH SERVICE. Having now repaid the whole of the Capital advanced to me, I have reduced the charges on Telegrams, to prove that I am not unmindful of the confidence they showed me.

C. MITCHELL GRANT.

KIACHTA, January 10, 1870.

Digitized by Google

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS ASSOCIATION.

At a GENERAL MEETING, held on TUESDAY, the 22nd inst. the following Resolution was passed on the subject of THE PROPOSED SUPPLEMENTARY TREATY WITH CHINA.

That the Straits Settlements include altogether a population of 260,000, of which fully one half are Chinese, and the Association are of opinion that the appointment of a Chinese Consul in the colony under Art. No. 2 of the Supplementary Convention to the Treaty of Tientsin, is inexpedient, and highly to be deprecated, because—

1. It is well known that officials of the Chinese Government act under a system which, if it does not tolerate, is certainly attended with the practice of extortion and the most flagrant abuse of authority.

2. The Chinese system and usage unfortunately admits of such malpractices being carried out, not only against the individual, but upon his family and connections resident in China, and the threats of a Consular officer in this direction would seldom fail of effect, and make his office a source of anxiety and dread to all within the reach of his authority.

3. The number of Chinese in the Straits who are British subjects is large and steadily on the increase, and it would be a manifest injustice to allow of such undue influence being exerted over them as might be exercised in the way described.

4. The Chinese inhabitants of the Straits Settlements are fully alive to the advantages they enjoy under the British Government, and the Association believe that they would deprecate the appointment of a Chinese Consul on the grounds that it would materially interfere with their personal security and social comfort.

P. F. TIDMAN, Hon. Sec.

21, St. Swithin's-lane, 23rd February, 1870.

COMPTOIR D'ESCOMPTE DE PARIS.

Incorporated by National Decrees of 7th and 8th of March, 1848, and by Imperial Decree of 20th July 1854, and 31st December, 1866.

Recognised by the International Convention of 30th April, 1862.

CAPITAL, fully paid up, £3,200,000.

Reserved Fund ... ... f 20,000,000 ... £800,000

HEAD OFFICE.—14, Rue Bergere, Paris.

AGENCIES AT—Lyons, Marseilles, and Nantes (France), Alexandria (Egypt), Calcutta, Bombay, Hong Kong, Shanghai, Saigon (Cochin China), Bourbon (Reunion), and Yokohama (Japan).

LONDON BANKERS.—The Union Bank of London.

LONDON AGENCY.—13, Leadenhall-street, E.C.

MANAGER.—G. Pietsch.

SUB-MANAGER.—Theod. Dromel.

The London Agency grants Drafts and Letters of Credit, and purchases or collects Bills payable at the above-named places.

The Agency will conduct Banking business of every description with the Continent India, China, &c., upon terms to be ascertained at the Office.

UNION INSURANCE SOCIETY OF CANTON.

DIRECTORS IN HONG KONG.
W. NISSEN, Esq.,
J. P. DUNCANSON, Esq.,
P. RYRIE, Esq.,
W. KESWICK, Esq.,
A. A. D SASSOON, Esq.,
E. A. HITCHCOCK, Esq.,
W. LEMANN, Esq.,
W. H. FOSTER, Jun., Esq.

AGENTS FOR LONDON.
Messrs. DENT, PALMER, and Co.

Marine Risks are accepted by the above Society on goods by first class vessels from the United Kingdom to India, China, Japan, Melbourne, and Sydney, at the current rates of premium.

Claims for Losses and Averages are payable in London, or at the Port of destination, as may be desired.

OFFICES:—
Nos. 9 AND 11, KING'S ARMS YARD, MOORGATE STREET, E.C.

HONG KONG AND SHANGHAI BANKING CORPORATION.

Capital, 5,000,000 dols Paid up, 3,000,00 dols.

COURT OF DIRECTORS AND HEAD OFFICE IN HONG KONG.

LONDON MANAGER—W. H. Vacher, 32, Nicholas-lane
BANKERS.—London and County Bank.

BRANCHES AND AGENCIES:

Hong Kong	Hankow	Singapore
Shanghai	Japan (Yokohama)	Bombay
Foochow	Manila	Calcutta
Ningpo

The Bank grants DRAFTS upon and negotiates or collects BILLS at any of its Agencies or Branches; also receives DEPOSITS for fixed periods, at rates varying with the period of deposit.

Liebig Company's Extract of Meat.

AMSTERDAM EXHIBITION, 1869, FIRST PRIZE, being above the Gold Medal. Supplied to the British, French, Prussian, Russian, Italian, Dutch and other Governments. One pint of fine flavoured Beef-tea at 2½d. Most convenient and economic "stock."

CAUTION. Only sort warranted genuine by the Inventor, Baron Liebig, whose signature is on every genuine Jar.

Ask for LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT, and NOT for Liebig's Extract of Meat.

ROBERT COCKS and Co.'s MUSICAL BOX. A Caprice for the Pianoforte. Composed by I. LIEBICH, and performed by him at the Queen's Concert Rooms, Hanover-square, and twice encored. 3s

MEDICINE JACK (Comic Song, Illustrated.) Music and words by A. S. GATTY. "Replete with genuine fun and humour."—Sun. Free by post, 19 stamps

THE SMILES OF THOSE WE LOVE. Song. By W. F. Taylor. "One of the most elegant songs of the day." "The air is simplicity itself, and will be caught up at once, and the pretty and harmless character of the words renders it peculiarly appropriate as a song for the home circle."—Vide Orchestra. 3s.

THE MOST REFINED and AMUSING COMIC SONGS of the DAY. Composed by Mr. A. S. GATTY.

I Really am so Sleepy	I'll Not Try it Again.
Put it Down to Me	Medicine Jack.
Bobbie! Bobbie!	B. R. A. G.
Not so Bad for Me.	A Lady's Song.

These songs may be sung in any drawing-room. 3s. each.

"I REALLY AM SO SLEEPY." By Alfred Scott Gatty.

"Mr. Alfred Scott Gatty is getting quite a reputation for his comic songs, and deservedly so. They possess far more real humour than the popular songs of the music halls, and we need hardly say are far above them in every respect. Mr. Gatty's words are funny without being vulgar, and there is not one of his songs but what has a hearty and legitimate laugh in it. 'I Really am so Sleepy' is a very simple melody, set to clever racy words, and will be sure to be a favourite amongst those who enjoy an honest comic ballad "—Vide Midland Illustrated News. Jan. 8.

London, COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

PRICE'S

BENZODYNE.

AN INTERNAL STYPTIC of great value. In Cholera, Diarrhœa, and Dysentery this medicine far surpasses any other, having a peculiar mechanical power of putting a sudden stop to wasting diseases. Chronic Cough and blood-spitting are immediately relieved by it, as well as pain and debility of every kind. Prepared by Mr. PRICE, Analytical Chemist, 2, Lower Seymour-stree , and 30, Duke-street, Portman-square, London; and sold by Chemists all over the world, in bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., 11s., and 22s., or in dispensing bottles at 5s., 10s., and 20s. each

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES.

THIS UNIVERSAL REMEDY now stands the first in public favour and confidence; this result has been acquired by the test of fifty years' experience. These lozenges may be found on sale in every British colony; and throughout India and China they have been highly esteemed wherever introduced For COUGHS, ASTHMA, and all AFFECTIONS of the THROAT and CHEST, they are the most agreeable and efficacious remedy; they do not contain opium or any other deleterious drug and may therefore be taken with perfect safety by the most delicate constitution.

Sold in boxes, tins and bottles of various sizes.

KEATING'S CHILDREN'S WORM TABLETS.

The great remedy for these disorders in Adults and Children can now be administered in the form of A PURELY VEGETABLE SWEETMEAT, at once agreeable and effective

TESTIMONIAL.

"Batley, Jan 26, 1869.

"SIR.—One of my children, aged two years and four months, being troubled with worms, I was induced to try your Bon Bons I purchased some from Mr. B. Whitaker, chemist, of Batley, and after taking two only, she voided nine large worms. Two days after another dose, she again voided three more; three of them, the worst, measuring from 8 in. to 9 in. each in length I consider them a most invaluable remedy, and should be tried by all suffering from worms.

(Signed) "JOHN STENSON.

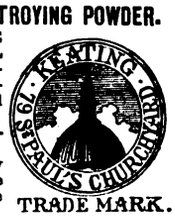
"Witness, B. WHITAKER.

"To Mr. Keating, London"

Sold in tins and bottles of various sizes.

KEATING'S INSECT DESTROYING POWDER.

This Powder is QUITE HARMLESS TO ANIMAL LIFE, but is unrivalled in destroying Fleas, Bugs, Cockroaches, Beetles, Musquitos, and every other species of insect.



Sold in packets, tins, and bottles of various sizes.

☞ The public are particularly requested to observe that all the above preparations bear the Trade Mark as herein shown. TRADE MARK.

Sold in Hong Kong and Shanghai by Watson and Co; Singapore, Little and Co and Woodford and Schreeder; Ceylon, Piters and Co. and Mailland and Co.; Penang, Gazette office.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT.—DETERMINATION OF BLOOD TO THE HEAD, flushings, palpitations, and shortness of breath are cured by these grand regulators of the heart's impulse. Under Holloway's grand specifics the current of blood throughout the body becomes steady and unchanged by the passing thought—hence the suffusion of the head and cheeks is avoided, and nervous embarrassment prevented. They in like manner remove excessive sensitiveness, so often the opponent to the ease and grace inherent in the healthy and strongly nerved frame, and eradidate the doubts of the nervous. In intellects declining from intense study, free living, or over anxiety, no equal remedy is attainable. Without exaggeration they give muscular energy to the paralysed and ease to the pained.

OSLER'S CRYSTAL GLASS CHANDELIERS.

WALL LIGHTS and LUSTRES for Gas and Candles
CHANDELIERS in Bronze and Ormolu
MODERATOR LAMPS and LAMPS for INDIA,
TABLE GLASS of all kinds.
ORNAMENTAL GLASS, English and Foreign
Mess, Expert, and Furnishing Orders promptly executed.
All articles marked in plain figure
OXFORD STREET, W.
MANUFACTORY AND SHOW ROOMS.—Broad Street, Birmingham.
Established 1807.

RE-ENGAGEMENT WANTED, as BOOKKEEPER AND ENGLISH CORRESPONDENT, by a GENTLEMAN having six years' experience in China and Japan. Satisfactory testimonials as to integrity and ability.

Address, YANGTZE, 13, Buckingham-street, Strand.

NOTICE

MORRIS'S DIRECTORY for CHINA, JAPAN, and the PHILIPPINES, &c., to be published on the 1st Jan., 1870, contains a Revised List of the Foreign Residents at all the open Ports of the China Sea, including Saigon, which has never yet been included in any similar work; together with the Time Tables of the different Steamship Companies, Rates of Postage, Local Ordinances, and such other matter as will be useful to all interested in the China trade. No trouble or expense has been spared to make this the most accurate publication of the kind ever offered to the public.

Price, complete in one volume, 14s.

Orders received by the Publisher of the "London and China Telegraph," 2, Cowper's-court, Cornhill, E.C.

"THE CHINA MAIL,"

No. 2, WYNDHAM-STREET, HONG KONG.

NOTICE.—THE BUSINESS heretofore carried on under the style of "Shortrede and Co," was this day purchased by the undersigned, in whose name and by whom it will henceforth be conducted, and to whom all outstanding accounts owing to the said business are to be paid.

Hong Kong, Aug. 15, 1867. CHAS. A. SAINT

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS.

THE DAILY CHINA MAIL.—Six pages; published every evening (except Sunday). Subscription, 24 dols. per annum. Circulates in Hong Kong and along the China and Japan coasts. Terms of advertising:—Ten lines and under, 1 dol.; each additional line, 10 cents; one-half of these charges for repetitions. In Chinese, 2 cents per character for any number of days during the current week.

THE OVERLAND CHINA MAIL.—Compiled from the Daily China Mail, is published twice a month on the morning of the English mail's departure, and is a record of each fortnight's current history of events in China and Japan, contributed in original reports and collated from the journals published at the various ports in those countries. It contains, besides, a Shipping List for Shanghai Hong Kong, Canton, and Macao, and a complete Commercial Summary.

Subscription, 12 dols per annum, payable to any of the undermentioned agents Postage added. Terms of advertising:—Same as in Daily China Mail.

AGENTS.—London: F. Algar, 11, Clement's-lane, Lombard-street, E.C. San Francisco: White and Bauer, 518, Clay-street, San Francisco. Swatow: Drown and Co. Amoy: Giles and Co. Foochow: Thompson and Co. Shanghai: H. Fogg and Co. Manila: Karuth, Heinzen, and Co. Australia: Gordon and Gotch, Melbourne and Sydney. Singapore: Locke. Hongghee, and Co. Batavia: H. Van Dorp.

COWASJEE DINSHAW.

Close to the Landing Place, Depot of
EUROPEAN CHINA AND INDIAN WORK.
WINE, BEER, CHAMPAGNE, and SPIRITS of the best quality. Bombay-made Soda Water and Lemonade Perfumery, Confectionery, Oilman's Stores, and Stationery of every description. Sola Topees and Canvas Shoes, &c., &c., &c.
STEAMER POINT, ADEN.
Drawing and Reading-room free to Passengers.
THE London and China Express ON SALE.

C. KRAMER begs to inform the public that he has established himself at this place as NURSERYMAN and SEEDSMAN, and is fully prepared to execute any orders for Japanese plants, bulbs, or seeds for any part of the world.

An experience of four years in this business in foreign parts two of which has been gained in this country, may ensure the confidence of customers.

Orders must be accompanied by remittances or references, and letters must be addressed to

C. KRAMER,
No. 63, BLUFF, YOKOHAMA.

THE SAIGON ADVERTISER & SHIPPING GAZETTE.

A SUMMARY of Commercial and Shipping Reports from SAIGON, and a Record of Progress in COCHIN CHINA.

Subscription, £5 per annum, exclusive of postage.

London Agency: THE LONDON AND CHINA TELEGRAPH Office, 2, Cowper's-court, Cornhill, London, E.C

THE STRAITS TIMES.—Daily, weekly and fortnightly editions; published in Singapore for circulation throughout the STRAITS SETTLEMENTS, JAVA, BORNEO, SIAM, FRENCH COCHIN CHINA, CHINA, and JAPAN.

This paper, which is the oldest in Singapore, and the most widely circulated throughout the FAR EAST, offers an excellent medium for the advertisements of shipbuilders, machinists, manufacturers, patentees, &c., in the United Kingdom.

Advertisements to be forwarded through an Agent in Singapore, or GEORGE STREET, 30, Cornhill, London.

Digitized by Google

PARFUMERIE.

GELLÉ FRÈRES,

35, RUE D'ARGOUT, 35,

(ANCIENNE RUE DES VIEUX AUGUSTINS),

PARIS.

F'COMMISSION. | THE house of GELLÉ FRÈRES, celebrated for the superiority of its Perfumery, addresses itself to the fashionable world as much for its essentially hygienic, refreshing, and tonic preparations as for its delicate and distingué perfumes. | EXPORTATION.

ARTICLES SPECIALLY RECOMMENDED.

REGENERATEUR GELLÉ FRÈRES, a superior pomade.
CUCUMBER SOAP for the skin.
CARBOQUINA ROSE, superior tooth-powder.
EAU DES COLONIES, extra fine for the toilet.
CONCENTRATED ESSENCE for the handkerchief.
SPECIAL PERFUMERY from Parma violets.
EAU D'ALBION for the toilet.
COLD CREAM, to soften and refresh the skin.
ESSENCE BOUQUET, GELLÉ FRÈRES.
EAU DE TOILET - Bouquet de l'Impératrice.
LETTICE JUICE SOAP.
NIGRITINE VEGETALE dye for the hair and beard, instantaneous and inoffensive.

UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION, 1867.

INTERNATIONAL JURY, CLASS 25, PERFUMERY.

THE SILVER MEDAL, the highest recompense awarded for Perfumery, was obtained by the house of GELLÉ FRÈRES for the superiority and excellence of its productions.

TRADE MARK ON CAPSULES & CASES

PARTICIPATION CHARENTAISE

LA GRANDE MARQUE COGNAC

LONDON OFFICES (for the trade only)—22 and 23, Great Tower-street.

Mr. V. JOUANNET, Managing Director, Cognac. | Mr. E. VIGNIER, Manager for the U.K., London.

The largest holders of Vintage 1865, and old Brandies of the first growths; which can be obtained from all Wine and Spirit Merchants, or can be procured by them, as large consignments have been lately shipped to all the principal ports of China, Japan, Java, Singapore, and Ceylon.

Blue Label, 6 years; Yellow Label, 11 years; Red Label, 14 years; White Label, from 18 to 40 years.

Samples forwarded free, by Overland Route, to Merchants giving satisfactory references in London.

PORT OF AMOY.

SHIPOWNERS, AGENTS, and COMMANDERS are informed that the Dock Company's establishments at the above port afford every facility, at moderate charges, for REPAIRING and SPARRING VESSELS, cleaning and painting iron ships and steamers.

Their large Granite Dock has 286 feet length on the blocks and at average spring tides can receive vesse's of 16 to 17 feet draught. It has a caisson-gate and a powerful centrifugal steam pump, and an engineer's workshop fitted with lathes and tools, driven by steam; iron and brass foundries, boiler-makers' shop, a large smithy and carpenters and boat-builders' sheds, superintended by resident Europeans.

Their two smaller GRANITE DOCKS can receive, at spring tides, vessels drawing 12 feet.

Spars, timber, and other Dockyard material kept in stock.

Quarters for officers and a DRY GODOWN for stores of vessels under repair.

FOOCHOW DOCK.

RIVER MIN.

THE above granite floored DOCK, of the following dimensions, viz., Length, 300 feet, breadth at bottom, 40, is capable of receiving vessels drawing 13 to 16 feet, as the state of the tides will allow. The Dock runs dry to the blocks, and is pumped out by steam.

The above premises comprise a large Machine Shop containing a

WHITWORTH'S 12-INCH SCREW CUTTING GAP LATHE,
DRILLING AND SCREWING MACHINES,
A LARGE SMITHY, &c., &c., &c.

Large Godowns are on the premises for STOWAGE OF CARGO, &c., &c. A large stock of Woods, Metal, &c., &c., always on hand.

The Dock steam tug Woosung is available at all times to tow vessels to or from sea.

JOHN C. SKEY, Superintendent.

SINGAPORE DOCKS.

THE PATENT SLIP AND DOCK COMPANY execute SHIPS' REPAIRS of all descriptions in the most efficient manner, under the supervision of European Engineers and Shipwrights.

The DRY DOCK (opened in March, 1859) admits two vessels at the same time, being over 400 feet in length, with a depth of water ranging to 15½ feet. A second DRY DOCK of larger dimensions will shortly be completed, and available for the heaviest Steamers.

Adjoining the above there is extensive WHARF WAREHOUSE, and other accommodation, including every convenience for coaling Steamers, discharging cargo, and storing goods, together with ample MACHINERY and appliances for repairing iron steamers, &c.

Apply at the offices of Messrs. PATERSON, SIMON and Co., Singapore; or 21, St. Swithin's-lane, Cannon-street, London, E.C.

WM. CLOUGHTON, Managing Director.
New Harbour, Singapore, June, 1868.

OVERLAND ROUTE VIA MARSEILLES.—SERVICES MARITIMES DES MESSAGERIES IMPERIALES OF FRANCE.—FRENCH MAIL STEAM PACKETS LEAVE MARSEILLES AS FOLLOWS:—

22 January, 19 February, 19 March, 16 April, 14 May } For { Alexandria, Aden, Mauritius, Seychelles, Reunion, Point de Galle (Ceylon), Pondicherry, Madras, Calcutta, Singapore, Batavia, Saigon, Hong Kong, Shanghai, and Japan.

9th, 19th, and 29th of every month for Alexandria.

For Passage, Freight, and information, apply to B. W. and H. HORNE, 4, Moorgate-street, London; G. H. FLETCHER and Co., Liverpool; at the offices of the Services Maritimes des Messageries Imperiales in Paris, Lyons, Bordeaux, and Marseilles; or to Smith and Co., Rotterdam.

 Passengers eastward of Suez securing their berths in London are entitled to the conveyance of their luggage free to Marseilles.

ROYAL MAIL ROUTE, via PANAMA, for NORTH and SOUTH PACIFIC, Central America, Japan, and China.—The ROYAL MAIL STEAM PACKET COMPANY'S ATLANTIC STEAMERS now run through from Southampton to Colon (Aspinwall), by which arrangement passengers for the above localities will be conveyed to the Isthmus of Panama in the vessel in which they embark at Southampton.

Passengers and goods are booked

For the South Pacific, Central America, West Coast of Mexico, California, British Columbia ... ... } By steame from Southampton on 2nd and 17th of each month.

Japan and China... ... 17th of each month.

For further particulars apply to
J. M. LLOYD, Secretary.
Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, 55, Moorgate-street, London, E.C.

NOTICE.

THE interest and responsibility of Mr. WILLIAM PROBST in our firm ceased on the 31st of December, 1868, and Mr. OTTO CHRISTIAN BEHN and Mr. JOHANNES F. CORDES are admitted Partners therein from this date.

Mr. F. LANCKEN and Mr. C. W. SIEGFRIED have been authorised to sign our Firm per procuration.

WM. PUSTAU and CO.

China, 1st January, 1870.

CAUTION.

THE GROSS FRAUDS which continue to be practised by obscure manufacturers, more particularly in Germany, by imitating the labels attached to JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s PERFUMERY, render it imperative upon the Proprietors to Caution the public against such nefarious proceedings, and to request their friends and patrons to purchase only of respectable dealers, who import direct from JOHN GOSNELL and Co., and invite special attention to the address, ANGEL-PASSAGE, 93, UPPER THAMES-STREET, late of 12, Three King-court, Lombard-street, London, E.C.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s SELECT PERFUMES—Ess Bouquet Royal Yacht Club Bouquet, Jockey Club Perfume, Essence of Wood Violet, Victoria Bouquet, Garibaldi Bouquet, Frangipanni, Military Bouquet, The Bride's Bouquet, Tea Rose, Russian Leather Perfume.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Toilet Vinegar, Inexhaustible Salts, Aromatic Vinegar, Aromatic Eau de Cologne.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Prince of Wales Perfume
JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Princess Alexandra Perfume.
JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s La Noblesse Perfume.
JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s La Noblesse Pomade.
JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s La Noblesse Soap.
JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Real Old Brown Windsor Soap.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Golden Oil—Moelline—Macassar Oil, Bear's Grease, &c., for the Hair.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Extra Highly Scented Toilet and Nursery Powder.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Stereodesmic or Dentist Tooth Brushes and Trichosaron Hair Brushes, warranted to purchasers.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Instantaneous Hair Dye.

JOHN GOSNELL and Co.'s Cherry Tooth Paste is greatly superior to any tooth powder, gives the teeth a pearl-like whiteness, protects the enamel from decay, and imparts a pleasing fragrance to the breath.

Orders executed on receipt of 10 per cent. of the amount in cash, the balance being drawn for through a Banker.

THE LONDON & CHINA TELEGRAPH.

THE TWELFTH Volume of this JOURNAL commenced on the 10th of January, 1870. The Subscription for three numbers per month is 30s. per annum, including Postage, and to the Export Supplement 12s. extra. Terms for advertising, 2s. 6d. per five lines, and 6d. for each additional line.

Subscriptions and Advertisements received abroad by the following Agents:—

Paris	G. W. YAPP, 4, Place Wagram, Boulevard Pereire.
Brindisi	AGENTS FOR BRINDISI STEAMERS.
Hamburg	Mr. ONCKEN.
Holland (Rotterdam and Amsterdam)	COLONIAL AGENCY, Delftschevaart, 6.323, Rotterdam.
New York	WM. H. FOGG & Co., 32, Burling Slip.
San Francisco	WHITE & BAUER, 413, Washington-street.
Alexandria	DAVID ROBERTSON & Co., The Square.
Aden	COWASJEE DINSHAW.
Point de Galle	J. GIBSON, THOMSON, & Co. FREDK. PITERS.
Colombo	J. MAITLAND & Co.
Singapore, Labuan, and Sarawak	JOHN LITTLE & Co., Singapore
Penang	SANDILANDS, BUTTERY, & Co.
Saigon	RIBEIRO & Co.
Batavia	HUNTER, HOUGHTON & Co.
Samarang	DE GROOT, KOLFF, & Co.
Sourabaya
Anjer — Straits of Sunda	G. SCHUIT, Anjer Hotel.
Manila	MICHELL, BARNARD, & Co.
Hong Kong, Canton, Macao and Swatow	MORRIS & Co., Hong Kong.
Amoy	BROWN & Co.
Foochow	HEDGE & Co.
Shanghai	H. FOGG & Co.
Tien-Tsin	JAMES HENDERSON.
Nagasaki—Japan	PIGNATEL & Co.
Yokohama	E. C. KIRBY & Co.
Osaka and Hiogo	E. C. KIRBY & Co.

OFFICE 2, COWPER'S-COURT, CORNHILL, E.C.
(Over the JERUSALEM.)

Digitized by Google

TANJONG PAGAR DOCK COMPANY

(LIMITED).

VICTORIA DOCK, SINGAPORE.

This Company's Granite DRY DOCK, 450 feet in length, 65 feet width of entrance, and 20 feet depth of water on the sill, was OPENED on the 17th October, 1868. In the high tides of the North-East Monsoon there is a foot to eighteen inches more water.

In connection with the Dock is a complete range of workshops, fitted with steam machinery, driving all descriptions of engineers' tools required in the construction and repair of vessels and machinery, and a foundry for iron and brass castings.

The Company's extensive Wharves and Godowns for receiving and storing cargo immediately adjoin the Dock.

Having an efficient European staff in each department, the Company is in a position to guarantee the best workmanship, executed with every possible despatch, as well as low rates of charges.

These advantages, and the great facilities which the proximity of the Dock to the town offers for the transport of materials, &c., enable this Company to adopt a very low scale of charges for ships' work of all classes.

LONDON AGENTS.

Messrs. MACTAGGART, TIDMAN, and CO., 34, Great St. Helens.

E. M. SMITH, Manager.

OVERLAND ROUTE.—The PENINSULAR AND ORIENTAL STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY book Passengers and receive Cargo and Parcels by their steamers for—

	From Southampton.	From Marseilles.
GIBRALTAR ...	Every Saturday, at 2 P.M.	—
MALTA	,, ,,	—
ALEXANDRIA.	,, ,,	Every Sunday, at 7 A.M.
ADEN	,, ,,	,, ,,
*BOMBAY	,, ,,	,, ,,
GALLE
MADRAS	Saturday, March 5, 2 P.M.	Sunday, March 13, 7 A.M.
CALCUTTA ...
PENANG	And every alternate Saturday thereafter.	And every alternate Sunday thereafter.
SINGAPORE ...
CHINA
JAPAN
AUSTRALIA ...	Saturday, March 19 2 P.M. And every fourth Saturday thereafter.	Sunday, March 27, 7 A.M. And every fourth Sunday thereafter.

And all ports touched at by the British India Steam Navigation Company's steamers.

* The following reduced rates will be charged to Bombay:—

From Southampton... £72 first class; £45 second class.
From Marseilles ... 70 ,, 43 ,,

exclusive of transit through Egypt. A corresponding reduction will be made in the rates from Bombay to Europe.

For further particulars apply at the Company's Offices, 122, Leadenhall-street, London, or Oriental-place, Southampton.

NEW ROUTE TO CHINA AND JAPAN, VIA LIVERPOOL.

THE WEST INDIA AND PACIFIC STEAM SHIP COMPANY (Limited) sign through bills of lading for goods to Yokohama Nagasaki, Hong Kong, and Shanghai, via San Francisco, by the Pacific Mail steam Ship Company's new line of mail steamers from that port.

Passengers will find excellent accommodation, and the fares more reasonable than by any other route.

For terms, &c., apply to the Agents, J. M. CURRIE, Esq., 21, Quai d'Orleans, Havre, or 7, Rue Scribe, Paris; or at the Company's Offices, 147, Leadenhall-street, London, and The Temple, Dale-street, Liverpool.

ARTHUR B. FORWOOD, Managing Director.

CIRCULAR.

THE undersigned, having retired from the firm of Messrs. Smith, Bell, and Co., of this city, have entered into partnership to carry on the business of Merchants and Commission Agents at the port of Cebu, under the firm of PICKFORD and Co., and at Manila under the style of MACLEOD, PICKFORD, and Co., which houses are now established.

N. MACLEOD.
Manila, Oct., 1869. C. B. B. PICKFORD.

MAIL ROUTE FOR CALIFORNIA, JAPAN AND CHINA, VIA PANAMA.

THE PACIFIC MAIL STEAM SHIP COMPANY despatch their splendid side-wheel steamers from NEW YORK on the 5th and 21st, and from PANAMA on the 13th and 29th of every month for SAN FRANCISCO (calling at ACAPULCO and MANZANILLA en route), thence to YOKOHAMA, HIOGO, NAGASAKI, SHANGHAI, and HONG KONG, on the 1st of every month. Passengers from England may connect with this line at New York by any of the various lines of steamers from Liverpool, Glasgow, Southampton, or Havre.

Passengers by this line are less than ten days in the tropics.

SANDWICH ISLANDS and BRITISH COLUMBIA.—The steamers of the North Pacific Transportation Company leave San Francisco at regular intervals for those countries.

H. STARR and Co., Agents, 22, Moorgate-street, London.

UNION PACIFIC RAILWAY.—THROUGH LINE from NEW YORK to SAN FRANCISCO.

San Francisco, in 18 days from England.
Japan ..... in 38 ,, ,,
China ..... in 44 ,, ,,

Passengers for California and intermediate points on this road may now be booked through from England at the established rates of fare; and from San Francisco to Japan China, &c., by the magnificent steamers of the Pacific Mail Company.

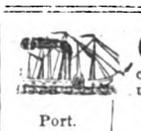
For Rates, Tickets, &c., apply to H. STARR and Co., Agents, 22, Moorgate-street, London.

SINGAPORE, CHINA, AND JAPAN.

ROBERTSON and CO. will despatch the following first-class clipper VESSELS:—

Destination.	Ships.	Class.	Dock.	Last Shipping Day.
Singapore, Hong Kong, Shanghai, Nagasaki, & Yokohama	Nile, s.s., via S. Canl.	A1 13 yr.	E.I.D.	March 18
Shanghai	Northampton	A1 16 yr	E.I.D.	March 19
Hong Kong	Lufra (new).	A1 13 yr.	W.I.D.	With des.
Chefoo	Chingtoo (n.)	A1 13 yr.	W.I.D	With des.
Tientsin and Newchwang	Geo. Shotton	A1 14 yr.	W.I.D.	With des
Yokohama & Hiogo	Pegasus	A1 13 yr.	W.I.D	With des.

For Freight and Passage apply at 5, Newman's-court, Cornhill, London; or York Chambers, 55, King-street, Manchester.



CHINA and JAPAN.—The following splendid first-class SHIPS will be despatched as under:—

Port.	Ship.	Class.	Dock	Last Shipping Day.
Shanghai ...	Jung Frau	A1 16 yr	E.I.D.	March 10
Do.	C of Hankow	A1 17 yr	E I D.	March 25
Do.	Araby Maid	AA1	E.I.D.	To follow
Do.	Omba	A1 16 yr.	E.I.D	To follow
Hong Kong Yokohama.	Ld. Macaulay	A1 13 yr.	E.I.D.	With des.
Kanagawa.	Lota	A1 13 yr.	E I.D.	With des.
Do.	Rollo	A1 13 yr.	W.I D.	With des.

For Freight or Passage apply to KILLICK, MARTIN and Co., 10, George-yard, Lombard-street, E.C.

CHINA AND JAPAN.

THE following high-classed Clipper VESSELS will be despatched as under:—

Port.	Ship.	Class.	Dock.	Last Shipping Day.
Yokohama (Kanagawa)	Espiegle	A1 14 yr	E I D.	With des.
Do.	Pak Wan ...	A1 14 yr.	E I D.	With des.
Nagasaki & Chefoo ...	Zohrab (new)	A1 9 yr.	E.I.D	With des

For Freight or Passage apply to NORRIS and JOYNER, 60, Cornhill, E C.

To sail on the 26th March.

FOR SHANGHAI, the splendid composite clipper, TAUNTON, A 1 16 years, 688 tons register; JAMES HOGG, Commander; East India Docks.

For Freight or Passage, apply to SHAW, MAXTON and Co., 2, Royal Exchange Buildings, London. E C.

To sail on the 11th March.

FOR SHANGHAI, the splendid new Aberdeen clipper GLENAVON, AAI 830 tons register; JAMES HENDERSON, Commander; East India Docks. This ship has just completed her first voyage from Foo-Choo-Foo in 100 days.

For Freight apply to SHAW, MAXTON, and Co., 2, Royal Exchange-buildings, London, E.C.

Regular Line of Packet Ship

FOR HONG KONG, the splendid Clipper Ship ALBERT VICTOR, A1 13 years (built by Messrs Robert Steele and Co., Greenock), 858 tons register; DAVID MUIR, Commander; East India Docks.

For Freight or Passage, apply to SHAW, MAXTON, and Co. 2, Royal Exchange-buildings, London, E.C.

Printed for the Proprietors by WOODFALL and KINDER, Milford-lane, Strand, W.C., and published by JAMES WEST, at the Office of the "LONDON AND CHINA TELEGRAPH," 2, Cowper's-court, Cornhill in the parish of St. Michael's, in the City of London.—Monday, March 7, 1870.

Digitized by Google

THE NEW CHINA CONVENTION.

DEPUTATION TO LORD CLARENDON.

On Monday, the 28th ult., a deputation of members of Parliament, merchants, and others interested in the China trade (about ninety in number), waited on Lord Clarendon at the Foreign-office to state their objections to Sir R. Alcock's new Convention. A list of those present will be found below. With Lord Clarendon were Mr. Otway, M.P., Mr. Hammond, Sir L. Mallet, and Mr. Shaw-Lefevre, M.P., Under-Secretaries to the Foreign-office and the Board of Trade. The deputation was introduced by Mr. Crawford, M.P., who spoke as follows:—

MR. CRAWFORD: My Lord, I have been requested to undertake the formal duty of introducing this deputation to your Lordship, and to state in a few words what is the object we have in view in asking your Lordship to receive us here to-day. In a meeting containing so great a number of members of Parliament, as you see here present, I need hardly go through the task of introducing individuals to your Lordship. Although we have the presence here to-day of a great many gentlemen from various towns and ports in England, the deputation is essentially a deputation from the City of London. The object the deputation has in view is to represent to your Lordship the views they entertain with regard to this supplemental Treaty, which has been concluded in China by Sir Rutherford Alcock. It is essentially a matter of detail, and, on that account, I will, with your Lordship's permission, ask other gentlemen, who are more familiar than I am with the Treaty, or rather with the operation, which it is supposed it will have on our commercial relations with China, to bring the subject before your Lordship. Mr. Hugh Matheson will first address your Lordship.

MR. HUGH MATHESON: It cannot be surprising to your Lordship that the merchants of London should take a warm interest in this China Convention. The great territory of China, with its vast population, estimated at 400,000,000, was partly opened to our trade, as your Lordship is well aware, under the Treaty of Nanking; but it was more particularly opened under the Treaty of Tientsin, concluded by Lord Elgin in 1858, which Treaty was completed in 1860. I should like in the name of the merchants of London to pay a tribute of warm respect to the memory of the Earl of Elgin, who brought to the consideration of that great Treaty the most distinguished ability, and who showed so much knowledge, consideration, and appreciation of the magnitude of the interests involved in it. Under the Treaty of Tientsin a very large extension of the British trade with China has taken place, so much so that, from a recent parliamentary return, we find that the value of exports and imports into China, not including Hong Kong, in the year 1868, amounted to no less a sum than forty-five millions sterling. Of this fully one half is represented by British trade, and, independently of indirect advantages to the Chinese from this trade, the amount of duties levied by them at their ports was about three millions sterling. Unquestionably there was mutual benefit to the Chinese and to British subjects from the opening of China under the Treaty of Tientsin, which is the one under which we are now trading. It is quite true, as has been alleged, that the Treaty was negotiated after the successful operations of our troops; but, at the same time, it is equally true that the Earl of Elgin forbore to press upon the Chinese Government the exaction of advantages which, as a conqueror, he might have claimed, naturally wishing to show them, as a Government, all due respect, and fearing that if he were to press too hardly upon them he might injure their position and prestige with their countrymen. Under your Lordship's instructions, therefore, and with a magnanimity for which his memory is entitled to, and receives, the very highest honour, he did not press the Chinese. He felt it might go hard with them if he were to do so; but he laid down principles, the recognition of which he obtained from the Chinese, which were calculated to develop the intercourse between the two nations, and gradually to open up that great country, with its highways and especially its vast water-ways, to the trade of foreign countries, and particularly of Great Britain. He provided also that after the experience of ten years a revision might take place of the terms of the Treaty. It is in connection with that revision we are here to day; and when it was announced that the revision was to take place during the present year, which I believe was as long ago as 1867, we confidently expected that provision would be made for the removal of various hindrances and obstacles that we had found practically in the way of the extension of trade, and for the introduction of still greater facilities than we had heretofore enjoyed for the progress of commerce, which has certainly enriched us, and which has as certainly enriched China. Everything looked favourable. We had in Sir Rutherford Alcock, the British Minister at Peking, an officer of great and varied experience in China; and we had, moreover, despatches from him addressed to the various mercantile communities, in which he invited suggestions from them, and in answer to his invitation a very large body of information was conveyed to him by the Chambers of Commerce in China. These are all public documents. We, therefore, confidently expected that we should have, in the Convention, distinct advantages for trade, and it would be very much more satisfactory to us, my Lord, to be here to-day to congratulate Her Majesty's Government on a great success, rather than to take what is a painful and very ungracious attitude, namely, that of criticising what has been done. (Hear, hear.) But we have no alternative, because, in several respects, the great object to which I have referred, the opening up of China for the free expansion of trade, has not been sufficiently guarded by Her Majesty's representative out there in negotiating this Convention. It has been attempted to be shown that there is a diversity of opinion among the mercantile body upon this subject. I should be very glad if we could entertain the suspicion that we were deceiving ourselves, but I am afraid we are deprived of that entirely, because nearly all of the Chambers of Commerce have spoken in the same sense in which we have felt compelled to speak in the memorial which we have had the honour to send to your Lordship. We find the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce have spoken quite as emphatically as we have done; the Hong Kong Chamber, and, in this country, the important Chambers of Manchester and Glasgow, besides the Amalgamated Society of Chambers of Commerce in London, have passed resolutions to the same effect. Therefore, I am afraid we are at one in wishing that more inquiry be made before the ratification of this Convention. We think it has been hastily got up, without due regard to the experience and the opinions of the merchants, who, at very great expense, and with very costly establishments, have been carrying on the trade there. My Lord, the details of the measure will be referred to by some gentlemen around me who have them thoroughly at command. Mr. Bower, a merchant of large experience in this country, as well as in China, will refer especially to the question of transit dues, upon which, I think, there ought to be no difference of opinion whatever, because the term "transit dues" was made use of by Lord Elgin distinctly and clearly to mean all internal taxation whatever. It is so specified in despatches over and over again that the term transit dues was to be applied to all inland taxation whatever. That is an important key to our opposition to the terms in which these transit dues are now dealt with in the Convention. Mr. Bower will, therefore, speak on that subject. Mr. Gilman, an old merchant connected with China, indeed, resident there as a merchant before the Treaty of Nanking, will address your Lordship on the silk duties, and Mr. Magniac will follow and take up the remaining points.

Lord CLARENDON: Perhaps I had better hear you all before I make a reply.

Mr. BOWER: I have been requested, my Lord Clarendon, by the merchants of the City of London and others interested in the China trade, to submit to your consideration the reasons which have compelled them to send to Her Majesty's Government, through your Lordship, a memorial against the ratification of this Convention, so far as those considerations relate to the system by which the textile products of this country are imported into China. It is to be observed in the outset that the new arrangements under this head propounded by this Convention are those upon which the authors of this Convention chiefly rest their claim to our gratitude. It is to be noted further that they are the very conditions to which we most emphatically and strenuously object. Our opposition, therefore, as Mr. Matheson has said, is truly an ungracious one. We recognise most completely the zeal for our interest of Her Majesty's Minister in China, but we believe that he has been utterly mistaken. I must claim your indulgence while I divide this question into two heads—I think we shall consult brevity by doing so. The first is, what the Convention contains as compared with what we enjoyed under the Treaty, supposing Convention and Treaty were alike fully observed. If I succeed in showing that, as I believe cannot be doubted, the Convention is highly disadvantageous as compared with the Treaty, it would yet remain to be considered whether its provisions, though less advantageous, were so much more likely to be practically observed that it was desirable to adopt them. My Lord, the Treaty of Tientsin, under which we have carried on our trade since 1858, provides, in short, this—that when our goods reach China they shall pay a fixed rate of duty equivalent to about five per cent. ad valorem. That duty frees them through the Custom-house; and next—China being a country in which internal transit and other dues are current—we, if we wish to free our goods from the port of entry to any other part of China, clear of all further taxation whatsoever, have the option of doing so upon making a further payment equal to half the import duty. But, my Lord, the Convention provides very differently. It provides that this extra duty, or transit duty, shall cease to be optional, and shall become compulsory, and payable in all cases upon importation. It provides that in nine provinces out of the eighteen of which China consists, and in the whole of the territories not comprised in these provinces, this compulsory payment shall free us from transit duty only, construing transit as applying to goods in motion; but, as regards all other internal duties, shall leave us in the hands of the local Governments to exact what they may please. Now, it is plain that under the Treaty five per cent. import duty and 2½ per cent. for internal dues would free us of all China, but that the Convention would leave us, as regards nine provinces out of the eighteen, subject to that which Sir Henry Pottinger in 1842, and Lord Elgin in 1858, took infinite pains to free us from, namely, the capricious internal exactions of Chinese officials spread throughout the country. If I have rightly described what is conceded to us under the Treaty as compared with what is conceded to us under the Convention, I think no one can doubt that the Treaty is the more advantageous to us. But it is proper to state that Sir Rutherford Alcock utterly denies our construction of the Treaty of Tientsin. He says, "True, you have the option of paying this 2½ per cent. as transit duty, but transit means something in motion, and when your goods get to their destination they are free no longer, they are exposed to whatever charges the local Governments may exact from them. If, my Lord, Sir Rutherford Alcock is correct, then have we, the merchants of China—then, so far as we know, have all the officials—then, so far as we know, has the Foreign-office in London, for a quarter of a century, from the year 1842, when Sir Henry Pottinger made the Treaty of Nanking, down to some two or three years ago, been wholly mistaken as to what was provided for in that Treaty. My Lord, I think that this very important question is capable of being effectually cleared up. You are well aware that Lord Elgin, one of the clearest-headed men that it was ever my lot to meet, took the greatest pains for many months, as shown by numerous despatches, in the consideration of this subject and a satisfactory arrangement of it. What does Lord Elgin say was his conclusion? I quote from correspondence relating to the Earl of Elgin's special Mission to China and Japan, 1857-59, presented pursuant to an address of the House of Commons, July, 1859:—"I have the honour" (this despatch was addressed to your Lordship's successor, Lord Malmesbury) "to remi-herewith a tariff of duties and accompanying rules or articles. . . . Rule 7 applies and extends the principle respecting transit duties which is laid down by Article 28 of the Treaty of Tientsin. Henceforward, on payment of a sum in name"—observe the phrase—"in name of transit duty, which for simplicity's sake has been fixed at one-half of the tariff rate of duty, goods, whether of export or import, will be free to pass between the port of shipment or entry to or from any part of China without further charge of toll, octroi, or tax of any description whatsoever. I confess that I consider this to be a most important point gained in the future interest of foreign trade with China. In every representation on the general subject of trade which I have received from mercantile bodies or individuals since I came to China, the system, or no system, under which transit duties are now levied has been pressed upon me as a grievance. I have always thought that the remedy was to be sought in the substitution of one fixed payment for the present irregular and multiplied levies. At the same time, in a country where duties of octroi are habitually resorted to as an expedient for supplying the wants both of the local and Imperial treasuries, it was obviously difficult to devise a scheme for the commutation of transit duties which, without creating great financial disturbance, should prove an effectual protection to the importing and exporting merchants. The rule now under consideration has been very carefully framed, and will, I trust, in practice, afford a reasonable security against both of the two classes of evils which I have indicated." My Lord, I cannot imagine even the clearest despatch-writer—and Lord Elgin was one—saying anything more conclusive upon the point in difference between us and Sir R. Alcock. But I have said the Convention, being in itself a restriction of our rights, it might yet be possible that the smaller rights left to us under the Convention would be better observed than the larger ones secured to us by the Treaty. I must note, therefore, for a moment the causes of the failure of this transit duty clause under the Treaty. In part it has been this, that when we paid our 2½ per cent., took out our certificate and sent our goods into the country, we found, not always, but in a great majority of cases, that further taxes were levied quite irrespective of the Treaty, quite irrespective of the payment we had made at the port. Now it is very difficult to obtain proof of such exactions. The Chinese are not a people who complain readily of their own officials, but cases did happen which we could establish by indisputable evidence. Then began our miseries—correspondence with the Consul; Consul writing back; and next, applications to Peking; correspondence there—months elapse, and the matter is at length referred to the Home Government, and in the end altogether abandoned. In some cases it happens that the Chinese Government finds itself compelled to admit that a wrong has been done, and redress is promised. What follows? The claim is ordered to be paid and the matter settled; but we are then no nearer a settlement, and in the majority of cases we do not get a penny. Numbers of admitted claims, with orders to pay them, exist to this day, and still unpaid. Well, what is now proposed to be done? For a single moment consider what the Government of China is. The Central Government at Peking is known to the eighteen provinces, of which this enormous empire mainly consists, chiefly as the feudal lords of the annual tribute which the provinces must provide—amounting to some fifteen millions sterling. For the rest, the provincial authorities collect their own revenues, it is supposed some forty or fifty millions more, and administer their own Government. There is a great army of officials spread over the country who conduct their duties on the principle of small pay eked out from what are expressively called "squeezes." The Chinese people make no particular objection to this. The usage is so ancient, and so universal among them, that they regard it as a part of the law of nature. The business then of these officials is to furnish the established amount to the revenue, and to retain as handsome a balance for themselves as circumstances will permit, short of driving the people to extremity. Now the dues on transit, and other local taxes, are part of the recognised revenues of the country, due to the local Governments, and necessary to their existence. It is the weak point of the Tientsin Treaty that in commuting them for a fixed payment, it made that payment to the Central Government, to the detriment of the local Governments, and so made the latter hostile to the provision. But does the present Convention do anything to remedy this difficulty? On the contrary, it removes from the Central Government the only inducement it possessed to take measures to see the Treaty properly observed, by withdrawing our option to refrain from paying if we found the equivalent wanting, for they are now to get the whole commutation paid at once, and paid always. We are, therefore, brought to the conviction that this Convention is inexpedient and unsound. My Lord, I would only say, in conclusion, that this is not a time at which to try novel experiments in our trade with China, based upon new readings of the probable result. We know from our manufacturing districts that the home market has lost much of its elasticity, that the continental markets are closing against us, and the horizon is anxiously scanned for larger and more profitable outlets. We need not look in vain. It requires only that the rights secured to us under the Treaty of Tientsin should receive a little careful management by patience combined with firmness, and the flood-gates will be opened which will admit in rapidly increasing quantities the products of our looms into the centre of a multitudinous, and, so far as their alien rulers will permit, a friendly people. It is the object, as it would be the result, of this Convention, if it is unhappily ratified, to bar those gates anew against us. We come before your Lordship to entreat you to deliver us from it. We beseech—nay, do we presume too far if we claim from the Government of the Queen, that it will preserve to us, unimpaired by this mistaken Convention, the privileges obtained for us by the greatest Minister that ever England sent to China—the rights solemnly granted to us by the Treaty of Tientsin.

Digitized by Google

Mr. GILMAN: The subject on which I have to address your Lordship is happily a much less complex one than that which has been treated by the gentleman who has preceded me. He has anticipated me in many remarks I proposed to make as to how it has happened that this Convention should contain provisions so very different from those which were expected of it, and I have the satisfaction of feeling, in addressing myself to this subject, that I have the British Government on our side. I find by Sir Rutherford Alcock's despatches, that the Board of Trade expressed the wish that duties should not be increased, and your Lordship also a doubt as to the expediency of the reception of a Chinese Consul at Hong Kong. Now, my Lord, the duties are increased very greatly, and your Lordship's sagacious doubt has been disregarded. How has this happened? I think it is sufficiently explained by the fact that the Convention was negotiated by Mr. Hart. Now, my Lord, who is Mr. Hart? A gentleman of character and ability: I have nothing to say in his disparagement, and if I had I should not say it here and in his absence. But what is Mr. Hart? He is the Inspector of Chinese Customs at Shanghai; and I venture most respectfully to remark that I think it behoves the British Government to watch somewhat cautiously the movements of the class of men to which Mr. Hart belongs. They are in the employ of the Chinese Government, they are paid by them; bound up in Chinese interests, they become in the course of time imbued with Chinese ideas, and the necessary effect of their position is to render them more or less, according to their particular characters, to some extent denationalised. I think that to men of this class our national interests—more particularly our commercial interests—should not be entrusted. (Loud cheers.) I would make another remark; and it is, whether it was a wise measure to abolish the office of Superintendent of Trade, or rather to vest the office in the person of a high political officer, resident not among the merchants, but remote from them—resident at Peking. We, my Lord, consider this Convention to be one great mistake; but in it there are many minor mistakes into which a man of Sir Rutherford Alcock's ability would not have fallen had he been in a situation in which he could have had the advantage of learning merchants' opinions, not by cumbrous correspondence, but in moving among them, learning, in short, the views on matters of business of business men. I hope I may be pardoned for these observations. I feel I have been treading on dangerous ground; but if I have said anything which I was not entitled to say I beg your Lordship's pardon.

Lord CLARENDON: Not at all.

Mr. GILMAN: On the Consular question I need not speak, as it has been made the subject of a separate memorial to the Colonial-office, and no doubt will receive due attention. As to opium, I have nothing to say except to express my individual opinion that, whatever may be the merits or the demerits of the trade, it is entitled to as much protection as that in any other commodity. I now proceed to the more immediate subject with which I am charged, namely, the increased duty on raw silk, an article, I need not say, of prime importance. This increase is justified on various grounds, and first as a set-off against certain concessions made to us, the value of which has been inquired into by the gentleman who has preceded me. It has been shown that Sir Rutherford Alcock is mistaken as to the price he has paid for these supposed advantages, inasmuch as he calculated the increased duty on silk at a trifle over 1 per cent., whereas your Lordship will see from our memorial that it is actually considerably over 3 per cent. Such a mistake as this could not possibly have been made had Sir Rutherford Alcock possessed the advantages to which I have alluded. But even were the advantages obtained as great as they are said to be, I do not see on what principle one particular article of trade should be called on to pay for them. I do not see why the silk duty should be doubled because advantages are given to other branches of our trade. Passing from that, it is said that we cannot expect concessions unless we are prepared to make concessions. Now, what have we to concede to the Chinese? The whole course of our legislation, for years past, has been favourable to them in every respect; the subjects of China can, of course, come here: they can trade where they please; they can do what they please; they have every privilege which the subjects of the British empire have. As to our commercial legislation, there is no duty on raw silk, there is no duty on camphor, rhurbarb, cassia, or any of the other articles with which China supplies us; all these have been abolished. The duty on tea some years ago amounted to 2s. 2½d. a pound. It is now reduced to 6d., and we hope somewhere about April next to hear it has been abolished altogether. (Laughter and cheers.) Under this liberal system the importation of tea, which in the East India Company's time was only thirty-two millions of pounds, last year amounted to one hundred and thirty-three millions. If we consider the thousands and hundreds of thousands of people employed in this vast trade, it is hardly necessary to point out what an immense boon this is to the Chinese nation. The Chinese Government cares nothing for this; but they do care for and understand how their own revenue has been increased by the extension of trade in this one article alone. They claim from us, however, an increase in the duty on silk, on grounds which Sir Rutherford Alcock says are irresistible.—(Mr. Gilman here read an extract from Sir Rutherford Alcock's despatch, justifying it on the ground of the duty now paid being far below what it should be on the basis of 5 per cent. adopted by Treaty, and proceeded to say):—It is quite true, my Lord, that, according to the present prices of silk, this addition is justifiable except as regards Canton silk. A very extraordinary degree of favour has been shown to a description of silk which is brought to market in really such small quantities that one is left to wonder why it should be thought of, that is Scechuen silk, of which the average production is about 300 bales per annum; and, in favour of that a differential duty is to be established; but on Canton silk, of which the annual export is 5,000 bales, or fifteen per cent. of our whole supply, and which is all of low quality, no difference has been made. Again, here is an oversight which could not possibly have occurred had Sir Rutherford Alcock had men of business at hand to advise him. Well, my Lord, with this exception, the additional duty may be justified according to the present scale of prices, but it must be remembered that the present scale of prices is altogether an abnormal one. I have taken great trouble to look into the record of the prices of former years. I have looked through dusty documents of about thirty-five years past, and I find such prices as now rule have until the last few years been without example. The present duty is a perfectly fair one on the natural value of the article. The present increase of value is due to various causes. One cause is the exactions of the Chinese Government. The Chinese have gone on gradually levying and increasing the inland dues, and in that way raising prices. A greater cause of the advance, however, is doubtless the Chinese rebellion, the devastation in the silk districts produced by it, and the consequent diminished production. The third and greatest reason of all is the lamentable disease which has spread over Europe of late years—the disease in the silkworm itself. My Lord, as to the Chinese exactions being removed, I have no very lively hope; but the rebellion is now repressed, mainly by our aid, and in some degree at our cost. It may be hoped that its effects will pass away, and it certainly should be the object of the Chinese Government to foster their own trade, to encourage and not burden it with fresh taxation. The third and great cause of the advance in price, the silkworm disease, we may hope will be removed like other such diseases have been, such as the murrain among cattle, the disease in the vine, and the potato; and, were that to happen, doubtless we should have in time a return to our former scale of prices. The high prices are not the result of increased use but of diminished production, and the high price is the strongest argument that can be used—not for, but against increased taxation. I have so far, I think shown (and I have very little more to say) that the increased duty is illiberal and impolitic. I have now to show that, so far from the Chinese case for an increase of duty being irresistibly just, it is most unjust when compared with the duty levied on other articles. The only other important article the Chinese have to send us is tea. The average value of tea cannot be taken at over twenty taels per picul. The duty, therefore, according to the 5 per cent. basis, should be one tael. The duty actually levied, and which has been cheerfully paid, is 2½ taels. Therefore, the duty is, as stated in our memorial, 12½ per cent. instead of 5 per cent.; and on this article the Chinese Government receive £748,000 per annum, instead of £299,000, which is all they are entitled to. I think the same justice may be demanded for tea which is by them demanded for silk. I cannot see why, if the duty on silk is to be brought up to the 5 per cent. level, the duty on tea should not be brought down to it. Having now shown that the increase proposed is illiberal, impolitic, and unjust, I leave the case of this great branch of our national industry, unhappily a struggling and declining one, with confidence in your Lordship's hands.

Digitized by Google

Mr. MAGNIAC, M.P.: I have been requested, my Lord, to bring to your Lordship's notice the remaining points in this Convention not touched upon by the previous speakers. I propose to take Sir Rutherford Alcock's own headings in his despatch to the French Minister, but I believe I can dispose of ten or twelve of them in a very few words. If not occupying too much time I should like to read them, because it is desirable that those concerned should know what value we attach to them. The first twelve, to take them as numbered in Sir Rutherford Alcock's despatch, are Nos. 7, 9, 10, 11, 16, 17, 8, Duty-free Articles, Drawbacks, Tea Bonds, Manifests, Tonnage Dues, Rules for Sycee, Dock Stores. These are so trifling that we think they might have been settled by the Consul without referring to Her Majesty's Minister. No. 5 is Poyang Lake steamtug. Sir Rutherford Alcock disposes of that concession in his own despatch covering Mr. Swinhoe's report on the Yangtsze, in which he says that he does not expect it will be of any value. No. 13, Coal Mines, is a doubtful point on which we do not desire to speak at present. For many years these coal mines have been worked, and it depends on the goodwill of the Chinese whether they will be of any value whatever. The last heading on the small list is that of Duties Remitted. They amount to £7,000 a-year only, and I need not trouble your Lordship with them. The first important point I am called upon to speak about is comprised in Nos. 1 and 2 in the list, which include Inland Navigation and the Renting of Houses in the interior. I believe I am quite correct in saying that, if there ever was a point of importance to our trade, it is that included under these two headings. It was not so much that people desired to go and live in the interior of China, but that they regarded this concession as a means to an end. By these means they hoped to overcome the obstructions of the Chinese officials, and to check the undue exactions which were charged on their goods sent into the interior. The Chamber of Commerce at Shanghai, in answer to a circular from Sir Rutherford Alcock, who begged them to express their opinion as to the chief points which should be arranged in the revision of this Treaty, placed these two subjects in a most prominent position. The words are:—"The Chamber cannot impress too strongly upon his Excellency the necessity of urging this point upon the Peking Government." Well, my Lord, what was our surprise when we came to examine the text of this Convention to find that not only had the negotiator not impressed these points on the Peking mind, but that they had put us in regard to them in a far worse position than we were in before. I will not take up time by giving the exact words of the Tientsin Treaty; but in Article 9 it states, in effect, that British subjects may travel for purposes of trade in all parts of the Empire. They have power, under Article 12, "whether at ports or at other places," to build houses, warehouses, churches, &c., and may, under Article 14, hire boats, and so on. It was in compliance with the desire of Lord Elgin that the right to enjoy these privileges was waived to a certain extent. In fact, the right has not been pressed by the Europeans in China out of consideration to the representations made to them urging them to give time to allow the first novelty of the European presence in China to pass away; but certainly I must say we did not expect that a less power would be agreed to in this new Convention, and then that it should be flaunted in our eyes as something gained. If this Convention is carried out I need not say that the very limited extent to which these rights have been exercised will be further restricted, because the limitations in the new clauses are so serious that there will be no possibility for a European to fix his permanent residence in the interior—and why should he not? I believe I am strictly within the truth when I say that there is not a single instance of any man who is a real bona fide trader having made himself obnoxious to the authorities in the interior. (Hear, hear.) We heard with great pain, and I say it with reluctance in your Lordship's presence, but, as there are reporters here, I think that people's minds should be disabused of a false impression—but we have heard a very obnoxious term used to describe the dealings of the Europeans with the Chinese. It is some years ago since I was in China, but I was there fifteen years ago.

Lord CLARENDON: I beg your pardon for interrupting you, but by whom is this supposed?

Mr. MAGNIAC: It is an expression which has been used in this country. It has been stated as indicating the way China merchants treat the Chinese.

Lord CLARENDON: I have not heard of it.

Mr. MAGNIAC: We also feel very strongly that this impression is strengthened by a running accompaniment of adverse criticisms towards the merchants throughout the whole of Sir Rutherford Alcock's despatches. (Hear, hear.) We have felt very much pained and grieved at some of the expressions he has used. There is one expression that I shall have to notice later. We feel that there is an opinion that we are not dealing with the Chinese as we should like to be dealt with ourselves. I believe that is a most mistaken notion. Many of us have had Chinese friends who are quite as friendly with us as any friends we have in England, and I can sincerely say for myself, and for many Chinese merchants, that we feel for a Chinaman of equal rank, and treat him exactly in the same way as we would a European. (Hear, hear.) My Lord, I was about to mention that Sir Rutherford Alcock has contrasted us with the Russians. He said that the Russians lived in better harmony with the Chinese than we do. But Sir Rutherford Alcock ought to know that, though they are Russian subjects, from their race and Calmuck origin, they are much more Chinese in manner, speech, and appearance than natives of our distant country can possibly be. We know that ninety-nine Europeans out of one hundred, if allowed to go into China for the purposes of trade, would confine themselves to their trade, and would be much greater fools than I take them for if, instead of selling their goods and realising a fortune, and getting home as soon as they can, they set up their backs and determine to have a "row" with the people with whom they are dealing. (Cheers.) There are, further, three points which I need not waste time about—Commercial Code, Bonded Warehouses, and Hong Kong Transhipment; they are called concessions, but hardly require a Treaty to make them binding. That concludes the list of concessions made to us, with the exception of the opening of new ports—Wuhu and Wenchow. The Chamber of Shanghai stated that Wahu, as an experimental port, might be considered valuable, but they were not speaking of the general merits of ports in China, but only, at the request of Sir R. Alcock, as to the comparative merits of five or six ports named. The port of Wenchow is probably well situated, but, as I said before, the merits of these two are merely comparative. It has always been pressed on every Minister as the first point claiming his intervention, that we ought to have more inland points. People in this country do not speak of a place inland as a port, but they are so in China; and the magnificent rivers are the evident means of opening up the country. If intercourse with China is to become general, it must be by opening a port 1,000 miles inland, with access to it by steam. (Loud cheers.) If, my Lord, China were canvassed on the subject, I believe that would be the one stipulation for which they would be willing to concede everything that could with any right or propriety be conceded. When I have said the distance at which these ports are situated I need not say it would be an illusory gift if it was not accompanied by steam navigation. To drag a boat by means of tracking against a current at the rate of two miles an hour is certainly a long proceeding, and, if our trade is to be opened in China, it must be by opening the Treaty Ports on the great rivers, with free access to them by steam. I must now refer to points we have conceded. The increased duties enable China to levy fresh revenue amounting to £800,000 a year. That is no small sum. If, when the former treaties had been ratified, it had been supposed that the revenue from those duties would have amounted to that, everybody would have said we were over sanguine. But this small addition will benefit them to the extent I have named. A concession which Sir Rutherford Alcock supports in very strong language, and about which there is a good deal of feeling, is that of the appointment of Consuls in Hong Kong; he says if there is to be any reciprocity in the mutual relations between China and England this cannot be refused. If China were England, and England still England, reciprocity would be reciprocity; but as we know how things really are, we have a right to examine the proposal carefully. We have mentioned, in our memorial, a certain course of action that we feel persuaded will be adopted by the mandarin who is appointed to the duty of Consul at Hong Kong. Sir Rutherford Alcock's reason for pressing the appointment of this Consul is to prevent smuggling at Hong Kong. He says in his despatch that "Hong Kong is confessedly a great smuggling depot," and he further states that "the appointment will control the smuggling propensities of the Chinese in league with the foreign merchant." It is impossible to deny, and we, who are acquainted with the place, do not wish to deny, that there is smuggling to a considerable extent among the Chinese; but much, though illegal, is not smuggling. We think it was quite uncalled for on the part of Sir Rutherford Alcock to describe Hong Kong as a great smuggling depot, as if nothing went on there but smuggling. If we look at the map we shall find that there is no Treaty Port south and west of Hong Kong but Canton, the consequence of which is that there is a great deal of illegal shipping. This is not smuggling in our sense of the word, and it is due to the obstinacy of the Chinese, who put these restrictive regulations upon trade. The port of Kiung Chow is situated in a part of China exactly where it was wanted, and we are told that a large trade would have been done there, and that it would have been a death-blow to a great deal of these illegal shipments. (Hear, hear.) We should only be too glad if proper means are found for putting an end to illegalities of this kind in China. The cause, however, of one-half of them is the extortion and corruption of the Chinese authorities themselves. That is a fact which many gentlemen here know perfectly well. (Hear, hear.) I have reserved to the last a point upon which we feel very strongly, and which we believe, with one exception, to be the most important in the whole Convention. It is contained in the first article of the Treaty—the Favoured Nation Clause. I feel very diffident of arguing such a subject in the presence of your Lordship.

Digitized by Google

Lord CLARENDON: I believe I may say that we do not insist on that article. (Loud cries of "Hear, hear.)

Mr. MAGNIAC: I need not say, my Lord, that all present feel very great pleasure in that expression of your Lordship's intention, and everyone, both here and in China will, I am sure, be delighted to find that this article has been given up. (Hear.) I had proposed briefly to sum up our gains and concessions; but I hardly know whether it will be necessary for me to do so, for, putting it most favourably, we give far more than we acquire ourselves. We gain two treaty ports and some very shadowy advantages. In consideration of that we give to the Chinese power to levy £800,000 a-year revenue; we relinquish rights for the circulation of goods over half of China; we give the right to create disturbances at Hong Kong and are asked to consent to a most mischievous Favoured-Nation Clause. Compare our position with what it was when the Treaty of Nanking was signed. In some respects we find ourselves placed in a materially worse position than we were then—twenty-seven years ago—and certainly in a worse than under Lord Elgin's Treaty. (Hear, hear.) I believe on this subject the merchants of London are quite unanimous, and the merchants in China are of the same opinion; and we do hope and trust that the assurance your Lordship has given with regard to one article may be extended to the other points we have touched upon. I believe I am stating the feelings and sentiments of all the gentlemen here when I say that we feel so strongly the restrictions placed on our trade by this Convention that we should infinitely prefer to see the existing Treaty fairly carried out, feeling at the present moment perfectly satisfied that if it were patiently and judiciously pressed upon the Chinese, not unduly pressed upon them, it would afford a better prospect for the extension of trade and the promotion of mutual intercourse than the proposed Convention. Rather than see this Convention ratified, we should be quite content to place ourselves in your Lordship's hands and say, press fairly our rights under this Treaty, and leave it to time to give it further extension. (Hear, hear.)

Lord CLARENDON: Gentlemen, even if I were able to enter into all the minute details which have been very properly brought forward, I cannot help feeling there will not be time left for doing so before many of us must go to our respective Houses of Parliament. I must, therefore, be rather short in the answer I give you. I will, in the first place, say that I am sure that Mr. Matheson is correct when he says that this numerous and highly respectable meeting would far rather have come here to uphold and ratify, by their opinion, the Convention which has been negotiated by Sir Rutherford Alcock than to criticise it in the way they have. That I am perfectly aware of, and I am sure he will be certain the Government would be glad if it had been so. I must say I was not prepared for so unqualified a condemnation, both of Sir Rutherford Alcock and of the Treaty which he has negotiated. I must, in justice to Sir Rutherford Alcock, say that it is a great mistake to suppose that he has acted in haste or without sufficient information. We have ample proofs in the Foreign-office of the care, the assiduity, and the attention, he has bestowed upon this matter. In the opinion of those who must be taken to be well cognisant of their own interests, he may have been considered to have made a mistake, but that that mistake arose from any want of care must, from my own information, be corrected. I must also say that it is a great mistake to suppose that Mr. Hart, or any of those gentlemen who compose the committee of management of the Chinese revenue had anything to do with the Treaty in a sense hostile to English interests. I believe Sir Rutherford Alcock may have derived information from Mr. Hart, as he would derive information from any other person capable of furnishing it; but I am quite sure that there is nothing, of which I know at least—and I can only speak of my own knowledge—which could be injurious to any British subject. I must also say, with respect to the concessions, that you should remember that although, as Mr. Matheson, I think, said, Lord Elgin showed great consideration for the Chinese feelings, and did not wish to press them so far as British interests might require, still there was not a single thing he got from the Chinese which was not unwillingly given, and which they did not consider extorted by force; and I cannot help thinking that they believe, to the present day, that their consent was extorted at the cannon's mouth. I am sure gentlemen acquainted with China must be aware that the Chinese have always looked upon that Treaty of Tientsin as a degradation. They have derived benefits from it, and to a certain extent, I must say, they have acted up to it; but it has been because we have always been enforcing it; and if we were to allow that Treaty to go on in its natural course, and had no watch over it, I think a great deal of that Treaty would have fallen into desuetude. We must remember, also, that having a Treaty with China, we place her where she was not placed before, namely, in the rank of a civilised nation. We must treat China qua China as our equal. We must endeavour no longer to acquire things by force. We must proceed, as we did with France ten years ago, and as we have with Austria lately, by mutual concession. You, gentlemen, think that these concessions made by Sir Rutherford Alcock are all on our side, and that there is nothing that they have given us as an equivalent for what we have given them. Mr. Gillman considers that we have made a great concession to them by the reductions in our duty on tea; but I think nobody will contend that we thought more of China than of any other country when we reduced our duty on teas. We reduced them entirely because we thought that such reduction would not only be a great relief to consumers, but a great addition to the revenue, and I do not think we could pretend that it was done in any way for their advantage. They have derived advantages no doubt the same as all other countries have done; but then we never pretended but that it was done for our advantage solely. But, as I said before, I am not able to enter into all those details that have been propounded to-day, and I do not see that there would be any particular utility in my doing so, because we are not coming to a definitive vote on the subject, as if in the House of Commons, but we have only met to exchange ideas. I think it was not only the right but the duty of the mercantile community of the City of London, representing, as I dare say they do, many interests in different parts of the country, to communicate freely with the Government; and I need scarcely assure you that it is a very great advantage to the Government to receive the opinion of such men, however they may differ from them. Of course, I need not say that the Government has no interest different from that of the trading community. As a Government, we have no interests to serve in China. All that we desire is to promote to the best of our power the British interests in China; and if arrangements have been made which the mercantile community consider adverse to their interests, it is their right and duty to represent it to the Government, and I need scarcely say it will be taken into due consideration. (Hear, hear.) You sent me a very important memorial signed on behalf of people representing vast interests, whose opinions are certainly entitled to very great weight. I thought that the best way would be, by way of placing on record what the opinions of the Government are upon this Treaty, and how far they agreed or differed with those of the mercantile community, to put down on paper our answer to that memorial, and we have done so. I will read it to you. You will probably not approve of it, because it is in some respects different from what you have said; but I am sure that those I have the honour of addressing are too candid and fair not to admit that there are two sides to every question. I will, therefore, with your leave read our answer, and I do not think I shall be much longer than some of the speeches that have been made. (Laughter, and Hear, hear.) You must remember how very large were the expectations of the mercantile community in China. Those expectations were that the Chinese would concede everything, and the most earnest expectations were based upon things which the Chinese are the most indisposed to concede. Therefore, as the Chinese have not yet conceded those points, the discontent of the expectants is not surprising.

Lord CLARENDON then read the answer to the Memorial:—

His Lordship then proceeded to read the following answer:—Her Majesty's Government are not surprised that the memorialists have learnt the nature of the provision of the Convention in question with a certain dissatisfaction, for it cannot be denied that, compared with the recommendations and claims of the interest which they represent, urged upon Sir R. Alcock prior to the recent negotiations, the advantages obtained may appear somewhat inconsiderable. Her Majesty's Government, however, have held a very different opinion from that of the memorialists as to the limits within which it was desirable in the general and permanent interest of our commercial relations with China to confine the recent negotiations, and Her Majesty's Government believe that the provisions of the Convention are better calculated to promote that interest than treaty engagements, which would have more nearly secured the objects sought by the memorialists and those whom they represent. It is unnecessary to enter at length into a consideration of those provisions of the Convention which consist of what are termed by the memorialists "minor concessions" to British trade, referred to in paragraphs 4 to 7 inclusive of the memorial; as, although it appears to Her Majesty's Government that, in some respects, the memorialists greatly undervalue their importance, it is admitted that, taken by themselves, and not considered as a set-off to the so-called concessions made in the Convention to China, these stipulations would be received with satisfaction. Her Majesty's Government will, therefore, proceed at once to an examination of the opinions expressed by the memorialists with regard to the British concessions, which consist of increased export duties upon opium and silk, and also with regard to the most important provision of the Convention, viz.,—that which is contained in Article 3, by which new stipulations are made for the importation and transit of British textiles in the Treaty Provinces, and which the memorialists consider as a concession to China, but which ought, in the opinion of Her Majesty's Government, to be regarded as an arrangement mutually advantageous to both contracting countries. The memorialists themselves pass by the question of the increased duty upon opium as one rather affecting the revenues of British India than the interests of merchants in this country, and Her Majesty's Government will, therefore, confine their remarks to the increased duty upon silk. Upon this point it must be observed that, as the proposed increase amounts to nothing more than a readjustment of the duty to the rate stipulated by the Treaty of Tientsin—viz., 5 per cent.—it was impossible to expect that any revision at all of the commercial articles of that treaty could have been entered upon by the Chinese Government without such augmentation, and that it would have been impossible for Her Majesty's Government to have resisted this readjustment of the duty, if it had been insisted upon by that Government, irrespective of any other considerations. The intention of the Treaty of Tientsin was that China should receive a revenue calculated at the rate of five per cent. on the value of silk exported, and the specific duty fixed by that treaty for administrative convenience having been for some years considerably less than that which was intended by both contracting parties, it became a matter of simple justice to allow of its rectification, although it is no doubt to be regretted that the period of revision should have coincided with an enhanced cost of the material. By acting on this principle on the present occasion the absence of any fixed term for a further revision will enable Her Majesty's Government at any future time, should a fall in the price of silk enable them to do so, to fall back upon the stipulations of the Treaty of Tientsin on this point, which are only in abeyance during the existence of the Supplemental Convention, and to found an equitable claim on the

Digitized by Google

Government of China for a corresponding reduction in the tax. In view, moreover, of the inland taxation to which this article is at present exposed, Her Majesty's Government are inclined to believe that the transit arrangements secured by the present Convention in return for the proposed increase in the export duty will more than counterbalance the enhancement of cost which may result from it, and that the increased fiscal interest possessed in this branch of trade by the Imperial Government will tend to operate as an inducement to them to exert gre influence in restraining internal exactions. With respect to the remarks contained in the paragraph of the memorial on the subject of those exactions and to the passage quoted from the memorial of the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce, it is to be observed that neither in the French Treaty nor in any other treaty concluded with Her Majesty's Government with any independent Power has it been attempted to interfere with the right of internal municipal taxation. All that has been demanded in such engagements is that imports and exports in foreign trade shall not be subjected to higher internal taxation than similar goods in the internal trade. There is nothing in the French Treaty to prevent the imposition of local taxes on British textiles in France, provided similar taxes are imposed on similar French textiles on the contrary, the ninth Article expressly stipulates for this mutual right on the part of both countries. The Shanghai Chamber of Commerce is, therefore, altogether in error in supposing that we are submitting in this respect in China to anything to which we should not equally submit in France or any other independent country; on the contrary, the special privileges conceded by the Treaties of Nanking and Tientsin to foreign products and foreign subjects are such as could not have been proposed to a Power with which we were treating on equal terms. It might as well be urged that the licence to tea dealers, until last year enforced in this country, was a violation of international equity to China, as to charge the Chinese with ill-faith for issuing licences to trade in silk. Her Majesty's Government will now proceed to consider the bearing of the provisions of the treaties of Nanking and Tientsin, as well as those of the Convention under discussion, upon the question of the transit of British goods from the ports of importation to the interior, and of native produce destined for exportation to a foreign country from the interior of the port of shipment. The text of these provisions is as follows:—

"Article X.—His Majesty the Emperor of China agrees to establish at all the ports which are by the 2nd Article of this treaty to be thrown open for the resort of British merchants a fair and regular tariff of export and import Customs and other dues, which tariff shall be publicly notified and promulgated for general information, and the Emperor further engages that when British merchandise shall have once paid at any of the said ports the regulated Customs and dues agreeably to the tariff to be hereafter fixed, such merchandise may be conveyed by Chinese merchants to any province or city in the interior of the empire of China, on paying a further amount as transit duties, which shall not exceed per cent. on the tariff value of such goods."

This treaty was followed by a declaration of the Plenipotentiaries of both countries on the 26th of June, 1843, by which it was determined that the further amount to be paid as transit duty by the 10th Article should not exceed the rates then in force, which were described as moderate. Under this arrangement, it must be remarked that all that is conceded is that British merchandise which has paid import duties may be conveyed by Chinese merchants (not by British) from the port to any province or city in the interior, on payment of the stipulated transit duty. No provision whatever is made by this treaty for the transit of exports. The 28th Article of the Treaty of Tientsin is as follows:—

"Whereas it was agreed in Article 10 of the Treaty of Nanking that British imports having paid the tariff duties, should be conveyed into the interior free of all further charges, except a transit duty, the amount whereof was not to exceed a certain percentage on tariff value, and whereas no accurate information having been furnished of the amount of such duty, British merchants have constantly complained that charges are suddenly and arbitrarily imposed by the provincial authorities as transit duties upon produce on its way to the foreign market, and on imports on their way into the interior, to the detriment of trade, it is agreed that within four months from the signing of this treaty, at all ports now open to British trade, and within a similar period at all ports that may hereafter be opened, the authority appointed to superintend the collection of duties shall be obliged, upon application of the Consul, to declare the amount of duties leviable on produce between the place of production and the port of shipment, and upon imports between the consular port in question, and the inland markets named by the Consul, and that a notification thereof shall be published in English and Chinese for general information. But it should be at the option of any British subject desiring to convey produce purchased inland to a port, or to convey imports from a port to an inland market, to clear his goods of all transit duties by payment of a single charge. The amount of this charge should be leviable on exports at the first barrier they may have to pass, or on imports at the port at which they are landed; and on payment thereof a certificate should be issued, which should exempt the goods from all the further inland charges whatsoever. It is further agreed that the amount of this charge should be calculated as nearly as possible at the rate of 2½ per cent. ad valorem, and that it shall be fixed for each article at the conference to be held at Shanghai for the revision of the tariff. It is distinctly understood that the payment of transit duties by commutation or otherwise should in no way affect the tariff duties on imports or exports, which will continue to be levied separately and in full." This Article is explained and amplified by Rule 7 of an agreement signed by the Plenipotentiaries at Shanghai, on the 8th of November, 1858, which is to the following effect:—"Agreement. Shanghai, November 8, 1858. Rule 7. Transit Dues. It is agreed that Article 28 of the Treaty of Tientsin shall be interpreted to declare the amount of transit dues legally leviable upon merchandise, imported or exported by British subjects, to be one-half of the tariff duties, except in the case of the duty-free goods liable to a transit duty of 2½ per cent. ad valorem, as provided in Article 2 of these rules, merchandise should be cleared of its transit dues under the following conditions: In the case of imports, notice being given at the port of entry from which the imports are to be forwarded inland of the nature and quantity of the goods, the ship from which they have been landed, and the place inland to which they are bound, with all other necessary particulars, the collector of Customs will, on due inspection made, and on receipt of the transit duty due, issue a transit duty certificate. This must be produced at every barrier station, and viséd. No further duty will be leviable upon imports so certificated, no matter how distant the place of their destination. In the case of exports, produce purchased by a British subject in the interior will be inspected and taken account of at the first barrier it passes on its way to the port of shipment. A memorandum showing the amount of the produce, and the port at which it is to be shipped, will be deposited there by the person in charge of the produce; he will then receive a certificate, which must be exhibited and viséd at every barrier on his way to the port of shipment. On the arrival of the produce at the barrier nearest the port, notice must be given to the Customs at the port, and the transit duties due thereon being paid, it will be passed. On exportation the produce will pay the tariff duty. Any attempt to pass goods inwards or outwards otherwise than in compliance with rule here laid down, will render them liable to confiscation. Unauthorised sale in transitu of goods that have been entered as above for a port will render them liable to confiscation. Any attempt to pass goods in excess of the quantity specified in the certificate will render all the goods of the same denomination named in the certificate liable to confiscation. Permission to export produce which cannot be proved to have paid its transit dues will be refused by the Customs unless the transit dues shall have been paid. The above being the arrangement agreed to regarding the transit dues, which will thus be levied once and for all, the notification required under Art. 28 of the Treaty of Tientsin, for the information of British and Chinese subjects, is hereby dispensed with."

Her Majesty's Government are unable to discover in either of the articles which have been recited, or in the rules which explain them, anything which gives colour to the view of the mercantile body in China as to the scope of these provisions in exempting foreign produce from municipal taxation, whether general or local, when it has once passed into circulation in the country. The fair construction which ought, in the opinion of H.M.'s Government, to be placed on these provisions, whether viewed in their legal bearing or with reference to international usage, is, as regards imports, that foreign produce may be imported on payment of 5 per cent., and circulate in equal competition with similar Chinese products at the port and its vicinity, and may be placed at any specified place in the interior also for purposes of equal competition with such Chinese produce, on payment of a transit duty of 2½ per cent. in addition to the import duty; and, as regards exports, that for purposes of transit and exportation no more than 2½ per cent. and 5 per cent. shall be respectively levied on native produce destined for foreign markets. In neither case can it, they think, be legally contended that there is anything to prevent the Chinese from charging whatever general municipal taxes are leviable on Chinese goods at the port or in the interior, as regards imports, equally on foreign goods when once they enter into general circulation and consumption, and, as regards exports, upon Chinese produce before it has been purchased for exportation. But even if Her Majesty's Government had shared the view expressed by the memorialists as to the construction which should be placed upon the treaty stipulations bearing on this question, it would have been in their opinion very desirable that those stipulations should be revised and modified. It has been found, after ten years' experience, that those stipulations are of a kind which the Chinese Government are, on the one hand, unable, even if they were willing, to fulfil, and which Her Majesty's Government, on the other hand, would be unwilling, even if they were able, to enforce. When treaty engagements are thus condemned in practice, the sooner they are revised the better; for their continuance can lead to nothing but dispute, inconvenience, and disappointment. It remains to consider how far the provisions of the present Convention afford a prospect of more satisfactory results. They are contained in the 4th Article, and are as follows:—

"It is agreed that native produce purchased in the interior by British merchants furnished with the documents prescribed by the supplementary regulations shall pay all inland dues and charges on its way to the treaty port. On the other part, China agrees that any such native produce, having paid all inland dues and charges on the way to the port from the place of purchase, shall be entitled to the return of any amount that may have been thus paid over and above the treaty transit due (half export duty), provided exportation by British merchants to a foreign port takes place within twelve months. It is further agreed that native produce shipped to another treaty port shall not be entitled to such refund."

The memorialists state that, although if certain immunity from external exaction could be secured in the Treaty Provinces, the addition of 2½ per cent. to be paid upon importation might not have been too high a price to pay for it, they doubt the possibility of this result, and therefore think that a certain loss will be inflicted on foreign trade for the sake of an uncertain advantage. Upon this statement it must be observed, first, that Her Majesty's Government are bound to give great weight to the deliberate opinion expressed by Sir R. Alcock in his despatch of the 28th of October, that he has little doubt that the proposed arrangements, if ratified and carried into operation, will fairly secure the total exemption of textiles from further taxation in the nine Treaty Provinces, and that, as no attempt could be made to strike a blow at the "Peking" tax without a compulsory payment at the port of entry, it is an experiment well worth trying. Secondly, that it is improbable that the Chinese Government would make, as regards so large a part of the empire, a concession of sovereign rights which they have so long and so strenuously resisted on sufficient and equitable ground, unless they had seen their way to executive arrangements which would enable them to give it effect, and to maintain equality of taxation between foreign and native products. Thirdly, that the Treaty Provinces being more within reach both of Consular interference and of the control of the Imperial Customs Executive, it may be supposed that abuses will be more readily detected, and redress more promptly obtained. Fourthly, that if after trial the proposed system should be found to fail, Her Majesty's Government will be free at any time to reopen negotiations and seek other combinations; and, fifthly, that public opinion in the Consular ports of China, as far as it has been yet collected, appears to be very much divided as to the merits of the proposed arrangements, and that some portion of the mercantile community view them with favour and approval. While, therefore, the memorialists (as Her Majesty's Government are disposed to think) underrate on the one hand the probable advantages of the stipulation under consideration, they appear on the other greatly to exaggerate and in some respects to misapprehend the disadvantages with which it may possibly be attended. In the 12th paragraph it is stated, "It appears from the 4th clause of the 1st supplementary rule of the Convention that whenever British goods leave the Treaty Provinces and reach their declared destination they become liable to an impost which the local authorities may think proper to levy, and that, instead of being a step in advance, this stipulation is a distinct forfeiture of a former treaty privilege, and that the effect of the regulation will be to discourage the use of British manufactures in one half of China." This statement rests upon the view taken by the memorialists of the rights conceded by the Treaties of Nanking and Tientsin, which has been already fully explained. According to the construction which Her Majesty's Government place upon the terms of those treaties, no change whatever will take place in the legal liabilities of British goods in transit in the non-Treaty Provinces, except that they will in all cases be charged with the 2½ per cent. transit duty upon importation as will as with the import duty of 5 per cent. Under the present regulations British goods are carried inwards, either with or without transit passes. If with such passes, they are in precisely the same position as they will be under the present Convention. If the merchant declines to take out a pass, his goods are liable to all the risks of extortion and internal taxation which have been so forcibly dwelt upon by the mercantile community, and which amount in most cases, unless unrecognised means are found of evading them, to exceed very greatly the 2½ per cent., and if, as is stated, in the province of Manchuria (where be it observed the Chinese Government has stated that the 2½ per cent. duty shall not for the present be levied) no internal taxes are now levied, and the 2½ per cent. if at any future time imposed would, therefore, constitute a new charge upon trade. It must be remembered that whatever may have been the case in the past, British trade possesses no security for the future, and that it is no slight advantage to have a fixed commutation of all possible prospective charges which it was always within the competence of the Chinese authorities to impose. The memorialists make no remark on the effect of the regulations under Rule 2 of the new Convention, with respect to the transit of native produce intended for exportation, and Her Majesty's Government hope, therefore, that they concur with them in thinking that they will prove advantageous in their tendency to prevent controversy and delay, by throwing the onus of keeping the transit dues within the treaty limit upon the officers of the Imperial Government at the port. It will be seen from these remarks that Her Majesty's Government do not concur in the view taken by the memorialists, as to the probable effect of the proposed stipulations with respect to the transit trade, but, on the contrary, they are of opinion that by simplifying existing regulations, equalising the treatment of British and Chinese owned goods, and defining more clearly our treaty rights, they are calculated to encourage and protect the legitimate interests of British trade. They are bound, however, to observe that, owing to the long continuance of what they believe be a misapprehension of treaty rights—a misapprehension which appears to have been shared in some respects by Her Majesty's representatives in China, and which has only been clearly brought to light during the recent negotiations—the mercantile community in China have naturally learnt to regard them as more extensive than Her Majesty's Government believe them to be, and interest and expectations have arisen which are entitled to great consideration. The observations of the memorialists in paragraph 18, with reference to the recognition of Chinese Consuls in British possessions, do not call for any special remark, as it seems to Her Majesty's Government that the appointment of a Chinese Consul at Hong Kong, which is the only place where the clause will at present have any practical operation, appears to be a necessary corollary to its constitution as a treaty port, and that the memorialists make no suggestion as to the mode in which the contraband trade from Hong Kong could be checked without Consular supervision. With respect to the provisions of Article 1, referred to in paragraph 19 of the paper before them, Her Majesty's Government concur in the objections advanced by the memorialists, and they propose to suggest the omission or modification of the Article in question, which they think need involve no serious difficulty with the Government of China.

Digitized by Google

Gentlemen, I thought that was the most respectful way of answering the Memorial which you have presented. You have observed, no doubt, that though we do not quite agree with you, we have stated fairly on what points we do disagree, and we ask you to consider our point of view just as we will consider yours. We have but a common interest together. I think there is some little alarm expressed, both in London and in the country, that this ratification will be hurried through. There is no intention of doing that. We shall have abundant opportunities of again exchanging opinions, and if we can come nearer to agreement than we have done to-day I am sure it will be a source of great satisfaction to me. (Loud cheers.)

Mr. MATHESON: Before the deputation separates I should like to say, in the name of the merchants of London, that we are deeply grateful to your Lordship for the great trouble you have taken in listening to us and reading your reply.

Lord CLARENDON: I am very much obliged to you, I need hardly tell you, that, although I have felt very great pleasure in meeting you here to-day, it is still my duty to do so. Whenever you think that the time has come for a further exchange of ideas, I shall be most happy to meet you and place myself entirely at your disposal. (Cheers.)

THE DEPUTATION.

EDWARD AKROYD, M.P., Halifax
G. ARMITSTEAD, M.P., Dundee
THOS BARING, M.P., Huntingdon
HUGH BIRLEY, M.P., Manchester
G. SCLATER BOOTH, M.P.
EDGAR A. BOWRING, C.B., M.P.
T. BRASSEY, M.P., Hastings
JACOB BRIGHT, M.P., Manchester
R. W. CRAWFORD, M.P., London
HENRY W. EATON, M.P., Coventry
A. ORR EWING, M.P., Dumbartonshire
W GRAHAM, M.P., Glasgow
S. R. GRAVES, M.P., Liverpool
EDWARD HERMON, M.P., Preston
R. JARDINE, M.P., Dumfries
Hon. ARTHUR KINNAIRD, M.P.
WM. LAWRENCE, M.P., London
GEORGE LOCH, M.P., Wick
R. A. MACFIE, M.P., Leith
CHARLES MACGNIAC, M.P., St. Ives
ALEX. MATHESON, M.P., Ross and Cromarty
D. McLAREN, M.P., Edinburgh
THOMAS McCLURE, M.P., Belfast
GEORGE MELLY, M.P., Stoke
T. A. MITCHELL, M.P., Bridport
OSBORNE MORGAN, M.P., Denbighshire
R. N. PHILIPS M.P., Bury
W. RATHBONE M.P., Liverpool
PETER RYLANDS, M.P., Warrington
Lord SANDON, M.P., Liverpool
R. SHAW, M.P., Burnley
J. K. SHUTTLEWORTH, M.P., Hastings
Colonel SYKES, M.P., Aberdeen
CHARLES TURNER, M.P., Lancashire, S.W.
JAMES WHITE, M.P., Brighton
W. R. ADAMSON
J. A. ARBUTHNOT
R. J. ASHTON
Sir WILLIAM BAYNES, Bart.
JAMES BRAND
FREDERICK BOWER
W. S BROWN
WM. BROUGHALL
TRAVERS BUXTON
J. M. CANNY, Chinkiang
H. COKE
J. D. CRUM-EWING.
E DEACON
JAMES DOW
R. DURANT, Jun.
N. ELIAS
JAMIESON ELLES
HORACE FARQUHAR
C. A. FEARON
T JONES GIBB
R. J. GILMAN
YEATS GOLDSMID
F. H. GROVE
ELDRED HALTON
FRAS. A. HAMILTON
C. P. HENDERSON
JAMES HOGG, Shanghai
W. HOW
THOS. JACOMB
WILLIAM KERSHAW
C. J. KING, Shanghai
WM LIDDERDALE
SAMPSON LUCAS
J. J. MACKENZIE
JAS MACANDREW
H. M. MATHESON
J. A. MAITLAND
GEO. G. NICOL
E. H. PALMER
JOHN PENDER
J. S. RANKEN
A. A. RANKEN
JAMES REISS
J. R. ROBERTSON
C M. ROBISON
M E. RODOCANACHI
R D. SASSOON
SAM LEO SCHUSTER
ARTHUR SMITH
D. SPRINGFIELD
T. W. SUTHERLAND
A. THORNE
W. WALKINSHAW
J. WHITTALL
ALEXANDER ZANZI

THE HOME PRESS ON THE NEW CONVENTION

(THE TIMES, MARCH 1ST.)

The deputation which yesterday waited on Lord Clarendon represented, beyond doubt, not only the interests of a very important trade, but a very grave concurrence of opinion. The population of China, as was observed, is not less than 400,000,000, and the total value of the Chinese trade already reaches £45,000,000 sterling. A convention which influences the development of such a present and future commerce is of more consequence to the welfare of both countries than many a European treaty of historic fame. The China merchants, again, are the class whose interests the Government are most directly concerned in promoting, for the benefits we desire for the people of both countries can only be secured through their agency. It is, therefore, at first sight, a strong objection to any convention that such persons are, as a whole, dissatisfied with it. At the same time it is proper to bear in mind that merchants, like all other classes, are liable to take more narrow views, even of their own interests, than can be adopted by an impartial observer, and that it may be the duty of a Government to promote arrangements which may be distasteful at the moment for the sake of an ultimate advantage. This is a consideration which is not obscurely suggested in Lord Clarendon's frank but courteous reply. He does not shrink from saying that "Her Majesty's Government have held a very different opinion from the memorialists as to the limits within which it was desirable, in the general and permanent interests of our commercial relations with China, to confine the recent negotiations. The truth is that we have of late entered in some respects on a new policy in our intercourse with the Chinese Empire. We have resolved to deal rather with the central than with the local Governments, and traces of this change are clearly to be seen in the present Convention. It would not be unnatural if the mercantile community, having built up their trade under the old system, looked for extension in the old direction, and disliked the prospect of adapting themselves to the new methods. There can be no doubt that in similar cases it has more than once been the duty of our Government to act on a wider view of mercantile interests than was adopted by merchants themselves.

In this instance, moreover, it is important to observe that mercantile opinion appears by no means unanimous. Lord Clarendon is abundantly justified in saying that "public opinion in the Consular ports of China, so far as it has been yet collected, appears to be very much divided as to the merits of the proposed arrangements, and that some portion of the mercantile community view them with favour and approval." If so, it is fairly certain the matter is not so, plain as the apparent unanimity of opinion among merchants in England would seem to imply. In fact, it is clear from Lord Clarendon's answer that not only the Deputation, but the mercantile community generally, have been under material misapprehension in respect to our present position. His reply is not a mere argumentative retort, but adduces substantial considerations which have hitherto been neglected. He brings to light what almost amount to new facts on the subject, and it is very possible our merchants may modify their opinions after taking into account these fresh elements in the question. The discussion has practically eliminated all points of dispute except two—the increased duty on silk and the re-arrangement of the transit dues. With respect to the first of these, Lord Clarendon represents that we have really made no new concession at all, but have simply submitted to an existing regulation, the fulfilment of which the Chinese had a right to demand of us. "The intention of the Treaty of Tientsin was that China should receive a revenue calculated at the rate of 5 per cent. on the value of silk exported." For administrative convenience a specific duty was fixed; but, in consequence of the rise in the price of silk, this has for some time been less than that which was intended by both contracting parties, and it became a matter of simple justice to allow of its rectification. Unless this be an erroneous statement of facts, we do not see there is room for any further complaint on this head. But we, moreover, apprehend that we were not our own masters. Mr. Magniac said he would have preferred to rest contented with the Treaty of Tientsin, and to trust to time. But that Treaty expressly provides that "either of the contracting parties may demand a further revision of the tariff and of the commercial articles of that Treaty at the end of ten years," so that, if we were to keep faith with the Chinese, we might have been compelled to accept this increase independently of any counter concessions. It is a very important and advantageous point in the present Convention that no time is fixed for a further revision. It will consequently be in the power of our Government at "any future time, should a fall in the price of silk enable them to do so, to fall back upon the stipulations of the Treaty of Tientsin, and to found an equitable claim on the Government of China for a corresponding reduction in the tax."

Digitized by Google

It would seem, then, that the only point really open to debate is that of the transit dues. This is the point on which the chief misapprehension of our present position has prevailed. We may roughly state that under the old system foreign and native produce was liable to an import or export duty of 5 per cent., and to a transit duty, levied by the local officers, of 2½ per cent. Now, the mercantile community, and, according to Lord Clarendon, some even of Her Majesty's representatives in China, have supposed that these payments exempted such goods from any further municipal taxation, whether general or local. Consequently, when it is arranged by the present Convention that foreign goods, after paying import and transit dues, shall circulate without further charge in the Treaty, but not in the non-Treaty Provinces, it is objected that the exception of the non-Treaty Provinces is a decided step backwards. According, however, to Lord Clarendon, no such exemption is secured in our former Treaties, and, in fact, "neither in the French Treaty nor in any other Treaty concluded with any independent Power has it been attempted to interfere with the right of internal municipal taxation." The French, for example, have a perfect right to impose local taxes on British textiles, provided they impose similar taxes on French textiles. This being the case, it follows that in the non-Treaty Provinces matters are left just as they were, while in the Treaty Provinces we are at least promised the unquestioned advantage of exemption from all charges, of whatever kind, in addition to the fixed tariff and transit dues. Lord Clarendon points out that under the old system we had no security against any future increase of municipal taxation, however arbitrary, whereas we are now promised "a fixed commutation of all possible prospective charges." Here, again, unless the statement of facts be erroneous, the case of the memorialists in great part falls to the ground. The criticisms which have been passed on the subject have been conceived in ignorance of the facts. It is a most unfortunate misapprehension, for which Lord Clarendon seems to admit that the representatives of the Government are in some degree to blame. He allows, indeed, that, in consequence, "interests and expectations have arisen which are entitled to consideration;" but how this consideration is to be afforded he omits to state.

The matter, then, appears finally reduced to one limited consideration. Supposing that the 2½ per cent. transit dues paid at the port of entry will really relieve foreign produce from any further charge, it is admitted on all hands that the privilege would be cheaply bought at the price of the compulsory payment. The question is whether such exemption is likely to be secured in practice, and perhaps it is a question which it is almost impossible to answer beforehand, Lord Clarendon justly says that it is a point on which the Government are bound to give great weight to Sir Rutherford Alcock's deliberate and responsible opinion. He states that "he has little doubt the proposed arrangements will fairly secure the total exemption of textiles in the nine Treaty ports." It would be very difficult for the Government to accept the judgment of merchants in England in direct antagonism to that of an experienced representative on the spot. But it may be asked what motive the Chinese Government have for making this concession, if, like other portions of the treaty, it is so decidedly in our favour. A possible answer is not hard to discern. Hitherto the transit dues have been locally levied, and the local authorities have derived the chief advantage from them. Under the new arrangement the dues will go to augment the Imperial revenue, and this is an object for which the Chinese Government might concede a good deal. But, it will be replied, the Imperial Government will secure this advantage to itself, and will then allow the local Governments to recoup themselves by illegitimate extortions. This objection has been anticipated by Sir Rutherford Alcock. The new arrangement will, he says, give the Imperial Government a more decided interest than it had before in the foreign trade. It will consequently be rendered more and more sensible of the advantage of encouraging commerce, and it will thus be strongly interested in protecting foreign merchants from local exactions. It may at this point occur to our readers that the Convention, in this respect, exactly falls in with the principles of policy recently adopted. As we observed at the outset, we have resolved to deal more with the central and less with the local Governments. It is just possible that the mercantile community may feel themselves more secure in dealing with the local authorities, but it might be the duty of the Government to act on a broader principle. Admitting, however, that the question thus stated is fairly open to discussion, there remains the security that this Convention is liable to revision at any future time. Sir Rutherford Alcock thinks it would be desirable, at all events, to accept the proposed plan as "an experiment." If the experiment fails, it is in our power to seek other arrangements.

(MORNING POST, MARCH 2.)

We published in our impression of yesterday a report of a discussion that took place between the great commercial firms who may be regarded as representing the trade of this country with China and the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, which, in point of importance and interest, has rarely been equalled. Sir Rutherford Alcock, who, as Minister Plenipotentiary and Chief Superintendent of Trade at Peking, represents Great Britain at once in her political and commercial character, has concluded with China a Convention modifying in many particulars the Anglo-Chinese Treaties of 1858 and 1860. That Convention is now awaiting ratification, and our great China houses, who view with strong disapprobation the provisions agreed to by Sir Rutherford Alcock, have come forward with an urgent protest against its ratification. A committee of the trade have presented a memorial to the Foreign-office, and Lord Clarendon has since received a deputation of unusual weight and importance, with whom he has fully gone into the provisions of the Treaty. It is almost needless to point out that our trade with the Eastern world is yearly becoming of more importance. The general public have probably to some extent become aware of the fact, even if want of observation and absence of special knowledge prevent them from appreciating the high degree of its influence. Those, however, who have carefully watched the phenomena of manufacturing development on the Continent of Europe have become impressed with a conviction that the rapid advance of our nearer neighbours and customers, consequent on the accumulation of capital encouraged by prolonged peace and security for property, is year by year restricting the elbow-room which we have enjoyed for more than a century, and that it is daily becoming a more generally recognised truth, that sound commercial policy demands that we should betime look to the East and its half-civilised peoples for new openings, and that we should endeavour to find and establish there the position which we have hitherto held among the nations of the West. Lord Clarendon, it is manifest, clearly sees and keenly appreciates this fact, and it is, we cannot doubt, this perception and appreciation that have prompted the construction of the Convention which Sir Rutherford Alcock has concluded, and which the China merchants utterly condemn.

The objects which are most prominently put forward in opposition to the Convention are that Sir Rutherford Alcock has acceded to a disadvantageous increase in the export duties on silks; that he has consented to the establishment of a Chinese Consulate at Hong Kong; that his provision with regard to the payment of drawbacks is defective, as well as that with regard to bonded warehouses; that he has made a mischievous muddle in meddling with the most favoured nation clause; that he has not secured equivalence of concessions; and, finally, that in his rearrangement of the system of transit duties he has involved our merchants in the hazard of great exactions. It will be seen that most of the objections thus put forward concern details rather than principles, and details which are capable of present adjustment or future modification. On most of these points Lord Clarendon's answers were plain and sufficient; and it may with advantage be pointed ont to our traders further, that they misunderstand the character of the Commercial Treaties, of which that between England and France was the first example. Under the Protective system those treaties were necessarily were necessarily treaties of reciprocity, and each contracting nation expected—and properly expected—to obtain from the other perfectly equivalent concessions. That international position obtains no longer, and all that we now look for is the securing by treaty a practical advancement of Free Trade doctrines, which experience has shown us we cannot procure by the influence of abstract dogmas We invite our merchants to take this view of the treaties of the present day into consideration.

The real point, however, upon which the difference of view between Lord Clarendon and the China traders turns is, as it appears to us, one of Imperial policy, which is only collaterally connected with commercial systems or commercial details. We have hitherto treated China as a country decentralised in the highest degree, and we have dealt with the outskirts of her civilisation and the offshoots of her Imperialism instead of with the theoretical centre of her power. We have looked to mandarins governing districts instead of to the Monarch governing an Empire. Ourselves and the French broke through that system of treatment, no doubt, when we invaded China and burnt the Palace of the Emperor in his capital; but still we have hitherto generally conducted trade by coercing or bribing local authority. Lord Clarendon thinks that the time has arrived when policy and justice demand that this system should be abandoned, and when China, as an Empire, should be treated and dealt with internationally on a footing of equality, as we treat with France or with Austria. This is really the idea which underlies, as it seems to us, the present Convention, and which has dictated the changes which Sir Rutherford Alcock has been instructed to introduce into the system of transit duties. We do not feel quite sure—for their language on this head is not so distinct as it might be—whether our China traders perceive Lord Clarendon's idea. They, however, resist it, possibly not consciously, but nevertheless strongly, if indirectly, by their opposition to the new arrangement for paying the transit duties in block at the port of import instead of, as heretofore, having them levied literally in transitu. Lord Clarendon's object is that the duties should go direct into the Imperial Treasury. It is with him, as we have remarked, a matter of State policy. The traders, avoiding the question of policy, oppose the change proposed, because they do not believe in the value of the "pass" which the Central Government will give them, and are intimately convinced that the mandarins, with their local powers, which the Imperial Government has no sufficient control over, will get the money out of the passage of the English goods just as they did before the Convention was agreed to. That, we take it, is the real issue between the Foreign-office and the trade. Which is right can only be decided by actual experiment, and the question which we now, therefore, come to is this—Has the time arrived at which it is politic and fitting to make that experiment? Upon this the observations of the trade throw no light—a circumstance much to be regretted, as Sir Rutherford Alcock, a man not only of tried ability, but of remarkable appreciation of Eastern character and Eastern phenomena, has, beyond doubt, strongly recommended Lord Clarendon now to try the experiment, and to make an attempt to place the Central Government in relations to ourselves constituted on European models.

Digitized by Google

(STANDARD, MARCH 1.)

Lord Clarendon addressed a long and rambling reply to a deputation he received yesterday, in reference to the new Chinese Convention, but it is singularly difficult to extract any substantial comfort from his remarks. He considers that the increase in the import duty on opium and the export duty on silk, and also the new stipulations for the importation and transit of British textiles in the Treaty Provinces, instead of being a concession to China, as they are regarded by the memorialists, should be accepted "as an arrangement mutually advantageous to both contracting countries." Would Lord Clarendon be disposed to consider that the commercial classes of France, for instance, would regard an export duty on English coal, and an import duty established by this country on French wines, an arrangement mutually advantageous to both contracting countries? That would be one precisely parallel at all events to the arrangement instituted under the new Convention. Continuing his defence of that document, the Foreign Secretary discovers an argument in its favour no less remarkable in its way than his opinion on the point just noticed. The absence of any fixed term for a further revision of the Treaty will enable Her Majesty's Government at any future time to fall back upon the stipulations of the Treaty of Tientsin; that is to say, the Convention, which pretends to be an improvement on that Treaty is to be accepted with gratitude because if it is conclusively proved by experience to be injurious to the interests of trade it will be possible to revert to the old system. At the outset of his remarks, and before reading his prepared reply to the memorialists, Lord Clarendon said that, with respect to the concessions that had been obtained by the Treaty, "there was no single thing to be got which was not extorted by fear, and, as it were, at the cannon's mouth; but under the altered circumstances of the case, and having placed China in the rank of civilised nations, they had now to endeavour no longer to carry their point by force." But by whom has China been placed in the rank of civilised nations? First of all, Lord Clarendon commits one mistake, and then, paying no attention to various remarks which have been made on that head, he defends a second by an appeal to the first. We fear that future efforts to vindicate the teachings of common sense and experience in reference to our policy in China must be made elsewhere than in his lordship's room at the Foreign-office.

(THE DAILY NEWS, MARCH 2.)

During the period when the late Mr. Burlingame was endeavouring to place the relations between the Emperor of China and the Western Powers on a sensible footing, the representative of Great Britain at the Court of Peking was engaged in negotiating a new Convention with the Chinese authorities. In the Treaty of Tientsin provision was made for its revisal every ten years. On both sides the propriety of some changes being made has been acknowledged. The British merchants desired fresh concessions, while the Chinese Government claimed the assent of our representatives to several alterations. Most important among the privileges which the merchants of this country wished to enjoy was that of forwarding goods from the seaboard to the interior without their being liable to duties on the way, and of covering and extinguishing every claim by making a single payment. Divided as China is into provinces nearly as large as the most important States in the American Union, and much larger than several of the European kingdoms, the question as to the right of transit has always been a knotty one. The Governors of these provinces have always been accustomed to levy what taxes they pleased, and to do so in a way best calculated to ensure a return. Practically they have acted with entire independence of the Central Government. There is nothing singular or barbarous in this arrangement. It is not unlike that which prevailed in France when the several provinces had their own Custom-houses; and the existence of a similar state of things has chiefly contributed to prevent the unity of Germany from becoming an accomplished fact. Just in the same way the circumstance that the Chinese local magnates have so much personal power, and the provinces so great an amount of independence, operates adversely to the consolidation of that huge Celestial Empire. Yet this drawback is one for the consideration of the Chinese themselves, rather than a subject about which we should take action. Our representatives must deal with things as they are, and make as good a bargain as can reasonably be concluded. In this case they have done all that lies within their power. The Convention provides for the transit of goods through the provinces in such a way as to remove the abuses hitherto complained of, and gives increased security to foreign merchants. . . .

The London merchants trading with China are by no means satisfied with these terms. They have made a formal complaint to Lord Clarendon, but have failed to convince him that his view is erroneous, and that their demands are just and politic. The increase of the duty on opium is one, he told the members of the deputation, which affects the revenues of British India much more than it does the business which any one of them conducts. As for the increased duty on silk, it simply amounts to a readjustment of the provisions of the Treaty of Tientsin, such as the Chinese authorities had special grounds for demanding, irrespective of any concessions to be made in return. The complainants considered it a grievance that the Chinese Government should impose taxes on foreign produce when once it had passed from the merchants' hands and got into general circulation; and that licences should have been issued to authorise certain persons to trade in silk. This is equivalent, as Lord Clarendon shrewdly remarked, to setting up a claim to dictate to the Chinese on the subject of municipal taxation, and the same reasoning would have justified them in complaining of our conduct in issuing licences to dealers in tea. In reply to the complaint as to the appointment of Chinese Consuls in British possessions, Lord Clarendon told the deputation that after Hong Kong shall become a treaty port, the presence of a Consul there is indispensable in order to check contraband trade. He might have added that the appointment of Consuls by the Government of China within the dominions of Great Britain was but a corollary to the appointment of Consuls in China by our Government. Unless this reciprocity be practised, it is absurd to contemplate carrying out the principles of international equity, or the enforcement of international law between this country and China. . . The Chinese difficulty is only an example of the way in which disputes arise between the nations of the East and West. A treaty is extorted at the sword's point. The Eastern Power does its utmost to disregard obligations which it did not willingly concede, while the merchants who follow in the track of the victorious army or navy conduct themselves as if their treaty rights were co extensive with their desires and their pecuniary interests. This is not the way in which the people of two European States act towards each other, nor is it the way in which a State which boasts of its enlightenment and civilisation ought to deal with another which it looks upon as sunk in darkness and barbarism. To enforce this obvious, but often forgotten maxim, the late Mr. Burlingame exerted himself with creditable zeal. Not satisfied with negotiating treaties with one or two Powers, he had resolved to bring all the Great Powers of the world to an understanding with the Empire of China, and thus pledge them to treat that Empire as they would treat one of their own number. The difficulties of the task are not those which lie on the surface so much as those which escape the eye of the ordinary observer. Treaty making is an occupation in which the most debased, as well as the most cultivated of nations, can engage. The wildest tribes in Africa and America are always ready to make a treaty, provided they are of opinion that something is to be gained thereby. The puzzle is how to make them observe a treaty as a solemn and binding contract, one which no trifle will alter and no temptation sway. If the savage thinks the occasion opportune for adding to the number of his wives or horses, or enlarging his ghastly collection of the forefingers and scalps of his foes, he never scruples to dig up the hatchet, smear himself with war-paint, and sally out on the war path. A treaty influences him no longer than it suits his purpose to acknowledge its obligation. The Chinese are very different persons from the intractable Indians of America. They can boast of a civilisation far older than our own; of a learning as recondite as that of the most highly educated among the nations. Yet the solemnity of treaty obligations has never been adequately apprehended by the Government of China. They have made promises with the apparent intention of breaking them at the most convenient season. They have inspired no confidence either in their ability to discharge their international duties, or their anxiety to act as they would have others act towards them. In the opinion of Mr. Burlingame, the determination to turn over a new leaf had been seriously arrived at by the Chinese Government. His labours were undertaken with the single object of convincing the world of that which had become his own deliberate conviction. Unhappily his career has been cut short before the proof of his assertions could be supplied. Nevertheless, the views which he entertained have not died with him. Lord Clarendon has given unmistakable tokens of his desire to afford the Government of China no excuse for complaining that it is harshly and exceptionally treated. Had it been otherwise, his answer to the deputation representing the merchants of London would have been couched in a very different tone. Should his policy be as successful as it deserves to be, the thanks of every friend of rational progress and honourable peace will be accorded him in unstinted measure. It is as much for the profit of England as of China that a policy of bluster enforced by gunboats should be superseded by discussions terminating in formal, satisfactory, and binding treaties.

(ECONOMIST, MARCH 5.)

It can hardly be said that Lord Clarendon, in his reply to the deputation which waited upon him on Monday, makes out a case for the ratification of the Chinese Convention. One important article—that which binds us not to take the benefit of any concessions to one foreign country unless upon the conditions under which the concession is granted, which would have placed our commercial interests at the mercy of every other foreign Power—is to be abandoned. This resolution itself discredits our envoy very much, for he argues very strenuously in his despatch in favour of the clause, though the Government are obliged to give it up as indefensible. The ground of defence for the other points again is often very different from that of Sir Rutherford Alcock's despatch. The Government make a great deal, for instance, of the fact that a revision of the Treaty was unavoidable, and that we could not have refused an increase of the silk duty, whereas Sir Rutherford Alcock, though mentioning this defence, expatiates chiefly on the slight importance of the additional duty. But this new defence is manifestly insufficient. It was our business at least both to press on the Chinese Government the expediency of not increasing any export duty for their own sakes, and to insist that the proposed increase was unreasonable, although the price of silk had been high, on account of that increase being due to exceptional and temporary causes. With a vigorous Silk Supply Association established at home to foster the growth of abundant and cheap silk, it is very strange to find our diplomatists coolly basing their arrangements on the assumption that silk will be dear. In regard to the new import duties again, the defence simply is that the Government felt bound to place a great deal of weight on the authority of Sir Rutherford Alcock. He thinks the experiment of the willingness of the Chinese to prevent irregular exactions in certain parts of the interior worth trying. But Sir Rutherford Alcock appears to have so obviously miscalculated the working of other clauses, that, though he must be supposed to understand the Chinese Government best, the confidence of the Foreign-office in his opinion cannot really be very great. The Chinese Government with their prejudices have no motive to carry out the arrangements. They get the increased duty compulsorily at the ports, leaving the task of fighting the provincial officials to the merchants. If they were really anxious for the arrangement, nothing would be easier than to carry it out voluntarily, as the merchants would most thankfully submit to the extra percentage if they perceived that it really secured them freedom from subsequent exactions. Another strong point of Lord Clarendon is the supposed ease with which the Treaty can be revised and amendments made in future. But this is equally true of existing arrangements, and no argument at all for a new and doubtful experiment. We had better remain as we are till some evidence appears of a more favourable disposition in China towards commercial intercourse.

Digitized by Google

FRENCH MAIL EDITION.

The London and China Telegraph.

JAPAN HERALD, AND JOURNAL OF THE EASTERN ARCHIPELAGO.

PUBLISHED ON THE ARRIVAL OF THE FORTNIGHTLY ENGLISH, AND MONTHLY FRENCH MAILS FROM CHINA JAPAN &c.

IN CONNECTION WITH THE "LONDON AND CHINA EXPRESS." A SUMMARY OF NEWS FOR THE OUTWARD MAILS.

VOL. XII.—No. 345.] LONDON, MONDAY, MARCH 14, 1870. [Price 9d., with Sup. 1s. 3d.—Sub. 30s. per ann., postage included. Sup. 12s. extra.

Latest Advices.

—o—

PORTS.	OUTWARD. From London	OUTWARD. Arrived out.	HOMEWARD. Received this day.
JAPAN — Yokohama	Nov. 25	Jan. 15	Jan. 23
Yedo	—	—	Jan. 22
Osaka and Hiogo	—	—	Jan. 19
Hakodadi
Nagasaki	—	—	Jan. 22
CHINA — Peking
Tien-tsin
Chefoo
New-chwang
Hankow	—	—	Jan. 21
Kiu-kiang
Chin-kiang
Shanghai	Dec. 3	Jan. 22	Jan. 26
Ningpo
Foochow	—	—	Jan. 25
Formosa
Amoy
Swatow
Hong Kong	Dec. 17	Jan. 31	Feb. 1
Canton
Macao
PHILIPPINES— Manilla
COCHIN-CHINA— Saigon	—	—	Feb. 6
SIAM — Bangkok
BORNEO—Labuan
Sarawak
JAVA — Batavia	—	—	Feb. 4
Samarang
Sourabaya
MALACCA STRAITS— Singapore	Dec. 31	Feb. 4	Feb. 9
Penang	Dec. 31	Feb. 2	Feb. 6
CEYLON—Galle	Jan. 20	Feb. 14	Feb. 16
Colombo	Jan. 20	Feb. 15	Feb. 15

THE MAILS, &c.

—o—

The above mail reached Marseilles per Hooghly on the 12th, having come direct from Hong Kong through the Suez Canal. The next mail is due on the 21st, with dates from Hong Kong to the 8th Feb.

Telegrams have been received in advance of the Hong Kong mail of Feb. 22, via Galle; and via Kiachta the first messages have arrived with dates to Feb. 19 from Shanghai. Telegrams from Japan via San Francisco, with dates to Feb. 23, are due on the 18th.

List of Passengers.

—o—

PASSENGERS INWARD.

By this mail to Marseilles, per French mail steamer Hooghly, arrived March 12.—From Yokohama: M. le Comte de Montebello, M. Fontaine. From Shanghai: Mr. Krauss From Hong Kong: Mgr. Guillemin, Mr. Giles, Mr. and Mrs. Cunho, Mdme. Ortunio. From Saigon: Messrs. Dussutour, Taron, Mayer, Daubas, Gaudence, Denis, Wibaux; Mdme. Ingerman. From Batavia: Messrs. Kliss, Riviere, Schellenbach, Scarfo, Van Delden, De Brabant, Von Burg, Verbey, Goethort, Wumsum, Mr. and Mrs Vanderhorst, Mr. and Mrs. Saagmansward, Mr. and Mrs. Kruyer, Mr. and Mrs. Bornaud, Mrs Parker. From Singapore: Messrs. Andineau, Mitford. From Galle: Messrs Henry, Morrison.

Per Japan, from China and Japan, arrived at San Francisco Feb 16.—Rev. D. B. Morris and wife, W. N. Olmstead, B. Bininger, and wife, J. Costel, J. B. Walker, P. Heinneman, J. Middleton, F. Heinaman, A. J. Little, 261 Chinese, and seventeen European passengers in steerage.

PASSENGERS OUTWARD.

Per P. and O. steamer Pera, from Southampton, March 5.—To Yokohama: Mr. E. Fraser, and two second-class passengers. To Shanghai: Capt. F. W. Lodge, and four second-class passengers. To Hong Kong: Mr. Alexander, R.E., Commodore J. A. Price, Mr. W. J. Cannon, Mr. G. Bishop, Mr. J. McGregor. To Singapore: Mr. and Mrs. Murray and five children, and one second-class passenger. To Ceylon: Mr and Mrs. J. G. Thomson, Mr. T. Farr, Capt. Harris, and one second-class passenger.

Per P. and O steamer Ripon, from Marseilles, March 13.—To Yokohama: Capt. and Mrs. Kinder, Mr. Tookey, Miss Tookey, Mr. J Goddard. To Shanghai: Mr. J. R. Bromley, Mr A. Hickling and brother, Mr. and Mrs. Dow, Miss Dow, Mr. and Mrs. Brazley, Mr. W. Pugh, Mr. A. Schroers, Mr. Baker, Mr. F. S. Deacon, Mr. A. Milsom. To Hong Kong: Mr. T. Merry, Mr. E. Deacon, Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Crawford, two children, and servant, Mr R. A. Houston, Mr. James Whittall, Mr. H. Hughes, Mr. Wilson, Miss Aspinwall, Mr. Marshall, Miss Wyllie, and two second-class passengers. To Ceylon: Mr. F. J. Brown.

Per P. and O. steamer Nyanza, from Southampton, March 19.—To Shanghai: Mr. E. Stewart. To Hong Kong: Mr. H. K. Jones. To Ceylon: Capt. Sharpe, Mr. D. H. Freeland.

Per P. and O. steamer Bangalore, from Marseilles, March 27.—To Shanghai: Mr. J. M. Canny, Mr. T. Wood, Mr. M. Hautrey, Mr. Skeggs, Mr. J. G. Weston, Mr. T. G Paget, Mr. Dyce, Mr. Drysdale, Mr. E. Wheeley. To Hong Kong: Mr. and Mrs. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Wild, Mr. and Mrs. Galton, Mr. E. P. Galton, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ehlers and child. To Penang: Mr. Bernard Rodyk.

Per P. and O. steamer Nyanza, from Southampton, March 12.—To Ceylon (via Bombay): Mr. J. Martin.

Per P. and O. steamer Ceylon, from Marseilles, March 20.—To Hong Kong (via Bombay): Mr. E. L. Jones.

Per P. and O. steamer Tanjore, from Southampton, April 2.—To Ceylon; Mr. V. E. Schalch.

Per P. and O. steamer Pera, from Marseilles, April 10.—To Shanghai: Mr. G. Munro. To Hong Kong: Mr. J. C. Ridge. To Singapore: Mr. J. Young, Mr. W. W. Willans.

Summary of News from the Far East.

—o—

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

From this port our advices by to-day's mail are to Jan. 23, but they have been anticipated by the Pacific mail, which last week brought correspondence to the 24th. The outward French mail of Nov. 25 was received Jan. 15. By this opportunity we receive the first number of a new paper, called the Japan Weekly Mail, which takes the place of the Japan Times.

We have now particulars of the two fires already briefly announced by telegraph. The Weekly Mail says: "On the evening of Tuesday last (Jan. 18) the house known as the Junior Mess of the Mercantile Bank was discovered to be in flames. The alarm quickly spread throughout the settlement. A detachment of French troops with a small engine was soon on the spot, followed at a short interval by a larger force from the more distant English camp, with another engine. But, to tell the old story again, there was no supply of water. The house, which stood detached in the Main-street, was soon past all help; and such feeble play as could be coaxed from the engines was directed upon the skeleton of a building opposite, in course of erection for Messrs. Kirby and Co., and Mr. Berger's house at the other corner of the street. The troops and native firemen showed admirable pluck and spirit, but the flames seemed jealous of opposition, and every now and then leaped over towards the mass of scaffolding opposite, as if in fierce anger at being foiled. But powerful assistance was at hand. A large American hose was brought to bear on the fire, a good supply of water was obtained from the bund, a strong party of blue jackets from the Ocean, under command of Lieut. Rougemont, came to the front, and the fire succumbed gradually to the united efforts of its enemies. The engines were kept at work on the blazing ruins, and by eleven P.M. all danger of the fire spreading was over. The crowd disappeared, and the settlement went to rest.

"But scarcely was quiet restored before another alarm was given, and it was found that No. 79, tenanted by Mr Sitwell, was in flames. Such engines as could be spared were soon brought to the spot; but the house was slightly built, and in spite of every effort was soon reduced to ruins. Both houses were insured; but we regret to hear that Mr. Sitwell's furniture was not covered, and that he only had time to save a few valuables before leaving the house."

There are great complaints of the lawless condition of the settlement, which seems to grow constantly worse. The Mail says:—"We desire most earnestly to call the attention of residents of all nationalities in this settlement to its most alarming condition, which is well illustrated by the events that took place on the occasion of the recent fires. During that which destroyed the 'Junior Mess' of the Mercantile Bank, European, American, and Chinese ruffians entered the house of the Compradore, produced knives and pistols, and gave him and the shroffs the option of surrendering their boxes or their lives. Ten trunks, besides bedding and other articles, were carried off; no offer of resistance was possible, and the behaviour of the miscreants was fearless and determined. What occurred during the fire which destroyed Mr. Sitwell's house may be best gathered from a letter which will be found elsewhere in our columns, and to which we refer our readers." The following is an extract from the letter alluded to, written by Mr. Charles G. Leggatt:—"Occupying the premises immediately adjoining those of Messrs. Sitwell, Schoyer, and Co., which were so speedily reduced to ruin, I was in no small fear that the fire would have extended to my own. Confined to my bedroom, and only just recovering from a severe illness, I was unable on the alarm reaching me to do more than direct my servants what they should do in the event of my feared extension of the fire. Hardly, however, had I entrusted to their custody a few valuables, when a crashing sound from below made me hasten or rather scramble downstairs, when picture my amazement at seeing a tide of human beings pouring in at the back entrance of my house, which had been forced open; ruffians they were of the lowest stamp, including a bevy of English and American loafers, Cantonese, Malay, and Japanese thieves, who were ransacking my lower rooms of almost their entire contents, which eventually ended in my being unhoused." The affair ended in Mr. Leggatt's house being entirely sacked by these ruffians.

Digitized by Google

The following items are also from the Japan Mail:—

It is currently reported in Shanghai, and is stated in the Shanghai News-Letter of the 11th January, that the Japanese Government has conceded to Mr. J. F. W. Trautmann, of Messrs. Trautmann and Co., the right to construct three hundred miles of railway in Japan. We are authorised to state that neither Mr. Trautmann nor Messrs. Trautmann and Co. have anything whatever, whether directly or indirectly, to do with the construction of the railway.

Nothing can well be more unfortunate than the loss of the Elleray, for whose arrival the Lighthouse Department of the Government had long been anxiously looking. She had on board two lanterns, two fixed illuminating apparatus of the first order, two iron aseismatic towers, and a variety of important tools. Every article was of that particular kind which it is impossible to replace without great loss of time, the glass lenses, for instance, being manufactured by only one house in England, whose engagements may easily prevent their replacing them for many months. Mr. Brunton had hoped to show permanent lights from at least three lighthouses within two or three months, but these hopes have now been frustrated. Cape Sagami, Oosima, and Nagasaki, may be permanently shown before the middle of the year, while Rook Island, Siwo-misaki, and Chichakoff must wait until the present losses can be repaired, and meanwhile be content with whatever temporary apparatus can be picked up. But most annoying is the delay which must occur in the erection of the aseismatic towers, the success of which is an object of the greatest interest and curiosity among scientific men. (These towers are fitted in a peculiar manner, with a view to avoiding any damage from earthquakes.)

A notification has been issued that in future all coal exported in foreign steamers shall be held to be shipped for ship's use, and shall therefore be passed by the Custom-house free of duty; while all native coal exported in foreign sailing vessels shall pay the export duty of the tariff attached to the Convention of Yedo, 1866. This is calculated to encourage the consumption of native coal for steam purposes.

The Japan Herald says there is a chance of one of the late Mr. Hoey's murderers being brought to justice. It seems that the Japanese police have been set on their track in earnest, and one of the officers arrested a man whilst in the act of selling some of the clothes of which the houseboy was despoiled. The prisoner is a painter by trade, but the general impression appears to be that persons of higher rank were concerned in the crime, and other arrests have been made on suspicion.

H.M. Consul has been engaged in trying several important cases, one of which, Pitman v Campbell, possesses some interest. It was an action to recover the sum of $1,179 advanced by plaintiff to defendant with interest. Defendant did not deny the debt, but pleaded contra claims, especially one for joint interest in a quantity of telegraph wire sold by the plaintiff. The wire was shipped by Messrs. Christy and Co., of London; Mr. Campbell, according to the plaintiff's evidence, had formerly been offered a share in the venture, and had declined it; but on learning that it had been sold by Mr. Pitman at a large profit, he claimed a one-third share. The defendant said he had a joint interest with Mr. Pitman and Mr. Christy in some steam-lighters and other things, and from Mr. Christy's letters and Mr. Pitman's verbal statements, he concluded he had a share in the telegraph also. After a patient investigation, lasting three days, Mr. Consul Lowder decided that there was no evidence that defendant had a joint interest in the wire. Of the other items some were given in favour of either party. [The decision appears in all respects a just one, for we have seen a copy of a letter from Christy and Co. (not produced in Court), wherein Mr. Campbell is requested to hand the bill of lading for the wire (which was at first sent to him) over to Mr. Pitman, as he (Mr. Campbell) had declined taking any share in it.]

A fire occurred in Yedo about ten days back, which destroyed half the War department.

The following changes of firms are notified:—

The partnership between Messrs. James Davison and George R. Davis is dissolved, and Mr. Davison continues the business under the firm of Davison and Co. The partnership between Messrs. James S. Barker and Robert Goddard is dissolved, and the firm of Ross, Barber and Co. goes into liquidation. Mr. R. Goddard has established himself as a public Silk Inspector and Commission Merchant. Mr. R. Linden has retired from the firm of Walsh, Hall and Co. Mr. R. S. Schwabe becomes a partner with Mr. N. P. Kingdon, whose business will in future be conducted under the title of Kingdon, Schwabe and Co. Messrs. Hecht, Lilienthal and Co. have admitted Mr. F. Geisenheimer a partner in their firm.

HIOGO AND OSAKA.

The following account of the launch of a steamer at Osaka is from a correspondent of the Hiogo News:—

Our first Osaka launch took place on Monday last, when an elegant little iron screw steamer, intended for coasting or river traffic, was set afloat. She has been christened the Adler (Anglice, Eagle), I believe. The following are her dimensions:—Length, 75 feet; breadth of beam, 15 feet over all. She is about 80 tons, and her engine is effectively 30-horse power. The Adler is the property of Messrs. Lehmann, Hartmann, and Co., and was brought out from Europe in pieces, together with another boat of a similar description, only somewhat smaller, and which is now being put together. The Adler is admirably adapted for river work, I should fancy, but whether our bar will suit her remains to be seen. Though her dimensions are comparatively small, she is so well contrived that it is said she will accommodate one hundred and fifty passengers for a short trip.

It is worthy of notice that a direct trade with America has been inaugurated at Hiogo. At the date of our last advices Messrs. Kniffler and Co. were loading the Esperanza, a British barque of 384 tons, for New York.

NAGASAKI.

From this port we have advices to the 22nd Jan. A new weekly paper, called the Nagasaki Express, has been started at this port, and in the first number are the following remarks on the persecution of Christians which formed the subject of our correspondent's letter by last mail:—

The question just now, perhaps, which most excites the serious attention of residents in Nagasaki is the destination or ultimate disposal of the cargoes of native Christians departing from this port within the past few days. The native Christian question of to-day defies solution. What becomes of them eludes us. These facts we know. More than a thousand, some (a few) in European employ—some not needing employ, but well to do, not coolies—the majority of whom would rank in many of our countries as high amongst the middle class—more than a thousand have been arrested and carried hence; some with wife and children—others alone. We know precisely what has been done with the Christians of a by-gone age. Is this a continuance of the barbarity? Surely the embarkation here is done to outrage us. Will no Consul step forward and take the responsibility of unveiling this business, when his war-ship is in port? How strangely these placards would have read to us not many years ago:—"The perverse religion of Jesus, the teacher from Heaven, is a calamity which menaces the empire," &c., &c. These documents are supplemented by the native official view. This assumes a peculiar formula:—"It is quite right they should be sent away from their birthplace, they have committed irregularities, they are criminals because they are Christians." We would we could make clear this Christian question. It is one demanding our keenest watching and regard.

The Nagasaki Shipping List of Jan. 22 says:—The Japanese steamer Governor Higginson, belonging to the Prince of Gayshew, which vessel left here on the 8th inst. with a large number of native Christian exiles, is on the beach outside Papenberg, having struck on a rock at Spex Straits, after discharging her cargo, somewhere about Hirado. News was received yesterday afternoon that the Japanese steamer Feloong, belonging to the Prince of Simabara, which left this on Sunday, the 9th inst., with a number of Christians, is also a wreck at Hirado, having likewise struck on a rock at Spex Straits, after having discharged her passengers. This is the third vessel that has come to grief, after carrying native Christians into exile; and the natives firmly believe that it is a punishment from God.

We have just learnt that the steamer Coila, leaving for Hiogo this afternoon, takes a further shipment of one hundred exiled Christians from this port, although their destination is at present secret; we hope to be able, on the return of the steamer, to afford our readers more information on the subject.

CHINA.

—o—

SHANGHAI.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SHANGHAI, Jan. 25.

The English mail of the 3rd ult. arrived per Ganges, on the afternoon of the 22nd inst., bringing telegrams to the 28th D[illegible]c

A fire broke out in the evening of the 19th in the Rue de Con-

Digitized by Google

sulat, French Concession; some twenty-five native houses were burnt. It is thought that the fire was the work of incendiaries.

The Melrose Abbey, from Glasgow, which got on shore on the Beacon shoal, got off with little, if any, damage.

There was a meeting of the subscribers to Trinity Church held on the 21st; the attendance was small—under a dozen. The following report was read and adopted:—

The trustees congratulate the subscribers that on the 1st of August they were enabled to open the New Trinity Church for divine worship.

The financial position of the society has improved during the year, a total sum of Tls. 12,882.74 has been received by the treasurer, enabling him to pay the regular disbursements, a portion of the debt due to the builders, and to provide the necessary church furniture.

A reference to the accounts will, however, show that the trustees are not yet clear of their difficulties.

The New Church stands at debit ...	... Tls.	68,183.65
The Building Fund has only to the credit ...		61,972.26
Leaving a deficiency of ...	... Tls.	6,211.39
The Parsonage stands at debit		4,500.00
The Trustees' General Account at debit ...		2,880.90
And there is still required to pay for the new pulpit		165.00
Making the total liabilities ...	Tls.	13,757.29

to which may be added an amount, not yet ascertained, due to Mr. Gilbert Scott.

An application to H.M.'s. Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs for assistance to the extent of £1,500 has been made, copies of the correspondence are appended to this report. To provide for the remainder of the liabilities, say Tls. 10,000, the trustees are endeavouring to raise the amount by a loan on debentures bearing interest at eight per cent. per annum, the securities offered being a lease of part of the Church Compound to Mr. Iveson for fourteen years at Tls. 1,200 per annum, and the revenues derived from the church and church property.

Main Guard.—The trustees have arranged to lease this building to the Gymnastic Corps for three years at Tls. 200 per annum, the corps to provide all alterations required, and to leave the room open for the use of chairs on Sundays.

The trustees have the pleasure to announce that a larger attendance at church is secured than was the case in the temporary building, and they recommend to their successors a reduction in the pew rents so soon as the present financial difficulties are overcome.

Messrs. Michie, Bell, and Rowley Miller were elected trustees for the current year. The monuments taken out of old Trinity Church are to be placed in the new church. The rate of pew rent, Tls. 18.75 per seat, was to be continued. Some conversation took place regarding the building of the spire, in the course of which Sir Edward Hornby suggested they should start a lottery for £60,000. Give £30,000 in prizes, and build church and spires and clocks with the balance. He stated that lotteries were regarded as immoral in England; but how did that arise? Government used to raise large sums by lotteries; and it came to be thought unconstitutional and dangerous that the executive should raise money otherwise than through the legislature. But Parliament could not tell royalty the plain truth; and so they put them down as immoral, when they only meant that they were unconstitutional. On this the North China Herald remarks that, "Our grandfathers who speculated in lottery tickets were not worse than those of their descendants who connect themselves with Albert Insurance Companies. An age which has produced Overend, Gurney and Co. need not talk about the immorality of lotteries. Throwing all sentimentalism aside, then, we ask the question frankly, why should not a lottery be got up for the payment of public debts? This is a peculiar community. We have made exceptional and splendid sacrifices to secure public ends, and we have every reason to be proud of our position; but accidents have arisen that have hampered several of our great undertakings with inconvenient pecuniary burdens. Why not rid ourselves of the incubus by doing, on our own account, what Manila now does for us? In plain words, why not start a lottery for Tls. 60,000; give Tls. 40,000 in prizes, and get the church and various other institutions clear with the balance?"

Admiral Sir H. Kellet left in the Salamis for Japan on the 23rd.

The water is so low in the Yangtsze, a few miles above Kiukiang, as to allow only three of the river boats (Hirado, Kiangloong, and Tunsen) to run up to Hankow. The steamers run as usual, connecting with the above boats at Kiukiang.

An interesting letter from Mr. M. J. O'Brien, Professor of English in the Peking College, has been published in the North China Daily News, who, in commenting on it, observes that it throws much light on the circumstances of that abortive institution. Few people have known very certainly whether the college ever did exist, otherwise than in name; whether, we mean, it has ever had a pupil or has done any practical work; and it is pleasant to have this point cleared up. The only classes that have ever been opened, were for the instruction of a few men in English and French, the pupils being in some cases so old that articulation of the unfamiliar barbarian sounds was a sheer impossibility, and resulted only in amusement to the 'waggish boys of forty or fifty,' their juniors. Even these have latterly disappeared, under the influence of an intelligent system of examination, devised and carried out personally by the members of the Tsungliyamên, not one of whom knows a word of the language they are inquiring about. Partly to this interference, and still more to the bitter hostility of the literati, Mr. O'Brien attributes the failure of the college. It is held disgraceful to belong to it; those who did join, enticed by the offer of an allowance and free board and lodging, were ashamed to own the connection, and were regarded as renegades and ostracised by their fellows."

The Concordia Club gave a concert on the 22nd The Amateur Theatrical Corps performed "The School for Scandal" on the 21st.

The North China Daily News has the following from Nanking:—Our readers will remember a report we mentioned, about three years ago, that Li-hung-chang, the Governor-General of Nanking, was bent on fighting the Americans, in case the latter brought up a fleet—as he, for some reason or other, apprehended they would do—to Nanking. It was also said that, when he visited Nanking after the Yangchow affair, he spoke very violently, and declared he would have fought had he been in Tseng-kwo-fan's place. And now, for the third time, a similar rumour is current. It is said that he advised Ma to resist the French by force, employing the new Arsenal gunboats for the purpose. Ma, however, had better sense. If Li is so anxious to try his strength against foreigners he will shortly have an opportunity at his own capital, when M. de Rochechouart proceeds on his expedition.

The Tun-ka-doo Dock has passed into the hands of Messrs. S. G. Farnham and Co. The steamer Glengyle will be the first vessel docked under the new management.

The cases before the Mixed Court have been of a routine character In the Supreme Court Capt. Blanche, of the Newcastle, has been committed for trial for the wilful murder of Harvey, late carpenter of the vessel, at Foochow.

The Customs' cruiser Ogna Sing returned to Shanghai on the 24th inst.; she picked up on the North Saddles a pirate, who confesses to having witnessed the death of Stevens, the pilot.

THE KIANGNAN ARSENAL.

In a recent issue we gave (in an abbreviated form) an account of the Chinese Arsenal at Foochow, which appeared in the North China Daily News. From the same source we take the following on the Kiangnan Arsenal:—

The Kiangnan Arsenal, situated on the left bank of the Wong-poo, about two miles above Tun-ka-doo, cannot fail to engage the attention of those who pass that way in making excursions up the country. The tall chimneys, the residences of the foreign engineers, the college just completed, the little town where the native mechanics live, the rows of workshops, foundries, and godowns, the dockyard where two steamers are being built, and the wharf with vessels loading and unloading, present a scene of activity not unlike some of our large establishments at home. The rapidity with-which such an extensive place has sprung up and is still enlarging, contrasts strongly with what is generally expected from the dilatory Government of China.

This establishment dates its origin from the year 1865, when Ting yih-chang, at that time Taoutai of Shanghai, commenced a small manufactory at Hong-que under the direction of Tsêng-kwo-fan and Li-hung-chang. Muskets, shell, and cannon were made there in considerable number. The site of the present Arsenal was fixed upon and purchased in 1867. During the following year the machinery was moved over from the establishment at Hong-que into the new buildings which had been erected. The number of operatives was then gradually increased, and work on a much larger scale was planned. During the year just past the site and buildings of the Arsenal, being still far too contracted for the extensive operations carried on, a large space was purchased and annexed on the north-west side. The machinery at present consists of the usual appliances for the manufacture of cannon, rifles, and steam engines in all their details. The newest improvements in every case have been adopted where practicable. In a short time large rolling mills and other requisite machinery for manufacturing bar and plate iron will be in operation. The whole of the lathes, planing machines, rolling machines, hemmers, saws, &c., are at present worked by two steam engines.

In the dockyard there are two steamers being built, one of which is near completion. The three gunboats already launched are so well known in Shanghai that it is superfluous to attempt to describe them. The last one was launched with her boilers and engines already fixed. Larger steamers will hereafter be built, either for transport service or ships of war. The success of the boilers and engines manufactured under many disadvantages in the Arsenal shows the perfection which is aimed at and attained by the foreign engineers. The dock when completed will accommodate vessels as large as any the Government is ever likely to build.

The whole responsibility and control of the arsenal devolves upon the general managers, Fung and Ching, who reside in the official quarters, and with whom are associated as a matter of necessity the Taoutai of Shanghai, the arsenal being situated within his jurisdiction. The native mechanics number nearly 500, and are paid by the managers according to their supposed qualifications, from seven or eight to seventy or eighty dollars per month. In addition there are generally about 500 labourers and coolies working in different parts of the premises. The hours of labour are from 7.30 A.M. to noon, and from 1.30 to 5 P.M.

The current expenditure amounts to about Tls. 150,000 per annum. The whole sum expended since the commencement is estimated at about Tls. 1,000,000. The greater part of the funds are drawn from the Imperial Maritime Customs of Shanghai. It is said that one-fifth of Custom duties received at this port is regularly set apart for this purpose, and when this sum is not sufficient the deficiency is made up by the Provincial Government from the e-kim and other taxes.

Digitized by Google

FORMOSA.

The following account of the late outrage in Formosa is, we are informed, reliable :—

The following events of late occurrence in the northern part of the island of Formosa call for interference between foreigners and the Chinese authorities in such a way as will for the future ensure safe trading and observance of the treaty :—

Messrs. Elles and Co.'s agent, Mr. Pickering, having bought a quantity of camphor at Oulan (or Howlung), a maritime station at the west coast of the island, about forty-five miles below Tamsui, was desirous of shipping the same to Takao, for transhipment in a foreign vessel, the Imperial Customs and the Consuls at both Tamsui and Takao having cognisance of the matter. The mandarin, however, at Oulan stopped the junks which had been chartered to carry the camphor, and intimated that he should seize the goods. The injunction was subsequently withdrawn, and a portion of the camphor actually on board the cargo boat, when the mandarin again stopped the shipment, and, in accordance with instructions received from the Taoutai of Taiwanfoo, posted placards offering a reward of $200 for Mr. Pickering's head, and inviting all Chinese to attack him and seize his goods.

Mr. Pickering then abandoned the camphor and left for Taiwanfoo, overland, where he has doubtless arrived in safety. As Mr. Pickering was travelling under passport signed by the Taoutai, no reason can be assigned for this outrage. The day after he left (Jan. 2), the Tamsui Ting forcibly seized Mr. Field, another British merchant, trading in camphor at Oulan, placed him in irons, after having robbed him of everything he possessed, and sent him to Tamsui under a guard of soldiers. Mr. Field at the time of the seizure being without arms, and offering no resistance whatever, his hong was emptied of about 1,000 piculs camphor, besides other goods and specie, all of which were taken by the mandarins. Mr. Field was provided with a passport at the time, signed by the mandarin. This, however, was of little use, as the Tamsui Ting denied the right of foreigners to travel in the country, purchase produce, or rent hongs, except at treaty ports. Both Messrs Pickering and Field had applied personally to the local authorities requesting them to take the lawful dues to enable shipments to be made to Takao, but were insulted on each occasion of their visits. It will be interesting to see whether these outrages will be dealt with by the British Consul at Tamsui and Takao in the same spirit as the outrages of 1868 were settled.

HONG KONG.

The present mail brings dates to 1st February. The outward mail of 17th December arrived on the 31st January with telegrams to the 1st January.

The ship Panther, from San Francisco, reports that on touching at Honolulu she found the Austrian ship of war Donau in harbour and undergoing repairs. The Donau had put into the Sandwich Islands completely disabled, fore and main topmasts carried away, sternpost started and rudder lost ; she was steered into port with broken foremast serving as a jury rudder. Mr. J. G. Murray is a passenger by the Panther, and proceeds on to Foochow as Vice-Consul and Interpreter.

On the meeting held to consider the question of amalgamation of the two dock companies, the Daily Press says :—The meeting of the Hong Kong and Whampoa Dock Company, which it was generally anticipated would have been productive of some elaborate discussion upon the question of amalgamation, went off remarkably quietly, there being apparently a general feeling of surprise that so important a matter should elicit no remarks beyond those made by the chairman in opening the proceedings. The end of all the discussions and negotiations, which have so long occupied the public attention, is simply the record of a vote against the measure. Though the motion was negatived by a somewhat large number of votes by shares, it is noticeable that the show of hands was in favour of it, a circumstance which seems to indicate a concurrence in the view expressed by the Hon. Mr. Keswick, that the step would be advantageous, and would tend to an increase of the company's dividends. Assuming that this view of the subject is correct, it may be questioned whether the course adopted by the Union Dock Company of firmly adhering to their "ultimatum" was altogether wise. It was certainly as much to their interests as to those of the Hong Kong and Whampoa Dock, that an arrangement should be come to ; and their definite declaration that no modification of the terms proposed would be acceded to, appears to have had the effect of making the meeting unwilling to discuss the subject, whereas, had they done so, it is not impossible that its advantageousness would have presented itself to them in a more definite light. It seems, so far as can be judged, that the measure has really failed simply on a question of price ; and when it is remembered what large interests are at stake, it certainly appears a pity that the arrangement should fall through on such grounds.

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEETING.

The special meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, called for the purpose of taking into consideration the proposed expedition of Mr. M. Moss into the South of China, was held on Jan. 28. There were present—Hon. Wm. Keswick, chairman, Hon. J. B. Taylor, Messrs. Zimmern, Pyke, Walker, Belilios, Vogel, Melchers, Delbanco, Behre, Buxey, Sassoon, Macaulay, Andre, Joost, Coughtrie, Aug. Heard, Arthur and Davis.

The Secretary having read the notice convening the meeting, the Chairman remarked that the subject before the meeting had already been before the Chamber, but that on a previous occasion, after considerable discussion had taken place, it was thought desirable that the members should have further information as well as further time to consider the expedition to the South of China in all its bearings, before any final decision was come to on the matter. Since then Mr. Moss had published a small pamphlet, in which he had set out at length the objects of the proposed expedition and the results to be obtained. The expedition was a most important one, and the expense would be considerable, if it was carried out as proposed. The results to be obtained were of great importance, but they were such as would be long delayed in any direct good they might accomplish, instead of being of immediate benefit. With these considerations in view, and also bearing in mind the comparatively limited means of the Chamber, it was his opinion that for the present it would be much better to confine the route to be taken to a province more nearly situated to this colony, and more immediately affecting its trade, and one of which was now very little known, viz., Yunan. Very little immediate advantage could be gained by this expedition, the advantages being such as would be felt could be realised in the future, but nevertheless, they were important in view of the future Government policy to be pursued in China. He thought the meeting should be very careful how they parted with the funds of the Chamber, and it should not be deprived of the only means it possessed without due care and consideration. He hoped there would be the fullest discussion on the subject. He therefore begged leave to offer the following resolution :—"That the expedition of Mr. Moss be not carried out at present"

Mr. Delbanco said he had much pleasure in seconding this proposition He did not mean to infer that if a proper person could be found it would be well and advisable to fit out an expedition, but Mr. Moss was wholly unacquainted with the Chinese language, and, therefore, he thought the expedition had better be deferred until some proper person could be found who would be willing to go.

Mr. Taylor said he thought this proposition ought not to go to the meeting without some other members being heard on the subject, and without further discussion. The expedition in itself was most important, and Mr. Moss had taken very great trouble and spent much time to put the members of the Chamber and the community generally in possession of his views, and the scope and objects to be gained ; it ought not, therefore, to be so summarily disposed of. The expedition was most desirable, and the more light that could be thrown upon the interior of China the sooner would the country be opened up to foreign intercourse and trade, and the better enabled would all be to do their duty, both as merchants and officials, while out here. Perhaps Mr. Moss was not the best man that could be sent on such an errand as was now proposed—he himself did not say that he was ; but it was most difficult to meet with a man out here who would be entirely and in every respect fitted. No one besides Mr. Moss had offered ; none of the members could go ; it was not likely that anyone would come out from Europe for such a purpose as this. Mr. Moss proposed and offered to go on very favourable terms ; he asked for no salary, but merely to have his expenses paid. It could not be denied that one great drawback was Mr. Moss's ignorance of the Chinese language ; but should they ever be able to get a person who did thoroughly understand Chinese ? Mr. Moss was well acquainted with the piece goods business, as well as with general trade in China, and he thought he possessed many qualifications that recommended him for the proposed position.

After some remarks from Mr. R. S. Walker, who did not consider Mr. Moss properly qualified, the following resolution was put by Mr. Augustine Heard, and seconded by Mr. Pyke :—"That the sum of $2,000 be appropriated from the funds of the Chamber for carrying out the proposed expedition of Mr. Moss, and that the committee be empowered to solicit subscriptions from the public in furtherance of the scheme, and make all necessary arrangements for its completion." This was put to the Chamber, and carried by a vote of twelve to five, and the meeting then separated.

A meeting of the subscribers to the British Church at Canton was held on Jan. 25, D. B. Robertson, Esq., H.M.'s Consul, in the chair. The chairman read a despatch from the Foreign-office, from which it would be seen that the assistance of H.M.'s Government, as extended in former years, has been to some extent withdrawn, to the great detriment of the fund. The accounts for 1869 showed a heavy deficit ($1,378.98), which would, however, be converted into a surplus should the Government grant be renewed, as there was some reason to hope might be the case, Sir R. Alcock having promised to represent the matter very strongly at head-quarters. Should this hope not be realised it would be necessary to close the church, the community being quite unable to support it without aid. In the meanwhile there was nothing to be done but to wait the result of a renewed application to Government.

Digitized by Google

BORNEO.

—o—

LABUAN.

The following observations on the satisfactory results of Governor Pope Henne-sy's rule in this colony are from the Straits Times:—"The fact that a colony so recently dependent upon a subsidy from the Home Government for support should, under Governor Hennessy's management, not only be able to relieve the Imperial Government of its burden, but be enabled to show a surplus on the credit side of its budget, speaks very highly for the ability and tact that has been displayed in the administration. The astonishing increase in the value of the revenue farms has no doubt contributed much towards this desirable end; but we are pleased to observe, also, that with increased revenue the Government has shown a disposition to reduce taxation, having abolished the duties on gambier and salt. The success which has attended the coal mines is a source of congratulation, not only to the coal company, but to the colony, whose importance is so materially affected by it. The value of the colony to the Home Government, as his Excellency very justly observes, will, be greatly enhanced by the facilities offered for coaling Her Majesty's ships, and every assistance and encouragement is given to the manager. Now that convicts from the Straits are allowed to be sent to Labuan, it is anticipated that the supply of labour for the mines will be sufficient for the demand, and that in a short time the intended improvements there will materially cheapen the cost of transit from the mines, and afford convenience for loading vessels."

SARAWAK.

Letters from this port describe the festivities held to celebrate Rajah Brooke's marriage. A great Malay feast was given in the principal mosque, which some eight hundred attended; a public breakfast to the European community, and some boat-races followed. The breakfast was a great success, and the healths of the Rajah and Ranee were received in the thorough old-fashioned English style. The boat-races in Sarawak are so different from anything of the kind in Europe or other countries, that we think a slight account may not be inappropriate. The boats used for the great races are generally owned by the Europeans and the native chiefs, and are usually about fifty-five to sixty-five feet in length by about three feet nine inches in breadth at the beam, and are manned by some forty to fifty men in each, all as a rule picked pullers. Prizes are given in money to the crews of the first and second boats, and the owner of the winning boat gets a cup or piece of plate. The course for the cup races is about one and three quarter miles, and time taken by the winning boat about ten minutes; the whole scene is a most aminated one, the banks of the river lined with thousands of natives in every variety of costume and colour. There were two prizes for the large boats, one the "Ranee's Prize," the other a "Subscription Cup," both of which were taken by Europeans; at the last year's races, the late Rajah Sir James Brooke's prize was carried off by the Datu Bandar of Sarawak.

The trade for 1869, from rough calculation, has exceeded that of 1868 by more than one-fourth; in fact, when the whole of the outstation returns are rendered it will prove still more. This increase very likely in part is no doubt owing to the heavy shipments of gutta and cinnabar—the latter from the Tagora mines, which continue to yield vast quantities of ore, and new machinery is being erected for reducing the ore to quicksilver. There will be a greater stimulus given to the workers, all of whom are earning a good living, inasmuch as it is difficult to get either Chinese or native labour, notwithstanding the great immigration by every steamer that arrives.

JAVA.

—o—

Letters from Batavia state that the shares of the Tramway Company, which at one time stood at 1,800, are now current at 100 guilders. As we pointed out at the time, the speculative rise was most injurious. The cars fill very well, but the expense of maintaining horses is very great; they are said to die off like rotten sheep.

Mr. Dakordes, the engineer of the Samarang Railway, left by the last mail for Holland; the line is still far from being complete. The Batavia-Buitenzorg Railway, on the other hand, is being rapidly pushed forward, but its construction is said to be very unsubstantial as compared with the English and British-Indian lines.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

Our advices from this port are to the 9th February. The outward P. and O. mail of December 31 was received on the 4th February. The Travancore, which brought this mail, fell in with a coal-laden ship on fire, on her voyage from Galle to Penang, and towed her into the latter port. The mail was not detained more than an hour or so by the occurrence; the Travancore, with the ship in tow, steamed about eight knots per hour. The following is the captain's report:—

"At 0.30 P.M. of the 31st January, in lat. 6.01' N., lon. 95·15'30" E., Pulo Rondo bearing N., 43· W., and western extreme of Pulo Way S. 16· E., I sighted a barque three points on our starboard bow, between Pulo Way and the north end of the island of Sumatra, with Russian ensign flying half-mast. Bore down to her and made out the signals 'I am on fire!' and 'Can you assist me?' At 1.15 P.M. I stopped and sent the mail boat with the chief officer on board. The commander of the barque wished to be taken in tow, being afraid to run his vessel on shore on account of the proverbial treachery of the natives, and having been already six days on fire. I consulted with Captain Purvis, R.N., Naval Agent, who coincided with me as to the necessity of towing the vessel to Penang. Accordingly, we at once passed a hawser to her, and at 2.20 proceeded full speed on our voyage, arriving at Penang at 9 A.M. of the 2nd February. I ran the vessel close on to the mud bank, where she was to be scuttled. The vessel's name was the Ystavat, of Finland ,from Hull, bound to Rangoon, coal laden."

The following items are from the Singapore Daily Times:—

The Chief Justice has left this for Penang, in the Colonial steamer Rainbow, for the purpose of holding the criminal session there. He anticipates remaining there about ten days, after which he will, we learn, return to Singapore, instead of calling at Malacca, as it was thought he would.

The Civil Sittings here are closed. The case against the owners of the powder hulk Statesman, for the value of certain gunpowder transhipped into the powder hulk Princess Royal, and lost when the latter vessel sank, was concluded, but judgment has not yet been given.

The Government roads are at present in such a disgraceful state that to call some of them roads at all is a farce. The Bukit Timah and Changhie roads are all but impassable. The Tiong Bahru road has ceased to be a thoroughfare, and is a hopeless quagmire, over which it is useless to attempt to pass with a vehicle of any description. A number of others might be named, but we have drawn attention to the worst, and think the Government should take them in hand as early as possible.

The Municipal Commissioners have approved of a scheme of the Colonial Engineer to bring the water into town by means of iron pipes, from the reservoir to the foot of Fort Canning Hill, and say that when this is done they are quite prepared to undertake its distribution, provided the Government will assist them in raising the necessary funds. An opportunity will now be afforded of learning how far his Excellency is in earnest in the matter, and whether he really intends to make good the undertaking of the Indian Government, which failed through the pertinacity of its engineer in a scheme disapproved of by nearly every one save himself. His Excellency, we are well aware, is averse to doing this—one of his reasons being that he does not think it right to spend money raised on all the Settlements in improving one of them! If this be really his opinion, it is easy to account for the neglect of public works in the Colony during his administration. But we are inclined to think the true reason is, he is loath to admit that the aqueduct is a failure, and still more loath to go to the expense of constructing a new one, if by any possibility it can be avoided, or the Commissioners induced to do it themselves. It would be some satisfaction to the public to know what the cost of some of these schemes would amount to, so that it might learn what the sum is that the Government and Commissioners are stickling at.

The banks and mercantile community observed Saturday, the 5th February, as a general holiday, in honour of the fifty-first anniversary of the settlement of Singapore.

As our readers are aware, the Straits are no longer under the jurisdiction of the See of Calcutta—by an order in Council, the three settlements have been transferred to the diocese of Labuan and Sarawak. For the additional duties imposed on the Bishop, he will, we understand, receive from the Colonial Government the sum of £100 per annum.

CEYLON.

—o—

GALLE.

The steamer Sakana, from London to Japan, has arrived, also the Prussian frigate Hertha, for Japan. The Wm. Miller touched at Colombo and Galle, and left for Singapore, &c., on the 16th Feb. The telegraph wires to London were again in very bad order.

CHINA AND JAPAN AFFAIRS IN PARLIAMENT.—We understand that the China Convention will be brought forward for discussion in both Houses. Questions will also be put on the subject of the recent outrage in Formosa, and the French Minister's visit to the Viceroy of Nanking, the expulsion of Christians from Nagasaki, and the postal service between China and Japan ports.

Digitized by Google

Commercial Report.

(For dates see First Page.)

IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—Both Woollen and Cotton Goods were completely neglected, there having been an entire absence of transactions during the interval; quotations were nominally the same as those given in our last report.

SHANGHAI.—In Cotton Goods during the interval a moderate business had transpired, principally for clearance next China year. In Grey Shirtings no change in prices can be quoted. T-Cloths were again firmer, and the run on White Shirtings previously noticed had continued, leading to a further advance of 5 candareens per piece on some counts. American Drills were beginning to attract attention, and offers had been made at an advance on previous low rates without leading to business. Woollens: Scarlet Long Ells may be quoted slightly higher, but assorted were again lower. For Camlets a better feeling had been shown. In other kinds no change can be noted. Metals: 3,000 bundles Nail Rod Iron had been sold on speculation entirely at Tls. 2.20 per picul. These figures show an advance on last quotations, but they were not sufficiently improved to induce importers to realise. Probably nothing more would be done till the holidays are past, when we look for higher figures. Lead: As predicted in the last issue, a slight decline can now be noted, offers of L.B. large pigs had been made at Tls. 5.2.0, but no buyers. The arrival of the Prymont from Hamburg with 2,000 pigs Saxonia would still further reduce prices. Coals: Three arrivals from Australia had rather depressed this market; sales of Sydney at Tls. 6.25 per ton, and other kinds without change. Quotations (duty paid):—Grey Shirtings, 7 lbs., per piece, Tls. 2.0.4 to 2.0.6; 8.4 to 8.6 lbs., Tls. 2.2.1 to 2.2.5; 9 to 9.12 lbs., Tls. 2.5.0 to 3; White Shirtings, per piece, Tls. 2.1.5 to 2.7.0; T. Cloths, 6 lbs., per piece, Tls. 1.4.0 to 1.6.5; 7 lbs., Tls. 1.6.5 to 1.8.5; 8 to 8.4 lbs., Tls. 2.0.5 to 2.1.5; XX Tls. 2.4.0; American Drills, 40 yards, Tls. 3.7.0 to 3.8.5; American Jeans, 30 yards, Tls. 2.8.0 to 2.9.0; American Sheetings, 40 yards, Tls. 3.4.5 to 3.7.5; English Drills, 40 yards, Tls. 3.4.0 to 3.6.5; Dutch Drills, 40 yards, Tls. 3.3.5 to 3.5.5; Chintz, per piece, Tls. 1.5.0 to 1.9.0; Camlets, English, SS, per piece, Tls. 11.5.0 to 12; SSS, Tls. 10.5.0 to 11; Spanish Stripes, per yard, Tls. 0.5.0 to 0.5.5; Medium Broad and Habit Cloth, Tls. 1 to 1.5.0; Long Ells, Scarlet, per piece, Tls. 6.0.5 to 6.2.0; Assorted, Tls. 6 to 6.1.0.

HONG KONG.—No alteration had taken taken place in the tone of the market for any of the principal staples, and quotations remained at the range given in our last report.

SINGAPORE.—The following were the closing quotations for the leading articles of import:—No. 40's Mule twist, 150 to 155; 8¼ lbs. Shirtings, 2.97½ to 3; 7 do. do., 2.50 to 5.52½; 5 do. T Cloths, 1.60 to 1.57½; 6 do. do., 1.85 to 1.82½; 7 do. do., 2.10.

SAIGON.—During the month the market had shown more animation, but since the arrival of the outward mail prices had receded. Quotations were Grey Shirtings, 8¼ lbs., $3; 7 lbs., $2.55; Grey T-Cloth, 6 lbs., $1.75 5½ lbs., $1.65 to 1.70; 5 lbs., $1.60; 4½ lbs., $1.55; White Irishes, $2.30

EXPORTS.

TEA.

OSAKA.—The news by the American mail being of a favourable character brought buyers into the market, and some 300 piculs were settled, at rates showing an advance of Rios 2 to 3 for Good Medium to Fine. The improved value of the native currency tended however to check purchases. Stocks were about 5,000 piculs, which were held for high rates, and consisted principally of the lower grades. Quotations:—Common, 16 to 18 rios; Good Common, 20 to 23 rios; Medium, 24 to 30 rios; Good Medium, 31 to 34 rios; Fine, 35 to 40 rios; Finest to Choice, 41 to 45 rios.

YOKOHAMA.—A steady business had been done in medium to finest leaf to the extent of about 6,000 piculs; and prices had gradually advanced from $1 to 2 per picul on last quotations; for some few parcels of fine tea as high as from $3 to 4 per picul higher had been paid, native holders having been very firm in their demands. Stocks were much reduced, and from what could be gathered from the native dealers there was but very little more to come forward. Should this be correct, prices would be fully maintained. The Westbury sailed on the 9th Jan. with 320,700 lbs. for New York; the P. M. S. S. steamer took for New York 88,467 lbs., and for San Francisco 79,173 lbs. The Crest of the Wave and Havelock were loading for New York, and the Alphonsine for Boston. The current quotations were:—common, $22 to 24; good common, $25 to 27; medium, $28 to 31; good medium $32 to 34; fine, $36 to 38; finest, $39 to 44; choice, nominal.

SHANGHAI.—There had been very little of interest to notice in the Tea market during the week. In Black Tea rather more enquiry had existed, at about previous rates; say: Tls. 15.50 for Shanghai packed, and Tls. 16.50 to 20.00 for very inferior, common to inferior 3rd crop Teas. Settlements 3,400 chests. Stocks 9,400 chests. Green Teas had been dealt in to a moderate extent, and some further concessions in the price of low Fychows had induced a few purchases, which show fair value. Good to fine Teas were as firm as ever, and Teamen, who had apparently now made their arrangements for holding over the native New Year, did not appear very anxious to sell. Settlements, 9,690 chests. Stocks, 45,600 half-chests. Prices paid had been, Fychows Tls. 21.50 to 31.50; Teenkais and Moyunes, Tls. 30.00 to 40.00; Shanghai packed Tls. 22.00.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—An animated tone had been maintained in consequence of encouraging advices to hand from Europe. Notwithstanding the inferiority and insufficiency of the stocks, several transactions had been settled at firm rates. There was, however, no decided advance to note, otherwise than that rates, which in our last were quoted nominal, had become steady. The arrivals amounted to about 300 bales, whilst settlements were estimated at about 800 bales. The stock had diminished to 1,500 bales. The quotations were:—Mybash and other Hanks, extra nominal; best, 30s. 6d. to 32s. 5d.; medium, 27s. 9d. to 27s. 11d.; inferior, 24s. 9d. to 26s. 8d.; Oshu, extra, 34s. 4d.; best, 31s. 7d. to 33s. 3d.; medium, 28s. 8d. to 30s. 11d.; inferior, 24s. to 26s. 8d.; Koshiu, best, 27s. 1d. to 28s. 8d.; medium, 24s. 9d. to 26s. 8d.; Sodai, best, 24s. 9d. to 26s. 8d.

SHANGHAI.—The English mail left on the 19th January, with 2,065 bales of Silk on board and fully 500 bales had been settled for the present mail. Prices had an upward tendency (influenced by improved home advices, and the reduced stock on offer estimated at about 600 to 700 piculs), and in some instances an advance of Tls. 5.00 to 10.00 was reported. The purchases consist chiefly of market grades, though some "chicks" No. 3 are said to have been bought at Tls. 560 per picul, the latter being the only classic Tsatlees settled. The Chinese estimated the probable arrivals for the remainder of this seaseon at 3,000 piculs. These added to the export of 35,800 piculs, and stock of 700 piculs, gives 40,000 piculs for total yield.

COCHIN CHINA AND STRAITS PRODUCE.

SAIGON.—Messrs. Kaltenbach, Engler and Co. report as follows:—Rice: Round Gocong grain. The contract at $1.48 noticed in our last report was followed immediately after departure of last mail by another one of 1.55½. In spite of considerable supplies from the interior up to the Chinese of New Year prices declined but slightly, as shipments to Japan continue on a large scale. Owing to favourable reports from these quarters and a heavy amount of shipping engaged in China and Japan the demand has taken quite an extraordinary proportion and prices have greatly advanced. Last contracts have been closed at $1.80 with long terms of delivery, and to-day our Chinese being heavily engaged refused to sell under $1.85 to 1.90 per picul. Long Vinhlong grain had declined to $1.38, but has since followed the upward tendency of the market and may be quoted $1.55 per picul. Paddy: Has slightly advanced in value; we quote nominally 90 cents per picul. Hides: Owing to a direct opportunity for shipment to Europe hides are in better demand, and somewhat higher prices have been allowed. We may quote $8¼ to 8½ per picul for Buffalo and $11½ per picul for Cow. Horns: Buffalo are very scarce, and eagerly bought up at last quoted prices, say $8¾ per picul. Black Pepper: No contracts of any importance have been reported and prices are nominally $9 per picul. Cocoanut Oil: Arrivals continue scarce; some small lots have changed hands at $9¾ to 10 per picul. Gamboge: Nothing has come to hand; prices are nominally $62 per picul.

SINGAPORE.—The closing prices for the leading articles of export were:—Gambier, $3.07½; Black Pepper, $7.35 to 7.40; White Pepper, $10.50 to 10.75; Sago Flour, $2.40; Pearl Sago, $3.10; Tin, $28½ to 29½.

TEA SHIPS EXPECTED.

Date Sailed.		Ship's Name.	lbs.
FROM SHANGHAI.
1869.
Sept. 17	...	L'Imperatrice	946,200
Oct. 30	...	Tavistock	640,200
Nov. 20	...	John Lidgett	1,044,000
,, —	...	Annesley	1,171,000
,, —	...	Fluellin	675,500
,, 24	...	Corea	717,100
,, 27	...	Dundonald	756,200
,, 30	...	Araby Maid	1,067,000
Dec. 2	...	Dora	526,700
,, 4	..	Barbadian	942,500
,, 6	...	Nyassa	987,000
,, 7	...	Aracan	935,200
,, 29	...	Figaro	394,800
1870.
Jan. 6	...	Omba	1,136,500
,, 8	...	Fontenaye	670,800
FROM FOOCHOW.
1869.
Aug. 16	...	Chusan	1,122,800
Oct. 26	...	Ospray	789,000
Nov. 5	...	England's Glory	1,094,200
,, 8	...	Albert Victor	1,189,700
,, 12	...	Carmarthenshire	1,062,500
,, 15	...	Pannca	379,500
,, 16	...	Ceylon	760,000
,, 23	...	Kalimaas	345,500
,, 30	...	Tyburnia	1,237,600
Dec. 8	...	Beemah	1,134,000
,, 11	...	Valkyrien	707,900
,, 14	...	Glamorganshire	605,300
,, 15	...	Earl Dalhousie	1,391,500
1870.
Jan. 14	...	Red Riding Hood	961,800
,, 17	...	Diamond	557,500
FROM CANTON.
1869.
Dec. 8	...	Petchelee	362,900
,, 22	...	James Shepherd	1,138,900
,, 31	...	Esmeralda	29,600

EXCHANGES, &c.

[For dates, see first page.]

ON LONDON.

At	Bank Bills.	Credits.	Documentary.
Yokohama, 6 m. s. ...	4s. 6¾d.	4s. 6¾d.	4s. 7d.
Shanghai ,, ,, ...	6s. 0¼d.	6s. 0¾d.	6s. 1d.
Canton ,, ,,	4s. 5d.	4s. 5⅝d.	4s. 5¾d.
Hong Kong ,, ,,
Macao ,, ,,
Singapore ,, ,, ...	4s. 5⅝d.	4s. 6¼d.	4s. 6¼d.
Manila ,, ,, ...	4s. 3d.	4s. 3¼d.	4s. 3¼d.
Colombo ,, ,, ...	par	1 to 2 dis.	1 to 2 dis.

Digitized by Google

MISCELLANEOUS.

—	At Shanghai.	At Hong Kong.
Bills on India	300 to 301	221
„ Hong Kong	26½ to 26⅝ dis.	—
Bar silver	111.6.0	9½ prem.
Mexican dollars	73.4.5.	¼ prem.

Bons, at Yokohama, 337 to 360 per 100 dols.

Shipping Intelligence.

ARRIVALS.

At SHANGHAI.—From London, Jan. 19, Carrick Castle; 23, Undine; from Hamburg, Pyrmont; from New York, via Hong Kong, 22, Kjobenhavn.

At HONG KONG and CANTON.—From New York, Jan. 25, Ariel (str.); from London, Jan 31, Norman Court.

At SINGAPORE.—From Cardiff, Feb. 6, Picard.

At SAIGON.—From Antwerp, Jan. 30, N.D. de Bon Port; from Marseilles, Feb. 1, Mille Tonnes.

At SHANGHAI (by telegram).—From London, Feb. 3, Lahloo (95 days), since arrived at Hong Kong partially dismasted.

DEPARTURES.

From YOKOHAMA.—For Boston, Jan. 19, Alphonsine.

From SHANGHAI.—For London, Jan. 21, Callisto; for New York, 22, Good Hope.

From FOOCHOW.—For London, Jan. 19, Portland; 20, Coulnakyle.

From HONG KONG and CANTON.—None.

From SINGAPORE.—For Glasgow, Feb. 9, Hermon.

COMMERCIAL POSTSCRIPT.

The underwriters and others interested in the treasure sunk in the Hamilla Mitchell, near Shanghai, have despatched some competent divers to endeavour to recover.

The first arrival of Assam teas took place to-day via the Suez Canal, the entire passage from Calcutta having occupied forty-five days.

SHIPPING.

ARRIVALS NOT IN THE TABLES.—March 10, at Falmouth from Bangkok, Mikado; 8, at Scilly, from Bangkok, Oscar Mooyer; 9, off Scilly, from Canton, for Hamburg, Adler; Feb. 24, at Fayal, from Samarang, for Amsterdam, Allahabad; March 12, at Deal, from Shanghai, Ornate; at London, from Bangkok, Solid; at Deal, from Shanghai, L'Imperatrice; at London, from China and New York, Ada.

DEPARTURES.—March 10, from London, for Yokohama, Espiegle; 9, from Portland Roads, for Penang, Eleanor; 8, from Penarth Dock, for Singapore, Midnight. Off the Wight, for Batavia, Electric; 11, from Shields, for China, Monkchester; 12, from London, for Hong Kong, Invincible; for Yokohama, Lota.

LAID-ON.—At Liverpool, for Manila, Matilde; at Glasgow, for Batavia and Sourabaya, County of Ayr. At London, for Yokohama and Hiogo, Lorton; at Liverpool, for Shanghai, Carricks; for Batavia, Grefoe Berg.

CASUALTIES.—A telegram from Alexandria, dated March 10, announces the arrival there of the Otterburn (str.), Stevenson, from London to Ceylon (via Suez Canal), which was stranded near Rosetta; she would have to be repaired before proceeding on her voyage; about 250 tons of her general cargo (which she had been compelled to discharge) had previously reached Alexandria.

LATEST TELEGRAMS.

THE "BOMBAY" AND THE "ONEIDA."

(RECEIVED VIA GALLE, MARCH 12.)

HONG KONG, Feb. 22.—The Naval Court of Inquiry into the disastrous collision between the American war vessel Oneida and the Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamer Bombay, off Yokohama, has terminated. Captain Eyre, of the Bombay, has had his certificate suspended for six months. The Lahloo has arrived here dismantled

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM, RECEIVED MARCH. 12.)

HONG KONG, FEB. 22.—Grey Shirtings, 6½ catties 8¼ lbs., $2.82. Cotton Yarns, 16-24, $1.42. Tea: Nothing doing at any port.

SHANGHAI, FEB. 16.—Grey Shirtings, 6½ catties 8¼ lbs., Tls. 2.25 to 2.28, good demand. Exchange on London bank bills, six months' sight, 6s. Latest London date, Jan. 21.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, AND DEATHS.

BIRTHS.

BUTTERY—On the 10th March, at 5, Queen's-crescent, Glasgow, the wife of John Buttery, Esq., of a son.

COSTA—On the 27th Feb., at Hong Kong, the wife of Mr. J. P. da Costa, of a daughter.

KWAST—On the 3rd Feb., at Singapore, the wife of A. P. Van der Kwast, of a daughter.

MORETON—On the 21st Jan., at Bon Accord, Penang, the wife of the Rev. Julian Moreton, a daughter.

MUIRHEAD—On the 19th Jan., at Pootung, Shanghai, Mrs. D. Muirhead, of a daughter.

WILTON—On the 6th Feb., at Helston Lodge, Oxley-hill, Singapore, Mrs. H. E. Wilton, of a son.

MARRIAGES.

GALTON—BREWERTON.—On the 10th March, at Friern Barnet Church, by the Rev. James Hild, M.A., vicar of St. Paul's, Nottingham, cousin of the bride, assisted by the Rev. Robert Morris, M.A., rector, John H. Galton, M.D., London, of Three Oak Villa, Upper Norwood, late of Foochow, China, to Jeannie, younger daughter of Charles Brewerton, Esq., of Walfield, Whetstone, Middlesex. No cards.

HAMPSHIRE—EVEREST.—On the 24th Jan., at St. Andrew's Church, Singapore, Frederick Knowlton Hampshire, M.D., Assistant Colonial Surgeon, Malacca Straits Settlements, to Jessie Clara, third daughter of George Everest, Esq., of Southfield, Wandsworth.

JONES - TANFIELD.—On the 26th Feb., at St. John's Cathedral, Hong Kong, by the Rev. R. O. Callaghan, W. A. Jones, Esq., R.N., to Rachel, fourth daughter of Thomas Tanfield, Esq., of Thirsk, Yorkshire.

WHITLOW—SNOW.—On the 24th Feb., at the parish church, Putney, by the Rev. A. Whitlow, M.A., brother of the bridegroom, William Whitlow, late of Shanghai, to Emma Jane, youngest daughter of the late Edward Snow, Esq., of Maidahill, London.

DEATHS.

COATES—On the 22nd Jan., at Yokohama, Lieut Coates, R.E.

DOWDELL—On the 3rd Jan., at the Naval Hospital, Yokohama, of peritonitis, Lieut. Dowdell, R.N.

DUNCANSON—On the 21st Jan., at Hong Kong, China, suddenly, James Pender, youngest son of Mrs. Duncanson, 26, Orsett-terrace, Hyde-park.

WOOLLETT—On the 9th March, at North Town, Maidenhead, the wife of William Woollett, Esq., late of the firm of Rangel, Woollett and Co.

THE LATE MR. BURLINGAME.

The late Mr. Burlingame addressed the following letter to a friend shortly before his journey to St. Petersburg, where he died:—

"Berlin, 7th January, 1870.

"MY DEAR COLONEL,—

* * * * * *

"My mission prospers. In all that has been said against it there is no word of truth. I am sorry to say there is a party in England, and, indeed, in China which assumes that it will be a bad thing to treat the Chinese with justice. This is natural. Under the old system of force, this party found means to settle everything from its own point of view, and in its own favour. This system has been destroyed by the arrangement concluded between Lord Clarendon and myself. This arrangement is that England should treat China with consideration, that force should not be employed but to protect life and property, and that all difficulties should be treated diplomatically before any resort to force. Such a loyal system ought without doubt to be received with acclamation, but you cannot reason with such men.

"See what magnificent support the President has given to the mission. With Grant, Napoleon, Clarendon, and Bismark, the men who wish to humiliate China will not succeed.

"ANSON BURLINGAME."

TEA BROKERS' COMMISSIONS.

The adjourned meeting of the Tea-Brokers' Association was held to-day, at the Commercial Sale-rooms, in Mincing-lane; Mr. Rothwell was voted to the chair, and a committee was formed, consisting of Messrs. Rothwell, Bowyer, Wood, and Sentance, to transact the business of the Association.

Mr. J. C. Sillar brought forward the resolution, of which notice had been previously given, that, "In the opinion of this meeting, it is desirable that the 'trade customs' of selling tea should be made similar to those of silk, viz., sold for cash, with three months to complete the contract, no allowance being made upon the purchase-money; that the Queen's weights be taken both by buyer and seller; and that the buying brokerage of one-half per cent. be retained, payable upon completion of the contract, as is customary in the silk trade." Mr. Sillar proceeded to show that in the other great trades of rice, indigo, saltpetre, silk, &c., there was no deduction allowed from the purchase-money, and the commission for purchasing was included in the invoice, and paid upon completion of the contract. He further stated that the disastrous state of the tea trade could be traced to a great extent to the existence of these customs. Some discussion followed, and at the request of the chairman, who said that he agreed in a great measure with what had been stated, Mr. Sillar agreed to postpone his motion to a future occasion, as he considered it would be premature to take the opinion of the Association upon so important a subject. The meeting then terminated with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

MR. EDGAR BOWRING, M.P., AND MYSORE.—Public meetings have been held at Mysore and Bangalore to devise means of perpetuating Mr. Bowring's connection with the Mysore State. At the Mysore meeting the chairman stated that nowhere in India, from Bengal to Comorin, was such evidence of progress to be found as in Mysore under Mr. Bowring's administration; and that his knowledge of the languages had done much to confirm the loyalty of the natives. The Bangalore meeting gave even a better proof of Mr. Bowring's popularity by subscribing on the spot a large sum for a testimonial.

THE "SIN NANZING."—Our attention has been called to a paragraph in the Hong Kong summary of news in our issue of the 7th, which states that the steamer Sin Nanzing was forty-five days seven hours under steam from the Clyde to Hong Kong, via Suez Canal. The total time occupied was ninety days, as she called at Bombay and other ports en route.

THE Lufra, China clipper, the launch of which we have already noticed, has been placed in the new docks at Poplar, lately opened as an extension to the East and West India Company's system. She is loading by Messrs. Robertson and Co., brokers, for Hong Kong.

THE gunboat Wun-yo-Maroo, Capt. Gibson, belonging to the Japanese Government, arrived at Plymouth Sound on Saturday (March 12), on her way from Aberdeen to Yokohama.

AMONG the presentations at the Levee held by the Queen at Buckingham Palace, on the 11th inst., we notice the name of Mr. Marcus Flowers, H.M.'s Consul at Nagasaki.

BY a Calcutta telegram we learn that Mr. Cooper, the explorer, who started to travel into China from India, by way of Assam, has been compelled to return. He was stopped on the Thibet frontier.

Digitized by Google

Literature.

—o—

JAPAN ILLUSTRATED.*

Some of the productions of the Paris press throw our most gorgeous Christmas gift books quite into the shade, and M. Humbert's new book on Japan is an instance of this. Our first impression on opening these volumes is that they surpass anything we have ever seen for beauty and clearness of type, fineness of paper, and above all, for the profusion and excellence of the illustrations. And a closer study of the work not only confirms these first impressions, but proves that it possesses literary merit of a high order. To dwell for one moment longer on the sumptuous "get-up" of the volumes, we know of no English books of travel that can at all compare with them. The illustrations—480 in number—are highly finished wood engravings, some being taken from photographs and some from original sketches; while others again are facsimiles of Japanese drawings and caricatures. All these, without exception, are marvels of artistic taste and careful execution. And, admirable as these illustrations are, the accompanying letterpress is more than worthy of them.

M. Humbert's visit to Japan was made in the capacity of Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the Swiss Republic and his object was to obtain a commercial treaty similar to those which had been concluded by other European States. In this he was ultimately successful; but circumstances arose that delayed the negotiations and condemned him to long intervals of diplomatic inaction, which were redeemed from being tedious by the researches which are now given to the world. Our author landed at Nagasaki, and commences his book with a vivid description of that town and its surroundings, and with sketches of some of the most familiar spots in the neighbourhood. Thence he describes his passage through the Inland Sea, arrival at Yokohama, sojourn at Yedo, and excursions in different directions from that starting-point, but at every step he chronicles some note-worthy fact or makes some shrewd observation; and his occasional digressions into politics and history are characterised by a vivacious style that invests even an old story with fresh interest. Like all intelligent observers who take the trouble to study Japanese character closely, M. Humbert ends by conceiving a high opinion of the people, an opinion that we cordially endorse. As a nation they are proud and reserved, but honourable. In trade, they are too often found guilty of trickery and evasion; but then it must be remembered that from time immemorial the trading class has been regarded as the lowest of all, and having been so long treated with suspicion and contempt, they cannot be expected to rise at once to the level of our own merchants. Until very lately, the best of Japanese traders belonged to a class no higher than the petty shopkeepers in the poorer districts of our metropolis—and they would certainly carry off the palm for chicanery, adulteration, and false weights and measures, against any Chinese or Japanese. Besides, have our own traders in Japan been entirely free from blame? The early history of foreign trade at Yokohama forbids us to answer affirmatively. Then, with regard to some of their social customs that are offensive to European delicacy, M. Humbert justly maintains that many of our own habits are quite as revolting to them. We affect to be greatly shocked at the Japanese practice (not nearly so common as supposed) of the two sexes bathing together. To a refined Japanese the sight of a London or Parisian belle in full evening dress is quite as distasteful. The Japanese are fond of the bath; the exigencies of their domestic life (so different in all respects from ours) sometimes render it convenient for the sexes to bathe together; and they do so without any offence, or intentional indelicacy. A Japanese would argue—Why should we lay so much stress on the necessity of seclusion during necessary ablutions, when our ladies, when fully dressed, expose their charms (or otherwise) so freely? The insufficiency of drapery on the upper part of their person is not involuntary, or necessary for any useful purpose, but is intentional, and expressly meant to invite attention. A writer on ball-room morals recently remarked that any observer who wished to form an accurate idea of the nude female form might visit, first, any theatre where a burlesque or a ballet was being performed—where one moiety would be amply displayed—and then need only drop in at an ordinary evening party in Belgravia to complete his study. This is too true, and is not the only instance of an European custom which may not unreasonably excite aversion among people possessing a civilisation different from our own. A good many travellers who have visited Japan, more especially in the early days of our intercourse, made it their first and principal business to look for whatever they had previously heard of as objectionable. At Nagasaki, for instance, they would promptly insist on visiting "Yama-matchi," or the quarter wherein are congregated all the houses of ill-fame. Then after, a short stay chiefly devoted to exploring this region and inquiring into its peculiarities, they would take leave with the remark, "Well, this is certainly a beautiful country; but what a pity it is inhabited by so demoralised a race." M. Humbert is not one of this sort. He took Japanese life and character as he found it, impartially noted its good as well as its bad points, and arrived at the conclusion that the former largely predominated. He is quite justified, for instance, in his belief that the latitude in conversation and manners that undoubtedly exist in Japanese society are in great measure compensated for by the strictness with which the marriage tie is observed. Not only are the Government, politics, customs, and religion graphically depicted, but M. Humbert discourses pleasantly on the literature and art of the country. In the latter he finds an almost inexhaustible mine of wealth, of which he freely avails himself in his illustrations; these alone, as he remarks, would of themselves form an interesting volume, which might be entitled "The Japanese Drawn by Themselves." The series of enigmas which this Sphinx of the Far East (as he terms Japan) propounds to the Western world, have their solution in a language accessible to all nationalities, in the marvellous wealth of illustration afforded by native art—for it is art, and in many cases of a high order, as the facsimiles in these volumes can testify. The limits of our space forbid us to follow our pleasant guide any further: but we cannot take leave of M. Humbert without expressing a hope that his work may soon be translated into our own tongue.

* Le Japon Illustré.—Par Aimé Humbert, Envoyé et Ministre de la Confederation Suisse au Japon. 2 tomes. Paris: Librairie de L. Hachette et Cie.

FROM THE PACIFIC TO THE ATLANTIC.

M. RODOLPHE LINDAU, returning to Europe after a residence of some years in Japan, reached San Francisco a short time before the opening of the Pacific and Atlantic Railway, and had the rather questionable good fortune to cross the great American continent by the first through train. He and his fellow travellers arrived however, as we know, without accident, and M. Lindau has described his journey and the people and places he saw in the pages of *Revue des Deux Mondes. M. Lindau's descriptions of San Francisco and Sacramento are lively, his conclusions being greatly in favour of the former. The ladies of San Francisco certainly owe him a grand reception should he ever visit that city again, for he speaks of them in terms glowing enough to make every man's breast heave with emotion and every woman's, out of San Francisco, with envy. There are some humorous sketches of the notabilities of the Queen of the Pacific, amongst others of the "champion shoeblack of the world," who wore a belt covered with silver plates, and challenged any other member of the profession to black from twenty to one hundred pairs of boots against him for $50 to $200 and the champion's belt, and yet who had the modesty not to charge M. Lindau more than a shilling for cleaning his boots in the most masterly style; the horse-dealer who, offered a trotting nag who could do a mile in three minutes with ease, and who would not turn his eye to see what was the matter even if a hundred boilers were to burst under his nose at the same moment; and the tailor colonel, who, having made his fortune, employed merely for his amusement an army of workmen making coats, waistcoats, &c. for himself, and favoured those who were specially introduced to him by selling them some of his superfluities at magnificent prices—are highly diverting, but we must not linger any longer on the Pacific shore.

The description of the struggle between the constructors of the Central Pacific and the Union Railways is capitally told. The former laid six miles of rails in a single day, and called the spot where the feat was terminated Challenge Point; the challenge was taken up by the Unionists, who made more than 7½ miles of ironway in twenty-four hours; but the Californians were not to be beaten, they gathered all their forces and in one day succeeded in laying ten miles of road, the first 240 feet of rails were placed in eighty seconds, and the second lot of the same length in seventy-five seconds. The whole of the rails, weighing about a thousand tons, were laid by eight men, but they had 10,000 assistants! Of these labourers a considerable portion were Chinese, whose steady, industrious character raised them high in the estimation of the engineers and overseers of the works, and who finally won the admiration even of the Irish navvies themselves by a grand faction fight, the cause of which no one could ever find out, but which resulted in the death of several of the combatants, after which the rest went to work, perfectly satisfied and gaily as ever, while the directors with sound policy decided to know nothing about the affair. In California, says M. Lindau, there is but one opinion about the Chinese, which is that they are the very best possible labourers to employ on a railway; they not only do as much work and bear as much fatigue as Europeans, but they take a pleasure in their duties, and above all their sobriety is exemplary. Whilst constant and severe watch had to be kept to maintain even an appearance of order amongst the Americans, Irish, and Germans, it was scarcely necessary to look at the Chinese; their task being set, they divided it amongst them so as to get it well done, they received their money, and gave no trouble whatever. The organisation which regulated everything amongst them worked smoothly and efficiently—a lesson for us Europeans.

M. Lindau's descriptions of the Sierra region—in the elevated parts of which the snow lies on the surface in depths varying from ten to forty feet, and of the snow sheds erected to shield the line—are certainly not calculated to induce any one to undertake the week's journey on the new railway in the winter months, in spite of the ingenuity and perseverance that have been exhibited in providing against accident. The description of the desperadoes whom M. Lindau saw in the neigbourhood of Promotory and Corinne, and the descriptions of those places and of Wasatch, are certainly not enticing. Corinne is described by a well-informed Californian journalist as the worst place that ever existed in California or Nevada, and this is certainly high rank. One of the most satisfactory results that may be expected of the Pacific and Atlantic Railway is the gradual purification of such dens of vice as the places above named, and the extirpation of that loathsome Mormon haunt called Brigham City, which has been puffed and painted up more by English writers of a pseudo-philosophic and prurient school than, we are ashamed to say, by anyone else. The rotten fabric is now shaken by internal dissension, and we doubt not that the Pacific and Atlantic Railway will soon bring it crumbling down into its native mud.

* Numbers of Nov. 1 and Dec. 1, 1869, and March 1, 1870.

Digitized by Google

M. Lindau, like all Europeans, is struck with the self-complacent boastings of our Transatlantic friends, though he is in no way censorious or narrow- minded in his observations; and he is truly philosophic when he says that, whatever real faults or shortcomings the members of old civilisations may see in new communities, youth, after all, has the best of the bargain.

M. Lindau takes a sober, fair view of the great works, the energy, the perseverance, the capacity, as well as the foibles of the Americans, with a full appreciation of the magnificent future which awaits them; and we heartily recommend every one who can to read his entertaining and instructive pages. For the comfort of those who would prefer an English version, we may add that we believe a translation will be published in this country shortly. It would certainly be a popular work.

The Photographic Art Journal. (London: Sampson Low and Son.)—This is the first number of a new monthly journal, edited by Mr. Thomas Sutton, and illustrated with photographs printed in permanent pigments. The text comprises a complete résumé of the news in the photographic world, important original articles, accounts of new inventions, &c. The illustrations are specimens of various newly-discovered processes (three in number), and are all excellent. The subjects chosen will be copies of fine modern paintings and works of art, fac-similes of works by the old masters, views, portraits of eminent persons, &c.; so that subscribers will at the end of the year find themselves possessed of a collection of fine and handsomely-mounted photographs, the choicest works of the leading firms and artists, and as permanent as letterpress. Amateur photography being so popular a pursuit in the East, this journal ought to become popular among our readers.

Straits Produce.—With the new year appeared in Singapore the second issue of this vehicle for the combined wit and humour of the colony. As might have been expected, it shows a great improvement on the first. The visit of the Duke of Edinburgh and its attendant festivities is, of course, the subject of a good deal of loyal badinage; the tiger-fight at Johore, snipe-shooting in the jungle, the bicycle mania, &c., afford subjects for some of the sketches, while others are aimed at the Governor, who, it is hardly necessary to say, is not very tenderly dealt with.

Headlands, Islands, &c., of the Coast of China and Japan, by Capt. W. B. Andrews, of the P. and O. Company's service, is a very useful set of sketches of the principal points along the coast of China and Japan, together with a table of distances. This is one of the most valuable adjuncts to the charts, &c., used by the navigators in those parts. The publishers in London are Messrs. Maclure, Macdonald, and Co., 37, Walbrook, and copies have, we understand, been sent to China and Japan for sale.

NEW SONGS.—Messrs. R. Cocks and Co. send us a few of their late publications. The one most worthy of notice is "O Fair Dove"—a setting of Jean Ingelow's beautiful words, by Mr. Alfred Gatty, who is not the first composer that has taken them for a theme. He has succeeded in producing a very charming air. "The Smiles of those we Love" (W. F. Taylor) is pretty and pleasing, but of a far lower order of merit. "Angel of Peace" is the title of a sacred song, the words of which (by the Rev. J. B. Dalton) are set to a beautiful and inspiring air by Annie Fricker. Another sacred song, "O, when wilt thou come to me," by Miss M. Lindsay, is good, but will hardly bear comparison with some of her former productions—"Absalom" and "Resignation" to wit. "The Musical Box," a caprice for the piano, by Immanuel Liebich, is a difficult, but, when fairly mastered, a sparkling little piece, with more individuality than works of this kind can generally boast of.

OPIUM VERSUS CHRISTIANITY.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

To the extra duty imposed by the new Convention, or even double the amount, few would have any objection if the Chinese would guarantee to put a stop to the native growth of the drug, but so long as the native drug is grown so largely, I see no good reason why an extra duty should be imposed on the foreign grown drug.

Out of all the above-mentioned articles on opium and its evils, you do not meet with one writer who does not almost wholly confine himself to the foreign importer, and by the foreign importer is evidently meant the European or American importer, whereas the fact is, that Europeans and Americans have comparatively little to do with it, the trade in the foreign drug being mostly in the hands of the natives of India, and has been so for years. Little or nothing, also, is said condemnatory of the Chinese growers, the thunders of the writers being launched almost exclusively against their own countrymen.

The Rev. Dr. Collins says:—"Accusations of overstatement have been made against those who plead against the opium trade, but only by those who have but a superficial or limited acquaintance with this people." It would be well if such be the case; let your readers judge for themselves, from the statements made in the articles, whether it is so or not. The following remarks on the statements contained in the articles in question may aid them in forming their opinion.

The Rev. Dr. Graves, in the January number for 1869, says:—"On the whole I think we would be below rather than above the mark in saying that one-fourth of the adult male inhabitants of China are addicted to the use of opium." We usually hear that China contains one-third of the human race, and the popular estimate of the number of inhabitants of China is 360,000,000; allowing there to be six to a family, and but one male adult in each family, this would give us sixty millions of male adults (which would be under the mark), and allow one-fourth of them to smoke opium (this would also be below the mark, according to Dr. Graves), and we have fifteen millions of adult male smokers of opium in China. Dr. Dudgeon, in the February number, gives us the quantity smoked as follows. The maximum quantity is two taels in twenty-four hours, and the minimum five candareens to begin with. In 100 smokers the percentage is about the following:—

30	smoke from 3 to 4 mace, say, 3m. 5c.		=	105 mace.
20	„	2 mace ...	=	40
20	„	1 mace ...	=	20
20	„	5 candareens ...	=	10
10	„	1 tael, or ounce, and upwards		100
100				275

or two mace, seven candareens, five cash of opium is the average quantity consumed daily by the male adult smokers, whom Dr. Graves computes at one-fourth of the male adults in China, and these we have shown to be 15,000,000.

For some of your home readers the following table of weights in use in China may be useful:—10 cash = 1 candareen; 10 candareens = 1 mace; 10 mace = 1 tael; 16 taels = 1 catty; 100 catties = 1 picul; 1 picul = 133·33 lbs. avoirdupois; 1 catty = 1·333 lbs. avoirdupois; 1 tael = 1·333 oz. avoirdupois; 1 lb. avoirdupois = ¾ of a catty, or 12 taels; 4 oz. = 3 taels. With this table before them they may find out the quantity of opium consumed in China from the number of smokers given by Dr. Graves, and the quantity smoked as given by Dr. Dudgeon, taking the popular estimate of the number of inhabitants. Dr. Dudgeon does not give the number who smoke, nor does Dr. Graves give the quantity smoked. We must, therefore, take the two accounts to give the quantity consumed.

Reckoning the actual male smokers as before at 15,000,000, and the quantity smoked by each at 2m. 7c. 5c. we have the amount smoked as follows:—

15,000,000
× 275
4,125,000,000 cash of opium.
412,500,000 candareens of do.
41,250,000 mace of do.
16 ÷ 4,125,000 taels of do.
100 ÷ 251,562 catties of do.
2,515 62-100 piculs of opium consumed daily.
× 365
918,201 30-100 piculs of opium consumed yearly.

It is estimated, also, that about one-tenth of the female adult population smoke. Allowing them only half the quantity the men smoke, we have the following:—

6,000,000		Adult males	918,201 piculs.
× 14
84,000,000	candareens	Adult females	191,625 do.
8,400,000	mace
16 ÷ 840,000	taels
52,500	catties
525	piculs of opium daily.
× 365
191,625	piculs of opium yearly
	Total per year ...	...	1,109,826 piculs.

But as the smoked opium is prepared, and loses 25 per cent. in preparation, we add 25 per cent. to make it the same as grown or imported (277,456). Total opium consumed during the year, 1,387,282 piculs, as shown by the statements of Dr. Dudgeon and Dr. Graves. From this amount deduct the foreign import, of 81,000 piculs, and we have left for native growth 1,306,282 piculs.

But as I have no desire to take advantage of the writers of the articles in any way, we will reckon the population at 250 millions instead of 360 millions, as being nearer the actual population of China, not on account of depopulation, but assuming that a larger number has not existed. Taking the same quantity of opium, and reduced population, by the same mode of calculation we have consumed by male adults, 1,790 30-100 piculs per day.

Digitized by Google

Which, multiplied by 360, gives	663,459 piculs per year.
Add for female adults ...	151,313
	814,772
To which add as before 25 per cent	203,691
Total consumption	1,018,461 piculs per year.
From which deduct foreign imports	81,000
Leaving as native growth	957,465 piculs per year.

As none of the writers of the articles give us full accounts, we must pick up the information as best we can from the different writers, and in Dr. Collins's article in the October number we find the next link in the chain, namely, the time occupied in smoking a certain quantity. Dr. Collins says:—"One evil incidental to opium smoking which I have heard bemoaned by a native is the great loss of time involved. An ordinary amount of opium—two candareens—occupies in smoking one to two hours daily, so that the higher amounts, one ounce and upwards, must take a large portion of available time in a day."

Let us see how long it does take. If two candareens take, say, one hour and a half, how long will two mace, seven candareens, five cash—Dr. Dudgeon's average—take? It would take twenty hours and a-half; even this small average quantity one would think would occupy a large part of the available time in a day, let alone an ounce and upwards; take the ounce at eight mace, or eighty candareens, the time occupied in smoking this, at the rate given by Dr. Collins, would be sixty hours a day; but as this was not enough, such cases being frequent, he tells us—it is an ounce, and upwards. Dr. Dudgeon says the minimum is ten taels; we will take ten taels, or 100 candareens, bearing in mind that the opium smoker's day is a short one, and the time it would take to smoke 100 candareens, or one tael, is seventy-five hours! The doctor does not mention how many hours after smoking this quantity is available for food, sleep, work, &c., out of the twenty-four hours.

We may carry the calculation one step further, and see what time is lost to the world by these opium smokers in smoking alone, that is if the Missionary calculations are to be believed. The male adult smokes, at twenty hours and a-half each, in time no less than 24,583 years daily, or in a year, 8,900,000 years. Female smokers, as they only smoke half the quantity, will likely only take half the time to it, or 1,910 hours a day; this will give 1,756 years daily, or 1,736,111 years in one year. Therefore, according to the combined calculations of the doctor above quoted, the 14,553,532 smokers of opium, male and female, consume of time daily 29,139 years, or 10,666,111 years in one year in smoking alone. That the Rev. Dr. Collins's calculations are correct few will be so bold as to deny, for he tells us "accusations of overstatement are only made against those who plead against the opium trade by those who have but a superficial or limited acquaintance with this people." I fear I shall have to bear the accusation of the worthy doctor, for I really believe his statement to be exaggerated, notwithstanding he has had the article in view for some months, and tells us—"In what I have said I have simply related my own experience, I have not drawn upon my imagination, nor do I wish to call that of my readers' into exercise. I do not wish to prejudice my readers by what may appear exaggeration," &c., &c. If this statement is really correct—and Dr. Collins vouches for it very strongly—it is no wonder that the Chinese are so slow to move onward in the direction of progress.

SPURIOUS TEA.

Under this heading we noticed in our last issue the report of Dr. Letheby on some recent importations of the now notorious "Maloo Mixture." Since then the attention of Parliament has been called to the matter, Mr. Stapleton having asked in the House of Commons whether the Board of Trade was aware of what was going on, and whether any measures would be taken to protect the public. To this Mr. Shaw-Lefevre replied that he "believed" the stuff in question had been imported to a considerable extent, but was not aware whether it had got into consumption in this country, and that, as the Excise Department exercised considerable power of seizing adulterated tea wherever it might be, he was not prepared to say that the law required any amendment. This abominable rubbish has been imported for some time, though it has only lately been brought prominently to public notice. As far back as April, 1868, we published a letter written by a city tea-broker (Mr. J. C. Sillar) stating that quantities of stuff called tea, but utterly unfit for consumption, were being sold, and suggesting that the stocks in the warehouses should be examined, and all found to be unwholesome condemned. This sensible advice was not acted on, but at last—at the instance of the Commissioners of Sewers—a seizure has been made of six chests forming portion of a large shipment, and an application made to the magistrate at Guildhall to condemn it. The case is not yet decided, but the following extracts from the police reports will show what has transpired so far:—

At the Guildhall, on the 9th, Mr. Baylis, solicitor to the Commissioner of Sewers, addressing Alderman Stone, said he had a case to bring before the Court, but he did not know whether, under the peculiar circumstances, he should be able then to proceed with it. By order of Dr. Letheby, six chests of spurious tea had been seized at Nicholson's Wharf, and when they went to remove it there was an embargo laid upon it by the Customs until the duty was paid. The tea had been seized because it was totally unfit for human food, and, if used, certain to be most deleterious to health. Mr. Waller, who appeared for the owners of the tea, said he could not let that statement go uncontradicted. Alderman Stone said he was of opinion that he had no power to hear the case until the bulk was before him. Mr. Waller said that the value of the tea was about £15,000, and the duty about £15,000 more, and the Board of Customs would not let it go until the duty was paid. He wished to know whether the Commissioners of Sewers were prepared to pay that sum before they proceeded. Mr. Baylis replied that the Commissioners of Sewers were prepared to do anything to prevent the people of London being poisoned, although he was not authorised to pledge them to any such amount. He must say that he had to complain very much of the conduct of the wharfingers at Nicholson's Wharf and the owners of the tea, for the manner in which they had acted. There were at their wharf 240 chests of tea of precisely the same brands as the six that had been seized, and for the convenience of the wharfingers and owners of the tea, he had arranged that only six chests should be seized, and the rest should remain to abide the result of the magistrate's decision. However, within twelve hours after that agreement was entered into, the owners and wharfingers had, with great expedition, removed the whole of it, and taken it out of the jurisdiction of the Court. He could not help saying that it was tricky conduct on their part. A solicitor for the wharfingers said it was out of their power to stop the tea; he was proceeding to explain when Alderman Stone interrupted him, and said he could not go into the matter until it came regularly before him. The parties then left the court.

On the 11th inst. the application was renewed, the six chests being brought into court. The solicitor who appeared for the owners of the "mixture" said he was not prepared to contend that it was wholesome or fit for food. He grounded his defence on the assertion that it was not either "food" or "a vegetable" within the meaning of the Act; that it could not legally be seized before it was offered for sale, which had not been done; and that, not being intended for sale here, but for re-exportation to Hamburg, it did not come under the jurisdiction of the Court. Mr. Lane (who appeared for the proprietors of the wharf) referred to Mr. Baylis's statement on the last occasion, in which he said the conduct of the wharfingers was "tricky," and he wished to explain that there was no arrangement made specifically with Mr. Baylis, but six chests of tea only were seized, and then the owners came down with their warrants, and the wharfingers had no power to refuse to give up the tea. Mr. Baylis allowed that he did say there was something tricky in the conduct of the owners in having the tea removed, but after the explanation that had been given he saw the wharfingers could not help themselves, and he wished to withdraw all imputation from them. Alderman Stone decided that sampling the tea was an exposing for sale within the meaning of the Act. Both he and the Common Serjeant were clearly of opinion that tea was a vegetable, and that it was an article of human food, and if he should be of opinion that it was unfit for the food of man he should condemn it; but he should have no objection to give a case for a Superior Court. He would make the order, but suspend its operation until the decision of the Court above was known. Dr. Letheby, Medical Officer of Health, and Food Analyst for the City of London, said he had seen the tea in question, and tried it by making an infusion of it. He was of opinion that it was composed of leaves that had undergone putrefaction. They had a putrefactive odour, which was brought out very distinctly by infusing them in boiling water. He produced an infusion of the leaves, and said that they were so putrid as to be unfit for human food. The tea in all the chests was of the same character. Mr. Waller cross-examined Dr. Letheby at great length as to the properties of tea and its nutritive qualities. Dr. Letheby said that he did not believe the tea in question could be sold and used by itself; it might be mixed with good tea and used. He knew that it was decomposed because the stalks were soft and pulpy, which would not be the case with tea in good condition, even though it was common tea. The leaves, if they were good, would not have broken in consequence of a quarter of an hour's boiling. At the conclusion of Dr. Letheby's evidence the case was adjourned, Mr. Waller intimating that he would call scientific witnesses, and instruct counsel on the next occasion.

THE HONG KONG HOUSE-OWNERS' MEMORIAL.

A meeting, comprising most of the subscribers to this memorial (which was published in our last), was held on the 9th inst., Mr. R. J. Gilman in the chair. The reply of Lord Granville, which Mr. Gilman read, was as follows:—

"I am directed by Earl Granville to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 31st ult., enclosing a memorial from owners of house property in Hong Kong, urging objections to the supplementary convention to the Treaty of Tientsin, and requesting that his Lordship will receive a deputation on the subject. I am to inform you in reply that the arguments of the memorialists will receive the consideration of Her Majesty's Government, and that Lord Granville will name a time for receiving the proposed deputation after he has received a communication on the subject, which is expected from the Governor of Hong Kong."

After some general remarks, in which Mr. Walkinshaw pointed out that restrictions placed on the traders of Hong Kong by a Manadrin Consul would assuredly drive the trade over to Macao, and that at present the exports to the coast amounted to twenty-two million dollars, it was decided that the gentlemen present should form a deputation to Earl Granville on the subject.

Digitized by Google

PROPOSED PACIFIC TELEGRAPH.

We have more than once noticed the proposal to lay a telegraphic cable between the United States and Eastern Asia, and replied to the objections of some writers who characterised it as a wild and visionary scheme. The following, extracted from the New York Times, shows that the probabilities of its being carried into execution are on the increase :—

The Committee on Commerce has reported without amendment the Bill to encourage telegraphic communication between the Eastern and Western Hemispheres, or, in other words, the Pacific Cable Bill. The Bill provides that the starting point for the cable shall be south of Cape San Juan, in Washington Territory. The line which the American and Asiatic Telegraph Company originally estimated, and to which substantially, we presume, they still adhere, was about 5,000 miles long. But the islands of the Pacific offer a great advantage in breaking this long line; and in this respect the enterprise is less hazardous, so far as the establishment of the line is concerned, than its Atlantic predecessors. The distance from San Francisco to Cape San Juan, in Washington Territory, is 700 miles, and this part of the line is already built. There begins the ocean cable proper, which, proceeding north-westerly, finds its first station at Sitka, a distance of 630 miles. Thence, proceeding due west 500 miles, it touches Kodiak where we have or lately had, a military post. Thence, stretching south-westerly along the Alaska peninsula and the Aleutian group of islands 450 miles, it touches Oonalaska. From that point it leaves American islands behind, and, 660 miles to the west, reaches the island of Attou, and with 650 miles more, Urup, the latter on the Asiatic shore. Another stretch of 300 miles carries it to Hakodadi, in Japan, where its mission proper as an ocean cable may be said to end. But, with a northerly move of 200 miles, it reaches Poseyat, where, on the mainland of Asia, it will connect with a branch, already built, of that great Russian overland route which continues to the mouth of the Amoor River. From Posey at a southerly trend of 650 miles (also submarine) carries the cable to Nagasaki, whence an easterly branch may continue 600 miles to Yokohama, and a westerly one of 450 to Shanghai, the latter to connect with the East India Telegraph Company's line, so encircling the globe. These were the stations, we say, and these the distances estimated a year or more ago, and if they have been, or shall be slightly changed, it can only be in the way of improvement. Even as they are, it is clear that no distance between adjacent points in the long line is greater than 700 miles, which is a trifle in ocean telegraphy. And, again, it is clear that the strict trans-Pacific course—say from from San Juan to Hakodadi, is only 3,190 miles in length, while that from Sitka to Japan is only 2,490. It is evident that the project is perfectly practicable, and that it need not be long before we have daily news here in New York from Japan and China, as we have it now from England and California.

THE LOSS OF THE "ONEIDA."

(THE TIMES, MARCH 8.)

Particulars have at length been received of the fatal collision between the Bombay and the Oneida. We earnestly trust that in this account there may be still something wanting, and that its statements, though undoubtedly authentic, may be imperfect, for otherwise we must deeply regret conduct which is nothing less than an outrage on humanity, as well as a disgrace to the British flag. . . How far the accident was inevitable, or how, or in what proportions, the blame should be distributed, are questions to be settled by the professional evidence and official inquiry. Our present concern is with the graver incident of the neglect or indifference shown by the captain of the Bombay in the duty of succour and rescue. As the American ship did not go down immediately, but only "soon" after the collision, and as two of her own boats succeeded in saving sixty lives, it appears morally certain that the aid of the British vessel, promptly rendered, would have sufficed to snatch the rest from destruction. Is it, then, true that the Bombay, according to the American account of the affair, "never stopped after the collision," but steamed on as if nothing had happened, leaving the Oneida's crew to their fate? We fear it is, for these are the words of Mr. Henry's message referring to the incident :—"The Bombay felt the shock so little, that Captain Eyre did not think the Oneida could have been much damaged, and continued his voyage on to Yokohama." As we earnestly trust, for the sake of humanity, that some further justification or explanation of such a course may yet be forthcoming, we cannot omit to point out that no mention is made of the signal guns said to have been fired by the sinking ship, and which would aggravate the case against the British commander. Nevertheless, we feel at a loss to conceive how any seaman could have imagined that such a collision as is described could have occurred without "much damage," or without some demand for the assistance of his ship. . . . So far as we can judge at present, the British commander is not to be blamed for the actual collision itself. That seems to have been the fault, if it was anybody's fault, rather of the American pilot, though in such a night as is described it is possible that no great blame could be ascribed to any one. The catastrophe, in short, would of itself have provoked little comment except for the alleged heartlessness of the English captain, and here we are compelled to acknowledge that the official report does contain some ground for the American version of the occurrence. When the news first arrived nobody in this country could believe that the Bombay did really steam on without stopping after the fatal collision, but it is now proved that she did so, and that upwards of a hundred men were left to drown who might otherwise, according to all human probability, have been rescued from death. It is not said that the weather was rough, or that there was any cause to prevent the Bombay from stopping and lowering her boats in aid of the sinking crew; indeed, the very fact that the Oneida's boats saved without difficulty as many as they could carry proves with what ease and certainty the relief might have been extended. To all appearance, the only possible justification of Captain Eyre must consist in his own reported assumption that no assistance was required. The Bombay, it seems, received not the least damage from the collision, and her commander, therefore, jumped to the conclusion that the other vessel escaped with as little harm. Whether such a conclusion could under the circumstances be warrantable is a question for professional opinion; but that it was unfortunate in the extreme is, unhappily, beyond all doubt. We wait, however, for the complete elucidation of the case, though we wish we could do so with greater confidence in the result.

(PALL MALL GAZETTE, MARCH 9.)

When the news came from America that the captain of the Bombay, after running down the Oneida, had calmly pursued his course, leaving the crew of the sinking ship to perish, we at once expressed a confident belief that the story would prove to be untrue. Indignation at the Britisher is a favourite pastime in the United States; and that an American ship of war should be run down by a British packet-boat, a mere mail-steamer, seemed very likely indeed to arouse susceptibility and to stimulate accusation. We now suffer the humiliation of suspecting that our confidence was not quite justified by the facts. So far as they are known, they quite account for the indignation which seems to have spread throughout the Union like fire in prairie grass. The ships came into collision apparently by the fault of the Oneida's officers; but that is nothing to the point, nor would it be of much effect even if the vessels had been engaged in just and open war. The ships struck upon each other. The shock to one of them was so great that she presently sank with 115 men on board. Sixty-one escaped in two boats. In America it is asserted that when the Oneida knew her danger she fired her guns to signal her distress; and that the Bombay nevertheless went on her way regardless. That still seems to us an almost incredible story. But what is the explanation (as far as we know it) on the other side? It is said, on behalf of the captain of the English ship, that he was quite unaware that the collision was at all serious: "he did not think the Oneida could have been much damaged, and continued his voyage to Yokohama." Certainly this is very strange. A shock so great as to destroy a ship of war is felt so little by the vessel which struck her, that her captain carries on without a suspicion that any harm has been done. Nor does he hear the distress-guns. Surely there must be some explanation of all this which does not yet appear; most earnestly we hope so, and cling to the belief that the story is not yet complete. Bad as appearances are for the captain of the Bombay, it is not possible that he should pursue his course simply indifferent to so dreadful a calamity; still it is difficult now to avoid very grave doubts as to whether he exercised that care and caution the absence of which under such circumstances almost amounts to a crime. However, it is too soon to condemn him. We only hope it is not necessary to say, meanwhile, that this calamity weighs very heavily upon all England; and that our anxiety about it is at least as great as the indignation of America.

THE CHINESE MISSION.

(STANDARD, MARCH 11.)

It has been stated that Mr. Burlingame, the chief of the Chinese Embassy, who died very recently at St. Petersburg, is to be succeeded by Mr. Brown, the secretary to the Embassy. This is rather a puzzling arrangement. If an ambassador dies in the ordinary course of things, it is natural enough that the business of his mission should be transacted, until the appointment of his successor from the country he represents, by the senior diplomatist of his staff. But promotion in the higher ranks of the diplomatic service is not quite such a matter of routine as would be implied by the idea that, in such a case, the second in command should take the title and rank of the deceased, just as the eldest son of a peer succeeds his father. Whether Mr. Burlingame ought to have been received as ambassador was always an open question as far as the policy of the step was concerned; but at all events he was appointed ambassador by the Court of Peking. But Mr. Brown's claim to be regarded in the same light can hardly be considered susceptible of discussion at all. He may be an acting chargé d'affaires, but he can no more be an ambassador than a Great Mogul. It may be possible that in the course of time he will be appointed to the vacant dignity by the Chinese Government. Indeed, if the Chinese Government does not in this way mark its sense of the extraordinary and altogether unhoped-for success with which the embassy has discharged its functions, by hoodwinking the British Government, and generally obstructing the progress of European intercourse in China, it will be guilty of the basest ingratitude; and considering that with a Chinaman—in a higher degree than with any other human creature—gratitude signifies a lively sense of favours to come, it is very unlikely that on this occasion the Chinese Government will be ungrateful. Still, for the present, it will be manifest to anyone who bestows a moment's thought upon the principle involved, that it would be premature to recognise Mr. Brown's ambassadorial character. And while his appointment is pending we cannot refrain from pointing out once more—although as far as the present Government is concerned it may be feared that all such remonstrances are useless—that in the nature of things a Chinese Embassy is necessarily a delusion and a snare for unwary foreign secretaries, and nothing else whatever. Everthing which the Peking Government can possibly desire to do with the view of advancing civilisation and facilitating foreign intercourse, it can do with the help of the foreign representatives at Peking. European Powers must always negotiate through their own representatives or bring the interests of their own subjects to grief. The Chinese Embassy cannot be anything more than a buffer, and its recognition simply misleads the Chinese rulers, inspires them with false hopes that are certain to be disappointed in the end, and exerts an effect on the relations between China and the Western Powers which is purely prejudicial.

BREAKFAST.—EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—The very agreeable character of this preparation has rendered it a general favourite. The Civil Service Gazette remarks.—"The singular success which Mr. Epps has attained by his homœopathic preparation of cocoa has never been surpassed by any experimentalist. By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills." Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in tin-lined packets labelled—JAMES EPPS & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London.

Digitized by Google

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS, CORRESPONDENTS, &c.

No notice can be taken of anonymous correspondence. Whatever is intended for insertion must be accompanied by the name and address of the writer, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith.

A REGISTER is kept of the addresses of all persons connected with the FAR EAST, and reference can be made to the same by personal application at the Office or by letter.

Any Information required by Subscribers, in reference to Commercial or general matters in CHINA, JAPAN, SINGAPORE, and other parts of the FAR EAST, will be supplied on application at the Office, where files may be seen of the Journals published in those Countries.

The "LONDON AND CHINA TELEGRAPH" is published on the arrival of the fortnightly English mail, and the monthly French mail. Subscription, 30s. per annum; with Export Supplement, £2 2s.

The "LONDON AND CHINA EXPRESS" is published on the day of departure of the mails, and contains a Summary of English, Continental, and American, News-Commercial and Shipping Reports, &c. Subscription, 54s. per annum; with Export Supplement, 66s.

JAMES WEST, PUBLISHER,
2, COWPER'S-COURT, CORNHILL, LONDON.

The London & China Telegraph.

LONDON: MONDAY, MARCH 14, 1870.

CONSUL SWINHOE'S REPORT ON THE YANGTSZE.

THE circumstances attending Sir HENRY KEPPEL'S expedition up the Yangtsze, in June last, are now pretty well known. It was accompanied by Consul SWINHOE, who was instructed to report his observations to the British Minister, and by Messrs. MICHIE and FRANCIS, on behalf of the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce. The admirable report of these gentlemen on the commercial facilities they found to exist at the various places visited was published some months since, and commented on in these columns; that of Mr. SWINHOE, with its numerous enclosures, was forwarded to the Foreign-office in a despatch from Sir R. ALCOCK, which, with all its contents, is now before us in the shape of a Parliamentary paper. Mr. SWINHOE'S report may be divided into three sections, the first of which contains a short description of his visit to the Upper Yangtsze. In this he fully confirms the statement of Messrs. MICHIE and FRANCIS, that the expedition was in nearly every place welcomed with kindly feeling. Sir R. ALCOCK himself, in his covering despatch, admits that they "met with no hostility on the part of the riverine popu-"lations, and in the majority of towns were well received as "pioneers of commerce." Here, we may observe by the way, is strong official evidence in favour of the assertion we have so often put forth, that the mass of the population would welcome foreigners in almost all parts of the country were they permitted to do so by the ruling classes. This view is further borne out by Consul MARKHAM, who stated, in his account of a visit to Shantung, read the other day before the Geographical Society, that the result of his experience, gathered in several journeys in the interior, was "that the middle and lower classes of China were, as a "rule, inclined to be friendly to strangers, and that all acts "of offence are instigated by the governing class of man-"darins." But, to return to Consul SWINHOE, we find but little information of any direct commercial value in this part of his report, which is probably due to the fact of his having purposely left such items to the care of the Chamber of Commerce delegates; but he makes it quite clear that no steam navigation is possible higher than Ichang. As Sir R. ALCOCK says, these observations have lost much of their interest now that all thought of obtaining access to the Upper Yangtsze has been relinquished for the present.

The second part of the report is devoted to the Poyang Lake and the commerce of the surrounding district. In view of the proposal to open this lake to steamers, three ports in it were suggested as "ports of call," to be subsidiary to the treaty port of Kiukiang. They are Jao-chow, Woo-ching, and Jui-hung, each of which is situated at the mouths of two rivers flowing into the lake. All these streams communicate with tea districts, some with silk-producing provinces, others with coal mines. Mr. SWINHOE indulges in some rather glowing anticipations of the important trade to be developed through these channels by the introduction of steam, and no doubt these would be fully justified by the results, if the experiment had but a fair trial. But the arrangement for a single tug-boat to be allowed on the lake, and that one in Chinese hands, is a wretched compromise; and it is worthy of note that Sir R. ALCOCK himself says in the despatch enclosing Mr. SWINHOE'S report, that "he has collected a good "deal of useful information, the general bearing of which is "to discourage the idea that any advantage would be gained "by placing a steam-tug, as proposed by the Chinese "authorities, on the lake." To this part of Mr. SWINHOE'S report are appended copies of a long correspondence carried on in the Shanghai papers on the question of substituting Hookow for Kiukiang, as a treaty port; of a memorial from the Kiukiang merchants to the British Minister, on the importance of opening up the Poyang Lake; and of a sketch-map of the lake region. We now come to the concluding section of the report, devoted to the proposed "landing-places" on the lower Yangtsze, suggested in the memorials on treaty revision. The first, Kiang-yin, some ninety miles by river from Shanghai, is said to be very desirable, but of several others mentioned, Woo-hoo (or Wu-hu), is the only one that receives very favourable mention, although Mr. SWINHOE thinks that Ta-tung and An-king "might be accepted." He suggests that these three places should be under the control of a Vice-Consul, who could make the circuit of the three once a month, having his head quarters at Kiukiang or Chinkiang. By degrees, Mr. SWINHOE thinks, these would develop, by their own natural growth, into regular Treaty ports. On this Sir R. ALCOCK remarks that Mr. SWINHOE is mistaken in assuming that it was ever intended to make Consular ports of these; the proposal was only to establish a small Customs' station, with the necessary facilities for landing and shipping goods. Of what use this would be, without any official to protect British interests, it is hard to say; the experiment, however, is not to be tried. Wu-hu—one of the places recommended — becomes a treaty port under the new Convention; of the others we shall probably hear nothing more. In conclusion, we may remark that Mr. SWINHOE'S report is ably compiled and very instructive, but unfortunately its chief use is to show us what advantages might have been secured to British trade had the task of treaty revision been carried out in a proper manner.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS ASSOCIATION.

A GENERAL meeting was held on the 4th inst., at which the Report of the Finance Committee was presented, and ordered to be printed for transmission to the Colonial-office. We have not yet seen the report, but we believe it will be found to fully bear out the views we expressed on the subject of the Straits finances in our issue of January 14th. The Auditor-General, in his comments upon the representations made by the Association, has been compelled to have recourse to special pleading. He devotes all his energies to exposing a few errors in detail, but evades the real point of the discussion, viz., that, on his own showing, Sir H. ORD'S administration has entailed upon the colony an additional annual expenditure of over £40,000 per annum. It matters nothing that, through good luck more than good management, the revenue of the colony has rapidly increased. The fact is acknowledged on all hands, but it will be a novel line for them to take if our present economising Government recognise in such a state of things a warrant for a governor appropriating every farthing of an accruing surplus to purposes mainly his own. Already the fears expressed by the Association a year ago as to the exorbitant cost of Governor ORD'S palace are being realised. An official return, called for by Mr. W. R. SCOTT, reveals the fact that already this modest edifice has cost the colony $175,000, and there are rumours many heavy items have yet to be added; so that it is probable enough that the total expenditure upon the palace will fully equal its cost as estimated by the Association, viz., $200,000. Now, as Earl GRANVILLE distinctly stated in May last that not half of such an amount would be sanctioned, it remains to be seen what his lordship will say when the facts are before him.

IT is said that the Russian Consul at Kuldscha, in Eastern Siberia, has crossed over to Sze-chuen, with a view to ascertain the disposition of the people and the likelihood of their supporting a scheme to establish a mercantile route between that province and the Russian territory. It is possible that a route connecting these two points may be made practicable, as it entirely avoids the necessity of passing that at present impassable barrier, Thibet.

Digitized by Google

GALLE HARBOUR.

THE scheme for the improvement of Galle Harbour continues to be the subject of a controversy in which public opinion is strangely divided. One party objects to the plan altogether, on the ground that a suitable work cannot be constructed for much less than double the amount of the loan to be granted; another party does not doubt the feasibility of the work, but thinks the Home Government ought to pay for it; a third is quite willing to defray the outlay out of the Colonial revenue, but would remove the locale of the proposed harbour works to Colombo, which is doubtless the mercantile capital of the island; while a fourth party—which to us seems the most sensible and practical of all—recognises the importance of Galle as a future focus of Eastern trade, and, failing any actual grant of funds from home, is willing to accept, and make the best of such help as is offered, in the shape of a loan repayable on tolerably easy terms. We quite admit the probability of the final cost of the breakwater and other necessary works exceeding the amount of the loan; but there need be no uneasiness on this point. The home Government having distinctly admitted the principle that the entire plan is dependent on a loan to the Colony, cannot stop half-way, if it is shown that an increase in the amount, with a corresponding extension of the time allowed for repayment is absolutely necessary, we cannot for a moment doubt that such accommodation will be granted. Of those who oppose this view, the most reasonable section consists of the advocates of an improvement in the harbour of Colombo. They argue that instead of spending the money of the colony in providing accommodation for the whole trade of the East, at Galle, it should be devoted to Colombo, the commercial emporium of the island. To pay for a breakwater at Galle, they say, would be generous, but to improve Colombo Harbour would be just, and that is obviously the better course. To this we may reply, that notwithstanding the drawbacks that Colombo may suffer from, it is already a prosperous and flourishing port—and if an opportunity offers of raising Galle to a similar pitch of prosperity, why not take advantage of it? That the proposed improvements will, if properly carried out, work a vast change in the importance of Galle, cannot be denied. It is already a great focus for many lines of steamers, and but for the evil reputation of its anchorage would be equally available as a port of call for sailing vessels. The Suez Canal will bring a great accession to the traffic that already seeks shelter there; and the increased importance and wealth that must come with the completion of these long-needed harbour works cannot fail to react in a beneficial way on the general prosperity of the colony. The Ceylon public would like to have all this free of cost to themselves. No doubt; but they should bear in mind that "half a loaf is better than no bread," and be thankful for such aid as is vouchsafed them. Considering the niggardly views of our present Government, and its narrow-minded Colonial policy, it is a marvel that they have obtained any assistance at all. By all means get Galle Harbour made safe at once—and then see about Colombo.

WE understand that Mr. J. W. BIRCH, at present one of the Government Agents in Ceylon, is to be the new Colonial Secretary for the Straits Settlements. Mr. BIRCH has proved himself an able and energetic public servant, and has been selected entirely on account of his good services. He has done more for irrigation works, probably, than any other officer in Ceylon, and has been mentioned favourably in the official despatches of Sir H. WARD, Sir C. MACCARTHY, and Sir H. ROBINSON. This appears to be a really good appointment, and one that should give satisfaction both in Ceylon and Singapore.

WE regret to learn that the persecution of native Christians still continues in Japan. To what extent it is really carried has never been quite satisfactorily ascertained, but a letter by last mail from our Nagasaki correspondent details some terrible cruelties. Sir HARRY PARKES made an effort during his visit to Nagasaki to procure some mitigation of the severities practised, but without success. It is unaccountable that a Government that shows so liberal and enlightened a disposition in many other respects should in this one remain obstinately deaf both to reason and humanity.

THE memorials from the Shanghai and Hong Kong Chambers of Commerce, and from the colony of Hong Kong, on Sir R. ALCOCK'S Convention have been received here with much satisfaction. They greatly strengthen the position of the London merchants, because they entirely dispel the idea which had gained ground in some quarters, that a diversity of opinion existed between the mercantile community in China and the London Committee, and thus help to refute one of Lord CLARENDON'S strongest arguments. The Hong Kong General Memorial—if we may so term it, to distinguish it from that of the Chamber of Commerce—is exceedingly well drawn, and in this respect is, in our opinion, one of the best documents ever sent home from the Far East.

A VERY painful sensation has been created by the telegrams announcing the collision between the Bombay and the Oneida, and its terribly fatal consequences. In the United States it is roundly asserted that Captain EYRE deliberately left the crew of the Oneida to their fate, and the indignation against him is extreme. The nature of the sentence passed by the Naval Court at Hong Kong (suspension of certificate for six months) seems to indicate that this grave charge has not been proven; still, we await fuller details with much anxiety.

SILKWORM REARING.

(FROM OUR PARIS CORRESPONDENT.)

Any one would be extremely rash to say either that the silkworm will flourish freely, or that it will prove an utter failure in one or other of our islands, but the stir that has been wisely made of late respecting silk supply and silk spinning will certainly cause a great many experiments to be tried. The season is now approaching when the business of the silkworm rearer commences, and we think it will be well to give an extract from the hints and instructions furnished by one of the highest authorities on the subject in France, namely, H. Raibaud-Lange, director of the farm school of Paillerols, in the Basses-Alpes, and an active co-operator with M. Pasteur in the selection of the seed, or eggs, by microscopic means.

M. Raibaud-Lange says that the malady which has caused such sad destruction in France and other countries, the pebrine or gattine, is conquered by the selection above alluded to, but there still remains the disease common to the worms, and known in France as flacherie, which is all the more to be dreaded from the fact that it makes its appearance at the fourth stage of the insect's life, when nearly all the cost and trouble of rearing have been incurred. This well-known disease is especially to be dreaded when the spring is early and the changes of temperature frequent. It is at this period, then, that particular precautions are necessary. Between the fourth change and the commencement of the cocoon the silkworm eats five times more food than previously, and requires consequently great regularity in feeding and temperature. Sudden variations must be guarded against with all possible care; if a hot south wind begins to blow, as in the south of France, the windows must be shut against it, and the air in the breeding house changed by a slight fire in a chimney or otherwise, the floor and walls must be watered several times a day, wet cloths hung against the windows, &c., until the thermometer shows that the ordinary temperature is restored. All accumulation of dirt and spoiled leaves must be carefully avoided, as in hot weather they produce ammoniacal gas, which is fatal to the worms. In the case of sudden chills in the weather equal care must be taken, means of heating must be provided, and the house must be watched during the night as well as the day, for on the avoidance of brusque transitions depends success or failure. To these special hints respecting the critical period, M. Raibaud-Lange adds general instructions, which we give in the most concise terms possible. Keep the cards of eggs in their layers in a dry and well-aired apartment, having a northern aspect. Let the breeding-house be prepared by washing with lye or lime-wash; and, if very dirty, every corner, as well as the fittings, must be carefully washed with a plasterer's brush, and a mixture of one part of sulphuric acid and six parts of water. Begin the breeding early, late frosts are not to be feared; this is one of the best elements of success. Let the chambers be small, and keep different kinds of worms quite separate, as the bad will infect the rest; above all, never place the Japanese worms with the yellow races, or the latter will certainly suffer. A month before the time of hatching, place the eggs in a somewhat warmer place than before, but do not commence the hatching until the eggs are well swollen and begin to turn white. The hatching should be effected in a temperature gradually increasing from 59 deg. to 73 deg. Fahrenheit, and slightly humid. Worms hatched at the same time should be kept together, in order that they may sleep and wake at the same time. During the first and second stages the worms require four meals a day, the leaves being cut up and even peeled or cleared of the coarser portions; during the third and fourth stages, three meals, but more abundant, must be given of leaves as picked from the tree; during the last period the meals must be increased to four. When the worms begin to sleep, diminish the supply of food, and when nearly all asleep, cease the supply entirely; let them thoroughly wake up before recommencing to feed them, they get no harm for fasting for twenty-four, thirty-six, or even forty-eight hours; if, after a time some are awake and others still asleep, divide and feed them separately. The leaves must be changed and the refuse removed at least twice during each stage, and more frequently during damp weather; this must be done by means of netting or paper, so that the worms are never touched with the hand. Let the temperature be increased from about 68 deg. in the commencement to 75 deg. to 77 deg. at the most after the fourth change; maintain the greatest cleanliness without dust or noise; ventilate frequently by means of traps or windows, but shade the worms by curtains or screens; let plenty of light in, and in damp weather make a bright flaming fire. Let the leaves be fresh, but not with the dew on them; the best are those of seedling trees which have not been pruned, and which grow in elevated spots. M. Raibaud-Lange says that in the Basses-Alpes, when these directions are followed, they obtain from 100 to 160 lbs. of silk from one ounce of eggs.

Digitized by Google

DIPLOMATIC AND CONSULAR STAFF IN JAPAN, 1870.

YEDO AND YOKOHAMA.

Sir Harry Parkes, K.C.B.	Minister Plenipotentiary, &c.
F. O. Adams	Secretary Legation
Alex. von Siebold	Interpreter
W. G. Aston	Interpreter
H. S. Wilkinson	Accountant
J. B. Siddall	Medical Officer
Martin Dohmen	Dutch Interpreter
Russell Robertson	Vice Consul

STUDENT INTERPRETERS.

G. J. Hodges	J. C. Hall
John O'Driscoll	J. H. Longford

YOKOHAMA.

J. F. Lowder	Acting Consul
C. E. Schmidt	Dutch Interpreter

OSAKA AND HIOGO.

Abel Gower	Consul
J. J. Enslie	Acting Vice Consul

NAGASAKI.

A. A. Annesley	Acting Consul
J. J. Quin	Interpreter

HAKODADI.

Richard Eusden	Consul

NEE-GATA.

James Troup	Acting Consul

DIPLOMATIC AND CONSULAR STAFF IN CHINA, 1870.

PEKING.

Thos. Wade	Charge d'Affaires
Hugh Fraser, Richard Conolly	Second Secretaries
Thos. Adkins	Acting Chinese Secretary
Rev. J. S. Burdon	Chaplain
S. W. Bushell	Surgeon
Ed. McKean	Acting Accountant
A. Frater	Assistant

STUDENT INTERPRETERS.

Ed. C. Baber	Colin McKenzie Ford
Aug. R. Margary	C. W. Everard
B. C. G. Scott	W. C. Hillier
Pelham L. Warren	C. J. Andrews
Henry B. Bristow	W. R. Carles

TIENTSIN.

Jas. Mongan	Consul
H. G. Howlett	First Assistant

TAKU.

——	Acting Vice Consul

NEWCHWANG.

Walter E. King	Acting Consul

CHEFOO.

W. H. Lay	Acting Consul
Ed. Solbé	Acting Interpreter

SHANGHAI.

Walter H. Medhurst	Officiating Consul
R. J. Forrest	Acting Vice Consul
J. P. M. Fraser	First Assistant
A. S. Harvey	Third Assistant
W. H. Tapp	Shipping Clerk

CHINKIANG.

W. G. Stronach	Intr. in charge of Consulate

KIUKIANG.

P. J. Hughes	Consul
W. M. Cooper	Acting Interpreter

HANKOW.

G. W. Caine	Officiating Consul
A. Davenport	Interpreter
E. G. Oxenham	Acting Assistant

NINGPO.

W. H. Fittock	Consul
H. F. Holt	Acting Interpreter

FOOCHOW.

Chas. A. Sinclair	Consul
J. G. Murray	Vice Consul and Interpreter
Pelham Warren	Assistant

PAGODA ANCHORAGE.

Thos. Walters	Acting Vice Consul

AMOY.

W. H. Pedder	Consul
Geo. Phillips	Interpreter

SWATOW.

Chal. Alabaster	Acting Consul
B. C. G. Scott	Acting Assistant

TAKAO.

W. M. Cooper	Acting Consul
H. A. Giles	Assistant

TAMSUI.

Wm. Gregory	Vice Consul
H. P. McClatchie	Assistant

CANTON.

D. B. Robertson	Consul
W. F. Mayers	Vice Consul and Interpreter

WHAMPOA.

H. F. Hance	Vice Consul

SIAM.

BANGKOK.

T. G. Knox	Consul General
W. H. Newman	Acting Interpreter

PHILIPPINES.

G. T. Ricketts	Consul, Manila
Walter Spencer	Vice Consul
W. G. Kerr	Vice Consul, Cebu
John Higgins	Vice Consul, Ilo Ilo

BORNEO.

John Pope Hennessy	Consul General
G. T. Ricketts	Consul, Sarawak

COCHIN CHINA.

J. G. Caswell	Consul, Saigon

JAVA.

Jas. McLachlan	Consuls, Batavia
J. McLean	Samarang

ON LEAVE.

JAPAN.

A. B. Mitford	M. O. Flowers
E. M. Satow	P. B. Walsh

CHINA.

C. A. Winchester	Chas. Gardner
R. Swinhoe	G. D. Jones
John Markham	Charles Carroll
J. B. Goddard	C. F. R. Allen

SIAM.

H. Alabaster	H. G. Kennedy

Foreign Intelligence.

GERMANY.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

HAMBURG, March 9.

There are several interesting and important subjects to communicate to-day, but that which has caused the greatest excitement, not only at Berlin but over the whole of Germany, is the resolution passed by the Reichstag for the abolition of capital punishment. On the 27th ult., which was the day appointed for the second reading of the new Criminal Code, several members took exception at the very first paragraph of the preamble containing a definition of crimes, misdemeanors, and offences, crime being described as "an act punishable with death, imprisonment with hard labour (zuchthausstrafe), or detention in a fortress for more than five years." Several amendments were moved by different members, but all agreeing in one object—viz., to leave out the words "with death." A lively debate then ensued, capital punishment being warmly defended by Reichensberger, Count Schulenburg, Dr. Leonhardt (the Minister of Justice), Count Bismark, and others, whilst the opponents mustered in strong force and made excellent speeches. The debate lasted for three days, and was finally decided on the 1st inst. by a division, the result of which was that the punishment of death is abolished throughout Germany by 118 to 81 votes. Reichensberger made an admirable speech, but it was not convincing, nor did it contain any new features. The Minister of Justice spoke like a barrister addressing a jury and acting from the instructions in his brief; it was evident that he pleaded in favour of retaining the clause more from policy than conviction. The great speech of the debate was that of Herr Lasker, in favour of the abolition of capital punishment, and it made a deep impression on the House. Many of the speeches contained a deal of German sentimentality, others were full of metaphysical disquisitions, and not a few entered into the religious elements of the question, and quoted freely chapter and verse from the Holy Scriptures in support of their views. Count Bismark somewhat lost his temper at seeing the great majority against him, hinted that the Federal Council would never consent to strike out the words, at least he could answer for Prussia, and even threatened to withdraw the whole Criminal Code if the division were adverse. The Saxon Privy Councillor, Dr. Schwarze, who is the principal judge of the Criminal Tribunal at Dresden, gave his experiences on the subject of death punishments, which made a deep impression on his audience. He said he spoke against the penalty not only because it had been lately abolished in the Kingdom of Saxony, but from honest conviction. The Crown Prince of Prussia was present on each day of the debates, and was seen to take copious notes, especially during Lasker's speech. A report has been in circulation at Berlin that the King objects to the abolition of capital punishment on the ground that the right of clemency and the commutation of sentences is one of the highest and most undoubted privileges of the Crown, which would be encroached on if repealed; but whether there is any ground for the rumour deponent sayeth not. After the division the House went on with the reading of the Bill seriatim, when another hitch occurred at Clause 11, which ordains that death shall ensue by decapitation; but this was quickly got over by simply striking out the obnoxious words, and it gave rise to no debate nor even a division, Ministers not caring to risk another defeat, after being left in such a signal minority on the chief question at issue. The German press in general takes a favourable view of the result, and it is only the small Conservative party that still growls at their defeat; for they one and all defended capital punishment as an institution to be preserved intact as proceeding from the most remote antiquity, specially ordained by the Divine Legislator for the Jews, and kept up in all ages and by all nations down to the present day.

Digitized by Google

With reference to the foregoing subject it is worthy of note, that at the sitting of the Bundes-Rath, or Federal Council, at which the Criminal Code was finally agreed to, a clause was added repealing such of the criminal laws of the separate States as contain anything militating against the new Federal code, which is to come into general operation on January 1, 1871. And another thing worthy of remark is, that many privileges and exemptions hitherto enjoyed by the nobles are swept away; and, indeed, there is no mention at all of nobility in the whole code, from beginning to end, but all classes of society are placed on the same level in the eye of the law.

A Bill to facilitate marriages of Germans, and provide for efficient registers of births and deaths in countries out of Europe, has passed the Bundes-Rath, and been read a first time in the Reichstag. It extends the functions of German consuls abroad, enabling them to perform the marriage ceremony in the absence of a duly ordained clergyman, and to keep such registers, which shall have due force in all courts of law in Germany with respect to the disposal of property and payment of legacies, whilst wills may be deposited at the consulates and certified copies sent home. The Bill makes only special mention of marriages between Protestant Germans; but it is said that on the second reading amendments will be moved to extend the stipulations to marriages between Germans of any or no religious denomination, and not to limit the enactment to consulates out of Europe, but to place them all on the same footing of equality.

In the last sitting of the Federal Council a Bill was introduced by Prussia to facilitate the commercial intercourse between the Confederation and South Germany by legalising the decimal weights and measures stamped in due form by any of the Southern States, and allowing them to be used in North Germany on condition of due reciprocity being observed.

COMMERCIAL.

The frost has at length broken up, but the Elbe is still full of ice-fields, which drive up and down with the tide and prevent the navigation by sailing vessels, though steamers make their way through it. Owing to the consequent absence of fresh supplies, the markets are generally firm, and in some instances higher. There has been a moderate demand for teas; Congou is firm, and Pekoe decidedly higher. Importers have just sold 200 chests of good ord. and 196 middl. Moning Congou at full rates. Pepper is calm, and there is no alteration in Cassia Lignea. Star Annis is in great favour, and prices have advanced in proportion as the stocks grow lower, and wear still an upward tendency. Raw Camphor in great request, and a considerable rise established. Several parcels have been sold for delivery on arrival; among others 200 chests afloat per Adler. Refined Camphor is also held at higher prices, but no transactions are reported. There is an increased consumptive demand for Gum Damar, and a corresponding improvement in the prices paid. Higher prices are also required, and paid, for Oil of Peppermint, especially H.G. Hotchkiss. Spelter is held for 13⅛ mks. bco.; but buyers act cautiously, and, with the exception of one small lot, no dealings are reported. Tin is higher, and a fair amount of business has been done since the improvement set in

SHIPPING.

LOADING. — Sea Mew, for Shanghai; Felicie, Fetish, Turandot and Clarendon, for Hong Kong; Ceres, for Macassar and Hong Kong St. Pauli, for Macassar and Macao; and Adolf, for Singapore.

AUSTRIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

VIENNA, March 7

For some time past hopes, hitherto fallacious, have been entertained of the possibility of competing with France and Italy for the transit of the overland mails by opening up a new line through Germany and Austria. The Trieste route proved a failure, not so much from the incapacity of the Austrian Lloyd's steamers, as from the now generally acknowledged fact that no steamers can compete with parallel lines of railway; besides which the mountainous nature of the country and the consequent roundabout way to get to Munich and the comparatively flat parts of Germany, precluded the possibility of competing with Marseilles and Brindisi. But another new route is now projected, as containing all the elements of success, and combining the great desideratum of offering a shorter and quicker route for the conveyance of the overland mails through Austria and Dalmatia. It is now proposed to include the port of Santi Quaranta as a port of call and for coaling purposes—perhaps in substitution of Corfu—in the steam voyage between Trieste and Alexandria, and to construct a railway through Delvino and Yanina, to connect the Turkish lines through Albania and Bosnia with the Austrian and Hungarian systems. Of course, none of your readers ever heard of Santi Quaranta; but it is a little port on the west coast of Albania, opposite the northern end of the Island of Corfu. Though now deserted and nearly uninhabited, it was once—in the time of the Venetian rule—a place of some importance in a commercial point of view, and the ruins now extant of its piers and quays indicate its former maritime activity. The harbour is said to contain deep water, easily accessible, and sheltered from all winds—in fact land-locked, and thus peculiarly well adapted for the use of steamers. It is 120 miles nearer to Alexandria than Brindisi, and is not so exposed a route, being sheltered from the scirocco and other violent winds prevalent in the Mediterranean, and would be still further sheltered, and also shortened by another hundred miles, by passing through the Gulf of Corinth, when the navigable ship canal through the Isthmus is completed, which, by the terms of the "concession" already granted by the Greek Government to a French company, must be open for public traffic in eighteen months, or by the summer of next year.

RUSSIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ST. PETERSBURG, March 8.

A plan for establishing a university in Siberia, that was under consideration two years ago and then abandoned, has been again revived, in connection with the reforms and alterations about to be introduced in the administration and geographical division of that distant part of the Russian dominions. Several of the Polish nobles and other exiles now in banishment at Irkutzk, Tobolsk, and Omsk, have intimated their readiness to accept chairs as professors of the different faculties, and are willing to undertake the obligation of qualifying themselves for giving their lectures in the language of the country, by the time the university shall be inaugurated. There are ten such men of literature and science who have graduated at German universities, and eight priests who have received their education at seminaries in Germany, all of whom are candidates for the new professorships.

The number of Poles arrested on the charge of being implicated in the late "nihilistic" conspiracy against the life of the Emperor has not been exaggerated, and the Russian official organs confess that they exceed three hundred. As the Government has from the experience of former years come to the conclusion that the presence of the large number of Poles, exiled for taking part in the revolutionary movement of 1863, had prejudicial influence on the inhabitants of Siberia, both in a political and moral point of view, an Imperial Ukase has just been promulgated, creating the Island of Sachalin, opposite the mouth of the Amoor, as the future seat of punishment for criminals and place of detention for political exiles; and arrangements are now being made to transport the above-mentioned Poles on being convicted of participation in the late nihilistic conspiracy to that island.

Since my last letter another sitting of the Society for Promoting Russian Industry and Trade has been held, to take into further consideration the subject of the Siberian Railway, when, after a warm discussion, the majority decided in favour of the northern line.

RUMOURED DISPUTE BETWEEN RUSSIA AND CHINA.

The Eastern Budget's correspondent at St. Petersburg, writing on the 2nd inst., says:—

"A dispute has broken out between the Russian and Chinese Governments. The Chinese authorities have refused to allow the Russian inhabitants of the new commercial town of Kalgan to construct storehouses, and they oppose the establishment of a Russian Consul in the town. The latter point is not much pressed by the Russian Government, as, if a Russian Consul were allowed, the Chinese Government could not refuse to sanction an English Consul also, the consequence of which would be that the Russian trade would suffer from competition with English merchants. As to the storehouses, the Chinese Government appeals to a treaty by which the Russians are not to build storehouses of a certain size in the town of Kalgan, while the St. Petersburg Cabinet urges that there is nothing in the treaty to prevent Russians from purchasing land on which the storehouses could be afterwards built. The Ministry here even attempted to obtain a revocation of the treaty from the Chinese Mission; but this they declined to do, saying that their Government had not given them power either to make or to revoke treaties. The matter is, I hear, now the subject of negotiation at Peking."

DENMARK.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

COPENHAGEN, March 7

It is considered here not at all impossible that the Danish frigate Tordenskjold, which is now fitting out to accompany the expedition for carrying out and submerging the submarine telegraph cable for the line between Shanghai and the new port of Vladivostock, will be able to go out by way of the Suez Canal. It depends on whether the submarine blasting operations are sufficiently advanced by the middle of April to allow her to pass with safety over the sunken rock of Serapeum, as she now draws eighteen feet of water, and when loaded with her share of the telegraph cable will certainly require at least twenty-three feet.

The Danish artist, Fritz Melbye, who lately died at Shanghai, is not to be confounded with the eminent marine painter, Professor Melbye, whose name is Anthony, or with his brother Wilhelm.

HOLLAND.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ROTTERDAM, March 10.

The Agrarian Bill for India has at length become a subject for discussion in the Second Chamber of the States General, and now that the sluices of eloquence are fairly opened it seems that the debate will have no end; since the 28th ult. the members have been sitting every day from eleven till four, and every member will have his say about the questions of finance and law resulting from this Bill. Nearly all the members of the Opposition have spoken against the measure, which undoubtedly will, when called into action, virtually secure the natives, not perhaps absolutely and in all cases, from hardship, but assuredly against oppression and injustice. It recognises a claim on the part of the native to a regulated permanence in his holding for seventy-five years, and a liberal compensation will be given to him whenever that permanence is invaded on behalf of the Government. Besides the tenant-right, the right of transfer is given him. The question whether he can be really proprietor of land is of later date; the present simple but efficient Bill only decides the principles upon which tenant-right can be claimed; it will secure that right by a statute of the realm, leaving to the Colonial Government to apply the principle according to the different circumstances. It is impossible to give the minute details of the debate upon this measure; to effect this my letter would assume the dimensions of a volume. Eliminating a legion of old arguments, the objections made by the Conservatives were—that the King is proprietor of the soil of Java, of which, therefore, no one has the power to dispose; that this Bill will entirely annihilate the culture system; that the natives will become the victims of dishonest fortune-hunters; that the Javanese will be "squeezed" by speculative foreigners (the Conservatives especially hold Englishmen en horreur); that the Dutch will eventually be expelled, and that the goose which lays the golden eggs will be killed. Such like, and other complaints and grievances, were made, mixed up with arguments about the leges Agrariæ. Instead of so generous a Bill being, as it should have been, cordially accepted by both parties, the Opposition is as factious as it can well be, and does not recognise the principle that the magnitude of the interests involved should override the impulses of political rivalry. This Bill is thus made a party question, which simply means that its opponents want something very different from the justice which they pretend to claim for the Javanese. The Liberals, on the contrary, are fighting manfully to secure for the cultivator of the soil in Java the right that he is justly entitled to, and there is, I am confident, not the least doubt but that this Bill will be carried; indeed, I hope to be able to telegraph to you this happy result before the mail leaves.

Digitized by Google

